Early voting deadline is Tuesday afternoon

Voting clerks remind Scurry County citizens that early voting in the school board, city council and bingo elections ends Tueday.

The actual election date for all six elections is Saturday.

All registered voters residing in Justice of the Peace Precinct 1 are eligible to cast a ballot in the bingo election. This includes virtually all of Scurry County except for Hermleigh.

Early voting in the bingo election is being held on the third floor of the county courthouse.

Two seats are up for election on the Snyder ISD board of trustees. They include Place 2, where incumbent Geraldine Parker is being challenged by write-in candidate Phil Ragland. In Place 3, Pam Zeck and Richard Chambers are opposing each other.

To cast a ballot in the SISD elections, voters must reside within the school district and the single-member district, either Place 2 or Place 3. Early voting is being held at the SISD Administration Building on 37th Street.

In the Hermleigh ISD board election, seven people are running for three full-term seats and three others are vying for an unexpired term.

On the ballot for the full terms are Brian Blair, Jay Roemisch, Andres Rodriquez Jr., John Williamson, Rex Glass, Chip Roemisch Jr. and incumbent Jimmy Hudgins. Blair is moving from the district and has said he will not campaign.

Running for the unexpired term are Carole Haynes, Jesse Rios and Larry F. Bridges.

Early voting is held in the Hermleigh ISD administration office. All seats are at-large and any registered voter within the Herm-

Commissioners approve two new programs at health unit

Scurry County Commissioners Court, by a 4-1 vote today, approved a state contract through the Texas Department of Health to provide for maternity and child health services through the county health unit.

Commissioners also approved a bid for two boilers for the coliseum, a line-item transfer and payment of bills.

Scurry County Health Unit employees have said that expanding services at their facility will necessitate more space, which is available if offices currently used by the mental health program are vacated. The question of relocating the mental health office is what prompted Commissioner Roy Idom to vote against the state contract this morning.

"I'm not against these programs. The problem is, we have no place for mental health. I think the cost of moving mental health will be more than what pre-natal brings in," said Idom.

Health unit employees Stephanie Knipe, RN, BSN, and Lana Chambers, RN, BSN, listed several advantages to expanding services to include maternal and child health. Among them are that it would add three new jobs, create two new programs, provide income to the county, make available continuing education for employees and enhance the ADN program through Cogdell and Howard College.

The contract calls for the state to provide $49,770 for the remainder of the current fiscal year, ending Sept. 1. Next year's contract would be for $86,554. The contract is renewable annually.

Payments received for health care through the new programs would go directly to Scurry County Health Clinic, and not into the county's general fund.

The state would pay salaries for the three employees — a registered nurse, a community services aide and a clerk. Chambers also noted that the state has agreed to allocate $3,500 for a computer and printer.

Virtually the only drawback is that mental health will have to relocate, Chambers said.

"We need additional space but we could go ahead and get started; we'd just be bumping into each other," said Chambers, who urged commissioners to approve the contract so that the programs can begin quickly.

Commissioner Jerry Gannaway suggested that the programs be implemented and office space remain the same until Aug. 31, and the program be evaluated at that

Blood drive set Tuesday

Scurry County Advisory for United Blood Services and Cogdell Memorial Auxiliary are sponsoring a blood drive Tuesday.

The drive will be held from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. at the National Guard Armory.

"Many of you might be wondering, who needs blood or blood donors? People do," said Rachael Givens of United Blood Services of Lubbock. "As many as 90 percent of all people who live to age 72 will need blood or blood products during their lives."

Blood is needed for many major surgeries, for patients being treated for leukemia or other cancers, or for a mother experiencing a difficult delivery. While most people will eventually receive blood, only a few donate it. Approximately five percent of this area's population donate blood.

"More people would donate if they only knew the importance," said Givens. "Doctors use blood for only one reason: to sustain life. Without blood, the life of the patient would be endangered. Giving blood is one of the most important acts of service you can do."

The goal for this blood drive is 120 units.

Each blood drive participant will receive coupons for a DQ Sundae from Dairy Queen, malt or milk shake from Sonic Drive-In, medium drink with the purchase of any dessert from Whataburger, small soft drink and order of Potatoes Ole' from Taco John's, food from McDonald's, a dollar off at Golden Corral, a medium drink with any food purchase from Wal-Mart; a medium drink with any meal purchase at Long John Silver's Seafood Shoppe; and one-half off video rentals from Depot Video.

Every fifth donor will receive a 6-pack of cola and every other donor will receive a coupon for a regular order of Gill's Fried Chicken.

Seven $5 gift certificates from both Jaramillo's Restaurant and Spanish Inn will be distributed by random drawings. A Sunday buffet for two from Willow Park Inn will be awarded by a number drawing from a list of all donors.

There will be a choice of small items as gifts from United Blood Services.

Cookies will be furnished by Lawrence IGA and orange juice furnished by Cogdell Hospital Auxiliary.

Outdoor signs advertising the blood drive are at Bar-H-Bar, Ben Wilson Supply, McWilliams Pharmacy, The Shack, Kmart, Pizza Hut, Golden Corral and Scurry County Coliseum.

Kevorkian is innocent

DETROIT (AP) — Dr. Jack Kevorkian was found innocent today in the death of a 30-year-old man last summer in the first trial under Michigan's year-old ban on assisted suicide.

The retired pathologist was accused of helping Thomas Hyde die by inhaling carbon monoxide. Kevorkian said he supplied the poison, tubing and mask and placed the mask on Hyde's face, but only in an effort to ease his suffering, not necessarily cause death.

Hyde was the 17th of 20 people who have died in Kevorkian's presence since 1990.

The Detroit Recorder's Court jury deliberated a little more than eight hours over three days before finding Kevorkian innocent. The law, enacted specifically in an effort to stop Kevorkian, carries a penalty of four years in prison and a $2,000 fine.

The Michigan Court of Appeals is considering several challenges to the law.

NAACP leader: police shooting of black man hurts city's image

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The police killing of a black man armed only with a tree branch has raised disturbing questions in a state proud of its reputation as a haven from urban violence and racial disharmony.

Police officials steadfastly deny that Birtes Lee Wilson Jr.'s race had anything to do with a white police officer's decision to shoot him during a domestic call.

But Jeannetta Williams, president of the Salt Lake chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, says she and others have serious doubts.

"I got a large amount of calls from all groups of nationalities, including a white lady who was in tears. She said it's not right," Williams said.

"This is the 1990s," she added. "We have to be concerned about how we're being seen outside of Utah. We can't have people thinking, 'If you're not white, you've got to worry about police brutality.'"

Police say the April 10 shooting was justified after Wilson, 29, attacked the officers, shook off the effects of pepper spray and batons, then brandished a thick, 10-foot-long tree branch and threatened to kill them.

The FBI is nonetheless conducting a civil rights investigation, at the request of Police Chief Ruben Ortega.

Police shootings are not common in the Salt Lake Valley, although there have been four in the first four months of 1994. In the same period last year there was one such shooting, with six in all of 1993.

The shooting occurred at 4 a.m. on a Sunday morning after Birtes Wilson's estranged wife, Janet, asked officers to retrieve her keys from an apartment where he was staying.

Police reports gave this account:

As Janet Wilson waited outside, Birtes Wilson handed the keys to Officer Michele Rendon. Her partner, Joel Schow, noticed a spoon with white residue next to Wilson's bed and took it.

Birtes Wilson claimed the officers weren't real cops and took a swing at Rendon, who backed away and doused Wilson's face with a pepper spray.

The irritant had no apparent effect. Wilson threatened to "take them out," and he and Schow fought with fists and baton. Rendon also was struck.

The struggle moved outside, where Wilson picked up a bicycle. Schow sprayed him again. Wilson threw the bike at the officers, but missed.

Wilson then threatened to kill Rendon, who had also sprayed him. Schow drew his baton again and Wilson ran. When he reappeared, Wilson began swinging the branch. The officers drew their guns, and Schow fired, hitting Wilson three times.

Handcuffed, he died a short time later. An autopsy showed cocaine in Wilson's system; police speculated that caused his sudden aggression.

Williams and other minority advocates say the shooting reflects a racial bias among some officers in the Salt Lake Valley, whose population, despite rapid growth, remains overwhelmingly white.

Regardless of the state's racial makeup, Williams said, peace officers must be colorblind. If Wilson had been white, she asserted, "They would have thought they could talk to him, reason with him, get the handcuffs on him."

Police Lt. Scott Folsom dismisses the controversy.

"Every time these things come up, there are questions," he said. "I understand the concerns of the community, but I think you'd be hard-pressed to find a racial motive."

Astro-graphs

Your Birthday

Tuesday, May 3, 1994

In the year ahead you might be more successful with endeavors you handle alone. If you feel a need to form an alliance, be sure it's with someone who can make a definite contribution.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Success is indicated today if you are truly self-reliant. If you aren't, persons upon whom you are depending for assistance may not be available and you won't get done that which you desired. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Instead of doing what is expected of you today, there's a possibility you might concoct remarkable excuses as to why you shouldn't.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Occasionally you have been rather fortunate in taking calculated risks, but today this or other types of gambles could backfire. It may not be your day for getting something for nothing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Persons with whom you're involved today might be as adamant as you are about having their own way. Ties could produce a bad experience.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Problems could result today if you try to exceed your limitations and capabilities. You're well aware of your boundaries, so don't take on things you may not be able to manage.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Usually you have a pretty accurate assessment regarding the values and worth of things, but today could be an exception, so be careful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're a pretty good starter today, but there are indications you might run out of steam in the home stretch and leave unfinished that which you began.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instead of doing that which you know is best for you today, you might unduly concern yourself with the opinions of others and do what you think will please them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An acquaintance who understands your generous nature to a "T" and who has taken advantage of you previously may have you in his/her sights again today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There is a possibility you might take competitive situations too seriously today and end up tripping over your own feet. Enjoy challenges for challenge sake and not as a matter of life or death.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you might find yourself in a development similar to one you didn't handle too well recently. Profit from past mistakes. Do not repeat them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone who considers you a close friend has a secret he/she doesn't want you to know. If you get too nosy, it could cause this person to withdraw from you.

Fort Worth waste collection plans criticized

FORT WORTH (AP) — City officials say their toxic waste collection program is legal and saves money.

However, environmentalists say that is not good enough.

As more than 1,100 people unloaded pesticides, old paint and car batteries at the city's collection effort in the Tandy Center parking lot, protesters complained that some of the materials will end up in the air after being burned at cement plants.

The protesters distributed leaflets urging arriving drivers to take their hazardous waste home and store it until they're offered a safe means of disposal.

The city has an agreement with Laidlaw Environmental Services, which sends some hazardous waste to cement kilns for use as fuel. Burning of hazardous waste at such kilns is not as strictly regulated as at commercial incinerators.

As much as 10 percent of solvents and other wastes collected will be blended into fuels for burning in cement kilns, said Brian Boerner, senior environmental quality specialist with the city's Department of Environmental Management.

"You can send it to an incinerator, or you can save hundreds of dollars and send the material to a cement plant," Boerner said.

The city's method also allows more material to be collected and probably makes little difference environmentally, he said.

"The emissions are probably not significantly different," Boerner said, though admitting he has no scientific proof of that.

Jim Schermbeck was unmoved.

For most normal children, hearing is most acute at about age 10. It takes about 30 to 40 years before any noticeable change occurs. High-pitched sounds fade first. But many people in their 70s and beyond retain the ability to hear a conversation at a normal pitch.

Russians cope with prices and wages

EDITOR'S NOTE — Prices are soaring, but pay is still low. So how do Russians survive? Thrift, pooling of family money and doing without luxuries have become a way of life. An Associated Press correspondent reports.

By Dave Carpenter
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Like millions of his countrymen, Viktor Ilyushin is uneasy in a strange new world of exorbitant inflation, consumer come-ons and family budgeting.

Not that the 52-year-old factory worker misses the police-state mentality of the Soviet Union. But life is so much more complicated now, outside the shattered cocoon of guaranteed jobs, wages and prices. Just getting along wears him down.

"In the past, I took life for granted and wouldn't think about what to do or how to live," he said in his family's cramped apartment on the outskirts of Moscow. "Now we have to think about it all the time, just to get by."

Getting by has never been easy for the average Soviet or Russian citizen. But with prices approaching those in the West and pay far behind, how people manage to survive is difficult for outsiders to comprehend.

Russians cite a combination of scrimping, working extra jobs and family support. Their legendary stoicism cannot be overlooked, either.

"Everybody gets accustomed to how they live," Svetlana Makarova, a teacher, said with a shrug. Then she added, smiling: "It's even worse in Uzbekistan!"

Ilyushin, a soft-spoken man with sideburns and graying hair, lives with his wife, Nadya, and their two children, Alexander, 24, and Natalia, 19. Their white apartment complex looks out on an end-of-the-tramline storage shed and other high-rises stretching to the smoggy horizon. Not far away is the airplane parts factory where Ilyushin has worked as a machinist for 28 years.

He's paid 150,000 rubles ($85) once a month, in cash. Nadya earns 350,000 rubles ($200) as an accountant, which bothers him: "This is not good, for a man to earn less than his wife."

The government still heavily subsidizes many basic needs. The Ilyushins pay just 3,000 rubles ($1.70) a month for maintenance, electricity and telephone at their cooperative apartment. They bought it in 1969 with 7,000 rubles that represented years of savings, but now is worth only $4.

Alexander's college tuition costs nothing, and 10,000 rubles, less than $6, covers a month of public transportation for the whole family.

But food bills eat up at least half their combined pay, reducing them largely to window-shopping for other things they need or want.

"In the past, maybe you had money and couldn't spend it," Ilyushin said. "Now you can buy whatever you want without standing in line, but you need lots of money."

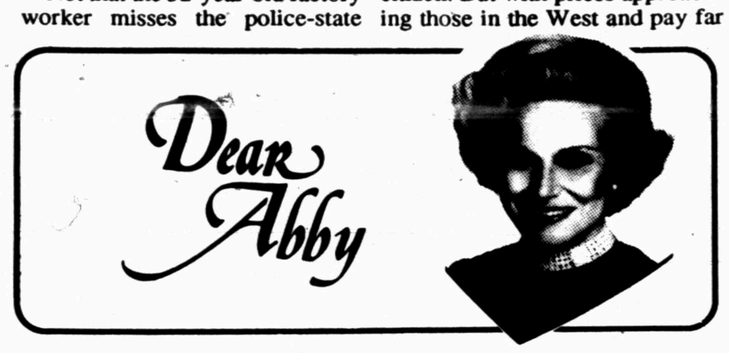
In a society almost without credit cards or checking accounts (most bills are paid in person at banks), friends are often the only source of financial help. With inflation over 900 percent in 1993, saving is out of the question.

The Ilyushins borrowed $100, more than a month of Viktor's salary, from friends to buy a small American-made TV when their old set broke. Travel, theater and all other "luxuries" already have been eliminated, so giving up their only remaining entertainment was out of the question.

Is Viktor Ilyushin happy?

"Well," he said, pausing, "the fact that I can't answer at once tells you, not really. But the fact is, besides a car, we have practically everything we need. We can't complain.

"There's a saying in Russian: Russians are happy people because they don't know how poor they are, how bad their life is."



Hearing Problem Is Overcome With Few Well-Spoken Words

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from Roger Gilman about airport announcements that come booming over a loudspeaker, which nobody can understand. Mr. Gilman touched only the tip of the iceberg.

Everyone, including waiters, waitresses, doctors, lawyers, appointment secretaries, clergy — anyone who has occasion to communicate with older people — should assume that we do not hear as well as we used to. So in order to compensate for our hearing deficiency, we read lips — or try to. Obviously, while listening on the telephone, we cannot read lips, eyes or faces. Almost every time a strange voice calls, I must ask him or her to slow down and repeat the message two or three times.

Those new telephone answering devices used by large companies are especially bothersome: "If you want 'A,' press 1; if you want 'B,' press 2," and so on. I sometimes have to dial the same number two or three times before I can decipher the instructions.

My suggestion: If you are in the company of older people, speak slowly and clearly, and do not hide your mouth behind your hand. We try to read lips.

Thank you, Abby, for bringing this to the attention of your many readers. I hope it helps.

RICHARD ZYLMAN IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR MR. ZYLMAN: So do I, and thank you for a very important letter. My older readers — and many younger ones with a hearing problem — will bless you.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but after reading the letter in your column stressing the importance of life jackets, I had to write.

In August 1990, I lost a wonderful brother. His name was Tobin McAuley. He, his buddy and two girls went sailing off the coast of Mexico. There were no life jackets on the boat.

About a mile and a half from shore, Tobin's buddy and the girls jumped into the ocean to swim, and his buddy got leg cramps and called for help. Tobin maneuvered the catamaran as close as he could to his friends. Then the girls swam for the boat, leaving his buddy, so he dove in to try to rescue his friend. The girls didn't know how to sail, and the boat drifted off. There was no way my brother could swim such a long distance back to shore. The girls eventually managed to get the boat to shore, but not in time to save Tobin and his friend — they both drowned. They were 29 and 30 years old.

I'm sure when they left the dock, it never crossed their minds that they were in any danger.

Abby, some people don't like to wear life jackets — they think they are a bother and only for sissies. Now my children will miss having known a loving uncle — and all because of a tragic accident that could have been avoided. You may use my name.

He needed the biggest sack

By Phillip Alder

The American Contract Bridge League tracks the number of masterpoints won by each of its members. In 1993, the greatest total was amassed by Jeff Meckstroth, who lives in Florida. He won 1,950 points, 88 more than second-placed Paul Soloway.

Meckstroth is one of only six players to have won the three world titles: Bermuda Bowl, Open Pairs and Team Olympiad.

He has a natural talent for the game, which you can appreciate if you watch him play. He is speedy and practical, using his excellent table presence to ferret out the lie of the cards. Today's deal is classic Meckstroth. It occurred during the final of the 1988 World Team Olympiad.

Meckstroth had to open one diamond because one club would have been strong and artificial. North's two clubs was fourth-suit forcing, asking for more information. East was happy to double to ask for a club lead.

When East played the club jack at trick one, Meckstroth ducked. Back came a low club to South's king.

With only five tricks on the side and clubs wide open, Meckstroth had to bring in four heart tricks. And if East had the club length, West rated to have the heart length. So declarer started with the heart jack, covered by the queen and king. Meckstroth cashed dummy's heart ace, carefully unblocking his eight. Next came three rounds of diamonds ending in the South hand. Then Meckstroth led the heart four and, after West played the six, finessed dummy's seven. It held and the contract was home.

Tigers pressured by rain, Estacado

The weather and the Estacado Matadors keep putting pressure on Snyder in the District 2-4A playoff chase.

Rain forced the postponement of the Tigers' Friday game at Plainview. It was too wet on Saturday, too, and the field at Plainview is still soggy today, so the contest has been rescheduled for Thursday at 6 p.m.

Therefore, the Tigers' next game is set for Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. at Estacado.

Both games are critical for Snyder's playoff hopes, especially after Saturday's 3-2 upset win by the Mats over Frenship.

Saturday's surprise win by EHS lifts the Matadors into a first-place tie with FHS, each with a 7-2 district mark.

Snyder and Plainview, both needing to win out in their last two games, are each 5-3 within the loop.

Snyder has been on a tear of late, winning three of its last four. Tuesday's scheduled starter, Lee Idom, has been on the mound for two of those, tossing a 1-hit 10-0 blanking of Estacado, then beating Levelland 11-0.

Snyder heads into Tuesday's contest with a 14-11 overall record. Estacado is 16-10.

In action today, Lamesa is at Levelland, weather permitting, in another game rescheduled from the weekend.

WTC clinches spots at CNFR

STEPHENVILLE — For the first time since 1986, both Western Texas College rodeo teams will be competing at the College National Finals Rodeo in June.

Both squads clinched berths at the CNFR with their efforts at the regular-season ending Tarleton State University NIRA Rodeo over the weekend.

The WTC women captured the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association Southwest Regional title, while the men finished second in the region to Vernon Regional JC. The top two teams and the top two individuals in each event will advance to the national rodeo.

"We're real fortunate," said WTC coach Bob Doty, who will be taking a team to Bozeman Mont. for the 15th time this year. "We're real proud of the girls.

"The last time the girls won the region, the men wound up winning the national championship. I don't want to make any predictions, but everything's even now."

The Western Texas men dominated the roughstock events at Tarleton, scoring a team-total 400 points to finish with 2537 on the season.

The regional champion VRJC team wound up with 2795 total points, including a fourth-place 145 here.

Leading the WTC charge in the season's finale was all-around winner Trey Griffin.

Griffin, the season's runner-up in all-around points, captured first place in saddle bronc riding with a two-head score of 144, and was the bull riding winner in the long go-round with a 75-point ride.

Also placing for Western Texas were bareback winner Cleve Schmidt, who accumulated 145 points, including a 73 in the finals; Troy Thomson, who wound up third in bareback riding with a 137; and Bronc Collier, whose 68 in the opening round was good for fourth.

The regional champion WTC women scored 90 points here, good for fourth behind host TSU's 215, VRJC's 150, and Odessa's 115.

Tarleton's Jamie Bean was the rodeo all-around winner.

Claiming the season's all-around title was WTC cowgirl Leslie Lewis, who was first in breakaway roping and goat tying on the campaign.

Lewis was sixth in breakaway roping here with a 2-run 18.2 clocking.

Dusti Beaton was Western Texas' standout over the weekend, claiming top honors in goat tying.

Beaton's event-best 9.8 in the short go gave her a 20.7 in the average and lifted her from fifth to first.

Green set to represent SHS at Class 4A state track meet

SAN ANGELO — The month of May is annually a busy time for high school seniors.

Snyder upperclassman Vicky Green just got a little busier this month.

Green, one of six SHS track athletes entered in eight events at the Region 1-4A meet at San Angelo Stadium over the weekend, earned a berth at the state Class 4A meet in Austin, May 13-14 with her second-place 124-5 toss in the discus throw.

Roshanda Ingram of Borger notched a 127-02 heave to win the event.

Green, also a regional qualifier in 1993, was a double qualifier this year, finishing sixth in the shot put with a throw of 36-71/2.

Other SHS girls' entrants at the regional gathering were distance runner Jamie Prather, who took eighth in the 800 meters with a 2:33.8, then eighth in the mile, flashing a 5:50.2; and Devon Reed, whose 16-73/4 on Friday was seventh in the long jump.

Three Snyder boys also competed here.

Emiliano Chaidez wound up ninth in the shot put with a heave of 44-1/4 on Saturday, while Melchor Parra's 10:11.71 was sixth in the Friday running of the 3200 meters.

In addition, SHS hurdler Jason Miller posted a 15.5 preliminary time in the 110-meter event, but failed to make Saturday's finals.

The top two qualifiers in each event will advance to the state meet at Memorial Stadium on the campus of the University of Texas.

Clark's sacrifice lifts Rangers past Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — A year ago the Texas Rangers' lineup could have been described as powerful, or dangerous, or mighty. Now Will Clark has come up with another adjective for it: Pesky.

The team that led the American League in home runs in 1993 ranks fourth from the bottom in homers so far in 1994. So the Rangers used an infield single and Clark's sacrifice fly to beat the Cleveland Indians 5-4 Sunday.

"It's a pesky type of offense that makes for a lot of run-scoring, too," said Clark, who was hitless in the game after finishing April with a .395 mark, his best one-month average ever. "This team will hit home runs, but they're not coming now. So you make do with other things."

Cleveland's Mark Clark limited Texas to three runs, one of them unearned, through eight innings, but the Indians' bullpen blew the save for the eighth time in 16 chances this year.

Manuel Lee, the No. 9 hitter in the Rangers' lineup, started their two-run ninth by blooping a double to right against Derek Lilliquist. It was Lee's third hit and second double of the game.

A fly ball moved him to third, and Oddibe McDowell drove him in with a slow roller off Jose Mesa (3-1) that never got past the infield grass. First baseman Paul Sorrento couldn't pick it up cleanly but had no time to make a play anyway.

Jose Canseco's third single of the game sent McDowell to third, and he scored when Clark lifted a fly ball to left off Brian Barnes.

The win was the Rangers' fifth in the last six games.

Orlando, Nuggets face must-win playoff tilts

by The Associated Press

Win tonight or go home.

That's reality for the Orlando Magic and Denver Nuggets.

Of the eight best-of-5 first-round playoff series, only two are tied at a game apiece. Six teams are facing elimination with just one more loss.

Four of them — New Jersey, Cleveland, Golden State and Portland — put themselves in that predicament with losses Sunday. The Nets fell to New York 90-81, the Cavs lost to Chicago 105-96, the Warriors were beaten by Phoenix 117-111 and the Trail Blazers lost to Houston 115-104.

On Saturday, Atlanta beat Miami 104-86, Utah took San Antonio 96-84, Seattle defeated Denver 97-87 and Indiana beat Orlando 103-101.

Four days into the playoffs, the biggest surprise, by far, was Indiana's lead over the Magic.

"We stole two games down there," Indiana coach Larry Brown said. "We were hopeful we could win at Orlando, but those wins don't mean anything unless you take care of your home court."

SUNDAY

Knicks 90, Nets 81

At New York, the Knicks survived the second-quarter ejection of Patrick Ewing, who was whistled for two technical fouls.

Charles Oakley took over in his absence, getting season-high totals in points (25) and rebounds (24).

Bulls 105, Cavaliers 96

At Chicago, the Bulls went with the same strategy that worked in Game 1 — shutting down Mark Price. It worked again in Game 2.

Price, held to nine points Friday, managed just 14 Sunday on 5-of-14 shooting. He is Cleveland's main remaining offensive weapon because of injuries to big men Brad Daugherty, John Williams and Larry Nance.

Suns 117, Warriors 111

At Phoenix, Kevin Johnson took over the game late in the third quarter.

The Phoenix point guard scored 15 of his 38 points in the final 5:02 of the period, most of them on layups.

Rockets 114, Trail Blazers 104

At Houston, Hakeem Olajuwon found himself drawing single coverage.

Bad idea.

"I don't think anyone can cover him one-on-one, he showed them that tonight," Houston guard Kenny Smith said.

Olajuwon scored 46 points and had two key blocked shots in the final 98 seconds.

The Indians, 3-3, were paced by Cody Kellner's homer and double, a triple and a single from Billy Pena, Scott Simons' extra-base hit, and a single each from Scott Reston and Taylor Cotton.

Yankees 12, Cubs 11

Joe Dan Davenport had all the Yankees' hits Saturday, a single and two doubles, in a win over the Cubs.

The Yankees scored five runs in the top of the fourth inning to rally from an 11-7 deficit.

Brandon Bolding and Josh Hall each lifted a hit for the Cubs.

The Athletics, 5-0-1, scored 12 runs on five hits in their victory over the White Sox Saturday.

Tommy Hull whipped a double and a single, Daniel Medrano singled twice, and Robert Stanley got a hit for the A's in support of winning pitcher Michael Fennell.

The White Sox, 1-5, were led by Jeremy Diaz, who singled after popping a homer against the Rangers last week, and Lyndell Lee, who doubled behind losing pitcher Thomas Whitt.

leigh school district may cast a ballot.

In the Ira ISD board election, Place 5 incumbent Sid Wall is being challenged by Dirk Dunn. Place 4 incumbent Bo Robinson is uncontested. Early voting is in the Ira administration office. Any eligible voter residing in the school district may cast a ballot.

There are four Snyder City Council seats up for election and all are contested; however, one District 4 candidate, Wylie "Buff" Hearn, will be moving from the district and is not campaigning. That leaves incumbent I.E. Martin as the only active candidate for the seat.

In District 1, incumbent Vernest Tippens is being challenged by Lynn Gardenhire; in District 2, Jerry Webb and Robert Sanders are candidates; and in District 3, Kenneth Gibson II and Kenny R. Gambrell are both first-time candidates.

Early voting in the city council election is being conducted at City Hall. Citizens must live within the designated district to cast a vote.

Candidates for the WTC board of trustees election, all uncontested, are, for Place 5, Lee Presswood; for Place 6, incumbent R.C. Patton; and for Place 7, Eddie Peterson.

Early voting is at the WTC Administration Building.

time.

"If we handicap them in their operation we are not going to get a fair idea of how this will work," said Judge Bob Doolittle.

"We're going to get a better idea than we've got now," retorted Gannaway.

Chambers said that the need for more office space is "critical." She noted that with three more employees, the necessity for two examination rooms and other needs, the already-cramped space would be quickly outgrown.

She noted that studies have indicated there are 900 people eligible for the program offering maternity and child health services in Scurry County. The amount of clients is expected to grow quickly once people are aware of the programs, she said.

"For us to be that cramped through the summer, and to be evaluated on that, I think would be a little unfair," she said.

Doolittle, Gannaway, Ralph Trevey and C.D. Gray Jr. voted to approve the contract, but Idom dissented, saying "I have to tie it to the bottom line. I'm afraid moving mental health will cost us more money than these new programs will bring in."

Temporarily, the mental health office will remain at the clinic. However, commissioners will have to secure a site — possibily in the Medical Arts Building near Cogdell Hospital — for the office in the near future.

In other business, the court approved a bid of $26,494 from Holman Boiler Works of Dallas to install two cast-iron sectional boilers at the coliseum. Commissioners also approved payment of approximately $260 for a performance bond.

Born in Mitchell County, she married Albert Lee on June 19, 1921 in Colorado City. He died in 1973.

Mrs. Lee lived in Portales, N.M., from 1949 until moving to Roswell in 1987. She was a housewife and a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include two sons, Paul Lee of Roswell and Elmer Lee of Goodland; two daughters, Maxine Brannon of Roswell and Glenda Walthall of Fort Worth; a brother, Lawrence West of San Angelo; a sister-in-law, Zonell West of Snyder; 12 grandchildren; and numerous great-grandchildren.

de Klerk concedes defeat in So. Africa's vote

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — President F.W. de Klerk conceded defeat today in South Africa's election to Nelson Mandela, clearing the way for Mandela to become the country's first black president.

With 40 percent of the votes counted, de Klerk's National Party had just 24.5 percent support to 61.4 percent for Mandela's African National Congress.

"Mr. Mandela will soon assume the highest office in the land, with all the awesome responsibility which it bears," de Klerk said at a news conference at National Party headquarters in Pretoria.

Referring to his negotiations with Mandela on ending apartheid over the past four years, de Klerk said: "I thank him and congratulate him. He deserves the congratulations, good wishes and prayers of all South Africans."

"I look forward to working with him constructively in the government of national unity in our common effort to promote the well-being of all our people," he said.

The Independent Electoral Commission, which organized the vote and counting, said final results might not be available until Tuesday.

In some places, counting that was supposed to have started at 6 a.m. Saturday still had not begun this morning. And many of the teachers and bank tellers hired to hand-count ballots had to return to work today, leaving counting posts unstaffed. At other stations, disputes arose over the use of party supporters to count ballots.

In another example of the disarray, the commission had to drastically scale back the results of the white, liberal Democratic Party after a computing error sent the group surging to fourth place. After the correction was made today, the party sank back to also-ran status.

The slow-moving process raised allegations of irregularities from many political leaders. An election commission spokesman, Humphrey Khoza, said 500 complaints had been lodged.

"There have been irregularities, there's no question about that. It is a matter of grave concern," de Klerk said Sunday night.

Konigkramer said Inkatha submitted a 40-page report today alleging serious breaches of electoral and counting procedures.

However, there were no indications any party would reject the results, which were about what polls had predicted.

New food labels are due soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Baseball stars Roger Clemens and Kirby Puckett are teaming up with the Goodyear blimp and Curious George, the storybook monkey, to get out the word that new food labels are on the way.

They're helping introduce the Food and Drug Administration's "Nutrition Facts" label that manufacturers must start using by May 8 — the first major change in food labels since they were introduced in the 1970s.

Ten years in the making, the labels are designed to show health-conscious consumers how particular foods fit — and don't fit — into their diets.

"Our message is simple: There is something for everybody in this new label," said FDA Commissioner David Kessler, who was to announce details of the promotional campaign today.

The new label has standardized serving sizes that are considered larger and more realistic than what many companies use. A single serving is 18 potato chips, for example, instead of eight.

TV game program announcer attends family estate sale

FORT WORTH (AP) — The garage sale ad beckoned folks to "Come on Down."

And nearly 1,000 people did, including hundreds seeking autographs from "The Price Is Right" announcer Rod Roddy, who returned home this weekend to help sell off the remains of his Fort Worth family's estate.

Even a downpour and chilly temperatures didn't deter the bargain hunters and fans who flocked to the home of a Roddy family friend in Mansfield. A two-car garage provided shelter for the items accumulated over 50-odd years in the modest, two-bedroom home Roddy grew up in near Texas Christian University.

Furniture, books, glassware and albums that Roddy sent home while traveling the country as a disc jockey were among the goods up for sale.

"Everything, they saved everything," Roddy said of his parents, aunt and grandmother, who at various times shared the residence.

It was in January 1993 that Roddy's mother, Doris, died at the age of 88.

For Bob Barker's sidekick, who lives near Studio City, Calif., it's taken more than a year to sort through the family possessions — from unused, unopened items to letters and cards to the blanket that swaddled him as a newborn.

"It was like psychoanalysis, if you want to know the truth," Roddy, 56, said in a telephone interview from his home.

The sale wares were primarily "bric-a-brac and other stuff," he said. But its sentimental value beckoned Roddy home to stand watch over its disposition.

Diet pills probed in death

AUSTIN (AP) — State health officials warned dieters with health problems to consult a physician before using an over-the-counter stimulant as a diet aid.

The stimulant ephedrine recently sent 10 Texas teen-agers to emergency rooms, and officials say it may have contributed to the death of a 43-year-old Austin woman.

Some diet pills sold in health food stores or by independent distributors contain the stimulant, which is legal but chemically similar to speed, said Dennis Baker, consumer affairs chief at the Texas Department of Health.

"We would recommend that a person with health problems consult their physician prior to using anything for dietary purposes," Baker said.

An emergency room physician at Brackenridge Hospital, who helped treat six Austin students in March, said the pills they took contained ephedrine.

Taken in sufficient quantities, ephedrine could cause a heart attack, stroke or seizure, said Dr. Brian Dillon.

One day before the incident with the Austin teens, four Amarillo high school students were treated for overdosing on over-the-counter pills containing ephedrine.

Friends of the Austin woman, whose doctor and family asked that she not be identified, told the Austin American-Statesman in Sunday editions that her use of an over-the-counter diet pill might have aggravated an existing health problem.

Dr. Gott

by Petter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband says that drinking a six-pack or more of beer a day is not the reason for his impotence. He feels it's because he's 62. I don't know how to handle the problem.

DEAR READER: While it's true that impotence is associated with age (because of less efficient circulation and other factors), alcohol can certainly aggravate the situation.

Heavy drinkers of any age often experience sexual difficulties, in part because alcohol affects the liver, the organ that neutralizes the small amount of the female hormone estrogen that every male produces. When this estrogen is not altered by the liver, the hormone circulates in the bloodstream and can affect potency. It can also lead to enlarged breasts, a common component of cirrhosis that results from alcohol abuse.

Although your husband may be partially correct, the amount of alcohol he consumes daily could clearly be adding to his problem. A six-pack a day habit is considered by many drinkers to be a "normal" amount; however, from a medical standpoint, it is clearly excessive. As a general rule, the liver cannot handle more than four ounces of spirits a day, or the equivalent in beer (two or three cans) and wine (two or three glasses).

You're probably going to fail in your efforts to make your husband moderate his beer intake. He'll view your pleading merely as "fussing" or harassment. So, I suggest that you focus on yourself. Ask your doctor to help you or attend an Al-Anon meeting in your community. Al-Anon is a support group for people whose loved ones are alcoholic, as I suspect your husband is (because he is unwilling to modify his behavior in the face of a probable physical effect from the alcohol).

Also, your family physician may wish to examine your husband, test his liver and address the alcohol issue.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Impotence" and "Help II: Mental/Substance Abuse." Other readers who would like copies should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title(s).

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently read your column about a 34-year-old woman with chest soreness. You said she could rule out heart disease because she was too young. WRONG! At 34 I had a heart attack. Don't be deceived by age or gender.

DEAR READER: You're right, of course. I was speaking in generalities. Heart attacks in people your age — especially women — are rare enough to be medical curiosities.

Nonetheless, you were correct in pointing out that chest pain in a person of either sex at any age could be caused by a heart attack. This diagnosis must be considered in the appropriate setting and should be investigated with suitable methods, such as electrocardiograms and blood tests. Thank you for writing.

Honesty betrays suspect

FORT WORTH (AP) — Honesty didn't do a whole lot of good for a driver anxious to convince officers that the silver objects on his car's back floorboard were not pipe bombs.

No sir, he said.

But, in an apparent attempt to ease the concerns of the officers who had backed away, the frazzled suspect reportedly blurted out, "Oh man, it's kilos, it's crack cocaine."

The motorist was asked to repeat his comment and, when he did, officers arrested him and read him his rights, said Sgt. Oscar Ramirez.

"That's when he got the idea that maybe he better shut up," Ramirez said Saturday.

According to police reports, the man was stopped Friday night in east Fort Worth by street gang officers who saw he was not wearing a seat belt and that his car was missing its front license plate.

Officers spotted silver cylinders on the car's back floorboard, protruding from a beer carton, and thought the objects might be explosives, Ramirez said. Fort Worth street gangs have used pipe bombs recently.

The objects turned out to be three packages of cocaine, wrapped in duct tape, Ramirez said.

The suddenly quiet suspect was booked into the Tarrant County Jail on suspicion of possession of a controlled substance, with formal charges not yet filed. His bail was set at $15,000.

Parasite doesn't respond to chlorine

HOUSTON (AP) — It takes just a small number of a chlorine-resistant parasite to cause illness in water drinkers with depressed immune systems, according to a federally funded study.

The parasite, called cryptosporidium, caused diarrhea and flulike illness in an estimated 400,000 Milwaukee citizens last year.

About 250 of the parasites can fit on the head of a pin. A study presented in Baltimore Sunday found 30 were enough to infect one-fifth of the study's volunteers. All of the 26 volunteers exposed to 500 or more of the parasites became infected within 11 days.

It takes 10 million cholera organisms, by contrast, to infect someone.

"For most infectious diseases, the great majority of the people who become infected don't get sick," said Dr. Herbert DuPont, the primary author of the study and chairman of the infectious diseases department at the University of Texas Medical School at Houston.

"What is remarkable about this parasite is half of those infected become ill. This is a bug you can pick up off a table top," DuPont said.

DuPont presented his findings at a joint meeting of the Association of American Physicians, the American Society for Clinical Investigation and the Federation for Clinical Research.

Most commonly, the parasite is transmitted by drinking water, infecting people and young animals — especially calves. It frequently latches onto people who come into contact with animals; AIDS victims; infants at day-care centers; and people who travel to developing countries.

Often considered a mere nuisance, the diarrhea can be fatal for people with AIDS because of their inability to produce antibodies that fight diseases.

The study, which was funded by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, could lead to further steps to clean up the nation's drinking water supply, DuPont said.

"The infectiousness of this parasite will undoubtedly change the way water is treated in this country," he said. "It gets into our water supplies via animal or human sewage. It is not killed by chlorine. Only heat or filtration is effective against it."

Dr. Frank Schafer, a scientist with the EPA in Cincinnati, said the study was funded because the agency wanted to know what levels of the organism can cause disease.

Although no exact number of people infected with the parasite is available, the parasite has been blamed for major outbreaks in San Antonio and Carrollton, Ga.

Last year's outbreak in Milwaukee made 400,000 people sick. About 800,000 people were warned to boil water during the outbreak.

Severe cases are treated with antibiotics.

Amelia Earhart became in 1932 the first woman to make a non-stop flight across the United States, traveling from Los Angeles to Newark, N.J., in just over 19 hours.

Cougar suspected of killing jogger is shot to death

COOL, Calif. (AP) — Authorities treed and killed a mountain lion they suspect of running down and eating a jogger.

Barbara Schoener, 40, was killed April 23 as she jogged on a park trail. Her partially eaten body was found the next day buried under leaves and branches. Cougars often bury their prey.

The 2- to 3-year-old female cougar was shot to death Sunday after a week-long hunt.

Since the cats often return to their kill, hunters searched the area where Schoener's body was found in the Auburn State Recreation Area east of Sacramento.

"The cat was literally on the scene where Barbara was attacked," said Ryan Broddrick, regional manager for the California Fish and Game Department. He said marks found on Schoener's body appeared to match the cat's teeth, but said a full examination of the cougar would take five days.

Schoener was the first person killed during a cougar attack in California this century, state officials said.

Cougars occasionally attack humans by accident, but usually run off when they realize it isn't their usual prey. In Schoener's case, the autopsy showed she was attacked, then run down a second time when she tried to escape.

That meant the animal had to be shot, Broddrick said.

"The cat had learned that people who are jogging did not represent a threat ... and may repeat the process," he said.

The 4,200-acre park in the Sierra foothills won't reopen to the public until officials are sure they've killed the right cougar.
