Q—Why were the top 10 students of each grade for 1991-92 at Snyder High School not printed in the paper or even made aware to those students?

A—Snyder High School changed its policy last year from recognizing the top 10 students to the top 10 percent. Names of the top 10 percent were published in the SDN on May 19.

By 6-5 vote...

CED 11 tax rate set at 92.63 cents

It took a lot of discussion and four votes, but County Education District 11 board members finally agreed on a 1992-93 tax rate Thursday night.

In a 6-5 vote, trustees set the CED rate at 92.63 cents per $100 valuation. Earlier attempts at 89.96 cents, 91.21 cents and 93.43 cents all failed.

The key question in finding a middle ground for trustees was the rate of collection — what percent of taxes could the board assume will be collected. About five percent of taxes owed from 1991-92 are still outstanding, it was noted.

Sidney Wall, trustee from Ira ISD, opened the process by making a motion to set the tax rate at 89.96 cents — based on 100 percent collections.

"We ought to give our taxpayers in the CED as much break as we can," said Wall. "If everybody will get after the delinquents it can work."

If funds come up short, individual school districts could make up the difference, he said.

A majority of trustees, including Snyder ISD Trustee Terry Martin, disagreed.

"I've got some concerns, including the fact that the CEDs have been declared unconstitutional after this year, and some taxpayers have already paid under protest," said Martin. "I'm afraid that our collection rate will be lower this year."

Ralls Superintendent Larry Taylor, who is not a member of the board, also cautioned against setting a high collection rate. "This is not an enjoyable process for anybody, but I think it (a high collection rate) would hurt more than help the kids. In Ralls, we can't raise the difference if the collection rate is set too low."

CED Administrator Ray Peveler pointed out that a mistake in calculations in Fisher County resulted in a $4.5 million loss in valuations over the past week, and he said that Post could incur a $17 million loss in oil valuations.

Shelter offers pet adoptions

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

Last year, over 3,000 lost or unwanted animals were picked up in the county and sent to the city shelter. The fortunate ones were spared euthanasia through an adoption plan.

Stray animals are a problem with which the city continually tries to cope. In the first six months of 1992, an estimated 1,000 pets have been picked up.

These animals, a combination of strays and troublesome, unwanted or lost pets, are taken to the city's contracted animal shelter — West Texas Animal Clinic — where they are kept for a minimum of three days.

The animals are housed in separate cages in a building located behind Dr. Charles Church's veterinary clinic.

Church has maintained the shelter for the past six years. During that time, cages have been added twice to keep up with demand.

The facility is inspected yearly by area Public Health officials in Abilene.

Tessa Carr has been caring for animals at the shelter for the past 10 months. Her days are kept busy with registering and tagging all new arrivals. Plus she feeds and waters the animals and cleans their cages.

She also works at finding homes for her charges. The shelter has a three-day waiting period before animals are euthanasized, but in reality, if an animal has adoption potential they will keep it much longer until they can find it a good home.

However, when euthanasia is required, Dr. Church uses the injection method.

People looking for lost pets often can call the shelter. Many calls are also received from people looking for a certain type of pet. Requests vary from guard dogs to barn cats for the country and dogs that are good with children.

Tessa keeps a record of all requests and missing animal reports and tries to match each new arrival with its owner or a prospective owner. People also come to the shelter on their own in search of an adoptable animal. Many have adopted shelter pets in the past and are seeking to repeat their good fortune.

The shelter population varies in size and with the type of animals housed there. They offer a variety of mixed breeds as well as full-blooded animals and young and older pets. In general though, younger pets with good personalities have a better chance of being adopted, Dr. Church said.

Families or individuals looking to either reclaim a lost pet or adopt a new one have to first register with the Snyder Police Department. They pay a $5 shelter fee

Clinton claims he's more of a Texan

WACO, Texas (AP) — Bill Clinton, courting voters in President Bush's adopted home state, told Texans he may not be a resident but "my daddy was born here ... and I'm a whole lot more like you" than Bush.

The state's 32 electoral votes make it key to success in November and Democrats Clinton and Al Gore worked hard Thursday to push Texans away from Bush.

Clinton told an evening rally that the Republicans "literally have the worst economic performance since the roaring '20s."

"Folks, this deal is not working," he said of White House economic policies. "I think we can do better."

The economy has been the Democrats' main issue throughout the two-day bus tour that ends today.

Clinton ribbed Bush for claiming his legal residence as Texas, where the president uses a hotel as his address and owns a tiny plot of land.

"I want to tell you something folks, I don't have a hotel room in Texas and I don't have a plot of land about the size of this platform," the Arkansas governor said, "But my daddy was born here and I have a lot of kin folks here and I'm a whole lot more like you than he is."

A Rice University poll released the day before the Republican National Convention last week gave Clinton a 17-point lead in Texas, but GOP officials say the gap has since narrowed.

It was Bush, speaking to the convention, who raised the question of which campaign could be trusted on the economy.

Gore ridiculed the Republicans for having "the audacity to say this election is about whether or not you can trust them."

"Someone who says 'Read my lips' and then raises taxes on average working Americans ought to have second thoughts about raising that question," the Tennessee senator said.

Clinton said the Democrats have a simple plan for revitalizing the nation's economy.

"We call it putting people first," he said.

Lottery sales hit $450,000 here over first ten weeks

Lottery ticket sales in Scurry County totaled $450,000 during the first 10 weeks the tickets were available, according to the State Comptroller's Office.

The 10th week ended Aug. 6, and is the latest date information on tickets sales is available, state officials said.

Not surprisingly, the first week of sales has been the best. Some 61,000 scratch-off tickets were sold in the first week, which began at 6 a.m. on May 29. Since that time, sales have ranged from 58,500 the fourth week to a low of 26,000 the 10th week. Since the tickets sell for $1, the amount of tickets sold also equals the dollar value.

The state does not have an updated list of Scurry County outlets that sell lottery tickets; however the tickets are available at more locations now than they were when the games began.

This fall, the state will introduce "Lotto," or on-line computerized games. On-line games require a special computer in each retail location. Players will pick a series of numbers and pay $1 for a ticket on which those numbers are printed. The Lottery will then hold regular, televised drawings to pick the winning numbers. Players' winnings will be determined by how many of the numbers they match and by the size of the jackpot.

The computerized games will begin sometime before the Thanksgiving holidays, state officials said Wednesday.

Approximately 5,000 retailers will be licensed to sell the "Lotto" tickets at first. The state plans to add bout 1,000 new retailers a month, Lottery Director Nora Linares said.

A 10-week breakdown of scratch-off ticket sales in Scurry County shows: 1st week, 61,000; 2nd week, 44,000; 3rd week, 42,000; 4th week, 58,500; 5th week, 46,500; 6th week, 45,000; 7th week, 31,000; 8th week, 36,000; 9th week, 30,000; 10th week, 26,000.

Airlift underway to Somali interior

MOMBASA, Kenya (AP) — Four American cargo planes bearing more than 37 tons of rice, beans and cooking oil, touched down in the starving Somali town of Belet Huen this morning in the first U.S. delivery of aid to Somalia's interior.

Civil war and anarchy, however, threaten to disrupt distribution of the cargo that reached this nation of 6.5 million after two weeks of preparation and negotiation. Officials say hundreds of Somalis are dying daily.

Marauding gunmen and militias are estimated to have stolen about half the relief that has reached the war- and drought-plagued country this year.

The first C-130 Hercules cargo plane left Mombasa, the relief operation's base, around dawn, and was followed in short order by three other C-130s, said Donald Stader, the U.S. consul in Mombasa.

The United States is working in tandem with the International Committee of the Red Cross, which is handling the food on the ground. The international agency has been airlifting food to Belet Huen since early this year, caring for more than 100,000 people in the village, located 200 miles north of Somalia's capital, Mogadishu, on the border with Ethiopia.

Both Red Cross officials and U.S. spokesmen conceded that there had been some dispute over the Red Cross' longstanding conditions that the planes carry Red Cross insignia and hold no weapons.

Army Lt. Col. Robert Donnelly, a spokesman for the relief operation from Suffern, N.Y., said the Americans had yielded to the Red Cross' demands that the aircraft not carry armed men and that agency decals be affixed to the planes.

"Our mission, simply stated, is to deliver food to the needy," said Marine Brig. Gen. Frank Libutti of Huntington, N.Y., the head of the operation. "I'm absolutely confident we've done our homework. My decision is we're going to go. We can take food to Somalia and feel good about it."

Nearly 160,000 tons of American food are to be airlifted to Somalis in their own country and in refugee camps in Kenya.

Vice President Dan Quayle has been the target of comics and columnists concerning, among other things, his inability to correctly spell potato.

The Wall Street Journal, in a "tater" update, reported that the executive director of Ferry Farm, site of George Washington's boyhood home in Virginia said that Quayle is not the first high official in government to have mispelled potato.

The director, Robert R. Siegert, reveals that the father of our country wrote planting instructions referring to "potatoe vines," and that he committed numerous other eccentric spellings.

The article said that adding an "e" to potato did not prevent George Washington from reaching the White House or from performing his presidential duties.

In West Texas, it's still taters.

O.G. Nieman, in the Hereford Brand, is one of those who has tried just about everything — including patches — to stop the habit of smoking.

Nieman was wearing his patch and puffing on a cigarette when a fellow employee alerted him to the danger of smoking while wearing the patch. The employee explained that his doctor had warned him of the health risks.

Not remembering having been told, Nieman called his doctor — a good friend — and inquired. The doctor panned, "Ever see a dead man smoke."

It was Nieman who told about a worker who quit smoking. Somebody asked if he had gained weight since the appetite normally improves.

"Actually, when I stopped smoking I lost 125 pounds," said the ex-smoker. "Sure did," he declared. "Fact is, I got my wife off my back."

Parks closing plan pondered

AUSTIN (AP) — The state will work to build partnerships with local communities to keep open seven parks slated for closure under a budget plan, says the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission chairman.

"I don't think that long term you're going to see boarded-up windows and doors ... It's going to be a kind of, where do we share, and who is best able to manage that," said Commission Chairman Ygnacio Garza of Brownsville.

The commission on Thursday approved a Parks and Wildlife Department budget for fiscal year 1993, which begins Sept. 1.

The budget will close seven parks in three months, unless alternative management plans can be found, and make some funding cuts at 18 more parks.

Garza said the move is part of an effort to make the department more efficient, noting that state leaders have urged state agencies to tighten their belts.

He said officials would be looking mainly for volunteer staff support from communities, and that a push to market some parks could help. Garza also said the agency needs to be flexible. The commission in November will review the status of parks slated for closure.

Andrew Sansom, department executive director, emphasized that even if the parks are closed to full public visits, some access to them would be preserved.

For example, school groups could visit them on a reservations-only basis, he said. And Garza said there would be state money to maintain the sites so they don't deteriorate.

Some community leaders, worried about the budget plan, said they rely on park visitors to help support their economy.

"Menard is an endangered community," said Don Hults, president of the Menard Chamber of Commerce, who opposed cutting back operations to weekends-only at Fort McKavett.

"If we were an endangered cactus, you'd spend millions of dollars for our survival," he said. "We think we deserve the same consideration as a cactus."

Several lawmakers urged the commission to hold off on closing parks until the Legislature has a chance to consider the issue. Lawmakers next meet in regular session in January.

Sansom said the agency didn't wait because "we wanted to get the cuts made."

"We need to save that money, and so to allow us to go into a political process would put at risk our ability to realize those savings," he said.

Sansom said he would work closely with lawmakers and community leaders. Public hearings are planned in communities where parks are on the closure list.

The seven sites are Magoffin Home, El Paso County; Starr Family Home, Harrison County; Fort Lancaster, Crockett County; Eisenhower Birthplace, Grayson County; Cassells-Boykin, Angelina County; Confederate Reunion Grounds, Limestone County; and Old Fort Parker, Limestone County.

The move would redirect $1.1 million to other park priorities, the department says.

Houston school trustees approve 32% tax hike

HOUSTON (AP) — Anti-tax activists say they'll begin collecting petitions for a rollback election after Houston school trustees' approval of a 32 percent tax increase.

Trustees on Thursday unanimously approved Superintendent Frank Petruzielo's third budget proposal after earlier rejecting the first two, which contained even bigger tax hikes.

The superintendent said he was glad to be through with the budget process.

"Now we will have a fighting chance of having the revenue we need in order to do the things that everyone wants to do," Petruzielo said.

The $954 million budget will require a tax rate of $1.385 per $100 valuation, up from the current $1.05 rate. The owner of a $75,000 home will pay $761, an increase of $184 from last year.

The school board will not set a tax rate until later this fall, after the tax rolls are certified.

Anti-tax groups said they would begin a petition drive to force a tax rollback election.

"We have too many angry people opposed to this tax increase," said Athalea Curry, spokeswoman of the Taxpayers' Coalition of Greater Houston.

But Petruzielo said the district may not even risk a rollback if preliminary calculations hold up.

State law provides for a complex formula to determine at what rate voters can petition to roll back taxes. That formula takes into account lost state revenues, lower property values and other factors. Petruzielo said the cutoff rate may be $1.38, close to what the budget will require.

Seventy-four speakers addressed the board before its vote on the budget. Most of the speakers were in favor of the tax increase and some even urged trustees to increase rates even more.

Rebecca Muecke, parent of a Jones High School student, criticized the board for rejecting Petruzielo's first budget, which included a 47 percent tax hike. Trustees rejected that budget on an 8-1 vote and later rejected a 37 percent increase.

"You hired Dr. Petruzielo to help achieve what you declared were your beliefs and visions," Ms. Muecke said. "And yet, when he told you what it was going to cost, you cowered behind the business interests of this city who are more concerned about their profits today than about our children's future."

Budget opponents, however, said they were tired of paying increased taxes for a school system they said is failing.

"We are not only going to roll back the taxes," anti-tax advocate John Fafoutakis told the board. "We are going to roll you out of here."

The budget approved Thursday gives teachers and other employees about a 6 percent pay raise, adds eight new magnet programs, gives elementary schools discretionary funds to try to improve achievement and increases staffing in the academically troubled middle schools.

A large part of the increase is geared to offset a projected loss in state funds under the new finance law. Houston is expected to lose about $180 million over the next two years under the plan.

Perry apologizes for remark

AUSTIN (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry says he is sorry if Hispanics were offended by comments he made while criticizing trial lawyer support for Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton.

"Certainly, if anyone is offended, I apologize. I meant to offend no one," Perry said.

The apology was issued after Perry told a Thursday news conference the lawsuit problem is growing and "every Jose in town wants to come along and sue you for something."

The remarks brought criticism from a lawyer for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund and a Texas civil rights lawyer. But Perry said that was aimed at diverting attention from the need for lawsuit reform.

"These people are using this to divert attention from the issue at hand — the crucial need for reform of our legal system," he said.

Judith Sanders-Castro of MALDEF said she considered Perry's comment an insult.

"I don't think there's any way you can take those statements except as intending to be insulting to a specific group of people. He certainly isn't talking about Dallas or West Texas," she said.

"This is a classic case in my view of why you have to have lawsuits. You can't depend on people like Rick Perry to protect minorities. The only way you get these folks to comply with the equal rights protection of the constitution is to sue them. He may not like that," said Jim Harrington of the Texas Civil Rights Project.

Roy Barrera, a co-chair of President Bush's campaign in Texas, defended Perry.

"Rick Perry doesn't have a prejudiced bone in his body ... For Rick Perry to use 'Jose' as a figure of speech is no different from Roy Barrera using the figure of speech 'average Joe' or 'John Doe'," Barrera said.

Perry's comments came as the Republican campaign arm, Victory '92, accused Democratic presidential candidate Clinton of being "in the back pocket" of plaintiffs' lawyers and contributing to a lawsuit boom.

Perry said lawsuits and malpractice insurance costs had driven doctors out of small towns and were closing rural hospitals.

"There are people being denied health care in ... rural Texas because of the frivolous lawsuits of those ambulance-chasing lawyers out there," Perry said.

But he said everyone is in jeopardy.

"Whether you're a father wanting to coach a Little League baseball team or do whatever, you are exposed in the litigious society that we live in today," Perry said, adding:

"I mean, it is silly. Every time you turn around somebody is slapping a lawsuit on you. And I can speak from experience ... Let me tell you, I've got to have a legal-sized notepad single-spaced now to list all the lawsuits. Every Jose in town wants to come along and sue you for something.

"And that is what we're addressing today — just the overwhelming ease with which lawsuits are filed. You drive along that road in the (Rio Grande) Valley from Harlingen to Brownsville and it seems — I'm sure I'm exaggerating just a tad — but that every other billboard says, 'Hurt in an accident? Call me.'"

Asked about his comments, Perry told reporters that he didn't mean it as an insult. "If anyone took that as a racial slam, then they certainly were misreading it," he said.

The Victory '92 group said it is running newspaper ads urging votes for President Bush and criticizing Clinton for being too cozy with trial lawyers.

W. Texas town shocked over girl's death

EARTH, Texas (AP) — Mothers never thought twice about leaving their car running with their children inside while making a stop at the store in this West Texas farm community.

The 1,500 residents here have always taken pride in the town's low crime rate and friendly people.

But Lucretia Roland, a mother of three young girls, cringes at the thought now.

"You think in a small town you are entitled to a few more privileges, like letting your kids play freely outside," she said, near tears. "No way. You can't do it anymore — not even here."

Word ripped through Earth's dusty, saloon-style main street Thursday that 5-year-old Shawnlee Perry, who had been reported missing on May 7, was found dead about five miles west of town in a remote pasture.

She was last reported seen when she went to play with friends near an abandoned church next to her home.

Police said they are investigating the case as a homicide and acknowledged few leads. An autopsy also revealed little.

"It could be a week or longer before we know the cause of death," said forensic pathologist Dr. Jody Nielsen, who examined the body Thursday.

"The body was so decomposed ... the circumstances of her being found in an abandoned field is the most suspicious thing we have right now."

The community mobilized almost within minutes of learning the girl was missing. Cotton farmers climbed out of their tractors and into their pickups to join in the search while moms, dads and children dug into dumpsters and peered into bushes.

On Thursday, parents shivered in 90-degree heat, and the youngest of children struggled with the news.

"It makes y u kind of scared to go outside," said 9-year-old Kevin Rodriguez, a fourth-grader. "I'm sure not going to stop and talk to any strangers."

Some wonder if the fugitive is living among them.

Ms. Roland moved to Earth to raise her 10-year-old daughter and 6-year-old twin girls as a single parent "because they would be safe here."

"This is devastating," she said. "In a town this small, you can't help but think the person who did this is someone you know and have said 'Hi' to at the store."

Residents tore down hundreds of posters of the blonde-haired, blue-eyed girl who had four silver-capped front teeth and had never missed an episode of the Teen-age Mutant Ninja Turtles cartoon.

Others drove slowly by the thicket where the body was found.

Arvel Fleming, a retired mechanic, was one of the curious passers-by.

"I think it ought to be a public hanging for whoever done this," Fleming said. "Everyone I talk to has the same attitude."

Shawnlee's parents, Becky and Clinton Perry, hid with their only other child, Angela, 4, among the comfort of friends and relatives Thursday.

"We didn't want this to be the answer," said Paulette Garner, Mrs. Perry's sister. "The fact that she was so close makes it that much harder."

Even though her daughter had been missing for three months, Mrs. Perry had bought Shawnlee school supplies in hopes she would be found and able to enroll this week in kindergarten.

Police Chief Curtis Coffman couldn't remember the last murder in Earth, which is about 65 miles northwest of Lubbock. The death visibly angered him.

"This is a heinous crime, and I think this guy needs to be brought to justice," Coffman said. "It may not be tomorrow, this month or this year. But with a crime like this, there's no timetable."

Shawnlee's body was discovered about 5 p.m. Wednesday in a pasture by a man mowing grass.

No more permits for scattering remains

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Human ashes scattered recently in a Chaco Canyon kiva has caused the National Park Service to alter a policy on sprinkling cremated remains in some parks.

The agency has stopped issuing permits to spread cremated human remains in Southwestern parks that focus on the cultures of Indians or other ethnic groups.

"The cultural resources on a lot of our parks are of cultural heritage," said George Esber, ethnographer for the Park Service's Southwest region that encompasses New Mexico, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and northeastern Arizona.

"We're trying to be responsive to the meaning of that heritage to contemporary peoples," he said Thursday in a telephone interview from his office in Santa Fe.

The new policy, effective June 30, was triggered by the discovery early last August of an Anglo's human ashes spread in Casa Rinconada — the great kiva at Chaco Culture National Historical Park in northwestern New Mexico.

"Casa Rinconada is Anasazi and ancestral to the modern day Pueblo people," Esber said. "We've been told that a kiva is for the purpose of celebrating life, not a place where the dead belong."

Larry Belli, Chaco superintendent, said a Navajo maintenance crew working for the Park Service discovered the remains, which were given to San Juan County's medical examiner, who identified them and returned them to the family.

"This is the first time to our knowledge that it has happened" in the park, he said.

The new policy by John Cook, the Park Service's regional director, also said permits may be issued for burial only in established park cemeteries.

Burials outside designated cemeteries will not be allowed in any of the Park Service's Southwest region parks, he said.

Belli said more cremated human remains were discovered in Chaco on July 13. "These didn't have nearly as much material," he said. "Right now, we're still working on the case. We assume it was an Anglo."

Cook said it's a serious problem "that can have an adverse effect on both the Navajo and Pueblo people, as well as other American Indians."

"It's no different than spreading remains around a church or other place of worship," he said.

Duane Beyal, spokesman for the Navajo tribe in Window Rock, Ariz., said spreading cremated remains in a kiva is "considered to be desecration of an area that living people should stay away from."

"Traditionally, there has been a coexistence between living people and those who came before us and therefore a respect," he said.

"And to upset this respect and coexistence by sprinkling ashes on this kind of ground would create disharmony," Beyal said. "If that disharmony is created, it could affect people who are in the area."

Ed Natay, chief of the Park Service's regional office of American Indian programs, said ruins at sites in the Southwest might look like ruins to a visitor, but they aren't abandoned.

"Ancestors are still there," he said in a news release. "Spirits are still there. The Pueblo people still visit, still consider it the same as going to a lived-in place. And there is respect for all these sites among all the Indian people."

Belli said that besides cultural problems, the remains pose health problems if they end up in water that somebody uses.

Other groups also consider Chaco special, he said.

"There are a lot of Anglo people that are finding Chaco a source of spiritual strength," Belli said. "For them, it's not just an archaeological park.

"It's perfectly understandable that they want to be part of that into eternity if it's a source or your spiritual strength."

Belli said he could recall only one request since the early 1980s or late 1970s of an Anglo family requesting a permit for a burial at Chaco.

"It was last year. Because he was one of the old traders that was here back in the 1940s, we allowed the family to put the remains into the cemetery at the park," he said. "The family didn't want a headstone and we didn't allow a headstone."

Chaco's Weatherhill Cemetery is a small fenced-off plot once used by traders, Belli said.

Chaco might allow other burials in the cemetery, but only in special cases, he said.

"There will have to be some ties, not where Joe Blow wants to be placed in the cemetery," Belli said.

Bridges finds 'solace in God'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former "Diff'rent Strokes" star Todd Bridges says he has found solace in God since his acquittal on charges of shooting a drug dealer.

And Bridges, who was once a heavy cocaine user, said he hasn't touched the drug in three years.

"I've realized that all the things I do have to be done to glorify God," Bridges, 27, said in Wednesday's Los Angeles Wave newspaper.

Table presence and presents

By Phillip Alder

In the enjoyable book "Bridge My Way" ($22, 800-367-9967), Zia Mahmood gives a lot of practical advice. He tells you how to read the opponents' telltale hesitations. He details how to use your cards to their maximum effect, even at one point concentrating on how to generate tricks with nines. He explains how to mislead the declarer when normal defense won't defeat the contract — as in today's deal.

After his take-out double, South jumped to five spades to implore his partner to raise with something useful. North read the bid well, realizing his trump holding was ideal.

After South won the first trick with the club ace, his initial reaction was to play the ace and another spade. If the trumps broke 2-2 or East had the singleton king, he was safe. Otherwise, a 3-3 diamond split would see him home. And, as you can see, this line was going to work nicely. But when South cashed the spade ace, West dropped the jack.

Now it looked unnecessarily dangerous to lead a second trump. If East won with the king and returned his last spade, declarer would need the even diamond break. Instead, South started to cash his top diamonds, hoping that they were 3-3 or that East had four. However, South received a shock. West ruffed the diamond queen with the spade two. East's spade king defeated the contract.

The spade jack was a no-cost play. Zia doesn't say who was sitting West, but we can probably guess.

Readers are invited to send card-play questions to Phillip Alder, in care of this newspaper. They can be answered only through the column.

Exhumation of JFK's body sought

DALLAS (AP) — A private investigator from Houston wants a state district court to force the exhumation of President John F. Kennedy to determine whether his death was part of a conspiracy.

Joe H. West filed a suit Thursday asking a Dallas County state district court to force Dallas County Medical Examiner Dr. Jeffrey Barnard to exhume Kennedy's body.

"I'm only asking the court order him (Barnard) to do what was not done 28 years ago," West said. "They would have done it, had the federal, secret service and other federal people in the Trauma Room 1 not stolen that body by force."

The Warren Commission concluded Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, killed Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, firing three shots. Kennedy was declared dead at Parkland Memorial Hospital's Emergency Room. He is buried in Virginia at the Arlington National Cemetery.

West, 59, wants the president's body exhumed to be examined by two forensic pathologists.

"It's our chance, as the American people, once and for all to settle the age-old question whether the shot was coming from more than one direction," West said.

The retired investigator filed a similar request earlier this summer in federal court in Houston.

But his motion was dismissed hours after he filed it July 7 by U.S. District Judge Norman Black. The status of Thursday's lawsuit was not immediately known.

West said he has spent the last 31/2 years studying the Kennedy case after listening to a speech on the subject at a convention.

In the federal court request, West said he had not received any objections or support from the Kennedy family.

However, a spokeswoman for U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., praised the July decision.

"The ruling by the judge was very welcome," Melody Miller, Kennedy's deputy press secretary in Washington had said. "The petition was despicable."

Tigers entertain 'Cats in last practice game

The Snyder Tigers will host the Ballinger Bearcats in football scrimmages today at Tiger Stadium. Junior varsity teams from the two schools will knock heads at 4:30 p.m. followed at 6 p.m. by the freshman practice game and at 7:30 p.m. by the varsity tilt.

Today's action will mark the final practice games before the start of the 1992 grid season.

The Tigers, paced by a 37-yard touchdown run and an 18-yard scoring pass from Matt Cave to Jason Greene, outscored Ft. Stockton, 2-1, last Friday in the first scrimmage of the year for the Tigers.

Snyder head football coach David Baugh was pleased with the play of his starting running backs as tailback Ben Wilson scored on the 37-yarder and added a 44-yard burst later in the contest and fullback Wayland Harrison unofficially averaged just over six yards per carry.

Ballinger is picked to vie for a District 7-3A playoff spot this season, returning seven lettermen, six offensive starters and five defensive starters from last year's 7-3 squad.

Ballinger standouts to watch in the scrimmage include running back Kristen Trimble, who rushed for almost 1,000 yards last year, and quarterback Will Duggan, who completed 65 passes a year ago for 1,070 yards and 13 touchdowns.

The Tigers' regular season begins Sept. 4 when they host longtime rival and 20th-ranked Sweetwater.

In final preseason tilt...

Cowboys to take on Chicago

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Don't tell strong safety James Washington and wide receiver Kelvin Martin of the Dallas Cowboys that NFL preseason games are meaningless. They're in the starting lineup because of them.

They'll start tonight when the Cowboys take on the Chicago Bears at Texas Stadium. And they want to stay there.

Washington moved into the Cowboys' starting lineup with a strong performance in last Saturday's 17-3 exhibition victory over the Denver Broncos.

Washington was a training camp holdout, but he intercepted passes two consecutive weeks.

"I just wanted an opportunity, and I got it," Washington said. "Now I'm shooting for the Pro Bowl."

Washington can play both free safety and strong safety in the Cowboys scheme.

"James has been making plays, and his performance warrants him moving up to the first unit," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said.

Martin has been the Cowboys' best receiver with the holdout of Michael Irvin and the injuries to Alvin Harper.

"With them not playing, it has given me the opportunity to start," Martin said. "I'm pleased to be working with the first team."

Rookie defensive back Kevin Smith, the Cowboys' No. 1 draft pick, says he wants to use the Chicago game as a springboard to a starting job.

"I came here to be a starter, and I still think I have a good chance," said Smith, who has been hampered by a pulled hamstring and is seeking the job of Issiac Holt. "My goal is to start the Washington game. I still think I can make it."

The Cowboys have defeated Denver and Miami and lost to Houston twice in the preseason.

The Bears are winless. Coach Mike Ditka, taking a clue from his former mentor Tom Landry, uses the preseason games to scout his own personnel.

Chicago lost 28-17 to Pittsburgh on Sunday night with starting quarterback Jim Harbaugh playing only the first half.

Dallas recorded nine sacks, including eight of rookie quarterback Tommy Maddox, in the victory over Denver.

The Cowboys and Bears last met in the NFL playoffs last December. The Cowboys gave Johnson his first postseason win with a 17-13 triumph in Soldier Field.

The Bears and Cowboys are 3-3 in their previous preseason matchups.

To exhibition season...

Oilers seeking perfect finish

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Even though the games are basically meaningless, the Houston Oilers would like to finish the exhibition season with a perfect record.

The Oilers will take their 4-0 mark into Saturday's game with the Los Angeles Raiders at the Coliseum hoping to achieve the first perfect preseason record in their 33-year history. They have beaten the Cowboys twice, plus Detroit and New Orleans.

"It is only preseason," said Houston coach Jack Pardee, "but I'd sure rather be 4-0 than 0-3."

The Raiders own the latter record after losing to the 49ers, Rams and Redskins. And their approach to the preseason is slightly different, according to coach Art Shell.

"Sure, you'd like to win in the preseason, but I've been here when we didn't (as a player) and we still went on to have winning seasons," said Shell.

"The important thing in the preseason is for your team to play well and to come out of the preseason injury-free. We've been pretty lucky so far," said Shell.

The Raiders go into Saturday's game with only first-round draft choice Chester McGlockton on the sidelines. The defensive end from Clemson suffered a sprained foot in the first exhibition game. He is expected to return Sept. 6 when the Raiders open the regular season at Denver.

The Raiders expect to use linebacker Winston Moss for part of the game. Moss finally ended his holdout, signed a contract and reported to the team on Wednesday.

Two other Raider defensive starters, linemen Greg Townsend and Scott Davis, have not reported to the team and will miss the game. Both are trying to renegotiate contracts.

The Oilers this week signed holdout wide receiver Curtis Duncan and reportedly were near agreement on a contract for offensive lineman Mike Munchak.

They'll be without two Pro Bowlers, cornerback Cris Dishman and defensive lineman William Fuller, who are still unsigned.

Both teams expect to use their starting players for more than one half of Saturday's game.

For the Oilers, that means five-time Pro Bowl quarterback Warren Moon at the controls of the run-and-shoot offense that features four wide receivers.

The Raiders, who use a more conventional offense, will start Jay Schroeder at quarterback. Todd Marinovich, consigned to be the backup when the regular season begins, will work in the second half.

The teams have met only six times in the preseason, with each winning three times. Most recently, they played an exhibition game at Oakland in 1989.

SHS net squad to face Monahans and Pecos

Snyder's Tigers will compete in a pair of non-district team tennis matches Saturday in Monahans.

The host Loboes and Pecos will round out the three-way match field. Matches begin at 10 a.m.

Snyder will be trying to bounce back from a 26-3 loss to Big Spring a week ago.

First-year net coach Teri Hoerster was undaunted by last Saturday's loss.

"I felt like the team did a great job for not having much practice time," she said. "Big Spring is a tough team.

"With some confidence and mental toughness, we can pull together as a team. We have a great year ahead of us and we will win district again."

SHS winners last week include No. 2 boys' singles player Jason Warren, who handed Big Spring's Greg Biddison a 6-4, 6-2 whipping; No. 8 Kevin Jones, who edged the Steers' Jeff Johnston 7-6, 7-5; and SHS third seed Chris Gayle, who won by default over Paul McKinney, who was trailing 7-5, 2-0 when he retired.

Brett helps chase Ryan in 7-2 loss

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — In a showdown of two future Hall of Famers, George Brett's bat was more potent than Nolan Ryan's fastball.

Brett moved up the ladder on the career RBI and hit lists Thursday night with three hits and two RBIs off Nolan Ryan in the Kansas City Royals' 7-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Brett now has 1,509 RBIs, tying him with Mickey Mantle for 33rd on the all-time list. Brett has 2,964 hits to move ahead of Sam Crawford for 19th on the all-time hit ledger.

"Everytime you face Nolan, it's special," Brett said. "You have to be ready. I don't know how many times I've struck out against him, but I'm in his book. It's a challenge, and it's fun."

Brett said it fascinates him to bat against Ryan.

"I could tell the younger guys war stories, particularly back in 1974 when Nolan was 10 miles an hour faster and wild," Brett said. "How can you lose when you go against Ryan? He's the best. He's the guy who has struck out more hitters than anybody."

Ryan, 5-8, suffered his fifth straight loss and the seven runs matched the most he has yielded in a Rangers uniform. He went only 4 2-3 innings, giving up seven hits while striking out five and walking three.

"You can't be happy with the way things are going, but it's just part of it, I guess. I just haven't pitched well in my last three starts," Ryan said.

It was his 756th career start, tying Don Sutton for second all-time behind Cy Young's 818.

"I didn't make very good pitches to Brett," Ryan said. "You take a good hitter and not make good pitches to him, and he's supposed to hit the ball."

Brett was envious of rookie Kevin Koslofski, who hit his first major league homer and it came off Ryan.

"I've never hit a home run off Ryan, and Koslofski does it the first time," Brett said. "For Koslofski it's all downhill from here, but I have no where to go but up."

Hipolito Pichardo picked up his eighth victory against five losses, allowing only five hits over seven innings. Kevin Reimer's homer and a run-producing single by Ivan Rodriguez were the only runs off Pichardo.

Six-man teams slate scrimmages

While Ira is taking the weekend off to prepare for their 1992 six-man football season opener against Aspermont, a week from today, other local squads are using this final weekend before the campaign starts to fine tune their attacks.

Hermleigh hosted Highland Thursday, handing the Hornets a 5-1 loss in a controlled scrimmage and Borden County travels to Whitharral to play Lazbuddie in a 7 p.m. practice game today.

The Cardinals defeated Dawson in their first scrimmage of the season, 4-2, last week, including a two TD performance by freshman RB Joey Sanchez, who scored once on the ground and once on a scoring toss from Chris Roemisch.

Hermleigh begins the regular season Sept. 4 at Sands.

Borden County is entertaining hopes for a third straight playoff appearance. The Coyotes' campaign kicks off Sept. 4 in Gail against New Home.

Beck's extra practice pays off

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Chip Beck withdrew from a tournament to practice for the World Series of Golf.

And it paid off.

"I wanted to be prepared," he explained. "I wanted to learn the course and the greens. I'm glad I spent the two extra days here."

The two additional practice sessions helped produce a bogey-free, 5-under-par 65 that gave him a two-stroke lead Thursday in the weather-interrupted first round of this $1.4 million event.

Included in those 65 strokes were 11 one-putts, including par-savers on four of the last five holes at the Firestone Country Club.

Obviously benefitting from those added practice sessions, as well as an early tee time that got him off before the greens spiked up, Beck used only 11 putts on the back nine.

Mets deal Cone to Blue Jays

NEW YORK (AP) — David Cone is a bit puzzled why the New York Mets traded him before knowing for sure what he wanted.

Cone, the most dominant strikeout pitcher in the National League, was traded Thursday by the New York Mets to Toronto, bolstering the Blue Jays' bid to repeat as AL East champion.

The Mets, who fell to fifth place despite adding several high-priced players, faced losing Cone to free agency following the season. He rejected a $17 million, four-year offer in spring training, so the Mets decided to deal the 29-year-old right-hander now, and found Toronto anxious to take him for infielder Jeff Kent and a minor leaguer, believed to be outfielder Ryan Thompson.

Mets general manager Al Harazin apparently became convinced Cone wanted a five-year deal in excess of $28 million.

"Obviously they're taking a step backwards," Cone said. "They never contacted me about what I wanted. I never said I wanted a fifth year. Maybe they made the decision a long time ago that I wouldn't be back. I'm a little puzzled and a little confused how this whole thing went down."

CED tax rate set at 92.63 cents

amount of money the state said, then the estimate I set out will be required," said Peveler, who recommended the rate of 93.43 cents per $100 valuation.

The state has recommended that the CED raise $20,972,379 in taxes. That would take a tax rate of 93.61 cents, Peveler said. However, since the CED has already published an amount of 93.43 cents, it cannot exceed that amount. The 93.43 rate was prior to the $4.5 million loss in values from Fisher County.

A vote to set the tax rate at 89.96 cents, as put in motion by Wall, failed by a 9-2 vote. Wall and Buddy Baldridge of Jayton voted for. Voting against were Duane Shock, Crosbyton ISD; Ray Parker, Lorenzo ISD; Edwin Moore, Ralls ISD; Marie Henry, Roby CISD; Vick Burk, Rotan ISD; Mark Kirkpatrick, Post ISD; V.C. Wheeler, Southland ISD; Brian Blair, Hermleigh ISD; and Martin.

Burk made a motion to set the tax rate at 91.21 cents, based on a 97.5 collection rate. That vote also failed, however, 6-4. Burk, Wall, Kirkpatrick and Baldridge cast votes for.

Baldridge, chairman of the CED, stressed that the tax rate should not be set too high, because any surplus probably won't come back to the school districts.

"We don't want to come out over because the way I see it, we're just getting had again. Jayton puts in 40 percent of this (tax dollars) and I don't think we'll get back 40 percent if the CED comes out $200,000 over," he said. "That money will go back to the state and who knows where it will turn up or what it will be used for."

"I think it's admirable to set it at a minimum and have no carryover, but if you go under the kids are the ones who are going to be hurt," countered Taylor.

Henry made a motion to set the rate at the recommended rate of 93.43 cents, but that also failed, 9-2. Henry and Wheeler supported the motion.

Blair then suggested a tax rate of 92.63 cents, based on a collection rate of 96 percent, and it passed by a 6-5 vote. In favor were Blair, Wheeler, Moore, Parker, Burk and Martin.

Prior to making a decision, some board members had also pointed to discrepancies in tax collections. Some districts have collected over 99 percent of taxes within their districts while others have collected much less. Several board members felt like their districts were subsidizing others.

Shock vocalized the frustrations of some board members.

"I know that in Crosbyton if we had a CED by ourselves, we could set a tax rate at 85 cents," he said, "but if we (the CED) come up short, it's going to hurt some other school. So I have to ask myself, who am I representing, my school district or this CED?"

In other business, the board approved bills paid and previous minutes.

Early diagnosis is key for dyslexia

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss dyslexia.

DEAR READER: A child is suspected of having dyslexia if his or her reading skills are at least two years behind the expected grade level.

Most dyslectic children have normal intelligence and vision, but they suffer from an inability to process visual images. The cause is unknown. Dyslectic youngsters also have problems matching, seeing, feeling and hearing, suggesting a disruption in the cognitive centers of the brain.

Children with such reading disabilities should undergo rigorous physical, neurological and psychological testing. Early diagnosis is important; dyslexia should be treated before a pattern of failure and frustration is established.

There is no way to correct the perceptual defects in dyslexia; thus, treatment is directed toward helping affected children overcome their handicap. This requires a multi-disciplined approach: counseling, special schooling and suitable curricula. These services usually can be coordinated by a consultant trained in recognizing and treating the often-subtle deficits of dyslexia.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 74-year-old and have had kidney disease for three years. Initially, I was treated with Lasix and ultimately was placed on dialysis. Though this has truly saved me, I suffer through the treatments. They cause itching that my doctor, as well as allergy specialists, have been unable to control. No medication is successful for more than two days. I've tried acupuncture, but that only works for a few hours. I'm running out of options, and my doctors appear stumped. Can you comment?

DEAR READER: Dialysis, a technique to cleanse the blood of wastes using an artificial kidney, is fraught with many complications, including anemia, mineral imbalance and aluminum toxicity; this latter problem can cause seizures, muscle cramps and restlessness. Itching is a recognized complication of dialysis and may reflect metabolic imbalances in the body, following dialysis.

Your kidney specialist may be able to help you by altering the dialysate delivery system, the fluid used to cleanse your blood. Ask your nephrologist to discuss your case with other dialysis experts.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Kidney Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

and a $2 registration fee if the animal will be kept in the city. The receipt or receipts must be brought to the shelter. In addition, they may also have to pay a $6 fee for a rabies shot if no proof of vaccination is available.

Tessa, an animal lover herself, has also adopted a collie which she keeps at the shelter. Another special favorite is a female Bluepoint kitten which resides in the barn.

Originally from Midland, she moved to Snyder from Wyoming where she had been employed in a veterinary clinic for a year. Her parents, Gerry and Diane Smith, live here also.

Dr. Church and his staff are as dedicated to the welfare of shelter animals as they are to the animals in his practice. Church believes that "shelter animals make good pets" and Carr said she would rather "see them in the shelter than out on the streets."

The shelter usually houses dogs and cats, but occasionally other animals such as possums, raccoons and even a goat, are brought to the facility.

A separate isolation area is also kept for animals suspected of having rabies.

Troops take part in relief effort after hurricane

BASE, Fla. (AP) — Thousands of troops landed in Florida this morning, ordered here by President Bush after local officials complained bitterly of problems getting food, water and other essentials to victims of Hurricane Andrew.

"The damage is far more widespread than even we had feared," Bush said Thursday. "Help is on the way and it will be a major effort."

The Pentagon said 4,500 troops, mostly from Fort Bragg, N.C., had arrived by midmorning. Maj. Gen. John C. Heldstab, coordinator of military relief operations at the Defense Department, said the troops and their mobile kitchens can prepare 72,000 meals every 24 hours.

"I think it's great to be here. People are in need," said Capt. Conrado Morgan.

Dear Abby

Couple Afraid to Find Out That Dad Is a Deadbeat

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from 1972 and '73.)

DEAR ABBY: This is my problem, and you are my last resort:

Five months ago, my father-in-law borrowed a large amount of money (for us, anyway) because he said he wanted to get a divorce. At the time we didn't know that he was planning a big wedding and a two-week honeymoon in Mexico.

The unwritten agreement was that he would pay us back in 60 days. Well, it is now five months later, and we have not seen one dime of our money.

My husband has been out of work and our baby has been sick off and on for the last couple of months, and we sure could use our money.

If my father-in-law didn't have the money, I could understand, but he seems to have money for furniture and household improvements. Any suggestions?

HOPEFUL

DEAR HOPEFUL: It's those "unwritten agreements" that are hard to enforce. Talk to a lawyer. You may have given your father-in-law a much more generous wedding gift than you intended to.

DEAR ABBY: Larry and I are in our 20s and have been married for two years. We have been a happy couple up to this point, except for one thing.

Last summer Larry started to bet on the horses, and ever since then he has been betting them regularly. He goes to school during the daytime, but he works a 4 p.m. to midnight shift. Right now he is off work with a broken leg (skiing), but he goes to bingo every chance he gets.

The way Larry gambles we can't save anything. I work and do my part, but I can't carry the whole load.

If it weren't for my husband's gambling, he would be a perfect husband. He doesn't drink or smoke, and he is very respectable. He says he loves me and I come first, but I am beginning to wonder.

Have you any suggestions?

FIRST (AFTER GAMBLING)

DEAR FIRST: My guess is that Larry is a compulsive gambler, and unless he is willing to help himself, no one can help him. I can put him in touch with Gamblers Anonymous if he can't find it listed in his telephone directory. I would wish you the best of luck — but luck has nothing to do with it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What makes a woman cheat on her husband? He's a hard worker, gives her all he can and has never mistreated her in any way. They have gone through a lot of rough times together and have six beautiful children, from 10 years old down to 2.

The woman is myself, Abby. I am not in love with my husband, but I can't tell him that or it would kill him.

I have met another man who means everything to me. It's not just sex. We enjoy being together, talking on the phone, and lots of little things.

He is leaving the state soon and has asked me to go with him. I told him I would go. I love my children, Abby, but there is no way I can take them with me.

What can my husband do to me if I leave him with six children? Don't tell me to see a head shrinker. I am not crazy; I just don't want to pass up the only chance I've ever had for real happiness. Help me.

SAD BUT HAPPY

DEAR SAD: You need much more help than I can give you in a letter. Discuss this with someone whose opinions you respect (a clergyperson perhaps). Just talking things out will enable you to see them more clearly. Without knowing him, I would say that a man who would ask a mother to leave six small children is no bargain.

Treat yourself to a collection of Abby's most memorable — and frequently requested — poems, essays and Dear Abby letters. Some are sad, others are funny, but all are worth keeping. To order Abby's new booklet, "Keepers," send a long (business-size) self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keepers," P.O. AP poll says women more likely to vote for Demos in 1992

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women are inclined to favor the Democratic Party on critical election-year issues, according to an Associated Press poll, suggesting Bill Clinton could reap big rewards from a new effort to win their votes.

The poll taken after last week's Republican convention found Americans in general are more likely to prefer Democrats when it comes to the economy, education and their futures. The margin was most pronounced among women.

After their convention, Republicans were able to narrow gaps revealed in a similar AP poll conducted after last month's Democratic convention.

But the 1,007 adults surveyed Aug. 21-25 gave Democrats the edge except when it came to foreign policy, the GOP's strong suit.

Republicans also historically have won voters' trust handsdown when it comes to handling the economy. But the recession and the way President Bush has responded to it have reversed that trend.

Forty-five percent of those questioned said Democrats would do a better job handling the economy compared with 30 percent who chose the Republicans. Among women, the Democratic preference was even stronger — 48 percent to 25 percent.

The breakdown for women was similarly lopsided on other questions.

Asked if their futures would be better if the Republicans or the Democrats won the presidential election, 31 percent said Democrats while 17 percent said Republicans — compared with 31 percent to 21 percent overall.

As for improving the nation's schools, 47 percent of women said Democrats could do a better job and 23 percent chose Republicans, compared with 46 percent to 27 percent overall.

On the question of which party "is closest to you on most of the issues that matter to you," 49 percent of women chose the Democrats compared with 29 percent for the GOP. Overall, the Democratic advantage was 46 percent to 33 percent.

Nearly a quarter of the women in the survey preferred the Democrats across the board on education, economics, foreign policy and issues that matter to them.

Pollster Celinda Lake, a strategist for Clinton and other clients, said the gap between women's support for Democrats and Republicans doubled in the past two months and is at 15 to 20 percentage points. She attributed the development to economic pessimism on the part of women and the polarizing effect of GOP attacks on Hillary Clinton and working women in general.

"Women are really discouraged about the economy," Lake said. "If you look at the most recent collapse in economic confidence, it's concentrated in women."

GOP pollster Neil Newhouse said that the poll's good news for Republicans was that neither party cracked 50 percent on the economy.

"Considering the state of the economy, being in a recession for two years now, to some extent it's encouraging that the numbers aren't worse," he said.

Overall, the Republicans made gains from July when 39 percent of those responding to an AP poll said they'd be better off in the future if Democrats won the White House and only 12 percent preferred a Republican victory.

And the GOP's 48 percent to 29 percent edge in international affairs in the latest survey was bolstered by a sizeable contingent of Democrats. Nearly a quarter of the Democrats surveyed said Republicans would handle foreign policy better than their own party.

GOP abortion-rights advocates look toward election in 1996

By Jill Lawrence
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's no shortage of recriminations among the abortion-rights advocates crushed by the combined weight of an incumbent president and the religious right.

But there won't be an incumbent in 1996. And there will be an older, wiser and possibly larger cadre of moderates determined to pierce the Republican Party's airtight opposition to abortion.

AP analysis

The party's Houston convention was bittersweet for those fighting the official call for an abortion ban. They broke into the headlines, but they also broke into factions and tirades against one another.

Yet some remember when the only abortion-rights activity at a GOP convention was a surreptitious 1984 meeting between Maureen Reagan and Rep. Olympia Snowe of Maine, the two of them alone in a room. By that standard, 1992 was a triumph and a beacon for the road ahead.

"1996 will be different," says Maine Gov. John McKernan, Snowe's husband, echoing the hopes of many in his corner. "I can't tell you how many people have said to me, 'We will never again support anybody who thinks this plank ought to be in our platform.' I've heard that from people on both sides."

Polls suggest a majority of Republicans and indeed a majority of 1992 convention delegates support keeping abortion legal. They were thwarted this year by twin juggernauts: a campaign staff intent on protecting a weakened president, and social conservatives who hijacked the convention with the consent and, some say, encouragement of that campaign.

Could any dissident group have prevailed under such circumstances?

Some say yes, that moderate Republicans simply haven't been as active as they should be. "The party has abandoned them and they saw no real purpose in making waves," says Kate Michelman, president of the National Abortion Rights Action League.

Other interested parties saw action — but grumbled it wasn't the right kind. Too much time and money for public relations. Not enough attention to nuts and bolts like electing dedicated abortion-rights convention delegates.

"We did not do the political work which had to be done," said Pennsylvania delegate Elsie Hillman, a longtime party activist who vows that won't happen again.

The chief champions of the cause declined to take responsibility for its failure. They blamed relentless pressure from the Bush camp.

"It really wasn't that we were politically inept," said Mary Dent Crisp, chairwoman of the National Republican Coalition for Choice.

McKernan and Massachusetts Gov. William Weld, pivotal in the unsuccessful push for a floor debate, thought airing the issue would be good for Bush. But the Bush campaign team thought differently "and they just clamped down on these delegations," McKernan said.

The trying week ended with a deepening rift between Crisp, a 60-ish former party co-chairman, and Ann Stone, a brash young direct-mail entrepreneur. For months of uneasy alliance, they stood side by side and slammed the party hierarchy; after the Houston defeat, they wouldn't even appear at the same news conference.

The sticking point was that Stone, founder of a political action committee called Republicans for Choice, announced publicly that she personally was going to vote for Bush and try to change her party.

"My goal is larger than (abortion) choice," Stone said later. "My goal is to stop the religious right from having a stranglehold on any political party. My priority is making sure Phyllis Schlafly and Pat Robertson do not have a political vehicle."

Crisp remains officially neutral but calls herself a one-issue voter. She couldn't swallow the Stone rationale. "That's a conflict for me," she said. "There's a certain integrity we're trying to foster."

Michelman, whose abortion-rights group has spent two-thirds of its money this year on like-minded Republican candidates, was less restrained.

"She led such a strong fight within the party and seemed so uncompromising on it," Michelman said of Stone. "Now she will work to elect the very president who is going to take away this freedom and send women to back alleys and women and doctors to jail. I don't understand it."

Idaho relatives get temporary custody of youth

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A couple convicted of starving their 13-year-old son to death have agreed to give temporary custody of their other son to relatives in Idaho.

Jay and Linda Hill signed court documents Wednesday accepting the Department of Human Services' recommendation to place Douglas, 12, with James and Yvonne Langford.

The Langfords are Douglas' paternal aunt and uncle. None of the other parties who had expressed interest in obtaining custody formally objected.

"It's just about done," attorney Ernie Bates said after the Hills signed the court papers. Bates represented Jay Hill's parents, Barbara and Leon Hill.

Wallace to umpire celebrity tennis

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Wallace will be calling the shots next weekend, but it won't be for "60 Minutes."

The newsman will be umpiring at a celebrity tennis benefit.

"Of course, I'll call them as I see them," the 74-year-old Wallace said Thursday. "But I don't see so well. So McEnroe had better not give me any trouble."

The Arthur Ashe Foundation's AIDS Tennis Challenge will be held Sunday.

In addition to John McEnroe, the benefit has signed up such stars as Andre Agassi, Jim Courier, Mary Jo Fernandez, Steffi Graf, Martina Navratilova, Pete Sampras, Monica Seles and Arantxa Sanchez Vicario.

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

THE REBUILDER OF A NATION!

NEHEMIAH, OF THE TRIBE OF JUDAH, WAS OFFICIAL CUP-BEARER TO KING ARTAXERES OF PERSIA. THE JEWS, HAVING BEEN TAKEN CAPTIVE OUT OF JUDEA ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY YEARS BEFORE BY KING NEBUCHADNEZZAR, HAD RISEN TO HIGH PLACES IN MANY INSTANCES, BECAUSE OF THEIR TALENTS. NEHEMIAH, BORN IN CAPTIVITY, ROSE TO THE LEVEL OF CLOSEST ROYAL ADVISER IN THE ENTIRE KINGDOM. IN 445 B.C., HEARING OF THE DESPERATE PLIGHT OF THE FEW JEWS LEFT IN JERUSALEM—A RUINED CITY OF CRUMBLED WALLS AND BROKEN GATES, COMPLETELY AT THE MERCY OF ROVING BANDS OF CUT-THROATS AND THIEVES WHO TERRIFIED THE COUNTRYSIDE—NEHEMIAH GOT PERMISSION FROM HIS KING TO GO THERE AND TO REBUILD ITS WALLS SO THAT THE INHABITANTS WOULD HAVE PROTECTION AGAINST MARAUDERS. A PERIOD OF TWELVE YEARS ELAPSED, FROM THE TIME HE ARRIVED IN THE CITY, UNTIL THE DEDICATION OF THE REBUILT WALLS (432 B.C.). BUT BEYOND JUST REBUILDING JERUSALEM'S WALLS, NEHEMIAH COMPLETELY RENEWED THE JEWISH NATION AND REVIVED ITS RELIGION, THE TEMPLE, AND ALL THE ANCIENT CUSTOMS AND MOSAIC LAW! AN EXCEEDINGLY DIFFICULT TASK, WHEN ONE CONSIDERS THE MANY STRATEGEMS AND TRICKS EMPLOYED BY NEAR-BY PETTY KINGS TO PREVENT JERUSALEM FROM RISING TO ITS FORMER STATUS—ALL OF WHICH IS EXCITINGLY RELATED IN THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAH.

NEXT WEEK: THE MAID WHO KILLED A GENERAL!
