Wichita Falls May Go After 1926 Texas Press Association Convention

WILL EDWARDS MAKES ADDRESS TO GATHERING

Recent Candidate For Lieutenant Governor Eulogizes Bralley

PROGRAM VARIED

President of Texas Press Association Makes Address to Editors

Suggestion that Wichita Falls has an excellent chance to get the 1926 convention of the Texas Press Association was made by its secretary, Sam P. Harben of Richardson, last night at a dinner tendered by the daily press of Wichita Falls to the Northwest Texas Press association in convention here.

Mr. Harben asserted that the delegates had such a good time in west Texas when they went to Amarillo this spring that he believed if this city would send a strong delegation to the convention at Tyler next spring the editors could easily be persuaded to come here for their next meeting.

Will Edwards Speaks.

The dinner was served at the Wichita club, attended by many delegates and several local guests, and short talks were made by local and visiting delegates.

"My one regret is that my friends worked so hard for one so unworthy—and then were disappointed."

That was the message brought the Northwest Texas Press association here yesterday by Will C. Edwards of Denton, recently defeated for lieutenant governor of Texas in the runoff primary, in his address on "Campaign Reminiscences, or the Confessions of a Candidate."

Mr. Edwards recalled humorous experiences during the campaign and told how he had gained a greater knowledge of his native state by his travels through 160 counties in the election campaign. He thanked the editors for their support, and said no man ever had more loyal friends than these.

Deplores Bralley's Death

By request he mentioned the death of Dr. F. M. Bralley, president of the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, last Saturday, asserting Denton had lost a most valuable citizen, the college had suffered a severe blow and state education had received an irreparable loss.

A. H. Luker, editor of the Grapeland Messenger and president of the Texas Press Association also spoke at the Friday afternoon session, explaining "Why Every Texas Publisher Should be a Member of the Texas Press Association." He mentioned better business methods fastened by the association, value of friendships forged at the meeting, and exchange of ideas which helped to do away with provincialism in thought.

Invited to Tyler

Henry Edwards, editor of the Troup Banner, also mentioned the value of the Texas Press association to its members, and invited the members of the Northwest Texas Press association to attend the convention to be held in Tyler next spring.

Following the afternoon session, members of the association were guests of the Chamber of Commerce at the baseball game between Wichita Falls and Fort Worth

The editors were welcomed to Wichita Falls Friday morning by Judge

'MAYFIELD NEXT,' HE ASSERTS AS MARVIN RESIGNS

Wichita County Democratic Club Holds Celebration Of Recent Victory

BOOST NATL. TICKET

Hot Fight at Austin Convention Predicted By Local Leaders

As a result of statements made by Zeke Marvin and the action of Tom Love in resigning as national committeeman, the Wichita County Democratic club held a rally here last night.

The meeting was presided over by Jos. B. Hatchitt, president of the club, who began his brief address by declaring that Zeke Marvin had said in a proclamation that the klan was not dead. Mr. Hatchitt said he was not there to pour salt on any lacerations but if need be he would meet "lash with lash" and the democrats of Texas would "reinact Goliad and San Jacinto."

Mayfield Next

Mr. Hatchitt said there has never been so much confusion in Texas as at present and touching on the action of Tom Love declared that he had only got out "one foot ahead of the boot" and when the state convention is over at "Austin East Mayfield would not have a square inch of hide on his body."

Mr. Hatchitt then introduced C. H. Walsh, who originally came from Indiana to make Texas his home. Like his father and grandfather and other generations behind them, he is a democrat, he said. He scored the republican party and the class that believes in radicalism, declaring no man had any right to wreck vengeance on any other man, but should seek relief from the chief executive, the legislative body or the judicial body.

"Some People Tongue Tied"

"Today we have men who are afraid to speak," he declared. Davis and Bryan are democrats tried and true."

He urged the support of the democratic ticket from constable to president of the United States. He said in the city of Wichita Falls which faith built he believed the people will elect men who will enforce the law.

Judge W. M. Moore was the next speaker and started out by saying that the ku klux klan had done a lot for the democrats by getting the democrats out of the rut and putting them to work. He urged that the men of the klan be permitted to come back into the democratic ranks and that they "use their sheets to make cotton sacks out of."

Seeks Special Train

Jim Harlow, who is trying to get up a sufficient number of local democrats to provide a special train to Austin to the state convention, expressed the opinion that the required 125 people would be secured at a price of $27.50 for the round trip.

R. Y. Cummings opened his address by saying that Zeke Marvin said to Love, "Tom, we have been through a—of a storm."

"There is no danger for the democrats in the November election. Zeke Marvin and Tom Love are in the political grave yard," said Mr. Cummings, who expressed the opinion that the "foolish fight" should be stopped. "I am not opposed to preachers taking a part in politics," said the speaker, "every man has a right to take part in everything of public interest."

Predicts Great Convention

"I want the men of Wichita Falls and Wichita county to assist in saving the state," he said, declaring that the coming state democratic convention to be held at Austin would be remembered as the most historical in the history of Texas."

TEMPLE, Texas, Aug. 29.—Dead, and deserving to be buried and forgotten—that's what "Ma" Ferguson, democratic nominee for governor of Texas, thinks about the prohibition question, which persists in coming up as one of the issues in Texas state office campaigns.

But not so dead does she consider the question of the many violations of the prohibition laws in Texas but she indicated to the Austin American, in a brief discussion of the liquor question on which this article, the fourth of a series obtained in an interview at her home, is based, that she intends to see that illicit liquor dispensers suffer a set back.

"What about the prohibition question?" was the first question on the liquor subject the Austin American propounded to her.

QUERY FOR JIM

Editor Record News:

In this morning's issue of your paper, front page, column seven, headings, "Farmer Jim Repudiates Klan Promise of Ma Ferguson."

This was evidently published originally by reliable people, and they say the reporter has always been unquestioned in the past.

The question every democrat of Texas wants to know is, has a person got to get Jim's permission to talk to the governor, or the governor-elect of dear old Texas? We want to know it now, as November has not yet passed by.

Yours truly,

A Democrat.

"I think it is as dead as heck," was her answer to the reporter. This was but a repetition of her pre-nomination attitude maintained in face of the change of the Robertson forces that she was being supported by those who desired to bring Texas back into the anti-Sahara column.

"What is your attitude of the enforcement of the liquor laws?" was the next question put to her.

"I am for enforcing them to the limit," was her reply. Mrs. Ferguson seemed willing to discuss these

Ferguson Turns Philosopher, He Says In Urging Friends to Forget Past And Apologize If They Are Wrong

TEMPLE, Tex., Aug. 29.—Thousands of people came to "Ma" Ferguson's "party" here tonight, celebrating her successful campaign for the democratic gubernatorial nomination. The town was literally full of people in a jollification which culminated tonight with a speech by former Governor James Ferguson and his wife, Miriam Ferguson, the nominee.

Mr. Ferguson, who delivered the principal speech, pleaded to the people to "forget it," and for harmony in state politics. The crowd cheered any thrust the speaker made at the ku klux klan, against which organization Mrs. Ferguson made her campaign.

Reference was made by the two speakers to the resignation of Thomas B. Love, democratic national committeeman from Texas. The crowd cheered when State Senator C F. Richards declared "one man has been side-tracked and I am glad that he side-tracked himself before we side-tracked him."

In Pickle Either Way

As Ferguson rose to his feet, he said: "Some say I will, and some say I won't. Some say I am a danger, and should not be permitted in Austin, and others say that I should by all means help my wife. It impresses me that regardless of what I do I am between the devil and the deep blue sea."

"I heard that Tom Love had deserted the ranks of the democratic party," Mr. Ferguson continued," and that he wanted to support somebody else for governor. I told my best friend, Owsley (A. C. Owsley, Sr. of Denton), about it, and he replied that the man had spoken too late.

"If you have any animosity in this campaign, and if I have had any animosity, they both should be forgotten. If I was wrong I am ready to offer due apology; you should do the same."

After Mr. Ferguson has made reference to masking by the ku klux klan, a man in the crowd cried approval.

Wants to Forget It

"This is not the time to 'pour it on' anybody," Mr. Ferguson replied. "If I didn't help the one selected to make a success, then I would be a traitor—one who would continue the

VAUDEVILLE IN REVIVAL HERE

Packed House Applauds Bill Opening Season After Long Lapse

"I arrested a man in Wichita Falls today for impersonating an officer."

"Well is that so. What did he do?"

"He took a handful of peanuts out of a peanut stand."

"I started to arrest two women for fighting in front of the postoffice today."

"Well why didn't you."

"They said they got a box."

Yes, vaudeville is back and that's a sample of the patter and funny talk that a packed house at the Palace theatre welcomed back to the city that faith built last night. And the encores that the wise crowd received indicated beyond a doubt that local theatre goers were glad to receive back an old friend.

Old Timers Welcomed Back.

And more than that, two old timers in vaudeville well known here were selected to headline the bill that revived Interstate vaudeville in this city after a lapse of several years. Just as they did on August 25 four years ago in opening the season at the Wichita theatre, Frank and Joe Wilson, known as "The American Yodlers" and appearing in the roles of

"I sincerely hope," he said "there will be some one who will take the necessary steps to see that our executive committee is required to promulgate rules that will serve to separate the sheep from the goats in the klan and that the sheep be kept within the democratic fold and the goats cast out with the republicans, socialists and what-nots who constitute the opposition to our party in this the greatest democratic state."

Prince Smiles at Mention of Love

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Edward Prince of Wales arrived today.

Sights he hoped to see undisturbed, he dashed while newspaper correspondents and reception committees thronged about him, on greeting on his second visit to the United States. Three army airplanes hovered over the liner Berengaria and thousands of persons ashore and on small boats around the ship strained their eyes for a sight of the distinguished young Englishman.

Aboard Private Yacht.

Soon he climbed down a ladder to a private yacht, which took him to Glen Cove, on the north shore of Long Island, whence he journeyed by motor to the home of James L. Burden at Saysset. He will depart early tomorrow morning for Washington, to be the guest of President Coolidge at luncheon, returning to Saysset where he will stay for about two weeks.

Despite his having traveled virtually around the world, and having spoken at diplomatic dinners in many capitals, the prince appeared to be deeply embarrassed when he found 75 newspaper men awaiting him on the starboard deck.

Meets the Reporters.

He shook hands with a few of the reporters and in response to one of two formal questions he glanced about as if bewildered, fell in his pockets, then turned to Major Oscar N. Solbert, his American aide, saying, "I've got a written statement somewhere. Where is it?"

Before the prepared statement was found more queries came from the group and the prince finally spoke a few warm, hesitating, and once or twice with a slight stammer.

"I'm happy to be in America" he said. "I like your country very much."

He lowered his bashful face and added, "The fact that I come over here for a holiday is the best I can say in that direction."

It was a young woman journalist who pushed forward and put the inevitable question as to the prince's possible marriage. He smiled tolerantly and said, no he was not engaged. Then came this one:

"Would you marry an American girl if you fell in love with one?" The prince smiled again but did not reply.

He explained that he had crossed the sea for a holiday and expressed the hope that the newspaper men would make matters as easy for him as possible. Then he gave out his written statement, saying he was glad to renew American acquaintances, predicting that the polo match between the British and American teams, which he will attend, would be "the finest exhibition of a great game which the world has produced."

No Royal Pomp.

There was no royal pomp about the arrival of the prince. At his own request there were no military or naval salutes. The only display of this sort was the a private escort, which circled around the Berengaria as she steamed into the bay. From one of the planes an address of welcome written by Gaston Chevrier, South American Hitlan were released, addressed to the prince, while the prince himself, in the liner bearing the prince and the royal standard, the king's nominal chief.

When the giant liner rounded the point occupied by the Statue of Liberty, she was met by the United States federal health inspection, customs and mail vessels. There also was a yacht carrying Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, J. Butler Wright, acting assistant secretary of state, Major Solbert and Sir Ashley Sparks, managing director of the Cunard steamship line, and a tug with reporters from many cities.

As the health inspectors' craft neared for the liner, a number of women and children, families of the federal officers at quarantine, drew forth their cameras and began to look about for the distinguished guest. He was seen at that moment on the bridge of the liner with Captain Lascelle, his secretary, a brother of Viscount Lascelle, the husband of Princess Mary. But he was barely visible at that height, even from the tugs lying alongside the ship.

Closes Quarters.

The ship carrying the prince had some difficulty pulling away from the Berengaria and closely shaved a coast guard cutter. The prince, smiling and smoking a cigarette, stood on the bow and posed for a moment for photographers in a nearby tug.

His prepared statement said: "Some of my American friends have very kindly given me the opportunity of breaking my holiday trip to my Canadian ranch by a short stay in Long Island so that I may see the international polo matches," the prince's statement said. "There is no need for me to say how glad I was to accept of them this kind offer."

"It will give me a chance as a holiday maker both to renew some of the many delightful recollections of America which I got on my official visit of 1919 and to watch what I believe will be the finest exhibition of a great game which the world can produce today.

"Whichever side wins, I am quite certain we shall have some splendid polo and from what I saw of the Olympic contests between American and British athletes in Paris, the other day, I am certain that the games will be marked by that friendly sportsmanship and good feeling which is such a happy feature of all these contests between our two nations. I am looking forward to my fortnight on Long Island more than I can say."

FRATERNALISM CHIEF'S THEME AT LODGE MEET

President Talks About Having Faith in Fellow Man To Congress Envoys

NO POLITICS HEARD

Does Not Refer by Name To Any Fraternal Order Or Secret Society

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Fraternalism as a "strong reliance of ordered government, according to public law," was eulogized today by President Coolidge in an address to a delegation representing the National Fraternal congress.

Mr. Coolidge, in his address, delivered from the south portico of the White House, did not mention by name any fraternal order or secret society, nor did he touch directly on politics or campaign issues.

"The ranks of nearly all fraternal organizations," Mr. Coolidge said, "are based upon religion. No true fraternity can rest on any other conception. It is for these reasons that they are supporters to public law, able advocates of the cause of righteousness and religion and effective promoters of peace and good will among the nations of the earth."

"The president characterized the spirit of brotherhood as the "fundamental principle of our country." As a result, he said, there is a "very great deal more of equality in America than is yet appreciated." He named the elemental virtues necessary to success as including industry, loyalty, faith and fellowship.

New Cause of Rejoicing, Says Jim of Love

By The Associated Press

TEMPLE, Texas, Aug. 29.—James E. Ferguson, husband of Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, democratic nominee for governor, today said the people of Texas "have cause for additional rejoicing in not having to look at or listen to Tom Love, who resigned yesterday as Texas democratic national committeeman, because he could not support Mrs. Ferguson. Ferguson's comment was concerning Love's statement made when he resigned as national committeeman.

"This is the second wall of Tom Love," Ferguson said, "when I have had him in mortal political conflict, in 1918 I had it out with him in San Antonio and put him out of the national committee placed then. He lied and showed he was not a good loser. Now in 1924, since he could not nominate McAdoo and since he was promptly repudiated by national democracy, as I said he would be, and since he has become convinced that the reign of him and all other klan politicians has been ended by the voice of the people, he simply has got out of the burning house to escape the wrath of the people. I think the people have cause for additional rejoicing in not having to look at him or listen to him any more."

Hurricane of Severe Intensity Strikes Virgin

By The Associated Press.

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Aug. 29.—A severe hurricane with a 100-mile wind struck the Virgin Islands last night and this morning. Trees were uprooted, crops and small vegetation demolished and houses wrecked. There were no fatalities reported, but many of the poorer residents are said to have suffered.

High Winds Take Toll of Derricks; Parrish-White Districts Hit Hard

The storm and high winds which visited this section Thursday evening are reported to have done more damage to oil field equipment and derricks than other like visitation in over a year. While extreme losses were confined to one or two less favored districts there was hardly a portion of Archer and Wichita counties that did not show tracks of the storm yesterday morning. It was impossible to arrive at an accurate estimate of the derricks blown over and other losses last night, but from reports from various part of the county yesterday the number of derricks toppled should reach at least 75 and perhaps 100.

The only loss from lightning reported was in the Swastika field where the Shamrock Oil company has lately erected a 55,000-barrel crude storage tank. Lightning struck the top of the tank and caved it in, and, although the tank held over 40,000 barrels of crude oil, there was no fire.

In the district recently opened by the Magnolia and Carter completions on the Parrish and White land six derricks in one group were thrown over. Roy I. Carter lost the derrick on his No. E-1, the hole almost bailed out and ready for completion. The No. E-2, offsetting the Magnolia Parrish producer to the north was also toppled, while the Kentucky Oil corporation lost both of their derricks here. One had a string of 6 5-8 in triple lengths inside which fell on the rig and is reported to have done a great amount of damage. Tex-O-Kan lost their derrick off of their drilling well while E. W. Carter lost a derrick off his test in the northeast corner of the Parrish land.

The further to the south the Atlantic Oil Producing company lost three derricks, Wirt Franklin, nine and Murchison and Fain several in that group. In the Riner Bailey district the Empire lost five, with the total here said to run to about twenty more.

Small buildings and outhouses all over the country are reported leveled by the wind, and several amusing incidents are quoted in connection with its caprices. So far as can be ascertained no one was injured although several narrow escapes are reported.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Two divergent views are held in Wall street on the ultimate effect of Germany's rehabilitation on American business. It is generally conceded that, for a time at least, it will stimulate American business through the heavy purchases here of raw materials, particularly cotton, copper, silver and other metals. One group of observers believes, however, that Germany, by reason of lower production costs will be able to compete successfully with American manufactured articles in other countries.

Fahy's Confederates Soon To Be Taken Into Custody, Officials Announce

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—At least two other persons whose arrests will take place shortly are nivolved in evidence obtained by postal inspectors who arrested William Fahy, Chicago inspector, now in the Woodstock, Ill., jail in default of $50,000 bond on a warrant charging him with complicity in the $2,000,000 Rondout, Ills., mail robbery, according to C. H. Claraban, chief inspector of New York.

He asserted the two suspects are not federal officers. Chief Claraban reiterated his charge that Fahy was "in the conspiracy to rob the mail train from the very first."

Investigators planned to further question William J. Roberts, deputy United States marshal, held in technical custody in his office for his alleged part in assisting Mrs. Fahy to take a package of papers from her home. She is being sought. Rush D. Simmons, chief postal inspector, who came here from Washington to take charge of the case, said Roberts' answers so far have been evasive.

While Fahy was being transferred from the Geneva, Ill., jail yesterday he repeated his assertions that he was the victim of a conspiracy prompted by professional jealousy.

The region mentioned is infested with bandits. The dispatches said the military authorities had immediately ordered troops to pursue the attackers.

Unexpended State Funds To Total Half Million

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Aug. 29.—S. L. Staples, state treasurer, today was preparing to receive approximately a half million dollars, unexpended appropriations for the fiscal year ending August 31 which by law are returned to the general revenue fund if not spent or contracted for.

The process, however, merely means that the sum will be sufficient to meet the August pay roll and that the treasury will again be on the verge of a deficiency basis.

Negro, In Open, Is Posse's Easy Mark

By The Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 29.—Search for Johnny Williams, 16, negro slayer of Deputy Sheriff Tom Gentry, ended abruptly yesterday when after bloodhounds had disclosed his hiding place in a lumber yard in Kurtswood, La., the negro essayed to meet the posse in the open.

The negro emerged from his hiding place with a pistol in his hand and started shooting at his pursuers, but immediately he was greeted with a fusillade of shot and the negro fell dead his body riddled with bullets.

The discovering and killing of the negro came a few hours after Deputy Sheriff Gentry died of his wounds in an Alexandria, La., hospital.

ENGLAND WILL URGE NEW PLAN

Tripartite Arbitration Pact With Britain, France And Germany Suggested

GENEVA, Aug. 29.—Having delivered a fatal blow to the famous pact of mutual assistance and guarantees, elaborated by the disarmament section of the league of nations, the British government, it is expected, will come to Geneva for the fifth assembly of the league of nations with some practical suggestions which can serve as a substitute for the pact.

While nothing official has reached the secretariat of the league, the impression prevails that Premier MacDonald may favor on the floor of the assembly an extension of the policy of arbitration as the most feasible and most effective means of preventing war.

Some experts here say they would not be surprised if Mr. MacDonald favored a tripartite arbitration arrangement among England, Germany and France as a practical proof of England's desire for peace, or if he came forth announcement that England now is ready to accept the protocol clause of the world court of justice concerning compulsory arbitration of disputes.

Whatever England maw do, it is believed certain that this assembly will witness a great debate on the whole problem of disarmament.

BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER

MAINE.

Maine is the only American state that will hold an election for state officers and members of congress before the coming of the presidential election in November. This election will be held on September 8. Two years ago the republicans elected their governor by 28,000 majority and four years ago Warren G. Harding's majority was almost too great to count.

Maine is rock-rooted republican and yet before the coming of the war between the states in 1860 Maine was rock-rooted in its democracy. Then a large majority of its voters turned to the party of Lincoln and have been rock-rooted republicans ever since.

Senator Ralph Brewster is the republican nominee for governor. He is the klan candidate. He was defeated for the nomination by Senator Frank Farrington but a recount was ordered and 300 ballots were discarded by the republican committee. Farrington was anti-klan. This recount gave the nomination to Brewster.

Richard Pattangall is the democratic nominee. He is the man who started the anti-klan fireworks at the Madison Square Garden convention. Now they are having a merry time way down in Maine. More than 200 republican campaigners from outside states have been ordered to Maine by the managers of the Coolidge and Dawes campaign.

General Dawes has spoken there. He denounced the klan and then modified his language by saying that respect for law and order may have caused many first class citizens to affiliate with an organization which believed it had a right to take the law into its own hands. This the general deprecated, but he did not swear once and his language was very mild for a Hell and Maria American.

There is no reason why the republicans should be alarmed way down in Maine. It requires an explosion of a ton of dynamite to move a Maine republican or a Texas democrat. Regardless of all this Coolidge's managers appears to be a bit frightened. They hope for a sweeping majority.

But there is something new under the sun. It has come to pass that the democrats of Texas have nominated a woman for governor and anything is likely to happen in the good old land of the temperamental and the home of the brave. Maine usually goes hell bent for the republicans. It may be expected to go hell bent this year but not by the tremendous majority that it gave to Harding nd Coolidge in 1920.

In Maine they vote as their fathers voted; in Maine they worship the God that their fathers worshipped; in Maine they drink hard apple cider 100 proof and thank God they are prohibitionists. In Maine they think the democratic party is a menace, that its leaders are unfit to govern and that the civil war instead of the world war came to an end a few short years ago.

Maine yankees are splendid people. They walk in the footsteps of their fathers. They still believe that the world is politically flat and that if the angel Gabriel should sound his trumpet the average democrat would find it difficult to establish relationship with the Lord on high and very easy to join the band of that fallen angel who rules in the infernal regions. It is a matter of education largely.

If there is a break away this year then Maine as well as Texas will furnish something new under the sun for the sedate editorial writers and the glib political correspondents to write about.

That Mayor Bayliss E. Harris of Galveston, president of the Galveston Cotton Exchange, is urging farmers to hold their cotton for a fair return; that he says the crop should be worth at least 25 cents and more likely 30 cents to the producer.

That Galveston has storage room and banking facilities to care for at least 1,000,000 bales of cotton in the event that the farmers will join the holding movement and follow the rules of sane marketing.

That George White says the democrats have 290 votes in the electoral college that now have democratic governors and that they elected seven senators last year in states north of the Mason and Dixon line—Delaware, Michigan, Montana, Utah, Washington and West Virginia.

That the followers of Sen. La Follette in Georgia have organized, placed an electoral ticket in the field and hope that the former followers of the late Senator Tom Watson will join the La Follette political parade.

Patent Office May Auction Models of Old Inventions

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON.—What to do with all the old-time models, now in the custody of the patent office, is awaiting solution, and efforts will be made at the coming session of congress to clarify the situation.

The demand for space in the patent office ousted the models from their exhibition cases at the end of the last century, but the government has had to continue paying space rental for them. A proposal now being considered is to have a commission appointed to sort out the models that might prove of historical interest, and perhaps sell the others at public auction.

The general requirement of having the inventor submit a model with his patent application was discontinued about 1880. Today the law directs that the commissioner of patents in his discretion may require a model furnished.

National Capitol Given Summer Overhauling

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON. — When congress reconvenes in December, a number of alterations will be found in the capitol and its environs.

An improved method of ventilating the house and senate chambers will be ready for use; the heating system will be revamped; boilers for supplying heat, light and power to the historic building will be newly-installed, and final touches put on the new fire-protection apparatus.

The old English tile in the main corridor and basement floor of the house that has done service for over half a century, worn by the feet of visitors innumerable, is being replaced by American tile of white and black marble design. Numerous committee rooms and offices also are being painted and refurnished.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

PREFERENCES.

I would like to fight a lion in his lair,
I would like to look hm sternly in the eyes—
And to send a bullet through him then and there,
And to watch the gloating natives skin my prize.
But I'd rather read a novel in the shade,
With a cooling drink my throat to irrigate,
Which is why, perhaps, I've here made a raid
On a den of raging lions—up to date.

I would like to strip my person nude and stark,
Ano to swim beneath the ocean with a knife—
Seeking battle with a great ferocious shark,
And to beat him in a fierce and bitter strife,
But I'd rather play around a well kept course,
Where there's still a chance a thrill or two to get,
Without using any violence or force,
Which is why I've never fought a shark—as yet.

I would like to take a caravan and seek
What so often has been sought without avail—
To ascend Mt. Everest's lofty topmost peak
And upon its crest my country's flag to nail.
But I'd rather fish for flounders from a boat—
In a kindly and a comfortable lime,
Which is why I've no intention to devote
Any toil to climbing mountains—for a time.

I'd be overjoyed if I could see my name,
Through some very great exertion on my part,
Printed big upon the pinnacle of fame
Such a sight would bring real pleasure to my heart.
But it's easier to write a piece like htis,
Than to hit the stride of Edgar Allen Poe.
So, though fame is said to be the highest bliss
It is bliss that I shall never, never know!

The span of life is very brief.

At most it includes but seventy or eighty years of activity; as the psalmist said, "The days of man are three sore years and ten, yet, if by reason of strength they be four score years, yet is it labor and sorrow."

It is characteristic of men that they live as though they were eternal. They plan institutions as though they would exist forever and lend themselves, fictitiously, a span of life which they artificially create.

Yet, after all, the difference between the most aged and the infant who dies new-born, is not great. About all that can be done here is to set our house in order, if there be anything for which to set it in order, and if there be no future life, the most of us will be disappointed.

The other day Mr. Alvey August Adee died at the age of eighty-three, the oldest American diplomat.

And yet those who approach this age feel, more and more, the rapidity with which time elapses. In youth, time seems to be eternal and the motto of youth is that tomorrow "will be as this day and much more abundant."

"But, as we increase in age and feel the years slipping from us, there is borne in upon us a sense of the frailty and uncertainty of our days.

We are made to feel, more and more, the brevity of life.

The continuity of the human race depends very largely upon custom and the hold upon tradition. If one were to come back to France, for instance, after being away for a hundred years he would not find the same people at all yet they would be Frenchmen.

Everyone has felt, at some time or other, how strange it is that all the people he sees about him, in one hundred years not one will continue, yet the earth will be as full as ever.

It is the human race that goes on from year to year and not the individual life. One by one we drop out yet the race continues.

It is the genus in which nature seems to be most interested. While she is careless of the single instance, she is only careful of the type. What happens to the single soul we do not know but there is persistent belief in its continuance in another life. But what happens to the race we do know. Barring untoward accidents it will go on forever.

In our thinging we indentify ourselves with the age of Jesus and of Julius Cesmar, forgetting that the people of that time have long ago disappeared and that the present is a new group.

But the disappearance of the individuals has been so gradual, and there has been such a lapping over of one generation to the next that we retain our consciousness of the integrity of humanity.

Russian Children May Choose Their Own Names

By The Associated Press.

MOSCOW. — Persons seeking to change their names in Russia find much less difficulty in doing so than in other European countries. The only procedure necessary is to file a written request with the Soviet registrar of vital statistics. In the old days one had to secure permission of the emperor if he wanted to change his name.

Under a recent amendment to existing Soviet law even children are permitted to adopt other names. Consent of their parents is the only requirement. It is a common thing for several children of the same parents to bear different names.

On account of the gigantic political and social upheaval in Russia, the ostracism of those identified with the old czarist regime, and the desire of former political prisoners to disguise their past, applications for change of name are much more frequent in Russia than in any other country.

The tallest race of people in the world are Patagonians who inhabit the horn of South America. They average five feet ten and one-half inches. The shortest people are the Laplanders, who average only seventeen-tenths of an inch over five feet

WATER

How Water is Used to Measure Heat.

To measure the length, breadth and thickness of an object we have units called feet and inches. For measuring weight we use a unit called the pound. For liquids the unit of measurement is the gallon and for other measurements we use other units. In the case of heat the units of measure are called the calorie and the British Thearmal Unit.

Heat is a more or less intangible thing and much more difficult to measure than a gallon of water or a foot board so water is used as medium by which it can be measured.

The calorie is defined as the amount of heat it takes to raise one gram of water one degree on the Centigrade thermometer scale.

The British thermal unit is the amount of heat it takes to raise one gram of water one degree on the Fahrenheit thermometer scale.

There are other units for measuring heat in use in this country and more widely used than any other.

The names of these two units and what they mean should be kept in mind by the reader as we will have occasion to use them in discussing the performance of water in relation to heat.

The marvelous properties of water in retaining heat is a matter of the greatest benefit to the irrigationists and it is a matter that he should have information about.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

VIRGO.

The planetary aspects of today are somewhat enervating and depressing, leading to a feeling of dissatisfaction or nervous anxiety. It is advisable to call on your reserve force of optimism and cheerfulness in order to dispel the gloom that the vibrations indicate. Owing to the pessimistic influences, it is inadvisable to make any important decision, or attempt anything that bears a significant character. Attend only to ordinary affairs, and avoid, as far as possible, all risks.

A child born today will be weak during its infancy, but with proper nutrition, and wholesome environment will attain a good strong physical maturity. Its character will be irresolute; its disposition attractive; its mentality far above the average. This child must have its character strengthened, and it must be taught to say "no" and to mean it; this will in no way detract from its amiability. It will develop artistic tastes, which should be encouraged, rather than belittled.

If today is your birthday, you possess many sterling characteristics, but stultify yourself, as well as your efforts, by being an absolute slave to the duties that demand your attention. It has been very well said that "the person that works fifty-two weeks in the year does not do his or her best in any one week of the year."

In order to re-create your energies, your physical strength or your mental powers, and your zest for work, you must recreate. Real recreation quickens aspiration. Whatever dissipates physical or mental power obviously never recreates.

If you want to accomplish the largest amount of work of which you are capable, you must maintain the balance of your mental, nervous, and physical powers. The right kind of recreation is almost as essential to your success as the right kind of education.

Recreation should not mean rusting; recreation should mean renewing, your vital forces, getting a fresh outlook and a fresh hold of life, imbibing fresh knowledge, reflecting the well springs of joy.

Recreation is the salt which gives life its savor.

Successful people born on this date are: George F. Root, composer, ("Battle Cry of Freedom," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, etc."); Hazen S. British Locomotives Reach Buenos Aires

By The Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES. — Seventeen full-sized locomotives, completely assembled, have arrived here from England on one ship, said to be the largest shipment of its kind ever made for so long a distance.

The motor ship Beldis which brought them was especially designed by the builders for transporting locomotives so that they can be put on the rails immediately on their arrival all ready for service. The locomotives, weighing 134 tons each, were delivered to the Argentine Southern railway.

A Lost Lady

BY WILLA CATHER

After Ivy had gone on into the smoker, Niel sat looking out at the windings of the Sweet Water and playing with his idea. The Old West had been settled by dreamers, great-hearted adventurers who were unpractical to the point of magnificence; a courteous brotherhood, strong in attack but weak in defense, who could conquer but could not hold. Now all the vast territory they had won was to be at the mercy of men like Ivy Peters, who had never dared anything, never risked anything.

The space, the color, the princely carelessness of the pioneer they would destroy and cut up into profitable bits, as the match factory splinters the primeval forest. All the way from the Missouri to the mountains this generation of shrewd young men trained to petty economies by hard times, would do exactly what Ivy Peters had done when he drained the Forrester marsh.

The next afternoon Niel found Captain Forrester in the bushy little plot he called his rose garden, seated in a stout hickory chair that could be left out in all weather, his two canes beside him. His attention was fixed upon a red block of Colorado sandstone, set on a granite boulder in the middle of the gravel space around which the roses grew.

He showed Niel this was a sun-dial, and explained it with great pride. Last summer, he said, he sat out here a great deal, with a square board mounted on a post, and marked the length of the shadows by his watch. His friend, Cyrus Dalzell, on one of his visits, took this board away, had a diagram exactly copied on sandstone and sent it to him, with the column-like boulder that formed its base.

"I think it's likely Mr. Dalzell hunted around among the mountains a good many mornings before he found a natural formation like that," said the captain. "A pillar, such as they had in Bible times. It's from the Garden of the Gods. Mr. Dalzell has his summer home up there."

The captain sat with the soles of his boots together, his legs bowed out. Everything about him seemed to have grown heavier and weaker. His face was fatter and smoother; as if the features were running into each other, as when a wax face melts in the heat. An old Panama hat, burned yellow by the sun, shaded his eyes.

His brown hands lay on his knees, the fingers well apart, nerveless. His moustache was the same straw color: Neil remarked to him that it had grown no grayer. The captain touched his cheek with his palm. "Mrs. Forrester shaved me for a while. She did it very nicely, but I didn't like to have her do it. Now I use one of these safety razors. I can manage, if I take my time. The barber comes comes over once a week. Mrs. Forrester is expecting you, Niel. She's down in the grove. She goes down there to rest in the hammock."

Niel went around the house to the gate that gave into the grove. From the top of the hill he could see the hammock slung between two cottonwoods in the low glade at the farther end where he had fallen the time he broke his arm. The slender white figure was still and as he hurried across the grass he saw that a white garden hat lay over her face. He approached quietly and was just wondering if she were asleep when he heahrd a soft, delighted laugh.

CHAPTER XV

Niel stepped forward and caught her suspended figure, hammock and all, in his arms. How light and alive she was! Like a bird caught in a net. If only he could rescue her and carry her off like this—off the earth of sad, inevitable periods, away from age, weariness, adverse fortune!

She showed no impatience to be released, but lay laughing up at him with that gleam of something elegantly wild, something fantastic and tantalizing — seemingly so artless, really the most finished artifice! She put her hand under his chin as if he were still a boy

"And how handsome he's grown! Isn't the old judge proud of you! He called me up last night and began sputtering. 'It's only fair to warn you, ma'am, that I've a very handsome boy over here,' as if I hadn't known you would [illegible]. And now you're a man [illegible] have seen the world! Well, what have you found in it?"

"Nothing so nice as you Mrs. Forrester."

"Nonsense! You have sweethearts?"

"Perhaps."

"Are they pretty?"

"Why they? Isn't one enough?"

"One is too many. I want you to have half a dozen—and still save the best for us! One would take everything. If you had her, you would not have come home at all. I wonder if you know how we've looked for you?" She took his hand and turned a seal ring about on his little finger absently. "Every night for weeks, when the lights of the train come swinging in down below the meadows, I've said to myself, 'Niel is coming home; there's that to look forward to.'" She caught herself as she always did when she found that she was telling too much, and finished in a playful tone. "So, you see, you mean a great deal to all of us. Did you find Mr. Forrester?"

"Oh, yes! I had to stop and look at his sun dial."

She raised herself on her elbow and lowered her voice. "Niel, can you understand it? He isn't childish, as some people say, but he will sit and watch that thing hour after hour. How can anybody like to see time visibly devoured? We are all used to seeing clocks go round, but why does he want to see that shadow creep on that stone? Has he changed much? No? I'm glad you feel so. Now tell me about the Adamses and what George is like.

Niel dropped on the turf and sat with his back against a tree trunk, answering her rapid questions and watching her while he talked. Of course, she was older. In the brilliant sun of the afternoon one saw that her skin was no longer like white lilacs—it had the ivory tint of gardenias that have just begun to fade. The coil of blue-black hair seemed more than ever too heavy for her head. There were lines—something strained about the corners of her mouth that used not to be there. But the astonishing thing was how these changes could vanish in a moment, be utterly wiped out in a flash of personality, and one forget everything about her except herself.

"And tell me, Niel, do women really smoke after dinner now with the men, nice women? I shouldn't like it. It's all very well for actresses, but women can't be attractive if they do everything that men do."

"I think just now it's the fashion for women to make themselves comfortable before anything else."

Mrs. Forrester glanced at him as if he had said something shocking. "Ah, that's just it! The two things don't go together. Athletics and going to college and smoking after dinner—Do you like it? Don't men like women to be different from themselves? They used to."

Niel laughed. Yes; that was certainly the idea of Mrs. Forrester's generation.

Uncle Judge says you don't come to see him any more as you used to, Mrs. Forrester. He misses it."

"My dear boy, I haven't been over to the town for six weeks. I'm always too tired. We have no horse now, and when I do go I have to walk.

Boils

THERE is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S.S.S. builds blood-power, it builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-blood. Fighting-blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Scheff, 557 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it."

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

MENINGITIS IS RAGING JAPAN; 1776 ARE DEAD

23 New Fatalities Are Listed From Kobe and One At Yokohoma

By The Associated Press.

TOKIO, Aug. 29.—Total deaths from an epidemic of meningitis now sweeping Japan reached 1776 today when 23 fatalities were listed at Kobe and one at Yokohoma. In the past 24 hours 876 deaths from the disease have been reported, principally from Shikoku state.

WICHITA FALLS PHYSICIAN COMMENTS ON EPIDEMIC

Commenting last night on the spread of meningitis in Japan, Dr. Allen Terrell, Wichita Falls physician who was city health officer in Dallas in 1912, when the meningitis epidemic swept over the United States, said:

Meningitis is a disease of the membrane of the brain. That part of the brain becomes infected and is hard to combat with. One peculiar fact about meningitis is that it comes as a rule in an epidemic form. Contrary to belief this disease is not so awfully contagious. It is only slightly more contagious than pneumonia.

"It is very unlikely that the epidemic that is now prevalent in Japan will spread to the United States due to the distance between the two countries."

questions which the Austin American pointed out to her as of interest in view of the apparent centainty that she would be elected to the governorship at the general election in November, barring unforseen circumstances, "Farmer Jim" her husband and ex-governor of Texas, was not present during the interview and was not questioned as to his attitude for the reason that Mrs. Ferguson informed the Austin American earlier in the interview that she and nat "Farmer Jim" would be governor of Texas.

Guided by Advice.

"Of course, I'll be guided by his advice for he has had experience as governor and there are many things which I have not studied as he has," she coginued. That ended this portion of the interview and the next question presented to her for an answer: "Have you been informed yet whether upon assuming the office as governor you will have the power to pardon "Farmer Jim" of the penalty put on him by his impeachment in the senate?" "No I have not. I had not thought about that," was her answer. "Well if you found that you had the power you would give him a pardon wouldn't you," she then was asked. With eyes twinkling in the good natured fashion that becomes her natural ease and a smile playing about her lips she again replied, "I hadn't thought of it," and that ended that.

"Do you contemplate appointing any women to major posts at the Texas capitol?" she was then asked. "I will appoint the person I can find for each post, regardless of whether it is a man or woman," she answered.

Women or Men.

"The matter of sex will not matter then, you'll name a woman just as readily if you find she is better fitted for the post?" "Yes." Then the Austin American called to Mrs. Ferguson's attention the report that Thomas D. Barton, adjutant general of the Texas national guard, would be named to hold this post under regime as governor.

In reply Mrs. Ferguson expressed appreciation for the support Barton had given her in the second primary race after his own defeat for the gubernatorial nomination in the first primary.

"I haven't thought about whom I would appoint adjutant general," she then answered directly to the question.

Then to get away from political questions for a minute, the reporter asked "Ma" Ferguson if she favored having an inaugural ball should she be elected governor. "I don't know whether I do or not, I have not had time to think about it so far.

Dawes Reparation Agreement Concluded in London Finally Approved

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—The German reichstag today accepted the Dawes reparation plan agreement concluded at the recent London international conference by adopting by a vote of 314 to 127 the necessary two-thirds majority, the railway bill to put into effect the provisions of the London agreement.

The German nationalists whose open opposition to the agreement and whose attacks on it during the debate yesterday and today had made the results of the voting problematical, voted in favor of the railway bill, but they voted against the banking bill another of the Dawes measures, which nevertheless was adopted by a vote of 245 to 172, a two-thirds vote being unnecessary on this bill.

CHICAGO MAY TRADE COTTON

Members of Board of Trade Will Determine Matter On September 8

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Members of the Chicago board of trade will vote September 8 on whether Chicago shall become at cotton market. The rules were posted for the ballot today.

A cotton futures market on the floor of the exchange market, leaders believe, would not conflict with the New Orleans and New York exchanges, but would stimulate interest in cotton and aid in developing a broader market.

Under the new rules now being published the proposed cotton futures market would function under the cotton futures act.

A majority vote would adopt the new rules which have already received the approval of the bureau of economics, department of agriculture and of counsel for the exchange.

SPEAKERSHIP TO DIVIDE ON KLAN

Satterwhite and Irwin Chief Contenders for Next Legislative Post

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Aug. 28.—The race for speaker of the 39th legislature next January will be between Representative T. K. Irwin of Dallas and Representative Lee Satterwhite of Amarillo, according to announcements for the office so far.

It will split, as all other political questions are likely to be divided, on the klan issue, with prospects that the majority membership of the house as to klan or anti-klan sentiment will carry the speakership and the committee appointments.

Mr. Irwin was reelected to the legislature from Dallas, along with a full klan ticket from the city of Dallas proper. Though Mrs. Edith Williams, only woman member of the last house, was defeated by John E. Davis, former member, who lives at Mesquite, Dallas county.

Representative Satterwhite was a tentative candidate two years ago, but gave way to R. E. Seagler of Palestine, and was Seagler's principal Lieutenant in winning the speakership over Judge Lewis T. Carpenter, another Dallas member. Satterwhite was chairman of the powerful appropriations committee.

Mr. Satterwhite is elected from the district including Potter county, which gave Mrs. Ferguson a majority in the second primary.

Lines are already being drawn for the speakership contest, it is said. Both candidates have been at least tentatively in the field since the close of the special sessions last year, and both are determined to win, at the hands of their fellow-members, the honor of being chosen presiding officer of the house.

Cats Edge Spuds In Final 1924 Home Tilt

FELINES SLUG FUSSELL FROM DOME AND GRAB GAME, 7-5

Wachtel Holds Tannermen to Seven Safe Swats—Locker Poles One Over With Callaghan On

Fort Worth again defeated Wichita Falls in the second game of the series and the last of the 1924 home schedule, 7 to 5.

The Catbludgeoners pounded Lefty Fussell hard, and then got to Logan Drake for a pair of counters in the late innings, while the veteran Paul Wachtel, cat saliva merchant, produced world's of stuff.

The contest was close and fairly exciting up to the final round with the Panthers ever one run in the lead, but in danger of being caught up with.

Wachtel hit a homer in the second frame with one aboard. Locker poled the sphere to the same section in the fifth with a runner on base.

The two clubs will move to Fort Worth today to finish the five-game series.

Cats Start in Second.

There was quietness along both fronts in the opening round, but the Panther forces took the offensive in the second and bludgeoned Fussell for two singles, a double, and a home run, tabulating a trio of counters. Palmer led the attack with a one-baser to right. Edington bobbed out, catcher to first. Tavener aviated to center. Bischof then crammed the pellet down the third base line for a pair of cushions. Palmer checked in on the blow. Wachtel followed up with a four-sack swat over the left center boards. Calvo singled to starboard, but Foss bounded out to second for the third putout.

Spuds Tabulate.

The Spudders scored two in the latter portion of the second. After Wachtel struck out Turgeon he whiffed Golvin, but Bischoff let the third strike get through him, and the batter hoofed it safely to first. White caught one of Wachtel's slants in the rear and thereby was given a berth at the initial station. A wild pitch advanced the runners. Metzler smashed a double down the third base line, and the gents on the paths moved in to the tabulation counter. Smith bounded out to first unassisted, and Fussell split the ozone on his third strike.

Fitzgerald opened the domestic third with a triple to right, but expired at the look-in corner. The Spudder punch was on a vacation. Callaghan grounded out to short. Locker struck out, and Turgeon hoisted to Calvo in center.

Two Each in Fifth.

The Cats gathered in a pair in the fifth and erased Fussell from the landscape. Freddy heaved high and widely to Sears and Kraft making 'em both. Palmer choked the cushions with a bingle to right, and Edington scored Sears and Kraft on one-baser to port. Fussell departed, and Drake stepped into the gap. Tavener beat out a perfect bunt down third base way, again loading the bases, and there was still none away. Bischoff popped to short and Wachtel rolled into a double killing, White to Turgeon to Golvin.

The homelings narrowed the margin before the inning was over when Locker slashed one to the home run zone sector that Wachtel explored in the second round. Callaghan was on base at the time.

Fort Worth came through for two more in the seventh. With one down, Edington was safe on roller to first when Drake who took the throw failed to touch the bag. Tavener drew a pass. The runners advanced on a passed ball. Bischoff struck out Wachtel singled to left, scoring both Edington and Tavener. Calvo singled between first and second, but Foss flied out to left.

Double to left by Drake followed with single to right by Fitzgerald tabulated a marker for the Spudders in the seventh.

There was little activity the remainder of the way.

Monte Mixes With McFarland In 12-Rounder Tonight

Rich Squares Off With Grisham in Ten-Round Fight

Don Wofford's padded mitt performers, rained out Thursday night, will square off in the American Legion arena this evening at 8:15. Thirty-two rounds of boxing, the card calls for.

In the main event, Wildcat Monte of Amarillo, popular little featherweight, is slated to mix it with Frankie McFarland, classy Boston feather. The bout is billed as a 12-rounder.

Harmon Kid Rich of Wichita Falls and Sailor Grisham, also of this city, are scheduled to step ten rounds. The boys are welterweights.

In the semi-windup, Tabby Levine, Wichita Falls feather, will meet Swede Wright of Devol, Okla.

The curtain raiser will produce Red Railey of Wichita Falls and Spider Owens of Oklahoma City, middleweights in a four-rounder.

There will be an added attraction probably.

All of the boxers have declared themselves to be in fine fettle and no worse for the delay of two days.

There will be a knockout in the Rich-Grisham go, that is if the declarations of both boxers mean anything. Each scrapper expects to put over the dream poke on the other.

Monte, as usual, hopes to slug his way to victory. His task is admitted as an easy one for the Boston scrapper is possibly the cleverest mittster who has appeared in a Wichita Falls ring this year. McFarland showed the goods in his recent match here with Tex Ray of Fort Worth whom he obliterated in short order. Since that night, McFarland has shown boxing enthusiasts all kinds of stuff during his daily workouts at the Legion hall.

NATS AGAIN STOP YANKS

Johnson Hurls Eight Tight Innings, Then Hurts Hand

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The Washington club increased its lead in the American league race here today winning the second of the series with the New York Yankees, 5 to 1. The veteran Walter Johnson, after a great exhibition of pitching, had to retire in the eighth inning, when he injured his right hand in stopping a hot liner from Schang's bat. He struck out seven men, getting Meusel three times.

New York had seven men left on bases in the second, third and fourth innings. In the fourth inning the Yanks filled the bases with none out but failed to score. Bush also played well but Washington made the best of its six hits. Goslin, yesterday's batting star, got a home run, and two singles today. He scored three runs and drove in a fourth. During the two games Goslin has driven out seven hits for 19 bases.

Market Moderate But Steady Prices Prevail at Yards

FORT WORTH, Aug. 29.—Today was a day of moderate cattle and calf receipts, and exceptionally meager hog and sheep supplies, generally steady prices prevailing throughout all divisions. The estimate called for 2,500 head of cattle, 1,800 calves, 300 hogs and 800 sheep.

Steers, yearlings, bulls and calves remained quotably unchanged, and cows sold mostly 10 to 15 cents higher. Beef steers sold around $4.00 to $5.50.

Canners sold mostly at $1.50 to $1.85, with cutters going at $2

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 29.—The cotton market started out today with a moderate decline which during the early part of the morning carried prices down $1.50 a bale mainly owing to weaker Liverpool cables than due. Later prices rallied quite sharply on covering by shorts advancing $3.50 a bale from the low and nearly $2.00 over the close of yesterday.

After the weather map had been posted showing little rain in the cotton region, and the official forecast had shown no immediate prospect for a change in the weather the market rallied on the great number of deterioration reports which reached traders from practically all parts of the belt.

WOOL
By The Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The demand for wool continues fairly steady from the mills, although in lessened volume as compared with a few weeks ago. Dealers, however, have been keeping the market fairly active among themselves and altogether prices are very strong and gradually rising week by week. The few wools held in the west are held on a level fully up to eastern markets or even a bit higher.

"The season in the goods markets appears to be developing cautiously and rather slowly, although there is good reason to believe that the larger mills have secured a fair average in advance of the formal openings.

"Mohair market is dull and featureless with prices only steady."

The Commercial Bulletin will publish the following quotations:

Market Letters

R. L. Floweree & Co. yesterday received the following cotton letters:

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 29.—Cotton slipped about 30 points at the start today on disappointing Liverpool and reports of further easing in the basis in the Atlantics and Texas.

Later information from Texas was to the effect that the basis had declined only 15 points over night insofar as actual trading was concerned.

A steady stream of deterioation reports came to market during the day and weevils were reported found in numbers as far north as Birmingham. These upset sellers and seemed to stimulate buying. News that Germany had accepted the London agreement was a hopeful influence. The storm in the West Indies was also a factor.

Values rose steadily after the middle of the session and sold 70 above the early low and 40 over the previous finals.

Shorts appear more or less disturbed and more covering and higher prices are likely tomorrow owing to possibility that the storm may become a menace to the Atlantics over the holidays.

FENNER & BEANE.
New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Contracts have been scarce all day and the trading here has been almost entirely professional. Chicago interests were credited with buying about 25,000 bales and one local professional was said to have bought a large amount in the late afternoon. Steady streams of deterioration reports from the south made sellers cautious. As long as these continue, pressure on the market will likely be light.

Still believing in a good crop would not care to be long of cotton with a weakening spot basis and indifferent spot demand.

The field executive office has been vacant for several months but none has been elected during the summer months due to the slack period in the scout work during the warm part of the summer.

STORES TO CLOSE ON LABOR DAY

Parade Will be Lacking This Year, Local Leaders Announce

There will be no float parades in Wichita Falls next Monday, Labor day, according to officials of the trade union. All the stores in the city will be closed throughout the day and members of the 33 trade unions and their families will assemble at Scotland park and enjoy a picnic and basket lunch. Due to the fact that many of the merchants in the city are busy arranging for the fall shopping, and it was decided to cancel the parade celebration this fall.

At a recent meeting of the trade unions of the city it was voted to leave the matter in the hands of the retail merchants' association as to whether the stores should be closed Monday. The retail merchants' association in a recent meeting voted to close all the stores in the city on the mentioned date but not to hold the parade. In as much as the matter was left purely in the hands of the merchants, members of the union expressed their appreciation to the merchants for their decision to close all the stores and in this way allow the employes a holiday.

PHILOSOPHER

animosities of this eventful campaign.

"I am glad the Ferguson family has no enemies to punish; no vengeance to wreak. Some times you would not blame me for hating some of the men who opposed me. But I want to say that by the help of God I have trampled these deeds of passion underground and have no animosities against anyone, even the ku klux klan.

"Time is fleeting, and we all will come to the grave, and if we have encouraged malice here, it will be charged against us over yonder, and then our lives will have been lived in vain.

Becomes Philosopher

"Instead of life of hatred and ill-will, I have become a philosopher and believe that if I try to punish any one, I am depriving my time from my country, for hatred is useless.

"When my wife is running the governor's office and mansion, I am going to be around to help bring in the wood and water."

He then introduced Mrs. Ferguson, who said:

"Regardless of past political differences, I want it undegstood taht I shall go into office with no vengeance to wreak and no enemies to punish. I am at peace with the world and since the people have vindicated the Ferguson name, I have but one great ambition, and that is to make myself worthy of the confidence of the greatest people on earth—the people of Texas."

Others to take part in the celebration were: Barry Miller, Dallas, democratic nominee for lieutenant governor; C. F. Richards, state senator from Caldwell, and A. C. Owsley, Sr., of Denton, father of Colonel Alvin C. Owsley, former national commander of the American Legion.

A venire of 100 men from which to select the trial jury that will determine the fate of Will Parker, set for trial September 17, has been ordered by Jude Martin. A venire for the trial of W. L. VAUDEVILLE the Lieutenant and the Cop, stopped the show at the sixth act and were recalled to the stage numerous times. Their yodling was likable, their jokes were funny and their impersonations of a xylophone, a jazz band and a calliope were a scream.

A far different act but one sharing headline honors was that of Ina Hayward and Lynn Cantor in their colorful pageantry and songs. Both possess beautiful voices of sustained power, and with Mischa's orchestra and well prepared scenic and electrical effects, made an act pleasureable to see and hear.

Other Acts Meritorious.

The remainder of the bill was meritorious. Mortimer MacRae and Gertrude Clegg presented a bicycle act displaying skill and daring seldom seen on the vaudeville stage, while their clowning was funny.

Ray and Edna Tracy in "Piano Eccentricities" presented a bill enjoyed thoroughly by most of the house, while Eddie Allen and Doris Canfield held up the show for several encores with their chatter and nonsense. "Gimme the Makin's" was the title of their skit.

"The Girl Next Door" presented Eddie Pardo and Gloria Archer in a whimsical little number which moved from the ridiculous at he opening to the sentimental at the close.

Grand Opening Delayed.

Grand opening of the Wichita theatre, which will be the permanent home of Interstate vaudeville here, was postponed but it was announced last night that Manager Day hoped to have everything in readiness for opening of the newly decorated theatre next Friday night.

The present bill remains here today for a matinee this afternoon and two performances tonight. Program for next week's grand opening number is announced as follows:

Will Morris in "Jest Wheels."
Nancy Decker—The Joy Girl of Syncopation.
Bensee and Baird—Songiflage.
Joe Bennett in "Black Moments."

The composer, Anatol Friedland, presents himself any newly discovered talent in a novelty revuette with eight beautiful girls.
