Indiana Town Joins Search For Missing Coed

CAMBRIDGE CITY, Ind. (AP) — Ann Louise Harmeier, 20, could be considered nothing more than a statistic — one of thousands of persons reported missing each year, in time destined to be erased from police computers and human memories.

But Miss Harmeier, a lifelong resident of Cambridge City, is a symbol of the ability of the 4,000 people who live in this small eastern Indiana community and adjacent towns to counter frustration and despair with optimism and determination.

The people are searching for Miss Harmeier. And they won't give up until they find her.

On the morning of Sept. 12, the Indiana University junior loaded her clothes and books into a car and headed for the campus in Bloomington, about 105 miles away. She stopped at service stations several times en route because she was having car trouble.

She was last spotted standing outside her disabled car along Indiana 37, two miles north of Martinsville, less than 20 miles from campus.

The Rev. Rose Taul of Cambridge City Presbyterian Church, a family friend, became alarmed when Miss Harmeier failed to telephone her that night as planned. The next day, she and Miss Harmeier's mother, Marjorie, retraced the route Miss Harmeier had taken.

Where is Ann?

That question, in bold, black type, is spread throughout the nation on bumper stickers, posters and billboards, all part of a massive campaign that began the weekend after Miss Harmeier vanished.

"Two days after Ann was reported missing, I called Mrs. Harmeier and asked if there was anything I could do," said David Weston, Dublin Elementary School principal. "That's when Ernie Alder — a retired state police sergeant and another neighbor of the Harmeiers — and I decided to put out the posters."

Thousands of posters bearing a picture and description of the blue-eyed, blonde Miss Harmeier have been distributed, he said.

Weston, Alder and the Rev. Miss Taul set up the Ann Harmeier Search and Reward Committee, which has collected more than $10,000 in pledges and $5,000 in cash thus far.

Small search parties of area residents and Bloomington citizens are helping police scour parts of the Morgan-Monroe State Forest and combing remote areas in southern Indiana and Kentucky.

Six billboards displaying Miss Harmeier's picture have been erected between Cambridge City and Bloomington. Stories for two national magazines, a public

Economic Strategy Requested

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Top businessmen say the best thing President Carter could do for the economy is spell out a consistent economic program, even if it is anti-business.

"Markets can handle good and bad news but not uncertainty," said Irving S. Shapiro, chairman of the DuPont Co. "Even if we don't agree with the program, we'll know where we're going."

At their twice-yearly meeting this weekend, corporation chairmen were not hostile to Carter, the first Democratic President in eight years. Instead, the 120-member Business Council expressed confusion about the President's economic plans.

Want Understanding

"Business is looking for an economic strategy, articulated in a way we can understand it. The market is not hearing that," said Reginald H. Jones, chairman of General Electric Co.

The Carter administration has set targets of reducing unemployment from 6.9 per cent to less than 5 per cent by 1981 and keeping economic growth at 5 per cent next year.

However, the businessmen said that since the economy may not reach the targets, they would like Carter to set out concrete economic proposals, as he has done on energy, to meet his goals.

Administration officials acknowledge that uncertainty may be contributing to the stock market's slide. But they contend that uncertainty is inevitable, given Carter's detailed programs on energy, welfare and other issues.

Uncertainity "Natural"

"There is an awful lot on the front burner," said Robert Strauss, Carter's special trade representative. "When you seek progress, you must inevitably create some uncertainty."

Part of the uncertainty at the moment rests with Carter's tax program, which is still being worked out. The businessmen said they favor a $22 billion tax cut, about the size Carter is considering. But they want a permanent cut they can plan for, rather than temporary boosts for the economy.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, told the businessmen the legislation will have to be trimmed to such basics as tax simplification, capital formation and rate reductions if it is to pass next year.

Despite their dislike of the uncertain economic climate, businessmen had no complaints about their relationship with the administration. Business Council representatives were pleased with the

GETTING TO KNOW EACH OTHER — Becoming acquainted with her Christmas present, Rhonda Cantrell, 14, of Ropesville allows her new lion cub, still unnamed, to nibble her on the chin. The four-month-old animal netted $575 Sunday at an auction of Noah's Ark Zoo, a roadside zoo about two miles east of Lubbock. Proceeds from the sale of two lion cubs and two other larger lions were donated to the Lubbock State School to buy automatic wheelchairs. Exotic Pets Sold At Zoo Auction

BOB AND DOROTHY Montgomery used to have five children, a chihuahua, a couple of lions, two bears, several monkeys, a camel, an ostrich, and a trained chimpanzee.

Today they have five children and the chihuahua.

The Montgomerys, former owners of Noah's Ark, a roadside zoo about two miles southeast of Lubbock, auctioned off their animals, real estate, furniture and curio shop Saturday and Sunday.

Almost 1,000 visitors, including residents in search of unusual pets, zoo owners from Colorado and Texas, and the curious, attended the two-day affair which netted $8,700 from animal sales alone.

Close to $1,300 from the auction was donated to the Lubbock State School for the purchase of electric wheelchairs.

"It was just so beautiful, totally unexpected and unsolicited," Donny Kelsey, volunteer coordinator of the Lubbock State School said about the donation. "He (Montgomery) is one of the most generous, kindest men I've ever come across," she added.

The Montgomerys sold 27 exotic animals, including two lion cubs which went for $525 to a Tech student and $575 to a 14-year-old Ropesville girl.

George, a Dromedary camel, was bought by the Amarillo zoo for $1,875, while a llama brought $600.

Terrorist Demands Rejected

ADEN, South Yemen (AP) — A hijacked West German jet with 87 hostages aboard landed safely at Aden airport Sunday after a deadline for death passed with the West German government refusing to meet the demands of four terrorists who had threatened to blow up the plane.

There was no word on the fate of West German industrialist Hanns Martin Schleyer, whose kidnapers had threatened to kill him unless the Bonn government met the hijackers' demands by the deadline.

Tried To Block Landing

South Yemen's civil aviation agency said authorities unsuccessfully tried to prevent the Lufthansa Boeing 737 from landing in the capital of Aden after it was turned away by the Sultanate of Oman.

"But despite our disapproval the plane free-landed on a dusty strip," a South Yemeni spokesman said. The government agreed to refuel the craft only if the hijackers left "as soon as possible."

The 82 passengers, including an American woman with a heart condition and her 5-year-old son, and five weary crewmen were reported safe following the shaky landing on the unpaved dirt strip.

Aden Airport Closed

The jet, dark except for a faint illumination in the cockpit area where the hijackers are said to be, parked about two miles from the main terminal. The Aden airport was closed until further notice.

In recent years, this Marxist country at the tip of the Arabian peninsula has granted refuge to hijackers and other terrorists. But officials here insist the Lufthansa jet will not be allowed to stay.

The Lufthansa jet had left Dubai airport in the United Arab Emirates 40 minutes before the 7 a.m. CDT deadline set by the four hijackers for release of 11 anarchists imprisoned in West German jails and two Palestinians imprisoned in Turkey as well as $15 million ransom.

Round-The-Clock Sessions

West Germany took no action to meet the demands as the deadline passed. The Bonn government continued round-the-clock crisis sessions into the night to decide what their next step would be.

South Yemen was the fifth stop for the hijacked plane — which was ordered to Rome, Nicosia, Bahrain and Dubai — after the hijackers commandeered the Majorca-to-Frankfurt flight over France on Thursday.

No Trace Left By Joan Little

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joan Little, who escaped from a prison over the weekend, was under too much pressure because of publicity she drew two years ago when she was acquitted in the death of a jailer she said had assaulted her, an attorney says.

Durham attorney Jerry Paul, who successfully defended Miss Little in her 1975 murder trial, said she called him late Friday night and told him "there was something she really had to talk to me about."

Miss Little, serving a 7-to-10-year sentence on a burglary conviction, escaped from the North Carolina Correction Center for Women on Saturday. She had been turned down for parole last December but was scheduled to be considered again for release in a month.

Parole Unlikely

The likelihood of her being granted parole was not good, however, because of what prison officials said were infractions of work release program rules committed by Miss Little.

"The level of hot pursuit is the same for any felon," W.L. Kautzky, deputy director of prisons, said Sunday of efforts to recapture Miss Little.

Prison officials say they do not know how she got away, but Kautzky said a friend of Miss Little's was released from the prison not long before the escape was discovered at 6:30 p.m., when dormitory doors were locked. Before the lock-in, inmates are free to move around the grounds of the prison, a complex of several buildings on tree-shaded grounds surrounded by an eight-foot chain link fence.

Some officials speculated Saturday that Miss Little may have scaled the fence to escape. She was wearing blue jeans and a green shirt, standard prison garb, at the time, Kautzky said.

Paul said he expected to hear from her soon.

She may have escaped because of pres-

Visiting Castro Labeled 'Dictator' In Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro arrived in Kingston Sunday for his first visit to this Caribbean island and greeted Prime Minister Michael Manley with a warm bear hug.

Castro, clad in green army fatigues, traveled here aboard a Cuban Navy training ship from the Cuban port of Santiago. He was greeted dockside by a 21-gun salute and a Jamaica defense force honor guard.

Castro smiled and waved to Jamaican officials, diplomats including U.S. Ambassador Frederick Irving and hundreds of onlookers as he strolled down the gangplank of the Cuban ship Jose Marti.

Several thousand persons lined the main thoroughfare in downtown Kingston, some shouting "Viva Cuba" and "Viva Castro," to catch glimpse of Castro as his official entourage whisked by.

Meanwhile, Jamaican opposition leaders announced Sunday they would boycott Castro's six-day visitto the island, denouncing him as a "Communist dictator" with imperialist designs on the Caribbean.

Castro is touring Jamaica at the invitation of Manley, who visited Cuba in 1975. Manley called the opposition Jamaica Labor party's boycott an "insult (to) one of the greatest leaders of the 20th century, who is a hero to the people of the third world of all political persuasions."

The political controversy flared as the government mounted the most stringent security campaign ever seen on this economically troubled Caribbean island of 2.1 million.

After a meeting of opposition leaders, party executive Frank Phipps issued a statement calling the Castro visit "mistimed and ill-conceived."

The statement called Castro "a man whose record was one of interference in the internal affairs of Jamaica and other countries, and who preaches throughout this hemisphere subversion and revolution."

Moderates Not Consulted

Officials of the moderate pro-nationalist party, which received 43 per cent of the vote in the last general election, said they had not been consulted about the visit.

The opposition also noted that President Samora Machel of Mozambique was

Surgeon General Urges 'Don't Smoke' Effort

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surgeon General Julius Richmond has proposed a "National Don't Smoke Day" on which no cigarettes would be sold or smoked in the United States.

He said the government also could issue a new surgeon general's smoking report as "a media event which would go far in publicizing the health-damaging effects of smoking."

The last such report was issued 12 years ago.

Richmond summarized the "preliminary suggestions" of a federal task force in an "action memorandum" to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, a former smoker. UPI obtained a copy of the memo from Agriculture Department sources.

"The issue is how tightly the government can circumscribe the choices of its citizens," wrote Richmond, who is also HEW's assistant secretary for health.

The memo offered such other anti-smoking suggestions as:

— Giving government employes time off from work to break their smoking habits.

— Government encouragement of private suits against tobacco companies by individuals injured as a result of smoking.

— Ending all price support programs for tobacco farmers, and giving welfare benefits, such as food stamps and Medicaid, to farmers hurt by the action.

— Increasing federal excise taxes on cigarettes.

— A HEW request for Justice Department ruling on whether nicotine can be federally controlled as "an addictive and dependence-producing substance."

HEW official Eileen Shanahan said Califano has seen the memo and considers most of the proposals "still alive" and possibly worth inclusion in any HEW antismoking plan that might be drafted.

But she said Califano wrote, "no, no, a thousand times NO," next to the suggestion the government encourage and support suits by private individuals against tobacco companies.

He also vetoed the proposed phaseout of tobacco price supports, with the comment, "How do we take care of the small farmers?"

Computers Aid Lives Of Handicapped

By PHYLLIS WOLLMAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Meet MOUTH, the talking computer. It can say "Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow ...."

Although MOUTH can recite nursery rhymes, it was designed to help blind persons who want to pursue a career in computer sciences.

MOUTH, an acronym for Modular Output Unit for Talking to Humans, was developed by James Kutsch, a professor at West Virginia University, so he can substitute verbal responses for computer printouts.

It is one of several examples of how modern electronics and engineering ingenuity have joined forces to turn the disabled into the able, whether at their jobs or at home.

Some 50 million handicapped Americans ultimately could be helped by the devices.

Although MOUTH was developed at West Virginia University, many of the electronic aids are developed, tested, improved at the Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine at New York University Medical Center.

Another major contributor is the Bell System and its Telephone Pioneers of America, a nationwide service organization of Bell employes.

"The great advances in electronics that have come through solid state physics and miniaturization have reshaped our lives by giving us things such as pocket computers, but these advances also are bringing new freedoms to the disabled through self-aid devices that allow the handicapped to be independent," says Dr. Howard Rusk, chairman of the NYU Medical Center's Department of Rehabilitation.

As one example, Dr. Rusk describes a wheelchair trt, stop, move or change speed at its owner's command because art, stop, move or change speed at its owner's command because it is "tuned" to respond to only one voice or breath flow pattern.

Among devices his institute tested was a sight switch designed by NASA for the astronauts. It is activated by eye movement, leaving astronauts' hands free for other vital duties. But on a wheelchair it proved impractical because too many eye movements were needed to put it into motion.

A total control system for the home using "oral fingerprints" was designed by James Warner, a former patient at the institute. Continually flashing lights move over a panel of control knobs. Want to turn up the heat? Turn on the lights? Whistle as the flashing light rests on the assigned knob. The machine isn't picky about whether you can warble like a bird. It can be tuned to obey any audible passage of air from the lips.

A California woman, paralyzed from the neck down by polio, is a free lance writer. She can type 20 words a minute on an electric machine called "Cybertype," its keyboard triggered by a tongue switch. The machine was designed by Haig Kafafian, who quit his job as a weapons designer to open the Cybernetics Research Institute, a non-profit organization in Washington, D.C., that specializes in helping the handicapped overcome communications problems.

Another non-profit group aiding the handicapped is the National Institute for Rehabilitation Engineering. NIRE physicians and engineers describe their organization as a "social and vocational rehabilitiation facility" to which the handicapped are referred when they need help in reshaping their capabilities.

Based in Pompton Lakes, N.J., NIRE helped one partially paralyzed draftsman to resume his profession by creating a one-hand drafting system. It also helped a former Army helicopter pilot to continue flying. As a civilian pilot, he fractured his vocal cords, reducing the volume of his voice as well as lowering the pitch a couple of octaves. As a result, he couldn't communicate with ground stations. NIRE devised a speech aid that transfers his voice to a higher range acceptable to the helicopter radio system.

For the arthritic who suffers loss of grasp, there are leather cuffs to fit the palm to hold a toothbrush and a holder that fits on the back of the hand for an electric shaver.

For the paralyzed, Dr. Rusk's institute has tested a page turner made in Holland that operates by air suction. And for the diabetic, it has devised a wall bracket to hold an insulin bottle to aid self-injection.

If you can pucker your lips and blow, you can dial the telephone, change television channels, turn on the radio, stereo, tape recorder, intercom, fan, lights. This all-purpose system, activated by blowing into an air tube or with the flick of the tongue, has been designed by Prentke Romich Co. of Shreve, Ohio.

Alexander Graham Bell, whose wife and daughter were deaf, said that he would rather be remembered for what he did to help the deaf than for inventing the telephone.

Today, the Bell System is continuing to help overcome communications hurdles for the handicapped. Devices it has developed range from an artificial larynx — 56,000 sold since 1964 — to a vibrator, which when placed under a pillow alerts a hard-of-hearing sleeper to a ringing telephone.

To avoid shouting to the hard of hearing, public telephones can be equipped with a switch that can make the voice up to 400 times louder. After the call, the switch automatically returns the phone to normal volume.

To help the blind switchboard operator, Bell engineers designed a light probe. Looking like a small antenna on a flexible watch band, the probe emits geiger counter-like signals to a plastic ear piece. Thus the blind can tell which line is ringing by moving the probe toward the sound.

Cards with telephone numbers in Braille can be inserted into special phones to eliminate dialing problems for the blind.

Helen Keller, blind and deaf at an early age, said that deafness is the greater handicap for a child because he learns to talk by imitating others.

To help such children, the Bell volunteers, some half-million in the United States and Canada, developed Tommy, the blinking bunny; Bobbie, the blinking mouse; Pioneer Pup and a monkey called Pioneer Pete.

One of the stuffed animals has light emitting diodes in his eyes so that they light up in response to a child's voice. Using the same concept, Bo the blinking dog is helping pre-school children learn to speak at West Virginia University. Speech therapists there say the children love talking to Bo and are encouraged when they see his eyes light up at the sound of their voices.

But the Bell zoo's duties go beyond helping the physically handicapped. The "talking monkey" for example, is outfitted with a microphone so therapists in one room can encourage conversation in another room with autistic children.

Tire Pressure Checks Vital In Cold Weather

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chilly autumn temperatures can cause auto tires to become "seriously and dangerously underinflated," the Tire Industry Safety Council said Sunday.

"Cold weather reduces tire inflation pressure approximately one pound for every 10degree drop in temperature," said Council Chairman Malcolm Lovell Jr. "Tire pressure should be checked frequently during winter months to be sure inflation is at the level recommended by your car owner's manual."

A seriously under-inflated tire is one that is four or more pounds of air pressure below the amount recommended by the vehicle manufacturer, according to the National Bureau of Standards.

Lovell said properly inflated tires can add up to five per cent to gasoline mileage because they roll easier onnthe road.

"The average motorist could save about $30 annually on gasoline simply by keeping the correct amount of air in his tires," he said.

Soft tires also can cause "erratic steering and excessive tread wear," Lovell added.

The council recommended that motorists check tire pressures every two or three weeks and before long trips during winter months, preferably in the morning when temperatures are at their lowest and tires are cold from overnight parking.

The safety council also had these safety tips for fall driving:

— Watch out for autumn leaves. Even when it's not raining, leaves have a tendency to retain moisture and create a slippery surface for tires.

— Take it easy when braking on wet roads. Stopping on a wet road can take up to four times the normal distance.

G.O.P. Chief Blasts Decay Of Economy

AUSTIN (UPI) — The head of the Republican National Committee says the economy still is the biggest problem facing politicians today and one which Democrats have done nothing to solve.

"The American dream is less and less available to the American people," party chairman Bill Brock said at a Texas Republican Executive Committee meeting Saturday.

He said economic conditions were making it impossible for many people to attain goals such as employment, home ownership and college educations.

"The price of a home today is beyond the reach of three out of four families. This must not continue," he said.

Warming Trend To Continue

Almost springlike weather blanketed the South Plains Sunday with Lubbock's high temperature reaching 76 degrees. The warmer temperatures were associated with a large dome of high pressure which settled over the state early Sunday morning.

The warming trend should continue through today, National Weather Service forecasters say, with today's high in the lower 80s. The low tonight is expected to reach the mid-40s.

NWS officials report that winds should pick up today, however, with gusts from the southwest reaching 15 to 20 miles per hour.

No rain was recorded across the state Sunday and the NWS is expecting none through Tuesday. However, a light frost was reported at Levelland as early morning temperatures Sunday dipped to 35 degrees there.

Another cold front is expected to move into the Panhandle this afternoon and continue southeastward across the South Plains tonight. The front, resulting from a low pressure area expected to develop over northwestern Texas today, should cause Tuesday's temperatures to dip into the lower 70s, NWS officials report.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM The Newspaper Bible®

II Peter 3:4-16 A. The Livng Bible

4 This will be their line of argument: "So Jesus promised to come back, did he? Then where is He? He'll never come! Why, as far back as anyone can remember everything has remained exactly as it was since the first day of creation."

5,6 They deliberately forget this fact: that God did destroy the world with a mighty flood, long after He had made the heavens by the word of His command, and had used the waters to form the earth and surround it.

7 And God has commanded that the earth and the heavens be stored away for a great bonfire at the judgment day, when all ungodly men will perish.

8 But don't forget this, dear friends, that a day or a thousand years from now is like tomorrow to the Lord.

9 He isn't really being slow about His promised return, even though it sometimes seems that way. But He is waiting, for the good reason that He is not willing that any should perish, and He is giving more time for sinners to repent.

10 The day of the Lord is surely coming, as unexpectedly as a thief, and then the heavens will pass away with a terrible noise and the heavenly bodies will disappear in fire, and the earth and everything on it will be burned up.

11 And so since everything around us is going to melt away, what holy, godly lives we should be living!

12 You should look forward to that day and hurry it along—the day when God will set the heavens on fire, and the heavenly bodies will melt and disappear in flames.

13 But we are looking forward to God's promise of new heavens and a new earth afterwards, where there will be only goodness.

14 Dear friends, while you are waiting for these things to happen and for Him to come, try hard to live without sinning; and be at peace with everyone so that He will be pleased with you when He returns.

15,16 And remember why He is waiting. He is giving us time to get His message of salvation out to others. Our wise and beloved brother Paul has talked about these same things in many of his letters.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Today is the Bicentennial of one of the most important events in American history, the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga, N.Y.)

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

The sky was bright and clear, the air crisp and the trees an autumn palette. It was a brilliant setting for the first surrender of a British army in the New World and the turning point of the American Revolution.

It happened 200 years ago Monday at Saratoga, NY., as Lt. Gen. John Burgoyne surrendered 5,000 British, German and Canadian soldiers to Maj. Gen. Horatio Gates of the Continental Army.

The campaign had been decided on Oct. 7, 1777, when Burgoyne was checked for a second time in his efforts to get around Gates army — the last obstacle in his scheme to split the colonies with a march to the sea and strangle their rebellion.

That night, under cover of dark, Burgoyne abandoned his entrenched positions at the battlefield and withdrew to the great redoubt, an earthen fort that protected his base camp.

At daybreak the Americans occupied his abandoned lines, but there was only sporadic fire across the ravine separating the armies. Both camps rested, tended wounds and buried their dead.

Burgoyne needed at least to reach Ticonderoga, 60 miles to the north. So, leaving campfires burning to deceive the Americans, he slipped away the night of Oct. 8, abandoning his hospital, his wounded and much of his baggage.

For two days the column moved in a torrent of rain. The road became a sea of mud and vehicles were left where they stuck. American snipers kept up a constant fire.

On the evening of Oct. 9 the weary procession reached Saratoga, and Burgoyne took over the mansion of American Gen. Philip Schuyler.

"He spent half the nights in singing and drinking and amusing himself with the wife of a commissary, who was his mistress," charged the Baroness von Riedesel, whose husband commanded the German contingent.

Burgoyne's men, meantime, lay outside on the ground, soaked, hungry and exhausted. Their tents had been dumped in the flight.

On Oct. 10th, his army rested and resupplied, Gates began pursuit. By afternoon his cannoneers were pounding the British camp. The next day the British burned Schuyler's estate and withdrew to an entrenched defense on the north bank of the Fishkill Creek.

Gates called off an attack at the last minute and set up a siege. On Oct. 11th, his men captured most of Burgoyne's boats, needed for transport and bridging on the Hudson.

On Oct. 12th, Gates tightened th siege, now almost enveloping the British, except for a gap in the northern perimeter. American fire was now a constant rain.

The baroness huddled in a cellar with her children amidst wounded and dying soldiers. "Eleven cannon balls went through the house," she said, "and we could plainly hear them rolling over our heads. One poor soldier, whose leg they were about to amputate, having been laid upon a table for this purpose, had the other leg taken off by another cannon ball, in the very middle of the operation."

"We at last found a soldier's wife who had the courage to bring water from the river, for no one else would undertake it, as the enemy shot at the head of every man who approached the river," reported Madam von Riedesel.

British Lt. Thomas Anburey concluded that the state of his army "was truly calamitous — worn down by a series of incessant toils and stubborn actions."

They had been abandoned by their Indian allies and disappointed by their Canadian and American loyalist friends, he complained. Many of their best regulars were dead or wounded.

They lay "in this state of weakness," he lamented, with "no possibility of retreat, our provisions nearly exhausted, and invested by an army of four times our number that almost encirlced us, who would not attack us from a knowledge of our situation, and whose works could not be assaulted in any part.

"In this perilous situation the men lay continually upon their arms, the enemy incessantly cannonading us, and their rifle and cannon shot reached every part of our camp," the lieutenant wrote.

Burgoyne could not move. He could not fight. And he had only provisions enough to feed his men another week.

"In this state of distress, a council of war was called," Anburey recorded. "...it was unanimously agreed that in the present circumstances we could do no other than treat with the enemy."

There followed three days of negotiations.

Finally, Gates agreed to terms so generous that Burgoyne agreed to sign the "convention," a term he preferred to "capitulation." The ceremony demanded by 18th century protocol was held on Oct. 17, 1777.

First the Americans took position along the old military road south of the Fishkill, most of them without uniforms but proud as any conquering army. Then the Britsh.

"About 10 o'clock we marched out according to treaty, with drums beating and the honours of war," wrote Lt. William Digby of the Shropshire Regiment, "but the drums seemed to have lost their former inspiriting sounds.

"And though we beat the Grenadiers march, which not long before was so animating, yet then it seemed by its last feeble effort as if almost ashamed to be heard on such an occasion," he added.

Burgoyne splashed across the ford followed by his general officers and their staffs, and rode between the Yankee files to Gates' headquarters.

"The fortune of war, Gen. Gates, have made me your prisoner," said Burgoyne as he handed over his sword.

"I shall always be ready to bear testimony that it has not been through any fault of your excellency," said Gates as he handed it back.

Then the senior officers on both sides retired to dine under a canopy raised for the occasion, while Burgoyne's troops laid down their arms in a meadow across the creek, mercifully out of American view.

Then the vanquished British forded the creek and marched between the ranks of the victorious Americans.

"Tears, though unmanly, forced their way," confessed Digby, but he found comfort in their treatment. "I never shall forget the appearance of their troops on our marching past them. A dead silence universally reigned through their numerous columns, and even then they seemed struck with our situation and dared scarce lift their eyes to view British troops in such a situation."

First came the British, then the Germans and the provincials, the camp followers, teamsters, suttler. The Germans carried or led pets adopted in the forest — a bear, a deer, a racoon, young foxes.

As the procession passed, the fifes and drums struck "Yankee Doodle."

On Feb. 6, 1778, shortly after the news reached France, treaties were signed recognizing American inependence and forming the military alliance America needed to win the war. A year later, Spain would join as France's ally. The American Revolution had become a world war.

Satellite Pair To Study Magnetosphere

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The national space agency plans to launch a pair of satellites into far-reaching orbits Wednesday to give scientists a better understanding of how the sun controls Earth's space environment.

The two satellites, one built by the United States and the other by the European Space Agency, will swing in and out of the immense envelope of magnetic forces that surrounds the Earth to carry out measurements that single spacecraft could not make.

They will carry instruments 10 times more sensitive than those previously flown.

Exploration of the relationship between the sun and Earth could lead to improved weather and climate prediction techniques, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said. The $57 million mission also is expected to make a significant contribution to an international "magnetospheric" study aimed at developing a clearer picture of the globe's space neighborhood.

The two craft will be launched from Cape Canaveral on a Delta rocket similar to one that blew up shortly after launch Sept. 13 carrying an experimental communications satellite owned by the European Space Agency.

The plan is to fling the two satellites into looping orbits ranging from 174 to 87,000 miles from Earth. The smaller of the two satellites is maneuverable and engineers will be able to keep it anywhere from 60 to 1,800 miles from its partner as they follow the same track around Earth.

By keeping the spacecraft separated, scientists will be able to study the boundaries of the magnetosphere.

Jimmy Jumps To Conclusions

SHADES OF John F. Kennedy!

President Carter may have chomped off more than he can chew in his latest broadside.

The President, in his intemperate attack on the oil and gas industry—and his implied threat of gas rationing and divestment of the major oil companies—may have done more to strain relations with the business community in general than anything he has accomplished during his term.

WHILE HE has every right to fight for his program, his "obvious" appeal to the public through unfounded charges and fears, smacks of demagoguery.

The reaction, in Congress, among oil and gas people, and to an extent among knowledgeable citizens was predictable. Either the President was waging a deliberate campaign of distortion based on emotions rather than reason, or was ignorant of what is needed to get a truly effective energy policy going.

IN FAIRNESS to Mr. Carter, he did touch on a major problem, that of the U.S. public still not really buying the idea that the nation is facing a growing energy crisis that will become worse by the year.

And although not needed and unworkable on the surface, Mr. Carter may be correct in perceiving that gasoline rationing would awaken millions of motorists. The problem here, of course, is that then they would have two worries: rationing and another federal bureaucracy to contend with.

Equally as fallacious is the President's charge that the oil and gas industry in seeking deregulation of prices could bring about "the biggest rip-off in history," and "that as in the case of war, there is the potential for war profiteering."

THE PUBLIC, in certain instances, may agree with Mr. Carter. But, on balance, that still does not solve the problem.

Essentially, what Mr. Carter has proposed is a gigantic tax on the oil and gas industry, which in the final analysis not only would cost the consumer, but would do little or nothing to increase exploration and development of new oil and gas reserves.

That, basically, along with greater conservation efforts at all levels, is what any realistic energy policy should seek to generate.

In that respect, the administration appears to have put a lid on more extensive use of nuclear plants for future power needs. That plus increased use of coal is a must if the United States is to come even close to meeting its needs and pulling away from its 50 per cent dependence on foreign supplies.

In brief, Mr. Carter, like JFK in beating steel leaders over the head over a price hike, has antagonized the very people he needs to help him and the nation solve the problem. Instead, he has compounded it.

AN EDITORIAL:

Welcome Home, Mennonites

A HAPPY ENDING apparently is being written to the story of the 142 Mennonite families who started a new life near Seminole this year only to be threatened with deportation.

Already, 31 of those families have received job certifications that will save them from the Jan. 31 deportation deadline and boost them on their first step toward becoming permanent U.S. residents.

The remaining families are expected to get the same good news in the weeks to follow, as U.S. Rep. George Mahon predicted would happen after he discussed the problem with President Carter a couple of weeks ago.

AS ALL WHO READ the papers know by now, the Mennonites came to the South Plains area from Mexico and Canada searching, in the best American tradition, for a home free from religious persecution and abounding with economic opportunity.

"It appears at this point that all of these industrious Mennonites are going to be allowed to stay in this country and that it won't take special legislation to get the job done," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said.

If that optimistic forecast is accurate, as it probably is, it brushes aside the cloud that had been raised when it was discovered that the immigrants—although they had bought land and "settled in" near Seminole—were here on temporary visas.

Their plight was complicated by considerations that, if they were given special treatment, it might make it more difficult for the Immigration and Naturalization Service to deal with other aliens wanting to stay in this country.

THE PUBLIC'S SYMPATHY clearly lay with the Mennonites, however, because of their reputation for hard work, for being responsible members of society and their underdog status as a minority religious and ethnic (German) group in both Canada and Mexico.

Certificates letting them remain in this country finally are being obtained under existing law which, among other criteria, requires that they not be taking a job away from an American citizen or another permanent resident.

West Texas still has a lot of "wide open spaces" for people who are not afraid of hard work and who want to be solid, taxpaying residents pulling their own weight.

Welcome home, Mennonites.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Old Left Guard Drifting Toward 'Right' Corner

WASHINGTON—It begins to appear that the liberal establishment, so long secure in its prestige and power, has a palace revolution on its hands.

The uprising, moreover, is in that sector that used to be the most devout in its allegiance—the literary intelligentsia.

One by one, the upper middle brow magazines that have sustained the liberal outlook for countless decades are beginning to drift away in new, unusual directions.

Not all at once, of course, or even with a clear-cut ideological purpose. But the change is there, and it is unmistakable.

Many possible examples could be cited, from the recent heresies of The New Republic to the constant iconoclasm of the nominally liberal Washington Monthly, which scarcely lets an issue pass without blasting the pretensions of big government.

For present purposes, however, the point can best be made by examining the recent performance of those twin pillars of the establishment, Harper's and The Atlantic.

FOR YEARS ON END, those ganglia of the Eastern publishing world have been dependable allies of the intellectual-financial complex that stretches from the classrooms of Cambridge to the board rooms of New York to inner councils of the State Department.

Witness the October issue of Harper's. True, there is a predictably liberal article by George McGovern, in keeping with the previous policy. But there are also:

(1) A torrid article by Norman Podhoretz, editor of Commentary, attacking the "culture of appeasement" in our dealings with the Soviet Union;

(2) A piece by Earl Shorrin, taking the skin of the "new" New York Times, and

(3) A head-on blast by Roger Morris against the Carter cabinet—on the grounds that it is chockablock with the very establishment "insiders" that Carter said he was going to root out.

ALL OF THIS FOLLOWS previous issues of Harper's in which editor Lewis Lapham flayed the Ford Foundation's energy project, syndicated columnist Kevin Phillips attacked the East Coast media, Tom Bethell eviscerated the federal bureaucracy and so on. A far cry from the Harper's of yesteryear.

The Atlantic has been less consistent in its recent drift, but even more audacious in taking on the sacred cows of the establishment.

Most notably, a few issues back, the magazine featured a double-barreled blast against:

The financial-university-foundation combine that forms the core of establishment power, and Against its latest incarnation, the Trilateral Commission—the David Rockefeller operation that has hitherto been targeted for criticism chiefly by conservatives.

IN THESE TWO articles, Christopher Lydon and Jeremiah Novak detail the background of the Trilateral Commission, its founding by Rockefeller and Zbigniew Brzezinski and the early connections with Carter while he was still the relatively obscure governor of Georgia.

The idea of the Trilateral Commission, Novak observes, is to bring together grandees in Europe, Japan and the United States to promote "world order politics" in a political-financial combine uniting all developed nations, eventually including the Communist ones.

No less than 16 top officials of the Carter administration—including Carter himself, Vice President Walter Mondale, Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and arms negotiator Paul Warnke—are trilateralists.

The trilateral outlook, Novak indicates, is elitist and supranationalist in a way thay "many Americans, in government and out, view...as a threat to traditional national sovereignty."

The merits of these assertions, of course, are subject to debate. What is beyond cavil is that the appearance of such matter in the upper middle brow press marks an authentic revolution.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK:

Carter's Mislobbying

EVANS

WASHINGTON—Proof that President Carter has not quite mastered the art of Congress-taming came when his lobbying efforts for unobstructed foreign aid resulted in embarrassing failure, ending in a presidential exit from a meeting with more than 60 Congressmen.

Whether Carter was wise to summon House members to the White House to be lobbied on a less than transcendent issue is doubted even by his own congressional supporters. That can be excused on grounds of inexperience.

At issue are amendments blocking U.S. funds to international financial institutions (such as the World Bank) for loans to Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, Uganda, Cuba, Angola and Mozambique. The odds are heavily against the President for the forthcoming House vote.

SOME 60 HOUSE members—on each side of the question—were surprised with invitations to meet the President Sept. 30. The obvious tactic: presidential magic to turn the situation around.

But that magic is none too potent these days. After Carter finished his speech, a sponsor of the key amendments—Republican Rep. Bill Young of Florida—delivered a long rebuttal.

He was followed by blunt-spoken Democratic Rep. Charles Carney of Ohio, who said he never liked foreign aid anyway and opposed it all the more with steelworkers being laid off in his home town of Youngstown.

"I'm worried about human rights back in Youngstown," Carney rasped.

Rep. Silvio Conte, a liberal Republican from Massachusetts who opposses Young's amendment, rose to defend the President. "I don't know what's the matter with these Democrats who don't support you," Conte told Carter. That poisoned matters with Democrats still bristling over the President's praise of Republican Congressmen a day earlier.

AT THAT POINT, Rep. Wright got up—"in his best prayer-meeting style," said one Democrat—and asked for a show of hands supporting the President. Almost no hands went up.

Wright then asked his colleagues to "quit fooling" and show their support. Less than half obeyed, and there were no converts for the President.

The President then said, "I've got to go to another meeting," urged the Congressmen to stick around to hear UN Ambassador Andrew Young and walked out.

Some Congressmen felt Carter showed irritation in leaving the meeting, but others told us he was merely keeping his schedule. At any rate, once the President was gone, the Congressmen began drifting out before Young could speak.

"I would say it was at least a mini-disaster," one Democratic Congressman who has supported the Presient on the aid question told us. "But then we're getting used to those."

THE HAND BEHIND Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd's decision to put Vice President Walter Mondale in the Senate's presiding officer's chair during the Democratic civil war over ending the energy filibuster was none other than that of the Republican leader, Sen. Howard Baker.

On Sept. 29, Byrd and Baker began planning the coup to end the filibuster against natural gas deregulation. They devised the parliamentary points of order that would kill the procedural filibuster.

On Sunday, Oct. 2, after they finished their work, Baker advised Byrd, that Mondale as presiding officer should rule on the points of order the next day. "If I were you," Baker said, "I would want the Vice President here." Byrd agreed and telephoned Mondale.

The upshot: Mondale, constitutional president of the Senate, took the chair to become target for a broadside from liberals conducting the filibuster. The wounds he sustained will not heal overnight.

WITH ONE EYE toward saving his old boss from humiliation, President Ford's White House chief of staff, Richard Cheney, lobbied members of the Republican National Committee to back a moderately worded resolution opposing the Panama Canal treaties which was adopted in New Orleans Sept. 30.

Cheney's purpose went beyond saving the pride of Jerry Ford, whose own support for the treaties has infuriated conservative Republicans.

Besides helping Ford, Cheney wanted to put himself on record against the treaties. The apparent reason: a possible political future in conservative Wyoming, where Cheney now lives between trips back East as a financial adviser.

DON OAKLEY:

No Teens For Jobs?

TEEN-AGE unemployment is one problem that may solve itself. At least, it promises to be less severe with the passage of time.

All the Americans who will be teen-agers through the remainder of this decade and the next have already been born, so we know by simple arithmetic almost exactly how many there will be in any given age group in any given year. And in each group, the numbers will fall.

U.S. Census Bureau projections for the 16 to 19 age bracket, for example, would describe a symmetrical mountain if plotted on a graph:

TEN YEARS AGO there were 14.2 million in this age group, five years ago 15.9 million and today 17 million. But in the next five years the number will fall to 15.8 million and in 10 years be back down to 14.4 million.

According to the U.S. Labor Department, this critical age group accounted for 23 per cent of the 6.7 million Americans reported to be unemployed in July.

No one can say what the economic situation will be five or 10 years from now, but it is possible that the problem then will not be teen-age unemployment but a surplus of jobs looking for teen-agers.

ALL IS NOT ENTIRELY rosy, however. For one thing, all the projected decline in the teen-age population will take place among whites. The number of nonwhite teen-agers of working age is 2.6 million today and 10 years from now it will still be 2.6 million. It is among nonwhite teen-agers that unemployment is most severe.

Also, an optimistic outlook for the teen-ager of 1987 is no help to the unskilled, untrained, unemployed and often unemployable teen-ager of 1977.

He and his millions of cohorts will continue to move down the years like a large lump in the nation's population profile.

Or, more vividly, like a large question mark regarding this country's capability of providing fruitful work for all its citizens.

THE PERCENTAGE of Americans wearing false teeth, or dentures, is "dropping dramatically," reports the American Dental Association, and the dental profession is taking credit for it.

According to the ADA, a long-term emphasis on preventive procedures in the dentist's office and self-care at home has led to a drop in the segment of the population wearing one or two complete dentures from 35.2 per cent of the 30-and-older group in 1960 to 24.7 per cent of the same age group in 1975.

EVEN BETTER news is the prediction that the decline in denture wearers will probably increase even more rapidly in the years immediately ahead as the first "flouride generation" enters the 30-plus group.

It was about 30 years ago that community water flouridation, the best general preventive for tooth decay, was introduced, and the kids who grew up with flouridation are now coming to what used to be denture-wearing age.

They're smiling through the years.

THE DEATH OF Bing Crosby in Spain this weekend marked the passing of one of the more widely known and respected men of the century.

It also marked the passing of a man who it is safe to say touched more heartstrings around the world than any other during his lifetime.

Harry Lillis Crosby was not just a singer of ballads, love songs and popular ditties of three or four generations. He was an institution. And as American as Mom, apple pie and Old Glory.

"Der Bingle," "Old Dad," "The Groaner," all fond appelations for a man who never grew old, brought genuine joy to millions of Americans and countless others abroad—through the good times and bad times.

HIS RENDITION of "Silent Night" and "White Christmas" alone made Christmas even more special to all who heard it.

Thousands of soldiers, and those who waited at home, will never forget what those melodies meant in the war years and the quiet times of their lives.

Bing once outranked even Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and President Harry Truman and the Pope in a popularity poll. And it is safe to say he will go down as one of the alltime "most liked" persons of modern times.

Ironically, when Bing died he was making plans to make one more "Road" picture, with Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour. It was to be called "The Road To The Fountain of Youth."

Crosby's records sold some 300 million copies. His many movie and television appearances, as well as personal shows, his benefits, golf tournaments, all were typical of a man who lived and loved life to the fullest. May he rest in Peace. As individuals and as a nation, we are fortunate he came "our way..."

SPEAKING OF oldtimers like Bing and memories in general, a recent comment about an old movie proved a point or two.

One, time blurs a lot of details. And two, things get mixed up a bit in the retelling.

Recently, we referred to the the fact that Charles Boyer and Hedy Lamarr had helped make the Casbah immortal when Boyer whispered to Hedy: "Take me to the Casbah..." We said the movie in which this took place was "Casablanca."

No sooner than it had rolled than we knew better. The line was "Come with me to the Casbah." The movie was "Algiers."

Strangely enough, numerous persons during our recent visit to Casablanca, including our guide, also attributed the remark to the film of the same name.

ANYWAY, WE decided to research the matter further.

Turns out that the cast in "Casablanca" also was a most famous one, yet one sometimes mixed up in old moviegoers' minds.

The heavies in that movie were none other than Humphrey Bogart and a winsome actress who later was to make her own real-life romantic news, Ingrid Bergman. Others in the cast were Paul Henreid, Claude Rains, Conrad Veidt, Peter Lorre and Sydney Greenstreet.

The movie was a thriller with a beautiful love story, spies, intrigue, the works. For whatever it is worth, it was a great boxoffice success, even though no one got undressed and went to bed with one another in front of the camera!

Incidentally, a line attributed to that show also isn't quite as it has been handed down. Miss Bergman noted in an interview that the line "Play it (again) Sam" did not have the word "again" in the original. It was used by Woody Allen in his parody of the film. The closest to that in the original, Miss Bergman says was when she remarks: "Play it, Sam." Ah, memories, both sweet and bitter...

Police Continue Search For Laundry Bandit

Lubbock police late Sunday continued their search for a lone bandit who made off with more than $178 after forcing his way into an East Lubbock laundry at closing time Saturday.

Attendant Rose Perry at the Sunbeam Laundry at 1805 Parkway Drive told police she gave the robber about $178 after noticing he held his hand inside his jacket as if he were carrying a weapon.

The clerk told police the man, a Mexican-American about 24 or 25 years old, entered the store by slamming the door against her just as she tried to lock it and then forcing his way inside about 5:40 p.m. Saturday.

Once inside, she said, the man ordered her to hand over the store's cash. She said she placed the money inside a bag, and the man, after grabbing it, fled west on foot from the store.

Officers were searching for a suspect described as about 6 feet tall, of medium build and wearing collar-length hair.

Early Sunday morning, though, police were investigating reports of Lubbockites being beaten instead of robbed.

Lubbock policeman Bruce Wilkerson even became the target of one such attack about 1:25 a.m. Sunday outside the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center when he tried to stop a man from fighting with another man.

Wilkerson told other officers he had interrupted an argument between the two men to try and calm them down, but when one man refused to leave the scene, Wilkerson ordered him to do so.

The officer said the man then struck him and took off running. Eventually, several other officers were called to stop the man, who was arrested and booked for aggravated assault, resisting arrest, evading arrest, disorderly conduct and public intoxication.

Police were flagged down by Hershell Conger of 3607 78th Drive about 3 a.m. Sunday at the intersection of 34th Street and Indiana Avenue to be told Conger had been attacked by several men because his car's headlights could not be dimmed enough to suit them.

Officers were called to the emergency room of a local hospital to examine Jimmy Todd of 924 44th St., No. A, who told the officers he was at the Civic Center about 1 a.m. Sunday when someone struck him over the head with an unidentified object.

Edwin Liles of 1203 Weymouth Hall at Texas Tech University told police he was at a 19th Street and University Avenue club about 1 a.m. Sunday when a man inside the club suddenly turned and slugged him in the face.

Police officers investigating a reported shooting incident in the 2800 block of Juniper Avenue found 24-year-old Dewaybe Grant of 2630 Ivory Ave., standing inside an apartment there with several wounds to his face and chest.

During the late night incident Saturday, Grant told officers someone pulled up in a car outside the apartment and yelled, only seconds before they started shooting.

Grant was treated for his injuries at a local hospital and later released.

Fire Department officials and police were still investigating a fire at the apartment of Traci Anderson at 2020 5th St., No. 31, in which fire department officials said more than $3,000 damage was done to the structure.

Firemen said someone set three or four fires in various parts of the apartment sometime after 8 p.m. Saturday.

Mary Moore of 1919 34th St., told police Saturday she loaned her car to a friend but by late that night the car had still not been returned.

Airport policemen stopped a woman trying to enter the boarding area there about 8 a.m. Saturday after officers manning an X-ray device noticed a switchblade and 26 .44-caliber shells inside the woman's purse.

Raymond Halbert of a city cigarette vending machine service told police someone broke into several machines at an Avenue H motel Saturday and took more than $300 from the machines' change boxes.

An Auburn Avenue resident telephoned police late Saturday to report finding two television sets valued at more than $900 lying in his backyard. Minutes later, Raymond Zuniga of 1912 E. Amherst Ave., called to report a burglary of his home in which the sets were taken.

Paul Scott of 1914 5th St., No. 24, told police someone took a tape case and more than 30 eight-track tapes from his car for a loss of $240 sometime between 2 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Darrell Boepples of 3802 47th St., reported the theft of a $300 set of hub caps from his car parked outside a 100 Boston Ave. residence.

Lester York of 3005 67th St., told police he purchased a house in that area earlier this week, but when he returned he found someone had dismantled a $150 storage shed that went with the residence.

Crosby Services Slated Tuesday

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Bing Crosby's son Harry, 19, will fly back to the United States with his father's body Monday for funeral services in Los Angeles, American officials said Sunday.

Simple Roman Catholic funeral services are scheduled for St. Paul's Church in Los Angeles on Tuesday. Burial will be at the Holy Cross Cemetery, where his parents and first wife are buried.

Crosby, 73, died unexpectedly of a heart attack after finishing 18 holes at a Madrid golf course on Friday.

The officials said the coffin will be flown to New York Monday aboard a Trans World Airlines flight. It was expected to arrive with six hours to spare before a domestic flight scheduled to arrive in Los Angeles at 9:50 p.m. PDT (11:50 p.m. local time).

"We hope airport authorities can clear (the remains through customs) in time," one official said.

Harry Crosby, one of the crooner's seven children, will fly back to the United States on the same plane. He flew to Madrid Saturday to help arrange the transfer of the body.

The young Crosby told reporters his father died "the way he would have wanted to die" — on a golf course.

Crosby was stricken after he finished a match with three Spanish friends.

Spanish champion Valentin Barrios said the singer showed no signs of fatigue and was happy before he suddenly fell to the ground.

"We had just finished the last hole and were walking toward the clubhouse when Bing had a seizure and fell. We first thought he had tripped," Barrios said.

"Bing was happy and singing as he went around the course. He was teamed up with Manuel Pinero (another Spanish champion) and they beat Cesar Zulueta (president of the Moraleja golf club) and me by winning the 18th hole."

Despite the immediate assistance of a doctor, Crosby was dead when he arrived at a hospital. Doctors said he died of a heart attack. They said a small wound on his forehead suffered when he hit the ground was of no importance.

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Harry Lillis Crosby never forgot this city where he grew up or the college he attended, and residents recalled Sunday not only his loyalty but how he got his nickname — Bing.

Crosby moved to Spokane in 1910 when he was 6 from his birthplace in Tacoma, Wash. He was nicknamed Bing by his family after a character named Bingo in "The Bingville Bugle," a comic strip of the day, old acquaintances said.

"My family began calling me Bingo, and then just Bing," the entertainer, who died Friday, once recalled.

Crosby attended Gonzaga High School in Spokane and worked to within five weeks of a law degree at Gonzaga University, a small Catholic college, to which he contributed an estimated $1 million throughout his life.

The Rev. Arthur Dussault, now vice president of Gonzaga, went through college with Crosby, remained friends with him over the years and recalled:

"The Crosby I knew back in the '20s, I still knew today. He was really kind of a modest guy."

Fr. Dussault remembered that Crosby, who came to Spokane when his father took a job in a pickle factory, lived only a block from the university and was a normal, mischievous boy.

Young Bing was "always ready for fun. He wasn't the kind of guy who'd lead a gang on some window-breaking, but if someone stole a cake, he'd eat some," Fr. Dussault said.

Although Crosby weighed only 150 pounds in high school, Fr. Dussault said he was a tough football player as well as an expert diver.

Crosby, who later was a stockholder in the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team and a lifelong sportsman, played semi-pro baseball for the Spokane Ideal Laundry Team.

His musical career began when he played in bands at Gonzaga University, breaking in as a drummer. No one thought he had any unusual singing talent, Fr. Dussault said.

Although he left Spokane, he never forgot Gonzaga. School officials estimate he gave them about $1 million over the years, with his largest gift, $627,718, for the Crosby Library that was dedicated in 1957.

In the library's Crosbyana Room are most of the entertainer's gold and platinum records and his Oscar for the movie "Going My Way," in which he played a Roman Catholic priest. Crosby played a priest in several of his movies, and remained a faithful Roman Catholic all his life.

LEAA Crime Statistics Project Cut; Congress, Justice Criticize Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) has proposed a $4.5-million cutback in one of its most popular projects, and has aroused criticism in Congress and from some Justice Department officials.

The project involves collecting crime statistics through regular polls of about 65,000 American households. Those families are asked whether they have been the victims of crimes such as burglary, rape or robbery.

The Census Bureau conducts the polling, and LEAA periodically publishes the results. It has been an expensive project — $53 million in five years — but academic and government specialists in crime statistics say it is the most promising development in the effort to measure the nation's crime problem.

But LEAA's budget has been cut $250 million since 1975, and acting Administrator James Gregg proposed saving $4.5 million by suspending the crime victim polling during the first nine months of next year.

He said the nine-month suspension also would give agency officials time to correct some problems in the poll-taking methods.

Gregg approved the plan Aug. 1 without notifying House committees that deal with legislation affecting the agency. Nor did he consult with Justice Department officials developing plans for a new bureau of crime statistics which probably would take over the victimization polls.

Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., scolded the agency for approving the action without telling him about it.

"Congress likes to be informed," Rodino said. "I must say I think it's unfortunate that these decisions were taken without consultation."

Gregg discussed the process in a recent interview after he testified before the House Judiciary subcommittee on crime.

"Frankly, we never thought there would be such interest in it. We looked on it as a technical change to correct some of the problems," he said.

Crime Subcommittee Chairman John Conyers, D-Mich., asked for an explanation from Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell. When he didn't get one right away, he summoned Gregg to the public hearing.

Meantime, Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., chairman of a subcommittee on scientific planning, complained to Deputy Atty. Gen. Peter Flaherty.

He said the victimization surveys "have played an important and necessary role" in adding to the knowledge about crime. "To discontinue them now would seriously erode the credibility of future victimization surveys since the gap in data collection will inevitably lead to imprecise extrapolations."

Road Safety Group Raps Standards

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A highway safety group says a proposal to permit the narrowing of lanes and shoulders on rebuilt highways could make them needlessly hazardous.

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, which is funded by the insurance industry, plans to oppose a Federal Highway Administration proposal to reduce minimum design standards on rehabilitated roads.

Among other things, the IIHS said, the standards would permit construction of highway and parking lanes which are only nine feet wide. It said existing standards call any lanes on urban highways and arteries of less than 11 feet "unsatisfactory."

The standards also would permit two-foot-wide shoulders "or their elimination altogether in urban areas through conversion to additional travel lanes," the institute said. It said some design experts believe shoulders should be six-to 10-feet wide.

Institute President William Haddon Jr. asked Kay Bailey, acting chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, a government agency, to object to the proposed standards.

"The adoption of these lower standards would, as a matter of federal policy, guarantee that an unnecessarily hazardous road environment will be faced by all road users in the future," he said.

The standards are to apply to highway rehabilitation projects, which first became eligible for federal funding in 1976.

Rehabilitation is expected to constitute most of the nation's highway building of the future, since few new highways have been planned.

Haddon said the move to reduce existing minimum design standards "would guarantee that many Americans would die needlessly, and many others would be injured, not just in the near future, but for decades as well."

The lowered standards were drafted by the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials, chiefly for economy reasons, the IIHS said.

The proposals also would reduce standards for such measurements as safe stopping and passing sight distances and banking design, it said.

The institute said that among those intending to oppose the FHA proposal is Howard L. Anderson, FHA associate administrator for safety. The FHA's Bureau of Motor Carrier Safety already has expressed its "serious opposition," it said.

Peanut Butter Used In Painting

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — Some say C.G. "Moose" Morehead's peanut butter-based painting is a nutty idea, but they hope it will spread.

Morehead's artwork, complete with autograph from the nation's most famous peanut farmer, President Carter, gained national recognition last spring. On Saturday, it was sold at auction for $10,500 to Jean Ewell, representing 20 bidders who "wanted the painting to stay in Owensboro so that the whole community could profit by it."

A stipulation of the sale is that proceeds go not to Morehead but to the Green River Comprehensive Care Center, which provides mental health services for seven Western Kentucky counties. The center will get to keep the painting and reproduction rights, which Morehead estimated at $250,000.

Morehead said he got the inspiration for the painting when he met Carter in 1975 during a presidential campaign rally at nearby Henderson. The painting depicts a red barn on a pastoral range, with the President's signature at the bottom center.

The secret, Morehead said, is getting the proper mixture of peanut butter and oil — five parts peanut butter to one part oil.

He said it "really gave me something to sink my teeth into."

Crowd To Honor 'Mousetrap'

LONDON (AP) — A thousand people will gather at London's Savoy Hotel next month to celebrate the 25th anniversary of "The Mousetrap," an Agatha Christie mystery, which is the world's longest running play.

Impresario Peter Saunders said Sunday that a lunchtime party is planned for Nov. 25, the anniversary of the play's opening here.

"I am told this is the first time in living memory that the Savoy restaurant will have been closed for lunch," said Saunders, who presents "The Mousetrap" at St. Martin's Theater, where it still plays to packed audiences.

Saunders said guests will include Sir Richard and Lady Attenborough, who played the leading roles in the original production, and Mysie Monte, who played a key role as Mrs. Boyle for 11 years.

Also invited are Anthony Huntly-Gordon, stage manager for more than 21 years, and Adelaide Woodvine who, during her 21 years as box office manageress, had more than $3.5 million worth of tickets pass through her hands.

Inventors Ask Fed Dollars For Projects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One day it's a man who drives here from Fort Smith, Ark., in a car that runs on alcohol. He gets about four miles to the fifth.

Another day it's a couple who drives from Nyack, N.Y., in a home-made car that uses footpower to supplement its one-cylinder engine.

These are the new prospectors — inventors who have heard "thar's gold in that thar energy crisis."

And indeed there is. The government is underwriting projects of all manner and description to stimulate development of new fuel-saving equipment and energy sources.

Fairly typical was a recent Agriculture Department award of a $149,250 contract to Cornell University for research on a wind-powered churn.

So the basement workbench Edisons are arriving in an ever increasing stream, looking for federal grants.

Probably the best indicator of what is happening is the Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, published weekly at $6.60 per copy, which lists and briefly describes everything which patents were granted the previous seven days.

The 400-page Gazette of Oct. 4, for example, includes 1,199 patents, of which 602 were in the "general and mechanical" category — a catchall for Yankee ingenuity.

Included among these brainstorms were:

— A pill box in which you can carry not only your tranquilizers but the water to wash them down with;

— A buddy system popcorn package that fits across two theater seats and enables movie-goers to share the buttery contents without passing the box back and forth;

— A "bowel movement energizer system," the description of which is vague.

But many new patents also reflect energy crisis motivation.

Alex W. Wormser of Marblehead, Mass., has contributed an apparatus for burning pulverized coal. Eugene Peter Schellens, Essex, Conn., offers a new type of wood-burning stove.

There are also plans for an "environmentally heated and cooled building," a "solar energy augmented water heating system" and many other implements for coping with the fuel shortage.

Nor is the conservation field being neglected.

It is a "reusable karate striking board."

No longer need students of the martial arts discard the lumber, bricks and cinder blocks they smash to smithereens with bare hands

Late Concert Marred By Pair Of Short Sets

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Fine Arts Editor

It was all pretty new to Lubbock, this 10:30 p.m. "starting time" for a major concert. The kickoff was held back to allow folks time to cross town after the Tech-Rice football game and, even so, the bash didn't really start until shortly after 11 p.m.

But the crowds came, predominantly blacks and Chicanos who had long awaited the chance to see rhythm and blues like that played by Tower Of Power and headliners War. And when the front act, Redbone, played the first chords, the excitement was so rampant that all on the Civic Center exhibition hall floor stood and pressed forward, annihilating the barrier designed to keep fans a short distance away from the stage.

But with all that excitement, it looked as though the fans were going to be shortchanged. Not that any of the music was bad. There just wasn't much of it. The late starting time seemed to inspire those in charge to treat the concert as a rush job.

Groups were ushered offstage faster than anyone imagined. The second act actually played a shorter set than the first. It was ridiculous. Redbone got 30 minutes of playing time, followed by a 45-minute break, then Tower Of Power played only 25 minutes (with no encores) and there followed another 45-minute intermission.

The real shame of this maneuvering could be found in the fact that, excellent as War is, a great many patrons had laid their sheckels down solely to see Tower Of Power. Talk was rampant about the R&B group, combining rock guitar with a complete brass section. "We're fixin' to stop all the BS and get down'" one Power musician shouted at the opening of the set.

The band then cut into a strong statement of "There Ain't Nothing Stoppin' Us Now" — and for a while they were right. The Tower Of Power music was exciting, its enthusiasm catching. Guitar, drums and horns of all kinds, all were featured through solos in tunes like "I Could Never Make You Unhappy" and "You Ought To Be Having Fun."

Indeed, the California band got better and better, more and more involving as the set wore on. Then, 25 minutes after they started, they were walking away. No sweat there. Give them a powerhouse applause and yelling reaction and we get 15 or 20 minutes in encore, right? Not tonight folks. The house lights were turned on so fast one would have thought some super chaperone was checking up on what the thousands of kids present were doing.

Well, some were getting mad. And a lot were leaving disappointed, having paid regular concert prices to hear their favorite band play less than 25 minutes.

A-J / CONCERT REVIEW

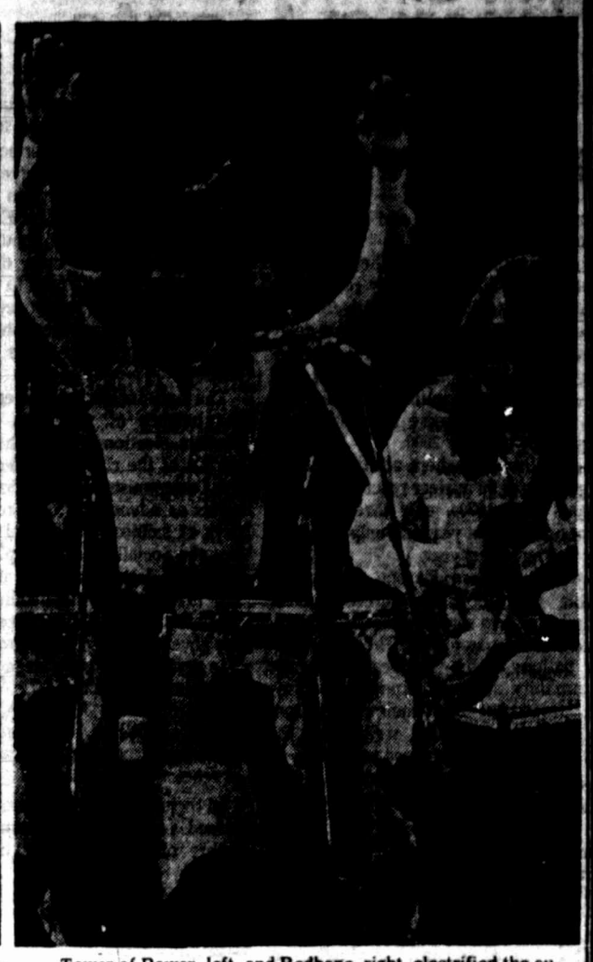
But the beer flowed, the popcorn popped and the concessionaires made a fortune while roadies took 45 minutes setting up for War's set.

And lucky for those who remained behind, War saw the need for some peacemaking and declared at 1:30 a.m. that they weren't going to leave until 3 in the morning. After the initial number, the band — which has improved greatly since it played Lubbock a few years back at the Coliseum — also managed to use audience participation to increase the fun.

At least a half dozen fans were brought up on stage to help sing War's big hit "Why Can't We Be Friends." Some, well, some couldn't really sing a lick. Others were surprisingly good. But good, bad or indifferent, not a one of them was shy, and the concept proved tremendously entertaining.

But then so did War, which followed this number with a 20 minute extended rendition of "Slipping Into Darkness" and a combination of old hits and brand new material off their upcoming MCA album.

The sound was clean and nobody yawned while it lasted.



ALL TOO BRIEF — The playing was powerful and the music first rate, the only complaint was there wasn't enough of it by groups Redbone and Tower of Power at Saturday night's Civic Center concert headlined by rhythm and blues group War. For the bare half-hour they each played, though, Tower of Power, left, and Redbone, right, electrified the audience, although it was War's 90-minute performance until 3 a.m. that really set the rafters to shaking. New Trial Asked In Police Case

HOUSTON (UPI) — Attorneys for two policemen given probationary sentences in the death of a Mexican-American prisoner say they are not satisified with the verdict and have asked for a new trial. Lawyers Mike Ramsey and Bob Bennett Saturday filed motions for a new trial in the death of Joe Campos Torres Jr.

Former policemen Terry Denson and Stephen Orlando initially were charged with murdering Torres May 6, by beating him and throwing him into a downtown bayou, but a Huntsville jury two weeks ago reduced the charge and found them guilty of negligent homicide and put them on probation.

Ramsey, who defended Orlando, said in the original trial he should have been allowed to enter Torres' previous arrest record to show the jury that he had a history of fighting.

"Torres had been arrested about five times and each time there had been a fight," Ramsey said. "With this evidence I know we were entitled to a not guilty verdict in this trial."

Ramsey said he expected federal grand jury indictments of Denson and Orlando on charges of violating Torres' civil rights. He also critized both Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Atty. Gen. John Hill for calling for the federal investigation.

"I don't see how the federal grand jury can do anything else but return indictments," Ramsey said, referring to political pressure being brought on the case.

"To my knowledge Hill's office hasn't even done an investigation. I would be most thankful if he and the governor and people of that sort who don't have any business in the case would stay the hell out of the case."

J.A. Canales, the U.S. attorney for the Southern District of Texas, already has said the Torres case carries a high priority in the Justice Department, but Ramsey said he did not fear additional indictments.

"The facts speak for themselves," he said. "They will just be presented to a different jury."

Torres' death has caused an uproar in the Mexican-American community and has resulted in a $2.5 million civil suit against the City of Houston and the policemen involved, filed by Torres' family.

Legionaires Ask Cuba Reconnaisance

The 19th District Convention of the American Legion, meeting in Lubbock Saturday and Sunday, petitioned Congress and President Carter to immediately resume intelligence photgraphing of Cuba by both satellite and overflights.

The delegates, representing more than 3,000 South Plains and Permian Basin legionaires, were very disturbed by Washington columnist Paul Scott's report on Aug. 18 that said Carter had stopped the overflights of Cuba and also had halted the photographing of the island by satellites.

Legionaires also passed a resolution urging support of HR 48. The resolution, now before the House, calls for the recreation of the House Internal Security Committee (formerly the Un-American Activities Committee) which had investigated alleged subversion for many years until it was killed about two years ago.

The legionaires' resolution pointed out that it was very important to restore this Congressional committee because the "radical effort" had caused the destruction of almost all effective subversion monitoring methods.

BOSTON (AP) — A strike of Boston school bus drivers was settled and the buses will roll on schedule Monday, Daniel Hurley of the Federal Mediation Service announced after a bargaining session Saturday.

Rising Costs, Protests Fading Nuclear Dream

By STEVEN SCHNEIDER
Pacific News Service

Nuclear energy — viewed by governments around the world as the panacea for global energy needs — is faltering from slumping markets and rising popular opposition.

Country after country at the 110-nation International Energy Agency conference in Vienna late last month rejected the Carter Administration's plea for a delay in the development of fast breeder reactors and nuclear reprocessing plants. And top energy officials in the U.S. are calling for a five-fold increase in conventional reactors by the year 2000.

Yet in the U.S. where utilities ordered an average of 30 nuclear reactors per year in the early 1970s, only three reactors were ordered last year and only four have been ordered this year.

And in Western Europe and Japan, public opposition has forced nuclear moratoriums in several countries and nuclear cutbacks in others. The nine member nations of the European Economic Community are now expected to draw only seven percent of their energy from nuclear power in 1985, well below the goal of 13 percent set three years ago.

In West Germany, an estimated 15 million people have joined various anti-nuclear protests. Under the slogan "Better active today than radioactive tomorrow," thousands have occupied reactor sites across the country.

In a court case last February, the West German anti-nuclear movement won a moratorium on construction of new reactors until the government can demonstrate it has found a safe means of waste disposal.

Meanwhile, the Free Democratic Party —one of the two parties in West Germany's ruling coalition—has called for a five-year moratorium on construction of new reactors. And Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's Social Democratic Party will vote on a moratorium resolution at its annual congress in November.

Regardless of the outcome of that vote, Klaus Barthelt, president of Kraftwerk-Union, West Germany's principal manufacturer of nuclear reactors, said he expects "lean times" for reactor sales in the coming year.

In France, ecologists campaigning on a platform of green trees and no nuclear power plants, won 10 percent of the vote in Paris' municipal elections last March. In July, more thatn 30,000 people—many from other West European nations—took part in a demonstration at Creys-Malville, the site of the world's first commercial fast breeder reactor. A demonstrator was killed and more than 100 other were injured in clashes with police.

As a result of the anti-nuclear movement, the French target of 70 percent of its electricity from nuclear power by 1985 has been cut back to 55 percent.

Commenting on delays in the French program, M.Pl Boiteaux of Electricite de France said, "The civil population is unwilling, the work is more difficult, and the costs are up...We need to tread warily on new plans. We're not trying to slow down, but delays are inevitable in view of the psychological problems everyone is having."

The anti-nuclear movement may hod the balance of power in next year's French elections. Both the governing parties of the right are pro-nuclear, and the Communists have criticized the ecologists as advocates "of a return to the days of sailboat navies and oil lamps." But the Socialist Party is split and is expected to debate the issue at its convention in December. Meanwhile, the Socialist Labor Federation has been criticizing the government's nuclear program.

In Spain, the world's largest anti-nuclear protest involving 200,000 people occurred in Bilbao July 13. As a result of public opposition, the Spanish government has placed a moratorium on nuclear reactor construction.

In Switzerland, environmentalists have forced a nationwide referendum on the future of nuclear power by collecting 125,000 signatures. The Swiss government has agreed to halt the licensing of new plants until the referendum is held.

Public opposition also has delayed the first nuclear reactors in Denmark and Norway and slowed nuclear programs in the Netherlands, Italy, Japan and Great Britain.

And in Australia, the Australian Council of Trade Unions voted in September to boycott any new development of Australia's uranium reserves—the largest in the world—unless the government agrees to hold a national referendum on the future of Australian uranium. The Australian Labor Party (ALP) of former Prime Minister Gough Whitlam also has threatened to break any uranium contracts signed by the current government.

"The ALP has specified a formidable list of problems that must be solved before the world nuclear power industry can begin to count on getting access to Australian uranium, says Thomas Uren, Deputy Leader of the ALP. That could further cripple activity in Western Europe and Japan where countries have been looking to Australian uranium to fuel their nuclear programs.

ECONOMIC FACTORS

Until recently, public opposition has played a lesser role in dampening the U.S. nuclear program. Economic factors have been more responsible for the slowdown here—including a decline in the rate of growth in electric consumption and nuclear power's poor operating efficiencies, huge capital costs and long construction times.

For years electric consumption in the U.S. increased from six to seven percent annually. But with the big jump in fuel costs that followed the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74, electric consumption leveled off. That reduced the immediate need for new power and made it hard for utilities to project demand. It also plunged many of them into a financial crisis that made them hesitant to come up with the huge capital required for a nuclear plant.

As a result, many utilities ordered coal plants because they take less time and capital to build than nuclear reactors. This year 14 coal plants have been ordered—compared to just four nuclear reactors.

Yet the economic outlook for nuclear power may be improving. The health of the nation's utilities has been restored. Electric demand rose 6.2 percent last year. And Secretary of Energy James Schlesinger has said that in the next 15-20 years in the U.S. will need 200-300 new nuclear plants—as compared with 63 now operating.

Public opposition, however, has become a growing threat to the nuclear industry here.

In May over 2,000 people—organized into the Clamshell Alliance—occupied the site of the nuclear generating plant proposed for Seabrook.

In August, in commemoration of the 32nd anniversary of the atomic bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, anti-nuclear demonstrations were held in 35 states.

"In the United States, tens of thousands of people have been involved in anti-nuclear demonstrations and more than half a million have signed a petition against nuclear power," says Bruce Rosenthal, editor of the anti-nuclear Critical Mass Journal. That petition calls on the government to "phase out the operation of nuclear power plants as quickly as possible."

Thrifty Vermont communities voted this year to exclude nuclear power plants. And a nationwide series of campus teach-ins and public "town meetings" is planned for this fall.

Indiana Town Joins Search For Missing Coed

Police, observers and even the citizens themselves are amazed at the intensity of their determination. But all of them agree that the key to the community zeal lies with Miss Harmeier herself.

Ann Louise Harmeier lives in the hearts and minds of these people, for her church work, her devotion to her mother, her talent. Her father, Robert, died of a brain tumor when she was 4 years old.

Miss Harmeier returned home often while at Indiana University, "probably more than she should have," says her mother, a music teacher for Western Wayne Schools. "She loved her home."

A drama major and an A student, Miss Harmeier's gift for singing and acting landed her a supporting role in a university musical. She had sung with two other girls at community functions for 11 years.

"She always was ready to use her talent," the Rev. Miss Taul said, "even if it meant changing her schedule.

"Ann is very special — just the most special person — very mature, sensitive and so good to elderly people, even though she has no reason to care about them. She just does.

"It would be a horrible, insensitive community that wouldn't unite to find her. In a larger town, it wouldn't have happened ... but here, we're like a family."

Three state police detectives have been assigned full time to the case, but leads are few and far between and evidence is scarce.

"This incident has all the indications of foul play," said state police Sgt. Donald Gastineau. "It's not like she walked away from the dorm or something."

Gastineau said police even have followed up leads supplied by psychics who claim to have "certain feelings" about the disappearance.

"I wouldn't want it said that the state police used psychics. Let's just say at this point we have an active investigation going on, and we still have to look at every possibility — runaway, amnesia, everything," he said.

"At first one psychic said Ann was still alive, but now they're not so sure. I probably put more faith in these things than I should," Mrs. Harmeier says. "But I'm desperate."

Leads have come in from Washington, D.C., and Florida, Gastineau said, but nothing has panned out.

Mrs. Harmeier said she plans to ask her neighbors this week to stop their efforts and leave the investigation to the police.

"They've already invested so much time and money," she said of her friends and neighbors. "They have their own lives to live."

But she really doesn't expect them to stop, nor do they plan to.

Miss Harmeier's disappearance "has drawn people more closely together," the Rev. Miss Taul says. "They are united in a concern. They have one thing on their minds — and that's Ann."

Milton McLamb leaves the North Carolina Correction Center for Women in Raleigh Sunday after telling the Associated Press that there is no further word on Joan Little who escaped from the center Saturday night. Neutron Bomb Fuss Interrupts Church

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protesters against the neutron bomb disrupted services Sunday attended by President Carter. Some were gagged, wrestled down in the pews and thrown out of the church by ushers. Carter said later the demonstrators were "fine young people."

"I agree with their objective in eliminating nuclear weapons," the President told reporters. "I think they were mistaken in trying to disrupt the church services.

"But the Secret Service didn't feel I was in danger, and neither did I."

Five Demonstrators Arrested

Five of the demonstrators, who interrupted the services with a statement opposing deployment of the neutron bomb, were arrested and taken to a police station, three of them in handcuffs.

Police Lt. Donald L. Foreit said the five were being booked for "disturbing a religious congregation."

The neutron bomb is a high-radiation, low impact weapon, designed principally as a missile warhead. Because of the large amount of radiation it emits, it is highly effective in killing human beings. Its relative small explosion leaves buildings intact.

Carter has sent Defense Secretary Harold Brown to Europe in an effort to convince North Atlantic Treaty Organization members to accept the weapon as part of their defense arsenals against invasion by the Soviet pact nations of eastern Europe.

NATO Opposes Weapon

But most NATO reaction has been against the weapon. Some critics call it inhumane. Others say it would increase the chances of a nuclear confrontation. Carter aides have said he will decide before the end of the year whether to produce and deploy it.

Carter, his wife Rosalynn, 9-year-old daughter Amy and a group of friends from Georgia, including Mrs. Carter's former Bible teacher, entered the First Baptist Church, where the President and his family usually worship, at about 10 a.m.

The President and his wife attended adult Bible class in the First Baptist Church, where the President and his family usually worship, at about 10 a.m.

Read Anti-Bomb Statement

As Pastor Charles Trentham stepped into the pulpit to begin his sermon, the first of the demonstrators, dressed in slacks and a brown sweater, stood up and began to read the anti-bomb statement.

"Sisters and brothers," he said, "we address you lovingly...Did not Jesus mean what He said when he taught us to love our enemies? And did He not live what he said?

"Christians cannot love their enemies and still threaten them with nuclear death..."

Usher Grabs Protester

At that point, an usher grabbed the protester, put his hand over the man's mouth, pulled the demonstrator out of the pew and led him to the door.

A second protester, Elizabeth McAllister, associated with Philip Berrigan at the Jonah House, a non-violent anti-war community in Baltimore, stood in another pew across the aisle and continued the reading.

Another usher tried to take the statement out of her hand, than sat her down in the pew. The usher sat next to her and still another protester in another pew stood up and read on.

He was gagged by another usher. The demonstrator struggled to free himself. Two elderly women scurried out of the way. Subdued, that protester was led to the door, too.

South Yemen Says Hijacked Plane Unwelcome There

held marathon talks with his special team of crisis advisers.

By mid-afternoon, government spokesman Klaus Boelling emerged from the chancellory on the banks of the Rhine River and addressed the tense crowd while troops with submachine guns stood by.

"The federal government has been striving ceaselessly today for the lives of the women, men and children and crew in the Lufthansa plane," he said.

The government made no move to comply with the hijackers' demands but Boelling said it was pursuing "all realistic possibilities" to free the hostages. He said Schmidt had sought and received support for his position from British and French leaders.

During 54 hours of negotiations at Dubai airport in the United Arab Emirates, the hijackers — two Arab-speaking men and two women — refused an offer by Dubai officials to exchange themselves for the captive passengers, four of them reported ill.

The hijackers, armed with pistols and plastic explosives, forced authorities to refuel the plane by threatening to execute the hostages one by one starting with the pilot.

Christine Maria Santiago, 44, of Santee, Calif., was on board with her son Leo. An older son, at home in Santee, said he was told the State Department appealed to the hijackers through West German officials to release her because of a heart ailment. He said the hijackers refused after finding a two-day supply of heart medicine in her purse.

Joan Little Eludes Police After Escape

sure put on her by prison officials and "ultra left-wing groups," he said. "In many ways the public won't let the woman alone and let her be in peace. People try to use her and take advantage of her for their own purposes.

"The present administration at the prison was pushing her hard. It was always apparent that there was a group there at the prison that really disliked Joan ..."

Kautzky said he didn't know what Paul was talking about.

"I just can't relate to it at all," he said.

Acquitted Of Murder

Miss Little, who is black, was charged with murder in the stabbing death of a white guard, Clarence Alligood, at the Beaufort County Jail, where she was being held awaiting appeal of her conviction for burglarizing a mobile home in Washington, N.C.

She said Alligood sexually assaulted her and she stabbed him with an ice pick in self defense. Civil rights activists and feminists rallied to Miss Little's support and focused national attention on her trial in July and August 1975.

Although Miss Little was acquitted of murder, her burglary appeal was rejected. She began serving her term at the women's prison just southeast of downtown Raleigh in January 1976.

The state Parole Commission made her eligible for participation in the work release program this year, and she got a job as a dental assistant. Last week, however, she was suspended from the program and isolated from the rest of the prison population.

Jamaica Visit By Castro Causes Furor

there last week and Jamaicans were being asked to pay for a second state visit at a time "when the government says it cannot afford to support the legitimate claims of the Jamaican workers."

"The handling of the visit was an insult to the democratic process and the people of Jamaica when it is well known that the majority of the people of Jamaica feel a deep abhorrence and a profound distrust of Communism in any form," the party said.

Under Tight Security

Manley said plans for the visit were kept under wraps because of security.

"Surely they (the opposition) must know that with our proximity to Miami-based Cuban terrorists who are openly hostile to President Castro and the Cuban government, security must be our paramount consideration," he said.

Castro's schedule in Jamaica is being released on a day-to-day basis, and the places where he will stay are a closely guarded secret. The government has even assigned a special police detail to reporters covering the visit.

The only event Castro will participate in which has been announced in advance is Monday's National Heroes Day rally in the north coast beach resort of Montego Bay. The rally will honor seven Jamaican patriots including the prime ministers late father, Norman Manley.

Funds "Misuse" Protested

The Jamaican Labor party complained the rally was not a national event but a political gathering of Manley's People's National party convened to hear Castro, and it protested "most vigorously the misuse of public funds" to stage it.

Castro's close ties to Manley's Democratic Socialist government were a major issue in last December's general election, with opposition leaders claiming Manley was leading the country toward Communism. Manley, who denied the charge, easily won re-election.

Economic Strategy Requested

reception they received at a meeting with Carter three weeks ago.

Shapiro said the departure of Bert Lance, who resigned as director of the Office of Management and Budget in September after controversy about his financial dealings, was regrettable but would not interfere with business' relationship with the government.

Shapiro and Jones praised Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal for fighting for their positions with Carter.

The businessmen viewed the President's attack on the oil industry for jeopardizing his energy program as unfortunate but no cause for alarm.

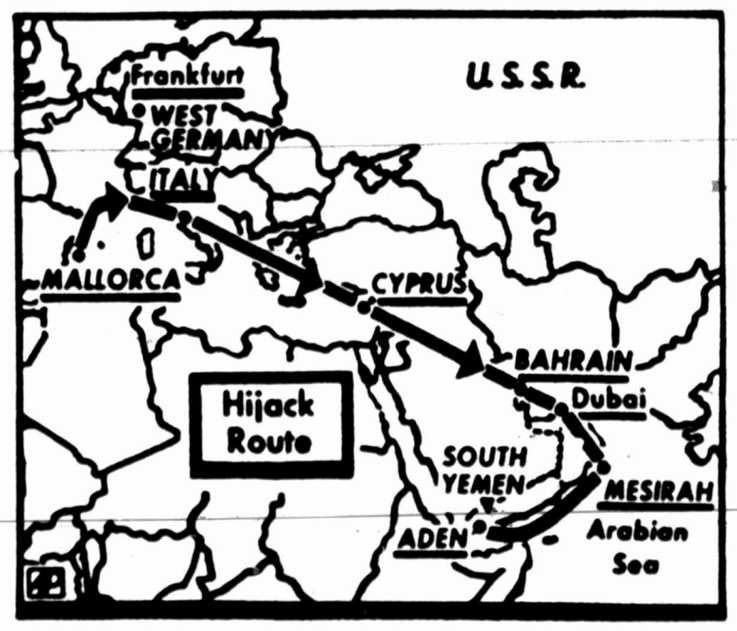
At a nationally televised news conference Thursday, Carter said the oil and gas companies are trying to become the war profiteers of the energy crisis, cautioning that the nation faces the danger of "the biggest ripoff in history."

Program Not Jelled

Though the House has passed most of Carter's energy package intact, the Senate has refused to go along with much of it. The final shape of the energy legislation is yet to be determined.

Sapiro said Carter's criticism of the oil industry was to be expected after his defeats in Congress.

But Walter B. Wriston, chairman of Citicorp, said it was "an unfortunate thing to do. These actions are not usually very effective," he said.



PLANE'S ROUTE—A hijacked Lufthansa jetliner with 87 hostages aboard landed safely in Aden, South Yemen, Sunday, aircraft controllers at the airport in Dubai reported. The jet, on a flight from Mallorca to Frankfurt, was commandereered over Europe Thursday. The jet made stops in Rome, Nicosia, Cyprus, and Bahrain before going to Dubai. The government of Oman, which controls the Mesirah Island, refused permission for the jet to land there and it went on to Aden. The kidnapers had threatened to blow up the plane if their demands weren't met by Sunday. (AP Laserphoto)

Animals Auctioned At Mini-Zoo Here

showed up to view the menagerie.

All bidders reportedly were interviewed by auctioneer John Faulks to determine whether they had proper facilities for the animals and knew how to care for them. However, several of the animal purchasers were heard to ask the Montgomerys what to feed their new pets and where to keep them.

Lion For Housepet

Rhonda Cantrell, 14, of Ropesville bought one of the four-month-old lion cubs. She hopes to "let it be a housepet and keep it in my room." She plans to feed it hamburger meat and will build a cage for it.

The other owners of one of the cubs, Stacy Timmons, 21, of Brownfield and Shane Mousa, 21, a Tech student, "just wanted to have one."

"We'll probably keep him on the farm (in Brownfield) and feed him raw meat with a cereal blend," Timmons said.

"Don't Cry, Tammy"

Silence filled the room as Tammy, a favorite monkey of the Montgomery's, was auctioned for $2,200 to Paul and Mannafay Hagins of Spur. The auctioneer looked at the pet snuggled close to him and said, "Don't cry Tammy. I thought you were worth more too."

Montgomery, after the auction, briefly instructed the Hagins about Tammy's care. "Treat her just like you would any child. Put hand lotion on her hands and give her aspirins when she has a headache. She holds her head when she needs one. Also, give her Pepto-Bismol for a stomach ache."

Prefers Jockey Shorts

The Hagins then asked what size clothes Tammy could wear. Montgomery told them to fit her with children's clothes, but hems might be necessary for the legs and arms. He also mentioned that Tammy prefers to wear jockey shorts usually.

Preacher, a four-foot ape, went to a family who wanted "a playmate for my sister", the brother said.

Some of the monkeys, however, were tame. One auctioneer described Harvey as "one of the nicest baboons that ever happened."

Winfred Gardner and Obbie Winsett bought two bears for $410 "because we didn't have an animal like this. I don't think it will be too much different from any other animal — we'll feed it monkey biscuits," Gardner said.

Perhaps one of the most unusual buyers was Tim Murray from Norman, Okla. He purchased two lions "to save them from being killed."

Representatives from the Draper-Hardy Real Esta te and Auction Service and Butler and Faulks Auctioneers told the Avalanche-Journal Murray had a private collection of tigers and other large cats at his Oklahoma farm. They also said Murray is planning a trip next week to Saudi Arabia to put in a zoo, without cages, for the king of the Middle Eastern country.

Buys TV Lion

The representative also said Murray recently bought Judy, a lion on the television show Daktari, who is suffering from arthritis.

"He seems like a real special guy and must have some special talent to work with big cats like those," the representative said.

Curiosity prompted many people like Celeste Otken, 20, and Alan Hobratschk to view the sale. "I was surprised, I've never seen anything like this in Lubbock before," Miss Otken said.

John Faulks, a partner in the auction company, said this was "certainly the first time" for his agency to handle this type sale.

In preparation for the animal auction, Faulks telephoned Bob Wagner, executive director of the American Zoological and Aquarium Society for the United States and Canada about complications which might arise when selling the animals.

Susie McBeth, with the Lubbock Humane Society, expressed doubts about whether some of the animal purchasers were capable of properly caring for their new charges.

She said a man who had a pet monkey brought it into a vet in Plainview. "He had kept the moneky in a cage outside during the winter...(and) it had to be put to sleep because it had a frozen tail, toes and gangrene."

She said the society would help any resident unhappy with their new pet relocate the animal to a more suitable place.

Many Seeking Carter Substance, Not Style

By LOUIS HARRIS

As they come to know him better, Americans are beginning to change their views about their President — and not always for the better. Yet fundamentally they still give Carter the benefit of the doubt.

Eight out of ten believe he is a "man of high integrity," while an 84-9 percent majority feels "he is trying hard and doing the best he can, even though he is faced with deeply troubling problems."

Having said this, one must point out the serious doubts about the President that have arisen over the past few months, according to the most recent Harris Suvey of 1,536 adults nationwide:

—A 69-21 percent majority now feels that "in some of the mistakes he has made, his lack of experience is clear to see." Americans have always suspected that Carter was short on experience, and people indicated this by 48-29 percent in March. They hoped the situation would improve, but this latest rating shows that they feel it has not. More that anything else, Americans want to see some sound decisions coming out of the White House.

—A 50-42 percent majority now believes that "he is trying too hard to make himself popular with the public," a distinct change from the 53-42 percent who denied this charge in July. This result is highly significant for it marks the first time that Carter's style has been called into question. It also means that, in the future, President Carter will find it more difficult to turn to such techniques as town meetings and call-ins, which he used to advantage during his first months in office.

—A 59-29 percent majority, somewhat greater than before, now believes "what he says he stands for sometimes seems to be different from what he actually does."

—By a narrow 41-38 percent, a plurality feels that "at times, he acts as if he is still running for office against Washington, D.C., whereas he now is the top man running things there."

Taken together, these criticisms add up to a serious concern about the ability of the President to come to grips with the issues facing the country in an effective fashion. And, when this coupled with a suspicion that he puts entirely too much emphasis on public relations, the conclusion is Carter is not that much different from other politicians.

Yet, there are some important carry-overs on the positive side that have survived the declines in President Carter's ratings:

—By 55-28 percent, the public still believes that "he has a style that is rapidly rebuilding confidence in the White House and government." This result contrasts with the razor-thin 47-46 percent who give him good marks on actually "restoring confidence in government." People are saying that they still think he hasn't begun to do it yet.

—By 58-27 percent, a solid majority also believes that Jimmy Carter has "higher personal standards of morality than most presidents the country has had." Despite the criticism he took for the Bert Lance episode, Carter still enjoys the public's respect for his high moral stance.

When the pluses are balanced against the minuses, it is clear that President Carter will commands a good deal of fundamental public support. But it is also clear that the American people are beginning to turn their attention from Carter's style to the hard substance of what he accomplishes.

TOWN WILL LOSE — Mayor Oliver H. Wetten stands outside the soon-to-be-closed Zenith Electronics plant in Watsontown, Pa. Mayor Wetten says his town stands to lose thousands of dollars in tax revenues because of the plant's closing. (AP Laserphoto)

Squeeze Of Cheap, Foreign Labor Brings Disaster To Small Town

WATSONTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Debra and Jeffrey Watts first met while working on the assembly line at the local Zenith plant. They began saving for their first home and the future looked bright.

But their dreams were shattered recently when Zenith announced it is phasing out its domestic electronic operations and laying off workers because it can't compete with the lower wages and marketing practices of foreign manufacturers.

The result is personal tragedy and bitterness in a town where the Zenith plant has been one of the main workplaces for generations.

"You're sort of half mad about it," said Mrs. Watts, 22, whose second child is due in February. "You try to earn a living and they wipe it out beneath you. It seems like you just get started and then something like this knocks you down."

Approximately half of the 1,700 Watsontown workers, including the Watts couple, will be among the 5,600 Zenith employes nationwide to lose their jobs in the next few months as the company shifts its electronics operations to Mexico and Taiwan, where labor is cheap.

Zenith, whose advertising glorifies the American worker, is the last company to completely assemble television and stereo sets in the United States.

But after next June, all that will remain here will be a cabinet-making operation, dependent on skilled craftsmen and hard maple, oak and poplar woods that are abundant here.

Most Zenith workers don't blame the company but feel it held out as long as possible against foreign efforts to dominate the American electronics market.

Company executives blame the situation on Japanese stereo and television manufacturers' "dumping" products on the American market by pricing them below domestic brands.

Zenith and other American firms have reacted by shifting their electronic operations to Mexico and Taiwan, where labor costs are at least $5 an hour less than the $6.32 earned by the average Zenith worker in the United States.

"How can you work for $1 an hour? Who can live in America today on that kind of money?" asked John L. Sullivan, whose tavern located near the Watsontown plant is a popular afterwork gathering spot. "This thing is going to hurt everyone here — the barbers, the sandwich shop next door, and I'll sell less beer."

In the past few years, other cities relying on steel, textile and electronics industries have gone through what Watsontown faces now. But in this picturesque central Pennsylvania community of 2,700 persons, the impact is social and cultural as well as economic.

The town literally surrounds the Zenith plant. The company spent $7 million to modernize the plant in 1975 after taking it over from Philco-Ford.

Most of Watsontown's residents not employed at the plant are small businessmen or self-employed plumbers, contractors or mechanics. The layoffs will hurt them too.

"People here are very independent ... (and) everyone does a day's work for his pay," said Mayor Oliver H. Wetten, adding the town stands to lose thousands of dollars in tax revenues because of the closing.

"The thing is that this involves more than just people working at the plant," Wetten said. "Zenith was very active in the local Red Cross and other such things. The town depends on the plant in so many ways."

E.N. Billman, vice president of the Watsontown National Bank, said the local government would not suffer severely because of Zenith's actions. The town is not in debt and does not levy a real estate tax. It will lose a $10 "head tax" collected for each plant worker.

"What are you going to do if a plant can't make money? You just have to accept it," Billman said.

Rather than blame Zenith, the townsfolk say the federal government is responsible for refusing to enforce trade laws against foreign "dumping."

"If the government had enforced the laws on the books this possibly would not have happended," said Fred Gehrke, the plant's industrial relations manager. "We brought the problem to their attention in 1971 and nothing happened."

The only victory by companies and unions against foreign manufacturers came last year when a trade agreement was reached to limit the number of Japanese color television sets imported into the United States to 1.5 million annually. In the last three years, the American television manufacturing industry has lost more than 16,000 jobs.

The government will offer laid-off workers some compensation through a 1974 law that gives relief to employes who lose jobs because of foreign competition.

Meantime, the Watts and other Zenith workers plan to look for new jobs in nearby brick and lumber yards, and they say they'll make less money. Yet this is home for the Watts and other Zenith workers, and they don't want to leave.

Doma Acquires Transport Firm

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Doma Corporation has announced the acquisition of H.W. Smith Transport and its affiliates.

J. Arnold Marshall, Big Spring, owner of H.W. Smith Transport and its affiliates, Caprock Service Company and Ace Transport, emphasized that future growth of the business and its continued contribution to the community was a key factor in his decision to sell the companies.

Marshall and the Martins have enjoyed lifelong dealings, all having come from the town of Loraine.

Marshall's career spans 37 years, starting with his employment by Cosden Corporation in 1940. He has been active in civic and church affairs, and has served two years as city councilman and eight years as mayor of the city of Big Spring. Marshall will continue with the companies as senior vice president, and will be active in the companies' governmental and community relations.

Doma Corporation was originally incorporated in 1973, and its early activities were in Kansas.

In 1975, Doma underwent a basic reorganization, with Don Martin serving as president and Reagan Martin serving as chairman of the board of the reorganized corporation.

Since that time, it has expanded its activities into Oklahoma, New Mexico, Louisiana, and Central and West Texas, with combined sales of both crude oil, petroleum products and service of $36 million annually.

Doma Corporation's diversified interests include investments in Gulf States Oil & Refining, Pelldamar Construction Company, Heritage Realty and others.

Spokesmen for the companies state that they intend to expand their involvement and business in the San Angelo area.

Tulia Cyclists Earn $400 For Program

A-J Correspondent

TULIA — Young people of First United Methodist Church here rode their bicycles 21 miles Saturday and raised about $400 for the World Hunger program.

Participants and their bikes were taken past Nazareth in pickup trucks driven by Wilma Pollard and Tom Davey. The Rev. Bruce Parks, church pastor, led the group and checked the single file line while Mal Wynne acted as tail guard.

Along the bike route, riders were treated to refreshments at five and ten mile check points. A Tulia police guard escorted the group into town and back to the church where additional refreshments were served.

UNDERGROUND RAILWAY

The John Rankin house in Ripley, Ohio, was once a major stop on the underground railway. A lantern placed in its upper window, visible across the Ohio River in Kentucky, helped some 2,000 escaping slaves find their way to the safety of the free state.

Underground River Floating Exciting

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first installment of a two-part series featuring the commercial caverns near Boerne, Texas.)

By JEFF W. HENDERSON
A-J Correspondent

We stood on the bank of the small stream and speculated on its depth and width. It was hard to tell, for the light was very subdued.

First In A Series

Eugene Ebell, his face showing the effects of working long hours outdoors for many years, explained the water was deep enough to float a rubber raft on.

"Several groups have floated it," he said.

The river was underground!

We were at the lowest level of the commercial tour in the Cave Without A Name.

Having floated the canyons of the Rio Grande down in the Big Bend Country a couple of times, the idea of floating this small stream, although it was much smaller and moving along at a snail's pace, was fascinating.

The small river flows downstream about a half mile or so from where we were standing. It comes to the surface, actually from a canyon wall, at another entrance to the cave called "Deadman's Entrance."

According to Ebell, the downstream portion of the cave was known as Deadman's Cave for years. No one knew it was all just one big cave.

From the point where we were standing, it was really hard to believe that the river led to another entrance. And, to top it off, to a recently discovered portion of the main cave.

The upper level, as it's known, can only be reached by floating down the river and then by climbing up through a chimney. The upper level doesn't have the large chambers that you find in the commercial cave, but it is much more spectacular, according to Ebell.

There is a room called the "Columns Room" where the stalactites and stalagmites have grown together.

Then, there is a place where nature went wild and defied the laws of gravity in a room called the "Helictite Room." The thin stalactites run in all directions.

There's even a deep pit known as the "Prisoner's Pit" that you have to skirt to get to a passage known as the "Yellow Brick Road."

Back upstream from where we were standing has been explored for about a quarter of a mile. The spelunkers who made the initial trip were turned back when they came up against a ceiling that was under water.

Later, according to Ebell, another group went upstream, and one of the men — knowing in advance of the water problem — put on scuba gear and went further into the cave.

The water passage turned out to be a short one, with the channel opening into another room. But, there were other water passages. The spelunker finally turned back when he used up half his air.

No one knows how far back the underground river channel runs!

The commercial part of the Cave Without A Name is impressive in itself. And, it is the part the average tourist like you and me gets to see.

When you first get to Cave Without A Name if you have had no advance warning, you find yourself wondering if you made the almost 10-mile trek out from Boerne on a wild goose chase.

The entrance to the cave is through a small, man-made stone structure, vintage 1930s. Going down into the sinkhole entrance, there is nothing to impress even the rankest of cave fans. It's just big, deep hole in the ground!

As you descend, Ebell makes the trip interesting as he backgrounds the history of the cave. Down at the bottom, he will show you where the still of prohibition days was located.

It's on the trip down that Ebell noted that the cave was developed in 1939 and at one time, it had a drawing power similar to Longhorn Caverns up near Burnet.

There at the bottom of the entrance, prepare yourself for a surprise.

You duck under an overhang from the sinkhole and walk into a dark area. The lights are suddenly turned on, and it blows your mind!

It's like walking into a grand cathedral.

Probably the first thing you will be taken to see is the "Jewel Room" where the clusters of "stone grapes" are hanging.

The "grapes" are a form of cave coral — inorganic structures (not like those of the sea) formed by the slow dripping and evaporating of lime-saturated water.

Then, it's back to the big room. You wander about on the marked paths and there's no way to take it all in.

Off to the right of the entrance to the cave proper is a cave growth that will hold your attention for several minutes. It has a sign on it calling it "Modern Art."

It looks like a huge mushroom from one angle.

Picture taking is allowed in Cave Without A Name. It's worth it. If you have 35mm camera, load it up with Tri-X film, rate it at 1600 ASA and shoot available light. The pictures will catch the imagery of the cave.

Cave Without A Name is about 10 miles north of Boerne. You go out on Ranch Road 474 about three miles and then start watching for signs directing you to Cave Without A Name. It's down a country road (a dirt one, at that.).

If you look for the cave on a Texas road map, you will probably find it listed as Century Cavern — that's what it was called for a while. The name was changed back to Cave Without A Name.

It's worth a trip!

Immunity Law Prevents Suits

NEWPORT, Ky. (UPI) — The outcome of more than $1.5 billion in civil suits stemming from the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire may hinge on an ancient doctrine designed to protect kings of England from legal problems.

Descended from English common law, "sovereign immunity" meant that in the courts, "The king can do no wrong." In its modern form, the legal concept precludes some types of damage suits against state and local governments.

A special legal team representing relatives of victims of the tragic nightclub fire will ask federal and state court judges Monday to strike down the doctrine as "invidious, inequitable and unconstitutional."

The complex legal debate will occur at a rare federal-state joint court session, called by the U.S. District Court and Kentucky Circuit Court judges presiding over an avalanche of lawsuits filed as a result of the blaze.

The May 28 Southgate, Ky., fire killed 164 persons and injured some 60 others.

Sovereign immunity has been claimed as a defense by lawyers for the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the City of Southgate. State and local authorities are accused of negligence in failing to enforce fire and building safety codes.

The Monday hearing will focus on a suit filed by two Cincinnati attorneys, directly challenging the constitutionality of the doctrine. The action is unlike the other fire suits, in that it seeks no monetary damages — just an overturning of the doctrine.

LISD Seniors Outscore Test Averages

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Local 1977 high school graduates topped the state and national averages in nearly all academic departments on the country's leading college entrance exam, according to statistics released by school officials.

Lubbock seniors who took the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) last year posted an average score of 431 in verbal abilities. That compared with a 424 Texas average and a 429 national mark.

It was the first time in at least the past five years that Lubbock students beat the national average on the verbal aptitude test.

On the mathematics portion of the SAT, the local class of '77 as a whole scored 468. This was above the state mean of 464, but slightly below the national average of 470.

By themselves, those local scores are good but not overwhelming. They suggest that compared with students state-and nation-wide, Lubbock's most recent crop of graduates was a shade above average in academic "aptitude" — defined by educators as "verbal and math reasoning abilities."

At least as important as aptitude, however, is student performance on the College Entrance Examination Board's (CEEB) achievement tests. Unlike the SAT, these tests measure more what a student actually has learned in school — academic accomplishment rather than aptitude.

It was on these tests that Lubbock's 1977 graduates did remarkably well. In some areas, they scored more than 50 points above the national norm.

On the English achievement test, for example, Lubbock posted a 541. The state average was a mere 510, and the national mean, 516.

Last year's local seniors registered an awesome 602 average on the CEEB math achievement test. In contrast, the average for Texas was 540 and for the nation, 547.

According to the CEEB office, performance on the aptitude tests is related to reasoning abilities developed over a long period of time. Schooling is just one of many factors — such as home environment — that affect a youngster's aptitude.

However, CEEB officials say the achievement test scores depend largely on how much a student has been taught in the classroom and in particular, the quality of his high school curriculum.

By that interpretation, the local test scores suggest that Lubbock schools are taking youngsters of about average aptitude and turning them into well-above-average academic performers.

"That is one of the conclusions I draw from the data," said G.B. Morris, guidance coordinator for the Lubbock Independent School District.

"I'm not all that concerned with the SAT scores. We're still holding up at about the average (for the state and nation)," he said.

"What really pleases me is in the area of achievement tests. Our students continue to score consistently high in this department," Morris said.

Morris cautioned against attaching too much significance, good or bad, to the test scores. He noted that differences of 10, 15 or 20 points are "not terribly significant," and that the figures "really show only how students did on one particular day of the year."

That day's performance could have been affected by numerous things, such as illness, attitude or even weather, Morris said.

The aptitude and achievement tests are scored on a range of 200 to 800 points. The tests are taken primarily by college-bound students.

Last year, the SAT was administered to about one million of the nation's high school seniors — including about 50,000 in Texas. Of Lubbock's approximately 1,860 graduates, 737 took the SAT and were included in the current test report.

The CEEB achievement tests, which are used for advanced college placement, are taken by a more select group, both here and nationally. Only a few hundred local seniors last year took the achievement tests, though Morris said this was in proportion to the number on the state and national levels.

Interpretation of the statistics-laden testing report is difficult because scoring trends are so conflicting. State and national averages have dropped consistently over the years, but Lubbock scores show a "roller-coaster" pattern.

For example, Lubbock's 1973 graduates had an SAT-verbal score of 438. The national average for the same year was seven points higher — 445.

Since then the national average has plunged to 429 in 1977. The Lubbock average on the SAT-verbal has been up and down, resting at 431 for last year.

Thus, Lubbock's score last year was seven points below the local 1973 average. Yet, due to a much sharper decline nationwide, the local class of '77 topped the national average on the SAT-verbal for the first time in the five-year period studied.

A similar pattern emerges on the SAT-math.

Lubbock has scored well above the Texas average on both the verbal and math portions of the SAT for the past two years.

In the area of CEEB achievement tests, the state and national averages don't come close to Lubbock's English and math marks.

The local math achievement average was 598 in 1973, 580 in 1974, 582 in 1975, 591 in 1976 and 602 in 1977. National scores have fluctuated in the 537-to-547 range; the state means have been in the 540s.

On the English achievement test, Lubbock's average has dipped from 566 five years ago to 559 in 1974, 557 in 1975, 540 in 1976, and 541 in 1977. However, state and national averages have stayed in the 515-to-520 range.

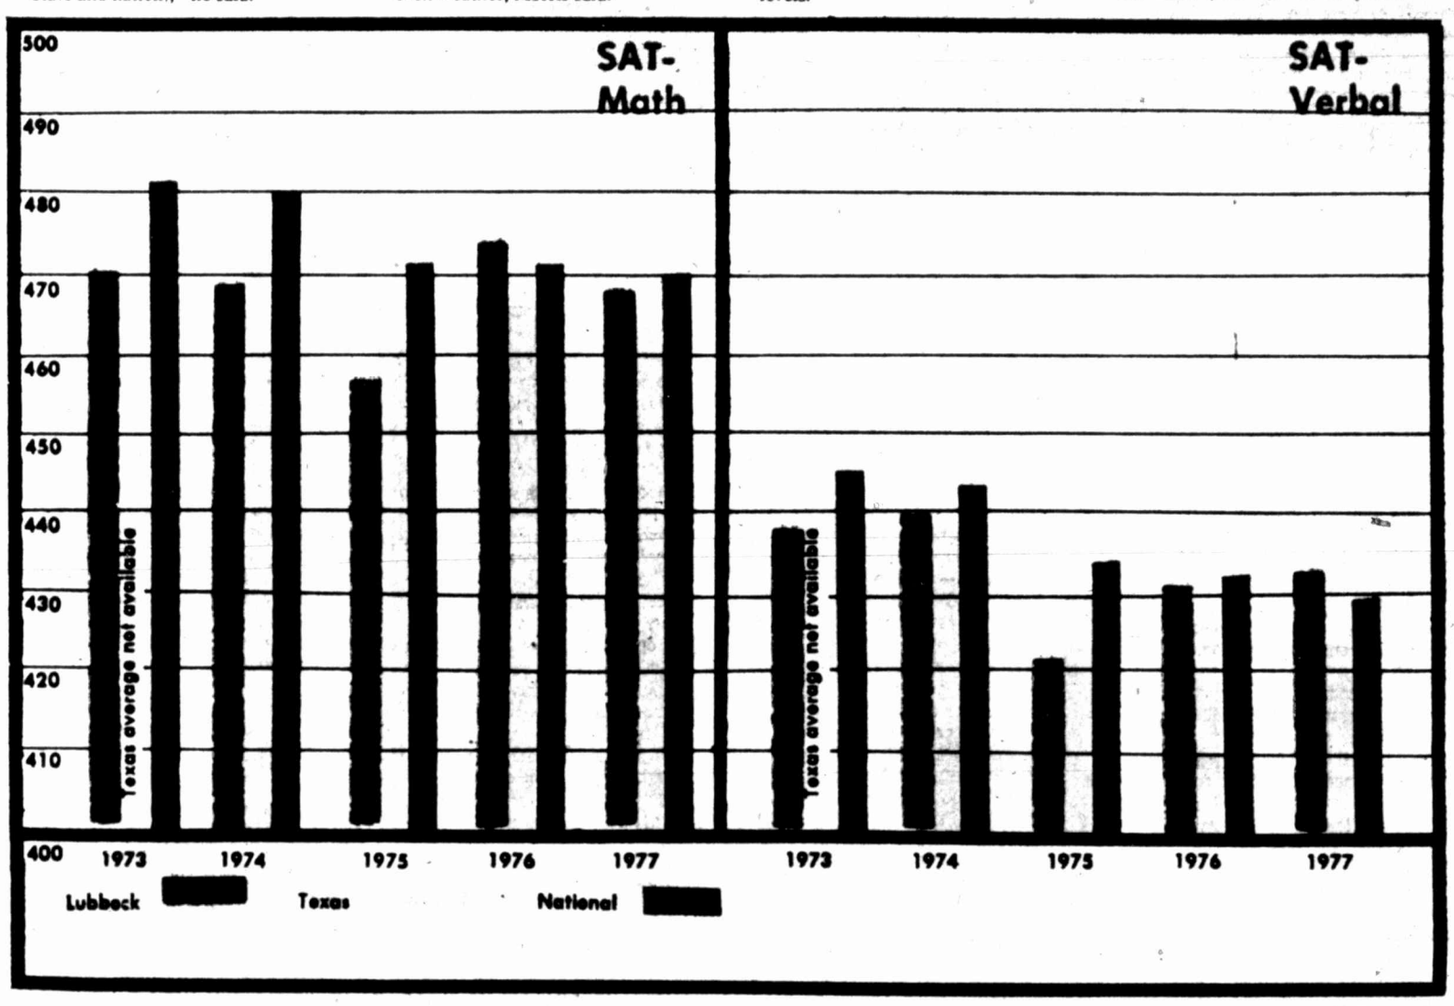
On only one CEEB achievement test — American history — did Lubbock score below the national and state means. Local 1977 seniors had an average score in this area of 466, compared with a 492 national average and 495 state average.

In 1976, Lubbock's American history achievement test score was 489. For the same year, the national and state averages were both 493.

On the national level, male high school graduates consistently have done better than female graduates on both the math and verbal portions of the SAT. But this trend does not hold true in Lubbock.

Generally, the women coming out of the city's high schools score higher than the men on verbal aptitude. In 1977, the women held an edge of 432 to 430.

On the SAT-math, however, local male graduates continue to hold a big lead. For Lubbock's high school students, the average male's math score was 492, compared with the average female's score of 447.



Girlstown Program Unveiled

Twenty-five representatives of the district's 72 clubs immediately paid a minimum of $100 for the honor, with Cook becoming the initial member of the Girlstown Life Membership Club.

Approximately $4,000 was raised Sunday for Girlstown which annually hosts the second cabinet meeting.

Both district 2-T2 and the state's Lions convention will be held concurrently at Lubbock Civic Center May, 1978, and plans for those events, already underway, were presented to the more than 200 Lions and Lionesses attending.

District 2-T2, which also has life membership programs for the Lions Crippled Children Camp at Kerrville and the Eye Bank in Lubbock, led the continental United States and Canada in new members during July, the first month of the Lions' fiscal year, Cook announced. October is the annual membership month for Lions International.

The district's 20 committee chairmen as well as zone chairmen and deputy district governors presented reports during the day-long meeting. The next regularly scheduled district meeting will be the Mid-Winter Conference in Lamesa, Jan. 29, 1978.

Ebb Grindstaff of Ballenger, a candidate for the Third International Lions president at the 1978 international convention which will be held in Tokyo, Japan, will be guest speaker at the noon meeting of the Lubbock Lions Club Tuesday, November 1, it was announced.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
(c) 1977 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠J6 ♡J92 ◇A102 ♣AJ1053

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3♡	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.— Three spades. Partner has shown a minimum opening bid with six spades and four hearts—if he had a stronger hand, his first rebid would have been two hearts rather than two spades. You have already made a move toward game; now all you can do is take a preference to partner's first suit.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠J6 ♡AK982 ◇AK106 ♣73

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	1♠	Pass
2◇	Pass	2♠	Pass

A.—You cannot tell how good partner's hand is. However, since he did not take preference to either of your suits, he almost surely has a six-card suit. You have a better than minimum opening bid with good controls, and your spade support is adequate in the light of partner's bidding. A raise to three spades is indicated.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠8 ♡KQ872 ◇AQ983 ♣Q6

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East

What action do you take?

A.—Even though you have a minimum opening bid and East's overcall has made your queen of clubs a doubtful asset, you may never get another chance to safely introduce your diamond suit. Bid two diamonds. Odds are that partner has a fit for one of your suits, or a long, decent spade suit of his own, so the danger of competing on such scant values is not too great.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠QJ4 ♡KQ1065 ◇6 ♣A832

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	2♡	Pass
3♡	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Because of the double fit and your controls in both minor suits, your hand has become very powerful and slam is a distinct possibility. You should alert partner to this fact by cue-bidding four clubs.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠5 ♡KJ9643 ◇K1072 ♣83

Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—With your hand, you want to play in a heart game. Therefore, you should simply go ahead and bid four hearts. Don't make the mistake of bidding three hearts. That would show a hand that is slam-oriented or which would accept the alternative contract of three no trump. You are not interested in either of these possibilities.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South with 60 on score you hold:

♡AK73 ◇KQJ105 ♣AQ82

A.—It might seem strange, looking at a hand with 22 points, but we suggest a simple overcall of two diamonds. Obviously, we would not consider this action without the 60 partial. Here, however, we would rule out a double or a cue-bid for two reasons. Because of our spade void, we would not like partner to insist on a contract in that strain, and in view of East's opening bid, it is unlikely that partner has enough to give us reasonable play for slam. Also, we might get a second chance to show our strength if either opponent elects to compete.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AK104 ♡KQ7 ◇K5 ♣KQ84

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1◇	Pass

A.—Your hand is too strong for a mere one spade rebid. However, a jump to two spades would suggest a more unbalanced hand. Therefore, we recommend the descriptive rebid of two no trump. Partner can always check to see whether we have a spade suit enroute to three no trump if he so desires.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AKQJ85 ♡954 ◇7 ♣K83

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1◇	1♠	Pass	2 NT
Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Bid three no trump. You are giving partner at least six tricks and he has promised a fair hand with his jump to two no trump. Despite the fact that you are unbalanced, we think that nine tricks might be easier to make than ten. In addition, with partner as declarer, his tenaces will be protected from a possibly damaging lead through.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Dears:

How long has it been since you have cleaned the inside of your refrigerator?

I won't admit to you how long it has been since I have done mine.

When I moved to my present apartment I was ecstatic about my frost-free freezer and still appreciate it more than store-bought bread.

But I have found that since I don't have to defrost the freezer, I don't seem to clean my refrigerator very often.

When I had to defrost the freezer, the rest of the ice box would get a thorough cleaning out, and scrubbing down.

It just dawned on me the other day how long it had been since I had cleaned the inside. (No, I still won't tell you, but I am human too.)

So, my friends, this is just a quick reminder to clean out the inside of your friendly fridge.

I took out all the things I wasn't sure of and threw them away, and rearranged everything else.

I sponged down the inside with a good fresh cleaner and even got down inside the egg wells. How do they get so dirty?

Be sure and change the paper in your hydrator and add a new box of baking soda to keep it fresh smelling.

Speaking of keeping things in the refrigerator, stay tuned for later and I will tell you some of the strange things I found in mine!! — Heloise II

Dear Heloise:

I have a good hint for cooking liver.

As I am on a fried-free diet, I have to broil my meats, and I get plenty tired of eating it that way. So one day I had some leftover coating mix that you shake and bake with, so I decided I'd cook the liver that way.

It turned out delicious, and no messy pots to clean to boot. By the way, the coating mix I used was for pork. Try it and see for yourself. — Mrs. W.K. Dean

I did, Mrs. Dean and it was "out of this world."

While we're on the subject of this not so popular meat, but which we all should eat (I like it myself), I want to mention one important thing some folks might not know.

Always, and first, put your slices of liver in a skillet, cover with cold water and bring to a boil. Remove from heat and let stand for about five minutes (gets rid of that excess blood), drain and wipe dry.

Now you are ready to proceed with your seasoning, coating, frying, broiling, baking or whatever. Happy eating! — Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Don't put off washing slipcovers until they are badly soiled. Dirt, perspiration, and even oil from a person's hands tend to weaken the fabric.

To make slipcovers dry smooth and tight, adjust them on the furniture while they are still slightly damp — if the furniture is upholstered in colorfast fabrics. — A Reader

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "Desperate" and "Arizona" (both had been raped by a relative) and anyone else out there who has had the horrible experience.

For God's sake, TELL somebody. Get it out of your system. Don't keep it locked up inside you. It can be a time bomb. I know. It happened to me.

When I was 11 years old my stepfather raped me. I was afraid to tell on him so I just kept quiet and made sure we were never alone together. When I reached the boy-girl dating age — in those days it was 16 — I was terrified to let a boy hold my hand. I was so tense and frightened of any contact with a male it was agony to even sit next to a boy in a movie. I also had terrible guilt feelings, as if I were responsible for what had happened to me when I was 11 years old.'

The day after high school graduation I had a complete nervous breakdown. A wonderful doctor brought me back to the real world and I will never be able to thank him enough. It was he who taught me the importance of talking about the secret nightmare that I had kept buried in my mind for so many years. So, Ann, please print my letter and encourage other girls (especially young children) to tell somebody if they have the horrible experience — mother, sister, teacher, doctor, aunt. It can mean the difference between mental health and insanity. — Been There

Dear Friend: Your letter says it all. Thank you for sitting in my chair today. You had a lot to say and you said it better than I could.

• • •

Dear Ann: You told "Everybody's Mom" it would be cruel to turn away the teenage neighbor boys who had been kicked out by their parents. I know you meant well, Ann, but I hope she checks the boys' stories.

I speak from experience. Our son has run away eight times. I'm sure he wouldn't have been so quick to take off if our many well-meaning neighbors had not given him food and shelter. — Walked In Those Moccasins

Dear Moc: You have a point. The question, "May I phone your parents?" would clarify the situation. Thanks for the input.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: My husband was married before and has two children; one is six, the other is seven. Every Sunday and holiday it's the same story. I am alone because my Dennis wants to be with his children. So off he goes and leaves me sitting alone — in tears.'

(Incidentally, his ex-wife is always at home, so that means they are together — like a family.)

I told Dennis how upsetting it is to be left alone so much but he just shrugs his shoulders and says he can't force his children to come to our house — he claims he has suggested it many times and they always say no. I have never met the children so they can't have anything against me.

Should I put my foot down and tell Dennis I won't put up with it any more? Please help me, Ann. I'm really in a fix. — Blue Monday

Dear Blue: If you give Dennis an "either-or" he just might choose his children. Are you prepared for such a move?

Dennis should have some counseling. He needs to understand that he is being very unfair to you. (Apparently, you can't deliver the message effectively.) You could use some guidance, too, honey. I think your marriage is in trouble.

VILLAGE CRAFT CORNER

At Wit's End...

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I take my marriage vows seriously.

All that jazz about better or worse, richer or poorer, sickness and health. I've handled it all — until my husband developed blind spots on the tennis court.

His first attack hit about seven months ago. I hit a ball well inside the serving court when I heared him yell, "LONG!"

I placed my second serve which I watched clearly land on the line and he yelled, "WIDE!"

Naturally, I didn't want to upset him, so I waited until the end of the set (which he won) and led him off the court. "Be careful, dear," I advised gently. "There are two steps in front of you at 12 o'clock, then there are exactly 65 steps to the car with only one curb in between and I'll tell you about them."

"I am not blind," he said irritably, shaking his arm loose from mine.

"Of course you're not," I condescended. But I was worried.

However, at home, his super vision returned. He noted a phone was off the hook just by looking through a wall, correctly predicted his son was wearing his underwear right through a pair of shorts, and took me to task for the dust on top of our seven-foot refrigerator.

That weekend, when we returned to the court for a rematch, his vision once again failed him. Lobs that landed on the line were called "out" or "in," depending on whose lobs they were. If I had so much as a shoelace that went over the serving line, he would call, "FOOT FAULT!"

A girlfriend of mine said her husband suffered from the same malady. "It's tennis elbow of the eye," she said.

"Are you serious?" I giggled.

"It's not funny," she said. "It's painful as all get out. Comes from missing too many shots that are in."

"Surely we can't be talking about the same thing."

"Maybe not," she said. "Does your husband sometime call it out before you even serve the ball? (I nodded.) Does he sometimes win an entire set without stepping a foot on the court? (Again I nodded.) Does his vision return when he is in the pro-shop? (Again I nodded.) There was a cure for it last year," she said. "Of course, I don't know what they call it this year."

"Divorce."

BY OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

Oswald: "How about some articles on hands from match point duplicate?"

Jim: "Here's a hand where South has almost enough for an opening bid. If he does open North and South are almost sure to get to game and go down. If he passes, North will open with one diamond."

Oswald: "North opens one diamond rather than one club because he wants to indicate a lead in case the opponents buy the contract."

Jim: "South should respond with one heart only. It is very bad tactics to jump merely because you have passed eleven high-card points. A jump by a passed hand should only be made with a very good hand and support for partner's bid suit."

Oswald: "Now it is North's turn to make a good bid. He should pass and let his partner play one heart."

Jim: "South will make four hearts if the defense slips. He takes his ace of clubs and queen of diamonds. Then he leads a spade to dummy, discards two clubs and a spade on good diamonds, ruffs a club and leads the queen of spades to force the opponent with the king win. West does win and must play ace and a low trump in order to hold South to nine tricks."

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader asks for a further explanation of when a player is allowed to look at the last trick.

In rubber bridge he retains that right until he or his partner has played to the current trick, in duplicate he must not have turned his card to the previous trick.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY
DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our grandson was born a month premature. Our son told us he has hyaline membrane disease. He and his wife were so upset because the child was in intensive care with two collapsed lungs, and was on a respirator. They did not hear or understand what the doctor was telling them about this. Can you tell us what you know about the disease? What causes it, and what effect will it have on the baby? — Mrs. D.B.

It's fortunate the baby had such good care. Hyaline membrane disease, which we can call HMD, for short, is the commonest respiratory problem affecting the newborn. It kills about 20,000 a year.

The precise cause is not clear, but there are numerous theories. A likely one is a deficiency of lecithin in certain lung membranes that are responsible for expansion of alveoli. Those are the tiny sacs that allow oxygen to be absorbed. The signs appear within hours after birth, more commonly in male babies. It is more common in children of mothers who have had pregnancy complications, or such problems as diabetes, hemorrhaging, toxemia (poisoning), or Ceasarean delivery. HMD seldom occurs in full-term babies. Those who survive the first few critical days usually recover quickly.

In general, the HMD child does well, but there may be after effects. Some may have more respiratory tract infections than other children. There are no serious nervous system disorders.

Perhaps by now the parents have been called in for a fuller explanation of just what went wrong, and in a less grim atmosphere than that surrounding the intensive care ward. Doctors will usually do this, realizing that clear communication is not always possible until the "smoke has cleared."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have arthritis, also ulcers, which show on my X-rays. I have been bothered with burning in the stomach and with spitting up after eating. At night I take lots of aspirins for my arthritis. Can large doses cause ulcers? — J.L.

Large, frequent doses of aspirin over a period of time can cause peptic ulcers. The burning is probably due to excess stomach acid, which is a factor in ulcer formation.

Don't know what your idea of "large" is, so I can't comment on that. But don't forget the importance of timing when taking such medication. Smaller doses taken more frequently are best. Try taking your aspirin during or after meals. You'll find that less irritating. Some aspirin is coated to make it less bothersome, and there are new products available that may substitute for aspirin and be less irritating.

Get specific dosage instructions from your doctor. Massive use before going to bed is not a good idea, and can be aggravating to an ulcer. You probably need some diet instructions for that, too.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can birth control pills cause a person's hair to get thin? My daughter always had thick hair until she started using the Pill. Is this a coincidence, or is it another side effect from the Pill? — Mrs. A.E.P.

It's one possible side effect among many attributed to the Pill. Dr. Robert W. Kistner, in his book, "The Pill," makes this cogent observation:

"When anything unusal happens to a woman taking the Pill, it is the No. 1 suspect." Emphasis is on the word suspect. Some women can have hair loss with or without the contraceptive pill. If it is the culprit, discontinuing it will bring back hair thickness.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is lumbago? — G.K.

Plain old low back pain. It can stem from disturbance of the lumbar discs of the vertebral column, hence the name. However, most back pain results from a muscular problem, and need not involve the discs at all.

Bold Thief Gets Painting

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — A thief yanked a $13,000 painting off the wall at an exhibit and escaped by walking calmly with it through a crowd of hundreds of unsuspecting art lovers and special security guards, police said Sunday.

"That was a very brazen act," said an Oakland Museum official of the theft of the painting by well-known artist Robert Deibenkorn during an exhibition of his work.

Officials said the thief apparently concealed the 10-by-13-inch oil painting "Scissors and Lemon" under his leather coat and boldly walked out of the museum accompanied by a man and woman who had attended the exhibit opening with him Friday night.

Police, who reported Sunday that the thief was still at large, said they were informed that the painting, an oil on masonite, was valued at up to $13,000, but the publicity-shy artist declined to discuss the incident. The painting's owner was not disclosed.

Diebenkorn and his wife Phyllis, of Santa Monica, Calif., had come to Oakland for the exhibition of 150 paintings by the artist, most of which are large, with widths and heights of several feet.

The museum official said there were hundreds, possibly a thousand, persons in the exhibit hall, "some standing right behind the thief," when the painting was taken.

Viet Refugee Looks To America

SONGKHLA, Thailand (UPI) — Pham Dong and his family of seven sit in their shack just like the 1,000 other Vietnamese refugees, hoping for acceptance to another country.

But the Dong family is different.

Dong has been in the camp longer than any refugee in this southern Thai resort town. No country will accept him.

The 48-year-old Dong speaks no language other than his northern Vietnamese dialect. He has no education and no training other than working the soil. He has no relatives in any country but Vietnam, no former employers willing to sponsor him.

While other refugees are processed through the office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees and move on to begin new lives in other countries, Dong and his family sit and wait.

They have been waiting for 16 months.

Unlike most refugees, Dong had little contact with westerners in Vietnam.

He had been a farmer with 45 acres near the Vung Tau resort southeast of Saigon. He took little interest in politics, but says:

"I couldn't live with the Communists. I left my home in the north when they took over and left my farm in the south when they came and then had to leave Saigon when they won the war."

He fled each time, he said, for the sake of his growing brood of children. The seven who escaped with him range from 18 months to 18 years. Now they are learning English from the Baptist mission teacher at the camp.

Dong says he is too old to learn and never had a head for languages anyway. "I am a rice farmer," he said.

Told rice farming in America, unlike Vietnam, is highly mechanized, Dong replied, "I'm not worried. I can work farm machinery. I always repaired the water pumps at home."

In the camp there is nothing for Dong to do. His hut, built with corrugated tin roofing and bits of wood supplied by the United Nations, was finished long ago.

Conditions in the camp are cramped, the water supply is limited, the diet is monotonous and when it rains hard the huts leak badly. But Dong has borne it longer than anyone else here and accepts the situation as part of the price of a new life.

In the year and four months he has been in Thailand he never has been outside the refugee compound.

Asked if he would like to settle in Thailand, Dong said, "I would be afraid to stay here because Thailand will become another Vietnam. I've fled the Communists three times now and I don't want to have to do it again. No place in Asia is safe. I want to go to America."

Dong's best chance is that he will be one of the 15,000 refugees admitted to the United States without special qualifications. Until then, he will continue to sit in his shack, waiting.

Bus Hijacker Killed; All Hostages Freed

TOKYO (UPI) — Riot police shot and killed one of two Japanese hijackers of an express bus and freed all 16 hostages unharmed Sunday. The surviving hijacker was wounded and captured in the assault mounted in the glare of searchlights and in front of television cameras.

The end to the 16-hour drama at Nagasaki, 900 miles southwest of Tokyo, came at 4:33 a.m. when 40 policemen wearing bulletproof jacketu rushed the bus from all four sides.

The two hijackers first claimed they were members of Japan's ultra-leftist Red Army and threatened to blow up the bus unless police complied with their request to talk to Justice Minister Mitsuo Setoyama and two other men.

But Koichi Kawashita, 39, told police that he and his dead accomplice, Hisayuki Kawasaki, 31, were not associated with the Red Army, whose members seized a Japan Air Lines DC-8 over India Sept. 28 and got $6 million ransom for the release of hostages.

Kawashita said he and Kawasaki, who was fatally shot in the five-minute gunbattle, were unemployed.

He quoted Kawasaki as saying: "the Red Army robbed money in the hijacking of the JAL plane. I want to make money in the same way."

Kawashita said Kawasaki approached him with the idea of getting 370 million yen ($1.4 million) ransom from the owner of the express bus and said he had pistols and explosives.

The hijackers seized the bus near Nagasaki railroad station Saturday and ordered the driver to park it in a service station.

Marty Ingels Works As 'Celebrity Connection'

By BARBARA RIEGELHAUPT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Burt Lancaster went to Russia because of him. Farrah Fawcett-Majors didn't go to the White House despite him. But he got Elizabeth Taylor to go instead.

CELEBRITY CONNECTION—Comedian Marty Ingels looks over some information on his Hollywood clients with his fiancee, actress Shirley Jones, in their Beverly Hills home. Ingels, dubbed the "celebrity connection," has set himself up as everyone's insider in the entertainment capital. Anyone, anywhere, who needs a movie or television star for any reason can call Ingels, Inc. of Hollywood and be assured that Ingels himself will track down the celebrity—for a fee. (AP Laserphoto)

The man wielding that awesome influence is Marty Ingels, whose career as a comedian peaked with the 1960s television comedy "I'm Dickens — He's Fenster." Although he no longer appears on the screen with any regularity, Ingels has become one of the most sought after men in Hollywood.

Dubbed the "celebrity connection," Ingels has set himself up as everyone's insider in the entertainment capital. Anyone, anywhere who needs a movie or TV star for any reason can call Ingels, Inc. of Hollywood and be assured that Marty Ingels will be on the phone within hours — and probably minutes — tracking down the celebrity.

"If you put a telephone number in front of me, I'll do everything I can to reach a person," said the bare-footed, jeans-clad Ingels, relaxing recently at the Beverly Hills home of actress Shirley Jones, whom he plans to marry in November.

At a minimum fee of $1,000 per celebrity from those who hire him, he has amassed a small fortune, earning more than $1 million last year by his calculations, and is expanding to a 14-person staff with offices in New York, Chicago, London and Tokyo, as well as Hollywood.

Although the bulk of his work is for advertising agencies looking for celebrities to do commercials, the one-man operation he began two years ago has expanded its horizons.

Lancaster, for example, was recruited to narrate a series of one-hour documentary segments on the Soviet Union's involvement in World War II, based on archive films the Russians have agreed to release for the first time.

Ingels said the film, expected to be ready for television syndication next spring, is being produced by a joint Soviet-U.S. effort. And with characteristic enthusiasm for his new line of work, Ingels calls the project "undoubtedly the biggest cinematographic effort between countries to date."

On a smaller scale, Ingels' maneuverings have corraled dozens of celebrities for spots promoting a wide range of products. He lined up Orson Welles for a prestigious European brandy advertising campaign; Nipsey Russell, Joey Heatherton, Burgess Meredith and Avery Schreiber for Ray-O-Vac batteries; Robert Wagner for Timex, and Don Knotts for a series of Midwest radio commercials.

Although he couldn't get Charlie's deserted Angel for a White House savings bond rally — Ingels was contacted after attempts from Washington to get Miss Fawcett-Majors had failed — he did manage to coax Elizabeth Taylor into substituting.

"My talent is in being relentless and in getting through where most people don't know how," Ingels said. "I also know who's working and how to get all the actors that may not be Farrah Fawcett or 'Fonzie.'

"There are thousands of actors who want to work on one side and all the people looking for actors on the other," he continued. "I simply bring them together."

His system works — bringing him more than $1 million in a year — but his activities have not ingratiated him with the personal agents he often circumvents, despite the fact that they get their commission even when he steps in as middleman.

He's especially proud of arranging for John Wayne to serve as 1977 national honorary crusade chairman for the American Cancer Society.

Nevada Country Store Keeps 'Old' Image Alive

By ROBERT W. WELKOS

AUSTIN, Nev. (AP) — In an age when Americans do their grocery shopping in huge, well-lighted modern supermarkets, Bill and Carol Givens are letting the dust settle in their old-fashioned country store.

"Watch your step," Mrs. Givens, 40, says as she points to a large puddle next to the canned goods. "The roof leaks here and there and over there."

The Country Store is on the main street in this central Nevada mining town. And what a store it is.

Why, you can even reach your hand into a glass jar on the old wooden counter and buy penny candy, although other jars contain candy that might cost a little more.

Givens, 57, and his wife have rejected all attempts at modernizing their market, even though the other one in town has put up a new front and its aisles are wide and almost hospital clean.

The Country Store is different.

As you walk in the front door you might turn to your right and see yourself in the mirror.

"We have ladies who come in here and look at themselves in the mirror and then ask us what the mirror is set in," Mrs. Givens says. "Sometimes they're shocked to discover it's a coffin lid. We left the plaque off that said 'Mother' and inserted a mirror where netting used to be."

Instead of many numbered aisles, it has two and if you don't squint you may not see what you need.

"People say, 'Gee, it's so dark in here'," Mrs. Givens explains. "But let them get glasses. This is the way it was at the turn of the century. Then they say, 'Gee, these counters are old. Why don't you get new ones?' Well, this is in keeping with the store."

She then walks to the cash register.

"Look here," she says. "See this cash register? Notice anything strange about it? Well, the most it'll ring up is $1.95. We use it sometimes."

The Givens family purchased the market in the 1920s, when it was a dry goods store. In the store today you'll still see many of the same products sold early in this century. But those items aren't for sale.

"We hope to open up a museum next door in the spring," Mrs. Givens says.

The museum is being built next door. When finished, it will consist of three rooms — a kitchen, parlor, bedroom. The rooms will be decorated in antiques found around this once booming mining town.

Vic Damone Headlines In Dallas' Fairmont

Singer Vic Damone opens a two-week appearance Oct. 24 in the Venetian Room at the Fairmont Hotel in Dallas.

The engagement marks the performer's second time to play the Dallas showroom. Damone previously appeared in the Venetian Room as the Fairmont's New Year's Eve headliner in 1974.

Damone's career has spanned almost every phase of show business, from recordings and films to stage, nightclubs and television.

The singer's career goes back to the mid 1940s when he was a winner of one of Arthur Godfrey's "Talent Scout" contests. He was spotted by comedian Milton Berle who arranged for him to be auditioned by the famed La Martinique nightclub, which signed him for two weeks. Damone was held over for 11 weeks and launched his professional career.

Along the way were a couple of his own radio shows, and he also worked with big band leaders, Guy Lombardo and Stan Kenton.

After serving in the Army, he returned to performing by launching a new career as an actor, starring in a hard-hitting drama about World War II, "From Here to Eternity."

His widely acclaimed performance led to his being signed for performances in another war picture, "Crash Boat" followed by one of MGM's most lavish musical productions of the 1950s, "Kismet." It was directed by Vicente Minnelli and also starred Ann Blyth.

He returned to nightclubs and recordings, turning out such hits as "An Affair to Remember," "On the Street Where You Live" and "You Were Only Foolin."

In 1967, he took over as host and star of the highly-rated Dean Martin's summer replacement TV series on NBC.

Damone will be appearing in the Venetian Room through October 29, two shows nightly except Sunday.

Cargo Moves Once More In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans dockworkers began unloading conventional cargo ships and grain barges Sunday, following orders from the International Longshoremen's Association.

Containerships were still being struck here, as they have been at all other East and Gulf coast ports since the ILA declared a limited strike when the union's contract with shippers expired Oct. 1.

New Orleans longshoremen staged a general strike and voted to continue it despite international union officials' pleas to comply with the containership-only strike.

The Port of New Orleans, the nation's second largest, was virtually shut down by the full walkout, and officials estimated the strike cost $2 million a day, blocking grain exports and delaying steel shipments to the Midwest.

Hundreds of loaded grain barges were tied up along the Mississippi River during the weekend, and more reportedly were one their way down from inland grain-producing states.

New Orleans handles about half of the nation's grain exports.

ILA Local 1419 President Wilfred Daliet, under heavy pressure from international officials, ordered New Orleans dockworkers Saturday to limit their strike or face union discipline.

On Sunday morning, activity was brisk at a waterfront hiring hall where stevedores sign up work crews.

"It's the beginning of the end," a local union official said. "The foremen got all the men they wanted."

About 150 of the 3,000 longshoremen who work here stood in clusters under the block-long aluminum shed where they sign up for work at the beginning of each shift. As they huddled against the steady, morning wind, they continued to reassure each other.

"You going to work man?" one would ask. "Sure, man, are you?" another would answer.

Fifty yards away, outside the hiring hall gate, a group of a half-dozen or so determined strikers set up a picket line, in direct violation of the union order.

They urged the men not to go back to work, but their pleas went largely unanswered. Daliet has said that men who picket can be fined, and in the most extreme case can be kicked out of the union.

Members of the rank and file have complained throughout the strike that they don't trust their local union leaders. And the defiant strikers shouted Sunday that they had been "sold out" once again.

The rank and file forced a formal strike vote on Oct. 8 and decided then to continue the general strike. But Daliet now says that vote was illegal according to the ILA's international constitution.

He said the ILA threatened to put the local in trusteeship if the general strike continued. That would put the national union in complete control of the local, he said.

Four Men's July Disappearance Remains Shrouded In Mystery

LAWRENCEVILLE, N.J. (UPI) — On Friday, July 15, four young men hopped in a pickup truck and left their homes, telling friends they were going on a weekend camping trip.

They never returned. One was found shot to death. The others are missing, along with up to $12,000 police say was collected from neighorhood youngsters to buy marijuana.

The others — Timothy Leary, 22, John Jaeger, 20, and Todd Hoch, 16 — crowded into the small cabin, rolling the windows all the way down to let in the breeze. It was a hot day, the start of a two-week heat wave.

The four stopped at an Exxon service station on Rte. 1 to buy gasoline, and Hoch saw a neighborhood friend working as an attendant.

"Where are you going?" the friend asked.

"We're going down to the shore for camping," Hoch replied. He said they would be back by Sunday night.

When they didn't return, detectives questioned their friends. When there was no sign of them two weeks later, police issued a nationwide alert for the orange-and-tan Chevy pickup.

On Aug. 8, Pennsylvania state police found a skeleton off Rte. 272 near Lancaster, Pa. The body, identified through dental charts, was that of Hoch, shot once in the head with a 9-mm gun. Lancaster County Coroner Witlow Shaw placed Hoch's time of death at July 15, the day the four left New Jersey.

The truck was found Aug. 15 in the parking lot of the Greater Wilmington Airport in New Castle, Del., with one of its doors half open. Police saw traces of blood inside as well as on the bed of the truck outside.

From the beginning, the suspicion in Hoch's murder fell on Leary, a drifter also known as Alex Bernhard, David Cain, Earl Bernhard, Michael Bunta, David Dearborne and others.

Leary, a man with long, disheveled brown hair, a beard and a mustache, came to New Jersey from Indiana, Pa., about 18 months ago. He landed a job with the Nelson-Lebo Lamp Co. in Trenton, using the name of Al Bernhard.

Originally of Edgewood, Md., Leary allegedly broke into the home of his grandparents in Havre de Grace, Md., on Christmas Eve 1973, stole several thousand dollars worth of goods and set the living room on fire.

The evidence that led police to suspect Leary was a 9-mm Smith & Wesson found in a pouch lying near Hoch's body. With the weapon was a receipt for the gun issued in the name of Al Bernhard by a pawn shop in Jacksonville, Fla., on July 5.

The pawnbroker identified Leary in police pictures as the man who bought the gun, and police found various false identification papers, stolen credit cards and a warranty slip for the Smith & Wesson in Leary's abandoned apartment.

Police believe Leary originated the idea of a trip to buy marijuana, either in Pittsburgh or Baltimore. Although police found no evidence the four were in either city, the night before the trip, Kent asked his father how far Pittsburgh is from Trenton.

Police said the four carried between $7,000 and $12,000 in cash raised among themselves or collected from friends.

"We know they were planning to make a buy with the money," the detective said. "But we don't know whether they actually made a buy and, if they did, where. As far as we know, they were never in Pittsburgh or Baltimore."

Hoch was an "odd man out" in the group. Leary, Kent and Jaeger are known to have been close and have made at least two trips together to rock concerts. Hoch had never traveled with the other three and was the least close to Leary.

"If the three are alive, we think at least Kent would have contacted his family by now. He was extremely close to his mother," the detective said.

On the seat and rear bed of the pickup truck were traces of blood of three different types — B, O, and AB.

Type B, found in the bed of the truck, was the same type as Hoch's. Jaeger and Kent had type O, the same type found on the driver's side of the seat.

The third type, AB, was found on the passenger side of the seat. Its source remains a mystery, but police say it could be Leary's blood.

Police think the four may have made contact with a drug dealer somewhere on July 15. The dealer may have tried to "rip them off" and, when they resisted, shot them, planted Leary's gun and his receipt near Hoch's body and made off.

"If that's the case," said the detective, "whoever did it was a pro."

Pennsylvania troopers, with the help of bloodhounds and helicopters, conducted four separate searches after Hoch's body was found. They came up empty-handed. "There's wild wilderness out there, miles and miles of trees and nothing else. If the bodies are buried in different places, it'll be damn hard to find them," the detective said.

Police found two bullets fired from the Smith & Wesson, but there were three empty casings inside the cabin of the truck.

One of the bullets was found inside Hoch's skull. The other was in a hollow space between the inside plastic cover and the outside metal door of the truck. But if all the four were killed, why were there only three casings inside the cabin?

"We have a lot of theories, but that's all we have at the moment. We don't know what happened to these four and we don't know where they are," the detective said.

California Girl, 16, Teen-Age Winner

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Kristin Moe, a 16-year-old high school student from Santa Ana, Calif., won the 18th annual Miss American Teen-Ager Pageant early Sunday.

Miss Moe, an honor student at Foothill High School, won a $3,000 cash scholarship and a $1,000 wardrobe, along with other prizes.

First runner-up was Sally Anne Griffith, 16, of Lake Oswego, Ore. Marsha Bellomy, 17, of Lexington, Ky., was named second runner-up; Lynn Volk, 17, of Dayton, Ohio, third runner-up; and Linda Hedrick, 17, of Wiley Ford, W.Va., fourth runner-up.

The pageant is open to girls aged 13 to 17 who are U.S. citizens.

Governor Impressed By Nationalist Plans

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — Gov. Dixy Lee Ray of Washington state Sunday visited construction projects and a marine research center in southern Taiwan.

"I am really impressed by the (Nationalist Chinese) government's careful planning of the 10 construction projects," she said.

No Harm To Come To Captive Yachters

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — American diplomats said Sunday they doubted any harm would come to three Americans whose 39-foot yacht was fired on and rammed in the South China Sea and taken under tow to Saigon by the Vietnamese navy.

Vietnam has not responded to State Department inquiries about the fate of the sailors, who were last heard from Friday when radio messages from the yacht Brillig said the three were "all OK" and being towed to Saigon.

The three Americans — Cornelia Ann "Cricket" Dellenbaugh, 28, of Vero Beach, Fla.; Charles Affel, 30, of Philadelphia; and Leland Dickerman, in his late 20s, of Flagstaff, Ariz. — reported by radio Wednesday that unidentified craft fired on and rammed their yacht.

Their last signal came Friday evening when a voice identified as that of Miss Dellenbaugh was heard by airline pilots saying, "We are all OK," and said they were being towed by Vietnamese navy ships to Saigon, now known as Ho Chi Minh City.

Vietnamese radio stations have not reported the seizure of the Brillig and there was no news from the State Department regarding Washington's inquiries about the three.

Western observers speculated Vietnam may use the three Americans for propaganda purposes to further their goal of getting American aid, currently forbidden by U.S. law.

But one American diplomat said he felt "assured" that no harm would come to the Brillig crew, other than an inconvenient delay while they consider negotiations.

"To put it bluntly," the diplomat said, "they want American good will and American money. Doing harm to the Brillig people would defeat their purpose."

Money Called Biggest Difference Between Trial Of Davis, Others

AMARILLO (UPI) — A prosecutor in the murder trial of millionaire T. Cullen Davis says the biggest difference between this trial and any other is Davis' bank account, and the attorney he could hire to defend him.

Marvin Collins, one of four Tarrant County prosecutors handling the case, said he felt the state already had sufficiently proven Davis murdered his 12-year-old step-daughter, but said attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes should not be underestimated.

"If money can get you off, he's the man who can do it," Collins said. "There isn't anything being done differently in this trial that couldn't be done in any other trial, except for the defendant's pocketbook.

"Other lawyers could develop a case like Haynes, not with the same skill, but they don't do it because they can't afford to do it. But Haynes is (prolonging testimony) and he's drawing a very attractive fee. The lengthy trial is his forte, his strong suit."

Testimony has continued for eight weeks, already longer than in any other Texas murder trial, and during that time Haynes has suggested various theories to shake the prosecution's contention that Davis killed Andrea Wilborn at his Fort Worth mansion last year.

"He's developing several scenarios and he's developing them simultaneously, and when it gets to final arguments he'll pick the one he thinks will work," Collins said.

Collins said, however, he felt the state's case was sound and the jury already was convinced of Davis' guilt by the time evidence was presented last week linking the same gun to Miss Wilborn's death and the death of Stan Farr the same night at the mansion and the wounding of Davis' estranged wife, Priscilla.

There apparentlx were no witnesses to Miss Wilborn's shooting, thus making the state's case circumstantial, but prosecutors have put witnesses on the stand who have identified Davis as the man who shot Farr and Mrs. Davis.

"With the sufficiency of the evidence we had developed, I don't think it was necessary to prove the bullets were fired from the same gun," Collins said.

"I think we already had proved conclusively that the same man shot all three persons.

"We had the garbage bag with the holes in it and the little pieces of plastic just like Priscilla and Gus and Beverly Bass testified."

Mrs. Davis, Gus Gavrel Jr., 22, and his girl friend, Beverly Bass, 19, all identified Davis as their assailant and all said he fired from a weapon concealed in a plastic garbage bag.

Noisy Dodger Cannons Explode, 10-4

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve Yeager and Reggie Smith walloped home runs to spark a 13-hit Los Angeles attack and the Dodgers, facing elimination, coasted to a 10-4 romp over the New York Yankees Sunday to stay alive in the 1977 World Series.

The victory left the Dodgers trailing in the Series three victories to two, with Game Six scheduled back in New York Tuesday night. A seventh game, if needed, would be played Wednesday night at Yankee Stadium.

The Dodgers, playing for their lives, came out swinging and put the game away with a burst of nine runs in the middle three innings. Yeager drove in four of them.

Yeager's homer, his second of the Series, delivered three runs in a four-run Dodgers fourth. He knocked in another with a sacrifice fly in the fifth as Los Angeles chased Yankees starter Don Gullett with three more runs.

Dodgers starter Don Sutton scattered nine hits, including consecutive eighth-inning home runs by Thurman Munson and Reggie Jackson, to take the victory.

By the time the Yankees scored against Sutton, the Dodgers had a 10-0 lead and were planning for the trans-continental flight back to New York.

This game was no contest from the very start. Los Angeles leadoff man Dave Lopes began the game with a booming triple off Gullett. The ball glanced off the top of the bullpen fence in the left field, missing a home run by perhaps six inches.

Bill Russell brought Lopes home immediately with a single to left and Los Angeles had a lead for the first time since Game Two, the only other Series contest the Dodgers had won.

It stayed 1-0 until the fourth, with Sutton coasting and Gullett struggling. The Dodgers right-handed set down 10 consecutive New York hitters while the Yankees' left-hander continually fell behind on the count.

It seemed only a matter of time before the home team would catch up with Gullett. And in the fourth, they did.

Ron Cey, leading off, sent left fielder Lou Piniella to the fence for his long fly ball. But Steve Garvey followed with a duble to the right-center field fence on a 3-2 pitch from Gullett.

Dusty Baker, who had three hits in the game, singled to left to score Garvey and when Piniella fumbled the ball for an error, Baker reached second.

It was the first error committed in the Series by the Yankees, and it was an ominous sign for New York.

A moment later, Graig Nettles — New York's usually sure-handed third baseman — booted Lee Lacy's grounder and the Dodgers had two men on base.

That brought up Yeager and with the count 2-1, the strapping Dodgers catcher sent a shot into the lower seats in left field for a three-run homer to make it 5-0.

The Dodger Stadium crowd of 56,955 roared its approval as Yeager trotted home. Twice Yeager had to come out of the dugout and tip his hat, acknowledging the cheers.

The 5-0 lead seemed comfortable, but the Dodgers weren't finished yet.

Smith led off the fifth with a walk, and after Cey lined out, Garvey singled to right. That finished Gullett, who threw 99 pitches in only 41-3 innings.

Ken Clay, who had worked three hitless innings of relief in the second game, replaced Gullett. But he had little more success than the NewYork starter.

Baker drilled a single to deep shortstop, scoring Smith, and Lacy followed with another hit, scoring Garvey. That made it 7-0, and when Yeager followed with a sacrifice fly, the Dodgers had another run.

In the sixth, Dick Tidrow took over on the mound for New York and with one out, Russell singled and trotted home on Smith's homer. It was the fourth career Series homer for the Dodgers outfielder, who tagged two for Boston in the 1967 Series.

Now the Dodgers lead was 10-0 and through six innings, Sutton had allowed just three hits.

In the seventh, singles by Jackson and Chambliss and a double by Graig Nettles helped New York to two runs. An inning later, the consecutive homers by Munson and Jackson added two runs.

But the Dodgers' cushion simply was too much to overcome and the Yankees admitted as much when Catfish Hunter, shelled in the second game, was brought in to mop up.

The two homers gave Los Angeles eight for the Series, the most for any team since Baltimore hit 10 in 1970. The last National League team to hit eight was the Milwaukee Braves in 1957.

The NL record of nine was set by the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1955, the year they won their first world championship.

Roger Scalps Redskins

DALLAS (AP) — Quarterback Roger Staubach threw two touchdown bombs and the Dallas defense sacked Washington's Billy Kilmer five times, igniting the unbeaten Cowboys to a 34-16 victory Sunday and a fat two-game lead in the National Football Conference Eastern Division.

Staubach winged a 50-yard scoring strike to Golden Richards and a 59-yard bullet to Drew Pearson to sting the scrappy Redskins, who lost two running backs in the first quarter to injuries.

Fullback Robert Newhouse scored on touchdown runs of seven and six yards as Dallas up its record to 5-0 while Washington dropped to 3-2 in the NFC East.

Running backs Bob Brunet and John Riggins were felled by injuries, and Kilmer played most of the game with a bruised left shoulder after he was slammed hard to the artifficial turf.

Staubach, whose arm was so sore he didn't throw in practice until Thursday, caught Washington in a maximum blitz for the clinching touchdown pass to Pearson early in the fourth quarter with Dallas owning a precarious 20-16 lead.

Stabauch lobbed the ball and Pearson, wearing a cast on his left wrist because of a severe sprain, outraced defensive back Gerard Williams for the score. It also was Williams who was the victim of the first Staubach touchdown pass.

Washington's Mark Moseley hit field goals of 25 and 40 yards for a 6-0 first period lead, but the scoring pass to Richards and Newhouse's seven-yard run gave Dallas a 14-6 lead late in the first quarter.

Washington's specialty teams made it 14-13 just before halftime when rookie Mark Murphy of Colgate blocked Danny White's punt out of bounds on the one. Rookie runningback Clarence Harmon of Mississippi State scored his first pro touchdown from there.

Mosley kicked a career long 53-yard field goal for a brief 16-14 lead in the third period before Efren Herrera matched it with 44-and 52-yard field goals.

Brunet suffered a neck injury but X-rays at Baylor Hospital showed no fractures but he was held for observation. Riggins was helped off the field with a knee injury.

The Cowboys did not go without injury in the bruising game. Cornerback Aaron Kyle sustained a wrist fracture and tight end Billy Joe DuPree missed the second half with bruised ribs.

The Redskins had their chances as strong safety Ken Houston three times caused Cowboy runners to fumble the ball away. Washington also blocked a Cowboy field goal.

However, after Staubach's long touchdown pass to Pearson, the Redskins had to punt and Dallas controlled the ball for nine minutes and 17 seconds before Newhouse scored his second touchdown late in the fourth quarter.

Late Browns' Kick Nips Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — Cleveland Coach Forrest Gregg says the late Vince Lombardi told him there would be days like Sunday's pulsating 24-23 victory over the Houston Oilers, "but he didn't tell me what to do."

Gregg, a former player under Lombardi, took matters into his own hands and sent Don Cockroft into the game with three seconds showing and the sure-footed specialist didn't fail him, booming through a 30-yard field goal for the winning points as time ran out in the game.

It was a rerun performance for Cockroft, who kicked a game-winning field goal three weeks ago on national television to give the Browns a victory over New England.

"Today was a little more exciting because the games in your division mean more," Cockroft said. "I got under it and I knew it was good when I hit it.

"When I'm called in on a late situation like that, I try to think there's really no pressure. I just try to remember the basics of kicking."

Cleveland's Greg Pruitt, who had not rushed during the game because of an ankle injury, keyed the winning drive with runs of 6, 3 and 2 yards. He also threw a 13-yard pass to Cleo Miller that gave the Browns a first down at Houston's 13 with 30 seconds to play.

The Browns allowed the clock to run down to three seconds and Cockroft split the uprights as time ran out.

The Oilers' Billy Johnson got the game started on an electrifying note with an 87-yard punt return and Art Stringer set up 25-yard field goal by Fritsch as Houston took a 10-0 lead after only 3:41 in the game.

Broncos Shock Oakland 30-7

By The Associated Press

Denver, with placekicker Jim Turner catching a touchdown pass and its defense intercepting seven passes, crushed Oakland 30-7 Sunday in the National Football League.

The victory at Oakland gave the Broncos a 5-0 lead and a one-game lead over the defending Super Bowl champion Raiders, who had a winning streak, which included regular season and playoff games, snapped at 17. This was one short of the record held by the Chicago Bears in 1933-34 and 1941-42 and the Miami Dolphins in 1972-73.

Oakland scored first but from then on it was all Denver. The 36-year-old Turner scored the first touchdown of his 14-year NFL career when he caught a 25-year pass from holder Norris Weese to give Denver a 21-7 lead in the second period.

Two other teams also remained unbeaten. The Dallas Cowboys ripped Washington 34-16 and the Baltimore Colts beat winless Kansas City 17-6.

Ron Lee and Don McCauley scored on short runs in the first period at Balimore and the Colts held on against Kansas City.

In other Sunday action, Minnesota edged Chicago 22-16 in overtime, Cleveland nipped Houston 24-23 on the game's final play, Buffalo stopped Atlanta 3-0, Los Angeles downed New Orleans 14-7, Miami outlasted the New York Jets 21-17, New England topped San Diego 24-20, Detroit held off Green Bay 10-6, St. Louis beat Philadelphia 21-17, the New York Giants upended San Francisco 30-17 and Seattle kept Tampa Bay looking for its first NFL vicory by winning 30-23.

Cincinnati plays at Pittsburgh tonight.

Fred Cox gave the Vikings a 16-16 tie with the Bears at Minnesota and sent the game in overtime, where the Vikings won when defensive back Paul Krause threw an 11-yard touchdown pass on a fake field goal on a first-down situation. Linebacker Matt Blair, who is 6-foot-5, played a key role for Minnesota by blocking an extra point attempt and a field-goal attempt.

Buffalo's O.J. Simpson ran for 138 yards, joining Jim Brown as the only two men ever to rush more than 10,000 yards in a career. Neil O'Donoghue kicked a 30-yard field as Buffalo snapped a 14-game losing streak. The loss dropped visiting Atlanta in a first-place tie with Los Angeles in the National Conference West at 3-2. Los Angeles won at home as Pat Haden started at quarterback in place of Joe Namath and threw a touchdown pass.

Bob Griese threw three touchdown passes as Miami built a 21-3 lead and then held on against the visiting Jets; Steve Grogan's second touchdown pass to tight end Don Hasselbeck gave visting New England an insurmountable 24-13 lead against San Diego; Greg Landry's 9-yard scoring pass with 3:01 left gave Detroit a home-field win.

Jim Hart, playing with a neck injury, threw a touchdown pass and guided the Cardinals to victory at Philadelphia; the Giants built a 20-3 lead, with Joe Pisarcik passing for a score, and held off visiting San Francisco; Steve Myer's four touchdown passes for hometeam Seattle was too much for winless Tampa Bay.

NEW JOB — Denver kicker Jim Turner (15) faked a field-goal attempt but holder Norris Weese kept the ball and passed to the kicker for a 25-yard touchdown Sunday. The Broncos remained unbeaten with a 30-7 upset of Super Bowl champion Oakland. (AP Laserphoto)

Irwin Wins Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Hale Irwin fired a closing round 3-under-par 67 to win his third tour event this year, the $150,000 Texas Open, as he surged past a faltering Miller Barber and Tom Kite.

Irwin, the third round co-leader with Kite, dodged the tragedies that befell Kite and the charging Barber on the slick, treacherous Oak Hills Country Club greens to pocket the $30,000 first place prize.

Irwin's four-round total of 266, 14-under par, is the lowest score in the seven years the Texas Open has been played at Oak Hills.

Barber, like Kite a native Texan, finished with bogey on the par three 18th, to finish with a 66-268 for second place. Last year Barber was the runner-up in this event, the oldest PGA tournament in Texas, losing to Butch Baird in a sudden death playoff.

Carlton "Slugger" White, who needed at least a fifth-place money finish in this event to keep his PGA playing card, survived a double-bogey 6 on the 17th hole to finish tied with George Archer for fourth place with 272.

White came into the tournament with $924.50 earned in tournaments this year and needed $7,000 in winnings to keep his card. His fourth place check for $6,600 dramatically extended his pro career.

White fired a pressure-packed 72 Sunday and Archer, the second-round leader, fashioned a one-under par 69 over the aptly named 6,525-yard, par-70 Oak Hills layout.

Former U.S. Open champion Lou Graham finised fifth with a 70-275.

Shock value. $8.95
Lots of people sell shock absorbers. And lots of them will tell you they have the lowest prices in town.
Maybe they do. But what if you'd like to have your shocks installed?
Chances are, they'll tack on an installation fee. And suddenly that bargain doesn't look much like a bargain anymore.
If you come to Midas, we'll sell you Bodyguard shocks for $8.95. They're durable. Dependable. They fit most domestic cars. Best of all, the price includes full installation and service. And we'll install them in usually half an hour or less.
At Midas, when we quote a price on shocks, we don't shock you later on.

Injuries Concern Sloan

By CARTER CROMWELL
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Steve Sloan looked concerned as he talked with writers late Saturday night. Earlier, his Texas Tech team had dispatched Rice by a 42-7 count, but Sloan was pondering his mounting injury list.

Finally, attempting to point out a bright spot, a writer noted that Tech's situation is immeasurably better now than it was three weeks ago.

Three weeks ago, the Raiders had suffered a significant 33-17 conference defeat at the hands of Texas A&M and had lost outstanding quarterback Rodney Allison to injury. The task then was to win their next three games that led up to this week's open date prior to the important battle with Texas Oct. 29. That has been accomplished.

"I tell you what. North Carolina was a good team," Sloan said. "That was a tough one (a 10-7 win). And then we had to go to Arizona, and that's like going to Russia."

The Raiders are now 5-1 for the season and 2-1 in SWC play. The open date is coming at a very opportune time for them because the injury toll has been high. The Tech staff hopes a number of players can recover in time to play against Texas.

Allison, of course, is a key figure. He is off crutches and has begun rehabilitation of his left leg, in which he suffered a cracked fibula against A&M. He is still expected to be able to perform versus the Longhorns.

Quarterbacks Mark Johnson and Tres Adami have been bothered by leg and ankle Saturday. Adami reinjured the ankle he first hurt in fall drills and was operating about "about half-speed" the rest of the night, Sloan said.

Linebacker Mike Mock will miss several days of practice because of a pulled groin muscle. Strongside guard Greg Mahoney has a severely pulled hamstring and will miss at least a week. The guard position is very thin now because of injuries to Mahoney and original starters Greg Davis and Greg Wessels.

Sophomore cornerback Willie Stephens suffered a back injury against Rice. Sloan said Sunday that a vertebrae is "possibly" broken, but the seriousness of the injury is undetermined now. Stephens will be x-rayed again.

"Hopefully, we can get some people well during this time and improve some as a team. Because of our injuries, we're really lucky to have it now," Sloan said. "I think it's good to have an open date around the middle of the season. It gives you a chance to regroup."

Against Rice, Tech played well defensively, shutting the Owls off, except for their scoring drive at the beginning of the second half. Rice gained just 38 yards on the ground. The Owls completed 21 of 34 passes, but gained only 139 yards through the air. Most of their passes were in the flat to their backs and were only short gainers.

"The defense did well, overall," Sloan said. "We've only allowed 58 yards rushing in our last two games.

"Of course, we'll be severely tested when we play Texas," he added with a laugh, referring to UT's po tent ground game spearheaded by Earl Campbell.

Offensively, the Raiders couldn't get moving early in the game, but had one touchdown drive midway through the second period and improved in the second half. Tech had 478 yards, 356 on the ground and 122 passing.

"Everything just happened," Sloan said. "We just couldn't score. We had penalties, and we missed a couple of field goals.

"A lot of it is because we're a much younger offensive team now than when we started." Johnson and Adami are inexperienced, and most of the line is, too. What was an all-senior line before the season is now composed of soph tackle Ken Walter, soph guard Larry Martin, junior guard Mahoney and seniors Dan Irons at tackle and Terry Anderson at center. Also, the line is smaller than it was at the start of the season.

The improvement of Johnson and Adami has been encouraging to the Tech staff, however. Johnson, who hobbled most of the week with a badly bruised thigh, came into the Rice game when Adami re-sprained his ankle on the second play. Johnson rushed 12 times for 120 yards and completed eight of 12 passes for 75 yards. He scored a touchdown and ran for a two-point conversion. His passing has been a surprise.

"I knew he had ability, but he's done more than I expected," Sloan said. "He's really helped us. He sparked that touchdown drive against North Carolina and then scored twice versus Arizona. He played well against Rice."

The Raiders will not work out today and Tuesday, but will return to the practice field Wednesday.

Bitter Rivals, UT & Ags, Tie For Conference Lead

By The Associated Press

Well, look who are Southwest Conference co-leaders after the sixth week of an already wild, wild football season — bitter rivals Texas and Texas A&M.

"We're kinda hoping that it will all come down to Texas and us on the next-to-last weekend," said Texas A&M quarterback David Walker after the Aggies survived Baylor 38-31 Saturday.

The second-ranked Longhorns rallied to nudge Arkansas 13-9 to give both Texas and Texas A&M 2-0 SWC ledgers.

Texas and A&M don't meet until Nov. 26 in College Station, and the Aggies still have a game to play after that on national television Dec. 3 against the University of Houston.

Meanwhile, Southern Methodist and Texas Tech stayed very much alive at 2-1 as the Mustangs scored three touchdowns in the last four minutes to blitz Houston 37-23 while Tech thumped Rice 42-7.

The Aggies scored only three points in the second half, but Coach Emory Bellard said "Our play selection was justified by the fact that we got seven more points than they did."

Walker added "I didn't think we let down in the second half. We were trying to score, score, score. But we just didn't do it. I think it was a typical Baylor team — it never gives up."

Texas ran a fake reverse screen pass to Earl Campbell to set up its winning touchdown over Arkansas. The play from Randy McEachern to Campbell covered 28 yards.

"We've run that play about 500 times in practice, but never in a game," said Campbell. "I knew I could catch the ball."

It may be hard for the rest of the SWC to catch A&M and Texas for at least a week. The Longhorns face the stiffest test against the young but fast-improving SMU Mustangs in Dallas Saturday afternoon.

SMU Coach Ron Meyer said the victory over Houston is perhaps the biggest in his short two-year term at the school.

"What a time for a victory for this team," said Meyer. "I felt we were very poised."

Houston, which was placed on NCAA probation two weeks ago, was ranked 19th going into the game.

"If we play like this next weekend we'll have a hard time getting out of the Ozarks," said Yeoman. "We have no excuses ... their coaches did an excellent job preparing them."

ON THE HANDOFF — Monterey quarterback Ron Reeves follows through on this handoff in an earlier game against Estacado. Reeves and the Plainsmen, 5-0-1, for the season, open district play Saturday in Plainview at 2 p.m. (Staff photo by Milton Adams)

Odom, Plainsmen Ready To Defend Loop Title

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Throughout the off-season, Monterey football coach James Odom mentioned the Plainview Bulldogs frequently... in various assorted grunts and groans.

Odom possessed an elephant's type of memory every time the subject of Plainview was mentioned. Often times, no one needed to say a word. Odom would start harping about one thing or another related to Plainview.

For one thing, Monterey rescued a terribly narrow 13-7 win from the Bulldogs last year in Lowrey Field. For another, the game ended in a rather unpolite gang fight as both benches cleared and exchanged punches for more than your average three minute boxfight round. For another, Plainview coach George Kirk received the district's coach of the year honors after his team finished 5-5 overall while Odom's Plainsmen wound up 13-1. Get the picture?

Last week. Odom discussed the differences between this year's early season performance and last year's at Monterey.

"We haven't played with the same enthusiasm as last year. We haven't been quite as aggressive," Odom said. "The incentive will be there this week, though."

And later in the conversation, the Monterey coach reiterated, "If we don't play more aggressively next Saturday, then I think there's something wrong."

But for now, the biggest difference from last year could be the number of injuries around Monterey. And of course, injuries led to inconsistency.

"We haven't gotten the consistency we would like because we haven't been able to keep the same 11 players out there. And along with injuries, we're a different type of of team this year. We were a lot quicker but a lot smaller up front last year," Odom added.

One thing remains very similar to last year, though — a fellow named Reeves at quarterback. Or is Ron Reeves the same?

Odom feels that Reeves has changed some, too. The 14-year coaching veteran rates Reeves a better passer but doubts that his quarterback has been quite as accurate on his pitchouts.

"He didn't have any bad pitches last year. I think he's just gotten out of the groove. I think it's like anything else you do... you get in a certain groove. Right now, he's not in it. It's all in the delivery of the wrists and the follow-through. He will get better as the season progresses," said the coach.

Odom emphasizes the pitchouts this week because his offense must not give Plainview the ball deep in MHS territory with a fumble. Defensively, the goal centers around containing Plainview's speedy runners and preventing the big play.

And how about Monterey's backs?

"They're doing a credible job. (Tailback Jeff) Harp has been injured but he's played well. He's a hard runner but a very quick starter. (Fullback Robby) McDaniel does a good job of blocking but balance has been his biggest problem. (Tailback Mike) Wooten is probably quicker than Harp on the straight-ahead runs," Odom said.

Much of the offensive load falls on Reeves' shoulders. The durable senior has rushed and passed for 983 of the 1569 total yards in Monterey's offense — nearly 63 per cent.

Angelo State Surprises ACU 21-14

By The Associated Press

Angelo State, a team supposedly rebuilding, rocked the Lone Star Conference again Saturday night a 21-14 upset over Abilene Christian University, the NAIA's second-ranked team.

Only last week ACU tied the NAIA's No. 1 team, Texas A&I of the LSC, which this week mauled Stephen F. Austin 36-8.

Angelo State, ranked No. 4, scored two touchdowns on a blocked punt and an interception return to stun ACU.

S.F.A. was trailing only 15-8 after three quarters before the Javelinas exploded. Fullback Hughie Shaw led A&I with 103 yards rushing and reserve quarterback Elvis Hartsfield completed 10 of 18 passes for 140 yards and a touchdown.

ETSU quarterback Terry Skinner became the Lions' all-time passing leader as he hit 18 of 33 for 280 yards and four touchdowns. HPU sophomore Craig Smith was just as effective as he threw for 302 yards, completing 23 of 35 passes.

LEARN RETAIL MANAGEMENT PART TIME

Get a head start in the retail management field with the top company in the industry and, at the same time, earn extra income. Join us, a division of Tandy Corporation (NYSE) and later step into your own store management upon graduation.

Our Store Managers' earnings include a share of the store's profits. Those Managers who completed our training program three years ago averaged $11,215 their first year as Managers, $18,355 the second year and $22,605 the third year. If you feel you are above average, then earning potential is even greater.

Call me to learn more.

PROTECT THE FINISH OF YOUR CAR — POLYGLYCOAT
The revolutionary new protective sealant that is not a wax or polish and can only be applied by your new car dealer
GUARANTEED
FOR THREE FULL YEARS — Your auto purchase today is a necessity. Buy with the future in mind.
POLYGYLCOAT PRESERVES! NO NEED TO EVER WAX YOUR CAR AGAIN!
Polyglycoat is a paint and chrome sealant finish — guaranteed to protect your car against fading, corrosion, oxydation, and loss of gloss for three years. Comprised of Dow 500, paraffin, silicone, with a kerosene base. Polyglycoat breaks through the tiny paint pores in the surface and penetrates 2-3 layers into the paint-sealing it and shielding it against the foreign elements that cause corrosion, rust, and loss of gloss.
Not only will Polyglycoat eliminate the need for waxing, but it will virtualy maintain your car's showroom finish, thereby enhancing resale potential.
It should be applied to all new cars and properly prepared used cars.
KEEPS YOUR PAINT AND CHROME LIKE NEW!

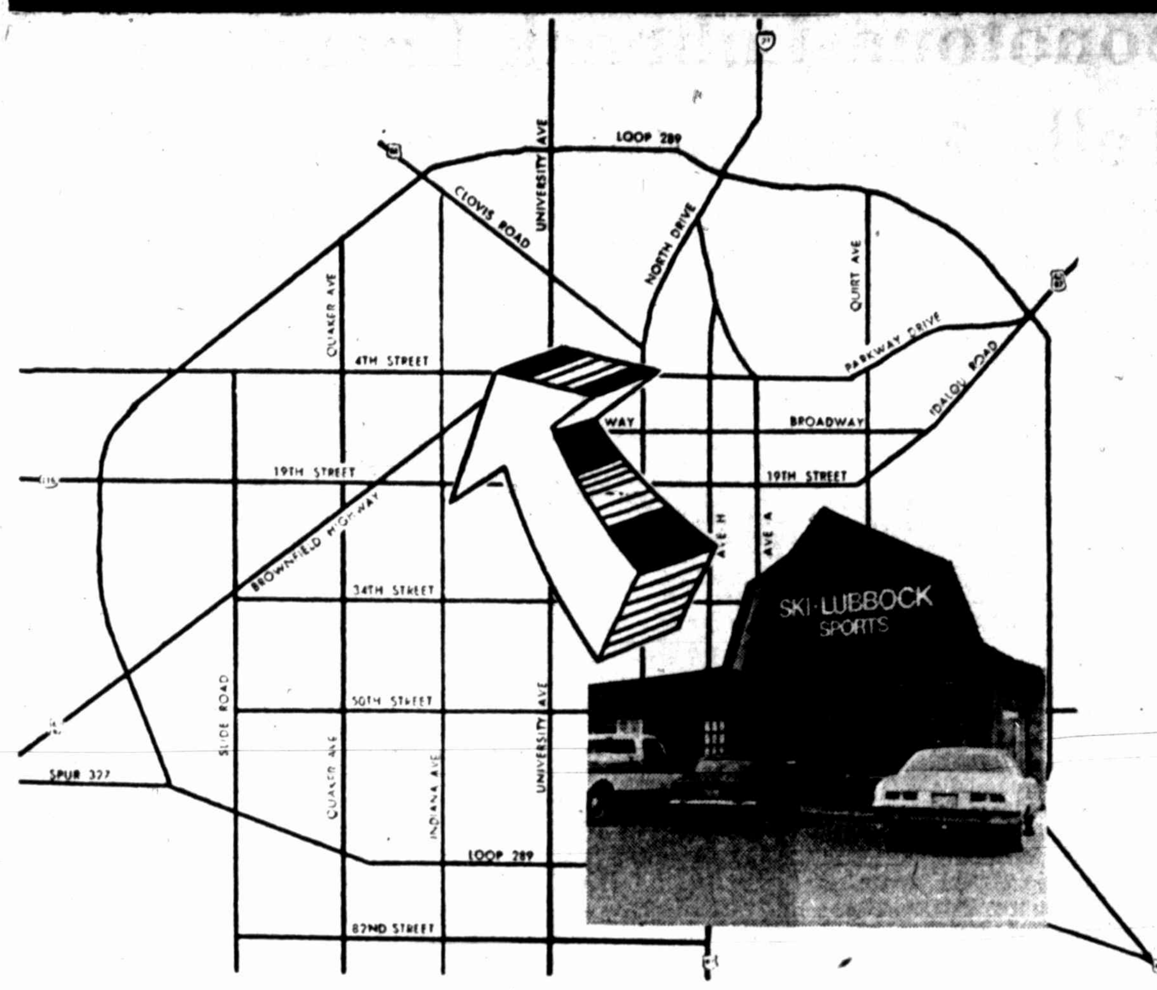
Business & Industrial Review



EASY TO REACH — "For a shopping experience to be enjoyed, ski on down to Ski-Lubbock Sports! It is especially easy to reach for southwest Lubbock residents who can take Indiana Avenue through the Tech campus to 4th Street, turning right for a few blocks . . . and there it is, on the north side, across from the National Guard Armory. Ski-Lubbock Sports, 2918 4th St., is where the snow skiers meet."

Ski Fun '77 Begins With Qualified Assistance From Ski-Lubbock Sports

Once again, with fall in the air, Ski-Lubbock Sports, 2918 4th St., is fully stocked with beautiful ski clothing.

The new colors for the season are like a rainbow in fall fabrics, and Ski-Lubbock Sports is happy to present Roffe parkas and accessories, Demetre sweaters and Bogner apparel as new additions to their clothing lines this year, enriching the existing lines of Anba, Innsbruck, White Stag, Beconta and Profile — all great names in the world of ski apparel.

Co-owners Hoyle Moss and son, Steve H. Moss, each voice their pleasure in adding Roffe, Demetre and Bogner, lines that meet the quality and function test required of products carried by their Lubbock firm.

Firm Is Honored

"We know these products and we are pleased to have been selected to carry them. We were advised by Bogner that our shop was the first new account to be opened in Texas in 15 years. Bogner is a high-fashion product and well respected in the ski world."

"During the market this year the suit look was the big thing," Moss reports. "We bought both the one-piece and two-piece suits in many colors for both men and women. Parkas and bib type pants were bought as separates, and these can be mixed and matched to make the suit look. We feel our customers will be well pleased with the lines we carry and the depth of our stock. Why not stop by, pick out your winter ski outfit, and use our convenient layaway plan? We are open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., six days a week."

Chalet Atmosphere

Not only does Ski-Lubbock Sports constantly strive to provide finest in equipment and apparel, but it also works at making one's shopping more interesting. New interior remodeling has made better utilization of space and affords customers with the true mountain ski chalet atmosphere.

Ski-Lubbock Sports staffmembers are true professionals backed with training and experience in all phases of the business.

Quality Lines

Olin, Dynastar and Sarner comprise the quality ski lines, with Sarner added this year at Ski-Lubbock Sports. (Sarner offers colorful skis with varying degrees of flex and performance and names including the Skill, Kick and Ray.

Olin is carried in depth in all models including the new Mark VI and the Mark IV. Dynastar is featured in Medalist, Freestyle, Laser, Pulsar and FPS models.

Tyrolia bindings, with 25mm of lateral elasticity in the toe, have been added to the existing Salomon and Look systems. All have high shock absorption and quick return to center force characteristics. Step-in or turntable types are available.

The Hanson is truly a revolutionary boot designed around the foot, providing comfort and warmth, with the latter obtained from the microcelluler Elastomer sock-type inner boot with custom fitting obtained from a packet of fast-forming micrseran beads.

The Hanson boot, unlike most boots, provides separate thermal and foot form fitting systems. (Hanson introduces the Citation boot in white and flame red, and one must see this Citation to appreciate its lightweight one-piece molded construction and its many other features.)

Dolomite boots offer a lower foot profile, and the shell is of durable polyurathene construction, IOS standard sold configuration, and it is offered in three or four-buckle models. The Turbo, GTS and Espada are stocked in a full range of sizes and widths.

Fitting Specialists

Comfort and flex patterns are criteria in the selection of boots stocked, and Ski-Lubbock Sports recognized years ago that some feet were more difficult to fit than others. They set out to educate themselves in the art of boot fitting, and for the past two years have trained under the foremost boot fitter in the nation.

"Our purpose is to fit the boot to the foot and not to assume the foot is going to fit perfectly in all boots. Pronation and flat feet are common causes of problems, so if you have a boot problem, in many instances you can find relief from a good boot fitter."

"There you have a preview of Ski-Lubbock Sports for the 1977-78 season . . . the new lines, along with the accessories, true professionals with facts and not fast talk, certified ski mechanics on duty, a fully equipped repair facility, and personnel with a desire to serve you. If you haven't visited Ski-Lubbock Sports lately, why not treat yourself to a mountain chalet motif and a shopping thrill . . . now!"

Tuftwick's Warehouse Jubilee Sale Underway During October

"Heed this and profit accordingly . . .

"It is Warehouse Jubilee Sale time at Tuftwick Carpet Co., Slide Road and Brownfield Highway in Lubbock!"

Overstocked, the firm has directed all operations toward turning carpet into $$$ throughout remainder of October, its management emphasizes.

This is explained to mean that 10,000 square yards of fine quality carpeting are being made available at savings of $3, $4 and even $5 per yard!

This statement becomes even more significant when it is recognized that involved are such lines as Philadelphia, Milliken, Columbia, Lees, Galaxy and other nationally known and respected lines.

"But did you also realize there are many other factors also contributing to its record of service? Such as installation by what we believe the best carpet installers in the entire area. And a very large selection of materials and patterns always in stock. And a staff that is qualified and anxious to help, yet never 'pushy'."

Thoroughly in keeping with Tuftwick Carpet's record of maximum service, another significant forward step has been announced:

Now, a special Contract Department has been established to better serve in this phase of the firm's business.

Acually, contracing services long have been a part of Tuftwick's operation, but the currently-announced step makes for a greater scope of efficiency and customer service, it is believed.

Curtis Head, long associated with Tuftwick, is in charge of the department, and his background in the field enables his following through — from consultation to selection to installation and completion. He is qualified and happy to give advice, as he is most familiar with carpet specifications, with decorating and planning, all understandable with his three decades of experience.

Those connected with commercial, office, shop, restaurant, office buildings, etc., of any size will especially appreciate the benefits afforded by this dintinct Tuftwick department. Of course, residence owners will continue to profit by its use, too.

There are very outstanding buys presently available at Tuftwick Carpet Co., Brownfield Highway at Slide Road in Lubbock.

There are full rolls at tremendous markdown prices, and there is a good selection of remnants "at our cost and below"!

The stock is exceptionally large . . . and the values unquestioned.

Store hours are 8 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, and from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturdays.

Easy terms are available, with no money down, and with up to 36 months to pay!

"If you have not been through the showrooms of the big Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., within the last few weeks, you are in for a real treat at your next visit."

First, there is a thrilling selection of patterns and materials.

Secondly, the prices and values simply cannot be beat.

Third reason for a trip to Tuftwick Carpet at Brownfield Highway and Slide Road could well be the most attractive display yet. Everything in the showroom has been conveniently displayed for easy viewing, comparison and selection. It is an attractive, inviting place.

The basic reason for shopping Tuftwick has not changed, however, and that is the integrity and experience of a capable staff devoting all efforts to serve the customers carpet needs as only possible with an experienced staff that "knows carpeting" and knows how to please in every transaction.

Sonotone-Lubbock Customer Tells Advantages Experienced

Life is richer when one hears as he or she should.

Ask Bob Glasscock, if in doubt.

Glasscock, 27, was fitted back in late 1973 with a Sonotone 36 Series hearing aid, and he is one of the most enthusiastic customers of Sonotone-Lubbock, 2318 Broadway.

"Not only has my aid been very satisfactory, but the service from Louise Bills, Ralph Huntington and staff has been real, real good," Bob emphasizes.

Now in his own business (TV and CB radio repair at 1517 E. Broadway), specializing in both sales and service, Glasscock reports his hearing aid has made for better business relationships, enabling him to converse and hear without undue problems.

"My hearing aid is comfortable, its efficiency actually has help in my business.

"My friends know when I have it on, and I can understand how some make a fuss it I don't wear it."

Such is the every realistic testimonial of Glasscock, one of the many throughout the area whose life has been made richer because of the understanding, the quality products, the professional knowledge, and the desire to serve evident at Sonotone-Lubbock, 2318 Broadway, phone 762-5469.

A highly qualified staff serves at Sonotone-Lubbock, headed by Louise Bills, certified hearing aid audiologist who has been heaped for decades with honors from customer and manufacturer alike. Also on hand is Ralph Huntington, long familiar on the team at Sonotone-Lubbock, and newest staffmember Flo Miller.

No-Obligation Tests

Louise, Ralph and Flo take personal interest in the people with whom they contact at both the business office and in the course of calls made within homes of the area.

"If you have not become acquainted with them, there is no reason to delay any longer!"

Individual hearing tests, at no obligation, personalized fitting, frequent checkups and the interested care of a Sonotone consultant is the service one can expect and appreciate without exception at Sonotone-Lubbock.

"If you have a hearing problem or suspect that you may have one, why not stop by or call at Sonotone-Lubbock now. That visit or call you make to Sonotone-Lubbock may be the most important one you will ever make."

Holt's Shoes, In All-New Sunshine Square Store, Reveals Added Lines

"Surely you have discovered . . . Holt's Shoes is in a new home!"

For happy feet . . . and fashion . . . Holt's Shoes has "come through" in every season, and now serves in its all-new home, 4519 50th St., in Sunshine Square.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Haire, owners and operators, served 10 years in a Holt's Monterey Center location; and they are understandably enthused about the new facility that is modern in every respect, designed for finest customer service.

The name is the same, the ownership is the same . . . but the address is new, furnishings are new, the store is larger, extremely convenient, and the stock has been appreciably expanded.

There are many styles for young women in the 18-30 age group.

New Line

Both Visa and Master Charge transactions are welcomed.

"Won't you pay us a visit . . . soon . . . and share in our pride of the type establishment now afforded . . . in Sunshine Square, 4519 50th Street. We think you'll like what you find, a Holt's with the same friendliness and consideration, but in all-new and functionally beautiful quarters, with an expanded stock from which to choose, ready for fall and holiday enjoyment".

NEW LOCATION, ADDED LINES, SAME FINE QUALITY — Mrs. Joe Haire of Holt's Shoes calls attention to the exciting Scholl line still a stand-by at Holt's, together with a new Revelations number, both indicative of the quality, fashion and comfort synonymous with offerings of the firm now in its new 4519 50th St. facility.

Banner Opportunities Afforded During Linda G's Anniversary

Anniversary Celebration time, underway at Linda G's, holds so very much in store for the fashion-conscious, the value-conscious, and for those planning exciting new-season and holiday wardrobes.

The celebration involves distinct price advantages, presentation of an expanded line of new fall and holiday arrivals and a special trunk showing.

Special Prices

And . . .

Wilhite Showing

On Friday and Saturday (Oct. 21-22), Clifton Wilhite, the renowned designer and manufacturer of Clifton Wilhite special-occassion dresses, will be at Linda G's in person, showing his complete line of short and long cocktail dresses! What an opportunity to see these and select party, mother-of-the bride and presentation dresses. What an opportunity to see first-hand the creations of Wilhite's design, in fabrics and colors desired for those special events ahead.

(There still is plenty of time to order special-occasion dresses for the impending needs.)

The Anniversary Event also presents great opportunity of seeing and selecting the all-new fall and holiday apparel that has arrived.

Could there be a better time and better way of making holiday and Christmas selections, even using layaway?

What fun it can be to select at Linda G's, whether from the dress lines, the complete lingerie presentation, accessories, costume jewelry and all . . . a store that traditionally remains "in great shape in every department".

See the really pretty jade in costume rings and other jewelry, also some opal.

Andromeda, Fidji

Also recently added to the lines at Linda G's are the prestigious Andromeda toiletries for "the man in you life". And then there is the Fidji line for ladies, always popular.

Linda Givens, owner, has been associated with the fashion apparel field in Lubbock for a number of years, and she brings this rich experience and knowledge to her own Linda G's where everything is carefully chosen with "you" in mind, and all competitively priced.

Shopping at one's leisure in the relaxed atmosphere of this elegant shop is an experience to be enjoyed, Anniversary Celebration time or any time!

Needs Of Every Season Considered At Maxey Home Improvement Center

For any building and hardware need, chances are that one-stop shopping at Maxey Home Improvement Center and the Maxey Lumber firm on the 100-block N. University Ave. will meet the need . . . in selection, quality, service and economy.

For Winterizing

This Geocel, available in cartridges, tubes, quarts and gallons, is a multiple-use product, great for sealing tree branches, concrete blocks, showers, basement concrete, camper and trailer tops, skylights, general caulking, etc. In winterizing home and recreational units, a supply of Geocel is heartily recommended. It is available in clear or white at Maxey Home Improvement Center.

Door Openers, Service

"Are you having trouble with CB units or other signals operating your garage door?"

"If so, a wise suggestion is to contact Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University Ave., phone 765-7736, and find out how conversion can be made at a nominal fee . . . ending this irksome problem. It is just that simple."

Also . . . if you do not have en electric garage door opener, isn't it time to think of securing one before winter's needs arise? Maxey Home Improvement Center stocks the Genie electric garage door opener in three models.

For example, Maxey stocks the X-14 Instant Mildew Remover. Available in spray bottles, it required no scrubbing, no rubbing, no buffing on bath and shower.

All lighting fixtures, including swag lamps and more, are marked 30 per cent off, with some closeout items at a discount of 50 per cent and greater!

Peerless storm doors also come in for special attention at this time of year, with Maxey Home Improvement Center stocking several models. (You owe it to yourself to shop and compare the quality and prices before you buy.)

Skylight Selection

"Did you realize that skylights are stocked, in both single and double dome, in white or bronze, for residential or commercial use?"

This great way of "letting the sunshine in" is becoming quite popular, and Maxey Home Improvement Center has stocked accordingly.

Also shutters and outside blinds.

"Maxey Home Improvement Center, 120 N. University Ave., wants you to have the very best at a price you can afford!"

Hence, the firm not only "holds the line" on prices throughout its stock, but it arranges specials whenever possible, such as those now in effect to greatly aid in most every home improvement endeavor.

And Skil and Black & Decker power tools.

The center is open every week day, from 8 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, and until 5 p.m. Saturdays.

Uniqueness, Added Inventory Bonus At 'The Little Shoppe'

"Haven't I read that The Little Shoppe in Cactus Alley stocks rare miniatures by the thousands?"

"Someone told me that The Little Shoppe is a great place for finding unique gifts for most any situation."

"Doesn't The Little Shoppe cater to Sorority needs?"

Actually any of these statements hold true, for The Little Shoppe in Cactus Alley not only is a most, most unique shop, but it is many things to many people, stocking as hinted in the above observations.

For the hobbyist, for the collector, for the amateur or more advanced 'miniature' aficionado, The Little Shoppe has assembled the most complete selection of houses, furnishings, material and all — in all West Texas!

One can purchase a complete colonial home, a street of shops, even a greenhouse, or select the material such as a door selection, miniature vinyl floor covering, hardwood flooring, cabinet hardware, even instant shingles and floors for a "do it yourself" project!

Collector Items

There are funishings by the hundreds for every miniature room, all in intricate detail, perfect in scale and workmanship.

Introduction to Lubbock of these fine miniatures, in abundant but selective stock by The Little Shoppe, has met with a response hardly believed possible. Hence, even more continually is added.

With her knowledge of the field, and her interest in providing this area with all that is desired in miniatures, Norma has provided a fantastic collection right here on the South Plains . . . for all ages.

PROVOCATIVE STOCK UNIQUE TO AREA — Norma Bartley of The Little Shoppe in Cactus Alley displays "instant shingles and floors" that are included in the "lumber supply" for miniature houses. Related accessories and kits are stocked in profusion as explained in the accompanying story.

See the original paintings in miniature, distinctive wood cutouts, initialed and dated pieces of miniature furniture, "minutiques" from England, and old favorites in miniatures from Chackman and Chrysnbon, N. Y. and Colonial Craftsmen of New Jersey. Plus fine items from Clare-Bell brass works of Connecticut, and Sonia Masser Imports of California.

One cannot enumerate all that is The Little Shoppe. Pages could be written listing and describing the miniature copper cookware, the furnishing for every room of a miniature mansion, etc., but one can only comprehend the completeness of the stock through a personal visit.

Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions Tells Sale, Added Stock For Anniversary

"This underscores the continuing situation in which there simply is no better choice for your apparel, for infants through student size 20, including preteen, than at Gray's."

For this Anniversary event, discounts of 10 per cent to 25 per cent are posted on selected items of fall merchandise throughout the big stock.

Not only is apparel stocked, but there are such goodies as hand puppets, stuffed cuddly animals and more great for gifting.

It is pointed out, for those who may not have recognized the type store afforded by the Grays, that the shop initially was founded as a store carrying top quality apparel for toddlers to size 14 for both boys and girls. Now the stock has been appreciably expanded, with a tremendous selection in pre-teen sizes presented along with the smaller apparel.

The pre-teen selection for girls involves the complete wardrobe (with exception of shoes) with choices in tops, pants, long dresses, etc., even sleepwear. Plus accessories.

There are few stores that carry such a selection in this age range, and Gray's must be commended for its continuing and successful efforts in stocking this added line.

Owners and founders Tom Gray and Kay Gray want to express their deep appreciation of the reception and growing trade accorded them. Without this trade and confidence, the present large stock would have been impossible.

Great Opportunity

For those who may not have yet become acquainted with this distinctive store, the current sale affords a banner opportunity. Come in, browse, note the pleasing decor and convenient stock arrangement, and the quality of the merchandise. Even with the large stock, nothing seems "crowded."

ALWAYS EXTENSIVE SELECTION — Kay Gray of Gray's Boys & Girls Fashions, 50th Street at Salem Avenue, joins with staffmember Frances Smith in displaying a gorgeous blue velveteen dress from stock, available in several sizes including Size 1 made exclusively for the firm.

FASHION-WISE AND SUCCESSFUL — Key factors in the eight-year success story of Maxine's Accent most certainly include the three-generation capabilities within the same family at this Briercroft Center shop. Pictured center is owner Maxine Willingham, with daughter, Sharon Willingham, and mother, Mary McCollum, all of whom have been "on the team" since the store's inception.

Maxine's Accent Celebrating Eight-Year Mark With Savings

It is Anniversary Observance at Maxine's Accent, in Briercroft Shopping Center!

And for this anniversary, Maxine's not only is offering several racks of sale merchandise, but also is arranging storewide reductions of 20 percent on all current merchandise including new fall and holiday coats, sweaters, short and long dresses, sportswear, lingerie and ultra suedes.

Eight years ago in October, Dr. and Mrs. Will Willingham opened Maxine's Accent as a smart specialty store accenting the junior and young missy look, with the assistance of their three teenagers, Sharon, Doug and Sheila, and Maxine's mother, Mrs. Mary McCollum.

Last February the store was expanded to twice its original size and a beautiful new "designers room" was added. Here merchandise from top designers is displayed and privacy is afforded the discriminating customer looking for the uniqueness and even lines exclusive to Maxine's Accent.

(It is pointed out that 20 per cent reductions are effective for the designer salon apparel for these few days of the Anniversary Observance, too.)

Signally Honored

Maxine has been honored in the 1974-75, 1975-76 and the 1977-78 editions of "Who's Who in American Women" as an outstanding retailer.

Referring to the shop's Anniversary observance, Maxine emphasizes:

"We've had a most enjoyable and rewarding eight years in ladies' junior apparel here in Lubbock and have met with tremendous response from not only Lubbock but from many of the surrounding cities.

"We are offering most exciting savings at this time in honor of this eighth year anniversary, and we hope our many friends and customers will be able to take advantage of them."

The storewide reductions (20 per cent off, remember) involve fall and early holiday lines, long dresses and short restaurant dresses, gauchos, beautiful mix and match sportswear for both juniors and misses, fall coats, sweaters, ultra suedes, party pajamas, lingerie and accessories.

Outstanding Labels

Maxine's Accent has one of the most extensive selections of new long dresses and party pajamas, and these are marked at 20 per cent off, during the celebration, remember.

The capable staff at Maxine's includes her daughter, Sharon, who is assistant manager; her mother, Mary McCollum; Lue Ree McGee, Beth Pendley, Paula Marberry and part-time staffmember Poppy Burnette.

Maxine is the fashion coordinator each year for Miss Lubbock, and she also assists other pageant entries locally in their wardrobe rightness. She also has served as a consultant in the Dallas fashion seminars during markets.

Maxine has attended many different markets during the past year, including the Chicago market. She feels that the new lines selected at these several markets have helped earn Maxine's Accent the enviable reputation as a leader in a fashion-oriented community, with customers looking to it for new directions.

Everything, from the capable staff, the famous labels, the attractive decor, the management's devotion to rightness and leadership in fashion, and currently the storewide reductions on current merchandise, contribute to the true Maxine's Accent image.

FOR WINTER READINESS

"One of these days you'll be glad you thought ahead in October — to the colder days sure to come."

Right now is the time to think Childress Hardware — for the best in Dearborn space heaters, gas logs, stoves, grates, logholders, fireplace sets, screens, radiant heaters, wood stoves, andirons, other fireplace accessories and heat-related needs.

Childress Hardware Store, at 902 Main St. in Lubbock, has a long, long record of stocking needed items — and the heating line is no exception.

A complete stock of accessories and major items is maintained, and one has only to see the wide selection grouped on the second level at Childress Hardware to recognize that here is the one-stop shopping center for winter heating needs.

Replacement Radiants

Then, too, Childress Hardware has a lot of other appropriate items for the season, things that one should be considering for Christmas plans!

Cast iron cook ware, Corning Ware, Stanley Tools, Revere Ware, Pyrex, power tools and other hardware items are sure to please someone on the Christmas list.

Fabrication, Manufacturing Prove Valuable Fabit Services

For custom fabrication, the name to know and remember and depend upon is Fabit.

For wide versatility in custom fabrication, from simple to the most complicated demands, manufacturing of complete machines or parts in small quantities or in large production runs, Fabit Corporation, North Quirt at Loop 289, is the answer.

The unique services of the Lubbock-owned and operated firm include engineering and development of prototypes or production models, metal shearing, bending, hole punching, rolling, welding, shape cutting grinding, painting, assembly and wiring, etc.

Serving Today's Needs

The firm has been especially busy in fabricating for new plants and for plant expansions, with such needs as hand rails, walkways, ladders, stairs, etc., with each designed for utility and many to meet OSHA requirements.

The firm is especially well known for its manufacture of refuse containers for industry, home, business and municipalities, together with irrigation needs.

Friend To Irrigation

The irrigation program throughout the Southwest has been well served, and still is being greatly aided by Fabit aluminum water control gates, accessories and pipe couplers sold wholesale only to dealer distributors. It maintains a very good stock of Boone irrigation products.

The capabilities of the firm are many, even including shearing 12 ft. material and bending the same size.

A 225-ton press brake is one of the equipment items enabling Fabit Corp. to exercise such capabilities.

Correct and adequate machinery in the shop are prime items in the variety of quality-work turned out by Fabit Corp., enabling custom shearing, bending, channel and angle work, etc., for contractors and warehousing needs.

Trash container design and manufacture has been a key segment of the firm's capabilities and service, with several thousand units built for cities throughout the state and for firms in Lubbock. Apartments, restaurants, commercial establishments — all find the Fabit-made trash containers to be the utmost in quality.

More and more individuals, businesses and municipalities are finding that it makes good sense to "buy your refuse container directly from Fabit, the manufacturer, getting the best quality at the best price."

Stocks Parts

Fabit Corp. stocks parts and provides service for all its products, also.

Adherance to close tolerances is standard procedure at Fabit. With experienced management and the best machinery available, Fabit Corp. has the capability of precision fabrication work. Accurate, precise work is the rule and the result is better quality products that look better and work better. This highest quality costs no more!

In order to do this best possible job and maintain a high volume of production, Fabit Corp. is equipped with the best shear and press brake available.

A five-ton bridge crane serves the entire 6,000 sq. ft. production area and helps speed the work and keep material handling costs down.

"Let Fabit prove its ability! Your work can be done with us for a quoted contract price or on an hourly basis.

NEW-MODEL COACHMEN, WINTER STORAGE, SPECIALS — ALL AT PHARR'S

'78 Coachmen Fifth Wheel RV Units, Antifreeze Specials Now At Pharr's

"Do you envy those enjoying the fun and freedom that comes with ownership of a recreational vehicle (RV) that meets the needs and preferences of the owner?

Then Pharr Trailer Sales should enter the picture!

Pharr Trailer Sales, 1702 Clovis Road, has a wide selection to offer at this time.

Whether the choice is from the Coachmen (No. 1 seller in the nation) mini-motor home, motor home, 5th wheel unit, travel trailers in all sizes, cab-over camper or even pop-ups; the Apollo motor home or the prestigious Silver Streak travel trailer, value and new convenience and luxury is assured.

Anti-Freeze Special

And whether one is interested in one of the exciting new '78 units, or if thinking of readying a present RV unit for the winter, Pharr has much to offer.

For example:

Storage

Pharr has enclosed storage available for RV units, too! And they will do a turnkey job in winterizing, if desired.

Unusual Warranty

In citing advantages of Coachmen, Pharr calls attention to its dealership network of over 500 dealers in the nation. Also it has the best warranty imaginable. For example, it is said to be the only manufacturer that offers warranty on all appliances and components, not just on the unit construction itself. Now, isn't this worth full consideration when selecting an RV?

"Staying out in front with Coachmen" seems a fact at Pharr Trailer Sales, phone 765-6088, located at the Clovis Highway-Avenue Q "Y", a firm that has built its business on servicing what it sells.

Fifth Wheels Shown

The raised upper bedroom of the fifth wheel offers unique RV luxury, and this year two QuinStars, the 27 ft. DR and the 35 ft. FSDR, even offer a dressing room! On and on the features could be listed, including self-polishing GAF linoleum or optional 100 per cent nylon carpeting. Olefin and polyester upholstery, bath and kitchen area walls that wipe clean easily, and delightful decors available in lime, saffron, poppy or sable! The QuinStar is designed to let one relax and "enjoy yourself".

Durable, beautiful interiors provide home comforts without the chores! Choose from green, butterscotch, poppy and camel decors. Standard equipment includes stainless steel sink, six-cubic-foot three-way refrigerator, four-burner range and oven with lighted power hood, etc.

Trailers

And the Coachman '78 trailers are even more exciting than ever, designed for value-minded families who need top economy as well as dependable comfort and quality.

Services All Lines

Pharr also is a service center, together with sales; it is a "first stop must" in readying one's present RV unit for a trouble-free winter ahead.

Harold Pharr calls special attention to the selection of parts and accessories stocked within the attractive showrooms. When planning a trip, or even when just completing one, a person could do well to check for needed accessories "while it is fresh on his or her mind", with Pharr most likely having the very item desired.

And the brand names need no introduction — such as Coleman air conditioning units, EZ Lift hitches, etc. A lot of little things are stocked, too, that can make a mighty big difference in comforts while on an outdoor vacation.

Pharr knows recreational units, and this modern Lubbock firm can help immeasureably in correct selection that will give pleasure for years to come. Ask the man who owns a Pharr unit.

Specialty Decorating, Special Orders, Stock Pastries Excel At Mrs. Camp's

"Come by and learn for yourself why Mrs. Camp's has been truly outstanding throughout its long history."

At Mrs. Camp's, the solution to every pastry need is evident . . . for pastry goodness any day and for the most elaborate of special occasions.

Although a large stock always is in the cases at Mrs. Camp's, special orders and special decorating requests for "your special situation" are heartily welcomed and encouraged at the modern 4005 34th St. bakery.

Aside from the delightful products, attention also is called to the attractive, convenient and modern quarters of Mrs. Camp's, all designed for maximum customer service, at 4005 34th St.

"Come by, inspect the premises, note the conveniences, and become one of the growing family of Mrs. Camp's customers who recognize the tastiest in pastries and know where to get them!

The custom party cakes, wedding cakes, anniversary cakes and many other products are not only the most delicious to be found, but they are veritable works of art. The skilled decorators create designs or use the customers' design in cakes for special occasions, baking and preparing on as little as one-day notice.

French pastries also have made a lot of friends for Mrs. Camp's.

Cakes and other bakery goodies are stocked in the cases at all times, and many decorative creations are in stock, sometimes eliminating need of special orders for a particular occasion.

Mrs. Camp's operates on both retail and wholesale basis, selling wholesale to institutions only.

Whether the occasion is an anniversary, shower, business or club gathering, and certainly for weddings, expert catering by Mrs. Camp's should enter the picture!

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. I am a young, single man who just bought $5,000 tax-exempts and intends to buy more. They offer 6 5/8 per cent and mature in 1990. Is this wise choice, as compared with U.S. Treasury notes? Is there any risk in these bonds?

A. You don't give me any names. But, in general, tax-exempts have had a good record of meeting their obligation.

The only comment I can make is that what you have succeeded in doing is arranging to receive a little better than $330 a year tax-free until 1990 and then to get your $5,000 back.

There's nothing wrong with tax-free money — especially for a single person. But any fixed income for the next 13 years, with the prospect of getting five thousand 1990 dollars back at the end of the contract hardly "sends me" as a young man's program to financial success. The $5,000 may buy you a hi-fi set then — or it may not be enough.

Your letter keeps stressing safety and insurance, which is reasonable enough. Except that we don't live in a reasonable or "insured" world. We old folks may not have to take too many chances, but one of the prices you must pay for being young (and what old man wouldn't pay it?) is to take chances with your money. And that is what you're going to have to do via any equity (not debt) investment in any piece of property you hope will go up in dollar price, and not still remain at $5,000 in 1990.

Q. Do you have a list of books on securities for our investment club? Our membership ranges from neophytes to sophisticates.

A. I've never compiled one myself, but I have recommended to a lot of interested readers one prepared by Sylvia Mechanic, head librarian of the Business Library of the Brooklyn Public Library. This investment bibliography lists dozens of books, from the ABCs of stocks and bonds to such esoteric titles as The Encyclopedia of Stock Market Techniques. It also includes a section devoted to the names and addresses of the leading exchanges, regulators in the securities field and organizations such as the National Association of Investment Clubs, the National Association of Security Dealers, the Investment Company Institute (mutual funds), the SEC and the Securities Investor Protection Corp.

A free copy of the bibliography will be sent you ONLY if your request includes a self-addressed stamped envelope. Address your request to the Investors Service Bureau, N.Y. Stock Exchange, 11 Wall Street, New York City 10005.

The Bureau, by the way, not only sends out the bibliography but also answers many other inquiries that it gets regarding various matters and problems that can't be worked out easily between client and broker. It also distributes lists of brokers serving your particular area.

Remember the address: Investors Service Bureau, NY Stock Exchange, 11 Wall Street, New York City 10005 and also remember to include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Heartline

(HEARTLINE is a service for senior citizens of all ages. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. Senior citizens will receive prompt replies but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.)

HEARTLINE: I have been reading quite a bit lately on different types of drugs and I keep seeing the term "OTC drugs." I don't know exactly what this means and wondered if you could tell me. — J.C.

A. There are two basis types of medicines: Over-the-counter (OTC) drugs and prescription (RX0 drugs.

Over-the-counter medicines (also known as home remedies and patent medicines) include such common remedies as aspirin, laxatives, and antacids. If used according to the directions on the label, they are relatively safe. You can buy OTC medicines without a prescription in drug stores, supermarkets and many other stores.

Prescription drugs can be ordered or prescribed only by a doctor and can be sold only by a registered pharmacist. Generally more powerful than OTC medicines, prescription drugs are also more likely to cause side effects.

HEARTLINE: I am 66 years old. I'm thinking about retiring so my wife and I can do some traveling and enjoy the years ahead of us.

However, I'm unfamiliar with the Medicare program. I've been told that I'll be penalized for not taking it when I was 65. Is this true? If it is, why didn't someone let me know? Do I even have to take Medicare? — G.G.

A. No, you do not have to take Medicare if you don't want it. For most of the people reaching age 65, however, hospital insurance is available without any premium payment. There is no penalty for not signing up for hospital insurance other than that you will lose free coverage. Since Medicare's medical insurance requires a monthly premium, the penalty for not signing up when you are first eligible is that the premium goes up 10 per cent for each year you could have signed up for it but did not.

People who have filed for Social Security benefits before age 65 are notified automatically. Those without any prior Social Security contact are reached, it is hoped, through general publicity since the Social Security Administration has no record of their addresses.

For people on Medicare, Heartline has developed "Heartline's Guide to Medicare." This book has been completely updated and is written in easy-to-understand, question-and-answer form. It includes a complete explanation of Medicare's Parts "A" and "B," an explanation of "reasonable charges" and a sample Medicare claim form with instructions on how to fill it out.

To order your copy, send $1.50 to "Heartline's Guide to Medicare," 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

HEARTLINE: I am 66 years old and live alone. My Social Security benefits is $138 per month and I do not have any savings account. The only resource I have is a life insurance policy. Would this stop me from being eligible for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits? — T.K.

A. It is possible that having life insurance could affect your getting SSI benefits. Life insurance is counted as a resource if the face value is over $1,500 and even if it is, only the money you could get by cashing it is counted as a resource.
