THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A fellow who makes only mental bets could lose his mind."

Things have finally settled in. The time for class and teacher changes have passed, and students are already looking forward to the end of the first six weeks — which, believe it or not, comes on the last Friday of this month.

Back when students could still make adjustments in their class schedules, counselors at Snyder Junior High fielded an unusual request.

A student wanted to switch all his teachers. Not being a standard practice, counselors wanted to know more.

"All seven of my teachers talk the whole period. They don't give me any time to do my homework."

If you think teaching today is not a challenge, consider some of the student papers contained in a book called "Anguished English," written by a former high school English teacher:

--Ancient Egypt was inhabited by mummies, and they all wrote in hydraulics. They lived in the Sarah Desert and traveled by Camelot. The climate of the Sarah is such that the inhabitants have to live elsewhere, so certain areas of the dessert are cultivated by irritation. Egyptian women often wore a calasiris, a sheer dress which started just beneath the breasts, which hung to the floor. The Egyptians built the pyramids in the shape of a huge triangular cube.

--Abraham Lincoln wrote the Gettysburg Address while traveling from Washington to Gettsyburg on the back of an envelope. He also freed the slaves by signing the Emasculation Proclamation. On the night of April 14, 1865, Lincoln went to the theater and got shot in his seat by one of the actors in a moving picture show. The believed assinator was John Wilks Booth, a supposedly insane actor. This ruined Booth's career.

In the coffee shop a few days ago, accountant Russell Yorgensen testified that kids have changed.

He recalled having his grandson visiting and taking him to the store. Russell asked if he wanted the big ball or the little ball.

"He wanted 'em both."

SUSPICIOUS FIRE — Snyder firemen responded to a fire at a storage building around 7 p.m. Monday at a location on CR 151. Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell said the fire was of suspicious origin as there was no electricity to the structure. The building suffered considerable damage to the interior and moderate damage to the exterior, said McDowell. (SDN Staff Photo)

City approves utility project

Meeting at noon Monday, Snyder City Council approved a $1.1 million bid for the construction of water and sewer lines to the industrial park and was urged to get the project completed by the end of the year.

Council members approved the low bid submitted by Utility Contractors of America, Inc. of Wolfforth in the amount of $1,148,340. Five other bids received ranged from $1,193,852 to $1,772,937.

Development Corporation of Snyder president Roy Baze told the council that the DCOS recommended acceptance of the bid. He suggested the council have the project completed by the end of the year.

"These lines will provide potable water and a sewer line to the industrial park," said Baze.

The project, funded through a $1.5 million Economic Development Administration grant, also includes upgrades to a lift station.

Samuel Naumann. project manager with Freese & Nichols, told the council that the Wolfforth firm expects to run at least two, and maybe three crews in order to complete the project in a timely fashion.

"They know the time constraints," said Naumann.

The contract calls for the water and wastewater line construction to be completed by Dec. 31. The lift system upgrades must be completed by mid-February.

The council also awarded a bid for a brush chipper in the amount of $21,140 to Big John South-Central of Arlington.

In one other matter Monday, the council approved the first reading of an ordinance that would close a 20-foot alleyway on the property between 15th and 17th Streets off of Avenue R. Reef Chemical has purchased the block and intends to fence the entire property.

Mayor David Holt presided. All council members were in attendance, to include Dayton Robertson, Vernest Tippens, Jerry Webb, Kerry Bredemeyer, I.E. Martin and Terry Martin.

No action taken by DCOS board

Development Corporation of Snyder board met for just over two minutes Monday afternoon before adjourning without taking any action.

The board had recessed last Friday's meeting until Monday in order to take any action that might be needed in regard to Snyder City Council approving a bid for construction of water and sewer lines to SnTx Park I. Council members approved the low bid as recommended; therefore, no action was necessary by the DCOS.

Prayer at the pole Wednesday

Many high school and junior high school students will rise earlier than usual Wednesday to meet their classmates and pray for their school, peers, teachers and the leaders of our country.

The annual world-wide event, See You At the Pole, is entirely student-led and will be held at flag poles on the high school and junior high campuses at 6:30 and 7:30 a.m.

County fair about to begin

Scurry Countians can begin bringing that prized photograph or painting to the coliseum this afternoon to be entered in the 32nd Scurry County Fair.

Entries in most other divisions will be accepted Wednesday afternoon and evening though some groups such as the Snyder Garden Club began set-up this afternoon and will begin taking entries tomorrow morning.

The message is clear though — residents who plan to enter something in the fair had best be getting it ready. Fair time is almost here.

Almost anything can be entered in the fair, from items grown to items sewn. People can also enter their animals and even themselves; there are lots of competitions.

Among the entries expected are all types of homegrown, home baked and home crafted items in dozens of categories. There will be textiles, wood furniture, canned goods, handicrafts, sewn pieces, nuts, fruits, grains and vegetables.

Entry times for most of those will be from 1 until 9 p.m. Wednesday. There are special times for some objects, so fairgoers planning to enter should obtain a fair booklet from the chamber of commerce or go to the coliseum early Wednesday afternoon to be sure.

The fair officially opens to the public at noon Thursday. Admission is $1 per person per day.

Hours will be until 10 each night, with the doors opening at 9 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

In addition to the handicrafts and other items entered at the fair, there will be plenty of events to participate in. Many of them this year are designed for the youngsters and will be held Saturday.

Among the events set aside for children are a limbo contest, an egg & spoon race, a yo-yo contest, stick horse rodeo, tractor pull, hula-hoop contest, fish pond, barrel ribbon race and a three-legged race.

Remote control car races and the annual Saturday morning Critter Parade are also scheduled.

For adults, horseshoe and washer pitching competitions will be held at the coliseum courts on Saturday morning. The annual domino tournament starts Thursday and runs through the weekend.

The Scurry County Horse Show will be held Saturday at the rodeo association arena on Gary Brewer Road. There are 22 events in three age groups.

Meanwhile, entertainment will be on stage in the coliseum from 7-10 p.m. Friday and from 11 a.m. until 10 p.m. Saturday. These include the Senior Center line dancers, Hoss Clayton Band, a quilt and style show, the Kitchen Band, taekwondo exhibitions, Marcus Rios, the Deep Creek Cloggers, gymnastics, cheerleading, the Ira Combo and others.

The popular Kiddie Barnyard will run throughout the fair in the annex, and a carnival will be held in the parking lot at the west side of the coliseum.

Long distance service restored

Scurry County citizens were without long distance telephone service for more than five hours Monday.

The problem — caused by a severed cable — also left residents unable to call 911 emergency response directly, and without Internet service and some cellular service.

Financial institutions were unable to conduct wire transfers during the period, and businesses which rely on computer access through long distance were also unable to make connections.

According to Southwestern Bell, an independent contractor working for IXC long distance company, accidentally cut through a 16-fiber cable. The problem was compounded because the contractor also cut a waterline at the same time.

Technicians and engineers from Abilene were notified of the problem about 9:30 a.m. and service was restored at 2:40 p.m., according to Kate Lowery, a Southwestern Bell representative from Austin.

The accident occurred seven miles east of Sweetwater, and knocked out service over a wide area. Among the communities it affected were Sweetwater, Colorado City, Blackwell, Loraine, Westbrook, Nolan, Maryneal and Snyder.

Anthony's closing after more than 50 years here

A Snyder business institution for over 50 years will close Saturday as Anthony's will lock its doors for the last time.

The good news is that the Anthony chain was sold to Stage Stores last year and the business will re-open on Oct. 23 as Beall's.

"We will have a completely new store," said store manager Jerry Davis. "It will have a look I think Snyder will be proud of."

Although the store's clearance sale is still in progress, remodeling has already begun as workers are taking down wall displays.

The store has been at its present location in the 3200 block of College Avenue since 1984. Previously, it was located on the north side of the square for some 38 years.

Jury is hearing assault testimony

A six-man, six-woman jury was seated Monday afternoon to hear testimony in the trial of a 34-year-old Snyder man charged with aggravated assault.

Richie Stuart Thomas of 1812 Ave. T was indicted last April after being charged with the March 20 offense of threatening Darrell Holmes with a knife.

District Attorney Dana Cooley began presenting the state's case about 3 p.m. Monday in 132nd District Court. Among those called to testify were two of the defendant's children. His ex-wife was on the stand just prior to noon today.

Defense attorney Isaac Castro of Snyder was expected to begin Thomas' defense later in the afternoon.

District Judge Ernie Armstrong is presiding.

CoC board sets budget for 1998

Snyder Chamber of Commerce board members on Monday approved the 1998 operating budget, granted a hotel-motel request and accepted nominations for three new directors.

Wade Hatter, Mark Cypert and Brenda Hedges were nominated to replace three board members. If elected, they will replace Rob Sanders and Julie Sentell, whose terms are expiring, and Ann McCabe, who has moved to Midland.

Gary Landes, Paula McWilliams, Nancy Smith and Bill Dryden made up the nominating committee.

Board members approved a 1998 operating budget of $98,450, down from $101,900 in 1997.

An executive session to discuss 1998 personnel salaries followed the meeting. Salary figures were not made public.

The board approved a request from Scurry County Museum for $500 to purchase brochures.

Following discussion, the decision was made to have a one-time membership billing in January. Dues unpaid by March 31 will dissolve membership.

Executive director Donna Fowler said the new sound system will be ready for the Scurry County Fair activities Thursday and for a program presented to school students by Denise Brown at 10 a.m. Monday. The assembly was

McCormicks win big in contest

The tie-breaker came into play in last week's SDN Football Contest, with all of the prize winners missing five picks.

The McCormick family of 2805 32nd hit the jackpot with Janie taking first place by predicting the exact number of points in the Snyder-Sweetwater game at 34. Megan McCormick won third place, predicting 36 points.

Second place went to David Cain of 4112 Jacksboro, who predicted 35 points on the tie-breaker.

Three other players had five misses, but lost out on the tie-breaker.

Winners will be mailed their checks.

Another contest appears in today's issue.

NASA tracking growth of warm water mass

LOS ANGELES (AP) — El Nino is anything but little.

Signs tracked by satellites in space show that the globally disruptive weather phenomenon could well live up to its stormy billing: Its mass of warm water in the Pacific Ocean has grown to 1½ times the size of the continental United States and other data mean the southwestern states could well be pounded with winter storms.

In May, when scientists at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena announced that satellite images showed a brewing El Nino, the warm mass was two-thirds its current size.

Worldwide weather experts said 1997-98 could bring the worst El Nino in 150 years.

"As the satellite has mapped El Nino across the Pacific, what we've seen continually throughout the summer and into September now is that early indications actually have persisted and intensified," said Bill Patzert, a research oceanographer with the TOPEX-Poseidon project at JPL.

The TOPEX-Poseidon satellite looks at sea height. Because water expands as it heats up, the higher the sea, the warmer the water. The satellite bounces radar signals off the ocean's surface to measure the precise distance from the satellite.

The cyclical weather phenomenon occurs when westward-blowing trade winds weaken, allowing a mass of warm water normally located off Australia to drive eastward to western South America. The unusually warm water acts on jet stream patterns, altering weather worldwide.

El Nino got its name from the Spanish words for baby Jesus because the pool usually arrives around Christmas.

In another sign of rough weather to come, water vapor measurements from another satellite are providing signs that southwestern states could get pounded this winter with "Pineapple Express" storms crossing the Pacific from Hawaii.

An instrument called the Microwave Limb Sounder aboard the Upper Atmosphere Research Satellite is detecting "an unusually large buildup of water vapor in the atmosphere" about 8 miles up, which can create the intense winter storms, said William Read, a JPL researcher.

Peso closes stronger

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's peso closed slightly stronger Monday against the dollar as U.S. bond yields and a dearth of domestic news kept the currency within a narrow trading range.

In Mexico City, banking leader Banamex quoted the peso closing at 7.772 per dollar, a fraction stronger from its close Friday of 7.773.

Traders said volume was light ahead of Tuesday's Mexican independence festivities. Banks and government offices were operating on half-day schedules as many people extended the holiday into a four-day weekend.

Emmy Awards ratings decline

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Ratings dipped for this year's Emmy Awards when the ceremony competed against such popular programming as Arnold Schwarzenegger's "True Lies" and NFL football, preliminary estimates showed.

An estimated 40 million viewers watched all or part of the 49th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards broadcast on CBS, the network said Monday.

The three-hour ceremony Sunday earned an estimated 13.5 rating and 21 share, CBS said — lower than last year's show (14.4 rating and 23 share) but higher than 1995 (12.4 rating and 20 share).

A ratings point represents just under 1 million households, or 1 percent of the nation's estimated TV homes.

Final ratings were to be released today.

"True Lies," aired by Fox, proved tough competition in a number of cities. In Los Angeles itself, heart of the entertainment industry, the movie tied the Emmys at one point in the evening.

The film wasn't intended as a slap at the ceremony, which rotates among the networks, Fox said.

The worst standard bid?

By Phillip Alder

What was the worst bid ever to become part of Standard American? Although this will probably cause a deluge of mail, I think it was the jump raise of an opening one heart or one spade to three hearts or three spades to show 13-15 points and at least four trumps: the so-called forcing raise. If using that bid, what would you do with today's North hand after partner opens one spade? Presumably, you would respond two hearts. Yet that is unappetizing, especially as partner will think you have only three-card support when you bid spades on the next round. And that ninth trump will usually be worth an extra trick via a ruff in the dummy.

Much better — and more logical — is the limit raise, which shows some 10-12 points and at least four trumps. (Are you wondering what to do with a game-forcing raise? Tune in tomorrow!) How does the opener react to a game-invitational limit raise? He passes with a minimum, raises with some extras, or (unlikely though it may be) cue-bids or launches into Blackwood with slam interest. Here, South goes on to game, hoping for the best.

West leads the club king to South's ace. If South plays a trump immediately, he should lose four tricks: one spade, one heart and two clubs. Instead, declarer should cross to dummy's diamond ace, overtake the diamond queen with his king, and cash the diamond jack, discarding a club from the dummy. With the loser count down to three, it is time to turn to spades. South's 10 tricks are four spades, one heart, three diamonds, one club and one club ruff in the dummy.

Janet Reno is called for jury duty

MIAMI (AP) — She probably wouldn't have served anyway. Still, Janet Reno had a good excuse to get out of jury duty.

The U.S. attorney general got a notice ordering her to appear for jury duty in Dade County, Justice Department spokesman Michael Gordon said Monday.

"She was called for jury duty, planned to attend but had a conflict and had to reschedule," Gordon said.

Reno's chief of staff, John Hogan, contacted Circuit Judge Thomas Carney to explain his boss was occupied by a "Washington investigative thing," he told The Miami Herald.

Reno was Dade County's chief prosecutor before taking the Washington job.

Former meatpacker to serve 30 months

SAN ANGELO (AP) — The former owner of a meatpacking company has been sentenced to 30 months in prison for wire fraud and filing false tax returns.

Mike Evans, former owner of Evans Meat Co., was accused of watering down beef carcasses that he sold to other meat companies. Adding the water had the effect of making the other companies pay the price of a pound of beef for a pound of water.

US. District Judge Sam Cummings sentenced Evans on Monday, ordering him to report to the Federal Correction Institute in Big Spring on Oct. 6.

Cummings ordered Evans to serve three years' probation after his release from prison and to pay $4.8 million in restitution and $500,000 in fines.

Evans and his attorneys, Travis Shelton of Lubbock and Melvin Gray of San Angelo, declined comment after sentencing.

As part of an agreement worked out with the U.S. Attorney's Office, Evans pleaded guilty April 1 to the charges.

The plea followed a nine-month investigation by the U.S. Customs Service, the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service and the Department of Agriculture -- in which the federal agencies seized records and equipment at the meat company last fall.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Bill Mateja, who prosecuted the case, said that meatpackers are allowed to spray water on beef to make up for the evaporative weight loss while the carcasses are stored in coolers.

But federal agents realized that carcasses at the Evans Meat Co. were being "grossly overwatered," Mateja said.

At the time, Evans was one of the largest independent hamburger supplies in the Southwest with gross sales between $80 million and $105 million in each of the last five years.

The judge ordered Evans to make restitution to 22 of the customers he defrauded. The largest restitution payments will go to American Food Service Corp. of King of Prussia, Pa., $813,000; Golden States Food Co. of Conyers, Ga., $770,000; and Otto and Sons of West Jordan, Utah, $530,000.

Microsoft delays the release of Windows 98

SEATTLE (AP) — Microsoft Corp. is postponing the release of the latest Windows upgrade to allow users of its two earlier operating systems to switch at the same time.

Saying the delay was unrelated to any bugs with Windows 98, Microsoft plans to release the software sometime between April and June instead of by the end of March, as originally planned.

The world's largest software maker said it needs more time to test upgrades for Windows 95 and its predecessor, Windows 3.1, which is still used by millions of people.

Microsoft had planned to sell only an upgrade for Windows 95 first, then one for 3.1 later. But Phil Holden, Windows product manager, said releasing the product in two stages would have caused confusion among software testers and customers.

Microsoft stock fell 5 percent Monday after the announcement.

Windows 98, like Windows 95, is being designed to run programs written for earlier versions of the operating software, which runs the basic functions of a computer.

The new version of Windows won't be the technological leap that marked the introduction of Windows 95 two years ago. But it will combine Microsoft's Internet Explorer browser into the general operation of the computer, while being more reliable and simpler to operate.

That means a user will not have to pull out of one application and then call up the Web browser to get onto the Internet.

That could mean trouble for Microsoft rival Netscape Communications Corp., maker of the popular Navigator browser, which now has about 70 percent of the browser market vs. Microsoft's 30 percent.

Microsoft estimates about 60 million computers users still rely on Windows 3.1, while 100 million use Windows 95 or Windows NT, a corporate version of the software.

Career Woman Happily Makes A Home for Live-In Boyfriend

DEAR ABBY: I don't know how you feel about response letters to response letters. Nonetheless, the letter I read today from "Happy With a '90s Home Life," chastising your printing the letter from "Old-Fashioned and Proud of It," evoked a fiery response from me.

I am a 29-year-old woman with a college education, a professional career and a boyfriend I live with. Nothing gives me greater pleasure than knowing when he walks through the door, he has a meal, a neat home, and does not need to worry if his clothes are clean.

I consider myself fortunate to have good looks, brains, and to have retained the values of "making a home" my mother taught me, which I will be proud to teach the daughter I may someday have. I consider myself blessed to have a great guy, and I am showing him just that every day through my quite natural efforts. I know he loves me and I do not expect him to prove it by putting the pillow under my feet as I put them up. Any woman who aspires to shirking domestic duties she should be proud to accomplish can be summed up in one word: lazy.

It is not a matter of women "serving" or men needing "survival skills." Relationships are about wanting to take care of your partner and making each day easier for him. Relationships are meant to be about "us."

Too many partners in relationships these days ask the question, "What can you do for me?" as opposed to, "How can I help you?" There is something wrong with this lack of selflessness, and quite possibly people have forgotten the definition of "true love." If two people really care for each other, there should be no thought of tit-for-tat. Acts performed from the heart all equal out in the end.

HAPPY TO BE RON'S GIRL, 1997

DEAR HAPPY: I'm sorry you didn't allow me to use your name, but perhaps it's for the best. Ron might be killed in the stampede of contemporary feminists trying to do you in — and men climbing over him to get to you.

DEAR ABBY: I am 70-plus and have just lost my wife. We had a very good marriage. I want to continue living an active life and begin dating when it is appropriate. How long should one wait to start dating, and how long should one wait to marry again?

WIDOWER IN FLORIDA

DEAR WIDOWER: Grief is such a personal emotion that no one can presume to make rules that will apply to everyone.

A widow or widower may begin dating whenever he or she feels like it; the decision is yours. When you tie the knot again is up to you — and the lucky lady who will accompany you down the aisle.

DEAR ABBY: My condolences to "Janis in Capistrano Beach, Calif.," who bragged that she wore makeup and a tight T-shirt to "lure the salesclerks" so her husband could get help. She apparently is blissfully unaware that she has been insulted.

It probably takes 100 well-groomed, hard-working professional women to offset the influence of each "Janis."

Women will never have respect, equal opportunity and equal pay until they learn to value themselves for their abilities and their contributions to society rather than the size of their bra cups.

You may print my letter if you wish, including my name and state.

LEOLA FARMER, TULSA, OKLA.

DEAR MS. FARMER: I agree. And hasten the day when "... and blessed be they whose cup runneth over" refers only to good fortune.

THE LORD HAS NEED OF IT

When Jesus approached Bethany at Olivet, He sent away two of his disciples to untie a certain colt. The owners asked, "Why are you untying the colt?' And they said, "The Lord has need of it" (Luke 19:33-34). The owners are nameless, but they deserve appreciation for they acted generously. Through this response they contributed to the triumphal march into Jerusalem, one of the most magnificent occasions in the history of the world.

What would any disciple of Jesus give to be able to contribute something he owns for such an occasion. This opportunity is gone forever, but the Master still has need of things we own. He can use our hands, our automobiles, our houses, our food, our telephones, our bank accounts, our stocks and bonds, our farms and ranches. Jesus said, "Truly I say to you, to the extent that you did it to one of these brothers of Mine, even the least of them, you did it to Me" (Matthew 25:40). There is no disciple so poor that he doesn't have something the Master needs today!

Survey details child abuse growing in Texas

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The number of Texans who say they were abused as children has risen dramatically — more than 41 percent — according to studies by Sam Houston State University researchers.

In results released Monday, a total of 26.4 percent of 798 people surveyed by the school's Criminal Justice Center, working with the Children's Trust Fund of Texas, said they had been abused or neglected by the time they were 16 years old.

That's 41 percent more than the 18.7 percent who said in a 1991 survey that they had been abused or neglected as children. A similar survey in 1978 found 14.3 percent considered themselves victims of abuse and neglect as a child.

"Whether the respondents are simply more aware of the abuse of the children ... or whether an actual increase is taking place cannot be determined from this survey," reaseachers Raymond Teske Jr. and Stephanie Whitus Goodner concluded. "However, the totality of the findings suggest that the increases are real."

One-fifth or those surveyed said they were a parent and 28 percent of those with children indicated at least one of their own children had been abused or neglected. That's almost double the response from parents in the 1991 survey.

"I do think there has been a significant increase in awareness and more people are feeling comfortable talking about it." Janie Fields, executive director of the Children's Trust Fund of Texas said Monday.

In the 1978 study, only 8.5 percent reported abuse or neglect suffered by their own children.

"The findings from this survey provide unique insight into a problem which is of major and growing concern," Teske and Ms. Whitus-Goodner said. "Child abuse and neglect have a significant impact on the quality of life in our society and many parents today worry about their child being abused by either a stranger or someone they know."

The study, based on mailed questionnaires, was conducted from July through October last year.

Just over 50 percent of the people 18 years of age and older who received the questionnaires responded from 124 Texas counties.

Almost 13 percent of the respondents were college graduates, 41 percent had some college and nearly 30 percent had only a high school education. Margin of error in the findings was listed at plus-or-minus 3 percent.

Abuse was divided into three categories: physical, sexual and emotional.

Physical abuse included spanking, slapping, biting, shaking or holding a child in very hot water. Sexual abuse ranged from forcing a child to engage in sexual activity to fondling to showing pornographic movies. Emotional abuse ranged from threats to shouts to locking a child in a dark room or withholding affection.

Some survey results were promising, the researchers said, noting that compared to earlier surveys, the number of people who considered spanking with a wooden paddle to be abusive grew from 36 percent in 1978 to 48 percent in 1996. Shaking a child violently was considered abuse by 96 percent of the respondents in the most recent survey, up from 84 percent 20 years ago.

"These findings are very encouraging as they suggest that the public is becoming more aware of the potential harm children may suffer from the shaken baby syndrome," Teske and Whitus-Goodner wrote.

However, the most recent survey could not gain unanimous agreement that striking a child with a fist was abuse (3 percent disagreed), or that holding or placing a child in very hot water was abuse (1 percent disagreed).

What's the word on DHEA?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Should I use DHEA to improve my athletic performance?

DEAR READER: Dehydroepiandrosterone, a hormone produced in the adrenal glands, increases the production of testosterone (male hormone), leading to subjective improvement in physical and psychological well-being in both men and women. Because, as time passes, we all produce less DHEA, promoters have marketed the drug as an anti-aging compound. This is not true.

Nonetheless, DHEA is sold as a nutritional aid, and many people who take it swear by its value in making them feel better. It may enhance athletic performance but no studies have shown conclusively that it does. (Because it increases blood testosterone levels, the drug may adversely affect drug-screening in international athletes and could lead to a disqualification.)

In addition, its long-term effects are unknown because they haven't been studied. Some men have reported permanent breast swelling from its use; whether DHEA can cause prostate or uterine cancer — a distinct possibility — is unclear. Therefore, its safety is in question.

Because men and women under the age of 40 have adequate (natural) DHEA levels, the drug is not appropriate to improve athletic performance in this age group. Therefore, if you are under 40, I recommend that you not take it.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter is a dance major in college. Although she is very talented, she has had to give up pointe because of severe pain caused by bunions. Her dance career is in jeopardy, yet her doctor has told her to suffer the pain or quit dancing. Isn't there something she can do?

DEAR READER: A bunion is an abnormal swelling of the joint at the base of the big toe, often causing lateral displacement of the toe itself. The cause of this painful affliction is not known, but bunions do tend to run in families.

Although not a hazard to health, bunions can severely hamper athletic performance, particularly ballet.

Orthopedic surgeons have developed several operations to cure bunions. Two of the most popular — the Keller procedure and the Mayo operation — involve removing part of the bone near the joint and straightening the toe.

My orthopedic consultants tell me that either type of surgery cures bunions and allows patients to lead relatively normal lives (provided they don't reinjure the toe or consistently wear tight, ill-fitting shoes that pinch the feet). Inasmuch as your daughter is a dancer, the situation becomes more problematic. It's possible that the surgeon might forbid her to dance because of the severe stress on the toes. But you won't know until you ask.

Your daughter should be examined by a qualified orthopedic surgeon, especially one who is familiar with the (many) bone problems that plague dancers. Let me know what he says.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach to Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

Dallas nabs miracle win thanks to Eagle mishap

IRVING (AP) — A horrific mishap on the NFL's most automatic play allowed the Dallas Cowboys to avoid retracing their sorry September of a year ago.

Not wishing to start 1-3 like they did in 1996, when the Cowboys struggled to make in the playoffs, Barry Switzer declared Monday night's meeting with Philadelphia a "must" game.

Then, after being outplayed for 59 minutes, they got not one, but two gifts from the football gods in an improbable 21-20 victory over the dumbstruck Eagles.

First, Anthony Miller made a circus catch on a 14-yard pass from Troy Aikman for a touchdown with 51 seconds left.

This was the same Miller who decided last week after two plays that his hamstring was on the verge of giving him trouble and took the rest of the day off.

Then came miracle No. 2: The Eagles (1-2) botched a 22-yard field-goal attempt as time expired.

Punter Tom Hutton, holding for former Cowboys kicker Chris Boniol, fumbled the snap, tried to run with it and was tackled by Deion Sanders, giving a bizaree game a bizarre finish.

"When Chris came out, I thought it was only appropriate that he be the one to beat us after all he did for us last season," Dallas special teams captain Bill Bates said. "But I've played a lot of games in high school, college and 15 years in the NFL, and the game isn't over until the last second ticks off the clock."

The Cowboys (2-1), as does Philadelphia, have a bye next week, and they're going to need it to give over the shock of winning this one after trailing by two touchdowns. Dallas blew a 15-point lead last week to lose to Arizona.

"I couldn't believe what happened," Dallas coach Barry Switzer said. "Somebody up there likes us. For the first 59 minutes, I wasn't sure. That was just a chip-shot field goal. I thought it was over. I'm worn out."

Ty Detmer hit Freddie Solomon with a 46-yard pass to the Dallas 5 with four seconds to play. The Eagles, who started from their own 16, called their final timeout for Boniol.

It was going to be a sure-game-winner. Understand that Boniol had made 46 consecutive field goals from inside the 35-yard line. It looked like a second upset win in a row for the Eagles, who beat the Super Bowl champion Green Bay Packers 10-9 last week.

"The snap was fine," Hutton said. "I just dropped it. I take all the blame for it. I should catch every ball. It's my mistake. I took off and ran, that's all I could do."

Boniol was shocked to see the ball on the ground.

"I'm really disappointed because this was against the Cowboys," Boniol said. "I know how the fans in Philly feel about them. It was important to me because it was my old team. For me, it was money in the bank from there. I'm still in shock."

Aikman took the Cowboys 62 yards in seven plays for the winning touchdown. A fourth-down pass-interference call on Charles Dimry set Dallas up at the Philadelphia 45.

Then Aikman connected with tight end Eric Bjornson to the Philadelphia 17. Two plays later, Miller, grabbed the ball away from safety Tim Watson in the back of the end zone.

"I was lucky I came down with it," Miller said. "I saw Troy scrambling and just went to an open spot. I thought the ball was going to be intercepted. I was just fortunate."

Aikman said the ball slipped coming out of his hands.

"I was late with the ball and just decided to take a chance," Aikman said. "It was a better catch than throw. I didn't have a good hold on the ball."

Watson said he thought he had a pick.

"I thought I had the interception," he said. "Somehow Aikman just got the ball in there."

Eagles coach Ray Rhodes was stunned.

"It's a shame to waste such great effort," Rhodes said. "There's no excuse for it. I can't think of a more frustrating way to lose. That's something we work on every day."

The Eagles held Dallas to five field goals by Richie Cunningham before the late rally.

Running back Emmitt Smith summed it up: "That was a gift, It was nothing incredible that we did. Thanks for the early Christmas present."

8th grade spikers follow tourney title with sweep

Snyder's 8th grade volleyball team believes in the team concept.

Seven different players led the Lady Tigers in service points, as Snyder won the championship of the Big Spring tournament over the weekend, then swept Greenwood in three matches at the SJHS gym Monday.

Snyder began the tournament on Saturday by defeating Andrews 15-8, 15-10. Vanessa Freeman and Katie Voss served seven points for the Lady Tigers.

Snyder then handled Sweetwater, 15-7, 15-10, in the second match of the tournament. This time it was Chasity Perales pacing the Lady Tigers with 13 points off her serve.

Greenwood put up a fight for the tourney title, but Snyder came back from a game 1 loss to claim the crown 6-15, 15-5, 15-2. Andra Lancaster served up nine points in the championship match.

Greenwood was looking to redeem itself Monday, but the Lady Tigers took all three matches.

The 8th grade "A" team handled Greenwood, 15-4, 15-4, as Leticia Martinez led the charge from the service line with eight points.

Due to the large number of players which Greenwood carried, Snyder divided its "B" team into two squads, "B" and "C".

Snyder's "B" team was victorious, winning its match, 15-11, 15-7, with Loryn Brown serving for eight points.

The Lady Tiger "C" team then took the court and took care of Greenwood, 15-13, 15-2. Stormy Clark led the Lady Tigers with 12 service points.

Snyder plays again Saturday in the Seminole tournament.

Hill serves up win for SJHS

Seventh grade volleyball is usually a year to learn and prepare for next year.

But Snyder's 7th grade team is doing more than that, its winning.

Snyder went 1-2 over the weekend in the Big Spring tournament, before Shastade Hill helped serve her teammates to victory Monday night against Greenwood.

Snyder dropped the opening match of the tourney to Andrews, 15-9, 10-15, 15-8, despite 14 service points from Rene Ballard.

Shelly Fisk then served six points in the Lady Tigers' 15-6, 15-10 victory over Sweetwater.

It was Fisk once again leading Snyder with 10 points, as the Lady Tigers fell to Goliad, 15-8, 15-12, in the final match of the tourney.

But Snyder bounced back Monday against Greenwood, with Shastade Hill leading the way.

In the 8th grade "B" match, Hill got the serve with Snyder trailing 6-1.

She never relinquished serving duties. The only thing that stopped her scoring streak was the scoreboard, as Hill served an astonishing 14 points straight.

Hill's serving preserved the Lady Tigers' 15-8, 15-6 victory.

Snyder's "A" team edged Greenwood, 15-12, 15-13, with Ballard's eight points once again leading the way for the Lady Tigers.

Greenwood's "C" team would fare no better, as Snyder trounced its opponent 15-3, 15-3, behind the serving of Jacinda Judah and Ashlee Grantham, who finished with seven points each.

Snyder plays again Saturday in the Seminole tournament.

Andrews def. Snyder 15-9, 10-15, 15-8

Five Snyder High School teams look to build on past victories

Five Snyder High School teams will be looking to continue their good play this evening.

All three high school volleyball teams will be in action against Seminole.

The freshman team, coming off a route of Big Spring a week ago, will square off with the Indians at 6 in the SJHS gym.

At the same time, the junior varsity squad will begin its match at the high school.

Snyder's JV captured second place over the weekend in the Andrews tournament and will be going for its second straight home victory.

The varsity will take the court following the JV action.

The last time the Lady Tigers were at home, they pulled off a three-game, come-back victory over Big Spring.

Snyder could rely once again on the serving of Lila King who leads the team with 109 points.

Halea Huestis and Alicia Peoples could play big roles at the net for the Lady Tigers.

Huestis has a team-high 57 kills, while defensively, Peoples has been a wall, accounting for 40 Snyder blocks.

While the Lady Tigers battle Seminole, the Snyder boys' golf team will have a rematch with Lamesa and Frenship.

Today's event takes place at 3 p.m. in Lamesa.

On Saturday, Snyder fired a 321, only to be nipped by Frenship's 319.

The Tigers' Levi Mandrell led the team over the weekend, shooting a 7-over par 77 at Western Texas College.

Snyder's tennis team hosts Abilene Wylie at the SJHS courts in its final tune up before district competition begins this Saturday.

The Tigers are coming off a 21-0 mauling of Brownfield last week.

Lyme disease has vaccine

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A new vaccine has proven to be 100 percent effective in protecting people under age 60 from Lyme disease, the tick-borne ailment that plagues outdoor-lovers, particularly in the Northeast, a medical researcher says.

"This will represent, I think, an improvement in our ability to control Lyme disease," said Dr. Leonard Sigal of the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School in New Brunswick, N.J.

Sigal, who headed the study, presented the results Monday at the Infectious Diseases Society of America's annual meeting.

Clinical tests began in 1994 and involved more than 10,000 adults in five states where Lyme disease is found — Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York and Wisconsin.

A company called Pasteur Merieux Connaught, a Swiftwater, Pa.-based subsidiary of Rhone-Poulenc Group, is planning to seek Food and Drug Administration approval of the vaccine by the end of the year.

Even after a vaccine becomes available, Sigal said it will be important for people to check their bodies for ticks if they work, camp or hike in areas where the deer tick-borne disease is endemic.

"I would hate for people to think that just because they got the vaccine that they didn't need to be careful," Sigal said.

The vaccine, which would be marketed under the name ImuLyme, was made using genetic engineering to produce a protein that stimulates the body's immune responses.

Three doses of the vaccine were shown to be 100 percent effective on men under 60 and all women, but only 67 percent effective on men 60 or older, Sigal said. Medical researchers did not know why the vaccine was less effective on older men.

The vaccine was administered in injections one month apart, with a third dose a year later. Those tested experienced redness, swelling and soreness at the site of the injection, the same side effects as any other intramuscular vaccine, Sigal said.

Some 98,000 cases of Lyme disease have been reported to the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention since 1982, including about 14,000 last year. It's the nation's most common tick-caused illness.

Broccoli sprouts said cancer fighters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tender sprouts of broccoli just emerging from the seeds contain up to 50 times more anti-cancer chemical than the mature vegetable and don't have the broccoli flavor that so many people find distasteful, researchers say.

In a study published today in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, researchers at Johns Hopkins University say they have found broccoli sprouts are loaded with a concentrated form of sulforaphane, a powerful cancer fighter.

Dr. Paul Talalay, head of a team at Hopkins that discovered sulforaphane five years ago, said he was surprised the sprouts contained such a high level of the anti-cancer compound.

"If these are developed commercially, this could be a really easy way for people to get the benefits of chemoprotection against cancer," said Talalay.

Earlier studies showed that sulforaphane, found in broccoli, cauliflower and some other vegetables, prompts the body to make an enzyme that prevents tumors from forming. In laboratory animals exposed to carcinogens, a 1994 study found cancer development was reduced by 60 percent to 80 percent when the animals were fed sulforaphane extracted from broccoli.

Talalay said diet studies have shown that eating 2 pounds of broccoli a week — an unappetizing thought to many people — can provide enough sulforaphane to lower colon cancer risk by half.

But Talalay said his lab has found the sulforaphane levels of broccoli from a grocery store can vary by a factor of eight or 10 and there is no way to identify a vegetable loaded with the compound from one that is not.

"They look the same," he said. "It is impossible to tell a highly protective broccoli from a poorly protective broccoli."

Broccoli sprouts may solve this problem, said Talalay, because the baby plants have a uniformly high level of sulforaphane.

"Because of the high content (of sulforaphane), it is possible to consume far lower quantities of the sprouts and get the same protection," he said.

Broccoli sprouts resemble the alfalfa sprouts now common in grocery stores, but they have more flavor, said Talalay. And the broccoli sprouts do not have the sharp tang of mature broccoli that many people, such as former President Bush, find unpleasant.

"They have a far more interesting taste than ordinary sprouts," said Talalay. "You can use them in sandwiches or salads."

Talalay said the broccoli sprouts take just three days to grow from seeds, in contrast to the 55 to 70 days it takes to grow a mature broccoli plant.

Broccoli sprouts are not now grown commercially, but Talalay said that if other researchers confirm the findings of his lab, it could encourage growers to start producing the baby broccoli as a new vegetable for health-conscious shoppers.

Pentagon backs warplanes at air shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon, hit by the spectacular failure of an F-117A stealth fighter at an air show, is defending the use of warplanes at such events. A senior lawmaker called for a halt to the public displays.

"I feel we should not ... be utilizing this type of military asset in this type of show," Sen. John Warner, R-Va., said Monday of the F-117, which garnered fame with its nightime bombing runs on Baghdad during the Persian Gulf War.

Pentagon officials say they had 973 requests for aircraft to appear at shows, static displays, or to conduct flyovers during 1997 fiscal year. They approved 880 of the appearances.

Defense Secretary William Cohen, speaking at a gathering celebrating the Air Force's 50th birthday, lauded the F-117 pilot as a hero for managing to steer his aircraft away from populated areas outside Baltimore, Md., as he fought to regain control.

Cohen said Maj. Bryan Knight displayed "courage and competence" and "helped divert a much larger disaster."

As seen on amateur video, a part of the warplane fell off and the aircraft went into a flat spin. Unable to recover, the pilot ejected safely. Two houses were set afire by the crash and six people were injured.

The secretary said video replays show Knight waited "until the final moment" to eject, something Cohen called "a compliment to the kind of courage and dedication that is exhibited day in and day out by men and women in the Air Force all over the world."

The remaining 53 F-117s were grounded Monday pending completion of an investigation of the accident.

Asked about the use of warplanes in public air shows, Cohen said it would be best to await the formal outcome of the Air Force probe.

"I don't think we should ever rule out any aircraft participating in shows. It could happen to any other type of aircraft that we have as well. Let's wait and see what the facts show," Cohen said.

Pentagon officials argue the shows are major recruiting tools for the all-volunteer force, and they allow the military to demonstrate how the defense dollar is spent.

The Pentagon demands that the appearances not interfere with any aircraft's mission. And civilian sponsors often pay fees for the events. Appearances by the Navy's Blue Angels can cost $6,000, while the Army's Golden Knights parachutists charge $2,500, Pentagon officials said.

Clinton won't propose tobacco plan changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ignoring calls for specifics, President Clinton has decided against proposing detailed changes in the massive tobacco settlement and won't press Congress to act on the accord this year.

Instead, the president plans to broadly outline his demands for legislation and tell Congress the time will be ripe for action next year, aides said.

His announcement is expected Wednesday. The aides spoke on condition of anonymity.

Mississippi Attorney General Michael Moore, who helped negotiate the $368 billion package, wants the president to endorse the settlement. After meeting with Clinton aide Bruce Lindsey, Moore told reporters Monday, "I expect the president to help us out here very soon."

"It is going to have to change, in the president's view, to resemble the type of approach he would want to see enacted into legislation," White House spokesman Mike McCurry said today.

McCurry said although many have ruled out legislation this year, the president remains hopeful.

"We believe there is momentum. If there's sufficient sentiment in Congress to proceed the president is anxious to proceed," McCurry said. "If it can be done this year that would be great."

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said today legislation is unlikely this year. He said after consultations, Democratic senators say "the message is, 'Go slow.' This is important, but not essential as a piece of legislation" that must be addressed this year.

Clinton is expected to praise the accord as a historic starting point — but then call it flawed. Aides said he will demand that any pact approved by Congress must:

—Give the Food and Drug Administration full power to regulate tobacco.

—Reduce teen smoking by restricting advertising, sales and placement.

—Punish tobacco companies if goals for reducing teen smoking are not met.

Bodyguard recovering

PARIS (AP) — Bodyguard Trevor Rees-Jones, the lone survivor of the car crash that killed Princess Diana, is conscious and can talk, a doctor said today.

Rees-Jones, 29, whose testimony is considered vital to the investigation of the crash, is off artificial respiration, the doctor said.

"The condition of Mr. Trevor Rees-Jones has noticeably improved. He was able to be taken off artificial respiration and the infection of his lung (injury) is under control," said Pierre Coriat, chief of anesthesiology at the Pitie Salpetriere Hospital.

"He is perfectly conscious and can communicate well, though tires quickly," Coriat said in a statement.

Diana died at the hospital after the Aug. 31 car crash in Paris. Her friend, Dodi Fayed, and their driver, Henri Paul, also were killed. Paul was legally drunk and was taking an antidepressant at the time of the crash, which occurred as the car was being trailed by photographers.

Coriat did not say whether Rees-Jones had spoken about the crash. It was unclear whether Rees-Jones has learned about the deaths of the others in the car.

Rees-Jones, who suffered severe chest injuries, was recovering from 10 hours of surgery more than a week ago to reconstruct his face. His jaw was wired shut. He reportedly has been communicating with his parents.
