3 Days Of Showers, Fog and Drizzle

In terms of inches it wasn't anywhere near as much rain as was needed but it made it just as muddy and slushy underfoot as if it had been a gully washer of 4 inches.

It started on Friday night with the most precipitation and continued up to Monday with heavy over-cast skies and occasional sprinkles and fog.

When it was all added up we found that more people reported less than an inch than over that amount. But always grateful for small favors we find farmers happy that it will give new life and growth to small grain crops and weeds for grazing. One said it would produce a lot of green stuff for about two weeks, but more rain would then be needed.

Skies cleared here Monday afternoon. The following figures are what was reported for the three-day period up to that time.

Former Pastor's Wife Killed In Car Wreck

A car accident in Georgia recently claimed the life of Mrs. J. A. Carriker of Charlotte, North Carolina. Following account is from a newspaper there:

A retired Charlotte minister's wife was killed and her husband and son, a local fire captain, were injured in a two-car accident Sunday night near Sylvania, Ga.

Dead was Mrs. John A. Carriker, 69, of 2043 Chesterfield Ave. Injured in the accident were Rev. Carriker, former pastor of Eastminster Presbyterian church here, and their son and daughter-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. John A. Carriker Jr. of 3300 Winterfield Place.

The pastor retired from the ministry in 1961. In addition to the injured persons, Mrs. Carriker is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Edmund B. Clark Jr. of Charlotte; a son, Donald M. Carriker of Charlotte; a sister, Mrs. C. H. Gillespie of Cincinnati, Ohio; a brother, William D. Dorsey of Elizaville, Ky., and nine grandchildren.

The Rev. Mr. Carriker served as pastor of the Presbyterian church here back in the mid-1940's. The clipping, which is at least a week old, was received here by Mrs. Leslie Baker.

The family home is at 2243 Chesterfield Ave., Charlotte, North Carolina 28205.

Post Script

We say hats off to the Jaycees for their enterprise in staging a wrestling match here Tuesday night. The Abilene Wrestling Club put on a good program which was attended by a packed house.

The more different kinds of entertainment that can be offered in Eldorado, the more different kinds of people will be attracted here. Some like dancing, some like golf, some like wrestling and some like rodeos.

It's good if we can offer something for everyone.

Right now we are patiently waiting to see some action so the new rodeo grounds.

The sunshine that finally came back late Monday and Tuesday makes us feel glad that "sprig has finally cub."

Maybe the heavy work load they have been having at the Medical Center will begin to ease off.

Sheriff Orval Edmiston reported this week that slightly more than half the passenger cars in the county had had new '69 license tags purchased for them.

The deadline is April 1st for having the new tags on. Local residents who have not yet purchased their new license plates should take care of the matter as soon as possible and avoid the last minute rush.

Also, April 15th is deadline for new safety inspection stickers to be on all vehicles.

Mr. Howard Sikes of Santa Anna was in Eldorado Saturday for the Plateau Relays. The relays were started and then called off on account of the wet track and damp rainy weather.

Mr. Sikes is father of the late Coach Tommy Sikes who served on the coaching staff of the Eldorado schools before his untimely death in a pickup-car accident, the summer before last.

The Tom Sikes Memorial Trophy is a traveling trophy which is given to the winner of the Mile Run each year, and Mr. Sikes stated that the trip here was worthwhile because he saw the trophy for the first time.

While in Eldorado, Mr. Sikes visited the Success office and took out a subscription for a year.

The airplane crash at Maracaibo, Venezuela, this week which claimed over 150 lives and which has been cited as the largest such single disaster in history, had special interest for Mrs. Rose Doyle of this place.

Mrs. Doyle stated that she and her family had been on that same flight a time or so. Mrs. Doyle's husband, Kenneth, is currently working in Venezuela and his family have visited him there from time to time.

Printers do misspell words sometimes and when we do we expect some sharp eyed reader to call our attention to it after the paper is out.

After the paper was all printed and mailed last week we noticed we had made another boner, and it was in the biggest and blackest letters in the whole paper!

It was on page 5 and in large black letters 1 1/4 inches high, and up to this time not one single reader has called our attention to it.

If you still have last week's paper lying around, you can look it up. But more than likely you've already destroyed it, and to satisfy your curiosity we'll just fess up. It was in the ad for the First Baptist church revival and in assembly the largest letters we had one letter transposed and it read REIVVAL!

But if that still doesn't spell "revival," then what does it spell?

Friday, the 28th of March, is the date set for the Spring Festival of the Eldorado Parent-Teacher Association.

This will be the major money-making event of the year for the organization with each class a 1 grade in school sponsoring a booth of some sort.

Mrs. Margaret Ellen Nixon is finance chairman this year of the P.T.A. and arrangements are reported about complete for the festival.

We will carry further details in next week's Success issue.

JC's Wrestling Card Draws Crowd of 1000

A screaming crowd of 1000 fans almost raised the roof as they cheered their wrestling hero, Rickey Romero, and just as loudly booed the masked Inferno, the bad guys, when they appeared on a wrestling card here Tuesday night in the old school gym.

Sponsored by the Eldorado Jaycees, the program was put on by the Abilene Wrestling Club.

It was the first time in the memory of local citizens that a wrestling match had ever been held in Eldorado. According to the trade made with the Abilene Club the JC's could not lose. The Abilene Club brought in and set up a portable ring; they brought their contestants, their loud speaker, paid for all the advertising, and retained 90% of all ticket sales. The Jaycees were in exclusive charge of concessions and sold hot dogs and cold drinks. The Jaycees of course had to provide location for the event and were able to obtain use of the old high school gym.

The portable boxing ring was brought in by the Abilene Club and was set up in the middle of the old basketball court. About 400 cane-bottom chairs were numbered and arranged on the floor all around the ring. In addition there was seating space in the bleachers for a much greater number.

The program was advertised to start at 8:30 and by 7:45 the bleachers appeared to be full and there was a steady stream of ticket buyers coming in at the ticket box. Cars were parked and double parked on all the streets leading to the gym and many were parked two blocks away.

Wrestling fans throughout this Southwest are familiar with wrestling programs on TV from Abilene at 10:30 each Sunday night; and they are familiar with such names as Rickey Romero, a great wrestler from Mexico City, and with the Lawman, and the hated Infernos, and others.

Veteran wrestling fans all agree that matches are staged for the entertainment of the audience. One will be the "good guy" and the other will be the mean one who pulls the dirty tricks. Just about the time the good guy has been mauled and stomped unmercifully where he seems unable to regain his feet, he suddenly comes up with a new strength and lays the bad guy low with a super-human new trick. The crowd loves it and they go wild and cheer to the rafters. Even if you know it is staged, it is awfully exciting and fun.

The first round was between Rickey Romero and one of the Infernos. Rickey was declared winner.

Next was the Lawman and the other Inferno. This one was declared a draw.

Then there were the two women wrestlers. They can act mean as all get out, pulling each other's hair and even slugging the referee.

Then there came a tag-team match with the two Infernos in one corner and Romero and the Lawman in the other. It was for the best two-out-of-three falls.

It was a new entertainment for Eldorado and many fans were hoping that it could be repeated.

Weather Causes Canceling Of Plateau Relays Last Week

For the first time since the Plateau Relays were started 13 years ago, bad weather caused the cancellation of the annual event which always attracts a number of track teams from West Texas schools.

The trophies were on hand, the schedule of events had been set up, food was on hand in the school cafeteria for the noon meal, the trophies and awards were on display to be given out later in the day, and the first morning event or two was run before weather called a halt.

Eldorado, along with the rest of W. Texas, had damp, drizzly weather all week end which dumped about an inch of moisture here. The track was wet, with puddles of water all around and a heavy mist continued to dump moisture Saturday morning.

The coaches consulted among themselves and decided that the day's events should be called off because the trackmen might take cold after running and then becoming chilled.

So the 30 teams and their coaches packed up and left about mid-morning.

The Eldorado coaches and school administrators are still indefinite this week about re-scheduling the Plateau Relays for later in the Spring. It would be difficult to find an open date.

This week end the Eagle track and field boys will attend the meet at Mason. On April 2nd, the District 8A meet will be held here.

"There's a Man Going 'Round taking names" was the title of an old Ozark ballad of by-gone days, referring to the census takers. The decennial nose-counters will be back in action next year, asking more questions than ever.

In fact, many of us are fearful that the scope of information to be sought will have evolved far beyond the purposes intended when provision for the census was written into the Constitution.

As now planned, the Census Bureau will use two questionnaires—a short form for three-fourths of households, which will contain questions on 21 subjects; and a long form which will contain about 120 questions on 67 subjects. It would take a half hour or more to fill out the latter.

A few samples of questions to be used: Your income, from all sources; the educational, marital, employment and military history of every citizen; with whom the bathroom and kitchen facilities are shared in each home; an enumeration of household appliances; automobiles owned; did you work at any time last week? And on and on.

It is planned to use a mail-out, mail-back procedure in the big city areas next year. Failure to answer, and as correctly as possible, could subject one to a fine of $100 and 60 days in jail. I have joined with 108 other members of the House in legislation which would make answers mandatory to only half a dozen questions. Those queries would relate to name, address, age, sex, head of household, and persons in the home at the time of the census. Answers to any additional questions would be purely voluntary, with no penalties applicable to them.

By limiting the questions and penalties to the few essential subjects, we believe the purposes of the census will be served. This would simplify the procedure, make the operation more palatable to the people, and achieve better cooperation on the part of all. It would save time and expense, and would avoid delving into personal and private matters.

The census every 10 years is highly essential. It provides the basis for proportional representation in Congress, and elsewhere. Beyond that, we feel answers to any additional questions should be on a purely voluntary basis.

Home Demonstration Agent's Column

By MRS. VIDA KREKLOW

Do you remember Michele Mahaffey, the Texas 4-H Club girl who is an exchange student in India? Michele is repaying the obligation of her opportunity by writing very interesting reports back home.

I think you will be as interested in her last letter as I was, India is a powerful nation in world affairs today; it will be to our advantage to know as much about the people as we can.

Dear Friends:

For the readers who have never been to India and seen Indian village life, I would like to describe some scenes of a typical Indian village.

Many villages have changed little in appearance during the last hundred years. The houses of these villages are still mostly built of mud with roofs of straw thatch. There are one or two small windows and perhaps a door with a short doorway. Between the houses run narrow, winding lanes, unpaved, with open gutters on either side. There is still no plumbing, no electricity and no gas in most of the villages. Water must be carried into the house from a well or tank. The women carry the daily water supply in earthen or brass pots and jugs on their heads and under their arms. Some women can balance three large brass jugs filled with water at one time and walk for miles to the home.

Washing one's clothes and one's body is also done in a tank—which in India means an artificial reservoir or pond fed by rain water and, sometimes, springs. It is kept clean by fish. Many of the villagers, like their ancestors, are rice farmers. They still use the ox or water buffalo for ploughing and as their beast of draught or burden. Trousers and other articles of city clothing are still unusual among them, but the men and more particularly the boys now often wear shorts. Shorts are cheaper than the dhoti, the cloth which is wrapped around the waist like a skirt or looped between the legs. The older girls now no longer veil their faces when in the presence of strangers.

The Indian village does not present an outward appearance of order. It will contain a number of temples and small shrines, but these are not meeting places as Christian churches are. Hinduism is primarily a household religion, and its rites of daily worship are practiced mostly in the individual homes. There is no inn or public eating house here because of the problems which arise from the caste rules forbidding some people to eat in the proximity of others. The Indian village has no central green or square; its meeting places are the wells and the tanks and only occasionally the temple precincts.

It has its own pattern of social order—a pattern more complex but more clearly defined than that of the American "village." This pattern is based upon the caste system. The members of each caste share the village among them, respecting each other's separateness, yet living in interdependence.

The villager's sense of belonging is strengthened by acceptance of caste. This may sound paradoxical, since the caste system implies a degree of rejection of certain individuals by others. The castes, however, are not merely exclusive; they are also interdependent. They provide for division of labor. Without each other's assistance, they could not exist.

The four main castes are:

1. bramins—priests
2. kshatrujas—warriors
3. vaishzas—merchants
4. sudras—servants

When the system was first established in India by its Aryan invaders many thousands of years ago, a man's caste was probably determined by his occupation in nearly every case. With the passing of the centuries, caste became a matter of hereditary social status, rigidly respected and surrounded by a mass of restrictions and regulations designed to prevent caste mixture. No amount of wealth could buy one membership in a higher caste, and intermarriage was absolutely forbidden. Meanwhile, the main castes were divided into sub-castes, corresponding to various trades and professions. Even these smaller and more precise categories have been broken down by the economic forces of modern life. Now, a member of the blacksmith caste is not necessarily a blacksmith.

The so-called untouchables are sometimes spoken of as a caste, but actually they are outside caste altogether. The present government of India takes the view that caste is an evil, since it makes men unequal. The caste has been legally abolished, but it will take years for it to be abolished in actuality in the villages and towns.

The round, red spot in the center of the forehead, the kumkum, is a generally acknowledged sign among the Hindus of wifehood, charity and purity.

The story of kumkum began many centuries ago when it was applied by both men and women. The center of the forehead was considered to be the seat of the soul, and kumkum was placed there in recognition of it.

It is only in the last few years that fashion-conscious Indian women have been given to changing the color of their kumkum to match the color of their saris. Up to now the kumkum has been exclusively red, the color of blood, considered one of the three life-giving colors and one having the magical power of increasing vitality and improving health. Generally, the kumkum is round because kumkum is said to be inspired by the everlasting sun, to which women can look up and pray for a long lasting married life. In recent years the mark has acquired many shapes and forms.

Indian women are never seen without a kumkum, even today. It is a part of their everyday dress. I hope I have given you some insight on the Indian way of life.

—Sincerely yours, Michele Mahaffey, Texas IFYE to India.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

by Tiny Godwin

Schleicher County Agricultural Agent

Mesquite control reduces competition to native forage plants and also results in increased production.

Both chemical and mechanical methods are useful tools in mesquite control. During the past 20 years, more than 20 million acres of mesquite on Texas rangelands have been controlled by chemical and/or mechanical methods. But to control the mesquite is not enough. A well-developed grassland management program is necessary for long-term condition improvement.

Due to the many seeds dormant in the soil, mesquite will continue to be a major problem. Thus, a complete program must be carried out over a 10 to 15-year period or longer to keep production high and the mesquite under control.

For further information on the maintenance control problems, control methods and economic returns from range improvement and mesquite control, obtain a copy of Fact Sheet, L-766, available at my office. They're free for the asking.

Goodwill is the one and only asset that competition cannot destroy.

Organic matter is the storehouse of plant nutrients in the soil. It is often referred to as the "fat of the land." It results from the decomposition of plant and animal materials by soil organisms. On the average it contains about 56% carbon and 5% nitrogen.

Organic matter improves soil structure and its ability to take in water and hold it in storage for later use by plants. It also improves soil aeration, loosens dense, compact soils and granulates loose, open sandy soils to give them a friable crumb structure.

Too, organic matter exerts a strong influence on the exchange capacity of the soil, and also acts as a buffer to prevent rapid changes in fluctuations in soil acidity or alkalinity.

During the decomposition process, a continuous supply of carbon dioxide, nitrogen in various forms, phosphorus and other nutrients so essential to plant growth are liberated. Organic matter serves as a storage facility for mineral nutrients such as calcium, magnesium, nitrogen, and many others making them less likely to be lost in drainage or water seepage. It also makes the soil more favorable for vigorous, rapidly developing root systems on young plants.

Continuous cultivation without giving attention to regular additions of residues gradually lowers the organic matter in the soil. The level may become so low that maximum cannot be obtained. Soil tests will show the organic level in the soil.

Always take your job seriously, never yourself.

A recent USDA report says costs at the grocery store for U. S. farm foods have risen 14% during the 1960's but during the same time, wages of food buyers rose faster. The percent of their income used to buy food declined from 20.7% in 1957 to 17.4% in 1967. Farmers in 1968 received 39 cents out of the food dollar, an increase of 1 cent over 1967. The farmer's share varied from 19 cents out of the dollar for bakery and cereal products to 55 cents for poultry and eggs.

Wait and See—The Apollo 9 astronauts may bring information that could help solve the problems of hunger. By using a battery of special cameras, they have photographed farm lands in the U. S. From these photos, it is hoped information can be derived which will show signs of drought and plant disease on crops and also on timber and grazing lands.

Mr. J. R. Barton of the Texas Educational Agency will conduct a farm are welding class at the Agricultural Building of the high school April 14-17. Those producers interested in attending should contact school officials.

Notice of Write-In Candidacy For County School Board of Trustees

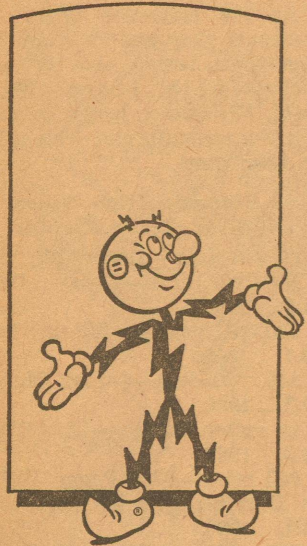

I hereby solicit the support and votes of the residents of Precinct 1 of Schleicher County on April 5, 1969, on my bid for the position of trustee on the County School Board.

As a result of a misunderstanding as to the final filing date for placing the names of candidates on the ballot, I am unfortunately forced to submit my candidacy on a write-in basis.

The fact that I am now a member as well as president of the present County School Board, the voters will have the opportunity to return an experienced and well qualified official to the County School Board for another term.

Reynolds H. D. Meets

The Reynolds Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Henry Moore with 10 members. Mrs. L. Moore, Otto Sauer, Jack Wade, H. A. Belk, Bascom Hartgraves, Cecil Williams, B. J. Reynolds, Ray Bruton, J. Tom Williams and Henry Moore one visitor Mrs. Mike Moore and the agent, present.

Mrs. Henry Moore, pres., presided. Minutes were read by Mrs. J. Tom Williams, sec.

Mrs. Mike Moore read an article, "What Is Spring?" by Aris Cantrell.

We were reminded of the District meeting in Sweetwater on April 10th.

The program was on protein food, different cuts of meat, why meat cuts differ in price, and the way different cuts should be cooked.

With study and time, good nutritious meals can be prepared at a nominal cost.

The lower price cuts of meat are as nutritious as the higher priced cuts, but must be prepared differently and at a lower temperature and with lower cooking time.

The price of meat should be figured, "How much per serving instead of how much per pound."

Vida cooked an arm roast that was served with French bread and gravy, cake, tea and coffee being also served by the hostess.

Our next meeting will be a combined meeting with the Good Neighbor Club with Mrs. Gene Edmiston April 22. Vida will be unable to be with us, but there will be a guest speaker on safety.

CALLS FROM HONG KONG

Army Spec. 4 Tony A. Clark, serving in the 1st Cavalry in Vietnam, is spending 5 days in Hong Kong on his rest and rehabilitation. He called his parents Monday morning, which Mickie and Mr. and Mrs. Clark enjoyed.

Tony reported that he was doing fine and that Hong Kong had good thick steak.

Mary Hoover left Monday to return to Dallas after visiting her mother, Mrs. L. M. Hoover, and Miss John Alexander and other relatives here.

Austin, Tex.—Texas lawmakers are nearing the halfway mark of the 61st legislative session and the pace is beginning to quicken visibly.

More than 1,200 House bills and some 700 Senate bills (plus nearly 100 proposed constitutional amendments) were filed by Friday, the deadline for free-introduction of bills. A four-fifth majority now is required.

Although floor sessions are brief, a lot of legislation is getting passed—63 bills last week alone, including some of the session's major business.

And the lights burn bright at the state capitol after midnight for some committees which schedule hearings on as many as a dozen bills at a time. Other committee meetings begin as early as 9:00 a.m. and last until floor action starts in the House and Senate.

So far, the Senate has reversed its usual form. It is cranking out general bills faster than the House where the representatives are pursuing a more methodical, look-over-carefully procedure.

Last week, for example, the Senate banged through 34 bills on its regular calendars, some so fast there was no time allowed for explanation, let alone debate. Across the rotunda, the House passed only 13 measures on major calendars, but representatives reduced the gap considerably by cranking thru 16 local bills at a single, hour-long sitting. Gov. Preston Smith signed six more into law.

One thing is sure . . . as the second lap of an historic legislative session begins, things will get a lot faster and a lot more hectic before early June when adjournment is scheduled.

Major Bills Moving

Legislature has completed action on, and handed the governor, a tough new measure providing fines up to $200 and jail terms up to six months for disruptive activity on college campuses. Bill won't take effect until the start of the new school year.

Senate passed key bills to put sharp teeth in air and water pollution controls, require breath tests of suspected drunk drivers, require public agencies to give three days notice of their official meetings and provide tougher controls over teen-age drinking.

Other Senate bills would authorize payment of up to $5,000 for moving homes and businesses displaced in highway right-of-way condemnation proceedings, remove the $8,400 salary ceiling on which teachers contribute to retirement, establish a temporary Governor's Human Relations Committee, set up a new commission to regulate credit unions and request the U. S. Congress to ease restrictions on cable television.

Both houses have passed their own version of bills to permit schools to teach in a foreign language those students who have difficulty with English in elementary grades, to lower from two years to one year the minimum time between elections to adopt or abolish city sales taxes and to close some public roads on state-owned land held for use of the Texas Department of Corrections.

House approved creation of a new Texas Technological College of Medicine at Lubbock and voted to strike down immunity of government units from lawsuits for damages. Representatives gave strong support to a bill to give the Legislature the right to set Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Columbus Day and Veterans Day holidays on Mondays to conform to the federal holidays.

Another House bill sent to the Senate would permit the state's 14 courts of civil appeals to issue writs of habeas corpus in domestic-relations cases.

Senate has adopted an amended version of a House bill to permit statewide cooperative network of local libraries. Governor Smith now has the bill.

Bills Runneth Over

Several education bills have been filed in the last several days. Rep. Guy Floyd of San Antonio wants the Attorney General's office to assist school districts threatened with the loss of Federal funds.

Rep. David Evans of San Antonio wants the state to contribute as much money to private school students as it does to public school students through the minimum Foundation School Program.

Rep. Jim Nugent filed a bill to prohibit the Legislature from enacting an individual state income tax.

Rep. Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi has a constitutional amendment to remove the ceiling on welfare payments.

Rep. Neal Solomon of Mt. Vernon has a bill to allow the agriculture commissioner to prohibit the sale of any milk not meeting agriculture department standards.

Rep. David Allred of Wichita Falls introduced a one bill package prohibiting racing a car motor, sudden stops or starts, unnecessary horn-blowing, contesting speed, fighting, indecent language, throwing things, littering, loitering or intoxication on shopping center parking lots.

Tax Time

House Speaker Gus Mutscher has been talking with legislators to see what sort of tax program they will support to pay for the new programs which they may pass. Governor Smith's tax program was introduced by Rep. Ben Atwell of Dallas. It also puts a $10 "super-fine" on all who violate the traffic laws where motion is involved.

Committees At Work

House State Affairs Committee got into the basic philosophies of rural life and business economics while considering a bill by Rep. Neal Solomon of Mt. Vernon. It would require telephone companies to maintain an office in every county seat they serve. Bill was sent to a subcommittee for further study. Rep. Jack Blanton of Carrollton chairs the subcommittee.

Senate State Affairs Committee acted favorably on Sen. T. Creighton's bill to cut the time period between local elections on the optional City Sales tax from two years to one. It has gone to the Senate floor.

Also reported favorably by the Senate committee and tentatively approved by the Senate, was creation of a temporary Governor's Committee on Human Relations. It was sponsored by a triumvirate of liberal senators. Sponsors, however, lacked the endorsement of Sen. Joe Bernal of San Antonio—a leading liberal. He introduced a measure calling for a permanent state organization on human relations.

Texas physicians who specialize in organ transplants teamed up to testify for two bills by Rep. Jack Ogg of Houston before a House Public Health Committee. Drs. Denton A. Cooley, Michael Deba-key and Robert Bloodwell spoke for an organ gift act which would allow donors or their next of kin to give parts of the body and another bill that would give the county medical examiner a chance to examine the organs prior to transplantation. Measures were sent to a subcommittee.

Drug bills are plentiful at committee meetings. Senate Jurisprudence Committee delayed for two more weeks Sen. Charles Herring's bill to set a mandatory five-year sentence for anyone over 21 giving narcotics to a minor.

House Public Education Committee sent to subcommittee Rep. Joe Golman's bill to include drug education in public school curriculum.

Senate Jurisprudence Committee approved a bill requiring appeals from Liquor Control Board orders to be heard in the county affected.

House State Affairs Committee sent to subcommittee a controversial bill that would require Texas school districts to adopt "continuing contracts" for their teachers. It would not allow dismissal except for specific circumstances.

Attorney General's Opinions

A bill which proposes to change the boundaries of two of the 31 state senatorial districts would be a general law and on the effective date would require election of an entire new senate, says Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin. However, Martin said the measure would be repealed by the reapportionment required after the 1970 census, or by legislative redistricting board apportionment.

In other recent opinions, Martin concluded that:

—A bill changing powers and qualifications of the Red River Authority directors is constitutional, as is another measure which would give the Galveston City Council the right to recommend three of seven Galveston County Water Authority directors who are city residents.

—Texas Water Development Board could not transfer water from East Texas basins to other basins and thus circumvent a 50-year protection clause in the state constitution because of the addition of words "or for any other beneficial use" in legislation regulating acquisition and development of massive water storage facilities over the

Appointments Announced

Senate has approved 95 appointments by Governor Smith and former Governor Connally. Included are Gen. Ross Ayers of Friona as adjutant general, L. P. Gilvin of Amarillo as Parks and Wildlife Commission chairman, and Murray L. McWhorter of Austin to Veterans Land Board. Senate has not approved Connally's selection of William B. Blakemore of Midland to Texas Public Safety Commission. Smith, meanwhile, has asked for the attorney general's opinion squarely on the subject of whether the term of State Securities Board member Randall C. Jackson of Abilene began on Jan. 15, or whether appointment (made by Connally just before he left office) should have been left to the new governor. Smith may also ask similar advice on appointments by Connally to the University of Texas and A&M boards of regents.

Ned Price, Texas Board of Insurance member, is the new president of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. Alfred Lehtonen of Austin will be administrator of Office of Interstate Land Sales in U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Short Snorts . . .

April 15 is the deadline for required motor vehicle inspections, says Col. Wilson E. Speir, Department of Public Safety director.

Texas Memorial Museum has loaned to the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio a pair of Irish flintlock pistols used around the year 1830.

On April 1 the public school teachers won't be fooling—that's the day they will appear at hearings by Senate and House committees on bills to raise their pay.

Texas motor vehicle deaths reached an all-time high of 3,481 in 1968, an increase of 3% over 1967, DPS reports.

Red measles may be wiped out, due to a continuing immunization program in Texas, says the State Department of Health.

Notice of Write-In Candidacy For County School Board of Trustees

In announcing my write-in candidacy for Member-At-Large of the Board of County School Trustees I would like to state some of the reasons why I am a candidate.

1. Due to an APPARENT lack of proper communications a public notice of the election was not placed in the local paper AS CUSTOMARY and therefore I was unaware of the required filing date.

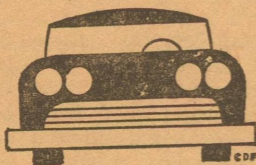

2. I believe, as do many of the rural tax payers who have asked me to consider being a candidate, that a majority of the board members should reside outside the city limits since the major duty of the County School Board is to route the school buses and such routing directly affects the parents and children who ride the buses each day.

3. I have learned that the candidate who had filed has since withdrawn and I feel that in view of my past experience on the County School Board I am qualified and will do the job to the very best of my ability.

Therefore I earnestly solicit your write-in vote and support.

Grass Strains Evaluated
Seed from 65 select grass strains are being planted in Texas and Oklahoma this Spring for field evaluation as part of a search for superior plants that will solve specific soil and water conservation problems.

H. N. Smith of Temple, State Conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, reports that about 6,000 pounds of seed from the 65 strains are being planted this year. The seed was grown at the SCS plant materials center at Knox City from grasses selected in Texas and Oklahoma.

"We are making progress in finding superior grasses adapted to a wide range of soil and climatic conditions," Smith said. "The individual problems, however, are so varied that it's a tedious job. In fact, we are now evaluating some 1100 strains of more than 100 different grasses at the plant center."

To illustrate some of the problems SCS is trying to help solve, Smith cited a few examples:
Blue grama is a top grass on certain drouthy range sites in the western portion of Texas and Oklahoma and should be used in range seedings in that area. The only blue grama seed on the market, however, is harvested on the High Plains and it is not well adapted to other areas.

Twenty native selections of blue grama are being evaluated at the Knox City center to try to find a better, more widely adapted strain. Two selections, one collected at Aspermont and one at Waurika, are showing promise but further evaluation work is needed.

A search is also under way to find a strain of western wheatgrass, a valuable winter grass on bottomland, for planting in central Texas. Again, the only seed available is from the High Plains and is not widely adapted.
Selections from Tahoka and Woodada are looking good but evaluation work is incomplete.

Work is also under way to find a grass that will thrive on land high in salt content. Such a plant would be extremely valuable for vegetating thousands of acres of bare, "salted-out" grasslands in Texas and Oklahoma, as well as oil fields damaged by saltwater.
Selections of alkali sacaton and inland saltgrass appear promising for these purposes. Alkali sacaton strains collected in Kenedy county and near Dell City are showing up especially well. Evaluating work on inland saltgrass has been hindered by its failure to produce seed at Knox City.
Other promising collections include several strains of sideoats grama for use in South Texas; a strain of silky bluestem, native to the deserts of Australia, for planting on arid sites in the Trans-Pecos area; and a Havard panic that shows promise for vegetating sand dunes.
After top plants are collected and proved at the SCS plant center, they are grown under field conditions on farms of soil and water conservation district co-operators. After final tests, superior varieties are identified and released to commercial seed growers who produce seed for sale.
A superior strain of kleingrass, called Selection 75, was certified and released by SCS and the Texas Agricultural Experiment station for public use this year, Smith said. Other grass strains proved and put into use by SCS include El Reno, Uvalde, and Vaughn sideoats grama; King Ranch bluestem, plains bristlegass, green sprangle-top, weeping lovegrass, Blackwell and Grenville switchgrass; and Elida sand bluestem.
Other work being done at the center includes a search for better ways to harvest certain grasses; ways to make some grasses, such as vine mesquite, produce seed more consistently; better ways to establish several plants; proper time and rate of fertilizer application; and irrigation efficiency studies for seed producers.

FILM MAKING FUN

Focus on the Great Outdoors

This effective long wide-angle "zoom" from the flowerbed all the way to almost the inside of the daisy was photographed from only an inch away without any additions or changes to the lens.

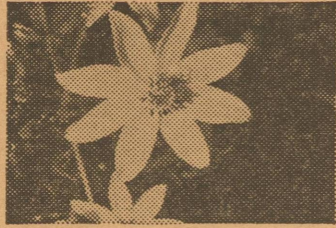

A budding photographer's fancy rapidly turns to thoughts of discovering the wonderful world outside. Any of nature's children—a crawling sand crab, a just opened flower, the tiniest insect—can play a beautiful close-up role on the home movie screen enabling nature lovers with a penchant for photography to explore their miniature world in a way never before possible.

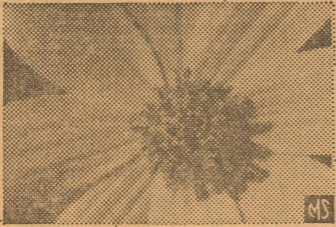

This faculty for filming from infinity to "1" in one simple handheld operation is the exclusive property of a revolutionary new lens unique in the Bolex 155 Macrozoom camera. Because there are no attachments to fool with that might scare off a subject, the camera is a natural for "live" close-up shots.

Imagine the film stories you'll be able to record by holding up this "microscope" to nature. The petal-by-petal blossoming of a bud into a bouquet; the intricate weaving of a web; an ant colony busily on the rise; the transformation of the lowly caterpillar into a magnificent butterfly—no subject is too difficult or too small to become a giant on the screen!

Another interesting technique possible with the Bolex 155 is simulating the dramatic film sequences we've all seen where a subject is followed from the distance to a point where it seems to be practically touching the lens. Rover rushing to greet his master; a child dashing outdoors to play; a motorboat skimming across the water—all have the potential for becoming the most exciting footage in your repertoire.

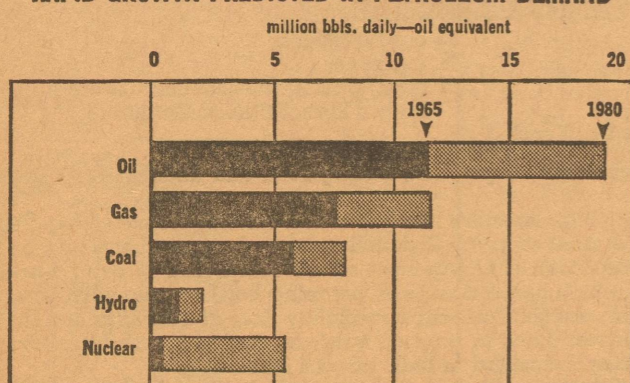

Little wonder then that the great outdoors is such a great favorite for film making fun. Once you've experienced transferring it to your home screen you're sure to find that not only your photography has improved—but your knowledge and appreciation for the fantastic world outside as well.

RAPID GROWTH PREDICTED IN PETROLEUM DEMAND

Projections by the Chase Manhattan Bank indicate that oil and natural gas will continue to supply nearly three-fourths of the nation's energy in the years ahead. The dark bars show demand for the major energy sources as of 1965 and the lighter bars the bank's predictions for 1980.
