Transfer of Matagorda gets TP&W approval

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission formally approved a proposal to transfer management of the federal wildlife refuge on Matagorda Island to the State of Texas Wednesday, Nov. 3. The director of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, Charles Travis, estimates that management costs would run about $800,000 for two years.

The final Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) on the proposal for disposition of some 19,000 acres of federal land on Matagorda Island was released in late October by the Department of the Interior (DI) and the General Services Administration (GSA). The statement proposes transferring administrative jurisdiction of all federal lands on Matagorda Island to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS), who would then enter into an agreement with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for management of the land.

The FWS and the Texas General Land Office will exchange wildlife conservation easements on some 43,893 acres of publicly-owned land, 19,000 federally-owned and 24,893 state owned. All land covered under the easement will become part of the National Wildlife Refuge System (NWRS), with primary jurisdiction remaining in Texas.

The proposed action is one of five alternatives outlined in the EIS, which purpose is to assist decision makers in the DI and GSA finalize the disposition of the island land. The status of the land has been a subject of dispute for several years. A final decision is expected sometime during the month of December.

The EIS states that the proposed alternative "would provide maximum protection to these important wildlife habitats of Matagorda Island as well as allow for management of a single integral

O.B. STANLEY, PRESIDENT of Stanley Stores, outlines plans for the new supermarket to be located in Harbor Oaks Shopping Village. [Photo by Pat Blair]

Completion of new store expected in nine months

A new Stanley Supermarket — anchor tenant of the proposed Harbor Oaks Shopping Village on Hwy. 35 North — will be opening in about nine months, Aransas County business and community leaders were told Wednesday morning, Nov. 3.

O.B. Stanley, president of Stanley Stores, made the announcement during a reception in his honor at 10:45 a.m. at the Sandollar Restaurant.

Stanley announced he has signed a lease with Roger Seaman, president of Candy Stick Corporation, developers of the proposed shopping center/mini-mall. "The contract I signed calls for building the store and having it ready in nine months," he said. "We'll be ready in nine months and one day."

Stanley told those at the reception he plans to construct a 22,500-square-foot store that will include a "modern up-to-date fruit and vegetable department, a large meat department, a bakery and possibly a take-home delicatessen."

Headquartered in Bay City, his company presently has stores in 17 Texas cities — including Port Lavaca, Brenham and Beeville — and one in Louisiana and plans call for additional stores to be constructed in both states in the near future.

He said his stores offer discount prices. "All of our prices are discount," he added.

Stanley said his stores would operate on "convenience store hours — 8 to 10 or 8 to 9, as business dictates" and that they are open

Annexation sought

A request for annexation of the site of the proposed Harbor Oaks Shopping Village on Hwy. 35 north of Rockport will come before the Rockport city council at its meeting Monday, Nov. 8.

The request — for annexation of the proposed shopping center "and surrounding areas," including Traylor Ave. — followed the announcement Wednesday morning that Stanley Stores, headquartered in Bay City, will be the anchor tenant of the proposed $5 million shopping center and mini-mall.

Other items scheduled on the agenda for the 7:30 p.m. council meeting will be a request by Wimpole Inc. for permission to place an antenna on the water tower in Fulton for approximately six weeks.

In a letter to city officials, Wimpole officals said their firm provides an offshore positioning service and they are requesting the antenna placement on the Fulton tower in order that they can provide a positioning network between Matagorda Island and Rockport for the next six weeks.

Wimpole Inc. is a subsidiary of the George Wimpy Group in the United Kingdom.

The city council is expected to set a date for opening bids on purchase of a backhoe and will hear a report from Alderwoman Betty Jean Ward on the Oct. 25 Texas Municipal League meeting.

Other action scheduled before the council includes adoption of ordinances on matters approved at last month's council meeting and consideration of a proposal not to hold a council meeting on Dec. 27.

Dec. 27, the Monday following Christmas, is the council's second scheduled meeting date in that month but some city officials feel it is too close to the holiday. If the council cancels that meeting, its members will also have to call the joint council/planning & zoning commission hearing for Dec. 13, the council's first meeting date for the month.

54% turnout reported

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

Pre-election predictions of a "good" turnout in Aransas County were borne out Tuesday, Nov. 3, as 54 percent of the county's voters cast ballots either at the polls or in the earlier absentee elections.

"It wasn't as big a turnout as for the 1980 presidential election," County Clerk Val Jean Eaton reported Wednesday morning, "but it was excellent for a governor's race."

A total 3,786 of the county's 7,009 registered voters turned out for the 1982 elections, with 49 percent — some 3,422 — going to the polls Tuesday. The remaining 364 ballots were cast absentee.

Election officials said they were unable to determine if the turnout was a record for a non-presidential election, but they agreed it was a strong showing.

The large turnout — reported as high as 67 percent in Pct. 4A — contributed to a delay in getting returns to the county clerk's office Tuesday night. The first returns, from Pcts. 4 and 4A, did not come in until after 9 p.m. The last precinct to report, Pct. 3, came in at 10:45 p.m.

In complete but unofficial returns, Aransas County voters followed a general statewide trend that favored Democratic candidates in Tuesday's elections. But in three races, county voters went with Republican candidates on the ballot.

Those three races include the justice of the peace, Pct. 3, where Republican Bill Walston received 726 votes to defeat Democrat Philip D. Baldwin.

In the governor's race, Aransas County voters — in a departure from the statewide results — came out in favor of incumbent Bill Clements over Democrat Mark White.

And county voters favored Republican John L. Bates 1,818 over Democrat Ted Robertson, 1,703.

In other local races, Democrat Mike Womack, running for county commissioner Pct. 4-4A, polled 406 votes against 238 for write-in candidate Ken Faulkner and Pct. 4-4A JP candidate Eileen Jeffers defeated Robert (Jake) Campbell 346 to 312.

County voters supported incumbent Lloyd Bentsen over Jim Collins 2,059 to 1,670 in the U.S. Senate race and Bill Patman over Joe Wyatt in the U.S. Representative's race. That race was close, however, with Patman defeating Wyatt by only four votes in the county polls. Wyatt carried the absentee vote and Pcts. 3 and 4A.

In the Dist. 18 State Senate race, John Wilson, the deceased incumbent in that office, received 1,743 votes to 1,668 for J. Everett Ware. And in the race for State Representative Dist. 36, W.O. (Bill) Harrison received 1,978 votes to 1,628 for incumbent Ken Riley. District-wide, the election reversed the results of 1980 when Riley defeated Harrison.

Aransas County voters Tuesday also appeared in step with a statewide trend that saw approval of all six proposed constitutional amendments. The propositions carried in absentee and all six polling stations although Proposition 5 had the narrowest margin of victory in the county.

This proposition would allow the duties of the county treasurer in Bee and Tarrant counties to be transferred to the county auditors after a local election. Aransas County voters approved this proposal 1,569 to 1,153.

Other propositions approved in state elections Tuesday included:

Proposition 1, to repeal the property tax and allow the Legislature to make general revenue appropriations to the 17 state schools not in the two university systems.

Proposition 2, to allow the state to continue helping needy dependent children

Zoning on Fulton agenda

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff Writer

The Fulton zoning committee presented its proposed zoning ordinance to the Fulton town council for review at the council's workshop meeting Tuesday, Nov. 2. Zoning Committee Chairman Charles Belaire was placed on the agenda for the Nov. 9 regular meeting of the council.

Belaire told the council that although the mobile home/recreational vehicle park owners were under the impression that the zoning ordinance would not permit the construction of hotels and motels on park property, they had been zoned for residential-resort districting all along.

Toys, cash needed for area kids

A triple whammy has struck Aransas County's Toys for Kids campaign this year: there will be more children to provide toys for, fewer funds with which to buy those toys — and no more Texas Gold stamps.

"We need about $2,000 in cash to reach our goal," says Jo Lee McConnell who is in charge of collecting the cash and Gold stamps that have been donated this year. Starting this weekend, boxes will be placed in H.E.B. and Super D for the convenience of those who would like to make donations of cash or the Fisher-Price coupons to the campaign.

Toys for Kids did receive about 650 books of Texas Gold stamps this year, McConnell added — "but in past years we've collected three times that many." The closing of the Gold stamp redemption centers was a hard blow to Toys for Kids which has in recent years used the stamps for purchase of the bulk of their toys, she added.

Sponsored by the local Lions Club and under the chairmanship of John Jackson, Toys for Kids annually provides toys at Christmas for children of families that would otherwise be unable to afford them.

Families who wish to participate in the program apply through the Department of Human Resources which screens them to determine eligibility. The names of

Editorial & Opinion

Only cure-all is pride

Austin At Wharf

A FRIEND RECENTLY returned from an extended tour of rural parts of the New England States is impressed with the people and the countryside. Most important, he noted that the roadsides are so much more tidy than ours. This he attributed in measurable extent to the circumstance of deposits being required on beverage containers, as much as 20 cents per.

At the risk of stirring the wrath of vendors I endorse such a deposit because I do believe that it would be helpful — but by no means a cure-all. Needless to say, the only real cure-all must be pride. Heaven knows, Texans are proud, proud of their scenery, beaches, roads and whatever. None of this however prevents them from littering. More, the disgraceful circumstance is not confined to a small few, nor to newly arrived Yankees and snowbirds. Often accustomed to clean highways I must even suspect that new arrivals may be the least among the offenders.

OF LATE MUCH HAS been made of evidence that considerable portions of beach litter comes not from people caverting in the sand, instead from offshore rigs and ships of all size and degree. Now there is something tough to get around. Success in that area can only depend upon education and cooperation. Or will someone suggest that every non-biodegradable object in the way of stores that go to ships and rigs be clearly labeled with the ship's name? Impossible, of course. Often I have speculated that it might be a good idea to at regular intervals set up signs along the highways: "Be a Good Texan - Don't Liter," you know, like those "Drive Friendly" signs.

Ah, but who drives friendly? Driving friendly seems to mean to most people getting the hell to where they're going as fast as possible, fist shaking and cursing the odd ball character who holds him up because he is observing the speed limit.

Now what worries me about the foregoing paragraphs is the almost certain probability that most readers will dismiss them as just more of the same old stuff, harping about litter to no good end. So, I can't blame anyone who has not read this far.

EVEN THOUGH I doubt much will come of it I applaud the proposal of a Nueces County commissioner to use jailbirds to clean up his territory. Nothing new in the idea, in fact it was once rather commonplace. Nowadays it seems that for one reason or another law enforcement officers don't think too well of the idea. And needless to say such an idea upsets all the do-gooders who believe that culprits should be installed in posh suites, comparable to a first class hotel, and naturally dine like kings. I don't agree at all. Straightaway I don't believe the incarceration of a criminal should cost me a single red cent. Instead such people should dine on the most simple and inexpensive fair, be given the most modest quarters, and all of this should in some way be paid for by their labor.

More, I am opposed to a telly or radio in a cell, and only the most carefully selected reading matter. A jailbird should go to bed at night too tired from his labor to plot escape or trouble making in the prison. I don't believe in physical torture, but do believe that when a prisioner is released he should be determined that the last thing in the world he wants is to return to his bed behind the bars.

Needless to say, there ain't no such jail in the USA. As things stand today, the prisioner, once he mentally adjusts to his confinement, can lead a pretty happy life — at your expense and mine.

AT THIS POINT I AM 630 pages deep in Gordon W. Prange's "At Dawn We Slept," beyond much question the most comprehensive account so far on the attack on Pearl Harbor. I have more than 200 pages to go. Considering current day attitude, that anything that happened more than 10 years ago is old and should be forgotten I am a bit surprised that a publisher would have the fortitude and willingness to risk the costly publication of such a book. Besides it is not easy, nor is it exactly pleasant reading. Even so I look forward to doing a sort of in depth commentary on a book that for me is often exciting and revealing.

For the moment however, I can only vainly wish that it would be read by (peace-at-any-price) people who are today far more vocal than the isolationists who fought against our entering World War II. There is little or no point in my writing again that I am opposed to war as any man. Yet, like it or not, I am obliged to acknowledge that in this world the only way any country can hope to avoid war is by constantly letting the potential enemy know that our country will not be a sitting duck, a pushover. Sadly I admit that I fear that there are many people in this nation who rather than face or prepare for another war are willing to take their chances on being conquered, risk the eventualities of living in a conquered nation.

'Hang on'

American dream can be renewed

John Tower
U.S. Senator for Texas
142 Russell Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

Two years ago the American dream of home ownership seemed more of a nightmare to many young families and those entering the housing market for the first time. The combined effects of housing shortages, high interest rates and double-digit inflation frustrated many who had saved for a long time to purchase a home, and, for the most part, completely eliminated them from the immediate housing market. Some delayed this financial committment, and others simply gave-up any hope of home ownership, at least for the near future.

However, recent economic news and action on related fronts are having a positive effect on the housing market, reviving the dream of home ownership.

Inflation has, perhaps, one of the greatest impacts on the housing market. Two years ago, our nation was crippled by a climbing inflation rate of 12.4 percent annually. The efforts of the Reagan Administration, the Federal Reserve Board and the Congress have cut this unacceptably high inflation rate in half. Today, inflation is averaging an annual rate of only 5.1 percent.

While a reeduction in inflation alone is not enough to turn around the housing market, it has had a positive impact on other factors which contribute to the lag in the housing industry. For instance, it has shepherded a drop in the prime lending rate.

In January, 1981, less than two short year ago, the prime lending rate was at an all time high of 21.5 percent. Today, the current prime lending rate is 12 percent. Because interest rates on home mortgages, in many instances, are related to the prime lending rate there has been a domino-type effect on the number of families and individuals who now can qualify for a home mortgage.

As an example, in October, 1981, mortgage rates on the average FHA/VA loan ($55,000, 30 year fixed rate loan on a $63,000 house) were 17.5 percent. Today, the same loan would have a 12.5 percent interest rate. This means that the average monthly mortgage payment has fallen from $807 per month in October, 1981, to $587 per month in October, 1982. That is a 27 percent decrease in just a year. This same trend exists for fixed rate conventional mortgages, where rates have dropped at many financial institutions to 14.5 percent, from a high of 17.5 percent, translating into an approximate $130 reduction in monthly payments on a conventional mortgage.

The decline in the monthly mortgage payment means many families and individuals who could not qualify for a mortgage at the high interest rate, can now qualify because the monthly payment is within their budget guidelines.

Additionally, the Department of Commerce recently released some encouraging statistics on the number of housing starts for September, 1982, indicating the homebuilding industry. In September, 1982, housing starts climbed 14.4 percent to an annual rate of 1.146 million units. This figure reflects a 34.2 percent increase above the Octobr, 1981 trough. Permits for new construction climbed 40.7 percent since their low of last October.

Thus, the somino-effect continues. Improvement in the housing industry will stimulate the economy. This stimulation, in turn, could further decrease the rate of inflation. A reduction in inflation could, once again, affect favorably the bank lending rates, with an end result of evn lower mortgage rates and more families and individuals qualifying for home mortgages.

However, until the recent trends continue for a longer period, we should remain cautious in our optimism. Our economic woes are the result of many years of poor and, in some cases, ill-advised policies. What our nation needs now is a continuation of those policies which have brought about this improving economic climate.

Buyer and seller beware

Check out used car carefully

AUSTIN — With current economic conditions, Texans may find that buying a new car can severly strain their financial resources. As a result, many persons are turning to used cars as an alternative. While a used car often can turn out to be an inexpensive way to obtain a reliable vehicle, consumers should be alert to a few unscrupulous sellers who tamper with a car's odometer. By rolling back an odometer, a seller can make it appear that a vehicle's mileage is significantly lower than the actual number of miles driven. A consumer is much more likely to purchase a used car with fewer miles on it.

House Bill 17.46 (b) (16) of the Texas Deceptive Trade practices and Consumer Protection Act prohibits tampering with an odometer. In addition, other sections of the Act prohibit an individual from representing that a good has characteristics which it does not have, or from failing to disclose information about a good if such a failure is intended to induce a consumer to purchase something which the consumer would not have purchased had the information been disclosed. Because of these provisions, a consumer should be aware of odometer problems when purchasing a vehicle and when selling one.

There are several steps you can take to protect yourself when purchasing a used vehicle. First, when purchasing a used car, always compare the mileage on the odometer to the mileage indicated on the back of the vehicle inspection sticker on the windshield. Second, ask for odometer statements given to a dealer when the car was sold to the dealer. If possible, ask for the name of any previous owners and call them to verify the mileage and to check on the general condition of the car. Third, when buying from a used car dealer, look at the mileage on several other vehicles on the lot. If an unusually large number of vehicles have low mileage, such as under 30,000 miles, be alert to a possible rollback. Fourth, check along the inside of the doors and trunk for oil change and tire stickers which might indicate the mileage on the vehicle at an earlier date. If the mileage indicated on the odometer is less, then be alerted to a possible rollback. Finally, it is a good idea to have an independent experienced mechanic look at the vehicle to ascertain the mileage as well as the general condition of the vehicle.

While the above-mentioned suggestions may help you from purchasing a vehicle with high mileage, you should also be careful to avoid potential liability when selling or trading in a vehicle. Federal law requires that a seller of a used vehicle sign odometer statements and give them to the buyer. Always read the odometer statement carefully and thoroughly before signing. In addition, be sure to check the correct boxes yourself to avoid any confusion concerning the actual number of miles on the vehicle. If you should have any doubt as to the accuracy of the odometer, then check the box on the statement which indicates there may be an incorrect mileage reading. Remember, should you incorrectly sign an odometer statement you may be liable to the purchaser under both state and federal law.

Consumers have long relied on the odometer of a vehicle as an indicator of the reliability and quality of a vehicle. As a result, the Consumer Protection Division of my office pursues all claims involving possible odometer rollbacks. If you believe you may have purchased a vehicle which has been "rolled-back," please contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Office nearest you.

Workers want paychecks

Senator Lloyd Bentsen

Workers in Texas and the rest of the country want paychecks, not handouts.

Unemployment is at a record high level in the United States. Even though Texas remains better off than most states, more Texans have been out of work this year than ever before in our state.

Most unemployed workers understand that to get jobs, there must be renewed health and prosperity in U.S. business and industry. One vital key to economic recovery is a return to acceptable interest rates, especially long-term rates.

So it was with a great sense of relief and optimism that the country watched short-term interest rates decline during July and August.

Why then are the economic forecasters for major financial firms persisting in their gloomy prediction for the nation's economic recovery?

They remember, as I do, a similar situation last fall when interest rates were sliding downward and hopes were rising for a quick recovery from recession. Just as now, declining interest rates seemed to indicate a return to health for our economy.

Then, in December of last year, the Federal Reserve Board abruptly halted the decline in interest rates by stopping the growth in our money supply. The Fed's action was puzzling. Had interest rates been allowed to continue decreasing at a moderate rate, the recession could have been cut short by six months or more.

Now interest rates are coming down again. Only this year, economists are hesitant to be optimistic. They fear a replay of last year's disaster.

I have written to Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker asking him to accommodate the current decline in interest rates. We need a monetary policy that allows a stable, moderate increase in the money supply to encourage a continuing fall in interest rates.

The nation cannot afford a repetition of the no-growth or gyrating policy that has been practiced by the Federal Reserve. Continuing such a policy will again choke off recovery and create more unemployment.

A moderate and accommodative monetary policy is the best and quickest way to restore prosperity to our businesses and industries, bringing more jobs back to the economy.

In fact, if the policy were undertaken now, it could mean as many as a million new jobs being created by December. With the pressure of unemployment growing, our country needs those jobs.

If the Federal Reserve will maintain a moderate, steady monetary policy that would be the easiest and most practical way to ensure that American men and women who want to work can earn a paycheck.

I want to see our workers in Texas and the rest of the country move off the welfare roll and back onto the payroll.

Let's try some fake missles

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassburr farm takes a sidelong look at the nuclear situation this week.

Dear editor:

According to the people who're in favor of a nuclear freeze, Russia and the United States each has enough nuclear missiles to destroy the other, therefore why build more

As I understand it, that's true on paper. Russia has its missiles in place and aimed at every major target in the United States, and the United States has its aimed at every Russian target. Bot have reached the point in civilization where each can wipe the other out in a momen't notice.

But there's a slight flaw in this. How does anybody know a missile will hit where it's aimed when its target is halfway around the world,, You've seen TV shots of a new weapon being tried out. It's supposed to emerge from a submarine and hit a flying target. Sometimes it hits but sometimes it takes a nose-dive back into the ocean or goes over the horizon in the wrong direction. You don't get to see such Russian experiments because not even the Russian population gets to seen such things. Only the Communist big-shots are let in on it.

How does the rest of the world know, if Russia and the U.S started firing at each other, a missile aimed at Washington or Moscow may take off in the wrong direction and hit South Borneo or the North Pole or some unbomb-worthy place around here. Be the worst mess you ever saw.

Therefore, what the world needs is an International Marksmanship Try-Out. Let's find out how good everybody's aim is before we get serious about destroying civilization. Draw a big circle in some isolated spot in the United States and one in an isolated spot in Russia, remove the nuclear warheads in the missiles and substitute flour, and see just how close our marksmen can come to hitting their circle and their marksmen to hitting ours.

If the trial shooting results in people in South Borneo or bears at the North Pole getting covered with flour, obviously the world isn't ready for a nuclear war.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Big games with lots of action

By Terry Cody

Big games with lots of action and close scores were commonplace this week in the Youth Soccer League at Rockport's Memorial Park. In the Intermediate Division the Hurricanes beat the Strikers 4-3 in the opening game and the Tornadoes pulled off a 4-3 victory over the Cosmos.

The Strikers and the Hurricanes were battling for first place in the standings and both teams came ready to play. Just eight minutes into the first half, John Sanchez of the Strikers scored from the right side of the goal area to put his team out in front. Thirteen minutes later Russell Crawford followed up a penalty shot that had been blocked by Hurricane goalkeeper Miles Adkinson for the Strikers second goal.

Unfortunately the two goal lead was short-lived as Charlie Lozano fired several hard shots at the Striker's goalkeeper and finally pounded a crossing shot into the goal just one minute later. Both defenses toughened a bit and the ball moved up and down the field at a tremendous pace.

Just before the half Mario Hernandez blasted a shot past the Striker goalkeeper to even the score 2-2 at halftime. Less than 10 minutes into the second half the Hurricanes jumped into the lead when Hernandez headed in a beautiful corner kick by Lozano.

Lozano scored the Hurricanes' final goal at the 25-minute mark of the second half. Troy Brown of the Strikers scored on a fine shot from the left side of the goal just two minutes before the end but the hard-fought game ended before the Strikers could score another goal.

The Tornadoes and the Cosmos picked up the action where the first game left off. Some players weren't even warmed up when Chris Callam booted in the first goal for the Tornadoes. Five minutes later a Cosmos defender accidently kicked the ball into her own goal to put the Tornadoes ahead 2-0.

Twenty minutes into the game, Eric Flores of the Tornadoes fired a left-footed shot into the goal after a good throw-in play.

Finally the Cosmos got their scoring machine rolling and Bubba Kellough took a beautiful pass from Nathan Arispe and banged in the Cosmos first goal. Less than a minute later Kellough kicked in his second goal and the half ended 3-2 in favor of the Tornadoes.

Both teams made a few changes at halftime and the moves paid off. Paul Wilson took over the goalkeeping chores for the Cosmos and stopped several hard shots in a row by the Tornadoes.

With less than 5 minutes to play the Cosmos tied the score when Eric DeWolfe scored after the Cosmos fired a barrage of shots at the Tornadoes keeper. The celebration was hardly over though when the Tornadoes attacked the goal and a Cosmos defender deflected the ball into the goal after getting in the way of a hard clearing kick from the goal box.

In the PeeWee Division the Chiefs and the Barracudas fought to a 2-2 tie in what may have been the biggest game of the regular season. Each team won half of the game with the Chiefs scoring twice in the first half and the Barracudas twice in the second half.

The Chiefs had their first serious scoring opportunity stopped by Elias Anderson when he made a fantastic block on a penalty shot by the Chiefs. After 15 minutes, James Phillips made a long run down the right side and swiftly kicked the ball into the corner of the Barracudas goal. Four minutes later, Phillips scored again from the left side to give the Chiefs a 2-0 lead.

In the second half all the scoring plays belonged to the Barracudas although both teams played really inspired defense most of the half. Robert Solis scored on a penalty kick for the Barracudas after only four minuts of play. A little over one minute later, Solis got a good pass on the right side and fired the ball into the goal. The next 30 minutes was a scoreless battle and the game ended before a clear-cut first place team could be decided.

The Kicks continued on their winning ways with an 18-0 victory over the Sting. The Sting were playing better this week but had a couple of runs of bad luck that let the score get out of hand.

Chris Hoover scored three goals in the first half to go with two others by Bridget Brundrett and one each by Jay Pearson and Joe Zambrano. After being behind 7-0 at the half, the Sting played well for about 15 minutes of the second half and kept the Kicks scoreless.

Finally the Kicks figured out their defense and Brundrett scored twice on long breakaway runs downfield. Byron Hailey then blasted in a shot from the penalty line and Paul Patterson added another for the Kicks.

At the 20-minute mark, Byron Hailey found his range and ran off six more goals in about 10 minutes. The Sting finally stopped Hailey's scoring bringe but not before Joe Zambrano had kicked in his second goal of the day. The Sting are having a tough time in their first season, but a lot of their problems are due to much better play this year from the more experienced PeeWee Division teams.

The final game of the day pitted the Aztecs against the Rowdies. The Rowdies had some fine defensive work from Rutilio Fuentes and E.J. Irwin but the powerful Aztecs managed to score three goals to win 3-0.

Chuckie Nixon scored all three goals for the Aztecs, but got lots of help on offense from Jeff Griffith and other Aztec teammates. Bebo Martinez and David Werntz anchored the defensive team for the Aztecs and consistently managed to stop the Rowdies scoring threats spearheaded by Marcos Lizcano and Randy Mennen.

Langham captures title

Jim Langham, a longtime professional at the Key Allegro Tennis Club, won the mens over 70 singles state championship last week when he defeated George Wong of Dallas, 6-3, 6-3 in the Texas Senior Sectional Tennis Tournament at the Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

. In the semi-finals Langham defeated Fred Roger of Dallas who is ranked number one in the state in his age bracket. Langham defeated Rogers 6-4, 6-4.

As a result of his win in Fort Worth it is anticipated that Langham may be ranked number one in the state for 1982.

Just 10 years ago Langham won the state 60 and older title in Corpus Christi. Last year he and Woodie Brown won the 70 and older doubles at the state tournament.

Langham started playing tennis when he was 15 and is probably the oldest active tennis player in this area. He plays in many state-wide tournaments and has numerous trophies attesting to his skills.

Other Rockport area players participating in the recent Fort Worth tournament were Elaine and Bob Sumner who won the 55 and older mixed doubles title by beating Ann and F. Fitzpatrich, 6-3, 6-3 in the final match.

BBC Symphony trumpeter to visit Victoria College

VICTORIA — Trevor Green, trumpeter and manager of the BBC Scottish Symphony Orchestra will visit Victoria for two weeks in early November as a guest of the Victoria College Music Department. Mr. Green is traveling the United States on a Winston Churchill Fellowship and was invited to Victoria by Wilbur Collins, director of bands at Victoria College. According to Collins, Green is to visit San Francisco, Minneapolis and Boston in addition to his visit to Victoria. Green's tour is for the purpose of studying in detail "all aspects of Symphonic Wind Bands and Ensembles in America." His activities while in the states will include visiting and conducting pre-high and high school bands and ensembles, and studying administration, financing, repertoire and post-graduate opportunities.

The grant under which Green will travel is from a trust founded in 1965 as a result of a "National Appeal to establish a unique form of perpetual memorial to Sir Winston Churchill." The particular category for Green's award is for 'Conductors and Organizers of Brass Band and Youth Orchestras.'

While here, the Victoria College has scheduled two musical events in Green's honor. The first will be a performance of Mussorgsky's 'Pictures at an Exhibition' as transcribed by Elgar Howarth for the internationally famous Philip Jones Brass Ensemble of England. This will be a premiere performance in Victoria of this transcription. It will feature the Bagrielli Brass Quintet from Austin, the Southwest Texas Brass Works from San Marcos and musicians from Port Lavaca and Victoria. The event will be presented in the College Auditorium at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 13.

The second event to take place during Green's stay in Victoria, will be a concert by the Victoria College Wind and Jazz Ensemble, scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 16. Following the concert, Green will talk to members of the Victoria Music Club and those in the audience who care to hear what he has to say about music in Scotland. Both of the above concerts will be free to the public.

Aside from Green's musical interests is the fact that he is also a member of the Lomond Mountain Rescue Team of Scotland. According to Collins, it is an honor to have such an interesting and distinguished guest visiting Victoria. It is hoped that Victoria will give Green the warm hospitality for which it is noted.

Man overcome by toxic gas fumes

Paramedics attempted in vain to revive a man overcome by gas fumes while working on a barge located at the Makhole docks Tuesday. Another man overcome by the fumes was pulled to safety.

Juan Jose Jimenez, 33, a tool pusher for Culberson Well Service out of Victoria, was apparently overcome by fumes while working in an area below the main platform of the barge. He was not breathing when paramedics arrived on the scene. Aransas County paramedics worked to revive Jimenez for roughly 30 minutes, according to paramedic Leonard Callier. Although no autopsy was immediately ordered, Callier expects the nature of the incident is such that it will warrant one.

Sheriff's department Chief Investigator Ricky McLester said that although the type of gas involved has not yet been determined, samples of water found in the well have been sent to a laboratory for analysis.

ACMSI women raise $3,000

The Womens committee of the Aransas County Medical Services Incorporated heard their president, Joyce Thornton tell 102 members of the organization that the popcorn shrimp booth sponsored by ACMSI at the 1982 SeaFair reported a net profit of $3,151.47.

Juanita Wharton, co-chairman of the popcorn shrimp booth project told the club members this was the first year that the booth sold out of shrimp by 4 p.m. Sunday.

The next ACMSI luncheon will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, Dec. 3.

ACMSI member Mary Casey reported that plans for the annual Christmas Bazaar are going well but she said there is still a need for more volunteers to help in the annual event.

During the luncheon ACMSI members enjoyed a fashion show with clothes from the Castaways shop being modeled by ACMSI women committee members.

Scouts to collect for Goodwill

On Saturday, Nov. 6 and on Saturday, Nov. 13 Scouts from around South Texas will be doing their Good Turn by helping distribute collection bags for Goodwill Industries and picking up those same bags filled with materials for delivery to Goodwill Industries.

These filled bags that the Scouts will pick up on Nov. 13 will provide the raw materials essential to the program of rehabilitation and job training for the handicapped. These raw materials are renovated by the workers, sold in Goodwill stores, and so become paychecks for handicapped persons.

The objectives of this activity are to involve Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers in a worthwhile service opportunity that shows that the Scout slogan, "Do a Good Turn Daily," has great significance. This activity also provides the means for handicapped people to help themselves.

Vitamin A toxicity is rather difficult to attain

By Jean Glowka

Q. How much vitamin A is too much? What are the symptoms of A toxicity?

A. Vitamin A toxicity can occure when a person takes 100,000 units or more of A daily for several months. It seems that individual's needs for A vary greatly and can only be determined by experimentation and observation. However, nutritionists feel that the best level of vitamin A under ordinary circumstances is probably somewhere between 25,000 and 50,000 units daily.

Some of the symptoms of too much A (toxicity) are headaches, blurred vision, itching skin, thinning hair, sore lips, bruising, nosebleeds, painful joints and tenderness and swelling of the long bones. Remember, this could only occur after many months of taking 100,000 units or more daily. Also, toxicity symptoms will disappear in only a few days if the vitamin is withdrawn. Harmfall effects can be prevented or corrected by an increased vitamin C intake. (Many more people err and cause problems for themselves by taking too little A rather than too much!)

Q. I'm dieting; I've lost 10 pounds so far, on 1,000 calories a day (or less). However, for almost two weeks the needle on my scale has stuck in one spot! I'm hardly eating, for goodness sake — and not losing an ounce! I'd like to throw my scale through the window (or the wall)! What can I do?

A. Don't panic, and don't give up! This is called a "plateau" and is a dieting classic. The plateau days — and they can stretch into days and days and days — will disappear just as suddenly as they came. It's true! Do not become discouraged and blow your diet! One fine day you will find yourself three, four, or even five pounds lighter than the day before! You'll be so proud of yourself that the "hanging in there" will have been worth it! And you'll love your scale!

Until next week folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Please send questions to: Rt. 1, Box 437, Rockport, Tx. 78382.

The above material should not be construed as making claims, endorsements or criticisms. This is merely a relating of facts taken from research done by a number of nutritionists, doctors and scientists.

Porcelain originates with Chinese

Have you ever examined a beautiful handpainted piece of porcelain china and wondered about its origin? Perhaps it is an heirloom that your grandmother or great-grandmother left.

Pottery was the forerunner of a beautiful porcelain that we paint on today. Potters in China developed a technology that was far more advanced than elsewhere, and by the 9th century had invented the white translucent porcelain. It was not until the 14th century that they developed the techniques of painting with colors.

Not until the end of the 13th century, when Marco Polo returned from his travels in the Far East and brought porcelain to Italy, did the western world develop a curiosity about it.

Real porcelain was first discovered in Europe at a factory in Dresden, Saxony, although an imitation porcelain had been produced in Italy during the 15th century.

In the 16th century, the King of Poland, upon assuming the title of Elector of Saxony, had a survey made of the mineral wealth of Saxony. He was attempting to locate the essential ingredients for the manufacture of porcelain which was being produced by Far Eastern potters.

In the 17th century, a red porcelain very much like the ware produced in Yi-Hsing, China, was produced at the Dresden factory, although the red porcelain was not very translucent.

In 1709, a discovery which led to the production of white porcelain was made, and a factory built in Meissen. By 1713 the factory had a stock of overglaze colors and an artist named Funke was working at the factory. By 1720 a fine, thin porcelain was developed which has never been surpassed in Europe.

The beginning designs painted on porcelain were formal and displayed a classical symmetry. Later, the mosaic design and patterns were introduced. Styles soon began to change and miniature painters worked in gray, or with flowery natural colors, thus beginning a period of naturalism.

Today in the United States, the art of painting on beautifully designed pieces of porcelain china with personal characteristics of heirloom quality and creating colors and pattrens of our own has become a widely studied art form.

Certain toys may endanger child

DANGER: CHILD PLAYING!

No, this isn't a street sign. It's a reminder that some toys can be dangerous to children.

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, reminds parents that children are imitators and experimenters. Not only do they imitate their parents, they are continually experimenting with their toys — poking, pulling, prying, pinching.

Some stuffed animals, for instance, have cute button eyes that pull off easily, exposing the sharp points which fasten them on. These points sometimes do not lock like staples, but are just pushed in like a double-point thumb tack. This type of stuffed animal is apt to be found in souvenir shops or sold at carnivals. They are attractive to children and are frequently a casual or spur-of-the moment gift. Avoid them — or inspect them carefully.

Also avoid toys or objects with small removable parts that can be swallowed or pushed into an ear or nose. No one knows why a child will push a small object up his nose — perhaps just because it's there, the object is handy and it happens to fit.

If a toy is painted or has painted decorations, be sure that the paint is non-toxic. Imported toys, especially those from Mexico, may use lead-based paints, and eating paint chips has resulted in lead poisoning. Decorative beads, beans or seeds may also be poisonous. Some plastic toys may be flammable if exposed to heat.

So what are desirable toys?

For infants: Bright, colorful toys in many shapes, sizes, textures and weights. Noisy rattles to shake; unbreakable mirrors to look into; soft balls, blocks, and puppets to hold; hard rubber or unbreakable plastic objects to teethe on.

For preschoolers: Books! A sandbox with bucket, shovel and spoon. (For indoors, a "rice box" using whole grain unprocessed rice is easier to clean up!) Large pegboard and pegs and puzzles for coordination skills. Wooden animals, cars, and vehicles. A sturdy wagon. A "walk-around" kiddie car. Large crayons, paint, lots of paper. A rocking horse.

Church happenings

Bazaar features variety of goodies

A variety of goods — and goodies — will be available at the annual Christmas Bazaar sponsored by the women of Rockport's First United Methodist Church Wednesday, Nov. 10.

The bazaar will start at 8:30 a.m. in the church's fellowship hall and will continue until 5:30 p.m. As always, a "sidewalk cafe" will serve coffee, juice and rolls in the morning until about 11 or 11:30 a.m. then will begin serving lunches to those attending the bazaar.

Booths will include a plant booth featuring potted plants, bulbs and cuttings; a "Country Kitchen" offering candy, baked goods, jams and jellies; a Christmas Treasures booth where handcrafted items, including Christmas ornaments, can be purchased; and — new this year — a book stall.

Another new feature of this year's bazaar will be a "cookie walk" in which participants can purchase a one-pound decorated can and fill it with cookies of their choice from the selection offered.

Chairmen of this year's event include Bea Butler, plants; Mary Burke, Country Kitchen; Ola Mae Symons, cookie walk; Myrtle Kluge and Barbara Reddick, Christmas Treasures; Marilynn Young, sidewalk cafe; and Mary Renfro, book stall.

Thanksgiving service planned Nov. 23

The Rev. Gregory Deane, pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, will bring the sermon at a Community Thanksgiving Service Tuesday, Nov. 23, at Rockport's First Presbyterian Church.

The service will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will feature pastors and community leaders throughout Aransas County. Services will be open to the public.

A special offering will be taken to support the projects of the Aransas County Minister's Association.

Lessons in Truth begin

The first of a series of 10 "Lessons in Truth" will begin this Sunday, Nov. 7, at Rockport's Center of Positive Thought, corner of Magnolia and Cornwall.

Services, at 11 a.m., will be conducted by Jerry Martin of Houston, a board member of the Church of Religious Science.

Sunday afternoon, Martin will begin a course in "Miracles." Those sessions will begin at 3 p.m.

The Center of Positive Thought embraces the Unity Church doctrine which is a philosophy combining the mysticism of the East with the practicality of the West.

Rev. and Mrs. Fake to be honored

The Rev. and Mrs. Charles Fake will be honored in a church-wide fellowship following evening services at Rockport's First Baptist Church Sunday, Nov. 7.

The event is to commemorate the Fakes' 18th anniversary with the church in Rockport.

Evening services begin at 7 p.m.

Peace Lutheran holds classes

The classes, open to all residents of the community, will continue through February with meetings every Monday except the fourth of each month.

First Methodist sponsors blood drive

Those who would like set up appointments for blood donation are asked to call Mary Tyler at 729-3080.

Council on ministries set

Rockport's First United Methodist Church will have a Council on Ministries meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 8, at the church.

In the day of prosperity be joyful, and in the day of adversity consider; God has made the one as well as the other, so that man may not find out anything that will be after him.

HANDS

What do our hands tell us?

A child's hands—smooth, pliable, soft and beautiful—speak of innocence.

The hands of youth—restless, finger-snapping, rhythm-beating—are searching for answers.

A mother's hands are firm, capable, yet gentle. Dad's hands are big, strong—they represent authority. Grandmother's hands are wrinkled and veined—they tell us about kneading bread . . . and praying. An old man's hands are gnarled and crippled, crossed on a cane, waiting.

Praying hands, working hands, little hands, old hands all grapple with the problems of life.

Some problems are too great to solve alone. It takes a helping hand . . . outstretched to your hand.

With outstretched hands the Church welcomes you, seeks you, extends a joyous invitation to worship God.

Ladies get a big kick out of playing soccer

By PAT BLAIR

The youngest is 20, the oldest describe themselves as "50-plus." They are mothers, grandmothers, one operates a motel, one is a postal employee . . .

So what are they doing out here chasing a ball around a grassy field until they're breathless, risking bruises or even broken bones? (One has a cast on her arm.)

"Exercise," says Kay Akin.

"We're all a bunch of nuts!" laughs Pam Brock. "Gluttons for punishment!"

What they are, these 14 women, are members of the Rockport Rocketts, Aransas County's one women's soccer team. First organized last February, they are now winding down toward the end of their second season.

"We'll play two more weekends, this one and the next," says Pam Brock, captain of the team. "Then we have a tournament Dec. 4 and 5 in Corpus Christi."

Pam is the motel owner in the group. She also has children involved in the Aransas County Soccer League. "Almost every player on the team has kids," she says, and most, like Pam, first became involved in soccer because their children were playing it. Pam spent two seasons as assistant coach and coach. She isn't coaching this year, but Irene Anderson, another Rockett, is coaching the junior high team this season.

Irene and Pam were the organizers of the women's team. "We started talking about it back last December," Pam recalls, then in February, they stopped talking and started getting a team together. With Terry Cody (a member of the men's soccer team) as coach, they got together a team that averaged 10 to 12 people at most of the games.

Seven players, Pam said, is a "legal lineup" — the minimum number of people a team can have and still play. The maximum number that can be on a field is 11, she added.

The Rocketts' first season ran through early March and six of them at least liked the sport well enough to sign up again when the fall season began this past September. Other members of the team include Tracy Bennet, Nellie D. Lopez, Zoe Collins, Moya Garcia, Cindy Harrison, Mary Mesa, Laura Rihn, Dee Chavez, Ann Specht, Monique Schram and Ellie Specht.

Four of the team members — Ann and Ellie Specht and Kay Akin and Moya — are mother-daughter — and in both cases, the daughters were the reason, at first, for the mothers' involvement.

"I got involved because Irene and Moya were involved," Kay said. "They (the Rocketts) needed some players and I volunteered to sub. Then once I got involved, I got more enthusiastic. I enjoy the exercise and companionship — it's an outlet."

Daughter Moya, in turn, got involved because "Irene got me interested in it. Then once I started playing, I got hooked." This is her second season on the Rocketts and she's turned it into something of a family affair, not only getting her mother on the team but supporting her sons' interest in the game. One of her sons is a member of the Chiefs and another of the Strikers this year.

Ann Specht, director of the Aransas Pass Nursing and Convalescent Home (which she got to sponsor the Rocketts), said, "I got involved because my daughters got involved. But I like the competition — and the exercise. I don't get any physical exercise except walking around at the nursing home.

"Just about anybody can play soccer," Ann points out. "It doesn't take a lot of skill — oh, it takes some. But anyone can learn."

The team members, Pam points out, cover a spectrum of occupations and interests. "We have five nurses and a nurse's aide on the team, Nellie works for the post office, there's a teacher, Monique manages one of the delis in town . . ." There's even a welder on the team: Moya.

Pam points out that, although there are 11 other women's teams in the area — one ("brand new") in Port Aransas, one in Portland and nine in Corpus Christi — none of the other teams have the age range of the Rocketts. "Most of the teams, the players range into the early 30s," she said. "We (the Rocketts) have three women over 40.

"And," she pointed out, "almost every week these three play almost a complete game — a 45-minute half, five-minute break and a 45-minute half."

What's more, the Rocketts to date have a respectable season record against their on-the-average-younger competition: two games won, two losses and one tie. They plan on bettering that record in games this Sunday, Nov. 7, against the Corpus Christi "Hot Sox" in Gregory-Portland and again on Nov. 14 against Port Aransas here in Rockport.

The tournament coming up Dec. 4 and 5 will be played in Corpus Christi and at this date, the Rocketts don't know who their opponents will be.

Games are played, generally, at 4 p.m. on Sundays and home games are always on the soccer field in Memorial Park. That's where the team practices too, on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5:30 p.m. until, literally, it's too dark for them to see the ball. One of the big needs in Rockport, Pam concedes, is a lighted field that would allow games and practice to continue after the sun goes down.

"We would like something done to get the sand off the field too," she added. "This is a good field — except for the excess sand on it, it's the best soccer field in the area." The soccer league itself provided the permanent soccer nets at either end of the field and, Pam adds, it's used by three sets of teams — men's, women's and the various children's leagues.

Like any sport, Pam says, soccer has its share of hazards. "All sports are dangerous to a certain extent," she said. Irene, for example, recently broke her arm — but that's an exception. What players get mostly, Pam says, is bruises. "There are a lot of bruises involved: You get hit in the face, the chest, the stomach. A lot of times people use their stomachs to 'trap' the ball. And at least half the team has been hit in the face at least once."

But as in any sport, the hazards, the possible injuries don't seem to worry the Rocketts too much — certainly they aren't slowed down by such thoughts as they go chasing after the ball, or try to block it, during a practice skirmish with members of the men's team.

"The main reason we're here I guess is to have fun," Pam muses in answer to the question of soccer's appeal.

Later, already looking beyond the next two games and next month's tournament, she observes that the spring season will begin in February and the Rocketts will definitely have a team ready for it.

You better believe it.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE 4-4A

My sincere thanks to the voters of Precinct 4-4A for your support on November 2. It will be my privilege to serve as your new Justice of the Peace on January 1. I would also like to thank my worthy opponent for the fine race he ran and my friends and supporters for their help in my campaign.

Although I tried to get by to see everyone before the election, I do apologize if I did not have the opportunity to meet you personally and hope that we will meet each other soon. Thank you again for your support and confidence in me.

Stereo taken

A stereo valued at $230 was taken when the car of Dr. Mark Snyder was burglarized while it was parked at the Rockport physician's residence early this week.

Police said the burglary occurred between 7 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 2, and 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Four hubcaps were removed from a vehicle belonging to Viola Rivera between 1 p.m. and 10 p.m. Wednesday while the car was parked in the lot of a local grocery store.

Police made one arrest Wednesday on a charge of public intoxication.

Veterans eligible for work-study program

Students enrolled full-time under the GI Bill in Houston may supplement their monthly Veterans Administration educational assistance by earning money under the Veteran Work-Study Program.

Eligible veterans earn $3.35 an hour and may work up to 250 hours per term, advised Ted W. Myatt, Director, Houston VA Regional Office.

Work performed under the program is VA related and located at a school or VA facility in the area. Examples of such service might include processing of VA paperwork at schools or at a VA office, VA outreach services or services performed at a VA medical facility, Myatt said.

For applications and additional information, contact the Veterans Affairs Office on Campus, or the Houston VA Regional Office toll free at 1-800-392-2200.

Every American rose variety isn't equal

By Ted Brice
The Garden Editor

Throughout the world, American rose hybridizers are recognized as the leaders in the development of superior rose varieties. They have taken the once delicate rose and endowed it with many superior characteristics. Today's top American Roses are easier to grow, require less care, yet produce the most beautiful flowers in all the world. And they are hardy under even the toughest growing conditions.

But every American rose variety isn't equal in its ability to produce superior growth and blooming without special growing conditions or constant care and attention.

Each year the All-American Rose selections committee evaluates newly developed roses which have undergone two years of thorough testing in twenty-five official test gardens throughout the United States. Only roses which have performed exceptionally well and possess superior growth and blooming traits are eligible for the final balloting by the experts on the committee. The winners receive the highly coveted AARS seal.

Peggy Lee is the 1983 American Beauty Rose Of The Year. Introducing the most beautiful pink Hybrid Tea Rose of all time with blooms so enchanting they're like a song that haunts your memory. The big flowers are 4.5 - 5.5 inches across with 30 exceptionally broad petals and are borne in profusion on bushy, upright-spreading, well-branched plants with abundant medium green foliage. They have large, long pointed, urn-shaped buds with a delightful, delicate fragrance.

All-in-all a truly classic rose well deserving of special recognition as the American Beauty 1983 Rose-of-the-Year. Just like the all-time great entertainer for which this new rose has been named, it is destined to become a special favorite of everyone who truly appreciates style, grace and charm.

Morning Sun is the American Beauty 1983 Special Award Rose. Gardeners are constantly on the search for increased hardiness in a yellow rose — and this winner of American Beauty Roses 1983 Special Award has that special quality — above average hardiness. Its large 40 petal medium yellow flowers are abundant and long-lasting. low-thorned cutting stems add to the special qualities which make Morning Sun especially outstanding for bouquets. The upright bushy plants are robust and disease resistant. Good gardening until next week from your garden editor.

Adventurer to hold lecture

CORPUS CHRISTI — African adventurer Jean-Pierre Hallet will present a lecture with slides at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 11, in Corpus Christi State University's Corpus Christi Hall, Room 117.

Hallet, son of the famous Belgian painter Andre Hallet, was raised in the Belgian Congo and grew up with the Efe Pygmies on the edge of the Ituri Forest. Later, trained as an agronomist and sociologist at the Sorbonne in Paris, Hallet returned to the Congo in 1948 to work with 650,000 African blacks from 17 tribes doing everything from delivering babies to diagnosing plant diseases.

In 1956, Hallet returned to the Iture Forest and lived with the Efe Pygmies for a year and half during which time he studied their customs and language.

Hallet's adventures in Africa include fighting a lion to the death with a crude spear as part of his initiation into the ranks of the Masai warriors. He was made a blood brother of the Tutsi and Nande tribes, and is the only white man ever admitted to the Bwame Secret Society of the Lega tribe, in the eastern section of what is now Zaire. Unarmed, he once overpowered a male leopard that had attacked one of his porters in the Watalinga bush. In 1955 he lost a hand dynamiting a lake for fish to feed the part-Pygmy Mosso tribe of Burundi.

Hallet's autobiography, "Congo Kitabu," the first of a trilogy, was a national best seller and has since been translated into 21 languages including Chinese and Russian.

Today, Hallet focuses his attention on the Pygmy Fund, an organization he created to help save the Efe Pygmies from extinction.

The public is invited to attend the free lecture entitled "Jean-Pierre Hallet—African Adventurer."

Pet Talks

Dr. Hap Lutz

Dear Dr. Lutz,

I have a 12-year-old cat. His upper fang-like teeth extend about a sixteenth of an inch over his lower lip. Is this normal?

Signed,
Irma

Dear Irma,

Many adult cats appear to have unusually long canine teeth. There are four of these — two uppers and two lowers. The upper canine teeth in some Siamese cats, (and many older cats) are visable without lifting the upper lip. As the molar teeth (those in the back of the mouth) wear with age, the bite changes. Although it appears that the upper canine teeth may be placing pressure on the lower lip, this is an illusion, and the teeth are actually quite normal.

Signed,
Dr. Hap Lutz

Dr. Lutz is a former instructor of diseases of dogs and cats in the College of Veterinary Medicine, Texas A&M University.

Correction

The William Corey arrested and charged with public intoxication on Oct. 31 was not the William (Bill) Cory who manages Seafoam Motel.

A check with officials at the sheriff's department showed that the person charged with public intoxication was William Benjamin Corey of Rockport.

The Rockport Pilot regrets the confusion.

Crude production up

AUSTIN — Texas crude oil production totaled 73,380,503 barrels in August, according to Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Nugent.

The figure compares with reported July production totaling 73,487,527 barrels and August 1981 production of 75,175,649 barrels.

Windmills regaining popularity

COLLEGE STATION — Windmills have long been popular for pumping water for livestock as well as for farm and ranch homes in remote areas. They also have potential for converting wind energy into electricity, but the process is costly.

"As a fuel, wind is free, but the devices needed to use the energy benefically can be quite expensive," says Wayne Keese, an agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Serivce, Texas A&M University System.

"Wind chargers" were a common sight in the 1930s and early '40s and were the only source of electric power for many rural areas. But when the Rural Electric Cooperative system brought low-cost central station power to all parts of the country, wind-generated electric power systems practically disappeared, explains Keese.

"One of the disadvantages of wind-powered electric generators has been the need for power storage," notes the engineer. "Batteries can be used to store power but are costly."

However, wind power systems that can be interconnected with utility power lines are now available. With these systems, utility power can be used when the wind-powered generator produces too little power. On the other hand, excess power produced by the generator can be fed into the utility power line.

Of course, Keese advises discussing specific arrangements and equipment requirements with utility company respesentatives before investing in a wind-powered generator solely on the assumption that the utility will buy excess power.

How much electricity a wind machine can generate is determined by wind speed, rotor size and the machine's conversion efficiency. Manufacturers of wind machines provide performance curves to describe the power their machine will put out at different wind speeds. However, the "rated capacity" of a wind generator is not an indication of how much electricity will be produced under all wind conditions, cautions the engineer.

"A thorough analysis is required to determine the economic feasibility of generating electricity with a wind machine," says Keese. "In remote locations, a wind machine, coupled with storage batteries for no-wind conditions, may be the most feasible method of providing electricity."

A new publication available at county Extension offices, B-1412—"Wind Power Systems," provides more detail about selection and use of wind-power systems, says the engineer.

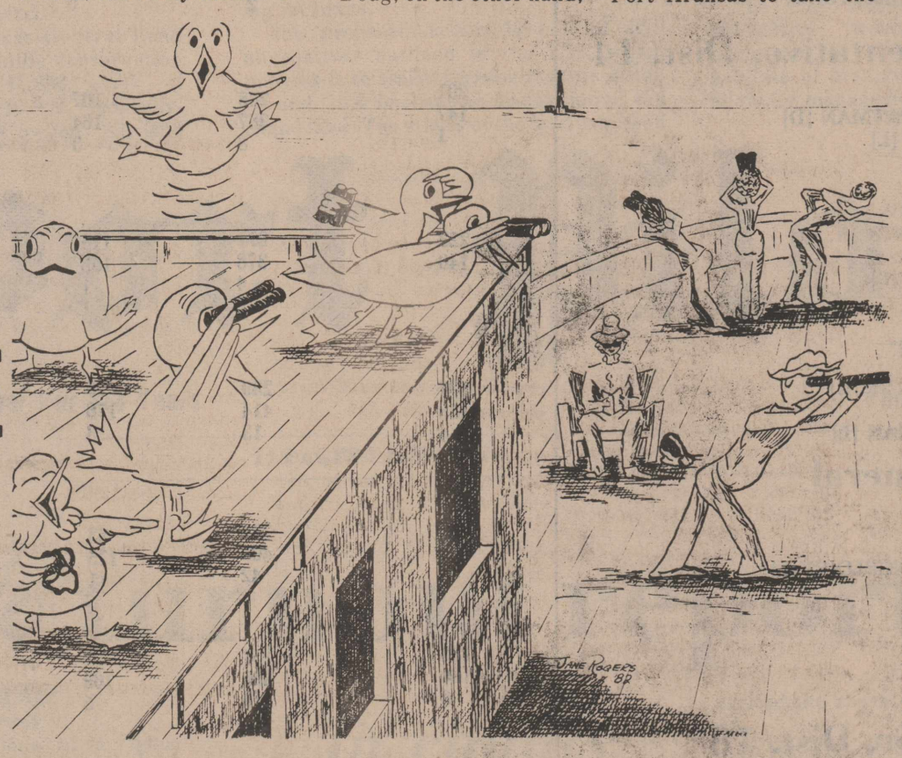
Land birds on a pelagic trip?

Jane Wilds

The purpose of a pelagic birding trip is to find ocean-going birds that you're not able to see on land because they spend most of their lives over the oceans. But for me, it's really insane. I hate getting up in the morning; I'm really a night person. I must also be a masochist. Why else would I get up at 4:30 a.m. in order to be at the wharf in Port Aransas by 6 a.m.?

Doug, on the other hand, is a day person. He's always alert and cheerful in the morning. It's almost unforgivable!

At any rate, about 96 other people (masochists or day people) showed up in Port Aransas to take the Wharf Cat for a pelagic birding trip. The Texas Ornithological Society arranged this trip for the middle of October, and birders from all over Texas (even Dallas) came down for it. There was even a large waiting list to get on it.



Taking pelagic trips off the Texas coast is a relatively new idea, although birders have done it for years off the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

Pelagic birds include seabirds such as albatrosses, shearwaters and storm-petrels. They live far from land most of the year. Usually they return to land only for breeding and nesting along seacoasts or on oceanic islands.

Gulls, cormorants, gannets and pelicans are usually found along the coasts, but gulls and terns do follow the boats far out.

Our leaders for this trip were Steve Hawkins, from San Antonio, and Sheriton Burr, from Corpus Christi.

Sheriton has surely taken more Gulf birding trips than anyone else. He took his first trip with Ray Little, from Portland, and a group from Austin on Oct. 2, 1976. This trip was trip number 21 for Sheriton!

I took my first trip last October. This was trip number three for Sharon Bartels, from Kingsville, and I.

Doug calls these the most expensive birds around because the boat trip is not cheap, of course, and usually there are so few birds to be seen. Especially this trip, there were so few birds because the weather was gorgeous. It seems the better the weather, the fewer pelagic birds there are.

We saw only three noteworthy seabirds — two immature magnificent frigate birds (you can sometimes see them along the coasts) and one masked booby. But, as Sheriton says, "On this trip, the highlight of the trip was seeing the 'old birds' on board." There were plenty of very experienced birders along.

The strategy for the day was to go out to the oil rigs and production platforms where fish and other sea life congregate. This in turn attracts the birds.

The biggest surprise of the day was the impressive list of LAND BIRDS we found on the oil rigs. These were migrating birds, heading for Mexico, Central and South America by crossing the Gulf. They become exhausted so they land on anything they can find to land on.

Included in the list were: three eastern meadowlarks, a scissortail, a curved-billed thrasher, a house wren, and eastern phoebe, two Lincoln's sparrows, a white-winged dove and a mourning dove, a mockingbird and a pyrrhuloxia.

A female common yellowthroat came aboard our boat totally exhausted. It left, but was just too tired to continue on, so it barely made it back to our boat. Charlie Clark, from Rockport, put it into a paper sack so that it could quietly rest and we took it back to land with us. The Robert Turnbulls at Port Aransas have adequate shrub protection in their yard, so Charlie set the little warbler down beside the birdbath and we said our good-byes to it. We hoped it fed and rested long enough this time, before it tried to migrate again.

It's pond maintenance time

AUSTIN — Fall is an opportune time to take a look at your farm pond and consider a few management options which may lead to better fishing next year.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist Joe Toole of Marshall said although most Texas ponds may be suffering from low water levels, this condition may be beneficial from a management standpoint. "If vegetation control, shoreline maintenance or fish eradication is needed, this would be a good time to take those steps," Toole said. "These things are usually easier to do at low water levels, and the costs are generally lower."

Toole noted that shoreline areas may be dredged in older ponds which have suffered from years of siltation and erosion. Increasing shoreline depth is an effective method for preventing excessive growth of aquatic plants.

"Early fall also is a good time to stock channel catfish," Toole added. "However, the pond owner should remember that if his pond already contains adult largemouth bass, only catfish longer than eight inches should be stocked to reduce predation," he said. Otherwise the bass will eat the catfish.

There are a number of sources of information for pond owners. One is your nearest department fishery biologist. The department also offers pond management bulletins which may be obtained by writing 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744, or by calling toll-free 1-800-792-1112.

Pirate battle unfolds Friday

Friday night marks the showdown between the Rockport-Fulton Pirates and the Sinton Pirates for bragging rights as to who the toughest band of Pirates might be. Rockport will travel to Sinton for the contest.

Sinton has been the Cinderella team of District 15-4A for 1982. As they meet Rockport-Fulton Friday night, Sinton has only two losses: an opening game 7-0 loss to mighty Refugio and a narrow 15-13 loss to current district leader Flour Bluff. If a game happened to be based on scores against common opponents, which they are not, the Rockport-Fulton Pirates would be in for a long night.

Rockport-Fulton seems to be just coming to the place where they are finding themselves defensively, so who knows. The Sinton team has rolled up great amounts of yardage against everyone, including more than 300 on the ground and 250 in the air against a good Cuero team this past week. One of the big keys for the Sinton bunch is the expert ball handling by quarterback Mac May. He gave the Rockport team a fit a year ago when a young, inexperienced Sinton team nearly came back to win last year. Joining May are a stable of fine running backs: Julio Chica, Juan Monreal and Chris Zepeda. May has some talented receivers as well.

Rockport, meanwhile, will be trying to get the Walls' Express underway, seeking to break either Dwayne or Trinelle for a few trips to the end zone.

So, batten down the hatches, and get ready for a battle.

Citizen turns down reward

AUSTIN — A concerned citizen whose tip led game wardens to one of the largest illegal fish netting cases of the past six months turned down the $200 reward to which he was entitled under the state's Operation Game Thief program.

The Operation Game Thief Committee met at Texas Parks and Wildlife Department headquarters here last week and authorized payment of $1,400 in rewards to seven individuals whose information led to 36 game and fish law convictions against 24 persons.

The information provided by the unselfish citizen resulted in the arrest and conviction of three men who had been netting fish on Dallas area lakes. The trio pleaded guilty to 26 cases and paid $1,971 in fines and costs.

Another person who called the Operation Game Thief number, 1-800-792-GAME, received a $200 reward for information regarding a trio of poachers who were caught illegally catching catfish with their hands. Their fishing trip cost them $1,484 in fines and costs.

Other Game Thief calls resulted in convictions involving redfish importation violations and various hunting violations such as hunting deer at night, killing wild turkeys out of season and deer tagging violations.

Persons who witness a game or fish law violation may call the statewide toll-free Game Thief number anytime. Anonymity is guaranteed if the caller so desires.

Callers are asked to provide as much information as possible, including description of suspects, vehicle descriptions and license numbers, direction of travel and the like.

The Game Thief Committee meets in Austin twice a year to disburse rewards for flagrant cases. Funding for the program is from donations by individuals and sportsmen's organizations.

New legislation benefits Vietnam vets

Recent legislation now provides additional educational benefits for certain Vietnam-era veterans, said Ted W. Myatt, Director of the Houston Veterans Administration Regional Office.

The Veterans' Health Care, Training and Small Business Loan Act of 1981 extends by an additional two years — through Dec. 31, 1983 — the opportunity for many veterans to complete certain vocational, apprenticeship, on-the-job training or secondary schooling.

To be eligible for the new program, the veteran's delimiting time, normally within 10 years from separation from active military duty, must have run out by last January 1.

Key limitations on the program, noted by Myatt:

• To receive benefits for secondary training beyond his or her delimiting time, the veteran mustn't have a high school diploma or its equivalent.

• To receive benefits for vocational, apprenticeship or other on-the-job training beyond his or her delimiting date, the veteran must be in need of training to achieve a suitable occupational or vocational objective because he or she is unskilled or unemployed and unskilled.

• Training with a vocational objective must be residential and in non-college-degree courses. Benefits for farm cooperative training may be allowed but correspondence and flight training aren't.

• To determine eligibility, interested Vietnam-era veterans (Aug. 5, 1965 through May 7, 1975) should telephone the Houston Veterans Administration Regional Office 664-4664 in the Houston area and toll free 1-800-392-2200 from elsewhere in the state.

Hopes are raised for way to forecast rabies

HOUSTON — Outbreaks of rabies in Texas may eventually be forecast, like the weather, a researcher here has reported.

"There's a very real, quantifiable relationship," George Pool said, between rabies and the specific environmental factors in an area. That relationship could make possible predictions of outbreaks in the future, he said.

His findings show seasonal and geographic patterns of rabies — patterns caused by interrelationships among factors like vegetation, topography and climate — in the six environmental areas that Texas was broken into for the study.

Pool has long suspected that there might be some pattern to rabies. As an employee of the state's program to control the disease in the early 1970s, he met trappers and others who were able to predict when and where there would be problems with rabies. Now, he said, he's confirmed his hunch with scientific evidence.

Pool, a research associate at the Texas Heart Institute, reached his conclusions in his recent master's thesis at The University of Texas School of Public Health at Houston. He analyzed 17 years of Texas Department of Health data: more than 5,000 reports on individual rabid animals (skunks, bats and foxes are the most common ones) that were submitted by doctors and veterinarians from 1962-79.

His study shows, for example, that rabies in skunks is found mainly in an irregular north-south band across the central part of the state, stretching from south of Houston to north of Dallas. Rabies in foxes tends to be concentrated in a large area centered west of Austin and San Antonio, he said.

Seasonally, he said, rabies in bats will peak in the fall while rabies in skunks will peak in the spring, the actual dates depending upon which part of the state you're talking about.

Certain periods of scarcity in the wild seem to favor the appearance of rabies, Pool said. When there's a lack of rainfall, for example, there may be competition for scarce resources, and the disease is apt to spread among competing animals, he said. The breeding season, a time of stress, also tends to correspond with an increase in rabies cases, he said.

He has described rabies patterns so far, however, in only general terms.

"We can say definitely yes, there's a pattern, but we can't say exactly why," Pool noted.

Forecasting rabies outbreaks, he said, is still less certain than weather forecasting. But his findings are a first step, he thinks, in moving toward accurate predictions.

Such predictions could greatly aid rabies control and prevention efforts, Pool said.

"You need to know where to put your resources," he said. "You need to know early." Particularly when dealing with an area the size of Texas.

Pool speaks of his study as a "descriptive study," a base from which to further investigate rabies in Texas. Now that he's shown there is a pattern to the disease, the next step will be to define the pattern more precisely, he said.

"What I hope to do eventually is to be able to predict the chances of a rabies outbreak occurring in an area over a year," he said.

Proposition 3, to exempt farm and ranch machinery from local property taxes.

Proposition 4, to allow the Legislature to authorize four-year terms for governing boards of water and conservation and reclamation districts.

Proposition 6, to increase the interest rate charged on general obligation bonds from six percent to a "weighted average annual 12 percent." It affects only bonds authorized by the Constitution such as water quality enhancement and water conservation bonds, park development bonds and student loan bonds.

Local people employed

Sundays and most holidays except Christmas and Thanksgiving.

He pledged, "We'll employ as many local people as we can," including in management positions in the store, and estimated the store here in Rockport will employ between 35 and 40 full-time people.

"We hope you'll consider us part of the town," he told those at the meeting. "Ours is a family organization — it's a growing organization and we intend to keep it that way."

Seaman, who was present at the reception and who first announced plans for development of the $5 million shopping center last March, said one reason for the delay in activity on the center was the time it took to work out arrangements with Stanley.

Other prospective tenants of the center "wanted the anchor of a good, big grocery store before they would sign leases," Seaman said, "and Mr. Stanley's a hard man to catch."

He added a "very bad" money market has also delayed activity on the center but assured those at the reception the problems in getting financing have been worked out.

"Within two to three weeks, we hope to clear the land" at the shopping center site, Seaman said. A date for groundbreaking is expected to be set within the next week.

Bob Bernardy whose Live Oak Real Estate has been handling local leasing for the shopping center said his company has on file letters of intent from about 12 other stores.

Business zoning extended

He also revealed that the zoning committee had made a concession to those property owners zoned business along their Hwy. 35 frontage, allowing the general business district to be extended from 125 to 150 feet.

Belaire said that Fulton City Attorney Allen Lee had advised that section 4-2.02 of the ordinance, dealing with special permits for existing mobile home and travel trailer parks, be deleted from the ordinance since its constitutionality is questionable. If allowed to stand, the park owners would be the only group within the city to be granted automatic special use permits to continue operations under present conditions and allow upgrading, expanding rebuilding and remodeling.

In order to present a legal compromise, Belaire said that Lee suggested changing the 50 percent or more destruction and damage requirement for not allowing rebuilding to 95 percent destruction of property. Less than 95 percent destruction would allow rebuilding of property to the previous state. Belaire explained that this would set the policy for the board of adjustment, and suggested incorporating the 95 percent figure into the ordinance.

Although the ordinance does not provide for the establishment of a planning and zoning commission, it does provide for a board of adjustment consisting of five members appointed by the town council and one administrative officer who would be in charge of day-to-day enforcement. Lee said that the ordinance may have to be revised in order to provide for the establishment of the planning and zoning commission.

The planning and zoning commission, the board of adjustment and the administrative officer would all have final say in zoning matters, according to zoning committee member Jean Jenkins. If the administrative bodies make a positive decision recommending change in a specific case, the town council may then decide whether or not to approve its decision. If the administrative bodies make a negative recommendation in a specific case, the decision is not appealable to the Fulton town council. The ordinance is somewhat ambiguous in its language regarding these points, an item which Lee said may need further clarification.

Belaire said that after consulting with Rockport City Administrator Herman Johnson, it is felt that considering the size of Fulton and its anticipated activity level, enforcement of the ordinance should be self-supporting. Permit fees will go to cover enforcement costs. The possibility of sharing an administrative officer with the city of Rockport was one possibility the council might look into, Belaire said.

Copies of the proposed zoning ordinance are available for public inspection at Fulton's town hall.

Also on the agenda for the Nov. 9 regular meeting is George Griffith representing Seachase condominiums. Griffith is unhappy with the provision which allows 150 feet of frontage along Hwy. 35 to be used for general business. Griffith said that Seachase developers plan to put in a strip shopping center along Hwy. 35 and that 150 feet is nowhere near what would be required to do so. Griffith estimates that Seachase will need at least 400 feet in order to complete the work.

Fulton town council members also discussed putting blinds over the windows in the town hall, writing the postmaster general about the possibility of getting city mail delivery, and surveys made by Aransas County Surveyor T. E. Griffith to correct the city map.

unit of the NWRS." The terms of the proposal would provide for a cooperative agreement lasting a period of 100 years from the date of commencement.

In addition, existing facilities and buildings deemed unnecessary for administration of the land by the FWS and the TPWD will be removed from the island. Cultural resources, including historically and archeologically significant areas will be protected under the proposal. The EIS also predicts economic benefits "from increased spending associated with any increase in recreational use and from refuge revenue sharing funds on the 19,000 acres," to affect the local area.

TPWD-planned land management practices include controlled grazing, controlled burning and discing. In addition, approximately 30 sheltered picnic tables will be placed along a two-mile stretch of managed beach and dock area. Oil and gas exploration is estimated at one to two drilling sites per year.

Endangered species will be given highest priority in proposed management of the area. No management or public use activities are planned in areas which would disturb whooping crane populations.

Impact on wetland areas is examined in terms of hunting and other recreational uses, oil and gas exploration and livestock grazing.Increased traffic from boats and airboats is expected, as is any overall increase in hunting. TPWD does not anticipate any great problems in association with increased recreational use of the area. Similarly, grazing and oil and gas exploration are not expected to significantly affect the state of the wetlands.

Although visitor use is expected to have some effect on barrier island dune stability, overall impact on the dunes does not appear to be significant. TPWD anticipates an overall increase from 11,000 visitors per year to 20,000 visitors per year during the next 10 to 15 years.

The integrated management plan provides for the land to be divided into two areas: Zone A, which would be administered as a wildlife management area, and Zone B, which would be administered as a wildlife conservation and park area.

No causeway, highway, bridge, ferry, public airport or other means of transportation access will be allowed on the public lands. Nor will admission fees be charged for entrance onto publicly-owned island land.

qualifying families are then given to Toys for Kids and these parents are invited, on a designated day, to come select toys for their youngsters.

Last year, the program provided toys for children of 205 Aransas County families. This year, McConnell said, although Toys for Kids doesn't yet know how many families will participate in the program, they're expecting an increase because of the recession and local unemployment.

In addition to cash donations — which may also be mailed to Toys for Kids, P. O. Box 1375, Rockport — Toys for Kids will also accept donations of new toys. They ask that no used toys be donated, except for used dolls or stuffed animals which are being repaired by Bea Shelton, owner of the Doll House in Fulton.

Dolls or stuffed animals may be taken to Jerry's Hair Designs. New toys may be donated by contacting Mrs. McConnell at 729-1684 or Frances Iles, 729-0189. McConnell added that several businesses in Aransas County have indicated that, in lieu of an employee gift exchange this year, they plan to donate cash or the equivalent in new toys to Toys for Kids.

Toys for Kids is asking that all donations be made by Dec. 3 in order to meet the campaign's distribution date of Dec. 18.
