Banquet at Judge Dickey's Followed By Citizen Mass Meeting

WILL NOT "TIE UP"

HENRIETTA, Jan. 16.—Leading citizens from every portion of Clay county gathered here tonight to attend a banquet tendered to Lynch Davidson, former lieutenant governor of Texas and now candidate for governor, by Judge J. S. Dickey which was followed by an address by Davidson in the courthouse at which a large crowd was present.

Though the banquet was planned by Judge Dickey and sponsored by him he was unable to be present having been detained at Dallas because of a law suit there in which he was engaged. The program went forward as planned and Attorney W. S. Glasgow took charge as master of ceremonies. Invocation was by Rev. W. C. Howell, Methodist pastor.

At the banquet held at the White Rose Cafe where Lynch Davidson supporters from Byers, Petrolia, Bellevue, Charlie and every part of Clay county besides many from here. Following a magnificent dinner, Toastmaster Glasgow introduced Rev. J. N. Hunt, pastor of the First Baptist church here, who made an address on "The Relation of Ministry to Public Affairs."

Rev. Mr. Hunt said he did not advocate the active entry of ministers into political affairs in that they should throw open the pulpit to political discussions. He said the ministry should however advocate the moral side of government and use every influence as individuals to secure the election of the right kind of office holder.

The minister in his closing remarks made a Biblical play upon words which rung in the candidacy of Lynch Davidson, the guest of honor and T. W. Davidson, present lieutenant governor and both candidates for governor. "In the olden days the people of Israel were about to select a new king. Now David was the retiring king. The populace cried 'Who is the king? Who is the king?' The reply was 'David's son, David's son.' 'Which one?' the populace demanded. 'He is the solemn one,' (Solomon), came the reply

"I see the same situation arising in the lone star state now. In a few more months the people will cry, 'Who is the governor?' The answer will come back 'His name is David—from thousands of throats 'He is Lynch Davidson from Houston,' 'the speaker concluded.

Introduces Davidson

Attorney Glasgow then introduced Mr. Davidson who said he had little to say which he would not say at the courthouse a few minutes later. "I do want to say though that in the selection of our state legislators we make a mistake in not electing men who are capable. A man to be a legislator should have as many qualifications as a man who is governor. There are now 132,000 laws on the statute books in the United States and few of them are of any value.

"I would like to play the role of a Justinian and have these reduced. That venerable law giver had the 20 volumes of laws on the books during his reign reduced to two volumes and an index. I have gone so far as to say if I am elected governor I will not sign any bill given me for signature unless the legislature will agree to repeal two," Davidson said laughingly.

After the banquet the crowd repaired to the district court room where a crowd had already gathered. A band concert by Prof. Claire Hillburn was greatly enjoyed and preceded the address of the evening. Those who were invited guests to the banquet tendered Lynch Davidson by Judge Dickey were the following:

Huge Loan Fraud Is Discovered In The Middle West

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Morton S. Hawkins of Portland, Ind., and a number of others in different parts of the country were indicted by the federal grand jury today in connection with the operations of the Hawkins Mortgage company and 104 welfare loan societies at various places in the United States. The indictments charge a conspiracy to use the mails to defraud and the use of the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud.

Between four and six million dollars have been paid into the Hawkins controlled enterprises by people from all over the country, according to estimates made by federal officials. The Hawkins Mortgage company absorbed the Co-operative League of America and the United Home Builders of America, each of which had written more than $20,000,000 worth of business, according to federal estimates, and a number of smaller enterprises.

a meeting in the near future to appoint department heads for the 1924 Texas-Oklahoma Fair. Plans for the 1924 exposition were briefly discussed at the directors meeting. Seventeen of the twenty-one directors were present at the meeting.

G. Clint Wood, as vice-president, for the association during 1923 showed remarkable adeptness and was largely interested in the material success of the exposition. Mr. Woods sterling qualifications will aid materially to the success of the fair this year.

W. E. Norton's work as treasurer was highly commendable during the 1923 exposition and it was predicted he would be selected for the treasurer again this year.

R. E. Shepherd, because of his ability and dynamic personality will be of much value to the fair association in the office of secretary.

The selection of Judge W. M. Moore for vice-president adds prestige to the association and the exposition starts on the fair of 1924 with a splendid personnel.

Stockholders of the association were pleased with the work accomplished by the officers and directors of the exposition of 1923 and were loud in their praise of the fair held during the first week of October.

BRITISH WOMAN IS WAR VICTIM

By The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—The first foreign casualty in the present Mexican insurrection is reported by the British legation in the accidental death of Mrs. Norman Cave-Brown-Cave, who was killed by a stray bullet during the fighting last week at Pachuca.

Warned of the rebel attack, Mrs. Cave-Brown-Cave took refuge at the home of friends, a thick walled house facing the main plaza in Pachuca where the heaviest fighting eventually occurred. Venturing to close a window during the rollerying, she was struck in the head by the bullet. She was the wife of a British mining engineer.

BAND OF HUERTA MEN FLEE INTO UNITED STATES

Five Officers and Two Privates Escape Capture By Federals

Were Cut Off From Main Force of 200 By Small Detachment

By The Associated Press

DEL RIO, Texas, Jan. 16.—A band of Huertistas composed of five officers and two privates, crossed the Rio Grande into the United States yesterday to escape capture by Mexican federals, they told Luke Dowe, deputy collector of customs here today.

The band crossed the border yesterday afternoon at Langtry in the western part of this (Val Verde) county, leaving their horses and arms on the Mexican side of the river. When interviewed by Deputy Collector Dowe and department of justice agents, the Mexicans said they had been cut off from their main force of 200 men under General Veiciate Davila in the neighborhood of Allende by a federal force of about 50 men. They were hotly pursued, they said, and were compelled to cross the Rio Grande in order to avoid capture.

Two of the men are being detained by American immigration officials for further inquiry, but it was believed that no action would be taken against them. The party included Colonel Cornelio Sanchez, Lieutenant Colonel Romualdo Cantu, Major Manuel Fernandez, Major Pablo Vilchis, and Jose R. Dominguez, Federico Ramirez and Cornelio Fuentes, privates.

Defeat Rebels.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Mexican federal forces have defeated the rebels in a hard battle at Tepeaca, which has resulted in reducing a "strong element of the rebel army to impotence," the Mexican embassy said in a statement issued tonight, based on official advices from Mexico City.

"Rebels under Generals Maycotte and Villareal have been decisively defeated after a hard battle at Tepeaca," the statement said. "After being driven from Tehuacan by federal troops under General Eugenio Martinez, the enemy took up a position at Tepeaca, on the railroad between Tehuacan and Puebla.

"General Urbalejo attacked them here and completely broke up the command, which was made up of several of the strongest units at the disposal of the Vera Cruz rebels. The action has reduced a strong element of the rebel army to impotence.

"On the Jalisco front the federals continue the advance on the rebels who still are falling back and refusing to give battle. There are numerous skirmishes but a formal battle has not yet taken place. The retreat cannot continue much further, however, before the rebels will be forced to disperse or take a position and fight.

"In the oil regions around Tuxpam federal troops are continuing the campaign to restore normal conditions in the oil fields formerly held by the rebels. The region of federal control is being gradually and materially extended.

"The zone of the rebellion still is confined to the Vera Cruz and Jalisco districts and the remainder of the republic continues normal under federal control."

Radical Measures.

By The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—Radical measures have been taken by General Gomez, military commander of Mexico City, for the maintenance of order in the capital. Immediate execution will be the penalty to any one who is found attempting to cut the electric cable which transmits power from Necaxa to Mexico City. A special patrol service has been established to protect the cables which are considered of vital importance for the capital and other towns in the federal district for the uninterrupted supply of electricity.

Storm Tears Airship From Mooring Mast

Shenandoah Hovers Over Hangar After All-Night Drifting In Gale; Crew of 21 Is Aboard.

By The Associated Press

LAKE HURST, N. J., Jan. 17.—The Shenandoah reached the vicinity of her hangar at 2:20 a. m. and hovered over the field while the ground crew assembled in preparation to bring her down. She was at an altitude of 1,500 feet.

The ground crew was assembled and the hangar doors were opened. It was thought the ship would be taken into her hangar as soon as she reached the ground, although it was said that if the wind was too strong she would take the air and remain aloft until this afternoon when the storm is expected to be entirely over.

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 16—The Shenandoah was reported proceeding north over the Hillside section of Newark at 9:10 p. m. Her motors could be heard plainly, but the ship itself was invisible.

Drifting in the wind, about 2,000 feet above the heart of the city, the Shenandoah for a few minutes became clearly visible with her nose pointed northward. The ship was plainly in the grip of the wind, making but slight headway. Her lights were on in both gondolas. She hovered in view for a few moments and then was lost again in the clouds.

When last seen at 9:30 p. m., the Shenandoah was headed southwest into the wind but apparently being blown northeast to New York. Her nose was pointed down.

"All O. K."

By The Associated Press

MITCHELL FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 16—Radio communication with the Shenandoah, navy dirigible which broke from her mast at Lake Hurst N. J., was established at the army station tonight. The message read: "All O. K. Will ride out storm. We think we are over New Brunswick. Holding our own. Verify position and send us weather information."

The message was the first indication that the ship's wireless outfit was working.

It was signed by Commander Pearce and picked up by Corporal Hageman. It was addressed to Lake Hurst.

Further assurance that the crew of the Shenandoah was safe was received in a second wireless message picked up here.

"All O. K., thanks, old man," said the message which was believed to be in response to one either from the Lake Hurst air station or from one of the various radio broadcasting stations that had been furnishing information on the weather and the ship's bearings.

Fights Wind.

By The Associated Press

WESTFIELD, N. J., Jan. 16.—The navy dirigible Shenandoah, which broke from her moorings at Lake Hurst, N. J., passed over here tonight. She was flying low at a considerable speed with her engines sounding a terrific roar. Apparently those on board were trying to turn the craft against the wind but with little success.

The dirigible apparently was fighting a headwind. For more than five minutes she remained almost stationary above the center of the city, then moved slowly again to the north. It was evident that the pilot, in a measure, was succeeding in his fight for control of the ship.

TEXAS LEGION PLANS CAMPAIGN

Adjusted Compensation Is Object of Dallas Meet Sunday

By The Associated Press

WACO, Jan. 16.—Texas leaders of the American Legion will meet in Dallas Sunday to consider a state wide campaign in favor of the adjusted compensation act, it was announced by Lawrence Westbrook, local post commander, after a telephone conversation with Dr. W. M. Sherwood, of Temple, state commander.

and soon was out of sight. A crew of 30 men was on board.

Apparently the craft had been damaged, for fragments of her outer rigging fluttered to the ground as she sailed away. The wind was blowing at about 55 miles an hour.

The naval communications office in New York was notified and officials there immediately tried to get in touch with the Shenandoah by wireless but at last reports had been unsuccessful.

Storm Started Early.

The storm started early this afternoon and the Shenandoah strained at her mooring mast, but Captain McCrary expressed confidence that she would hold. He and Commander Weyerbacher were not aboard. Captain Heinen is on board with the crew.

While officials at the air station would not hazard a guess on the plight of the men on board, it was believed the ship might be carried into Canada by the wind.

Officers pointed out that Captain Heinen, who came here from Germany to help supervise the building of the aircraft, was one of the most efficient operators of lighter-than-air ships in the world. They based their

Ex-President Wilson Expresses Pleasure Over Committee Work

INFORMAL RECEPTION

Mr. and Mr. Wilson Shake Hands With Long Line Of Visitors

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Whatever may be the difference among democrats as to the party standard bearers next summer and fall, there were no evident sore spots left over the award to New York City of the 1924 convention when the democratic national committee adjourned today. Members tonight were speeding home to gird the democratic hosts for the coming clash with their foes, and declaring for a vigorous and intensive campaign.

Upon the adjournment of the national committee, when members visited former President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson at their S. Street home, Mr. Wilson added his probation to the choice of New York.

"I am very glad the convention was given to New York," Mr. Wilson told Chairman Hull of the national committee, adding an expression of pleasure over the results of the committee's work here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson tended an informal reception to the committeemen and women, shaking hands with the visitors as they passed in a long line through the Wilson library. Ealier the committee had adopted formal resolutions greeting Mr. Wilson and commending his administration and its "high ideals."

No movement developed today in the committee to change the two-third voting rule for the convention's choice of nominees. Neither was any change made in the convention roll of 1,094 delegates and alternates, but the committee formally "recommended" that one-half of all the delegates at large should be women. The latter was adopted after sharp division over whether there should be a recommendation or only a suggestion. Senator Glass of Virginia, author of the original resolution designed to provide additional places for women in the convention, favored a suggestion, but an amendment by Mrs. LeRoy Springs of South Carolina, providing for a specific recommendation, was adopted.

Under the new plan as approved, four of eight delegates at large from each state would be women, but all of such delegates would have only half a vote each. This will result in maintenance of the present convention voting strength of 1,094, but with some increase in the number of delegates and alternates at large where states act to adopt the half and half policy. Another resolution adopted by the committee would prohibit states from sending to the convention more delegates and alternates than provided by their present quota. This would prevent crowding the convention floor with swollen delegations, with their members having a half, fourth, or even a eighth of a vote.

Chairman Hull was given wide powers to plan for the New York convention. He will appoint an arrangements committee soon and hopes also to visit New York himself at an early date. Mr. Hull conferred today with "Tex" Richard, lessee of Madison Square Garden, who is credited with responsibility for the increase of $55,000 offered by New York for the convention hall privilege. Mr. Richard will co-operate with the committee in placing the auditorium in condition for the convention.

Fuqua Leading Primary Contest

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 16—Henry L. Fuqua, former superintendent of state prison, continued early tonight to maintain his lead in yesterday's democratic primary over his two opponents, Hewitt Bouanchaud, Lieutenant governor, and Huey P. Long, chairman of the state public service commission.

The complete unofficial vote in New Orleans and that from approximately half of the state, tabulated early tonight by the Times-Picayune, gives: Fuqua 56,038; Bouanchaud 47,226; Long 35,744.

Tabulation of the vote cast for candidates for the other state offices was proceeding slowly. Torrential rains throughout the state delayed returns from the country districts.

For lieutenant governor, Ferd C. Claiborne, had a lead of approximately 5,000. The vote: Claiborne 29,635; Paul N. Cyr, 24,448; O. H. Simpson 22,454.

James J. Bailey, secretary of state, apparently has been renominated. Returns early tonight gave him 56,683 against 21,646 for A. G. Cook, and 7,625 for J. C. Trainor.

Percy Saint, for attorney general, was leading A. V. Coco, incumbent, by about 3,000 votes. The vote was Saint 34,231; Coco 31,803; Numa F. Montet 12,377; George W. Smith, 6,216.

BAD $10 BILLS CIRCULATE HERE

Counterfeit money is in circulation in Wichita Falls, according to statements made Wednesday afternoon, after a counterfeit $10 federal reserve bank note had been cashed in at Arthur's White Kitchen, of which Arthur Salmon is proprietor. Mr. Salmon stated that one other similar note had been passed on a local merchant

The counterfeit bill was so well gotten up that it can be distinguished from another bill only by the type of the serial number and by the marks, according to Mr Salmon. Instead of hairs in the paper the lines have been made by pen and ink and the serial number is printed in bold green type, instead of black type. Ex-President Andrew Jackson's picture appears on the counterfeit note received at the restaurant.

Merchants and banks have been warned to be on the lookout for the circulator of the counterfeit money.

BRITAIN HEADS NEW LINE UP OF 1924 OFFICERS; NO BUDGET ADOPTED AT MEET

Harrison States Income of $40,000 Is Expected From Dues

CLINE APPRECIATED

Retiring President Recipient Of Resolution of Appreciation

Meeting in their first session, the new board of directors of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce last night elected officers for 1924 and took up the work for the coming year.

The following officers were elected to head the chamber of commerce for the year 1924: A. H. Britain, president; T. P. Duncan, first vice president; W. B. Hamilton, second vice president; Carter McGregor, treasurer; Hubert M. Harrison, general manager, re-elected.

No budget for this year was adopted by the board at this time, although some discussion was given an approximate amount submitted by Manager Harrison. It was stated by Harrison that an income of about $40,000 is expected to be received from membership dues, and that the number of new dues coming in indicates that members are placed with the method of continuing membership. The new board ratified the action of the old board in dispensing with the annual membership drive. A quiet but active campaign for new members will continue, it was announced. This campaign will have for its purpose the policy of soliciting persons not affiliated with the chamber to join and get into the work.

Appointments of department heads by the president will be forthcoming within the next few days, with the establishment of the new officers in their work.

In accepting the presidency, Judge Britain expressed it his ambition and chief concern to try to improve living conditions in Wichita Falls so that all citizens, both those of modest and of large income, might find the "City That Faith Built" a better place to live in. The newly elected president stated that he considered it an honor to be placed at the head of such an organization, but had found honors only worthily worn by one rendering service and thus proving the judgment of those donors.

Walter D. Cline, retiring president, thanked the directors for their expressions of tribute to him, and stated that after an enjoyable term of association with the chamber of commerce as president felt that he was relinquishing the robes of office to a very worthy man.

In placing the nomination upon Hubert M. Harrison for re-election as general manager, Cline stated that he had found him not only a hard working and highly competent executive, but also a wonderful companion and a lovable friend. This expression of praise and congratulation was unanimously adopted by the board, with other commendations of Harrison, not only as an officer of the chamber of commerce, but also as a citizen.

Harrison was asked to remain in the meeting at its opening, and the board of directors let it be known that he was the only choice for manager, no other being considered.

The following resolution was adopted by unanimous vote of the board of directors, in appreciation and acknowledgement of Walter D. Cline for his services to the community as a president of the chamber of commerce, as a citizen, and as a man:

January 16, 1924.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, that courtly gentleman, Walter D. Cline, has given of his time and talents to the services of this community of Wichita Falls and of this surrounding section for many years and

WHEREAS, he has tied the hearts of his fellow citizens to him with bands of gold through his unselfish, considerate, thorough and thoughtful co-operation with them, both in their public and private problems wherever and whenever appealed to and

WHEREAS, we, the members of the board of directors of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce have had special reason to know of his fine qualities as a man and as a citizen through our association with him on this important board.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, by the board of directors of the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce in session in "The City that Faith Built" on this the 16th day of January, 1924, that we express in this very inadequate manner, the high regard in which we hold Walter Cline, as a friend and as a fellow worker, for the upbuilding of our community and we authorize our general manager to cause a copy of these resolutions to be spread upon the official minutes of the organization and to have them engrossed on parchment and furnished to him.

(Signed):

—By the Entire Board of Directors.

BILLY MURRAY HAS POPULARITY

Victor Singer of Humorous Songs Always Arouses Enthusiasm

Arrangements have been completed by McConnell Bros., local Victor dealers, to present the Eight Popular Artists in a most unique concert and entertainment at the Palace theatre tonight at 8:15. This occasion will mark the personal appearance of some of the best known stars of the Victrola record world.

Among the artists is Billy Murray, probably the most popular singer of humorous songs in the world. Murray has the faculty of putting smiles into his recorded work, and whenever he has appeared on the concert stage he has succeeded in arousing his hearers to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

Murray is a native of Denver, but early in life he developed a large case of wanderlust and as a result he can converse intelligently regarding almost any city in the United States. He is an ardent baseball "fan" and is personally acquainted with most of the players in the National and American leagues.

Other members of the concert part are Henry Burr and Albert Campbell, tenors; Frank Croxton, basso; Rudy Wiedoeft, saxophonist; John Meyer, baritone; Monroe Silver, monologist, and Frank Banta, pianist. The Peerless Quartet and the Sterling Trio, two well known Victor organizations, are made up from among the roster of the party, and will be heard in several selections during the evening.

John Philip Sousa

Lieutenant-Commander John Philip Sousa, the world famous bandmaster, would like to explode an old fable or falsification about himself. He recently exposed a certain unnamed press agent who was responsible a number of years ago for the circulation of a most ingenious story which had to do with the origin of his name. As the lieutenant-commander himself told the story it makes a most interesting yarn.

"The fable of the supposed origin of my name really is a good one, and, like all ingenious fables, permits of international variations. The German version is that my name is Sigismund Ochs, a great musician, born on the Rhine, emigrated to America, trunk marked S. O., U. S. A., therefore the name. The English version is that I am one Sam Ogden, a great musician, Yorkshire man, emigrated to America, luggage marked S. O., U. S. A., hence the cognomen. The domestic brand of the story is that I am a Greek named Philipso, emigrated to America, a great musician, carrying my worldly possessions in a box marked S. O., U. S. A., therefore the patronymic.

"This more or less polite fiction, quite common in modern times, has been one of the best bits of advertising I have had in my long career. As a rule items about musical persons usually find their way only into the columns of the daily press, a few of the magazines and in the papers devoted to music; but that item appeared in the religious, rural political, sectarian, trade and labor journals from one end of the world to the other and I believe that it makes its pilgrimage around the globe once every three years.

"The story emanated about 10 years ago from the youthful and ingenious brain of a onetime publicity promoter of mine. Since it first appeared I have been called upon to deny it in every country upon the face of the earth in which the white man has trod, but like Tennyson's brook, it goes on forever.

"Seriously, I was born on the 6th day of November, 1854, in G street, S. E., near old Christ church, Washington, D. C. My parents were Antonio Sousa and Elizabeth Trinkhaus Sousa, and I drank in lacteal fluid and patriotism simultaneously, within the shadow of the great white dome. I was christened John Philip at Dr. Finkel's church in Twenty-second street, N. W., Washington, D. C., and you might mention that if I had an opportunity to be born again I would select the same parents, the same city, the same time and—well, just say that I have no kick coming."

Lieutenant-Commander Sousa and his band come to the Palace theatre January 29.

IRISH INSANITY IS ON INCREASE

By The Associated Press

DUBLIN.—The problem of the insane in Ireland is demanding attention.

In 1851 with a population of 6,552,385 there were 9,980 persons certified as insane. In 1921 with a population of 4,390,000 there were 28,437 lunatics. The proportion of insane to the total population has increased in 70 years from 1 in 657 to 1 in 154. It is believed, however, that the comparison is less serious than it looks and that some part of the increase though not all of it, is due to more stringent modern methods of estimating insanity for statistical purposes.

STRAND—"The Man That Life Passed By."

OLYMPIC—Jack Holt and Nita Naldi in "Don't Call It Love."

MISSION—Edmund Lowe in "The Silent Command."

GEM—Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson in "Trailing Wild Animals."

"Once in a long while there comes a picture that is so much better than anything on the screen horizon that it becomes exceedingly difficult to tell you exhibitors how good it is. The reason for this is that you have become so "fed up" on superlatives and laudatory adjectives that they mean nothing any more. Therefore, we are going to use just one superlative in this review, assuring you that it really means just what it says. This is The Best picture we have seen in many many months. And we've seen some big ones.

"This production is a triumph for everyone in any way concerned in its making. It is an example of what results when there is a directorial genius at the helm. Seldom have we seen a picture in which such meticulous attention has been paid to detail nor one in which the little details convey such big meanings.

"To begin with Victor Seastrom had a wonderfully appealing story with which to work. When Hall Cain wrote 'The Master of Man,' from which this feature is adapted, he penned a tale of human passions, frailities, emotions and physical power. In transplantation to the shadow age it has lost none of its tremendous heart interest, thrill, dramatic moments and keen insight into human nature.

" 'Name the Man' is so filled with good things that it is utterly impossible to tell about them in this limited space. Technically the feature is as near flawless as it is possible to make it. Settings, both interior and exterior, are elaborate, artistic and correct in every detail. The atmosphere of the Isle of Man locale has been excellently built into the film.

"The players have simply been inspired in their work. Mae Busch eclipses her work in 'The Christian,' and Conrad Nagel also rises to new histrionic heights. Patsy Ruth Miller adds charm to her role, while De Witt Jennings, Evelyn Selbie, Creighton Hale and Hobart Bosworth have parts they put over in A1 shape. 'Name the Man' is a screen event.

"The picture should be held up as an object lesson for American directors. It is one of the finest things in direction we've had in a long time. Seastrom has made his characters so real that they seem to step from the screen and has put over some detail work that is without equal."—Frank Elliot in Motion Picture News.

This is the line of criticism that one of the severest critics in the film world gives "Name the Man" which is coming to the Strand theatre Sunday. The review is clipped from one of the National Moving Picture trade journals and is absolutely unbiased.

"The settings in which the drama is enacted, are all the quaint villages and century-old stone castles of the tiny Isle. Castle Rushen, largest structure on the island, was dunlicated at the Goldwyn studios for the picture.

"The stern, rocky coast-line of the Isle, and the beauty of the inland is also shown in a number of remarkable photographic studios. The locations approved by a technical expert sent from England to assist Seastrom, are said to be almost the exact duplicates of the actual scenery of the island.

"A very spectacular scene is shown as the angry citizens of the Isle gather before the Castle Rushen and demand that the man who helped Bessie Collister to escape on the eve of her execution, be found and punished. More than a thousand extras were used in the big scenes. The climax comes when the youthful Deemster, played by Conrad Nagel, appears before the crowd and confesses that he was the guilty man.

"As the crowd is about to attack him, a troup of cavalry gallops down the street and up to the castle gates. The crowd separates, but one child is left in the street, too frightened to run. The Deemster rushes in front of the horses to save the child, and thus wins the respect of the crowd.

"In 'Name the Man!' Victor Seastrom has justified Goldwyn's judgment in bringing him from Sweden to direct pictures for it. Lovers of this form of entertainment should see to it by their support of his productions that Seastrom is never allowed to stop directing photoplays in America. 'Name the Man!' is one picture which deserves the word 'great' in all its implications."

Alma Passes.

We thought it was Alma Tell who passed us on the avenue the other afternoon dressed in a stunning black suit trimmed with white caracul. Later, we discovered, that it was Alma—she's been in town playing with Cyril Maude in his new stage play since finishing her latest Fox picture, "The Silent Command," now at the Mission. Incidentally, we discovered that black suits are right up to, and a little in advance of, the mode. Alma's was made with a three-quarter length jacket, at the bottom of which was a circular ruffle. There were two more ruffles on the skirt.

Back to Civil War.

Bessie Love, who plays the title role in the Fox picture, "Gentle Julia," must have had some Civil War ancestors to account for her "blue and gray" complex. She nearly always wears one color or the other, and both whenever possible. Her latest frock is of soft gray satin made with tight bodice and full, circular skirt. The attractive thing about it is the organdie, embroidered in blue and silver, which forms the wide collar, the cuffs and borders the skirt hem. A small, square bow of moire ribbon finishes the collar with ends streaming down to the bottom of the skirt.

STUDIO CLOSEUPS

Marie Prevost, who has just completed her role in "The Marriage Circle" which Ernst Lubitsch has produced for Warner Brothers, is expected in New York very shortly to select her wardrobe for "Broadway After Dark."

John Barrymore who is creating the role of 'Beau Brummel' on the screen in the Warner Brothers production has received a snuff box, said to have belonged to the famous dandy, as a gift from an admirer in England.

Unlike so many other famous actors of the legitimate stage, John Barrymore has achieved as sensational a success in the realm of the motion picture as he has on the stage, and professes an equal fondness for the two arts, which in spite of popular opinion are quite different.

Ernst Lubitsch, famous director who has just produced "The Marriage Circle" for Warner Brothers, has announced his intention of becoming a United States citizen and making California his permanent home.

No one could blame Irene Rich for becoming a bit snobbish these days for shortly after portraying the Queen of Spain in "Rosita" she traveled over to the Warner lot where she immediately became the Duchess of York in "Beau Brummel." However we have the studio gateman's word for it that her daily Good morning," has lost none of its usual cordiality.

Those fans who think a motion picture ingenue can do nothing but look charming will be surprised to see the youngest of screen ingenues, Mary Astor, make up to look, eighteen (her own age), thirty-five and sixty in the Warner production of "Beau Brummel." And not only does she excell in the art of makeup but her mode of acting changes completely with each decade she adds to her years.

The word all-star has been so misused in various applications to motion picture casts that the public is a little skeptical when it is used, but in "The Marriage Circle," which Ernst Lubitsch has produced for Warner Brothers it might very well describe the cast which includes only six players, and consists of none other than Monte Blue, Florence Vidor, Creighton Hale, Marie Prevost, Adolphe Menjou and Dale Fuller.

Among famous sayings of history should be included the importal "What's your fat friend?" the remark directed against George IV, the Prince of Wales, by Beau Brummel, and which subsequently broke up the famous friendship. The saying which is included in all the biographical works concerning the famous dandy was written into the play "Beau Brummel" which Clyde Fitch wrote for Richard Mansfield and is now used as one of the sub-titles in the Warner production of the play in which John Barrymore plays the title role.

The cake eaters of today have nothing on "Beau Brummel," the most famous dandy of all time as he is portrayed by John Barrymore in the Warner Production of that name, and the women folk of the family railing against the number of collars found in the family wash become more reconciled to the extravagance of their males when they see Beau Brummel calmly discard over a hundred cravats to get one that can be adjusted without a crease.

TEXAS MAKING ONE MISTAKE

By The Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Texas is becoming a Jersey producing state, but is making the mistake of shipping out too much of this diary stock and shipping in too much butter and milk products, according to J. E. Boog-Scott show, 12,892 head of Jersey cat- Sanitary commission of Texas.

During 1923, records of Mr. Boog-Scott show, 12,892 head of jersey cattle were shipped from Texas to other states and in some instances to Mexico and Cuba. All such cattle movements come under his observation owing to the requirement of the law that they must be tested for tuberculosis.

Texas, according to Mr. Boog-Scott, shipped in 20,000,000 pounds of butter during 1923 at an approximate value of $8,000,000 while the 12,000 head of Jerseys were being shipped to other states. He urges that more Jerseys be kept in the state and that milk and milk products be produced in greater quantities to make the state self supporting.

Oklahoma got the largest quota of Jerseys from Texas as 4,740 head were shipped there. Kansas was second with an importation of 3,832 head of Texas Jerseys. Mexico received 563 and Cuba 171, while among the various other states importing Jerseys from Texas were the following: Louisiana, 488; Missouri, 840; Iowa, 982.

Texas bred Jerseys are comparatively free of tuberculosis, according to Mr. Boog-Scott, who asserted that test charts on file in his office show less than one per cent of the 12,892 head tested had tuberculosis.

JAPAN GETTING NEWS BY RADIO

By The Associated Press

OSAKA, Japan.—An arrangement has been made between a representative of the German government and the Japanese communications department by which wireless messages from the Nauen station in Germany will be received by the Hirano station near here.

It is understood that the latter station will be used principally to receive German press messages. The Hirano station is purely a receiving one.

Pick Fort Worth.

By The Associated Press

TYLER, Tex., Jan. 16.—The committee of the Texas Independent Telephone association has selected Fort Worth as the place for holding the nineteenth annual convention of the association, March 18-21. The entire upper floor of the Texas hotel will be used for this meeting. R. H. Still of this city is president of the association. L. S. Gardner of Waco is secretary. Firm, Plump Flesh!

MANY are the eyes that are turned to gaze with keen admiration on the well developed, healthy girl no matter where she may be—on the rapidly moving thoroughfare or gliding gracefully over the dance floor.

All eyes turn because we all appreciate the girl with the figure so firm and plump—the girl with radiantly red cheeks, cheeks that carry a touch of roses from nature's own garden—the girl with the sparkling eyes, keen and sharp—the girl with buoyancy and the swing of youth.

Not necessarily an out-of-doors girl. Just a girl with ever increasing blood cells. Just a girl filled with the vim and vigor of youth.

S. S. S., since 1826, has stood for increased blood cells. S. S. S. means restored strength—rekindled vitality—added energy. Take S. S. S. and watch the bloom of youth return to your cheeks. Watch that flabby, ill nourished flesh fade away before flesh that is firm and plump. Red blood cells will do it and S. S. S. will build them. It contains only pure vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

Gatesville Man Division Chief Oil & Gas Dept.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Jan. 16.—Judge H. E. Bell of Gatesville, new chief of the oil and gas division of the railroad commission, will assume his duties Monday, it was stated here today.

Judge Bell was a member of the Thirty-eighth legislature from Coryell county and was a supporter of the law enforcement program of Governor Neff.

He succeeds R. B. Walthall, who resigned to take the position of member of the state board of control. Walthall had served nine months as head of this division of the railroad commission and prior to that time was private secretary to Governor Neff.

ANTI-TRUST CASE OF STATE AGAINST HUMBLE APPEALED

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 16.—The state's anti-trust fight against the Humble Oil and Refining company was carried to the third district court of appeals today when the attorney general's department filed an appeal from the recent decision of the Travis county district court. The trial court held that ownership by the Standard Oil company of the controlling state of the Humble company did not constitute violation of the Texas anti-trust laws.

This information is included within the report of the Indian commissioner, Charles H. Burke, to the tribal headquarters.

MAGNOLIA'S WELL IN GRAHAM AREA INCREASES FLOW

Special to The Record News.

ARDMORE, Jan. 16. — Another gusher is in in the Graham field with the finding of the sand in the Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 4 Tucker, northeast of the northwest of 25-2s-3w, which is flowing 1,034 barrels from a pay topped at 2,387 feet, with the drill still in it at 1,067 feet. It is being drilled deeper into the sand. This well was brought in more than a week ago, and steadily increased its yield from a few hundred barrels to its present figure.

Makes Cold Chills Come

Folks simply can't help showing that pimply, blotchy or rough faces are unpleasant for them to look at much less associate and become intimate with people who are so careless about their appearance as to let these skin blemishes rule their destiny. No wonder "seems like "cold chills" run down their backs as they pass by you.

Not long ago Black and White Ointment was introduced in this country to remove such skin disfigures, and the way it quickly gets rid of them is responsible for its instant popularity and emendous sale of nearly two million packages a year. Your dealer has it and can supply you. It is economically priced, in liberal packages. The 50c size contains three times as much as the 25c size.—Adv.

RIGGING UP

By SUMMERS

Premium and bounties are being paid for Archer and Wichita county crude by independent purchasing agencies. In the Ranger-Eastland districts premiums are also being paid.

Operators generally look for another crude advance throughout the mid-continent district. With every major pool in the United States on the decline another increase in price of crude is imminent.

The Standard Oil company of New Jersey has advanced its price schedule of bunker fuel oil 10 cents a barrel to $1.45 f. o. b., its New York harbor refinery. Oil burning tankers plying between this country and other parts of the world will have to pay more for their fuel oil.

Harry F. Sinclair, nationally known operator, sailed on the Paris yesterday for Europe, where he is going to make a survey of petroleum conditions abroad. He is quoted as stating a serious oil shortage will likely result if consumption is anything like reports he had received.

In Navarro county practically all of the major companies and the larger independent concerns are protesting the amounts of the taxes they have been assessed. Most of the companies will have a hearing Friday.

The Sun Oil company has purchased six filling stations of the Tulsa Oil Products company, Tulsa, for a consideration said to be $60,000.

Pennsylvania operators have received six price schedules in succession. Operators in the Pennsylvania fields know the business points of the market and with large amount of crude in storage are not eager to sell. They know conditions, and will dispose of the crude when the acme schedule is reached. Years in the business is good experience for taking of profit.

The Producers and Refiners corporation is moving its offices from the Wrigley building, Chicago, to the Patterson building, Denver. More than 100 employees of the Chicago office will move their families to Denver.

WATER CONDITIONS POWELL FIELD TO BE INVESTIGATED

Special to The Record News.

DALLAS, Jan. 16. — Petroleum engineers of the department of the interior, stationed at the Dallas field office of the bureau of mines, propose an engineering study of conditions in the Powell oil fields in Texas, where difficulties from encroaching underground waters are being encountered. This field, which only a few months ago, produced over 350,000 barrels of oil a day, now is producing approximately 88,000 barrels of oil daily from 600 wells. It is reported that 200 of the wells are making water in large quantities.

MURCHISON-FAIN LEASE ACCREDITED 1,500 BBLS. DAILY

The 20-acre lease of Murchison and Fain in Archer county is making approximately 1,500 barrels daily, according to company reports. Wells 2, 3 and 4 are producers; 5 and 6 are rigging up preparatory to be spudded; and locations have been made for numbers 7 and 8.

Wilson land, lot 2, block 27, American Tribune New Colony lands, is drilling at 1,375 feet. Location has been made for test in northwest corner of NW 1-4 of NE 1-4 of section 104, American Tribune New Colony lands of Netherton ranch lands.

ALWAYS USE SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.—Adv.

ENDEAVOR UNION HOLDS A RALLY

Enthusiastic Meeting Results in Outlining Of Big Plans

The Christian Endeavor Union of the city, held a very interesting and enthusiastic rally at the Yale Avenue Evangelical church, on Monday evening, January the 14th. After the devotional, which was led by Miss Ursule Johnson, the meeting was turned over to T. E. Durrette, president of the union, who made a few brief, but very interesting statements as to the purpose of the meeting and stressed the importance of each member of the several Endeavor societies of the city taking part in this great work.

The president then called on the members from the several Young People's societies of the city, which were represented at the rally, with the following churches responding: First, Christian church; Central Presbyterian, First Methodist, corner 7th and Lamar; First Evangelical church, corner 13th and Broad, and the Yale Avenue Evangelical church, all of which made a good showing for the first rally of the year.

Reports from presidents of the various societies represented were given as follows:

First Presbyterian: Endeavorers are planning some very interesting services during the coming year, among them the evening church service of Feb. 3 which closes Christian Endeavor week. Dr. Nat Grafton meets with the Endeavor leading much assistance and encouragement to cabinet and members.

Central Presbyterian: The Endeavor plans to adopt the budget system during 1924. Special features are to be introduced in the Sunday evening devotional services. An effort will be made to have at least one business and one social meeting each month during the year.

First Christian Church: Report was made of establishing and maintaining of a small mission east of the main business section of the city. Newly elected officers are trying to make 1924 the best year in the history of the organization. Members are making greater efforts to increase membership and attendance records. Will work in new leaders and introduce new features into Sunday evening devotionals.

First Evangelical: Parents of young people attend regularly thus encouraging growth of organization. Members are planning to devote more time and attention to work the coming year.

Yale Avenue Evangelical: Although a new society, members are active and enthusiastic. Started the new year by having every cabinet member present at the first meeting of the year.

This report was followed by a reading of the minutes of the last meeting by the secretary which were adopted. The treasurer then gave a report and an offering was taken.

Van Thompson, district president of the Society of Christian Endeavors then made a talk on the state convention which is to be held in this city in March, 1924, stating that the president of each local society are to meet and organize, electing a chairman so that they may act as a committee of reception, and plan the details of the convention.

Mr. Durrette, president of the union then announced the approaching visit of Austin D. Bryan field secretary on January 28, asking that committee chairmen from all societies in the city union meet to plan a program for that evening.

To Whiten Skin with Lemon

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this delicately fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also to soothe red, rough or chapped hands and face. You must mix this remarkable bleach yourself. It can not be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.—Adv.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Nothing could have better demonstrated the spirit of Wichita Falls than the annual dinner of the chamber of commerce held Tuesday night. It was representative crowd that gathered and listened to the fascinating story of the progress of Wichita Falls and its hopes for the future. That story never grows old to the people of Wichita aFlls—that is why Wichita Falls is the growing and wonderful city it is. The underlying thought in the minds of its people is always for the advancement of its civic interests.

The only unfortunate thing about the dinner was the fact that there was not room for all who would attend—those who were late in making their decision to be present, found there too many ahead of them, but instead of grumbling about it they contended themselves with the fact that it is a live town and a live chamber of commerce when there are not seats enough for a city's boosters. Most towns have difficulty in drumming up a crowd to put the think over.

And with the selection Tuesday night of five new directors—men who have always worked in the interest of the city—and the election yesterday of A. H. Britain to head the chamber of commerce for the coming year, there is little for Wichita Falls to worry about from the standpoint of civic development in 1924. Active in chamber of commerce work, for some time past a director of the organization, Mr. Britain is known as a citizen of value to his town and to the community generally. Having been mayor of Wichita Falls—and, be it said, one of the most popular and successful mayors in the city's history—and having kept step with the progress of Wichita Falls, he is in close touch with the needs of the community. His popularity is further attested by the fact that he has served as president of the Wichita club and the Wichita golf and country club, aside from other positions of honor placed in his hands by his fellows. He also has taken keen interest in welfare work in Wichita Falls—in fact there are few things vital to the town's affairs with which has not been associated.

So the chamber of commerce, with Mr. Britain at its head; with Hubert Harrison, retained as its general manager, and a directorate composed of substantial business and professional men of the city, is in the safe hands for the year 1924.

A word should be said in behalf of the retiring president and directors who have worked unselfishly in the best interests of Wichita Falls. The year 1923 was a hard year for the sort of a job they had before them and they did their work well and hung up a record of progress which is worthy of praise. Walter Cline will be missed, but he isn't leaving town, and always will be available. This administration was one of value and credit to Wichita Falls.

And all "us folks" have to do, is to help out when we are needed. The man who becomes active in chamber of commerce work soon quits asking: "What has the chamber of commerce done." No president or board of directors of the chamber can handle the thing without the aid and co-operation of the people of the community. Be sure you are doing your share.

A MAGNIFICENT GIFT

The Junior High school will not want for a library. Of course everyone expected the new school to have a library but the source from which it was coming was indefinite.

It remained for Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Snider to write their names indelibly in the records of Wichita Falls by volunteering to provide the new school with a library that would fill its needs. And no restrictions or limitations were placed upon the school board.

It is just such things as this that make a city something more than bricks and stone and mortar. Nothing could be finer than aiding the youth of the land in their struggle for knowledge. It is a memorial that will live through generations to come and which will reflect much credit on the donors.

Can't Anybody Get in As Long As That Crowd Stands on the Rear Platform

Tarzan and the Golden Lion

"Mein Gott, Esteban," shrilled the German "vy you come back so soon, and for vy you come back like dot, sudden—don't you suppose we got nerves?"

CHAPTER V.

A Cup of Coffee.

The scar on Tarzan's forehead flamed as it ever did when he was angered.

"Who are you," the ape-man demanded, "who dare thus invade the country of the Waziri, the land of Tarzan without the permission from the lord of the jungle?"

"Where do you get that stuff, Esteban," demanded one of the Englishmen, "and wat are you doin' back 'ere alone and so soon? Where are your porters, where is the bloomin' gold?"

"I am Tarzan of the Apes," the ape-man said. "I do not know what you are talking about. I only know that I come in search of him who slew Gobu, the great ape, him who slew Bara, the deer, without my permission."

Inside the tent, Flora Hawkes suddenly stirred by terror, touched the arm of her companion frantically. "Heavens, Carl," she whispered, "look!"

"What's wrong, Flora?" inquired Kraski, "I see only Esteban."

"It is not Esteban," hissed the girl. "It is Lord Greystoke himself—it is Tarzan of the Apes! Look at that red scar flaming on his forehead—I have seen it burn scarlet when he was aroused to anger. It is scarlet now and Tarzan of the Apes is angry. If he has discovered our mission here, God help us—unless—unless—"

"Unless what?" demanded the man.

The girl was silent in thought for a moment. "There is only one way," she said finally. "We dare not kill him. His savage blacks would learn of it, and no power on earth could save us, then. There is a way, though, if we act quickly. Go out and get on friendly enough terms with him so that you can offer him coffee. He does not drink wine or anything with alcohol in it, but I know that he likes coffee. I have often served it to him in his room late at night upon his return from the theatre or a ball. Get him to drink coffee and then you will know what to do with this." And she indicated a bottle.

Kraski nodded. "I understand," he said and left the tent and greeted Tarzan.

"Welcome," he said, "we are always glad to see a stranger in our camp. Sit down. Hand the gentleman a stool Peebles."

"I am Tarzan of the Apes," said the visitor. "No hunters enter this part of Africa without my permission. I seek an explanation, and that quickly."

"Ah, you are Tarzan of the Apes," excalimed Kraski. "Fortunate indeed are we, for now may we be set straight upon our way. We are lost sir, due to the ignorance of knavery of our guide, who deserted us several weeks ago. We were searching farther south for specimens of the fauna which our employer here, Adolph Bluber, is collecting at great expense."

Tarzan turned sharply upon him. "Then what was all this talk about Esteban?" he asked.

"Ah," cried Bluber, "Peebles thought perhaps you vere a native. He calls all der natives Esteban. Hey John, iss it not so, vot it iss I say?"

The ape-man was somewhat mollified, but the matter of his having been mistaken for Esteban still piqued his curiosity, also he was still desirous of learning the identity of the slayer of Gobu, the great ape.

"Please sit down," urged Kraski. "We were about to have coffee and we should be delighted to have you join us."

To take coffee with these men would do no harm. Perhaps he had wronged them, but, however that might be, a cup of their coffee would place no great obligation upon him.

From the dark shadows of the tent's interior Flora Hawkes looked nervously out upon the scene bfeore her. She was terrified at the possibility of discovery by her former employer, for she had been a maid in the Greystokes' London town house as well as the African bungalow and knew that Lord Greystokes would recognize her instantly should he chance to see her. Kraski set the pot and the cups upon the ground a little in the rear of Tarzan, and, as he filled the latter, Flora saw him pour a portion of the contents of the bottle she had given him into one of the cups. A cold sweat broke out upon her forehead as Kraski lifted this cup and offered it to the ape-man.

Would he take it? Would he suspect. If he did suspect what horrible punishment would be meted to them all for their temerity?

She saw Kraski hand cups to Peebles, Throck and Bluber, then return to the circle with the last one for himself.

As the Russian raised it before his face and bowed politely to the ape-man, the five men drank. And Tarzan of the Apes drank his cup to the last drop.

CHAPTER VI.

Opar.

On that day a watcher upon the wall of the ruined city of Opar descried a party of men moving downward into the valley from the summit of the encircling cliff.

From time immemorial a guard had always remained upon the summit of the outer wall. Now a single crippled man-like creature was all that recalled the numerous lithe warriors of lost Atlantis. For down through the long ages the race had deteriorated and finally, through occasional mating with the great apes, the men had become the beast-like things of modern Opar.

Strange and inexplicable had been the providence of nature that had confined this deterioration almost solely to the males, leaving the females straight well-formed often of beautiful features, a condition that might be largely attributable to the fact that female infants possessing ape-like characteristics were immediately destroyed, while on the other hand, boy babies who possessed purely human attributes were also done away with. The watcher hurried to Cadj, the high priest.

"Cadj," he cried, "strange men descend upon Opar! Fifty of them at least, perhaps half again this number."

As Cadj and his priests watched the strangers plodding laboriously across the rocky, barren valley, one of the younger priests exclaimed excitedly:

"It is he, Cadj. It is the great Tarmangani who calls himself Tarzan of the Apes. The others are all black men."

"He must not enter Opar," cried Cadj. "Hasten and fetch a hundred fighting men. We will meet them as they come through the outer wall and slay them one by one."

Manu, the monkey, hearing all this from his place in a tree, was almost bursting with excitement. He knew Tarzan of the Apes—as all the migratory monkeys the length and breadth of Africa knew him—he knew him for a friend and protector.

He scampered to La, high priestess and princess of Opar.

"La, La," he screamed, "they have gone to kill Tarzan."

At the sound of that same La puckered her brows in thought. Many moons ago had La longed to make Tarzan her mate. The ape-man had not loved her, and finally she had come to a realization that he could never love her. Afterward she had bowed to the terrible law that had forced her into the arms of Cadj.

"Who has gone to kill Tarzan of the Apes?" she demanded.

"Cadj, Cadj!" shrieked Manu. "He has gone with many, many men, and is following upon the spoor of Tarzan."

La sprang quickly from the pool, seized her girdle and ornaments from her attendant and adjusting them hurriedly sped through the garden and into the temple.

Warily Cadj and his hundred frightful followers, armed with bludgeons and knives, crept stealthily down the face of the barrier into the valley below, upon the trail of the strangers. The high priest sent ahead a single man to reconnoiter. It was but a few minutes later that the latter returned to say that the camp was deserted. Entering the boma they saw lying before them the lifeless figure of Tarzan of the Apes.

"The flaming god has reached forth to avenge his deserated altar," cried the high priest, his eyes glowing with the maniacal fires of fanticism.

"He is not dead," whispered another; "perhaps he only sleeps."

"Seize him, then, quickly," cried Cadj, and an instant later Tarzan's body was covered by the hairy forms of as many of the frightful men as could pile upon him. He offered no resistance—he did not even open his eyes, and presently his arms were securely bound behind him.

Cadj had raised the knife, his muscles tensed for a downward plunge, when the silence of the jungle was broken by a woman's scream.

His knife poised on high, the high priest turned to see the figure of La, the high priestess, and behind her Dooth one of the lesser priests.

"What means this, Cadj?" demanded La, angrily.

"The flaming god demands the life of this unbeliever," cried Cadj.

"Speaker of lies," retorted La, "the flaming god communicates with men through the lips of his high priestess only. Too often already have you attempted to thwart the will of your queen. Know, then, Cadj, that the power of life and death which your queen holds is as potent over you as another. Durihg the long ages that Opar has endured, our legends tell us that more than one high priest has been offered upon the altar to the flaming god. And it is not unlikely that yet another may go the way of the presumptuous. Curb, therefore, your vanity and your lust for power, lest they prove your undoing."

Cadj sheathed his knife and turned sullenly away, but to those who knew Cadj there was little doubt that he still harbored his intention to despatch the ape-man.

So Goes It

By BURNS HEGLER

Surely there can't be anything wrong with Wichita Falls. But the records show that there hasn't been a first class mystery in Wichita Falls for some time past.

Lizzie Frizzle says that when someone coaxes her to sing, knowing that she has a voice like a Rocky Mountain canary, she at first declines, but when pressed to do so, accepts and thereby gets even with the insisters.

Walter Cline, describing the scene in the kitchen after the chamber of commerce feed Tuesday night, said: "The frames of those dismantled turkeys looked like a row of oil field shacks after a west Texas wind storm." In closing a few well chosen remarks at the finish of the annual party he said "the dishes are knee deep in the kitchen and extend back for a quarter of a mile or more."

These highly descriptive powers possessed by Mr. Cline are the result of being a chamber of commerce president.

No wonder California thinks McAdoo will be nominated. The people out there evidently think he is part of the climate.

But we are not so sure after reading an item from Washington to the effect that the McAdoo forces gave a tea, at which tea, dainty sandwiches and pink candy were served.

Another reason experience is a hard toastmaster is because she does not draw any pay for it.

Noting that a Chicago philanthropist gave his employes an apartment house, we would like to know what he had against his employes.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Personalities

One Mother Says:

I make it a rule never to discuss people when my children are present. No matter how kindly criticism may be, it is not pleasant when it is returned to the one criticized, and then, too, a child may pick up the habit of gossip. In our dinner table conversations I avoid talking personalities, so that my children may have resources in talking that extend beyond merely relating things that concern their friends and neighbors.

WHAT TODAY MEANS

BY MARY BLAKE

BY MARY BLAKE.

CAPRICORN.

Very good vibrations operate until 5:30 P. M. After that time conditions change, producing a tendency to reversals, repulsion or differences with friends, especially between the opposite sexes.

A child born today will be healthy in mind and body but tempestuous and impulsive in temperament.

You are to be congratulated if today is your birthday, for your spirit will be equal to your fate no matter how bright or how bitter. You are here for experience and you are undoubtedly going to get it. Even if it were not written for you, your impetuous nature and natural curosity would embrace you in an endless history of adventure.

Then, too, what does not happen to you in reality will often take place in your imagination, so all told your life should be rich in thrill and wonder.

You are inventive and resourceful, just so much so as the necessity requires. There is no situation from which you cannot find an exit, be it force, sagacity or diplomacy.

You have an abundant capacity for love—love of things as well as of persons. You are fond of books both inside and outside, and you prize things both for their beauty and their rarity.

You are also extremely fond of music and a certain amount of melody is essentially necessary to your nervous temperament.

But above all you have an enviable gift of affection for human beings. To you friendship means more than riches, and a great deal more than passional love. You are not lacking in the latter, but when you feel it, it is in its most poetic and romantic moods.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

A SONG OF AGREEMENT

I've never held with teachers
Throughout my earlier days;
I thought them pompous creatures
With patronizing ways.
But these old views are shaken,
And now I must admit
That I have been mistaken
Quite a bit.

A man should go and travel
In various foreign parts,
So that he will not cavil
Thereafter at the arts.
And for this pleasant errand,
He should be paid as well,
Declares Professor Ferrand
Of Cornell.

I hope he puts this over.
If Uncle Sam would pay,
I'd gladly be a rover
Through Europe and Cathay.
In quest of education
I'd love to roam at will,
And let my native nation,
Foot the bill.

No more at educators
Hereafter I shall sneer,
And call them second-raters,
Whose views on life are queer.
Go, verse, upon your errand,
Praise ardently and well
The wise Professor Ferrand,
Of Cornell!

SAFETY FIRST

It might be wiser to put an embargo on the shipment of arms to Hollywood before we do the same thing in the case of Mexico.

TIMELY VIEWS on WORLD TOPICS

"OUR PEOPLE HAVE BECOME POISONED MORALLY," SAYS GOV. PINCHOT.

"The most necessary thing I know of is moral health. If a human soul isn't clean it cannot be trusted with the solution of any social problems. This is equally true of a community, and the fact is that our people have been poisoned morally, in many great communities today, so that they have lost respect for law. Until we cure that condition—and it can be cured—there is little hope of our being able to attend to the great tasks which need attention," so said Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania in a recent interview.

"I am a believer in prohibition but the question of prohibition enforcement is much more important than the question of prohibition. Prohibition is the law. It is in the Constitution of the United States. Yet it is not only not in force in many communities, but its enforcement is not looked upon as of any vital importance. Officers charged with its enforcement are proving faithless to their trust. Prosecutors are listless. Even judges are becoming known as 'wet' and 'dry'. When men sitting on the bench are known to take a friendly attitude toward crime, what attitude toward law can we expect from the average citizen?"

IRRIGATION

SOILS AND SOIL PHYSICS.

Some Comments on Scientific Terms.

A land owner stopped us on the street the other day and said that the only thing he was able to read about irrigation, soils, etc., that he could understand were these articles in the Record News.

He had secured only recently a book on soils. He said that when he started to read this book he had to have the dictionary in the other hand if he was to make heads or tails out of what he was reading. Such words as arenaceous, argillaceous, colloidal or transpiration had no meaning in his young life. He wanted to know why they didn't use English or plain United States instead of such stuff.

One of the reasons why writers on scientific subjects use unfamiliar words is that if it were not for these very words they would have to write a whole paragraph every time they mentioned certain things. The authors of books on irrigation and soils generally assume that the reader will be more or less familiar with such subjects as chemistry and physics. In fact the books are quite often written for men who already have a considerable knowledge of the subject covered by the book.

These articles in the Record News are written for the man who has no previous knowledge of the subject. They are just in fundamentals. The A, B, C,'s so to speak.

If you wish to learn more about any subject discussed in this column you should secure some standard work about it. The big words will not bother much after you have hit them a few times and if you have absorbed some of the fundamentals before hand the rending will be much easier and you will learn more.

The title to this series "Soils and Soil Physics" has nothing to do with medicine, nor does it have anything to do with fertilizers in particular as our land owner friend thought it did before he looked up the word "physics."

TODAY'S POEM

Wish

Mine be a cot beside the hill;
A bee-hive's hum shall soothe my ear;
A willowy brook that turns a mill,
With many a fall shall linger near.

The swallow, oft, beneath my thatch
Shall twitter from her clay-built nest;
Oft shall the pilgrim lift the latch,
And share my meal, a welcome guest.

Around my ivied porch shall spring
Each fragrant flower that drinks the dew;
And Lucy, at her wheel, shall sing
In russet gown and apron blue.

The village church among the trees,
Where first our marriage vows were given,
With merry peals shall swell the breeze
And point with taper spire to heaven.

COLOR CUT-OUTS

In a One-Horse Open Sleigh!

"Pile in, Betty, pile in before you freeze your toes," called Mr. Cut-Out to his little daughter who was patting a big gray horse and feeding him lumps of sugar. It was the horse that was going to draw their sleigh from the train to Bear Lake to the skating tournament.

"We ought to keep snug and warm under this big fur laprobe," cried Betty, hopping in beside her mother. Billy sat in front so he could help his father with the driving.

"Giddap Dobbin!" yelled Billy when they were settled. "Listen!" Billy and Betty both screamed their surprise when the cutters moved off in the snow, for somewhere were little sleighbells that tinkled merrily.

"It's the most fun we ever had," agreed the children.

DOROTHY DIX'S LETTER BOX

The Wife Who Exaggerated Her Husband's Faults to Her Mother—How to Choose a Wife—The Young Man Whose Fiancee Does Not Demonstrate Her Affection.

Dear Miss Dix—My family consists of my wife, a little daughter nine years old and myself. We have had a happy home all these years, until recently we made a visit to her mother. Contrary my great surprise, I found that my wife had magnified each unpleasant incident during our marriage, and told each one to her mother in such a way that I am placed in a very embarrassing position, and am branded as the meanest man in the world.

I cannot understand the reason for my wife's doing this, and the injustice of it all makes me feel like giving up everything and slipping out into the world alone. What shall I do in this case?

X. Y. Z.

Answer: Your wife's conduct is certainly most reprehensible. It shows both bad faith and bad taste, but many other women are guilty of doing the same thing. When they are angry with their husbands, or peeved about any little thing, or when they are sore over some family spat, they run to their mothers with it because they know that their mothers will always side with them. Furthermore, the women who do this do not realize what a disloyal thing they are doing because they have only told mother. They forget that mother is generally a broadcasting station that sends out lurid stories about what a brute of a husband her poor, darling daughter has got, and how badly he treats her.

And mother exaggerates everything her daughter tells her. If daughter wails out that she doesn't believe that her husband loves her any more because he stayed out until 12 o'clock last night, mother leaps to the conclusion that he is leading the double life. If daughter weeps because her husband said he couldn't afford some extravagance she had set her heart on, mother puts husband down as a tightwad. If daughter tells that her husband criticised the cooking, mother says that she knew all along that he was an unfeeling beast who cared for nothing but his own stomach. And long after daughter has forgotten what she was miffed with her husband about, mother still remembers and holds it against him.

Why does a woman do such a dishonorable thing? Because women love to be considered martyrs, and to be wept over and pitied and "poor-deared." And mother can always be counted on to turn on the tear ducts whenever daughter makes a bid for her sympathy.

It is no wonder that you feel hurt and outraged at your wife misrepresenting you to her mother in order to indulge herself in an orgy of being cried over, and sympathized with.

But her excuse is that she did not realize what she did. When she sees how she has wounded you and perceives how despicable her conduct has been, it will give her a lesson that she will never forget, and she will probably never offend that way again.

Forgive her and set her fault down to one of the inexplicable weaknesses of her sex which craves pity as a drug addict does dope.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man and engaged to a girl with whom I am very deeply in love. But somehow she does not show me the affection I crave, although I know that deep in her heart she loves me dearly.

But lately I have met another girl whose ways are just what I enjoy. She makes a lot of fuss over me and pays me compliments and flatters me. Do you think that I should think less of these little affectionate ways of the second girl and continue loving the one to whom I am engaged.

Answer: Still waters run deep, L. B., and the girl that you think is cold probably cares a million times more for you than does the one who palavers over you. Furthermore, you will get mighty fed up on sentiment if you are married to a wife who is very demonstrative in her affection and who is always kissing you in season and out of season. I have seen men look at these kissing-bug wives with murder in their eyes.

The only men who ever get all they want in a wife are the gentlemen who keep harems, who can get a selected assortment of wives each with a special charm. So unless you are thinking of emigrating to the Orient, you will have to decide between the true and tried, reserved girl and the gushing girl.

My choice would be the girl who had proved her affection for me rather than the one who told me about it.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I thought I would write to you and ask you how I can get a good wife. Will you please tell me how to choose one?

D. A.

Well, D. A., if I were going to choose a wife, I would pick out a girl who was neither too young nor too old, say between twenty-three and thirty—and who was good-looking and neat and trig and trim in appearance. Because I would want some one who would be easy on the eyes if I was planning to sit across the table from her for the next thirty or forty years.

But I would pass up the beauties and the fashion plates, because they are nearly always selfish and extravagant. I'd be looking for a helpmeet and not a baby doll that I would have to spend my time playing with and dressing up.

I would pick out a healthy girl.

Because I wouldn't want a wife who was nervous and neurotic and irritable and unreasonable as all invalids are, nor would I want to see all of my money go to hospitals and sanitariums and doctors.

I would pick out a cheerful, good natured girl, a girl who always saw the funny side of things and who had a laugh hung on a hair trigger.

I would want a girl who took life as it came, without worrying, and who was ready to make the best of every situation.

I would pick out an energetic girl, a girl with a lot of pep to her, a girl who was willing to do her part of the work in the world, and who would make a good helpmeet.

Preferably she would know how to cook and sew, but that wouldn't matter, particularly, for any woman who isn't lazy can learn how to be a good cook and housekeeper.

Above all, I would pick out for a wife a girl who was congenial and companionable.

For I would want a wife who thought as I did, who was interested in the things that I was interested in, who liked to do the things I liked to do, and would trot along beside me on the same hobby horses.

I would pick out a girl whom I could talk to or listen to for hours at a stretch without getting bored. Then I would know that my marriage would be like the old fairy tales and I'd live happily ever afterward.

"GINGHAM GIRL" IS UNUSUAL HIT

did you ever see a musical comedy with strikingly clever leads, a flawless chorus of selected beauties all rare dancers, catchy tuneful melodies well sung, gorgeous sets, costumes and gowns of surprisingly original design clever ideas in scene setting and chorus ensembles, topped off with novelty acts of the finest quality and never a flaw in the whole show from ring-up to finale?

Such is "The Gingham Girl," musical comedy de luxe, which played on the Palace stage last night to a house packed with show loving Wichitas who showed their approval of the splendid show by a steady string of chuckles broken only by roars of laughter and applause, or pauses of contented and interested silence.

The appealing little story of the "Gingham Girl" who starts her adventurous life in Crossville Corners, N. H., selling her "Blue Bird" cookies at the village store and winds up the head of a great cookie factory was presented with so much spice and flavoring in the way of clever romances, snappy songs, remarkable dance numbers, attractive settings and novelty numbers that by the time the plot began to get nicely browned, the audience didn't care whether it was ginger, sugar or coated with pink frosting and caraway seed.

Peggy Pates as Mary Thompson, "The Gingham Girl" was quite the most bewitching little country girl imaginable. Her lovely voice put her song numbers over in exceptional style and made her love scenes with John played by Bobby Jarvis, quite as enjoyable as the matchless line of comedy work done by Mr. Jarvis in the character of the small town "rube." The two were well cast and played with the mastery of a perfectly matched team.

Lillian Young as Libby O'Day made a typical little "Down East Flapper" and quite brought down the house with her clever work in the "Newly-wed" number with Loring Smith who played her "N. Y. C." lover.

Edna Dare as Sonya Maison wore some stunning gowns and played the "vamp" in an attractive Greenwich Village set surrounded by a bevy of Bohemian beauties in temperamental costumes ranging from a pirate girl, and a bolshevik, to a dainty maiden in hoops and a daring spanish dancer.

Faye White and Howard Mills are a dancing team of exceptional ability who more than once left the audience gasping at the daring and original movements in their combinations. An Apache dance, with both dancers dressed to the part and acting the interpretation of the wild orgy with every line of their bodies was handled with an artistry that brought rounds of applause and repeated call backs. The same pair appeared later in a clever novelty number, amazing in gymnastic stunts and speedy execution.

Chorus work was of the finest type and credit for the dances goes to Sammy Lee whose active brain created some of the most attractive ensembles, difficult in execution but surprisingly different, in effect that Wichita Falls audiences have seen for several seasons. The notable feature of the chorus dances was the clever gymnastic skill displayed by the members in the accurate and snappy execution of feature stunts which they so successfully and smilingly carried out. Good singing voices made the musical numbers of the show the more enjoyable.

Gag lines were surprisingly fresh and sailed over the footlights to hit the audience in a funny spot and keep them laughing.

"The Gingham Girl" was a really fine show that stands out with a noticeable prominence among the season's attractions.

CAGERS DUE TO BREAK DOUBLE TIE

With the fifth series of play tonight, the first half of the city league basket ball season draws to a close. Six nights of play make up the schedule for each half, the winner of the split season being declared after January 24, next Thursday night. According to bylaws and rules of the league, should there be any tie games to play off this shall be done between regular playing nights, so that the year's schedule might not be held up.

However, no tie games have been played to date, which does not mean that ties are in abundance in the league. Just at present, the four teams are tied for places one and two, respectively, Landon-Hill and Iowa Park at a percentage of .750 and American Legion-Knights of Columbus at .250-all.

Knights of Columbus vs. Iowa Park Hi, Landon-Hill vs. American Legion is tonight's schedule. The big break in the double tie is expected to come with a bang, no one of the teams being in the way for another tie.

Accordingly, tonight's cage contests will go toward saying which team will take the first half of the loop, and should be all the faster for it.

Brian I. C. Norton of South Africa, who, with Bill Tilden, won the double championship of the United States in 1923. Norton was also ranked tenth among the singles players of this country. He is very popular among the tennis fans and players, and is the only man who ever stopped in the middle of a set in the national tournament to comb his hair!

Art Nehf of the New York Giants, who was one of the pitching stars of the last world's series. Like Max Carey, Nehf was born in Terre Haute, Indiana. He pitched for the Boston Braves for five years, and in 1919 went to New York, where he has been one of the mainstays of McGraw's pitching staff ever since. Art pitched three games in the 1921 world's series, losing two to Hoyt and finally winning one from him. In 1922 he beat Bush twice, 3-2 and 5-3, and in the last series, he beat Jones and Bush in the third game but cracked in the eight inning of the sixth game, after allowing only two hits in seven innings.

Battling Nelson, one of the gamest fighters who ever lived. The "Durable Dane" was born in Copenhagen on the Independence day of Denmark, and won the lightweight championship of the world on United States Independence day, 1908 by knocking out Joe Gans in 17 rounds at Coloma, Calif. He put Gans out again in September, which was some record performance. Two of Nelson's biggest fights were his 18-round knockout of Jimmy Britt in 1905, and his 42-round battle with Joe Gans in Reno in 1906, which he lost on a foul. Nelson lost his title to Ad Wolgast in a 40-round fight in 1910.

BASEBALL BRIEFS

Manager Buddy Tanner was mixing baseball with life insurance Wednesday afternoon, to the total loss of both, to hear him tell it. Although in the highest spirits over his ball club coming up, "Old Ironsides" had to admit that baseball and insurance can't be talked at the same time.

Reckon you had heard that Hooks Cotter, the slim gent who last season was seen frequently playing around third base for the Spuds, has taken unto himself a wife. Well, he has, which probably has nothing to do with the possibility of his holding down a garden this season. It hasn't been figured out yet whether it was Hooks' own coy idea of announcing his marriage to the bosses—anyhow, the Spudder office was the recipient of a card signed, "Mr. and Mrs. Cotter." Hooks later broke the word to them in a more detailed style.

The Wichita Falls club looming for the coming season, will be a young and peppery bunch steadied by a sprinkling of old regulars, says Manager Tanner. Now, according to the new field boss of the Spudders, fans are promised a club that will go out and fight every day, for which they pay their good six-bits. A fighting, willing outfit, though young, is better by a considerable lot than a bunch of old heads that just try to get by (amen from the outfield.)

And this 1924 Spudder combination is no rookie outfit, at that, even though several of them haven't been in the majors long enough to lose their identity. Manager Buddy says that he sees not a reason why Wichita Falls should not be with the leaders in the race for the rag this year, barring accidents and later developments.

Around the infield, there will probably be Mattox behind the plate, Schwab at first, Al White at second, and Tanner at third. This will be quite an alternation of old heads sprinkled around to hold the youngsters down in the pinches, it was outlined by Tanner. Shortstops are as plentiful as could be wanted. In fact, there might be such a thing as Turgeon finding his way down here from the Cuba, should he so hit it off that way.

At first, besides Schwab, Cotter is a sweet looking player and a good man. But Hooks is headed for somewhere around right field, according to the manager, where it is believed that he will hit an even better stride. Cotter is a ball player and as a fielder little bother is expected out of him. His hitting, good last year, is expected to receive a boost. He will be in reserve for first base, however, should he be needed.

Outfielders are also in abundance. Among whom will be recalled Red Williams and Art Weiss. "Sporting News" carried a short summary of Howard Alexander's career, since his baseball start at Texas university. Alexander's ability to snag flies is wonderful, according to Skipper Tanner, and his hitting is every bit as pleasing. He tore up the Three-I league with his smashes, placing his percentage almost 500 and a half.

LITTLE LESSONS IN BIG SPORTS

BASKET BALL

How closely should a guard watch his opposing forward?

Answered by
G. W. A. ZAHN

Coach, Dartmouth College, where he has been successful in turning out fast, fighting teams.

To reduce the answer to such a question to a rule of thumb is fairly easy, but such a rule has occasional exceptions which the player can only learn by practice. A guard should keep about three or four feet from his opponent after the opponent has passed the center of the floor; he should always keep between the opponent and the basket he (the guard) is defending. On a jump-ball at center when the opponents are getting the tap, play the man very close.

TAX CUT PLEAS HEARD BY HOUSE

Augustus Thomas Speaks In Behalf of Theatres; Urges Repeal

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Pleas for repeal of many of the so-called nuisance taxes and endorsements of the Mellon tax plan were heard today by the house ways and means committee now drafting the new revenue measure. Parliamentary maneuvering preparatory to the fight on the bill when it is reported to the house abated pending outcome of the rules contest now being waged on the floor.

Attacks on present special tax rates before the committee today centered mainly on the automobile and accessories duties and those on theatre admission.

Representatives Dallinger of Massachusetts, and Burtness of North Dakota, republicans, urged repeal of all special taxes the former suggesting a sales tax as a substitute. Mr. Dallinger also advocated raising the age limit from 18 to 21 years of children for whom exemption may be claimed in income tax payments.

James Emery, speaking for the National Association of Manufacturers, endorsed the Mellon tax plan, while Robert Sinclair, chairman of the association's tax committee, declared radical reductions in surtax would bring not only individual relief, but would have a beneficial effect on the economic and social life of the country.

NO DEVELOPMENT ON RULE QUESTION

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Desire of house members to talk prevented another show down on the rule question, but an agreement was reached to vote tomorrow on the main point of contention—how many names should be required on petitions for the discharge of committees.

Republican organization leaders favor a minimum of 150 names while the republican insurgents and democrats have been advocating a 100 name minimum.

The debate today for the most part was of a political nature, democrats attacking the republicans, with occasional aid from an insurgent while the regular republicans spent most of their time criticising the views of the insurgents and democrats.

The discussion indicated that on the vote tomorrow there would be some defection, making it somewhat doubtful whether the democrats and insurgents would be able to bowl over republican organization as they did Monday when they brought about repeal of the Underwood amendment rule.

PRAIRIE BOATS ARE PROFITABLE

By The Associated Press

AMARILLO, Tex., Jan. 16.—There may be slight use for a boat on the plains of Northwest Texas, but one citizen, with the aid of a book on boat building in the local library, found boat building a profitable industry.

"A local citizen," according to Miss Willie Lee Martin, "made all manner of fun of the library for having a book on boat building, 'Beard's Boats and Boat Building.' He wondered where on the plains one could use a boat, if he built one. I laughingly told him that there was always a use for every book. High water and duck season arrived in unison in Potter county. This same man rushed in, asking for the 'boat book.' He built five canoes from it, selling four of them to other hunters at a profit of more than $40."

The state library reported this was one of the left over war service books given by the American Library association through the state library to Potter county.

SUGGESTS PROBE IN TRAFFIC ROW

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Notice of internal dissension in the tariff commission was taken in congress today, Representative Griffin, democrat, New York, introducing a resolution calling for an investigation by the house ways and means committee of "a report" that the wife of a member of the commission held an interest in a sugar corporation.

The action was taken as a result of the row during open hearings of the commission on the sugar tariff yesterday when Commissioner Glassie said his wife and members of her family were owners of a Louisiana sugar plantation and mill.

The commission divided equally among its membership on the question of Mr. Glassie participating in disposition of the sugar case.

Iowa Park
NEWS AND PERSONALS

Burglars Busy Here.

Several householders of Iowa Park reported to the local officers during last week that their home had been robbed while they were shopping or away on business. Money and clothes were the principal things taken, but other articles were taken also. Geo. Hong residence in the east part of town was entered and two good suits of clothes were taken. The Conway Filling Station was entered while the manager was out, the cash register entered into and $40 or $50 taken. Other towns in this county report burglaries on the same plan. Must be the same gang.

Garage Moved.

R. L. Peden has moved his garage and battery station from the rear end of Ralston & Ralston filling station on Broad street to the corner near the depot.

Mr. Peden has been in this city two years and is a first class mechanic. He has enjoyed a nice business in his old location and expects the same business and new customers in the new location.

Volley Ball Game.

The local high school girls of the volley ball team met the fast volley ball team of the Electra high school last Saturday night and were defeated after a hard fight for the best two out of three games. This makes the second defeat for the local girls from the fast team of Electra, both games being played on Electra courts.

The games: First, 21 to 16 in favor of Iowa Park; the second and third games going to Electra by the score of 21 to 15 and 21 to 17.

The line up:

IOWA PARK	ELECTRA
Mills	Ferres
Reaves	Trice
Galey	Sheldon
Golden	Autrey
Smith	Long
Mathews	Fant

After this game the second volley ball team of the same schools played, Electra won both games, and also beat the junior basket ball teams of Iowa Park.

With Poultry Car.

Reid Estes, a high school boy of Iowa Park, will leave for Fort Worth February 4th to make the trip with the poultry school train which will leave Fort Worth February 4.

Reid Estes got this appointment last week being recommended for the place by Mr. Oates the Fort Worth and Denver agricultural agent. His work will be with the Boys' club department on the train of four or five cars. This train will be out for a month making most of the important stops from Fort Worth to Dalhart, also Byers, and all important towns on the Wichita Valley from Wichita Falls to Abilene.

LAUNDRIES TO TELL BUSINESS SECRETS

DALLAS, Tex.—The power of soap and water to rout dirt is to be extolled throughout the state by the Texas Laundry Owners' association which meets here in annual convention January 16 to 18, according to W. A. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the association.

Because of the competition of the negro washwoman, Texas laundrymen are behind those of other states in the volume of the family washing, according to Mr. Johnson, and plans to meet this competition are to be laid at the forthcoming convention.

Time was when the commercial power laundry was looked upon as an enemy of clothes, Mr. Johnson said. This idea, however, has been dispelled greatly, and today, he declared, the power laundry is getting the bulk of the family washing, formerly done over the wash tub by the housewife.

"The only drawback the steam laundry has," said Mr. Johnson, "is that in the minds of the average housewife there is a belief that the laundry uses injurious chemicals. This is absolutely untrue, as we use only soap and water and washing sodas, which are chemically prepared so as to be non-injurious to fabrics.

"The electric washing machine, the negro and Mexican washwomen, are still, to some extent, our competitors. The electric machine brought the laundry owners to a realization of the great volume of business of the family washing and they discovered they could give this service to the housewife at a price that would be fully as cheap as buying a machine.

"The modern laundry owner is now able to tell exactly what it costs to do a shirt or a collar or any other single item. We add 10 per cent to this cost for our profit and that constitutes our price."

A. W. Cummings of Dunkirk, N. Y., president of the Laudryowners' National association and W. H. Fitch, LaSalle, Ill., vice-president and general manager of the association, are on the program for speeches. Joseph S. Myers, state commissioner of labor, is to speak on the existing relations between Texas Laundrymen's association. A club woman, yet to be named is to tell the delegates what the laundry has done for the club women of the state.

YOU KNOW ME AL — He's a Good Lobby-Actor

Words by Ring Lardner

Friend Al:

Well Al I just been down to the Smart Toggery on Michigan ave. and I bought myself a coon skin coat and a light gray derby and a pair of white spats and a couple shirts that has got collars the same color that goes with them to match and you should ought to see me all dressed up Al as I look like a regular actor and the reason I bought all this stuff is because Joe Whelan told me that the secret of being a successful stage star was to look like one and I believe he is right. And why should not I dress like a actor Al as I am one and have made good in vaudeville though I been laying off this wk. as Mr. Abrams could not place me nowheres on acct. of the other stars kicking about having me on the bill with them. But I will be back on the boards again next wk. but not for no $50.00 per wk. salery as I will not work again for lest than a $100.00 at the outside.

Attorney Glasgow in presenting Lynch Davidson to the night audience referred to the guest as "the next governor of Texas." Mr. Davison's speech following words of appreciation for his reception was as follows:

Davidson in his speech at the court house said in part as follows:

During my term of office in the house of representatives, in the senate, and as an incumbent of the office of lieutenant governor, experience with affairs of state brought me to the conclusion that much could be done by competent hands and capable minds toward a substantial reduction of the terrific tax levy. By application of business methods to the management of the state's institutions, not only can the tax toll be materially lightened, but the state's various institutions can be operated much more efficiently and economically. Our penal system can be put upon a paying basis without loss to itself morally or detraction from the human element.

For these reasons and that I might have the time to set my own business affairs in order, it was that in 1922 I voluntarily declined to stand for re-election to the office of lieutenant governor, and declared my intention of becoming a candidate for governor of Texas in the primaries of 1924.

It is no small task I propose to assume. It carries with it great responsibilities and heavy burdens, and I face the fact with that consciousness. Many perplexing problems confront us, none of which are more enigmatic than the one of taxation. It is a first requirement that our taxing system be simplified, and it is equally urgent that our tax levy be equalized. Oratory and elocution are not going to solve this problem, nor any other problem of state. It takes the deft hand of the surgeon to probe its vitals and cure its ailmen's.

Nor is taxation, its simplification or equalization alone to be considered. It must be considered in connection with the cost of government. If the cost of government is high, it follows that taxes will also be high. State government can and must be conducted at less cost. If it cannot be done by proper reduction in the cost of each department of government, then it is for the chief executive, and he should pledge himself to make such horizontal reductions in appropriations as will bring the state's expenses well within its income, and make state warrants worth a hundred cents on the dollar.

Ought to Earn.

The system ought to be earning, in my humble judgment, at least a million dollars annually. If we add its potential earning capacity to its present losses of a million dollars annually, and pledge ourselves that such a change can be made, is it not at once apparent that the state's coffers would immediately profit two million dollars annually?

Do not gather from what I have said that I am an advocate of farming as a business for the penitentiary system. To the contrary, I would conduct the farming of the penitentiary system only so long as it took us to get the state out of it in a proper, conservative and safe manner.

State Railroad.

The state railroad, 32 miles long, connecting Palestine with Rusk, Texas, was a part of the penitentiary system. In fact, it was the goat for the system. All the ills and difficulties of the entire system were attributed to the state railroad. It cost the state $650,000 to build, and had lost in operating expenses over a period of about 10 years, at least the sum of $800,000. Thus it had absorbed approximately a million and a half of the tax payers' money.

The penitentiary system gave the railroad up as a bad job, and said they could do nothing with it. It got to the point, and properly so, where the legislature refused to appropriate for its losses. Finally a bill was offered in the legislature proposing to junk the road, or give it to anybody for a dollar that would take it and operate it. The physical condition of the road—well, there was none. It was two streaks of rust, over which you could hardly pull a carload of anything.

Railroad New

The legislature finally enacted a bill by which I took charge of the road on behalf of the state. Today, ladies and gentlemen, that is one of the best pieces of railroad in the state of Texas. It is laid with brand new 80-pound steel from end to end, and its physical condition makes it capable of handling any kind of traffic. Quite recently we whirled over those ribbons of steel at the rate of 35 miles an hour the heaviest train equipment in the world, the Sells Floto circus. That railroad is worth a million dollars of anybody's money today. Less than three years ago it was proposed to junk it, or give it away to anybody that would take it. Think of that!

Penitentiary Now

Today, your penitentiary system stands in almost the same light. Did it not involve our penal problem and the care of human beings, no doubt there would also be a bill offered in the legislature soon to junk or give it away to anybody that would take it. On any grounds, there would be just as little reason for such a measure as there was in the case of the state railroad, because there is a magnificent potential earning capacity in the penitentiary system in various respects. Not earning capacity alone, in the sense of dollars and cents or profit, but earning capacity in the rehabilitation of human beings, and their restoration to citizenship as useful citizens. This feature of the program transcends in importance all others, but we will not solve either of the problems unless we solve both.

Many different directions could be given to the working out of the prison system. My study of the problem convinces me that under present conditions its force and power could best be used in the construction of a great major highway system. Through our highway department the stage is set, so to speak, whereby, in co-operation with and by the use of the penitentiary system, most profitable results could be obtained in highway construction. Profitable not alone in the sense of money, but in many other respects.

It would release for sale the larger portion of the penitentiary lands. These lands sold upon long terms would open vast opportunities to the tenant farmers of Texas to acquire much needed homes and habitations. By reserving enough land upon which to retain the buildings owned by the penitentiary system, the doors of the county jails crowded with insane would be opened and a place provided for them. It would provide other much needed eleemosynary institutions, and bring Texas into the forefront as a state actively acting in behalf of its unfortunates.

Conversion of the penitentiary lands upon this plan would make available funds, for the construction of a modern, model general prison system somewhere near the state capitol in a healthful climate, centralized under the eyes of state officials, where those not able to do road work could be properly employed.

Highway

The building of a major highway system by the penitentiary forces in co-operation with the highway department is easy of arrangement. I estimate through the penitentiary forces of the state could reduce the cost of highway construction 50 per cent, and there is no other business in which they could engage, so little in conflict with the activities or individual interest of the private citizen. This program will make Texas the banner good roads state of the universe, at a cost of far less money than is now being spent.

In planning this program I have not failed to take into consideration the vocational and educational training of the convict, and his return to civil life; realizing that as one of the essential functions of government in dealing with it penal problems.

This subject offers an inexhaustible field of opportunity for discussion, and is of infinite importance to the people of Texas. But I leave it here, thus briefly sketched, so that I may discuss a few other subjects of importance.

Education.

Education is the foundation rock of government itself, and for its perpetuation our educational system must be carefully and correctly administered. Enormous sums of money are being spent by the state for education, and I am sure there is none to begrudge its spending. All of us may well raise the question as to whether or not it is being efficiently distributed and used. We may raise the question, too, whether the system itself is productive of best result and inspires efficient use of funds appropriated.

It is my belief a rearrangement of the rural school system would result in a 30 or 35 per cent increase in the school term, without substantially, if any, increased cost.

I shall not undertake to discuss the school system in detail, but I may briefly say that Texas should be satisfied with nothing less than a rural school term of eight months. Texas should be satisfied with nothing less than the best teachers obtainable in this broad land. No niggardly policy, inadequately paying for a service of such transcendent importance, should be pursued by this great state. There is nothing nearer or dearer than our children, and when we place them in the care and custody of other people in whose hands are entrusted their education, we ought to be sure that they are above reproach, possess cultivated minds, and those answering such description are entitled to compensation that ranks high.

Useless bureaus and commissions play their part in the excessive cost of government and their elimination would be my first purpose, insofar as practicable. They not only are expensive and operate at the expense of the taxpayers, but they stand between the people and representative government, to my mind. They have built up a dam between the people and our original form of representative government—at the expense of the people. If the expense were inconsequential, I should still say their elimination is essential for the sake of good government and representative government.

Law Enforcement.

I stand firmly at all times for the absolute enforcement of all laws, including the prohibition laws. I am for the enforcement of the law by the duly constituted authorities of this land, and not by any kind of bloc, association, clique or clan. Every citizen is entitled to his day in court. The creating or fostering of racial, religious or class strife among our people by any individual, group or individuals or organization, or the determination of guilt or infliction of punishment, is a menace to our liberties and destructive of our fundamental law. Furthermore, it is inconsitent with the ideals and purposes of the American people.

No Special Group.

I am not and shall not become the candidate of any group, bloc or association of any kind, and no man worthy of the great office to which I aspire is fit to fill that office who is the candidate of some special set or clique or group of people. I am offering my services to the people of Texas on the proposition and the promise to reform its business institutions, reduce our taxes, and generally give the government of Texas a first class business overhauling. Not unmindful of its educational and spiritual needs and welfare, but in the consciousness tha tthe general welfare of our citizenry can best be served by a condition in the state's affairs that leaves them free and content and gives them the opportunity to pursue happiness in their own way.

CAMPUS CHATTER

Fine Arts Business Meeting.

The Fine Arts club of the high school held a business meeting yesterday afternoon after school in the auditorium with about 35 members present.

Shumake Baber, president, presided at the session at which it was decided to put on a membership campaign to raise the present membership of 60 to at least 100 by the end of the school term.

A feature of the drive will be original posters planned and made by the members to be brought to school Monday when they will be displayed to boost the membership of the club.

The school library opens this morning, much to the relief of students who have been having to coax volumes from teachers for reference and research work in their classes.

William [illegible]oy, recently of Kentucky Military Institute is numbered among the new students at high school. He has enrolled as a senior.

Senior students in Mr. Johnson's chemistry class made life miserable for those in that end of the building yesterday by industriously delving into the mysteries of sulphur dioxide.

Misses Katherine and Lily Clark, formerly of this city, but who attended school in Canyon, Texas, last year have enrolled in Junior college for the new term. Both are specializing in psychology and education.

Miss Ethel Farrabee who has been ill at her home and absent from classes is not much improved and will probably not return to school until next week.

C. W. Boaldin from Allandale school, district 14 was a visitor at County Superintendent Burl Bryant's office yesterday, procuring new books for new students.

Junior high boasts of 160 new pupils with which to begin the new term. The new schedule which has been perfected is running on full time and functioning more smoothly than ever in previous years, according to H. A. Glass, principal.

The Academy of Saint Mary Immaculate reports an increase of 25 pupils in enrollment for the new term and an improvement in the system of the high school department.

Misses Fannie Bates and Mary Johnson of Austin school have resigned their positions because of their respective approaching marriages.

The Junior college classes are badly hampered because of delay in book shipments. Some of the algebra classes are having to use high school texts until the others arrive, while some classes are without books of any kind.

Spanish students are no longer to enjoy the "song period" made possible by the victrola purchased by senior students two years ago, as has been the custom in the classes each week; some one stole the works out of the victrola shortly after Christmas.

The 1,000 registration cards at the superintendent's office at the beginning of this week have melted to nothing under the great demand from all the schools who are transferring students.

STOCK MARKET MOVES HIGHER

Selling Pressure Lifted; Foreign Exchange Improves

Market Features.
Total stock sales 906,400 shares.
Twenty industrials averaged 96.52; net gain .58.
High 1923, 105.38; low 85.76.
Twenty railroads averaged 83.53; net gain .79.
High 1923, 90.51; low 79.53.

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Selling pressure was lifted from today's stock market and the general list moved higher in response to further improvement in the foreign exchanges, cheaper money rates and favorable trade news.

Chief speculative interest centered in the railroad shares of which there was reported to be heavy buying for European account.

Virtually all groups of industrial stocks participated in the advance with the steel, automotive equipment, leather, food, merchandising, can and farm implement issues recording the highest gains. Several of the oils moved up 1 to 2 points in the early dealings on additional announcements of higher gasoline and crude prices, but the gains were reduced or cancelled when fresh selling broke out in the Pan-American issues in the late afternoon.

Buying of the steel shares was influenced to some extent by the optomistic tone of the weekly trade reviews, which stressed the heavy demand for construction material. U. S. Steel closed a point higher at par and gains of 1 to nearly 2 points were recorded by Bethlehem, Crucible, Republic and Sloss Sheffield steels, Iron Products, and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe issues.

Revival of activity in the tobacco group was based on reports of forthcoming merger. Philip Morris led the advance with a gain of more than one point. Leather issues made a favorable response to reports of higher commodity prices and improved earnings. Central Leather preferred rising 2 points.

Strong spots in the specialty list included Corn Products, Savage Arms, Remington Typewriter, Computing-Recording-Tabulating, Marlin-Rockwell, Munsingwear, and Ut shaeruc,E well, Munsingwear, and Utah securities, the net gains ranging from 2 1-2 to nearly four points.

Lehigh Valley was one of the strong features of the railroad group, closing more than 2 points higher at 66 1-8 after having sold slightly above that figure.

Foreign exchanges continued to make sharp recovery from recent weakness, French francs selling just below 4.70 cents, or more than 50 points above their recent low, and demand sterling moving up above $4.26.

Call money opened at 4 3-4, eased up to 4 1-2 and thence to four per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

New Orleans Cotton.
By The Associated Press
NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 16.—After spending the greater part of the session today in small fluctuations, the cotton market in the late trading broke violently under heavy selling which, according to market comment, had its start with a crowd of traders who were supposed to receive early information on ginning. This coupled with the fact that the 9th ginning period ended yesterday, was considered significant. Lowest prices were reached in the closing range of sales, and last prices were at net losses on the day of 66 to 73 points, the last sale of March being at 33.50 of October at 27.60.

In the early session the cold and wet weather over the belt and complaints of its unfavorable effect on preparations for the new crop dominated the market for a while. Scattered selling put prices 15 to 24 points lower on the opening, from which there was a rally to advances over yesterday's close of four to 18 points. These were the high levels on the day, March trading up to 34.36 and October to 28.30. Selling gradually increased and carried the market to small net declines but pressure was not pronounced until well into the afternoon.

Ft. Worth Livestock.
FORT WORTH, Jan. 16.—Mid-week receipts of cattle sold a good demand at values that indicated a fully steady trend, but the calf market was sluggish at a decline of 25 cents. Receipts amounted to 3,000 head of cattle and 1,500 calves. Several cars of good cattle were on offer, heifers selling at 8.00, steers at 7.75 and cows at 4.50. The best cattle here sold at 7.75 and came from west Texas. Canner cows sold around 1.75 to 2.15 and cutters brought 2.25 to 2.75. Bulls went at a range generally of 3.00 to 4.00, with some making 4.25 to 4.50.

No special activity was observed in the hog market, but when sales were made they were called steady to five cents higher. Only 2,000 head were avilable here. The top was 7.35, for less than a carload, and 7.30 on carlots. Most of the run was disposed of at a spread of 7.00 to 7.25. Pigs were purchased on a fully steady basis, most of the desirable grades being cashed in at 5.25 to 5.50.

Sheep trading was active, the market being featured by the sale of several decks of New Mexico clipped wethers at 8.00. The market was called steady to higher. Receipts amounted to 1,200 head.

Chicago Livestock.
CHICAGO Jan. 16.—Cattle 11,000; strong to 15 cents higher, best yearlings 11.50; top steers 12.25; fed steers 8.25@10.00; beef heifers upward to 10.50; short fed kind 5.25@7.00; medium to good light and handy-weight calves 9.50@10.50; stockers and feeders steady; several loads meaty feeders 7.00@7.75.

Hogs 31,000; active to ten cents higher; butchers 7.30@7.35; top 7.40; medium 7.15@7.25; packing sows 6.65@6.50; estimated holdover 14,000.

MONEY At Work

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

There is no royal road to prosperity. The first and hardest step of all is to save the first thousand dollars.

In talking over old times with successful self-made men, there is one point of similarity which stands out in the experience of all of them.

Almost without exception the hardest pull in their lives was to save the first thousand dollars. It meant more to them in self-sacrifice and denial than any other achievement in their lives.

Saving that first thousand dollars taught these men how to save and developed strength of character which led to success later. Furthermore, after accumulating that thousand by hard work and selfdenial, they were mighty careful how they invested it.

If you want to get ahead, start the saving habit and get that first thousand dollars accumulated.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—A continuation of yesterday's advance carried the price of March contracts up to 34.36 in the cotton market during today's early trading, but the demand tapered off at this figure and there were sharp reactions later under renewed liquidation. March broke to 33.53 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing easy at net declines of 50 to 75 points.

The market opened at advances of 13 points to a decline of 22 points and firmed up during the early trading on further covering and some trade or fresh commission house buying promoted by relatively steady cables, more encouraging trade advices from Manchester, steadier foreign exchange rates and bullish statistical forecasts based on yesterday's report on domestic mill consumption for December. Active months sold 15 to 22 points net higher in consequence, with May to 34.55 and October to 28.80, but at these figures the demand seemed to have been pretty well supplied and trading became quiet. Primes held fairly steady during the middle of the day on bullish southern spot advices and absence of selling pressure but increase toward the close, although there was no change in the general character of the news. Demand continued light and the market broke rapidly during the last half hour with May declining to 33.70 and October to 28.10, making net declines of about 50 to 75 points on the active months. January was relatively quiet but sold off from 34.00 to 33.70 and close at 33.25 bid. There were continued complaints of delayed farm work in the tonight and colder tomorrow, but the demand for October was less in evidence after the narrowing of the difference in the old crops yesterday.

Port receipts today 21,551 bales. U. S. port stocks 1,030,218. Exports today 3,728, making 3,528,796 so far this season.

Broke With Crash.
The Shenandoah broke away from the mooring mast shortly before 7 o'clock. A crash audible above the roar of the storm brought officers and men from their barracks, but they scarcely had had time to adjust field glasses before she was lost in the darkness and rain.

As the alarmed men of the air station gazed upward bits of the torn outer rigging floated down upon their heads. This caused considerable speculation, as it was not known how badly the ship had been damaged.

Officers pointed out that there was no danger of an explosion aboard the Shenandoah as she is filled with non-explosive Helium gas.

Aside from the fact that she might drift into northern winds and beyond civilization little fear was expressed for the safety of the men, as it was believed the ship would stay aloft for a considerable length of time.

The few persons who saw the ship actually break away said she lurched uncertainly as the storm increased in intensity then rising slowly began to drift to the northwest.

Cap Torn Off.
The metal nose cap which held the Shenandoah to her mast was completely torn away. The entire frame work of the ship converges into this cap and officers pointed out that the danger of this frame work being torn away from the gas bag was greater than any other. Commander Weyerbacher said he had little hope of the ship's returning safely, but if it was humanly possible to bring this about he was sure Captain Heinen could do it.

Later it was learned that Captain McCray who is commandant of the station and Commander Weyerbacher, were not on board the dirigible. They were at mess when they broke away and Captain Heinen was in command. Commander Pearce also was on board with a crew of 20 men.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The nose of the Shenandoah was pulled out when she was wrenched from the mooring mast, according to a message received at the naval department tonight from Captain McCrary at Lake Hurst, N. J., which will interfere her steering into the wind. All engines are in good condition, however, he added, and she had on board oil and fuel sufficient to give her full speed for forty-eight hours.

There are also emergency and fresh rations, the message said, for forty men for forty-eight hours aboard. The radio of the ship, it was explained, was temporarily out of commission because of tests that were being conducted with it, but this was put back in commission in about one hour.

Plans for the completion of preparations to use the Shenandoah in the polar exploration flight this summer wer under discussion today at the regular weekly conference of bureau chiefs with the chief of naval operations. It was explained the Shenandoah had been moored at her mast at Lake Hurst since Saturday in the ten day test of the mooring apparatus.

The ship was scheduled, according to the program reported to Admiral Eberle, chief of operations, to leave the mast mooring during the day for a test of the high power radio compass installation put in within the last few days.

At the conclusion of that test, the Shenandoah was to have returned to spend the night at her mooring mast.

The whole naval exploration project rested to a large extent upon the efficiency of the mooring mast attachments, and the test at Lake Hurst was to have been in the nature of a final demonstration of the success of this method of mooring big airships in the open air.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Officials of the New York City weather bureau expressed the opinion that the Shenandoah would be blown toward Lake Ontario by the southeast gale that tore her loose from her mooring mast at Lake Hurst, N. J., tonight.

They said the severe wind and rainstorm in which the big dirigible was being buffeted, extended as far west as the lower lake region, with the probability that the gale was less intense in the interior than at either Lake Hurst, or other points along the Atlantic shore.

GRAIN MARKET IN UP SWING

Corn Leads Movement With Oats and Wheat Following

By The Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 16. — Impressive upward swings in the corn market resulted today in a repetition of recent almost daily breaking of high price records for the season. Oats also over-topped the season's previous record, with wheat equaling the highest figures in present movement. Corn finished strong at 7-8 to 1@1 1-8 cent net gain, May 79 3-4 to 79 7-8. Wheat closed firm, 1-8 to 1-2 cent up, May 1.09 1-4 and July 1.07 7-8. Oats scored 1-4 to 1-2 cent advance. In provisions, the outcome varied from 15 cents decline to a raise of 2 cents.

All deliveries of oats as well as of corn attained the highest prices yet touched this season. Shipping demand here for oats was active, and receipts continued light.

Blinding Snow Brings Mishaps

By The Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—In advance of the predicted cold wave which overspread the northwest last night with below zero temperatures from Central Iowa northwestward, snow in some of the north central states, brought death and injury.

The first heavy snow of the season in Chicago covered the earth to a depth of about six inches, causing the death of one man and injury to others. George Castle, in the blinding snow, walked in front of an elevated train and was killed. Kalachi Houghton was probably fatally injured in another accident and three trainmen were injured when a Michigan Central baggage train engineer was unable to see the derail signals because of the snow and ran his engine and three cars off the rails.

RUSH TO HELP SINKING SHIP

Danish Steamer Sends S. O. S.; Cutter Goes To Aid

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Naval communications here, picked at 5:30 p. m. today an S. O. S. from the Danish steamed Normania, saying she had sprung a leak in her engine room, and was twenty miles southeast by east of Frying Pan lightship, on the coast of Virginia, in need of immediate assistance. The coast guard cutter Yamacraw has gone to her aid.

Another radio from the leaking vessel announced she was sinking fast. The Charles Harwood radioed she was steaming to the aid of the stricken vessel, and probably would reach her within an hour.

The Normania is a freighter of 2,000 tons. She left Charleston January 14, bound for Chester, Pa.

FALL ATTACKED IN THE SENATE

Senator Caraway Denounces All Concerned in Dome Deal

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Corruption in connection with the lease of the Tea Pot Dome naval oil reserve to the Sinclair interests was charged to day in the senate against Albert B. Fall, former secretary of interior, by Senator Caraway, democrat, Ark.

Moreover, Mr. Caraway assailed Secretary Denby and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt in connection with their approval of the lease and attacked Attorney General Daugherty. He declared that as long as Mr. Daugherty remained "at the helm of the department of justice they may sell the White House and be absolutely immune from any presecutions in the federal courts."

Reviewing the lease and dwelling on the several statements by Mr. Fall and Edward B. McLean, Washington newspaper publisher, as to the source of the funds used by Mr. Fall in enlarging and improving the New Mexico ranch, Senator Caraway summed up his address with this declaration:

"We are faced with this humiliating situation, for the first time in the history of America, so far as I know—and I hope it will be the last time—a cabinet officer betrayed the high trust imposed in him, and for a corrupt consideration, sold the very means by which our national defense is to be protected."

Transfer Unauthorized.
Senator Caraway declared that after President Harding, without authority, had transferred the naval oil reserve from the control of the navy department to the interior department, Mr. Fall, "without notice to the country negotiated some kind of a deal with two oil people, and parted with the last gallon of America's naval reserve fuel."

"The investigation committee," said Senator Caraway, referring to the senate public lands committee, which was directed to inquire into the lease, "finally commenced to inquire with reference to the suddenly very vast increase in the apparent prosperity of Mr. Fall, and he came before the committee and made a statement. The evidence was offered, and then he declined to go back before the committee, but claimed the privilege of writing a letter. In this letter, since it had been positively proved that Mr. Fall left here about the time he let his friend Sinclair have the Tea Pot Dome, he said he left Washington with $100,000 and carried it down to Texas and deposited it.

"Anyway, Mr. Fall made a statement, rather resentfully, with reference to where he obtained the money. He said he was preparing to buy a ranch down in New Mexico and that the banking facilities were limited and therefore he just took along the cash. He wound up with a burst of indignation by saying: 'The gentleman from whom I obtained it'—referring to the $100,000—'and who furnished me the cash was the Hon. Edward B. McLean of Washington, D. C.'

"The investigating committee sent down to Florida the senator from Montana (Mr. Walsh) who took a first hand statement from Mr. McLean. Incidentally, Mr. McLean's real lawyer, Mr. Lambert, went along to advise his client, to enable him to remember just exactly what did occur, and when he got with his lawyer, he remembered that he never loaned Fall a dollar in his life, but said that Fall came to him and wanted to borrow some money, and he gave him some checks, and that afterwards Mr. Fall gave him his note, and that these checks were in a day or two returned to him uncashed, with the statement by Mr. Fall that he had gotten this money from some other source, and therefore, did not require it.

"The senator from Montana, then wrote to Mr. Fall, who is now also down in Florida for his health, putting up at the same hotel with that other invalid, Mr. McLean, and called his attention to the fact that Mr. McLean had repudiated the statement he made to the committee and asked him if he would care to make a further statement, and he declined to do it, except that he wrote a letter in which he said:

" 'McLean told the truth. I never got any money from him'."

MORROW TAKES BOARD OFFICE

By The Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Remarking that, having been reared in a small town where the railroad payroll was the only payroll, he appreciated the importance of his new task, Former Governor Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky, today took office as a public representative in the United States railroad labor board.

He succeeded Judge R. M. Barton of Memphis, Tenn, resigned, who intimated today that he was thinking of publishing some of his conclusions touching railroad labor disputes and their conciliation and ajudication.

LEGION HALL IS NEW FITE HOME

Snappy Card Is Announced For Fans in Saturday Night Program

American Legion hall will be the scene of the Legion's next boxing go, Saturday night beginning at 8:15, announced Don Wofford last night.

The bill of Duke Trammell-Texas Kid, Wildcat Monte-Kid Snyder, Anderson Martin-Chief Koren, and Batling Jennings-Rodolph Merrill, is all ready to run, and will receive the addition of Rattlesnake-Wichita Slim, besides, the battle royal.

Wichita Slim will be remembered by fans as the lengthy colored boy who last summer was so smiled upon by Lady Luck as to cop right smart of the battle royal honors at the lake fights. Now, Wichita Slim, after an absence of some months, out and back, to and from, let it be known that he is in the market for glove pushing, and will be given a no doubt all satisfying amount of it Saturday night.

In setting the stage for the fites at Legion hall, officials state that more room near the ring will be given fans. The ring is being built in the center of the floor, with the seats around it. This way, spectators will be closer to the action and will have it nearer them than if it were located in one end of the building.

Lions Hear Talk On Advertising

"The Best Advertisement I Ever Saw," was the subject taken by G. W. Curd who made the first address at the regular weekly meeting of the Lions club Wednesday noon at the Kemp. He declared that an advertisement that appeared in the Saturday Evening Post was the best. He was followed by G. T. Buchanan, who told of "The Poorest Advertisement I Ever Saw." H. Gordon Cross, manager of the advertisers' advertising agency, made an address on advertising, explaining the value and waste of window display, courtesy, newspaper advertising, direct by mail advertising, and of his own service. Mr. Cross gave statistics and suggestions in regard to advertising.

"Plan your work and work your plan," was the slogan used by J. N. Allison in his talk "Wastes in Newspaper Advertising."

"When you buy newspaper advertising, you purchase privilege of putting your message before the readers of the paper," he stated. Mr. Allison pointed to the William Wrigley company's enormous appropriation of $6,000,000 for advertising in 1924. He said that the average local merchant gained little from the large circulation of a newspaper outside of the city. In his address, Mr. Allison explained the newspaper's viewpoint of advertising and also the Audit Bureau of Circulation's methods of checking circulation figures of newspapers. He left the suggestion with the club that the members first think of what they wished to say to the readers before advertising.

Dr. A. D. Patillo, stated that a newspaper is the power for good or evil in a community, and that it is the prime object of the publication to benefit the people. He spoke against patent medicine advertising and quack doctor's advertising, and stated that because of these two forms of advertising, the medical profession did not wish to use newspaper space.

Adjutant D. G. Swanson, commander of the Salvation Army of this city, made a talk on his experiences during the recent earthquakes in Japan. Mrs. Swanson also made a short talk.

The program on advertising was arranged by H. Gordon Cross, chairman of the program committee. Joe Hatchett, vice-president of the club presided at the meeting.

SUIT OVER $9 GROWS AND GROWS

Justice and value received at any price is evidently the conviction of two parties to a law suit which was concluded here yesterday.

In this case, the original suit was for $9. It was appealed from justice court to the county court at law, highest court to which such a suit may be taken. In justice court, costs along amounted $17.65, but one party was far from satisfied.

Accordingly, after the jury had given verdict in the county court at law, this suit was found to have cost over $50, for court and attorneys' fees.

Both sides went far above the original figure set in the suit. Whether or not they departed sadder and much wiser men is not on record, but the fact stands that it cost both of them to see the showdown.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS TAKE OVER FILM

Have Arranged to Handle Presentation of Historical Picture

Arrangements have been made with Manager Wiley Day of the Strand theatre by the local Camp Fire Girls under Miss Glenore Fisk, executive, to handle the presentation of Charles Ray's "Courtship of Miles Standish" the week of February tenth.

The girls will sell tickets in advance, receiving a percentage of sales, and will present a Puritan prologue in costume at the evening showings of the picture. Camp Fire Girls in costume will also serve as ushers. Plans are under way to arrange a special school children's matinee, following the custom of Chicago, Boston and Cincinnati, who urged that every school child see the picture because of it's literary and historical value.

The heroic story of the birth of the American democracy which has thrilled millions of readers in Longfellow's poem, "The Courtship of Miles Standish," has at last been told on the screen with a scope and beauty befitting its importance.

Charles Ray has taken the poem and enhanced its beautiful legend of the adventure of the ET TT T,ten?oE the love of John and Priscilla with a spectacular photodrama of the adventure of the Pilgrim Fathers. It is one of the super-specials of the year and comes to the Strand theatre on Feb. 10.

"The Courtship of Miles Standish" is not, however, strictly an educational film in purpose. It is first of all an engrossing entertainment concerned with the exciting deeds and adventures of real men and women who have been little understood by their posterity. But while the picture has all the elements of exciting interest, it was made with careful regard to history.

It contains views of the storms which nearly destroyed the Mayflower and its brave company, the first struggles on land with the Indians, the first Thanksgiving feast, the signing of the Mayflower compact, the first blows struck for the founding of a mighty new empire of freedom and, of course, the beautiful courtship which gave to our literature one of its most famous phrases; "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co. Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

SALVATION ARMY WORK IS HEAVY

Total of $584.14 Spent For Relief During Week

Relief work done by the Salvation Army during the past week has been much heavier than the usual run of the work, according to Envoy Atwood of the Salvation Army, Wednesday. A total of $584.14 was spent in the following cases of relief:

Four hundred and eighty loaves of bread were issued; 729 garments were distributed among the needy, as were 59 pairs of shoes. Meals were given to 12 persons, and lodging to five. Transportation was given to two, and two were sent to the General hospital for treatment. Besides this, groceries were included in the relief work, and 100 pounds of coal was given away.

Will Lecture On Japanese Quake

Adjutant Swanson will give a free lecture on the Japanese disaster at the Palace theatre Monday night, January 28, at 8 o'clock in place of Saturday night at the citadel. The change was made because so many of the citizens have planned to attend the lecture, and the seating capacity was not large enough at the citadel.

A lecture will be given, however, at the citadel Saturday night by Adjutant Swanson, his subject being, "The Future of the Salvation Army in Wichita Falls and the Old Time Religion."

SPHINX WOMAN NOW RELEASED

That law and justice is sure and supreme, has just been the findings of a woman brought before the grand jury here last Friday. Playing all untrue to the age-old characteristic of her sex in regard to talking and true to that accusation of "refusal to acquiesce at the most unseemingly times," no little conjecture was aroused as to what would be the culmination of the small contraversy centering around the "sphinx woman".

After refusing to answer a question put to her by the grand jury, being fined $100 for contempt of court, lodged in jail for a period and finally coming to terms by answering the question, Miss Nora Richardson was released from confinement Wednesday morning by order of Judge H. R. Wilson, with her fine remitted.
