Eighty-One-Year-Old Lubbock Man Kills Himself

Servant Theory In Lindbergh Baby Killing Crumbles

Link Between Two Suspects Found Broken

Suicide Of Morrow Waitress Remains Unsolved As Her Companion Of March 1 Is Grilled, Freed Of Blame

Brinkert Is Held

Investigators Confronted By Hopeless Puzzle As Alibi Is Substantiated; Stories Of Other Suspects Tally

(By The Associated Press)

ALPINE, N. J., June 11. — The fabric of an outwardly promising inquiry fashioned from the suicide of a Morrow servant girl appeared to be crumpling tonight in the hands of the Lindbergh murder investigators.

Information supplied by a loyal friend, the Morrow butler, discredited any link between Miss Violet Sharpe, the waitress who drank a deadly poison, and Ernest Brinkert, an ex-convict, on the night of March 1 when the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped.

Freed Of Suspicion

Further, police found an Ernest Miller and Miss Catherine Minners who identified themselves as Miss Sharpe's companions on an automobile ride that night. Their joint statements, coupled with an alibi from Brinkert, tended to clear both him and Miss Sharpe of any suspicion whatsoever.

"A chap named Miller," said Inspector Harry Walsh of the police. "22-years old of Closter, N. J., has told us that he was the 'Ernie' who went riding with Miss Sharpe the night of March 1. He remembers the ride very well and everything that happened on it and says he cannot understand why she kept it a secret from us.

"Brinkert is remaining here. However, this is a peculiar turn of events. It is no fault of ours. We have not only Miller's story but the story of Miss Minners, who was on the ride that night. She says Brinkert was not in the car."

The suggestion Miller was the 'Ernie' Miss Sharpe knew came from Septimus Banks, Morrow Butler, whom Walsh described as having an "affectionate attachment for Miss Sharpe."

Police reiterated Miss Sharpe had identified a photograph of Brinkert as her companion on the night ride.

"Has Brinkert given any information tending to link him with the kidnaping?" Inspector Walsh was asked.

"No, not up to this time," he re-

Hopkins Out Of Governor's Race

AUSTIN, June 11. (AP)—W. K. Hopkins, 33-year-old Texas state senator of Gonzales, today requested the Democratic executive committee not to consider him as a candidate for his party's nomination for governor.

Hopkins' name had been filed with the party managers by friends, who had obtained the required number of signatories to a petition asking the executive committee to enter him in the July primaries.

Wright Morrow, young attorney of Houston, whose name was filed in a similar manner by friends who sought to draft him as a gubernatorial candidate, still had not decided what his attitude would be toward the race.

One Youth Arrested Here In Attempt To Steal Automobile

One youth was arrested and another escaped after they had connected electric wires beneath the instrument board of an automobile parked in the 1,000-block on Main street last night, police said.

The Chevrolet sedan carried Collinsworth county license plates, but name of the owner was not known. It was believed he was attending a show. The 19-year-old youth held said his home was in San Antonio.

Held In Killing

British society was stirred by the arrest of Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney (above), beautiful divorcee and daughter of a knight, charged with killing Michael Scott Stephen, 26-year-old son of a banker, after a gay cocktail party in her London apartment. She is the daughter of Sir John Mullens, wealthy London stock broker, and the former wife of John Barney, an American singer.

Restlessness Seen As GOP Leaders Meet

Talk Of Possible Stampede Away From Administration Desires On Prohibition And Vice-Presidency Is Heard

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, June 11.—The Republicans are converging on Chicago for a national convention which will be draped heavily in the outward regalia of party regularity, but prey to an inward stirring of strange uncertainties.

The renomination of President Hoover is accepted everywhere as a foregone conclusion. That of Vice-President Curtis is not, although it still appears most probable. On that most-discussed platform issue, prohibition, there is a bewilderment and fidgety sensitiveness, with opinion veering toward a simply-worded plank, resubmitting the question, without recommendation, to the voters.

Stampede Threatens

Talk of a possible stampede away from administration desires on the vice-presidency or on prohibition went swiftly tonight along the still sparsely populated hotel row on Michigan boulevard, center of the rea lmaneuvering of many a past convention. Most of the Hoover leaders appeared entirely confident nothing would come of it; but they were at work earnestly to stamp out the flying sparks.

The convention that opens Tuesday in Chicago stadium will be, according to label, the most "regular" the Republicans have seen in many years. Nearly the whole delegate strength is either instructed or pledged to Mr. Hoover's renomination, and the platform now taking shape at party conferences praises and upholds his leadership without reserve.

Is Hoover Show

The insurgent elements which have furnished a fighting opposition in the past will be almost entirely absent. Senator Borah has decided to stay in Washington. The LaFollettes are in the minority for once in the delegation from Wisconsin. It would seem that the whole show belonged to Mr. Hoover.

New Postoffice Opens Tomorrow

The postoffice in the new federal building will be open Monday and the old office across the street east will be padlocked.

Postal employes completed moving Saturday and today will be spent in cleaning up. Last distribution in the former postoffice was made at noon Saturday and the last dispatch of outgoing mail was made at 9 o'clock last night. Sunday incoming mail will be distributed from the federal building, said Postmaster John L. Vaughan.

Huge Highway Program Seen For Division

Cost Of Proposed Construction Of 350 Miles Of Roads Estimated At $3,000,000; All Serve Lubbock Area

Would Offer Jobs

State Agrees To Do Work If Counties Will Furnish The Right-Of-Way; Employment For Hundreds Promised

PLANS are underway for building more than 350 miles of state highways in division No. 5 mostly on through roads from Lubbock to the south, southwest and southeast and northwest, on the basis of the counties furnishing right-of-way and the state doing the construction work.

It is estimated that the cost of construction will be from $3,000,000 to $3,500,000. More than 75 per cent of this represents money spent in the counties where construction is to be done, as the cost of labor and local materials used is the greater part of the actual expense.

Would Provide Jobs

Hundreds of men would be employed and scores of teams used in construction work. The policy of the state highway department is to use local labor as far as possible.

Starting of grading and drainage work depends upon the rapidity with which right-of-way is secured. Guy R. Johnston, district resident engineer, pointed out. Fourteen counties in the district and two outside are affected by the proposals, which have been given to the several county commissioner's courts.

In some of the counties the court has taken preliminary steps to secure right-of-way and in others the work is about complete. Surveys have been made for a number of these projects and location parties are being sent out as rapidly as possible in the other sections.

A large part of the work can be started late in the summer or early in the fall, it is believed, if the right-of-way is secured. The projects probably would extend over a greater portion of the winter, thus affording labor for hundreds of persons for several months.

The project, as announced by the

Dispute Threatens Between House And Senate Groups Over Relief Legislation; To Take Up Farm Aid

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 11. — Despite the outbreak of a threatening dispute between house and senate over unemployment relief legislation, congress pushed ahead today toward adjournment with promise of consideration for farm aid and Philippine independence bills.

A cool reception was accorded in the house to the $300,000,000 Democratic relief bill approved yesterday by the senate and there were threats of blocking action on it until the senate considers the $2,300,000,000 Garner measure.

Compromise Looms

Leaders were confident, however, of a compromise agreement on unemployment legislation and laid their plans for an adjournment at the end of next week, if possible.

Meanwhile, the house debated the administration-sponsored proposal for creation of a system of home loan banks.

Progress was made in both houses on the all important governmental supply bills which must be enacted before adjournment and the controversial national economy measure.

The senate passed the District of Columbia appropriation bill and made the McNary farm relief bill the unfinished business, giving it preferred legislative status.

Six-Year-Old Girl Shot To Death By Her Older Brother

ALPINE, June 11. (AP)—Anita Cox, 6, was accidentally shot and killed today by her ten-year-old brother at the C. F. Cox ranch near Alpine. The boy playfully picked up a rifle and pointed it at his sister, the rifle discharged and the bullet struck her in the chest.

Rescue Attempt Ends In Tragedy

WAHAHACHIE, June 11 (AP)—The futile struggle of Jess Whitfield, 14, to save his little brother, Will, 12, from drowning in a pool near Frost had ended today in death for both.

Their eight-year-old sister, a helpless witness, tumbled into the water in her excitement and almost lost her life. Another boy rescued her.

The brothers had been wading in the pool, which was near their farm home.

A rescue party which arrived on the scene too late recovered their bodies.

Hoover Avers Budget Still Not Balanced

President Says Enactment Of All Proposals Under The Consideration Of Congress Would Not Even Finances

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 11.—At a surprise White House conference, President Hoover was quoted tonight as informing four congressional leaders in economy and appropriations matters that even the enactment of all proposals now under consideration by congress would not balance the budget.

As the conferees left the executive mansion—after an hour and a half with the president in the Lincoln study—they estimated variously that between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 more in federal economies would be needed to balance the budget.

It was stated, however, Mr. Hoover had not insisted upon specific means of saving such sums, but had left the details to congress.

In addition to Director Roop of the budget the conferees were Chairman Jones of the senate appropriate committee, Senators Smoot of Utah, and Hale of Maine, the two next ranking Republicans on the committee, together with Representative Wood of Indiana, the ranking Republican member of the house appropriations committee.

County Superintendents Will Serve For Four-Year Terms

AUSTIN, June 11. —(AP)—County superintendents of public instruction who were elected in 1930 will not be required to become candidates this year.

The Texas supreme court, in deciding a test case, ruled that a law enacted by the forty-first legislature which became effective in January 1931 fixing the terms of superintendents at four years applied to those elected two years ago. Heretofore terms of county superintendents have been two years.

Lubbock Man Is Arrested In Possession Of Stolen Auto

Jack Tilory of Lubbock was arrested in Clovis, N. M., in possession of an automobile owned by Mrs. C. N. Richie, 2001 Seventeenth street, and stolen from that address Friday night, the Lubbock sheriff's department was informed Saturday morning by a Curry county deputy sheriff at Clovis.

An automobile theft charge was filed against Tilory, a young man, here Saturday. Mrs. Richie reported keys to the garage had been stolen from her residence, preparatory to taking the automobile.

Spur Grandfather Is Charged After Girl Makes Statement

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SPUR, June 11.—Dickens county officers tonight were preparing to take steps to prevent any possible violence after George Faulkner, about 55 or 50 and a grandfather, had been charged with statutory assault. The charge was an outgrowth of a statement of an 11-year-old Spur girl to County Attorney A. B. Chapman.

Threats of possible mob action were reported tonight to Sheriff W. B. Arthur, although no manifestation of actual trouble had been made. Arthur declined to reveal the whereabouts of Faulkner, who was arrested Friday night at Swenson and taken to the county jail at Dickens.

Others Sign Statements

Chapman said three other girls, the oldest of whom is 12, had signed statements involving Faulkner. The county attorney intimated two others would be questioned.

Chapman said the girls claimed they were enticed by candy and other presents.

According to Chapman, the girl who made the first statement told of alleged relations existing over a period of about a year. The child is being treated by a Spur physician. The alleged attacks were purported to have occurred at a Spur residence.

To Oppose Release

"I will oppose the release of Faulkner on bond," the prosecutor said.

Arthur intimated tonight he might take the accused man to Lubbock. The sheriff said the girls were members of respectable families and that the affair was being discussed widely.

Faulkner operated a confectionery and a domino parlor here.

Dallas Deputy Sheriff Shot Down While Probing Robbery

DALLAS, June 11. (AP)—Officers tonight said they had no clues to the identity of the men who shot down Deputy Sheriff J. W. Fuller early today as he investigated a burglary and liquor robbery. Four men, however, were held at the county jail for questioning.

Missing Flier Rescued From Death At Sea

Passing Vessels Are Asked To Salvage Ill-Fated Airplane, Apparently Still In Good Condition

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 1.—A cryptic message from a ship at sea tonight brought word of the apparent safety of Stanislaus Felix Hausner, the Polish-American flier who was believed lost in an attempted trans-Atlantic flight.

It was the second time in 29 days a ship had picked from the waters of the Atlantic an aviator with aspirations to add his name to the long list of fliers who have completed the perilous journey.

Reicher Also Rescued

May 13, Lou Reichers, like Hausner, a New Jersey pilot, was rescued at sea by Captain George Fried of the U. S. liner President Roosevelt when his plane fell into the ocean near the vessel's side.

Richers suffered a broken nose and lost his plane; Hausner's injuries, if any, were unknown, but the flier sent word to other ships at sea that his plane still was in good condition and he would appreciate having any vessel pick it up.

The huge liner Leviathan, flagship of the United States lines, sent word to the Radiomarine corporation here of the rescue of the flier believed to be Hausner. The brief message merely said the Leviathan had intercepted a message from the British tanker Circle Shell saying the airman was rescued from the derelict plane 708S, the number of Hausner's flaming red monoplane. When the rescue was effected was not made clear.

Possibly Hausner was picked up shortly after he was forced down, supposedly by ice which weighted his plane to the ocean surface. The weather along the great circle course he planned to follow when he took off from Floyd Bennett field June 3, was stormy and meteorologists predicted he would have

Sterling Opens Campaign For Re-Election To Governorship

Continuation Of "Business-Like, Honest, Responsible Government" Promised By Chief At Waco Rally

(By The Associated Press)

WACO, June 11. —Governor R. S. Sterling opened his campaign for re-election tonight with the declaration that the issue should be: "Shall honest, efficient, responsible government be continued in Texas?"

He addressed an audience that crowded the McLennan county courthouse square.

Against More Bonds

The executive asserted that under present conditions he opposes the issuance of state, county or city bonds for any purpose. He pledged his support to the assumption by the state of outstanding bonds voted on local property to pay for highways in the state system.

Other speakers included: Former Gov. Dan Moody, State Senator Walter C. Woodward of Coleman; State Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston; Hal Brennan of Laredo, former commander of the Texas department, American Legion; Cato Sells of Fort Worth, former U. S. commissioner of Indian affairs; John Darrouzet, of Galveston, and Holman Swor, president of the Fort Worth Trades assembly.

Senator Woodward, one of those who carried on a speaking campaign in Mr. Sterling's behalf two years ago, reviewed the income tax record of former Governors James E. and Miriam A. Ferguson before, during and after Mrs. Ferguson's term. He declared various adjustments were made by the government in the income tax returns of the Fergusons."

Check Writers Here Will Pay About $20,000 Taxes

LUBBOCK check writers alone probably will send as much as $20,000 in a year to aid in balancing the national budget, bankers here estimated Saturday. A new federal law requires a tax of two cents on each check of $5 or more. It goes into effect June 21.

The $20,000 is based on the theory there will be as many checks written as at present and takes into consideration an estimated number of checks which will be exempt because they will be cashed at the bank by the depositor.

One banker made a careful check of his firm's business on what he considered an average day. He counted 1,324 checks for $5 or more, and it was estimated that about 200 or possibly more were cashed at the bank's windows. Another banker reported an average of about 1,000 checks of $5 or more.

All local bankers questioned Saturday were positive of the bookkeeping and other difficulties which the new tax law will require. Some were of the opinion that the regulation might tend to reduce small

Dynamite Caps Discovered In Veterans Camp

More Than Twelve Thousand Bonus Seekers Join With Police In Hunt For Ones Secreting Explosives

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 11. — The veterans army of more than 12,000 bonus seekers joined with police tonight in an effort to apprehend and deal swiftly with those secreting arms or explosives in the scattered encampments.

Discovery of dynamite charges complete with caps and fuses in the Anacostia Flats receiving station threw police, leaders and veterans alike on guard. The veterans' own secret intelligence unit carefully combed the camp for radicals and other possible stores of explosives.

Seek More Recruits

Meanwhile, a committee of the veterans left for Chicago to urge inclusion of a bonus-payment plan in the Republican and Democratic platforms. Other groups started for surrounding cities to recruit additional veterans in an effort to swell the total to 50,000.

A vote on whether to give formal consideration to the Patman resolution for immediate cash payment of the bonus will be taken in the house Monday. If that is acted favorably, a roll call on the legislation itself will be taken.

House leaders predicted today that branch would approve the bonus payment but its fate in the senate was doubtful. President Hoover has promised a veto.

Illness Keeps Garner From Work First Time This Year

WASHINGTON, June 11. —(AP)—For the first time this session illness today kept Speaker Garner from starting the house on its days work.

The 62-year old Texan, always early on the job, went to his office in the capitol at 7 a. m., and began dictating letters to Mrs. Garner, by 9 o'clock his temperature had risen and Dr. George Calver, house physician, was called in.

He directed Garner be taken to his hotel and put to bed.

"Uncle" Jack Spencer Shoots Self To Death Last Night After Supper With His Old Crony In Tent Home

Talked Of Death

Verdict Of Suicide Returned After Gin Employe Found Slain; Prized Watch Goes To Grocer For $5 Debt

"UNCLE" JACK SPENCER is dead by his own hand, his meager earthly possessions apportioned among the Avenue D friends he owed, and his prized railroad watch still ticking away as he would have had it do.

Ten minutes after the 81-year-old former railway and gin fireman had eaten a hearty supper in the tent home of his old crony, R. J. (Cap) Milner, 76, Spencer sent a .45 caliber bullet crashing through his temple in the South Gin company's engine room at Avenue D and Thirteenth street.

Verdict Is Suicide

Justice H. K. Porter conducted an investigation, aided by the sheriff's department, the police, and County Attorney Vaughn E. Wilson. The verdict was suicide.

Uncle Jack and Cap Milner were talking Friday afternoon.

"There are more suicides now than ever," said Cap, who earned the name when he was a Dallas policeman 32 years ago.

"Yes," said Uncle Jack, and paused. Then, "Well, I'm ready to go any time—any time. I don't care when."

That conversation was the only time Milner, veteran ginner who lived in his small tent back of the gin, recalled his friend of 17 years had mentioned death.

At 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon Uncle Jack visited Oscar Roberts, storekeeper at 1404 Avenue D. He owed Roberts $5.03 for groceries—for cans of blackberries, apricots, milk and wafers—things an old man can eat.

"Roberts," he said, "I want you to keep my watch until you get your money. I don't want to beat no body and I won't."

The grocer objected, but Spencer took the time-piece off its buckskin chain.

"No, I want you to keep it," the veteran insisted. "I've had it years, and it has never stopped. It never had a jar. Keep it running; it does

Kennedy early this afternoon sauntered into the Buntin Funeral parlor here, greeted an attendant with "Hello, Thomas, how are you?" whipped out an automatic and sent a bullet through his brain.

There is no known reason for the act, friends and relatives said.

In a letter to his wife, the bank cashier named the pall bearers for his funeral, which probably will be held tomorrow.

Budget-Making Institute To Be Held In Lubbock June 24; C.-C. Heads Asked To Attend

School To Study Problem Of Reducing Public Expenditures Arranged By W.T.C.C. At Texas Tech College

EVERY chamber of commerce president and secretary in West Texas, and the general public are invited to attend a budget-making institute, starting June 24 at Texas Technological college.

The institute was arranged by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at the suggestion of its president, Wilbur C. Hawk of Amarillo. It will be a school to study the problem of reducing public expenditures, one of the chief aims of the organization this year, as outlined by Mr. Hawk.

Committees Formed

Public expenditure committees already have been formed in 82 of the 117 towns affiliated with the organization, and while the institute will be held primarily for the benefit of these committees, every member of commerce president and secretary and the public in general are invited to attend," Mr. Hawk said.

The institute was announced after a conference of the president, D. A. Bandeen of Stamford, general manager of the regional chamber, and his assistant, Maury Hopkins.

Training in making city, school and county budgets in accordance with a definite form will be the main subject of the institute.

"We have the organization machinery set up to accomplish great results in public expenditure reductions and the object of this institute is to put the machinery in motion effectively," Mr. Hawk said.

Necessity Stressed

As president of the organization, Mr. Hawk outlined recently the chamber's policy, stressing the necessity of cuts in public expenditures and other objectives.

At the conference, Mr. Hawk outlined the committee work for the coming year. The president announced creation of 18 committees and assignment of 45 objectives.

With reference to the public expenditure work, Mr. Hawk said:

"Our problem is one of giving to the committees already created definite and specific assistance in the work of preparing and adopting the local budgets and in addition, to getting every one of our 117 affiliated towns to create these committees.

"At the close of my year, I hope to have on file copy of every city, county and school budget made in accordance with a definite form and adopted by the properly constituted authorities after a thorough review and public hearing before taxpayers."

The public expenditure committee objectives are divided by the president as follows:

"To sponsor and urge in all affiliated communities the creation of a public expenditure committee, dedicated to preparation of local governmental budgets and affiliated with the central committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce working on state and federal problems.

Plan State Organization

"It shall be the duty of the central committee to outline to the local committees a definite budget procedure and give to the local committees every possible staff and clerical assistance in preparation of data for local budgets and it is recommended that the central committee conduct an institute on budget making to which each local committee may send its secretary.

"To develop a state-wide organization on the reduction of public expenditures.

"To memorialize the Texas legislature and the United States congress to reduce public expenditures rather than impose new taxes.

Back Home Rule Plan

"Work to secure more economical form of county government as may be provided for in the enactment of a home rule measure for county government.

"Work for reorganization of the state administrative machinefy providing same will save at least a million and a half dollars annually.

"Work for the reorganization of the judiciary providing same will save $500,000 annually.

"To sponsor more orderly auditing and tax collection procedure."

Other Aims Given

Besides the reduction of public expenditures, three other chief aims were outlined again in the president's recommendations to committees.

These other principal objectives are beautification, industrial development and breeder-feeder work.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce expects to announce rules soon for an inter-community beautification contest, it was explained after the conference.

Advertise Texas Meat

Award to the winning town in the beautification contest will be made at the organization's annual convention.

The livestock committee is urged by the president to publicize Sun-Grown Texas Meat, trademark developed by the organization.

Recommendations to the industrial committee include employment of a woman organizer whose services will be available in all towns to organize women behind the "Buy-At-Home" movement and to stage manufacturers' shows in each town.

Classes In Life Saving To Start Next Wednesday

Life saving classes for men and women and boys and girls will begin at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning at City swimming pool in City park under the supervision of K. N. Clapp, pool manager and Red Cross examiner, and Eugene Adair, Red Cross examiner. The classes will meet every other day from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., Clapp said.

Commenting on chlorination of the waters of City pool, Clapp reminded that "various diseases, especially typhoid, are often the result of swimming in polluted water with the real reason of the illness often unsuspected."

"We often hear 'a stream purifies itself every mile'," he continued. "This is a common belief but is absolutely untrue as regards pathogenic bacteria or disease germs. Streams may become clear by the suspended matter, such as dirt particles, dropping to the bottom, but the germs do not and will continue merrily on their voyage for many miles."

Brown Gives Out Statement

Candidate For District Attorney Of 72nd District Would Cut Own Salary First If Elected To Post

Declaring that since he announced as a candidate for district attorney he has been stressing his belief that the only relief that can come from the present tax burden must come from reduction in governmental expenses, Frank D. Brown, candidate for district attorney of the 72nd judicial district issued a statement Saturday announcing that if elected he would prepare a bill reducing the salary of the office from $3,900 to $3,400. Mr. Brown said that if he was elected and after preparing the bill it failed to pass in the legislature, he would voluntarily reduce his salary by donating $500 to charitable organizations for the relief of the unemployed in the district.

Mr. Brown withheld a formal statement on his candidacy until Saturday. He has been a candidate since the first of the year.

Officials Keep Spending

"Our trouble lies in the fact that at a time when the sources from which taxes are derived have been practically dried up," Mr. Brown said, "the officers to whom expenditure of public money is intrusted, with a few notable exceptions, are spending just as much as they did when the country was at its peak of prosperity. Our salvation lies in cutting this overhead expense.

"Specifically applying this theory to the office of district attorney I expect if elected to administer just as carefully as possible the funds which are available for the enforcement of felony laws and to cut expenditures just as closely as possible without impairing efficient enforcement of these laws."

Would Cut Assistant

Mr. Brown said he would also seek to have the salary of the office of assistant district attorney cut from $2,500 to $2,000 per year. The assistantship is necessary because the district attorney of the 72nd district is also district attorney of the 99th district composed of Lubbock county alone.

"The district attorney is the chief law enforcement officer of the district," Mr. Brown continued, "and holds one of the most responsible positions within the gift of his constituents. He is an officer of the court and should at all times conduct himself with fairness, assuming the position of an impartial representative of justice. At the same time, he should not allow himself to be swayed by sympathies from an inflexible enforcement of the law.

New Crimes Appearing

"The district attorney whom you will choose in the coming election will carry what is perhaps the most serious responsibility ever resting upon the shoulders of an occupant of that office in this district. In addition the extraordinary increase in the number of those crimes which ordinarily occupy attention of our courts, such as burglary, theft, forgery, swindling, violations of the liquor laws, and crimes of personal violence, a new species of crime from which the South Plains of Texas has heretofore been free has begun to make its appearance here. Daylight holdups, bank robberies and racketeering, crimes which have in the past been confined largely to cities of the north and east, have spread all over the nation, and have made their appearance even on the South Plains.

"Preservation of organized government, and of our self respect as citizens of what we have been pleased to regard as one of the most law-abiding sections of the nation, demands that these assaults upon the structure of society be sternly repressed. Law enforcement officers and jurors of this district should speak in no uncertain terms, and the message should go out to those who have violated the law and those who may be tempted to do so, that the South Plains of Texas is an unhealthy place in which to ply their trade.

"If elected district attorney, I do not expect to assume the role of a persecutor, but I do expect to prosecute offenders against all the felony laws, vigorously, consistently and impartially.

"I am a native of West Texas. My record has been made on the South Plains. For eight years I served as official court reporter of the ten counties which formerly composed this judicial district. In that capacity, I attended one of the most practical schools of experience from which it has been the good fortune of any lawyer to graduate. In 1923, I was licensed to practice law by the Supreme Court of Texas, and since that time I have participated in the trial of a great many cases, both civil and criminal, involving life, liberty and many thousands of dollars. If not acquainted with the record I have made in the trial and appellate courts, I invite every voter to make inquiry of any lawyer or court official in whom he has confidence, in this or any adjoining judicial district concerning such record, and my qualifications for the office of district attorney."—Adv.

County Chairmen On Centennial Work

B. SHERROD

MISS DELIA WILKINSON

Mr. B. Sherrod and Miss Delia Wilkinson, above, of Lubbock have accepted appointments as county chairmen of the Texas Centennial committee for Lubbock county, and will at an early date complete county and precinct organization for a campaign to acquaint voters with the pending Centennial constitutional amendment. The county committee will appoint chairmen for every precinct in the county.

The state constitution as originally framed, however, made no provision for state support of a centennial celebration and the amendment would authorize the legislature to appropriate funds for assisting in such a celebration in 1936, but especially provides that it shall not apply to any other exposition or celebration of any kind.

The committee believes that all that will be necessary to secure an overwhelming majority for the centenial amendment will be to inform voters as to its purpose, and that with attention properly directed to it, every patriotic Texan will favor a creditable celebration of a kind to reflect the heroic sacrifice of the founders of the state, the resplendent achievements of the first century and the wonderful possibilities for the future.

Two Young Women Held For Thefts

Clear Docket In Court Here

Final Orders Are Issued By Judge W. H. Atwell Before Federal Session Adjourns; Review Matters Heard

Final orders were issued Saturday afternoon by Judge William H. Atwell, sitting in United States district court and the docket cleared of all cases for the term, before Marshall Goss adjourned court "on the minutes."

Some matters affecting appeals to the higher court are to be filed with the court, so attorneys were given until July 5 to complete these matters.

Review matters in the cases of Barrier Brothers, a corporation and the Barrier brothers, a partnership, were heard Saturday morning. After argument by Allen Wight, Dallas attorney representing certain Creditors, and George W. Dupree, representing the referee, Judge Atwell issued orders on the report. The creditors may take exceptions, he added.

Similar orders were issued in the case of John H. Cain, Littlefield bankrupt and also in the case of Fox Drug, of Plainview. Frank Day, argued for the plaintiffs, the city of Plainview and the Plainview Independent school district, on matters of taxes for 1929 and 1930.

Attorney C. C. Crenshaw presented an order in the Hutchinson vs. American Surety Co., decision asking for a bill of exceptions. Similarly it was announced the case of Hale vs. American Indemnity Co., et al. will be appealed.

Two carloads of matches, consigned to the Davis and Humphrey Wholesale grocery company, were unloaded yesterday, one of the largest orders of its kind to be received here.

It was explained that half of the order was because of the new federal tax which will go into effect about June 2. The company usually buys matches in carload lots, but the additional order was to meet an emergency.

The match tax amounts to $1.10 per case for one size and $1.25 for another.

EXPLANATION

Of Charter Amendment ON SALE OF CITY UTILITY PROPERTY

On First day of April, 1930, people of Lubbock adopted following Amendment to City Charter.

Amendment No. 6

To add Section 24, Article 2, Chapter 1 of the City Charter as follows:

Section 24. "Sale of Electric Light System and Water System and Plant to be voted on by people. The City of Lubbock shall not sell the municipal light system or the municipal water system of the City of Lubbock or any real estate owned by the City unless such sale is authorized by two-thirds vote of the qualified tax payers at a general or special election held in accordance with law."

The proposed change to above Amendment to be voted on June 28, 1932, reads as follows:

Amendment No. 3

Do you vote to amend Section 24, Article 2 of Chapter 1, of the City Charter of the City of Lubbock, Texas, by amending said section so as to provide that the City of Lubbock shall not sell the municipal electric light system, or water system and plant, or the 81 acre tract of land purchased by the City from J. A. Wilson out of Survey Eighteen (18), Block A, Lubbock County, Texas, unless such sale is authorized by a two-thirds vote of the qualified tax-paying voters at a general or special election held in accordance with law? Answer: Yes No that the present Amendment is broader than the proposed Amendment and prohibits the sale of any property, which includes for example, real estate acquired by City in tax sales, and therefore prevents the City from making a deed to such property unless voted by the people. Obviously the City Commission should have the power to sell real estate purchased at tax sales. Hence, the proposed Amendment to be voted on June 28th will merely prohibit sale of City light and water systems and 81 acres purchased sometime ago for City reservoir, except on two-thirds vote of people, and at same time permit sale of other real estate without such two-thirds vote.

It Will Be Seen

Babe's 18th Homer Only Little Annoyance To Wes; Senators Convert Hits Into Runs For Victory Over Browns

(By The Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, June 11. — Babe Ruth's eighteenth home run of the season, coming with Combs on base in the first inning, proved only a temporary annoyance to Wesley Ferrell today and the big right hander went on to pitch a six-hit game while the Indians rallied to beat the New York Yankees, 6 to 3.

The Indians got to George Pipgras in the fifth and drove him from the hill three innings later after he had yielded 12 hits.

Ladies Open Golf Season In Joust At Country Club

The ladies of Lubbock will open their 1932 golf campaign in earnest today with a mixed Scotch foursome tournament beginning around 8 o'clock this morning at the Lubbock Country club.

South Plains Golf league activity has been suspended for today, due to the West Texas Golf association tournament at San Angelo, finals of which are scheduled for today.

Eighteen couples will tee off this morning for the first nine holes of the Scotch foursome tourney. Nine holes will be played this afternoon.

Mrs. Carl Patton is chairman of the ladies' golf committee at Lubbock Country club.

W. G. McMillan, manager of the Meadowbrook Golf club here, has announced that he would appoint a ladies' committee to look after the interest of the feminine membership of the club. It is likely that teams of each organization will be brought together in an inter-city series later.

One day each week will be given over to the women golfers at the Country club. All feminine members are requested to get in touch with Mrs. Patton.

Davis Cuppers Finish Brazil

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP) — A two-months campaign destined to carry Uncle Sam's Davis Cup team into the inter-zone finals at Paris closed today as Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn completed the rout of Brazil's best at Forest Hills.

Closing the three-day series, which saw the United States victorious in all five matches, Allison defeated Ricardo Pernambuco, 6-1, 6-2, 6-0, and Van Ryn subdued Ivo Simone, 6-2, 6-0, 6-0.

The three team members, Allison, Van Ryn and Frank Shields, are scheduled to sail Tuesday night for England and the championships at Wimbledon. Their team mate, Ellsworth Vines, jr., already is on the ground.

Flying Cadet Of San Antonio Wins Texas Amateur Net Title

AUSTIN, June 11. (AP) — Dolph Muhlheisen, Randolph Field aviation cadet who made a round trip in his airplane each day to participate in the Texas District amateur tennis tournament here, won the men's singles championship today but lost in the men's doubles.

Muhlheisen, former intercollegiate national champion, was teamed up in the doubles with his flying partner, Lieut. J. Helms, an officer at the nation's largest aviation field. They were defeated by Hugh Dunlap of Cleburne and Albert Love of Dallas in closely contested sets. The scores were 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

The flying racquet wielder defeated Jesse Pfeiffer of San Antonio 6-4, 6-1, 6-1 for the singles championship.

Arson Suspect Is Not Connected In Local Bombings

A United States army private charged with attempted arson Wednesday at San Antonio as an aftermath of discharging of acid and stench bombs in theaters there evidently was not connected by authorities there with the Memorial day bombings here of the Lindsey and Palace theaters.

Two men sought by San Antonio authorities, who last week said the pair had been traced to Columbus, Ohio, were regarded as responsible for the two Lubbock blasts. A special deputy sheriff employed by San Antonio theaters signed attempted arson complaints against Sam Kohn, Co. F, 23d infantry, Fort Sam Houston.

Sheriff Albert Hausser of Bexar county said four witnesses had been found who saw Kohn drop a bottle, which a chemist subsequently said contained a fluid high explosive, from the balcony of a San Antonio theater in which he was arrested. The bottle fell on a man's lap, rolled to the carpeted isle, and did not explode.

Negro Sprint Star Shatters World Records

A. C. C. Athlete Finishes In Second Place In Half-Mile; Metcalfe Breaks Trio Of World Speed Records

CHICAGO, June 11. (AP)—Uncle Sam, an ebony phantom of the cinder path, is a cinch to be a member of your olympic team.

He is Ralph Metcalfe, 22, negro youth from Marquette university, who in two amazing races today eclipsed three world records and tied another, as Indiana won the National Collegiate Athletic association track and field championship with 56 points.

Metcalfe shattered the world marks for the 220-yard dash, the 100 meters, the 200 meters and tied the accepted world record of 9.5 seconds for the century. Metcalfe's performance, topping an afternoon of reckless record breaking, was hailed as the greatest achievement since Charlie Paddock broke the world records for the 100 and 220 in one afternoon back in 1921.

Metcalfe was the outstanding performer, although not much ahead of George Saling of University of Iowa, and Jack Keller of Ohio State, each of whom set world records.

The winners of today's events and those who trailed them in second and third place, will be chosen to compete in the final trials for America's Olympic team July 15-16 at Palo Alto, Calif.

Metcalfe started his amazing achievement by winning the 100-yard dash in 9.5 seconds. This equalled the world record made by Eddie Tolan, another negro star, from the University of Michigan.

Ohio State Second

The battle for team championship honors involved midwestern rivals with Ohio State finishing second to the Hoosiers with 49 3-4 points. Minnesota was third with 39 1-2, and Marquette, because of Metcalfe's achievements, was fourth with 23 3-4.

Saling, the flashy Hawkeye, gave the world something to shoot at in the 120-yard high hurdles when he skimmed over the barriers in 14.1 seconds to knock three-tenths of a second from the accepted world mark made by Earl Thomson of Dartmouth in 1930. Keller also knocked a hurdle record into the discard when he galloped over the 220-yard low hurdles in 22.7 seconds. The old accepted mark is 23 seconds flat.

Summaries included:

880-yard run — won by Charles Hornbostel, Indiana; Glen Dawson, Oklahoma (ineligible); E. Gray, Abilene Christian (ineligible); second, Edwin Turner, Michigan; third A. Schiller, Texas; fourth D. Dunkin, Missouri; Rhoads, Kansas State Teachers, Emporia (ineligible); fifth E. Labertew, Iowa State; sixth L. Hutton, Illinois State normal. Time 1:53.8. (Equals N. C. A. A. made by Dale Letts, Chicago, 1931).

Principals Of Title Fight Struggle Along Without Big Ballyhoo Benefits

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 11.—Unheralded and unsung, Max Schmeling's heavyweight title defense against Jack Sharkey in Madison Square Garden's big bowl on Long Island June 1 came down to the final week of preparation today still a mystery to the faithful, the promoters, and perhaps the fighters themselves.

Almost completely without benefit of ballyhoo, Sharkey has boxed himself down to a mere 205 pounds in his training camp at Orangeburg, N. Y., while the champion, at Kingston, N. Y., has paced himself along at the same even physical trim, 189 pounds, that he has maintained since he defeated Sharkey for the title on a foul in four rounds two years ago.

The critics are widely divided on the choice of a winner, despite the tremendous improvement in defense and punching power Schmeling displayed in knocking out Young Stribling in Cleveland last summer.

Sharkey's increased weight around the shoulders has added to his clouting powers, and he still is recognized as a great heavyweight when the mood is on him.

Kermit Blosser, Ohio university senior, won the 191-pound National Collegiate wrestling championship in his thirteenth time to enter the ring.

Clarence Brooks Resigns As Texas Loop Ump; Coe Signed

DALLAS, June 11. (AP)—President J. Alvin Gardner today announced the resignation of Clarence Brooks from the umpire staff of the Texas League because of ill health. Frank Coe, who was in the Western League last year and in the Texas circuit in 1924 and 1925, will replace Brooks.

Wolfforth and Shallowater are scheduled to play in a semi-final this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The winner will meet Petersburg for the championship and the $50 prize money.

Golf as the STARS play it

by ART KRENZ

It is difficult to prescribe definite principles for putting. The way to stand or to hold the club is a matter of personal choice.

In my tour of national tournaments, of the hundreds of leading golfers who impressed me with their keen putting those who kept the hands well in front of the ball when taking their stance seemed to have an edge.

With the hands out in front, the arms are free to move and the clubhead is kept under control at all times.

Johnny Farrell, acclaimed by Tommy Armour as the greatest putter we have today, keeps the hands well ahead of the ball, the weight slightly more on the left foot and the head over the ball.

Dodgers Smear Cards To Make First Division

Hack Wilson And Taylor Work On Card Pitchers; Giants Climb To Tie For 5th Rung In Victory Over Bucs

(By The Associated Press)

BROOKLYN, June 11. — The Brooklyn Dodgers clambered into the first division of the National League by the slim margin of one percentage point as they clouted the St. Louis Cardinals into submission by a 12 to 3 count to open their series.

Freddy Heimach, making his first start of the season, limited the Cards to five hits, all but one of them in the seventh and eighth innings. Danny Taylor and Hack Wilson led the assault on Derringer and Lindsey, the worst sufferers among four Cardinal pitchers.

Andy Reese and Al Lopez got into a tangle on the base paths after Lindsey had crowded the corners in the fifth and both were knocked out in the collision. After they recovered, Lopez was called out for interference, two runs which had crossed the plate were called back and then Taylor smacked a liner to deep center for a homer.

CHICAGO, June 11. (AP) — Senor Juan Carlos Zabala, the "hare of the Argentina pampas," dashed over the heavily traveled concrete highways of Chicago's south shore today with such a burst of speed and stamina that he recorded the fastest 15 mile marathon run in America's history.

Senor Zabala streaked over the route in the record smashing time of one hour, 20 minutes, 37 2-5 seconds and might have shattered the 30-year-old world mark if he had speeded up during the last mile.

Lions, Rotarians Meet Thursday In Civic League Tilt

With a muttering sound that could be heard at least halfway around the convention hall, if there had been a convention hall, Vaughn Wilson, manager by his own might of the Lions baseball club of the Civic League and a prosecutor of clothsline strippers in his off time, uttered a challenge to Judge Raley, skipper of the Rotary club of the same league, for a game of baseball.

Those present reported that they heard later from a friend of theirs that Raley accepted the challenge, though it was hinted that he was satisfied to let well enough alone, having pitched his team to a victory over Del Morgan's Kiwanians two weeks ago came Thursday, but the challenge was given in such a manner as to make the veteran hurler-manager forget trivialities and call upon his courage.

So the Lions and Rotarians will play the second game of the Civic League season Wednesday afternoon at Merrill Park.

Raley said yesterday his team probably would repair to the Buffalo Springs training camp immediately. Wilson said his team needed no training to beat the Rotarians but that he would call a session Wednesday morning and weed out those who had been accepting invitations to Rotary luncheons.

Coaches Of 25 States Already Seek Application As Students In Second Annual Tech Coach School

By COLLIER PARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor

Indications that the second annual Texas Tech coaching school, scheduled July 11-22, would excell the 1931 school in attendance were given impetus yesterday when Russell Smith, assistant coach at Tech and business manager of the school, announced that already 153 coaches from twenty-five states had filed letters of registration.

With one month to go, promoters believe that somewhere in the neighborhood of 500 coaches will register for the school.

In a recent letter to Smith, Heartly "Hunk" Anderson of Notre Dame, one of the instructors of the school, said that an eight-reel, 60-minute slow-motion picture of the Notre Dame-Southern California game would be shown in connection with the coaching school. Anderson will be accompanied by Marchment Schwartz, all-American back, and possibly by Frank Carideo, former all-American quarterback who was recently named head coach at the University of Missouri.

Warner Brings Assistants

Glen S. "Pop" Warner of Stanford is the other principal instructor billed for the coaching school. He will be accompanied by his assistants, Chuck Winterburn and Tiny Thornhill. Jack Meagher of Rice Institute will be on hand.

Still another principal is Dr. Forrest "Phog" Allen of the University of Kansas, who will teach basketball and lecture on the treatment of injuries. Twenty-six coaches from Kansas have already registered for the school.

Clyde Littlefield, head coach at the University of Texas, is also scheduled for lectures and demonstrations.

Hunk Works On Offense

In his letter to Coach Smith, "Hunk" Anderson said that one of his main issues in the school would be the inside arrangements of the famous Rockne system in combatting the six-man line with three line backers and two defensive halves. Last fall Anderson ran up against several teams which used this defense to stop the Ramblers, and he is anxious to perfect an offensive setup to beat that particular defense. He will also discuss his findings relative to an offense against the six-man line with two line backers, two defensive halves and a safety man. This is the defense used to advantage by the Southern Methodist University Mustangs.

Letters arrive daily at the desks of Coaches Cawthon and Smith from coaches asking further details concerning the school and setting forth intentions to be here. An average of four or five registrations per day have been coming in for the last three weeks.

Registrations so far include coaches from the following states, the number of coaches from each state being given:

New York, 1; Ohio, 1; Maryland, 1; North Carolina, 1; Connecticut, 1; Wisconsin, 1; Iowa, 2; Arizona, 2; Washington, 2; Pennsylvania, 3; Georgia, 3; Mississippi, 3; Nebraska, 3; New Jersey, 4; Louisiana, 4; Tennessee, 4; Illinois, 4; Arkansas, 4; Colorado, 4; Missouri, 7; California, 8; New Mexico, 8; Oklahoma, 15; Kansas, 26; Texas, 45.

Since this is only a partial list of those apparently certain of coming and since it does by no means include the number who have indicated intentions to come, the 1932 coaching school in all probability will exceed by a hundred or so the number here last year. Three hundred and twenty-one coaches were here for the two weeks school last year which was conducted by Wallace Wade of Duke, Jimmy Phelan of University of Washington, Sam Burton of West Texas Teachers and Jimmie Kitts of Rice.

Aspirants For Office Speak

No Fireworks Are Featured In Appeal For Votes Here Saturday And Large Crowd Slowly Filters Out

Rollicking tunes of three musicians packed the district criminal courtroom Saturday afternoon for a speaking engagement of district candidates, but when the fifth and final man had completed his address not more than 60 persons remained. There were no fireworks in vote appeals, and the audience filtered out.

The speakers, as they appeared, were Dan Blair, George S. Berry and Franklin D. Brown, candidates for district attorney; and W. P. Walker of Crosbyton and Robert H. Bean of Lubbock, seeking the 72nd district court judgship. Judge Homer L. Pharr, incumbent who is asking re-election, was not present.

Music Draws Crowd

The trio of players appeared first on the courthouse lawn and piedpiped the crowd to the third floor. Even Chairman J. K. Wester, Lubbock county Democratic "war horse," chuckled as the accordion musician played "Down on the Farm" with good imitations of animal sounds.

In offering their qualifications, aspirants for the district attorney's office, mentioned or referred to the recent bombings of two theater buildings here. One declared that the next district attorney would have even greater responsibilities than any previous office holder here because of increasing crime.

Qualifications of an office holder were listed by Mr. Blair, as: Fair, economical, cooperative, and possessing ability. He urged the voters to apply those standards to the candidates.

"This is a time when every voter in this land should be interested in the men who are offering themselves for office," Blair declared. "We see the mark of bolshevicks in Washington and in Austin. There are murders and theater explosions."

Blair, who explained he had obtained his education by working his way through college, declared himself to be the candidate of no group or clique.

Mr. Berry, former Young county attorney and 30th judicial district assistant attorney, said that he, if elected, "would have no friends to protect and no enemies to punish."

Experience Cited

"You must have a district attorney versed in criminal procedure and in the laws of your state. You need a man of experience as never before," he declared. "If I am your district attorney, I will oppose indictment of any man until the facts are produced to prove there has been a law violation. Boys can be saved to themselves and to society by aid at a crucial moment.

"The professional criminal will secure the best of counsel. Why should not the state obtain the best representative it can buy in its election? If I am your district attorney, I will plead appealed criminal cases before the court of criminal appeals."

After pointing out the importance of the office he sought, Mr. Brown, formerly district court reporter, urged an investigation of his record as a practicing attorney.

"The most important thing before citizens today is the cutting of governmental expenses," he said. "The only way of cutting taxes is by cutting the overhead; your offices should be placed in charge of people who will watch expenditures.

"Crime Increasing"

"Your next district attorney will have greater responsibilities than any other who has served the district. Crimes are increasing; big cities are sending out their criminals to ply their trade in easier places. Racketeering and blackmailing are realities."

Mr. Walker promised a careful study of all cases, both criminal and civil, which came into his court if elected.

"I know of a criminal case in which the defendant was convicted and which was reversed. That reversal cost the tax payers $1,000 in witness fees and jury fees," Walker said. "It is the duty of a judge to exercise his every ability to see that his cases will stand up and stay tried." The Crosbyton man was judge of the Tarrant county court five years, retiring voluntarily to come to the Plains.

"It behooves you to look into the ability of men whom you select for judge, because he can commit an error in a few minutes which will cost the tax payers half as much money as his year's salary," Mr. Bean, former Lubbock county judge pointed out.

"If I am your judge, I will not be a stuffed shirt on the bench, but I will be one whom you can approach with your troubles, will cooperate with the attorneys in the cases.

"Not until expenses are cut will there be a substantial reduction in taxes. If the legislature cuts my salary, if I am elected, I will not object."

Explanation Of City's Purpose In Offering Charter Amendments Given; Changes Rule In Real Estate Sales

Explanation of the city's purpose in offering the amendment regulating sale of city-owned property was made yesterday at the city hall. The amendment, with two others including a change of the Board of City Development tax from two mills to one-half mill, will be offered in an election Tuesday, June 28.

An amendment voted April 1, 1930, reads: "The City of Lubbock shall not sell the municipal light system or the municipal water system of the City of Lubbock or any real estate owned by the city unless such sale is authorized by two-thirds vote of the qualified tax payers at a general or special election held in accordance with law." It is this amendment which is proposed for a change.

"It will be seen that the present amendment is broader than the proposed amendment and prohibits the sale of any property, which includes, for example, real estate acquired by the city in tax sales, and therefore prevents the city from making a deed to such property unless voted by the people," the city's statement said. "Obviously the city commission should have the power to sell real estate purchased at tax sales. Hence, the proposed amendment to be voted on June 28 will merely prohibit sale of city light and water systems and 81 acres purchased sometime ago for a city reservoir, except on two-thirds vote of the people, and at the same time permit sale of other real estate without such two-thirds vote."

The proposed amendment reads that action is "to provide that the City of Lubbock shall not sell the municipal electric light system, or water system and plant, or the 81-acre tract of land purchased by the city from J. A. Wilson out of survey 18, block A, Lubbock county, unless such sale is authorized by a two-thirds vote of the qualified voters at a general or special election."

Burkett To Talk Here On Monday

Former State Senator Joe Burkett of San Antonio, who was in Lubbock about two weeks ago, has informed The Avalanche-Journal he will speak at the courthouse here at 8 o'clock Monday night in the interest of his candidacy for congressman-at-large from place No. 3. He said he would speak at Plainview at 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Before he last left here for Farwell, Dalhart and other Panhandle towns, Burkett reported "generally bad financial conditions and an evident political unrest" in the parts of Texas he had visited. The former senator advocated "immediate inflation of our currency."

Hypnotist Runs Into Parked Truck On Blindfold Drive On Lubbock Streets

After a mishap in the first block's run, giving spectators the thrill they had anticipated, Dr. de Zita, hypnotist who had appeared at the Palace theater, completed an automobile drive Saturday afternoon through Lubbock business and residential sections while blindfolded.

He stopped at eight business and public places, finding his own halting way into them except when led to the sheriff's office by a newspaper reporter who accompanied him on the drive. A second drive, scheduled for 4 p. m., did not materialize, de Zita explaining that the authorities did not approve.

Backing from the curb in front of the Palace theater at 2 p. m., de Zita straightened his machine and lurched westward on Main street. Near the middle of the next block, he failed to turn to the left enough to avoid striking the protruding corner of a parked truck, although he seemed to have sensed an obstruction. It scooped off the right fender-light on the new Pontiac coach de Zita was piloting and raked its side. The swarthy showman said it was the first such accident in his career.

Until de Zita asked what had happened, the reporter kept a pledge not to speak. The shower of glass by the window made for conversation, but little that the newsman said aided the hypnotist in negotiating the course. In a few instances de Zita's terse "Okay?" was answered. J. D. Johnson, motorcycle policeman, followed the blindly operated coach.

In a traffic jam in the downtown section, de Zita: "Where the hell are we?" He looked toward a woman driver in an automobile nearby and said: "Excuse me, lady; I didn't mean that." She smiled.

The run ended at the Palace theater, de Zita circling the block again to make a satisfactory parking. "Okay?" he asked.

C. B. ("Brownie") Akers, assistant manager of the theater, blindfolded de Zita before spectators. Two pieces of double layer cotton, which de Zita had cut with rounded edges, were kept in place over the eyes by two perpendicular and a longer horizontal strip of adhesive tape. Four or five turns of gauze went over that.

Fair Play In Public Office, is "TURN ABOUT"

I have never before asked for a Public Office

I am a native Texan and loyal citizen, residing on the Plains 41 years; the last 30 years in Lubbock county. Have been loyal to churches, public schools, the Tech college, home merchants and many other enterprises, helping develop this county. Have had 4 years of active bookkeeping and office work, have served on grand jury, petit juries, and tax equalization boards in Lubbock county. Was raised on the farm, am experienced in farming, stock raising, merchandising, legal number and valuations of real estate. "Fair Play to All; special favors to none," is my platform. I pledge efficiency and economy and that you will not be ashamed of my work, nor my conduct if you elect me Tax Assessor.

I ask my friends to please help, who know my merits and qualifications, by telling those who are not acquainted with me.

Have always been a loyal tax payer, and made many liberal donations to the upbuilding of this community, and Lubbock county will be my home in the future.

Your vote and influence solicited and appreciated.

Card of Thanks

Card Of Thanks

When peace and happiness attend our way we are prone to under-estimate life's real values, which strengthen and enrich our lives, it is when the storm of life threatens the very foundation of faith and hope, that true friendship is properly evaluated to our friends in our recent bereavement, the death of our loved one. Especially do we wish to thank those who sent the beautiful floral offerings and sought by any means to offer their friendship at such a time. We acknowledge our deep appreciation and the assurance that we shall ever remember you and your kindly deeds.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 11. (AP)—Cotton was fairly active in today's short session but prices following an opening gain turned easier, closing at net declines of 1 to 9 points.

Prices turned easier with lower stocks and lows for the day were reached in the late trading with July down to 4.97, Oct. to 5.17 and Dec. to 5.32, down 16 to 18 points from the earlier highs. Prices rallied 2 points at the end on covering and July closed 7 points net lower and October and December 8 points net down.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP)—An early advance in cotton on week-end reselling by recent buyers who appeared to be influenced by the absence of more aggressive support and the disappointing action of the later stock market.

July contracts after advancing to 5.10 or 7 points net higher, broke to 4.94 or within 3 points of Friday's low record, and closed at 4.97, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 6 to 8 points.

At the lowest, prices showed net losses from 9 to 16 points on the more active months with December selling off to 5.34, and closing at 5.37.

Stock Market Closes The Week With Flurry Of Profit Taking Saturday

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, June 11. (AP) — Having demonstrated that a short position in dynamic shares can sometimes be made very uncomfortable and costly, the stock market closed the week with a flurry of profit-taking today.

First hour advances of 1 to 3 points by numerous leaders were lost. Enough stocks, in fact, closed lower to give averages a small net decline. Turnover was 850,420 shares.

Technical influences seemed to have governed the movement, for the day's contributions to information on the state of trade conveyed nothing of particular interest. The impression that congress was nearing adjournment gathered strength; doubtless it had had much to do with the drive against shorts in stocks whose small capitalizations make them most susceptible to sharp market movements. It was also noted with satisfaction that the gold flow had dwindled to a mere trickle, compared with recent volume, although foreign currencies improved moderately in today's transactions.

Possibly, too, Hausner was forced down, let out what gasoline remains in his tanks, plugged the valve and used the fuelless plane as a floating home for days. His 525 gallons of gasoline could not have lasted more than 52 hours or until 11 a. m. (CST) Sunday, June 5. Hausner might have floated aboard his plane since then, or if he did float about, more likely since sometime on Saturday, June 4.

bank accounts, from which the institutions obtain 50 cents each month as maintenance cost.

"There will be some depositors who will check out their entire accounts and we will lose quite a bit that way," a bank cashier said. "It is going to cause every banker a world of worry and we will have no remuneration for it."

During the period after the Spanish-American war, when there was a two-cent federal tax on checks, a practice was used whereby a depositor could evade the check tax when withdrawing money from the bank. The depositor went to the bank and signed a receipt for the amount of money he withdrew, but did not draw a check.

During the late 90's when the previous tax was in effect, the banks sold checks, with the tax stamp printed on the check, in blocks of 100 for $2. That removed the necessity of buying the government stamps and placing them on each check.

It is estimated that of the checks written here, between 70 and 80 per cent are for $5 or more.

Lubbock bankers charge four cents for each check drawn on an account, allowing one free check for each $10 on average daily deposit. The minimum charge is 50 cents.

Lindbergh Clue

plied, "but he will remain here for the time being. This thing is pretty much of a puzzle. Our inquiry isn't over.

"Brinkert denies that he has ever been in New Jersey. And he denied flatly that he knew Miss Sharpe or her sister. He said he had never seen them nor even heard of them up to yesterday."

In another reversal, police found substantiation tonight for Brinkert's alibi that he had spent March 1 at the home of Frank Page, a negro living in Bridgeport, Conn.

"I cannot understand," said Walsh, "why this woman, if she had nothing to do with the kidnaping, preferred death to revealing Miller's name."

Miller Puzzled

Miller told police he too was puzzled and that there was nothing about the ride which should have been concealed.

Walsh persisted in reemphasizing the fact the sister of the dead girl applied for a passport visa at Washington March 1 to return to England that she sailed four days after the supposed kidnapers got $50,000 ransom from Dr. John F. Condon April 2.

However in England Miss Sharpe's sister said the police had driven the dead girl "crazy" by their constant questioning. Scotland Yard authorities said they were convinced the sister, known both as Edna and Emily Sharpe, had nothing to do with the kidnaping and slaying.

Not a Swedish bank failed last year in spite of the depression. Two raised their dividends and six reduced them.

better then."

To Keep It Running

Roberts took the watch; it's ticking faithfully, and the new owner said he would keep it running.

Uncle Jack tagged his last belongings with cotton tickets—his nice, practically new "grip" was "for Mrs. Griffin;" his other suitcase was "for Cap Milner;" and his bedding and his blankets were "for Mrs. Whatley." No notes other than the penciled cards were found.

Mrs. W. H. Griffin, 1306 Avenue D, said the suitcase contained a new pair of socks and a pair of shoes. He owed her for two weeks' board at $4 a week. About a month ago he asked Mrs. Griffin if she had a grip." She did not. "I want you to have this one," he told her.

"He'd been mighty good to me," said Mrs. M. A. Whatley, 1318 Avenue D, after she had told of lending $250 to Uncle Jack with which to buy medicine. He had been in ill health for several months. One of Mrs. Whatley's four young children spoke up:

"Uncle Jack bought me lots of candy."

Cap Milner will not open the suitcase his friend left to him until Sunday. "It's too soon," said the old man simply.

Clothes Laid Out

Milner, who said his tent was a "mansion" for it had cured his asthma, explained Spencer had been fireman and engineer of the South gin five years, sleeping in the gin office, where the tagged articles were found. On the office desk lay the aged man's best suit, underwear, a nice shirt—all clean. Officers said they believed he wanted to be buried in the clothing.

"He had been everywhere," Milner explained. "China, and Canada. I had let him have a little money but that doesn't matter now. He's gone.

"We came to Lubbock about the same time. I was a ginman and gave him his first job here, 17 years ago.

Didn't Talk Much

"Uncle Jack wasn't much hand to talk. He mentioned a wife twice, and once he told me he had two boys. Nobody, I guess, knows where they are."

W. H. Griffin and Clint Jenkins, who is visiting here from Clairmont, Texas, first found the body after hearing the shots, County Attorney Wilson said. The body was lying, face down, on a bench, the head and feet touching the floor. On a barrel nearby were keys to the gin office. Beneath his feet was a .45 calibre revolver—an old gun, which neighbors said was his own. A neighbor said there were six pennies in his trousers.

Two shots were fired. Wilson said he believed the first shot streaked the scalp, and the fatal wound was the second shot fired. Death was instantaneous, he said.

The body was carried to Bynum-Morgan Funeral home, but arrangements for a funeral had not been completed last night.

The Spencer suicide Saturday night was the fifth in Lubbock in 1932, and the eighth violent death of the year. There have been at least two other suicide attempts.

Grain

FORT WORTH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, June 11. (AP) — Good demand was reported for grains on the Fort Worth cash grain market as the week ended.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis carloads, freight paid:

Delivered Texas Gulf ports, export rate, or Texas common points:

Wheat, No. 1 ordinary hard milling 53@54; No. 1 hard 13 per cent protein 53 1-2@54 1-2; 14 per cent 54 1-2@55 1-2; 15 per cent 55 1-2@56 1-2.

Barley, No. 2 nominally 30 1-2@31 1-2

Sorghums, No. 2 yellow milo per 100 lbs. 70@72; No. 2 white kaffir per 100 lbs. 70@72.

Delivered Texas common points or group three: Corn, No. 2 mixed 40 1-2@41; No. 2 white 41@41 1-2; No. 2 yellow 48 1-2@49 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 11. (AP)—Hurry to buy transformed itself into hurry to sell in the wheat market today.

A ragged finish resulted, with price gains virtually wiped out.

Wheat closed irregular, 1-8 off to 1-4 up compared with yesterday's finish, corn at a shade decline to 3-8 advance, oats 1-4 to 3-8 higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Crop comments from the spring wheat territory both domestic and Canadian were generally suspicious, and late Kansas reports suggested that the winter wheat yield in various big sections might prove better than had been forecast.

Texas and Oklahoma as well as Kansas reported larger yields of wheat than had of late been expected.

Highway Program

state to the several courts, include the following:

Highway No. 9 south, Lubbock to Big Spring: A field party is starting at Lamesa and to work north through Dawson and Lynn counties to the Lubbock paving, on final location. This route will be west of the Santa Fe tracks all the way. In the event of right-of-way being secured it is believed a contract can be let late in the summer. South of Lamesa through Dawson, Martin and Howard counties, the U. S. bureau of public roads has been asked to approve a tentative location.

Highway No. 7, southeast from Slaton to Scurry county line: Right-of-way in Garza from Southland to Post now in process of condemnation for portion where property owners declined to agree with court; right-of-way southeast of Post to the county line settled; first section of plans, to Justiceburg bridge, completed.

Highway 7, northwest of Lubbock from Hockley county line to Farwell, Parmer county, through Lamb, Bailey and Parmer: Apportionment for cost of making surveys authorized. A fifteen-mile section between Sudan and Muleshoe held up because of delay of property owners in affording outlet for trucks from caliche pit.

Highway 137, southwest from Lubbock county line to Gaines county line: Survey for location Brownfield to Hockley county line through Meadow, completed; now working across Hockley county with Ropesville right-of-way virtually assured; survey authorized Brownfield to Seagraves to Seminole; also working on Seminole to Andrews.

Highway 24 in Crosby and Lubbock counties: Section Lubbock to Idalou will be started as soon as remaining right-of-way is secured, as court action is settled; Idalou to Crosby county line let last week; right-of- way settlement, Lubbock through Lorenzo and Ralls to west side of road district, nearing completion. Letting of road up the west gap in Blanco canyon expected soon.

Highway 24, west of Lubbock: Surveying work in Cochran county Morton to state line, finished and preliminary plans being prepared; county to secure right-of-way; plans on 14 miles in Lubbock county soon to be finished.

Highway 28 in Floyd county: Commissioners' court anxious to start securing right-of-way. When authority is secured from Austin it is believed survey will be started.

Highway 33 in Parmer and Castro counties: Authority already given for survey of road north of the Santa Fe railroad, Farwell to the Deaf Smith county line. The remainder of this highway is in the Amarillo district.

Highway 9 in Swisher county: The commissioners' court has had before it since March an offer for the state to build the grading and drainage. Happy to Hale county line through Tulia and Kress when the right-of-way which shortens the mileage, is secured. This is the only gap between Lubbock and Plainview and the North Panhandle towns, Amarillo, Panhandle, Borger, Stinnett and Pampa, unprovided for. Work is starting on Randall county paving.

Projects now underway in the district include:

Crosby county: Surfacing of 13 miles on Highway 24, Dickens county line to edge of road district, well underway.

Lubbock county: Contract let for grade and drainage, Idalou to county line; surfacing of 14 miles on Highway 137 to Hockley county line starting; surfacing on No. 7 northwest to be completed before July 1.

Gaines county: Surfacing started on 137, Seminole to Terry county line, 20 miles; grading work starting on Seminole to Andrews county line.

Cochran county: Grade and drainage on 12 miles, Whiteface to Morton, nearly complete.

Mileage of the proposed projects is as follows:

Highway 9, 105 miles, end of Lubbock paving to Big Spring.

Highway 7, 70 miles, Hockley county line to Farwell, not including 15 miles authorized.

Highway 7, 46 miles, Southland to Scurry county line; seven mile section, Slaton to Southland, to be let when other contract is.

Highway 137, 43 miles, Hockley county line to Seagraves, in Terry county; eight miles in Hockley to come later.

Highway 33, 38 miles in Parmer and Castro counties.

Highway 24, west in Lubbock 14 miles, Cochran county, 15 miles to state line; east in Lubbock, awaiting right-of-way, 12 miles; 16 miles in Crosby county.

Highway 9 in Swisher county, approximately 35 miles across the county.

Highway 28 in Floyd county, from Hale county to Motley, 30 miles.

Troops 9 And 10 Of Lubbock Scout Units Are Strong

Troops 9 and 10 of Lubbock Boy Scouts are the "infant" members of the local scout system, but they are vigorous and husky youngsters take it from D. T. Jennings, scout executive, who organized these units.

Troop 9, sponsored by the West End Baptist church as a part of its boys' program, was organized September 16, 1931, with Fred DeLashaw as scoutmaster. No. 10 came into being March 12, 1932, with approval by the council of its application for a charter. Organized at the junior high school after the school board had given its permission, L. H. Liston became scoutmaster.

Coming to Lubbock and the South Plains area council April 1, 1930, from Kansas City where he had charge of nine-county area outside of Kansas City, Mr. Jennings has been in charge of scout activities in this section since that time. H. B. Palmer, who served as first executive, came here in the spring of 1925 and served until in 1927. H. B. Yates, Dallas school teacher and a "pinch-hitter" in this scout region, directed summer camps at Post in 1927 and in 1929. W. P. Knox was scoutmaster from the fall of 1927 to Feb. 1, 1929. After Knox left, the Rev. L. G. H. Williams, then Episcopal rector, and K. N. Clapp, local scout leader, took charge of the area, giving their services voluntarily.

A troop 9 for senior scouts was organized January, 1929, but did not re-register. When the unit at the West End Baptist church, of which the Rev. B. P. Milburn is pastor, was formed, it was given that number. Mina Watkins is assistant scoutmaster, and troop committee members are: Joe B. Taylor, H. E. Goeth, L. R. Waldrop.

The original roster made in 1929 shows names of: Edgar Bright, Ovid Brock, Roscoe Clark, G. W. Foster, Sam Henry, jr., Carroll McCasland, Edgar Neal and S. M. Wilson.

When the troop was revived these names appeared on the charter application: Hugh Bonham, L. H. Foot, David Gross, Joseph Horn, Truman Irwin, Jim McMahon, George Morgan, Lee Roy Pierce and Earl Roberts. Additional enrollment included James Chandler, George Hardberger and Gordon Sanders.

Boys enrolling in No. 10 were: Richard Darby, Charles Gibson, Billy Knight, Russell Loves, G. V. Pardue, Paul Rhodes, J. T. Jackson and Murry Venerable.

Troop committee members are C. L. Hale, Joseph R. Griggs a Cnd. H. Willingham.

Fate Of Gaston Means To Be Given To Jurors On Monday

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP) — The fate of Gaston B. Means, charged with swindling Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean of $104,000 ransom and expense money in a plan for return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, will be put in the hands of a District of Columbia supreme court jury of eleven men and one woman Monday.

Means told newspapermen that the turn taken by the Lindbergh case with the suicide of Violet Sharpe, employe in the Morrow home, and arrest of Ernest Brinkert "was no surprise to me."

"I am convinced I know more about the Lindbergh kidnaping case than any other person," he said.

Loving county is the most recent county to be organized in Texas. Its number is 254.

Two Of Lockhart's Four Opponents For State Senator Opposed To His Proposal For Primary Nomination

Creation of the baby beef club idea among boys and girls is the work of J. E. Boog-Scott of Coleman, Welton Winn, Lubbock man, said Saturday. Mr. Winn has been an acquaintance of Mr. Boog-Scott for the past thirty years.

"In Coleman county, nearly thirty years ago, Mr. Boog-Scott started encouraging boys to raise better beef cattle and the first baby beef club in the U. S. was formed under his direction," Mr. Winn said. "I was living in Coleman at that time and remember the organization very well."

NEWS BRIEFS

A musical program will be given at the colored Methodist church in Lubbock's negro section Monday night at 8:30, it was announced Saturday. The program was scheduled for Friday night but was postponed due to rain.

Vocal solos, chorus selections and piano numbers will be given during the program.

Two alarms were answered late Saturday by the fire department. A run was made at 4:25 o'clock to Texas Avenue and Fourteenth street where a condemned vacant frame structure was burning. The flames were put out.

At 5 o'clock, an automobile was reported on fire in the 1100-block of Main street. No damage resulted. The building is owned by Sam Redwine. Several months ago the city had ordered it condemned, said Fire Chief W. E. Twitty.

FIGHTERS ARRESTED

Two boys who engaged in a fist fight at a filling station at Avenue H and Eighth street were sleeping in the same jail cell at city hall last night. Face of each was badly bruised, but by the time they reached police headquarters last night differences causing the fight had disappeared.

Two of G. E. Lockhart's four opponents in the contest for state senator from the 30th district Saturday night had made statements that they would not accept his proposal that the candidate receiving the greatest number of votes in the first primary receive the nomination.

Jess C. Levens of Lubbock declared "if the majority of people don't want me, I don't want the office." He continued: "Too many things have been taken from the people already. They should be allowed to say whether a man shall be elected by a plurality or a majority."

Clyde E. Thomas of Big Spring was the other candidate to turn thumbs down on the proposal of a private agreement between candidates. Thomas commented:

"I don't believe that rights of the voters in the 30th senatorial district to pass upon the claims of, and select from, the two highest senatorial candidates, should be gambled away purely for the convenience and slight expense of the candidates."

James H. Goodman of Lubbock, also a candidates for the post, refused to comment. Arthur P. Duggan of Littlefield is the other candidate.

"Each of us has been preaching economy in state government," Mr. Lockhart wrote. Commenting that "we might practice a little economy by eliminating the second primary so far as this race is concerned," he made the proposal.

"If this proposition should be accepted by you, or either of you, if I should be second in the first primary, then, I will withdraw in favor of the candidate receiving the highest number of votes, if such candidate accepts this proposition," said Mr. Lockhart.

Home Brew Makers To Have To Pay More For Their Malt

Users of malt extracts, whether for cooking or the making of home brew, will hereafter have to pay ten cents per can more for their malt.

When congress recently voted to balance the budget by an increase of taxes, malt was one of the articles included, wholesale grocers explained.

The tax will be ten cents per can or $1.10 per case.

The Bride's

FOR TRAVELING and for cool summer days the bride could not do better than to include this navy wool coat in her trousseau.

The wide, butterfly sleeves, which are practical for wear over the full dress sleeves, and the high waistline are high style features, and the printed silk scarf adds chic.

Bettina Hall, stage star, is the charming wearer.

Reception For Tech Is Given

Informal Affairs Are To Be Predominant For Students During The Summer; Clubs To Have Meetings

An informal reception held on the lawn south of the administration building on Tech campus Saturday evening initiated socialities for the summer term at the institution. Other informal affairs will be given throughout the session and a number of social clubs plan to continue meeting at intervals.

Guests at the reception were college students and faculty members. They were greeted by a receiving line composed of the summer school committee and council of deans at Texas Technological college and their wives. These included Dean and Mrs. James M. Gordon, Dean and Mrs. A. H. Leidigh, Dean and Mrs. O. V. Adams, Miss Margaret Weeks, Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Evans and Mrs. Mary W. Doak.

An orchestra played throughout the evening under the direction of Harry LeMaire, who accompanied Henry Godeke, student, in playing a cornet solo.

Faculty Assists

Miss Zella Riegel was in charge of entertainment, Miss Frances Whatley was social chairman, Mrs. R. M. Chitwood was in charge of decorations and Miss Vivian Johnson was chairman of refreshments.

Miss Margaret Weeks, dean of the school of home economics, was general chairman of the reception.

A watermelon party for students and faculty members is scheduled for the close of the school and the institution is invited to Carlsbad caverns on July 4 through a concession given by the U. DR. MYERS

Doctor Myers' Daily Column On Child Welfare

BY GAERT C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

MANAGING YOUNGSTERS

"DEAR DR. MYERS: I have been very much interested in your writings about children as I feel that I have a very serious question at hand which I am sure you can help me with. I have not yet found a method to help my little boy overcome his headstrongness and stubbornness, being resentful and defiant.

His good points are good health—which ought to mean good disposition—he is at times sympathetic and thoughtful of others, and I think that his mental ability is all one should ask for. I am still in hopes that I can help him overcome that arrogant attitude of his, so that he can accept circumstances without being disagreeable. I have tried persuasion through kindness and then ridicule for his bad actions, and at last I have resorted to corporal punishment. But nothing helped—only brief improvements.

"It seems as if it is impossible to change him when he gets an idea in his mind, but I don't give in. Nevertheless, he isn't willing to please, therefore making it hard for everybody; there is no comfort in taking him places and it is bad enough to have a scene at home."

"When he was only two he decided that he wanted to go home with a friend of mine that was visiting us, so he got into the car. I just lifted him out and told him to run along, which would be sufficient for the average child; but not for him. He persistently got into the car twice more, and then I slapped him; but more defiant than ever, he was getting in again when my friend drove hurriedly off to end the disagreeable situation.

"Such occasions have occurred off and on ever since; even yesterday a similar thing happened, and I realized that I have failed him somewhere as he wished that he were dead and said that he would run away and that I would never see him again, instead of saying 'all right, Mother,' when he couldn't do as he wished. Isn't that terrible at five? I am wondering what later."

Answer: It is clear that your boy has had at least three years of practice in doing as he pleases, all the while hearing commands and forbiddings which meant nothing to him except annoyance. Nothing un-

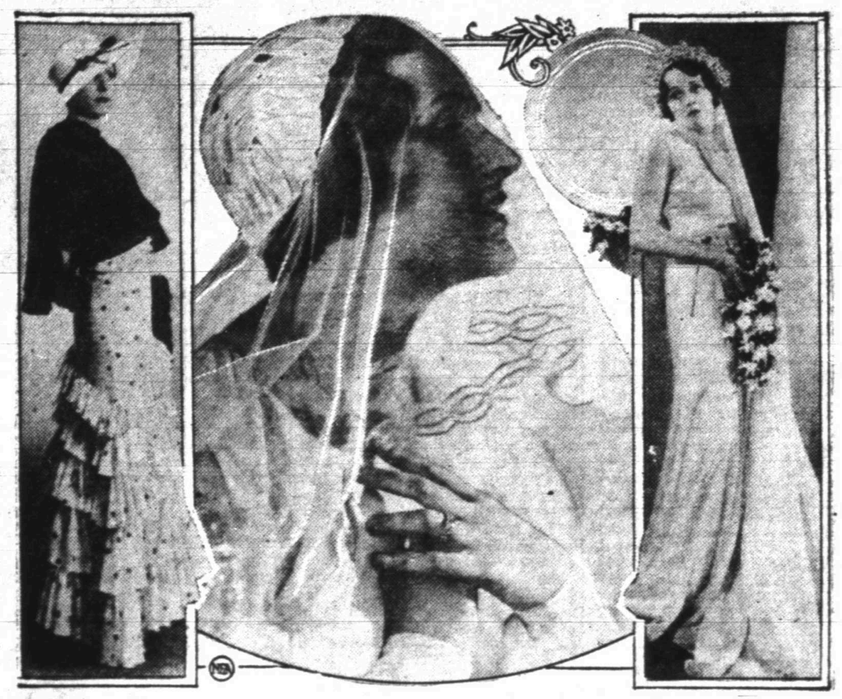
Simplicity Marks New Bridal Gowns



A Lyolene model (left), of sheer white voile with a modernistic dotted design in bolero red, would make a picturesque bridesmaid's dress. The bolero-length jacket is of sheer red velvet; and the picture hat, of fine white straw, also is banded with red velvet. The cap and veil (center) of beautifully worked tulle was created by Lanvin. A wedding gown (right) of pale yellow chiffon was made by Molyneux for the English film star, Miss Benita Hume.

Paris, Too, Cottons To Cotton For The Wedding This Summer; Girl Should Suit Nuptial Costumes To Type

BY ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Service Writer

PARIS, June 11.—The summer bride should be the most bewitching. All the elements are in favor of a summer wedding. The sun is sure to shine, the flowers are at their best and even the bride herself will find that she has never looked so attractive as in the golden haze of a summer day.

There are all sorts of entrancing mediums, too, that can be used to fashion the summer wedding dress. Sheer silk organdies, sheer chiffon and ninon and fine tulle suit the demure styles of today to perfection. For the country wedding, what could be smarter than an all-cotton affair from the bridal dress through that of the bridesmaids and even the bride's mother?

Simplicity Important

A girl should study the style of her gown even if it is going to be a very quiet wedding. She must take advantage of all her good points, and remember that simplicity is the keynote of all weddings this year, even where the most formal gowns are concerned.

While all the leading couturiers end their collection with a bride or er intend these to be taken as a erer intend these to be taken as a definite bridal fashion. Of course, if the particular style they sponsor suits your type, then the whole thing is easy, but they usually find that an ordinary afternoon dress, modified for the occasion, is a wiser choice.

Many Gowns Severe

Bridal robes this season are almost monastic. Few short sleeves, no low decolletes, no trimmings. Simple lines, an intricate cut molding the bust and hips, perhaps a hint of classical drapery in the train, and that is all. This applies to sumptuous fabrics such as heavy crepes and satins. But for sheer materials, nervures, gathers, sheering and minute pin-tucking are used in all manner of clever ways—but always very restrainedly.

The only fantasy allowed is in the veil and cap. Here again, a bride-to-be must study her silhouette very carefully before deciding on any one style. The classical net veil gathered on either side of the head, bonnet shaped, and finished with two posies of flowers, suits some faces. The little skull cap of net worked into petals, with the same design outlining the edge of the veil, as offered by Lanvin, is a little more formal but equally attractive on the right type of bride.

Then there is the diadem of orange flower buds, as created by Molyneux for an English actress, which is also charming, but more difficult to wear. This particular wedding-gown designed by Molyneux was fashioned of palest yellow chiffon, with plain, form-fitted bodice and long, fitted sleeves. The veil was also of chiffon and the bride carried a spray of orange blossom. It would look equally effective in white, or palest pink, if more becoming.

Veil Still Is Modish

There is also the real lace veil, usually a family treasure, that nothing can surpass in beauty and becomingness and there does not exist a girl who would hesitate to wear it.

A summer bridesmaid's dress offers tremendous possibilities too. If the bride favors organdie, then the procession would be perfect if her attendants wore dresses of the same fabric in a delicate pastel color.

Lyolene suggests a white cotton, befrilled affair which afterwards could do duty for a garden-party or even for informal dinner at the country club. She completes it by an amusing little sheer velvet wrap and a huge picture hat of fine white straw. The jacket and hat trimming are of the same red as the pattern on the dress.

Architects Invade Feminine Arts With Their Skill

Men Even Embroider In Hours Away From Office

BY JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, June 11.—Women aren't alone, apparently, in liking to take up a little bit of hand-work during leisure hours.

The current Architects' Hobby Show proves that men cook, embroider, carve, make furniture and do all manner of hand work during their spare time.

Over 100 leading architects have exhibited these products of their off-hours, many of them famous architects whose names will go down in history as the impressive persons who have designed and built the skyscrapers that have made New York famous, the luxurious penthouses with hanging gardens that rival Babylon, and country homes that give ancient European castles a run for their money.

Jobless Are Benefited

It is all done, the exhibit, in the name of charity. For the exhibition which has attracted hundreds of curious spectators, is for the benefit of unemployed draughtsmen.

Eli Jacques Kahn's favorite diversion from work is cooking spaghetti suppers for his friends. He is on hand, white chef's cap on head, to give any doubting Mrs. Thomas a taste of a well-turned dish of spaghetti. Joel Barker makes decoys of all kinds, and collects them. Ducks, ranging in size from one the size of a small whale to a tiny baby one you hardly can see, make up his exhibit.

Several famous skyscraper architects admitted a fondness for embroidery, samplers and other kinds of sewing. Not one would exhibit his products, fearing the appellation of "Sissy."

W. V. Allen likes nothing better than mixing his own salad dressing, making it a rite performed nightly, after the day's work is done. It is a rare and tasty dressing, basically French, with enough American touches to give it unique flavor. Other types of cooking also intrigue him.

There are gorgeously colorful cuckoo clocks that call every hour and half hour, all hand-made; many tiny hand-made children's toys, several whole sets for amateur theatrical performances, some costumes for the stage; some mounted butterflies, these caught and mounted by Roger H. Bullard.

One of the most unusual exhibits shows the handicraft of Mott B. Schmidt, done in spare time. It is a mounted skunk, beautifully real, and it is labelled "Shanghai Lily, not dangerous."

Many Carve Furniture

Hand-made furniture comes in as one of the most popular pastimes of architects during their leisure hours. E. A. Dennison has a chair, a lovely, hand-carved, graceful easy chair, cushioned in rose, that would make any early American cabinetmaker proud to claim it. There are beautiful carved tables, stools and other chairs to show the pleasure great men get from making things by hand. G. A. Mang exhibits a whole set of beautifully made toys, and one little horse that any child would love to own.

Pleasants Pennington breeds pigeons as his hobby, lovely tame pigeons that will eat out of his hand or even his mouth. Julius Gregory does exquisite hammered silver and brass things, in his spare time, and exhibits sugar tongs, vases and candlesticks of his own design and work. Lawrence Grant White, Stanford White's son, translates Italian masterpieces during his leisure moments. He has two handsome volumes, illustrated with the most exquisite etchings, of the Divine Comedy.

Models Tiny Ships

Three tiny ship's models show what Harold Sterner does when he isn't building de luxe penthouse apartments. He asserts that he doesn't know a single architect who doesn't do some hand-work for a pastime.

"Using your hands is the best way to banish worries and cares," he said. "There is a real reason behind this turning to hand-work, I believe. Every single thing you do with your hands is a slow process, compared to the fast pace life leads us today. Working with your hands slows you down, helps act as an antidote for the speedy existence of today. Gradually your nerves relax and you move in a more leisurely manner, all because of your handwork.

"And there is another reason for this love of handicraft," he added. "Everyone thinks of an architect as the man who conceives the building, plans it and then actually oversees it. As a matter of fact, things are done so scientifically that once he has conceived it, his work usually is at his desk, with draughtsmen and secretaries, and the telephone doing much of the work. He needs relaxation that uses his hands and gives him an outlet that the office can no longer give him."

Joel Barker literally rides his hobby—which is making decoys of all kinds—as you see in the picture at the right. Eli Jacques Kahn would almost as soon cook a spaghetti supper as design a skyscraper, and you see him at left as he lets a fair customer sample the product of his culinary art. These are two of the "sidelines" of noted architects, which were revealed in their "hobby show" in New York.

usual about the way the boy has acted. You and I would be no better in his place. He has not learned the meaning of no.

By persistence and by making himself sufficiently disagreeable he gets what he wants. Seems to me he shows pretty good stuff in him. You want him to have a good strong will. In case you can teach him respect for authority and can reach the point where you almost never need to exercise it, you will be on the upgrade.

Just remember that this lad is five. Corporal punishment now will be of doubtful use, though a good sound spanking might be much preferred to letting him go on defying all authority. If he has the alphabet of regard for authority, however, you can find milder punishment which will be safer and more effective, such as deprivation, or assignment to sit in a chair doing nothing for about 30 minutes by the clock. Try to retire your tongue, never using it for punishment. See whether you cannot cut down commands about 80 per cent. Praise him more when he is good; read a great deal to him and encourage his creations and inventions.

McDonald Urges "Back To The Farm" Movement As Method Of Relieving Unemployment Situation In Texas

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, June 11—J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture is proposing a "back to the farm" movement as a means of relieving unemployment. McDonald would have the movement sponsored by the federal government with the aid of state agencies.

The plan, which has been the subject of considerable discussion in the past few months, is receiving the increasing interest and attention of financiers, lawmakers and industrialists, McDonald said, expressing hope some workable plan could be found to place the movement into effect.

The agricultural commissioner estimated that approximately 7,000,000 were unemployed, many permanently displaced by labor-saving machinery. Unless they are furnished with the means of making a living, the unemployed will be forced into bread lines or perhaps to accept a dole. If returned to farms they at least could earn a livelihood, McDonald said, and, with their broader education and knowledge of better social customs derived from residence in metropolitan areas, would be an asset to the rural communities in which they were placed by contributing to the upbuilding of rural life.

Among the proposals offered for carrying out the "back to the farm" movement is one that it be backed by private individuals. Others propose that the state take over the task, while yet others would have the federal government assume the responsibility.

McDonald is of the opinion that private individuals and organizations do not have the capital to sponsor such a program, and that neither are a majority of the states in a position to finance the proposal.

Under McDonald's plan, congress would appropriate a sum of money to be used as a revolving loan fund to be paid back over a period of years in small amounts at low rates of interest.

McDonald would have the "back to the farm" farmers engage in diversified agriculture; produce abundant food and feed crops, improve their farm homes; build up the fertility of the soil and add to the cultural side of rural life.

"This is the psychological time for such a constructive program," McDonald said. "Land is cheap, lumber is cheaper than it has been for many years, transportation facilities are without sufficient business and the laborer needs employment.

"Inasmuch as land and agriculture is the source of our wealth, the benefits of such a movement would inure to all classes, especially to the unemployed who must be given constructive work before this country can again have prosperity."

No More Tears Shed Over Onions

Onions, which brought tears to the eyes of their growers last year, are bringing dollars and smiles this spring in the Lake Labish district near Salem, Ore. With the tail-end of the 1932 crop selling for $7.50 a hundredweight as compared to 50 cents last yea, onions are about as valuable as gold nuggets. Three comely onion-pullers pause in their labors on the A. F. Hayes onion farm, near Salem, to pose for the cameraman.

CAPONS

CAPONIZING is an ancient custom known to the Chinese more than two thousand years ago. During the last few years it has gained considerable favor in the United States.

What Is A Capon

A capon is a male bird with the reproductive organ removed at an early age, bearing the same relation to a cockerel that a steer does to a bull, or a barrow to a boar. The capon loses its disposition to fight and becomes sluggish and docile.

Change In Appearance

There is quite a change in appearance as well as disposition. The comb and wattles cease to grow, making the head appear small. Hackle and saddle grow long and silky.

Advantage Of Caponizing

The advantages of caponizing may be listed as follows:

1. Develops a larger and heavier fowl.
2. Produces a sweeter and finer flavored meat.
3. Commands higher selling prices.
4. May be used for brooding chicks.
5. Easily kept in large flocks.

Profits In Capons

The profits depend largely on local conditions. Where capons are not known for their value as meat, and the number will not warrant the shipping, caponizing should be limited to home use.

Another factor affecting the profits are range conditions. On large free range the cost of production is materially lower.

Late hatched cockerels which are usually ready for market when there is an over-supply and when prices are lowest may be held as capons for more favorable market conditions.

Best Breeds For Capons

The breeds best suited for capons are the medium and heavy breeds such as Rocks, Reds, Orpingtons, Cornish and Giants. The market favors capons ranging from seven pounds up.

Best Time And Size

Weights perhaps are the best guide. The most convenient size is from one and one half to two pounds. The best time of the year is during the months of June and July. It requires about eight months to develop a capon after caponizing, or about ten months from hatch. The best market is from July to March inclusive.

The Operation

Special instruments necessary include the knife, the spreader, the probe hook and remover. There are several makes on the market. We shall be glad to recommend the best make, and at your request we will order them for you. The operation is simple and painless and consists of first making an incision one inch long between the last two ribs, inserting the spreader, cutting the opening to about three inches, then stretching the opening to permit the insertion of the remover. First tear the fine skin covering the intestines, push down the intestines and the testicle may be located back against the back bone. The remover is employed by clasping the testicle gently but firmly, giving a twisting or turning motion to avoid breaking the artery.

Conditioning

It is important that cockerels be held off feed for 24 to 36 hours before attempting the operation. After the operation they should be kept in a cool place and feed on a good growing mash with grain and fresh clean water. The wound will heal in 48 hours.

Wind Puffs

Often a few will develop a wind puff. This is due to the air escaping from the lungs into the abdomen. These should be caught and the skin punctured as often as the puffing up continues. Community caponizing demonstrations may be arranged through the Economy Mills poultry service department.

Eighteen Clubs Active Now Under Guidance Of County Agent D. F. Eaton And Home Agent Isla Mae Chitwood

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

CLUB work among the farm boys and girls of Lubbock county is at its peak with 356 boys, 22 girls belonging to 18 clubs, D. F. Eaton, county agents, reports.

"Four-H club work is an assured success," Mr. Eaton said in a discussion of the work. "These club boys who have been in the work for some years are not the future farmers of the county—they are the farmers.

"I know of a large number of boys who were in club work when I came here nearly seven years ago who are now married and have farms of their own. These boys are carrying out on their farms the methods and plans they learned in club work and they are making a success of farming.

Number Greatest Now

"The number of boys and girls in the clubs is the largest it has ever been. We have two more clubs this year than last. There are also more members."

A survey of the work shows 231 boys who are grain sorghum or cotton cooperators. Each boy has an average of five acres in the crop. Pure seed was furnished the boys by certified breeders.

There are 27 boys who have swine demonstrations. Eleven of these boys have purebred Hampshire pigs which they will feed out.

Other demonstrators include: 33 poultry, 35 dairy, 10 turkey and three sheep.

"There are 12 calves now on feed in the county," Mr. Eaton said. "Three girls, who have fed calves before, are feeding out this year. We hope to be able to get a car load of calves this year.

"I am working on a plan to get a number of boys started with one or two calves and to work on up until they are feeding out a carload a year. This can be done. It has been done in Swisher county and has been very successful."

Club boys and girls feeding calves are: Guyanne Horton and Dorothy Horton, Hurlwood, two calves each; Flora Cates, Hurlwood, one calf; Clifton Carraway, two calves; Charles, Edwin, John and Jo Hobgood, one calf each and Floyd Hicks, Wilson, one calf.

Three of the calves were bought of John M. Gist, Odessa, former president of the Texas Hereford Breeders association. The rest are home bred.

Clubs active this year are: Shallowater, Hardy, County Line, Grovesville, Monroe, Liberty, Center, Becton, Idalou, Acuff, McClung, Canyon, Slaton, Posey, Union, New Hope, Foster and Hurlwood.

Arvle Elliott Is Winner Of Second In Essay Contest

Arvle Elliott, president of the Lubbock County 4-H club federation and one of the outstanding club boys of the county, has received a letter from G. F. Swift, president of Swift and Co., Chicago packers, advising him he won second place in a nation-wide essay contest for 1931-32.

The contest was judge by three members of the faculty of Kansas State Agricultural college, Manhattan.

Mr. Swift enclosed in his letter a check for $75, the second place prize.

"It seems to me that this money is not of as great value to you as the character and will power developed by participation in a contest of this kind," Mr. Swift wrote. "Surely this is an asset that will be with you longer than the cash award."

Mr. Swift invited young Elliott to visit him when in Chicago.

Farmer Living Near Plainview Acted As Guard For Roosevelt

PLAINVIEW, June 11—(Special)—L. R. Vaughn, a farmer living northwest of this city, during the World war was a personal guard for Governor Franklin Roosevelt of New York, who was then assistant secretary of the navy in Washington, when the governor visited France during the war.

Vaughn and another sailor named Burrows were stationed at the American Naval Station in France. When the assistant secretary came to inspect naval matters Vaughn and Burrows were given the assignment of personal bodyguards. They held this detail during the visit of Governor Roosevelt.

Lamb Crop Of Texas Said To Total Approximately 3,500,00

SAN ANGELO, June 11 (AP)—The lamb crop of Texas is estimated by ranch authorities here as 65 per cent. There are about 3,500,000 ewes in the section, making on this estimate about 2,000,000 lambs for the state this spring.

Although a number of grass fed lambs have been going to the markets, the prices have been low.

Rams are going cheaper this year than last, and some deals have been made at $10 a head. In 1928 good rams were worth $1 a pound at auction sales.

As markets for livestock have been soft, some ranchmen have slowed up in their shipments.

Exam For Federal Classer Of Cotton Set For A. & M. Meet

COLLEGE STATION, June 11 (AP)—Examination for license as Federal cotton classer during the twenty-third session of the summer school of cotton at Texas A. and M. College will be held June 24-25 instead of at the end of the session, Prof. J. B. Bagley, professor of textile engineering at the college, who will have charge of the school, has announced. Date set for the Federal examination was originally July 14-16. It is believed the June 24-25 period will be a more practical and a more attractive period for the examination, Prof. Bagley said.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SUNDAY'S CARTOON

Three Human Bombs—

One of the great surprises of the Sino-Japanese clash near Shanghai was the unexpected determined stand of the Chinese troops against the better-equipped Japanese army. The Mikado's soldiers failed repeatedly to make any headway against the Chinese defenses near Chapei. A heroic plan was then conceived to wipe out the check to the Japanese national vanity.

A suicide squad was formed consisting of 36 braves. In the chilly dawn of February 22nd, three members of the suicide squad—Kitagawa, Egami and Sakui—volunteered to transform themselves into three human bombs. Sticks of high explosives were strapped around their chests and waists. A thirteen-foot-long bamboo container filled with dynamite was placed in their hands, trailing a lighted fuse. The three death-bound heroes lifted their eyes to the rising sun for the last time. A last handshake and the three made a running jump into the enemy lines. As they reached the barbed wire entanglements the bomb in their hands exploded with a terrifice report. The explosion blasted a path in the Chinese fortification, through which the Japanese infantry now rushed in to carry the day for the Japanese flag.

During my stay in Japan the entire Japanese nation paid official honor to the mothers of the three heroes.

A Monument To a Card Game—

Skat, a game much played in Germany, was invented by a lawyer named Hempel, in Saxe-Altenburg, Thuringia. The town evinces great pride in having been the home town of the game. It houses a Skat Museum, and most of the city records deal with the famous invention. In the midst of its city square rises the monument to Skat which I have drawn in my cartoon.

"Couples Shouldn't Stop Speaking When They Are Divorced"—Estelle

BY HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD—"Couples shouldn't quit speaking just because they are divorced."

ESTELLE TAYLOR

So spoke Estelle Taylor over the phone when queried about rumors that she and Jack Dempsey might kiss and make up.

They met in the lobby of a theater, shook hands and talked a few minutes. There were knowing nods and much raising of eyebrows at this.

Within a few days, Estelle and Jack had dinner together, and alone, in a restaurant where many saw them.

"No," said Miss Taylor, "we're not getting together again. We had some business to discuss and Jack came over to the house. I suggested we go out for dinner. That was all.

"I think there's a spark of friendship between every divorced couple. Or, at least there should be. Maybe Jack and I were a little bold in going out in the open. I hate rumors, but you know Hollywood!"

And with her usual frankness, Estelle said, in case I was wondering what kind of business they were discussing, "it was about some unpaid bills we had jointly contracted."

A GOOD many miles from Hollywood, high up in the Sierra Nevada mountains, Walter Huston is building a home. He will have no near neighbors, and he will have no telephone.

In order to get to the isolated spot, Huston had to build a private road from the main highway.

Box Office Titles

THE title-changing activities of movie men sometimes have an effect opposite to that intended. There is the case of "Old Man Minnick," a "Chic" Sale picture.

CHIC SALE

It was changed to "The Expert" for a two-fold reason. Warners hoped its similarity to a title Sale made famous, "The Specialist" would help the picture. And they thought the "Old Man" might keep young people away.

"The Expert" attracted men in great numbers; women stayed away.

It's really a delightful story of an old man, one the whole family would enjoy.

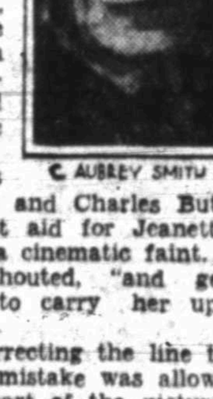
When Tongues Twist

GROUCHO MARX'S classic mixture of words "Let us lodge with me fleas in the hills" in "Monkey Business" is but one of many such weird assertions recorded every month in Hollywood.



C. AUBREY SMITH

That Marxism was heard because it was so intended: the scores of others are mistakes on the set made in the heat of recording a scene.

The other day C. Aubrey Smith, affecting intense excitement in "Love Me Tonight," started to order the comedians comedians Charlie Ruggles and Charles Butterworth, to get aid for Jeanette MacDonald, in a cinematic faint.

"Hurry," he shouted, "and get two footballs to carry her upstairs."

Instead of correcting the line to "footmen," the mistake was allowed to become part of the picture. A few minutes later Ruggles upbraided Butterworth with "Now you've let the bat out of the cag."

No Kiss Substitute

THERE is one sound the movie auditory engineers haven't been able to fake. That's kissing.

In sound libraries maintained by the studios are millions of feet of film covering hundreds of such varied subjects as Iowa pig grunts to Rumanian train effects. But kisses are missing.

When kiss effects are required the principals must actually perform. Sound engineers have learned from experience that one man's kiss is another man's comedy.

Serious kisses in serious dramas are mostly silent, anyway, or should be to be effective, and the [illegible]lest smack must be actually [illegible]livered under the microphone as [illegible] as before the camera to be [illegible]cing.

They've tried to duplicate that noise in the laboratory but it just can't be done.

Both Lindsey, Palace Offer Thrill Films

"The Trial Of Vivienne Ware" And "The Famous Ferguson Case" Start Engagements In Lubbock Today

MURDER trials will be the featured theme in Lubbock movie offerings this week. "The Trial of Vivienne Ware," much discussed mystery story, starts a three-day run at the Lindsey today, and "The Famous Ferguson Case" will be presented at the Palace, today Monday and Tuesday.

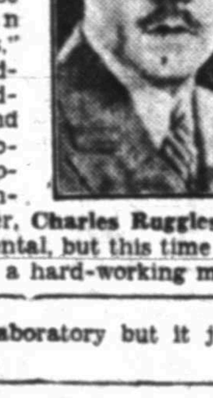
DONALD COOK

The Vivienne Ware drama is based on the radio broadcast that has been presented over the country for some time. It depicts the trial of a society girl, played by Joan Bennett, accused of slaying her sweetheart because of jealousy. So convincing is is the evidence that her attorney, who is in love with her, tries to get her to change her plea of "not guilty." Conviction seems a foregone conclusion. But does she escape? The answer—the climax of the picture—is sensational and startling. Donald Cook appears in the supporting cast.

Joan Blondell is the star of "The Famous Ferguson Case," which is said to be genuinely realistic newspaper picture. It presents a vivid panorama of a crime of nation-wide notoriety—the sort that is blazoned in the front-page headlines of even the most conservative newspaper. According to advance information, the picture gives a lifelike picture of newspaper men who descend upon the scene of a really notorious murder.

Plenty of laughs are promised in "This Is The Night," which comes to the Lindsey Wednesday and Thursday. The three principal personage in the picture are Lily Damita, Charlie Ruggles and Roland Young. The picture is witty, tuneful, humorous and, as is typical of Damita pictures, has its naughty moments.

Miss Damita appears as an actress who is hired by Ruggles to play the "wife" of Young. This is planned to fool a young business man, with whose wife Young had been caught in a gay moment, into thinking the "affair" is not serious. It's a good plan if it works, but plenty of complications arise before the story reaches a merry ending.



Charles Ruggles

Additional evidence of the versatality of Edward G. Robinson will be provided in "Two Seconds," which is scheduled at the Lindsey Friday and Saturday. Robinson has appeared as gunman, gambler, editor, and oriental, but this time he will be seen as a hard-working man who is a victim of circumstances—double-crossed by love. Movie critics have hailed Robinson's characterization as one of his greatest. Vivienne Osborn appears in the leading feminine role, and Guy Kibbee, who will be recalled as the older of the two hoboes in "Union Depot," has an important part.

"Young America," a drama of youth at the crossroads, will be offered at the Palace Wednesday and Thursday. Depicting the inside throb of the juvenile courts, the picture deftly weaves the joys and heartaches of boyhood. The story deals with a boy who was called "the worst boy in town"—but he only loved adventure and wanted fun. The cast includes Spencer Tracy, Doris Kenyon, Beryl Mercer, Ralph Bellamy, and the new juvenile sensation, Tommy Conlon.

SPENCER TRACY

"Single-Handed Sanders", starring Tom Tyler, will be shown at the Palace Friday and Saturday. Tyler is cast as an honest blacksmith who comes to the aid of Wyoming homesteaders and acts as their leader when the safety of their farms and crops is threatened by a gang of unscrupulous cattlemen.

"Shipmates", with Robert Montgomery in the principal role, starts a three-day run at the Lyric today. The story deals with navy life, Montgomery appearing in the role of a gob. Plenty of thrills are offered. Others in the cast include Dorothy Jordan, Ernest Torrence, Hobart Bosworth and Cliff Edwards.

"A Tailor Made Man", a comedy production featuring William Haines, will be shown at the Lyric on Wednesday and Thursday. Others in the cast are Dorothy Jordan, Joseph Cawthorne and Marjorie Rambeau. The film was adapted from the play "Der Gutsitzende Frack".

Friday and Saturday the Lyric presents Tom Tyler in a western thriller, "Two Fisted Justice". The story deals with a crooked politician and his henchmen during Civil war days. How they are outwitted by Tyler, acting on authority given him by Abraham Lincoln, provides exciting action. Bobbie Nelson and Barbara Weeks head the supporting cast.

Gourds Relics

Two Grown In 1837 Still In Use

RUSK, June 11 (AP)—Mrs. Vic Pryor, of Rusk, is said to own the oldest gourds in Texas. They were grown in 1837. One, measuring 59 inches in circumference, was the family sugar gourd; the other, a long Spanish gourd with a neck between two compartments, was a water gourd. Mrs. Pryor's father carried it through the "Cherokee War" in 1839, in which the Indians were driven out of East Texas.

Gourds in pioneer days were important kitchen utensils, used as lard, soap, salt and milk containers. Tops were cut off in notches which kept them in place when the gourds were in use.

Mrs. Pryor's grand parents settled in Cherokee county before it was organized. Her father helped build the first house in historic Rusk.

At the Theaters

Joan Bennett, above, appears in the principal role in "The Trial Of Vivienne Ware," starting today at the Lindsey.

Lily Damita, pictured here, will be seen in "This Is the Night," starting at the Lindsey next Wednesday.

Here is Joan Blondell, who appears in the starring role in "The Famous Ferguson Case," starting at the Palace today.

Adjutant General Sterling To Act As Judge In Cowboy Reunion Contests At Stamford

STAMFORD, June 11—(Special)—Adjutant General W. W. Sterling of Austin has accepted an invitation to serve as one of the judges in the cowboy rodeo to be held in connection with the Texas Cowboy Reunion in Stamford July 4, 5 and 6.

General Sterling has a national reputation in judging rodeo contests, having judged in Madison Square Garden, New York, Soldiers' Field, Chicago, and numerous other rodeo performances. He declined a number of other invitations in order to come to Stamford this year.

The judging staff will also include Sheriff C. R. Elliott of Knox county and Frank Rhodes, Throckmorton cattlemen, both of whom are experienced in appraising rodeo contests. The fourth judge is still to be secured.

Two rodeo performances will be held daily during the Reunion, afternoon and night. Contests will be held in bronco-busting, calf-roping, steer riding, and wild-cow-milking, with over $1,200 in cash prizes offered. The champion cowboy in roping events will receive a $150 saddle. Another saddle of the same value will be awarded to the winner of the oldtime cowboys' calf-roping contest, which is open to cowhands over 55 years of age.

CAR STRIKES LAD

MATADOR, June 11—(Special)—Jewell Lawrence, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Lawrence, was struck by a motor car near the Fairview school. The machine was being driven by Mrs. W. E. Ballard, teacher. The boy sustained a broken nose and other injuries.

THE NEW BOOKS

"Inside" Of Life In Washington Painted By Woman Writer; Sabatini Spins Another Bright Yarn Of Piracy And Treasure; Joe Bailey's Biography Included In Late Publications

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

BLOUNT MARVEL came to Washington as a representative from a southern state equipped with a big black hat, an old-fashioned tail coat, a gift for florid oratory—and a very smart wife.

A matter of five years later he was a famous senator, a power in the national government and a man who might, without presuming too greatly, dream of some day occupying the White House.

Mrs. Mellett

The hat and coat had helped for they had got him into the rotogravure pictures, and the oratory had helped a little too; but his wife, Leda, had helped most of all. And he never had the remotest notion that he owed her a thing.

All of this is the skeleton of Berthe K. Mellett's novel, "Wife to Caesar." This book not only presents an absorbing "inside" picture of life in official Washington, but also stands squarely on its own feet as an interesting, competently written narrative.

Mrs. Mellett, to begin with, knows her Washington and knows how to describe it . She discusses everything from the social lobby to the parties that get thrown in the embassies, and makes you understand it.

Better yet, she knows how to write a novel. Her sub-plot—the love affair between Leda Blount and Garry Clune, whose too-rigid code of honor robbed him and other people of happiness—is handled with skill and understanding. And Blount Marvel, pompous, well-meaning and stupid, is a character you'll not soon forget.

"Wife to Caesar," in short, is very much worth reading. It is published by Brewer, Warren & Putnam, Inc.

Life Of A Politician

"THE last of the old time politicians" the late Joe Bailey called himself, and he was true to that tradition to the end of his career. As senator from Texas, he was a most bitter opponent of both prohibition and women's suffrage.

Sam Acheson has written his biography, "Joe Bailey," a volume that is a particularly illuminating picture, not only of Bailey, but also of the administration of Roosevelt and Taft.

Bailey was distinctly an individualist, a man of changing moods.

On The Spanish Main

PROBABLY there is a lurking desire to be a pirate hidden in every man, somewhere.

Maybe it's because we were all brought up on "Treasure Island," and maybe it is because we're just naturally given to admiration of sinful men; whatever the reason, a good tale of piracy is something very few of us can resist.

All of this is just by way of leading up to the fact that Rafael Sabatini's new novel, "The Black Swan," is a good, straightaway story of piracy on the Spanish Main.

The story opens with a girl named Priscilla traveling back to England from the West Indies on a merchant ship, accompanied by one Major Sands, an ardent but somewhat stupid suitor. As soon as the swarthy, handsome Monsieur de Bernis boards the vessel, you know this Major Sands isn't going to get anywhere at all; for de Bernis used to be a buccaneer, and has lately been in the service of Sir Henry Morgan, and what infantry officer would have a chance against anything like that?

And presently their ship is captured by the infamous Tom Leach, as foul a pirate as ever scuttled a ship; and de Bernis saves himself and Major Sands from death, and Priscilla from an infinitely worse fate, by means of a wily stratagem, and a little later he runs Pirate Leach through with his sword, and the king's ships come and rescue them, and everybody but Major Sands, who is jealous, lives happily ever after.

Of course, you can see all of this coming. But who cares? Piracy is piracy and Sabatini is Sabatini.

"The Black Swan" is published by the Houghton, Mifflin Co.

On Missionary Work

MIST-POISON, crocodiles and drunken natives of Sao Maharo, an island off the African coast, cannot keep Miss Thompson from her work as missionary, doctor, teacher and practical guardian of her black "people," in R. C. Hutchinson's novel, "The Answering Glory."

When she collapses with tropical fever and is taken back to England, her one determination is to return to Sao Maharo. Hutchinson follows with unbrocaded details the step-by-step progress of her struggle with illness and lack of strength.

Miss Thompson would deny compliments. She would disclaim courage and say that her place was on the island and she must do anything to get back; she would term determination, necessity; she would call self-sacrifice a job.

Hutchinson has done excellent work in describing an idealist without the taint of sentimentality. Miss Thompson's influence in the decision of Barbara Gastell to go to Sao Maharo and continue the work carries less conviction.

But Miss Thompson, practical, single-purposed—who finds a flight of steps a mountainous climb and yet takes the arrangement of a passage to Africa in an easy stride—Miss Thompson maintains one firm strand of interest through an uneven plot.

Imagination Pays

A vivid imagination that travels in lively fashion over the swamps of South America is putting James Foster, 19-year-old freshman, through Butler university at Indianapolis. He has just sold a novel of 50,000 words entitled "Lost in the Wilds of Brazil" and all of his information and background for it was gathered from the city library. Foster never has been away from home.

THE PEOPLE OF TEXAS MUST DECIDE THE FATE OF TEXAS RAILROADS

● THE WELFARE of Texas and Texans has gone and will always go hand in hand with the welfare of Texas railroads. Their dependency upon each other is absolute.

In 1929 Texas railroads gave employment to 82,956 employes, to whom they paid annually $126,674,543 in salaries and wages. In 1930 this number decreased to 70,739 while the payroll declined to $109,892,226. In 1931 the number of employes fell to 57,098 and the payroll to $89,505,918.

This represents a decrease of more than $37,000,000 in purchasing power in Texas communities. There has been a corresponding decrease in purchase of materials and supplies by Texas railroads. The ability to have maintained railroad payrolls and purchases would have been a very important factor in overcoming the present trying economic condition.

The decline in railroad payrolls and purchases is due only in part to economic conditions. The revenues of the railroads have been affected not only by business conditions but to a very large extent by loss of traffic to trucks and buses using the public highways in competition with the railroads.

● The time has come when the people of Texas must decide whether the traffic of this state can best be carried by the railroads, using facilities which they built and maintain at their own expense, or by trucks and buses using the highways built and maintained at the taxpayers' expense.

Bathing Beauty Epidemics

IT USED to be a jolly pastime for people to carol sweetly about the "good old summer-time" but we hasten to remind you that it was before the days of bathing beauties and bathing beauty reviews. All the afore-mentioned "good old summer-time" means to most of us now is week after week when the newspapers are cluttered up with pictures of "Miss Podunk" and the loving cup presented her by the Mayor for winning first prize at some squash carnival or another.

From mid-May until late September our public prints feature scantily attired misses on Page 1, the editorial page and back among the stock market reports and the classified ads. Our magazine ads depict 'em and the billboards do, too. From a scenery standpoint, "the good old summer-time" is stereotyped as the college annual and the Congressional Record.

Avalanche-Journal papers are to blame, just the same as the Squeedunk Weekly Bugle, with a two column casting box, and the "World's Greatest Newspapers" of New York that have mechanical equipment enabling them to splash bare legs, arms and torsos over two thirds of an eight-column page. We're all in the same boat, from top to bottom, but we can't help but wonder what the public thinks after seeing its first hundred thousand bathing beauty pictures at the opening of each season.

News editors claim that the pictures have great reader interest as well as the knack of 'dressing up the page.' If the latter is correct we face the strange co-incidence of undressing a girl to dress up a page—all for the benefit of a jaded John Public.

As far as The Avalanche-Journal is concerned, it has quit the ranks of summer boosters — has quit 'em cold.

We'll be glad when fall comes and the bathing beauties, like the Arabs of old, fold their kimonos about themselves and silently slip away, to remain hidden at least until next spring.

The "good old summer-time" has joined the buffalo and the cigar store Indian; it is not only "out like Lottie's eye" but it's also out like horse-hair furniture and the stereoptican. Blame it on ants, mosquitos, picnics and sunburn if you want to but we'll continue to blame summer's debacle on the bathing beauty—knock knees and all!

Practical Health Problems

HOW PARENTS MAY AFFECT TOT'S EATING

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Being a modern parent is getting to be a full time job. Not only are the ancient inalienable rights of the parent to provide the child with food, clothes, housing and other necessities still operative and even more burdensome than ever but nowadays the parent is supposed to know the sciences of phychology, nutrition, dietetics, immunology and several others.

A recent article by Ada Hart Arlitt, in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association, furnishes some sound hints for parents in influencing the child's attitude toward its food.

Conditioning the child against wholesome food is very easy. Some little care and forethought will prevent mistakes in this respect. For instance, if a child is on a diet, sharp warnings to avoid the foods not prescribed will often result in antagonizing the child against those foods forever. Miss Arlitt suggests that a more wholesome manner of directing would be to say: "Eat all these foods that you have on the list and this will make you so well that you can eat all these delicious things."

Too severe insistence may result in the attitude of the little girl who was taken by her uncle to a restaurant: "What will you have to eat?" he inquired. 'Anything just so it's not good for me," was the answer.

One of the strongest emotional drives in childhood is to be noticed. Some children find that the best way to do this is not to eat. In one family a long, grim battle between mother and an aunt on one side, and a little boy who would not eat unless he was urged and coaxed and begged, was terminated when the father gave orders that no one was to notice whether the child ate or not.

During the first meal at which this policy was carried out, nothing happened for ten minutes and then the culprit announced in a hurt tone, "I'm not eating." "Is that so?' was all the satisfaction he got. Finally he burst into tears, saying: "Nobody pays any attention to me any more when I don't eat." But he ate without coaxing afterwards.

Taking science too hard is the cause of a great deal of difficulty. It is not necessary to give the child a completely balanced dietary at each meal. Dr. Hedger has stated that a large proportion of feeding problems have arisen because of the anxiety of the parent to force the child to eat a completely perfect set of foods at each meal. The parental worry is transferred to the child and nothing is so antagonistic to good digestion as worry.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

G. B.: "Is trench mouth curable? Is trench mouth contagious? What is the treament? Can the teeth be saved?"

Answer: Trench mouth in most instances is entirely curable. It is slightly contagious. The treatment consists in both medical applications of antiseptic solutions to kill the germs and mechanical treatment by dentistry. The teeth can almost always be saved.

Solon Goes "Reactionary"

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Because, being probably the clearest economic reasoner in congress, Representative George Huddleston of Alabama refuses to admit the possibility of normal times again in less than a decade ("and they will be a new kind of normal even then," he says), the Capitol Hill consensus is that he has "gone reactionary."

Not so long ago the most advanced progressives called him mighty radical. Today the veriest Tories speak of his views as ultra-conservative.

The truth is, he thinks for himself.

"MAL-ADJUSTMENT," he observes, "manifestly is the cause of the depression.

"Obviously the over-production explanation is bosh. All-around overproduction at worst merely would mean too much, on which no one ever yet starved to death.

"The evil is unbalanced production. From lines in which there is, indeed, an excess, workers have not turned to other lines in which there is a deficiency. To be sure they are not trained for the newer callings; industry's transformation has been so rapid."

"IT WAS a rapid transformation because industry was driven into comparatively a few specialties by war demands, which also enormously stimulated them.

"As soon as over-production in these particular channels began to make itself felt (which was soon after the war's end in the agricultural channel; more recently in others) their prices started to decline, as naturally was to have been expected.

"Now, sagging prices would harm no one if all prices sagged simultaneously and uniformly, but they never do."

"FOR EXAMPLE, there is no sag in outstanding indebtedness.

"The farmer who borrows $1,000, assuming that 1,000 bushels of wheat will bring him $1,000 on his note's maturity date, gets no reduction if, on that date, all he receives for his wheat is 50 cents a bushel.

"The factory owner or merchant with accumulated goods, manufactured or bought at a high level, is similarly stricken if prices slump.

"Taxes likewise are unresponsive to a price decline."

In fact, just now, as we know, federal taxes actually are rising sharply.

"THERE ARE other inequalities," continued the congressman.

"Manufactured commodities, being relatively easy to control in respect to output, are at an index of 65. Farm products are at an index of 43. Such labor as is fortunate enough to be employed at all is at an index of 7.

"These divergences must be eliminated before we can again have prosperity. Labor, illustratively, is not better but worse off, broadly speaking, because of its high index figure. It is paying for it with its tremendous volume of joblessness."

"THERE ARE more inequalities yet.

"Steel rails, being a near-monopoly, are at an index of 71. Cotton, no monopoly whatever, is at an index of 22.

"Our tariff policy has cost us our foreign markets. 'Well,' answers the protectionist, 'our exports never exceeded 8 or 9 per cent of our total production.' That seems small, nationally considered, but there are specific classes of our producers who have been ruined by loss of their overseas customers. Cotton was 50 to 60 per cent an export crop. Was it sensible to believe that the south's great source of wealth could be dried up without a national reaction?

"RECOVERY from such a complication of disorders inevitably will be slow; an attempt to accomplish it over-night outright dangerous. I consider the sincere advocate of Communism itself entitled to work for it—but I do criticize him if he insists on it in a hurry.

"Consider Russia's case. As near to the soil as the czar's people were, the Soviet revolution cost the lives of millions.

"In a country like America, industrialized as we are, I have no doubt that a governmental overturning literally would mean the death by starvation of half our population."

NOT ESSENTIAL

This is for the high school graduate who feels that a college course is impossible for him. "Feels", we say, for with rare exceptions only grim determination and the will to do are necessary for a college education, no matter how hard the circumstances of the student. To be sure, there are times when college is impossible, although these are distinctly in the minority.

But for the boy who feels that his schooling has ended with his high school commencement, the future lies largely in his own hands. In these days the college is brought to the very door of the boy who cannot go to the college. It is possible even to be proficient in the professions without spending four years at the university.

And then there is reading—books are free for those who will take advantage of them, and he who reads consecutively, continuously and intelligently, eventually acquires all the culture—and more—that may be acquired in college. But this demands persistence—an hour or two of careful reading six days a week, at least ten months in the year, following a carefully worked out program designed to accomplish the end for which it is planned. It is not as difficult, however, as it seems, as they who have passed that way well know.

College is valuable, not only because of its opportunities for mental improvement and development, but because of the personal associations it makes possible and the broadening experiences it offers. But a college diploma is not essential to business or even professional success. He who feels he cannot go to college nevertheless has opportunity for education still within his grasp, and a four year start in life over the classmate who is to prolong his studies for that period. He who decides to take that road steps into a hard and difficult path that grows ever smoother, broader, pleasanter and more alluring as the habit of reading and study is acquired.

Four Russian towns have been named after Stalin. Evidently, a dictator is without modesty in his own country.

The war debt that almost every male American is in favor of abolishing is alimony.

the MAN HUNTERS

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, 20 and beautiful, has become engaged to ERNEST HEATH, her former employer. She is secretly in love with BOB DUNBAR, millionaire's son, whom she met at business school. Heath sends her aunt south to recuperate from an illness and the girl is grateful. BEN LAMPMAN, Susan's rejected suitor, shoots himself after wounding Heath. He recovers and goes away. Bob tries unsuccessfully to see Susan. He sees her at the theater one night with Heath and becomes angry. DENISE ACKROYD, debutante, wants Bob for herself. Susan meets Bob at a masked ball and he makes love to her. Denise appears and says she and Bob are engaged. Susan runs away. When Heath urges an early marriage she agrees. Waring tells Heath that Susan cares for another. Almost on the eve of the wedding Bob comes to see her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

Earnest Heath did not fully understond the impulse that drove him to call on Susan before dinner. He could not have explained it to himself, but here he was rushing along in a taxi through the familiar, shabby streets. It was curious, he mused, that this drab environment could have produced a girl such as Susan. You could be proud of her in any company, he thought. He gloated at the prospect of showing her the world. It would be like opening a trinket box to the gaze of an admiring child. At this time next week she would be his bride. They would be sailing on blue waters with the future stretching ahead of them a paradise.

He felt suddenly humble, suddenly afraid. He had never expected life to be so good to him. He had given up hope and now, amazingly, a whole, new vista had been shown him. All at once he was impatient to see Susan and tell her something of what was in his heart. He was not an inarticulate man but he was shy and it was often difficult for him to conquer his inbred New England reserve.

It was early spring twilight. The western sky deepened from rose to mauve and then to lilac. Almost without warning night closed in. The taxi jolted over the old pavements.

Heath dismissed the driver at the corner and paid the fare. Suddenly he began to feel rather foolish about his unannounced visit. It was simply that he had felt he must see Susan at once. There was no rhyme or reason to the impulse. He was moved by one of those inexplicable promptings which occasionally change and color an entire life.

His steps quickened as he came in sight of the Miltons' house and he went up the steps lightly, on eager feet. His hand was almost on the brass knob of the door opening into the tiny vestibule when he stopped, arrested.

That was Susan's voice. There was trouble in it and pain, too. Without meaning to, without conscious design Heath listened. What was that she was saying?

"I can't possibly do it now! I've given my word and I mustn't go back on it."

The listener stiffened at the reply. A man's voice, pleading yet dominant, said: "But darling, we've gone all over this before. There's no sense in it. It would be much more honorable for you to tell him you love someone else. He'd be a good sport about it."

The girl's voice sounded as though she had been weeping. "I can't! I can't, I tell you!" Wildly the words went on, "Oh, why did we find each other too late? Why couldn't you have told me all this last summer? It would have been so perfect then."

The man in the shadow waited to hear no more. Quietly he went down the steps. So that was the way of it then! He felt no anger, only a deep and abiding sadness. What a fool he had been! Of course the child would turn to someone of her own age. Why shouldn't she? It was as natural as a flower turning toward the sun. He had been a blind and selfish idiot not to have seen it earlier. Waring had warned him and had been right.

For a long while Heath pondered how to find a graceful way out. He must manage to save Susan's pride as well as his own. A servant tiptoeing into the library late that night, found Heath still at his writing table. The crumpled papers in the wastebasket testified to agonies of literary composition. Heath was folding several thick, creamy sheets and putting them into an envelope.

"I wish you would take this and mail it at once, Simon. I don't want it to wait until morning. And by the way," as the servant turned to go, "I'll be leaving tomorrow instead of Monday, so be sure to have my things packed by noon."

Simon began to ask questions but his employer stopped him brusquely.

"I've changed my plans, that's all," he said. "Get along like a good boy and drop that in the box."

After the man had left Heath sat for a long while with his head in his hands.

Susan let herself into the house and stood for a moment to gain time. She dared not show her flushed face and luminous eyes to the inquiring Miltons before she had a chance to compose herself. She had sent Bob away. All afternoon they had walked in the park, scarcely knowing which way their steps led them. They had argued but Susan had been adamant. It was no use. She could not break her word at the eleventh hour.

There was something of the martyr in her, perhaps. At any rate she had not been able to bring herself to give Bob the promise he wanted. He had been angry. He had said some cruel and cutting things. And then, looking sideways at her downcast profile, he had begged her pardon. There had been a poignant sweetness about this intermittent quarreling and reconciliation. A true lovers' meeting. But Susan had stiffened her spine and sent him away at last. What she was to do later when her high courage ebbed, she did not dare to think.

Mrs. Milton was in the dining room helping a young colored girl to lay the table cloth.

"No, you've got it on upside down, Peeny," Mrs. Milton said patiently. "Turn it over again. You may as well do it right while you're about it."

She followed Susan into the room which the girl was sharing with Rose.

"That Peeny doesn't know whether she's coming or going," Mrs. Milton complained. Then her attention centered on Susan. "You haven't been wandering around in that outfit!" she exclaimed, scandalized.

Susan was aghast. She had completely forgotten she was wearing her wedding clothes. When Bob had come earlier in the afternoon and urged her to go for a walk so they might talk, Susan had agreed without thinking. Now it seemed to her she had been intensely disloyal.

"I completely forgot," she murmured in confusion.

Mrs. Milton's shrewd eyes narrowed. "I said to myself when I heard the front door slam, 'Susan has got rid of that caller in double quick time.' Then I waited and waited and when I went into the living room and didn't find you I couldn't imagine where you'd gone."

Susan was scarlet. "I guess I'm fairly witless," she said.

To her relief, Mrs. Milton quizzed her no further. The woman said as she turned to go, "Well, I guess a girl has a right to behave queerly the week before she's married. Most of 'em do, I notice. Just don't mislay yourself. That's all I ask."

"I won't." Susan promised fervently. With the door shut on her hostess the girl went to the mirror and stared appraisingly at her own reflection. Surely the dullest ob-

IN NEW YORK WITH GILBERT SWAN

Cohan's Conversion

NEW YORK, June 11 — From Broadway's own favorite son, George M. Cohan, comes something like a final commentary on the changing times.

Broadway, presumably anaesthetized against shocks, allowed itself a slight quiver when word came that the far-famed Cohan offices in the Knickerbocker building had been ordered abandoned. Thus, far out in Hollywood, does the Yankee Doodle Boy give his regards to Broadway!

Still, this was consistent with the events of a season. The chin has become a favorite target for the fates!

Examine the records of almost any great producer of a few years back and you'll find a score that goes something like this: Al Woods, momentarily out of the receiver's clutches, tried one come-back and failed; Winthrop Ames appeared to have retired; George C. Tyler went unrepresented but flirted with "the road"; Charles Dillingham lay ill in the hospital when his theater went to the banks; Arthur Hammerstein's playhouse passed through a couple of hands; William Harris Jr. and Dwight Deere Wiman didn't even try.

Only a couple of productions came from Jed Harris, William A. Brady, Brock Pemberton, Arthur Hopkins and several others.

Whereas, Cohan attempted a reiteration of the new generation theme and hit the rocks. He has had, more recently, a play "Confidential Service" in Chicago and mid-west points.

Then a movie opportunity came. Cohan, cool to such offers in the past, thought it wise to accept Hollywood money. In other days, his Broadway offices had continued to function. Now he has sliced off that overhead and requested his staff to join him in the West.

Thus is a theater legend surrendered to the janitors!

Never Too Old

HOWEVER, in a more cheerful strain, Adolph Lewisohn, 83-year-old philanthropist, starts taking singing lessons. But insists he will not become a crooner. . .The Merrick road, out Long Island way, looks blithely toward the summer with Texas Guinan back from Europe and Smith Ballew leading a band just down the road at the Pavilion Royale . . .

And Jerome Kern, composer, who once received $15 a week in London, got a note of congratulation from P. G. Wodehouse, who was getting $12 for providing books and lyrics, when Kern's "The Cat and the Fiddle" and "Show Boat" turned out to be two of Broadway's most profitable attractions . . . May Questel, who provides the voice of "Betty Boop" on the screen, puts on a mean baby talk act off stage . . . Bob Hope, the vandevillian, bill performers in his act as "others too humorous to mention" . . . Rian James started a vogue of penthouse premieres by giving friends a first view of his film, "Love Is a Racket" atop a 24-story apartment . . .

A Little of This

KEY WEST fast becomes the most exclusve hide-away colony for the literati, with Ernest Hemingway as the self starter . . . From a resident comes a postcard offer of the "keys" to the city . . . Oh, well! . . .

Show boats will navigate the Hudson this summer for a change . . . And dude ranches have sprung up in Jersey in competition with Wyoming, Montana and way states where the train fare is higher . . . Edgar B. Davis, who earned the name of "arch-angel" of Broadway by putting a cool million behind "The Ladder," is reported coming into Manhattan with a music show . . .

And Morton Downey is now scheduled to open the Democratic convention with the "Star Spangled Banner," usually warbled by sopranos or contraltos.

J. W. Jones Head Of Lockney School

LOCKNEY, June 11—(Special)—J. W. Jones, who has been principal of the Lockney High schools for the past four years, was promoted to be superintendent succeeding W. D. Biggers, superintendent the past eight years, who resigned.

Mr. Biggers, re-elected for the ninth year, in tendering his resignation to the trustees unexpectedly, said he had been offered a better position with the West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon, by Dr. J. A. Hill, president.

The resignation was effective at once. Mr. Biggers is to work in the summer school. Mr. Jones has assumed the superintendency.

Adopts Pheasants
Duck Takes Over Wild Brood

QUANAH, June 11 (AP)—A Black India duck is foster mother to fifteen baby pheasants now two weeks old, and ready to fly. The 'mother duck' doesn't appear to know what to make of the actions of her 'ducklings,' and the combination is more amusing than a hen with ducklings.

The pheasants were hatched from a setting of eighteen eggs brought into the county by Charlie Boynton in an experiment to raise game and birds for distribution.

Hundreds of visitors have already visited the home of Mr. Boynton and watched the tiny birds and their foster mother. It is said a sneeze will send the covy to cover, and that they are so small that a few blades of grass is sufficient to hide them.

Pampa Is Planning Opening Of New Denver Rail Route

CHILDRESS, June 11 (AP)—George Briggs, secretary of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, is arranging a program for the formal opening of the Fort Worth & Denver Northern railway connecting Childress and Pampa. The date has not been definitely set but will be late in June or in July. Plans include a special train to carry Dallas, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, and Vernon people, and another to carry railway officials, with the Burlington System officials leading.

A special train is also to be made up at Childress and will be equipped to carry people of Wellington, Shamrock, LeFors, and other cities along the line.

Wool From Spring Clip Being Sold

SAN ANGELO, June 11 (AP)—With about 31,000,000 pounds of the Texas spring wool clip of 65,000,000 pounds sold or consigned, sales of wool in small lots continued during the last week.

None of the wool that has been shipped to Boston is reported to have been sold. The price paid by buyers in West Texas has ranged from 8 to 11 1-2 cents a pound for good 12-months wool.

Meanwhile, the National Wool Marketing Corporation, Federal Farm Board Co-operative, has announced that proceeds from the sale of 1932 wools will not be applied by the corporation on any debts contracted prior to the current clip. The 1932 clip will be handled and accounted for as a separate unit.

The bulk of the wool that has moved out of Texas thus far has been consigned either to private dealers or to the co-operative.

San Angelo, 400 miles from the gulf, is the center of a steamship fight. The companies are in a rate cutting war on wool that has sent the price of carrying 100 pounds down to 40 cents from the seacoast to Boston. At this rate the wool yet to be shipped will go at $1.14 a hundred from San Angelo by rail and water.

Negotiations are still on for the sale of the warehouse mohair pool of 5,200,000 pounds, but no announcement of progress has been made.

Susan said, "Nothing much." She had been for a walk. She hoped her voice did not betray her.

"This time next year you'll never set foot on the ground, I suppose. You and your limousines!" said Rose with affectionate raillery.

Susan said, "Don't be an idiot."

Under the current of talk all evening her thoughts reverted to Bob. What was he doing? Whom was he talking to? Her heart throbbed with a slow and steady pain. Bob was reckless and angry. She had sent him away — to what? Susan did not sleep well that night.

Idling heavy-eyed at the breakfast table next morning she heard Rose fling back from the hall, "Sue, here's a letter for you. It looks important."

Susan's pulses leaped. She seized the envelope with trembling fingers. It was addressed in Ernest's handwriting.

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 11.—Clear signs of improvement in the oil industry are: (1) A new spirit of cooperation between producers is replacing the former excessive greediness, with the result that production has been brought under control. (2) Under the more stable production conditions crude oil prices have advanced 117 per cent and gasoline has advanced 20 per cent since the ruinously low prices of last summer. (3) Reflecting this improvement, oil securities have held up much better than any other group during the last six months. As I write this the oil average is 5 per cent below its last December low, whereas the Dow-Jones industrial average is 26 per cent below. (4) Gasoline demand is running about 40,000 barrels daily greater than the new supply.

Roger Babson

The troubles of the oil business have always been more internal than external. It has suffered more from selfish and uneconomic practices within the industry itself than it has from general business depression. The great hazard has been recurring periods of wasteful over-production with violent price cutting, all due to greed, selfishness, and unethical methods. If, as seems likely from recent developments, the industry has learned its lesson and is beginning to substitute sound ethical practices for the former greediness and wastefulness, it may be on the threshold of more stable prosperity than it has yet known. The oils never fully shared in the prosperity of 1928 and 1929 and were among the first to be hit in the depression. However, having had their depression first they may now be the first to recover.

Fundamentals Are More Sound

The recent decision of the United States Supreme Court upholding the Oklahoma oil conservation law is a very important constructive factor. It means also that the Texas proration case will probably be decided in the same way, and puts the legal stamp of approval on controlled production. The California situation is much better, with daily output rapidly being reduced to the quota set by the state oil umpire. Hence, fundamentally the industry appears in better shape than it had for several years. Crude oil at an average price of 87 cents a barrel against an average of 40 cents last July, and gasoline at 13 cents a gallon against 10.8 cents last year mean the companies have much better chances for profits in 1932.

Recent oil mergers differ from the general merger movement back in the boom times in that they are being made for sound economic reasons rather than for speculative profit. The effort in these recent consolidations is to build up well-rounded organizations, in order to maintain a good balance between producing, refining, and marketing facilities. This leads to worthwhile economies from which both the industry and the consumers must ultimately benefit. It also tends to segregate into fewer hands the responsibility for regulating production in accordance with the demand. It is neither to the interest of the consumer nor the producer, through reckless over-production, to waste our valuable oil resources, which, though great, may some time in the future be just as scarce as they are now plentiful.

Future Growth Assured

It is foolish to suppose that even major depressions, such as the present, can permanently check the economic progress of our industries. Moreover, the petroleum industry has been favored by a much more stable demand during the hard times than have many other industries. Gasoline consumption was only 6 per cent lower in the first four months of 1932 than in the same period of 1931. Twenty-three million automobiles continue to operate on our highways. Oil furnaces and range burners continue to be installed in large numbers. More and more steamships and locomotives are turning to oil-burning equipment. As aviation continues its amazing growth there is added another large consumer of oil and gasoline. Practically every industry is dependent on petroleum for some part of its operations.

The wiser heads in the industry have prevailed, and by substituting cooperative control for ruthless and uneconomic waste of these great natural resources are building a foundation for more permanent prosperity. Not only through curtailing production but also through increased efficiency and economy of operations, the leading companies have placed themselves in a much more sound position. The period of heavy capital expenditures has ceased. The industry now has a very small burden of debt. With a comparatively stable demand, low fixed charges, and with prospects of inventory profits rather than inventory losses, the oil business is in a good fundamental position for improvement. This, however, depends absolutely on maintaining a spirit of cooperation on the part of those engaged in the industry, and not seeking to take unfair advantage of their competitors or of the public.

General business as measured by the Babsonchart is now 40 per cent below the normal X-Y Line, compared with 38 per cent a month ago, even with adjustments for usual seasonal movements.

NOT.....
Your Lighting Bill
BUT.....
-- Your Electric Service Bill
If we itemized your electric bill you would then see that lighting is really only a small part. So accustomed have we become to the other electric services that we sometimes forget how many times a day electricity serves us. It makes our toast in the morning. It sweeps the rugs. It washes the clothes. Then it irons them. And almost everyone of the many services electricity performs in the home costs only a cent or so . . . many cost less. In fact, if you paid for electricity as you use it, you could really let your pennies pay your electric bill. Considering the time and labor it saves you, what other money you spend brings greater return in comfort and convenience.

"This may be quite a funny hing, but howling makes my poor ars ring." The man brought forth bag and from it let some peanuts op.

Down went a great big trunk nd then the elephant was still gain. "I'm going to get some more anuts," said Windy, with a grin. "We'll make him hold his trunk p high, and then watch me. I'm ing to try to show you I'm a andy shot. I'll toss some peanuts

He scampered off, but soon came back and very shortly had the knack of tossing peanuts in the trunk. The other Tinies cheered.

Then Coppy said, "Let's have some tricks from that big elephant. I'll fix a place for him to do them. There is nothing to be feared.

"He's very tame, and fond of us. I'm sure that he won't make a fuss, if we ask him to roll around." "All right," the others cried.

Then Coppy spread a blanket wide. "Flop down on it," wee Scouty cried. The elephant then kneeled down and rolled over on his side.

Soon Duncy said, "I have a hunch that I am sure will please this bunch. I'll let Slim Jim walk over me." He then flopped on the ground. The wise old elephant seemed to know just where he was supposed to go. He stepped right over Duncy and the lad was safe and sound.

(The elephant makes fun of Duncy in the next story.)

Nearly Five Thousand In Casts Of Nation's Political Shows In Chicago

Cross-Section Of Country To Pick Nominees

Dramatic And Important Business Of Selecting Men To Carry Party Colors In Election Starts Soon

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON (AP) —Some forty-six hundred men and women comprise the casts of the two political shows at the Chicago Stadium in June. Two thousand one hundred and eight of them will be voting delegates, the others alternates.

Sailing from as widely separated and as socially divergent regions as Maine and the Philippines, Montana and the Virgin Islands, these people will transact the dramatic and important business of selecting presidential and vice presidential candidates and of adopting the platforms of the two great parties.

Delegates Total 1,154

At both of the Republican national convention, starting June 14, and the Democratic, starting June 27, there will be exactly 1,154 qualified delegates.

With representatives from 48 states and the insular possessions in the Pacific, the Atlantic and the Caribbean, both conventions will present a cross-section of the racial origins, the avocations, aspirations and prejudices of the complex civilization under the Stars and Stripes.

There will be "dirt farmers," merchant princes, small town bankers and big town lawyers, housewives and professional politicians, men from the Alaskan frontier and the Hawaiian tropics, bone dryas and sopping wets.

Methods Representative

While the methods of choosing these delegates are complex and manifold—scarcely any two states having exactly the same procedure—they are based broadly on the American idea of representative government.

There are three general ways of electing delegates: By presidential primaries in which all qualified voters of the party are eligible to participate, by district and state conventions and in a few cases by state executive committees.

Following the pattern of representation in congress, the district delegates represent the congressional districts of the various states, while delegates at large represent the state as a whole as United States senators do.

Chosen By Conventions

The district delegates are elected by district convention or by presidential primary election, while the delegates at large are elected by the state convention.

At the Democratic national convention there will be two delegates with one vote each for each senator and representative in congress under district apportionment now applying to the present congress.

However, in those states in which representation in the house has been increased by the creation of new congressional districts there will be two delegates for each senator and representative under the new setup.

Texas Gains Six

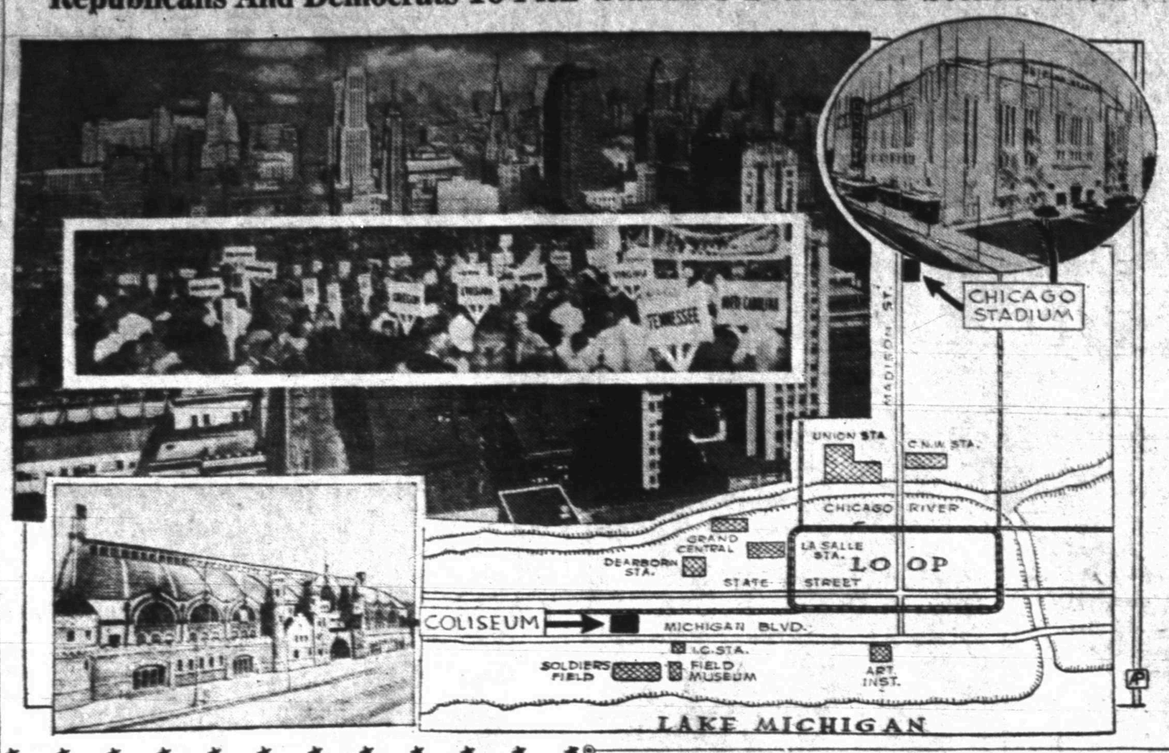
For example, California will have votes in this convention, 18 more than in 1928; Texas will have a gain of six, and Michigan 38, a gain of 8.

At the Republican convention there will be one district delegate from each congressional district and one additional district delegate from each district wherein the vote cast 10,000 or more votes for the republican election or for the Republican nominee in the last congressional election.

The last provision is in the nature of a reward of the district organization for making a satisfactory showing in recent election.

The two parties have different allotments for delegates-at-large.

Republicans And Democrats To Pick Standard Bearers In Scenes Below



Party Battles Find Stage Is All Set To House Them; Situation Is Different From Convention Of Twelve Years Ago

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Back in 1920, when Chicago had its last big political convention, there was a scramble for sleeping space by thousands of visitors.

But this is 1932—and this city in the last 12 years has more than tripled its downtown hotel facilities.

Therefore Chicago had visions of holding open houses for both major party conventions this summer without taxing its guests facilities in the least.

18,000 Rooms In 'Loop'

In the "loop" district alone there now are about 18,000 "first-class" hotel rooms and equally as many in near-downtown areas.

That totals approximately 36,000 rooms for the influx of upwards of 75,000 guests—delegates, alternates and spectators—which Chicago expects for each of the big nominating bees in June.

The city's civic committee on arrangements, moreover, has guaranteed hotel rates will not be skyrocketed for convention visitors. More than 7,000 rooms in the loop are to be available at rates running from $1.50 to $3 and $4 per day.

Traffic Arrangements Made

Neither does Chicago expect any serious difficulty in handling convention traffic problems. Two east-west boulevards — Jackson and Washington—are to become one-way throughfares for the convenience of convention-bound visitors.

Both streets will be patrolled by more than 500 policemen as delegates, and spectators pour out of downtown hotels for each convention session at the Chicago Stadium—less than 10 minutes' drive west from the loop.

Stadium Congestion Avoided

In the stadium itself less congestion is expected than conventions of either party have experienced for many years. While most of its main floor will be reserved for delegates, alternates and newspapermen, the mezzanine and two balconies will provide nearly 20,000 seats for spectators.

It will be far cry from accommodations offered in the old coliseum at the south side of the loop, scene of many exciting conventions in the past. The coliseum's capacity was scarcely half that of the two-year old stadium.

Makes 60th Crop

Rusk County Man Vet Farmer

RUSK, June 11 (AP)—W. T. Linstrom, who lives near Alto, is making his sixtieth crop.

Linstrom was born in Sweden, March 3, 1841. After coming to America he traveled some years in the north before settling in Louisiana, where he made his first cotton crop, 21 bales. He came to Cherokee county in 1882 and has been out of it only one time since then.

Linstrom says he has hauled cotton 30 miles and sold it for five cents per pound and still made money. In his earlier years he could pick 450 pounds of cotton per day. Last year he had to be content with picking 100 pounds per day.

Hardeman County Man Raises Capons; Has Flock Of 1,500

CHILLICOTHE, June 11 (AP)—Claude Robertson of Medicine Mound has eight hundred capons, and 700 more will be caponized this year, making a total of 1,500. If the project this year is successful, Robertson plans to have about 5,000 next year.

Seven hundred of the 800 birds caponized for Mr. Robertson were the work of four members of the Ghillicothe High school vocational agricultural class. They were Raymond Higginbotham, J. C. Howard, Vaughn Evans, and Ross Gentry.

The profit from poultry meat at present is much more than that realized from eggs. Should the capon work prove a success, it is expected that in another year there will be several carloads of capons marketed, adding several thousand dollars to this trade area.

LOTS OF WHEAT

CROSBYTON, June 11—(Special)—Wheat prospects at Kalgary are better than since in 1926 A. Pinkerton, ginner, said while here recently. He reports 1,500 acres of wheat in his territory that is in good condition and some may yield as high as 25 bushels to the acre.

Before his conversion, the Apostle Paul had carried on an energetic persecution of the Christians in Palestine.
