Bell credit

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. Friday began mailing $87.5 million in one-time credits to its customers under a controversial settlement approved by the Public Utility Commission.

Opponents of the settlement said the PUC should have ordered rate reductions on monthly bills totaling much more than the credits.

Beginning with bills mailed Friday, residential customers will be credited from $9.53 to $10.11, the telephone company said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced Friday it will pull all diplomats out of its besieged embassy in Kuwait once American hostages leave the occupied sheikdom. The top-ranking U.S. envoy in Baghdad asked Iraq to waive exit formalities to speed hostage departures.

The embassy in Kuwait City, cut off from food and water for months, has been kept staffed in defiance of Iraqi orders that all embassies there shut down. And it will be considered officially open even after the eight diplomats leave, said State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler.

"We will expect Iraq to safeguard the premises until the legitimate government of Kuwait and our embassy staff return," she said.

U.S. officials denied the decision was a concession to Iraqi demands that all embassies in Kuwait close. "This is a withdrawal in body, not in spirit," said one State Department official. "Our people there are humans, not symbols. We're doing what's best for them."

On Friday, immediately after Iraq's National Assembly approved the departure of more than 8,000 foreigners from Iraq and Kuwait, U.S. envoy Joseph Wilson asked that Americans be allowed to start leaving immediately on available commercial flights, Ms. Tutwiler said.

"He urged the government of Iraq to dispense with exit visa and passport formalities, so that people do not encounter needless bureaucratic delays," she said.

But Iraqi Foreign Ministry officials told him they will only respond to the Rebel flag flies on at Lee

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

School board members ratified the Lee High student body vote to keep the school's Confederate symbols late Friday.

Although the LHS battle flag and "Dixie" fight song have been the objects of student protests and heated debates in recent days, the Midland Independent School District Board voted to retain the spirit symbols at 11:30 p.m.

The vote followed an open forum of Midlanders speaking passionately for and against the flag for 4½ hours. Hundreds of citizens filled the lower level of Midland High School's auditorium and more than 60 took the microphone to voice their opinions.

The flag, which was made an official symbol by the school district in 1966, did not need approval from the board.

Trustee James Fuller moved to "veto the student recommendation and create "a flag of neutrality" that would serve as a "rallying point for all students and negate all of the negativity precipitated by this issue."

Fuller said having students vote on the items "made it seem as if the board had passed the buck. The buck should stop here."

His statement met with resounding applause from both factions of the audience.

Only Fuller and Adela Marmolejo voted in favor of Fuller's motion. All other board members were opposed, which means the 1966 board decision holds and the Rebel flag stays.

Fuller and Ms. Marmolejo were the only board members opposing the mascot General Wins-Alot, the school emblem and the song "Dixie." The school alma mater and motto were approved unanimously.

Following the vote, Fuller said, "We have made a mistake here tonight."

Other board members acknowledged that the issue was not resolved.

Fuller agreed. "Unfortunately, we will expend our energies re-hashing this issue in the future."

Despite the high level of emotion in the auditorium, speakers were allowed to voice their opinions uninterrupted. Ken Morrison, school board president, thanked the audience on several occasions for maintaining a dignified atmosphere.

Morrison announced at the onset that any speaker heckled by the audience would have his or her time extended.

LHS Principal Jack Fryar reported the results of the recent student body vote to keep school symbols by a 72 percent majority.

The first speaker was the Rev. William Palmer, who said persons opposed to the flag were speaking up now because they were afraid to do so when attending LHS. "I'm no longer a student. Now, I'm seeing the same hurt I felt reflected on the faces of our children."

Several LHS graduates spoke of associating LHS's Rebel flag and song "Dixie" with fond memories of their high school years, while others spoke of protesting silently by sitting while "Dixie" was played and refusing to salute the Rebel flag.

Barbra Grafa, an LHS graduate, complained to the school board that the open forum was scheduled during the same time as high school games and a drama production. "It's a slap in the face," she said. She accused board trustees of operating a "bait-and-switch routine. The more confused people are, the less there will be to oppose you. Is it any wonder you can't

Bentsen opens door to '92 presidential bid

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Texas Democrat who ran unsuccessfully for vice president in 1988, appeared to be opening the door a little wider Friday for a presidential bid in 1992, refusing to rule out a run for the Democratic top spot in two years.

Bentsen rekindled speculation here last month when he commented that a presidential race seemed more inviting in the wake of the Republicans' lackluster showing in the midterm elections and President Bush's slippage in most polls.

Bentsen

"The 1992 Democratic presidential nomination is a lot more attractive than it was eight months ago," Bentsen said after the election.

On Friday, Bentsen used similar language at a meeting with reporters. He said of a 1992 bid: "It looks a lot more attractive, certainly."

Bentsen also plans to deliver a series of economic talks next month when Congress reconvenes, another common tool used by potential presidential aspirants.

'Casa' community center dedicates its new addition

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

Casa de Amigos dedicated its new addition Friday with balloons, Christmas cookies and high hopes for another 25 years of growth.

As well-wishers crowded into the central foyer, Jim Henry, past president of Casa's board of directors, used visual aids to demonstrate the community center's success.

"Here's where we were 25 years ago," Henry said, waving a tiny cardboard model that represented Casa's 500-square-foot first building. "And here's where we are now."-He compared the small model with the center's 20,000-square-foot building, which serves more than 5,000 people a year.

In 1978, Casa was proud of its new 4,000-square-foot building at 1101 E. Garden Lane. But by 1984, it was ready for a 3,000-square-foot expansion. This most recent addition adds 13,000 square feet to the building, Henry said.

"By extrapolating that, we'll be at 100,000 square feet 25 years from now," he said.

"And we can grow a Casa on the south-

Plans for CAF ceremonies in motion

Staff Report

Although it's still a year away, tentative plans for four days of celebration surrounding the formal dedication of the Confederate Air Force's new Midland headquarters on Dec.7, 1991, have been made, according to Joanne Langston and Bobby Holt, co-chairs of the CAF Grand Opening Cabinet.

"In the CAF opening, we have a unique, once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to showcase not only the Confederate Air Force but also Midland, Odessa and the whole Permian Basin on a national and international basis," said Ms. Langston.

Holt said he has issued an invitation to President Bush for the opening ceremony and "is encouraged that he will attend if possible."

Invitations also are being extended to other national and international dignitaries in the government, entertainment, aircraft industry and armed services fields, as well as to U.S. and overseas World War II reunion groups.

'Bobby Holt said he has issued an invitation to President Bush and 'is encouraged that he will attend if possible.'

"We are planning on as many as 3,000 to 5,000 guests from outside the Permian Basin for the opening," Holt said.

Ms. Langston said some estimates indicated that between 30,000 and 50,000 visitors would be coming.

"This will be unbelievable," she said. "We already have some international reservations."

Preliminary plans include the grand opening ceremony on Dec. 7, 1991, and a display of WWII vintage aircraft.

The opening coincides with the 50th anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

A two-day symposium on "Pearl Harbor and Isolationism" will open the four-day event, followed by a CAF preview reception and a performance by the Midland-Odessa Symphony highlighting artists and music of the WWII era.

Other events will include a "USO dance" with noted band and entertainment personalities of the war years, free public performances of the Air Force Glenn Miller Orchestra, tours of the new American Airpower Heritage Museum and a two-day open house of the CAF facilities.

Area museums, theaters and galleries will be featuring coordinated exhibits and performances.

get a school bond issue to pass?"

Ms. Grafa said Citizens for Positive Change were "misnamed and misguided."

"Just whose rights are we violating here?" she asked. "I'm tired of Confederate bashing just because it's in vogue."

Cliff Sauer advocated "putting the Confederate flag in a museum where it belongs with pieces of the Berlin Wall and other symbols of oppression." Sauer, who said he was speaking as a concerned father, said, "Our children are our future and they are being misinformed."

Sauer, quoting words from the song "Dixie" said, "We sing 'Lookaway, Lookaway,' and that's what we're doing here folks, looking away." Sauer challenged Rebel flag proponents to "walk in a black person's shoes for 200 years."

While several flag proponents accused members of the black community as being outside agitators, Alma Marshall said, "You can't classify me as an outside agitator. I have lived in Midland for 33 years and I have devoted many of those years of my life to being an educator."

"stirred up controversy" because of "racism in your own hearts." Darren said "99 percent of Confederate soldiers did not own slaves. They were fighting for their land and heritage."

Nancy Gotcher said a good percentage of LHS athletes are black, "and they are the ones who most often have to be confronted with these symbols. Let's volunteer to take down the flag and quit singing 'Dixie.' It's the right thing to do."

"I'm willing to struggle as long as it takes to change this," said Sandra Walter," an LHS graduate.

"We're asking for your support," said Rosalind Burke, addressing the board. "If we don't get it, we know the channels to go through."

BENTSEN: Speculation rekindled

(From 1A)

The senator, who will be 71 in 1992, said Friday that he has no timetable for making up his mind. He would not answer a question about whether he could rule out a 1992 bid.

"I have some very good friends who are talking to me (about it), but I have no plans to run," he said, repeating a standard refrain.

At the breakfast session, Bentsen also urged the Bush adminstration to be cautious in its efforts to dislodge Iraq from Kuwait, saying the United States should "give the sanctions more time."

Bentsen said Iraq's announcement Thursday that all foreign hostages will be released by Christmas proves that the U.S. military presence in Saudi Arabia "has had some influence" on Iraq.

But, Bentsen said, "we ought to give the sanctions more time to work. I think there's less risk involved in that. . . . This is not a test of manhood. It's a test of judgment."

Asked if there is justification for war if peaceful means fail to dislodge Iraqi strongman Saddam Hussein from Kuwait, Bentsen said, "Yes, there certainly is."

Bentsen also criticized Saudi Arabia and Japan for not contributing more money to the international force arrayed against Iraq in Saudi Arabia.

"There ought to be more burden-sharing," said Bentsen when asked if Americans might be facing a new tax to help pay for Operation Desert Shield.

Turning to domestic policy, Bentsen, who chairs the Senate's tax-writing Finance Committee, said, "I don't see any major new initiative (for 1991) because of the budget" and the nation's economic slowdown.

"We are in a recession, of course," he said. "The administration doesn't like the word. I think we have a recession that hopefully will not last beyond a year."

side and in Odessa and other Texas cities and New Mexico and California — we'll be a thousand points of light Casas.

"If we could multiply this by 1,000, think of the good we could do for the nation."

Casa director Lael Cordes-Pitts and board chairman Enrique Farias thanked the organizations that made the center's work possible: Joe and Guy Mabee, the J.E. and L.E. Mabee Foundation, the Abell-Hanger Foundation, the United Way, local churches, community donations and an endowment started by Mary Hinkle.

After Mayor Carroll Thomas proclaimed this week "Casa de Amigos Week" and declared the center "the crown jewel of Midland," Nancy Jordan, chairwoman of the addition's architecture committee, ripped a paper cover away from the foyer wall to reveal a plaque commemorating the dedication.

"We're all proud Casas here to serve those who need it so much," Thomas said.

"Next, we work on the gym and the playground," Ms. Cordes-Pitts said.

EMBASSY: Envoy asks for action on hostages

(From 1A)

U.S. requests today, she said. They gave no reason, she said, but other officials noted that Friday is Islam's sabbath and government offices are closed.

Tutwiler said the State Department was arranging for Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz's visit, probably on Dec. 17. But a date for his meeting with Bush won't be set until Iraq sets the date for a subsequent meeting between Secretary of State James Baker and President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad, she said. She declined to explain why the administration was setting such a condition.

The United States proposed flying all the Americans out on planes chartered from Iraqi Airlines or from other companies it has used before, she said.

The main task of the diplomats in Kuwait, led by Ambassador Nathaniel Howell, was to keep in touch with Americans and work for their safe release, Ms. Tutwiler said. Once that mission is accomplished, and all Americans who wish to leave Kuwait do so, "the embassy will temporarily not be staffed because we would then have no business to do with the Iraqi occupation forces."

The diplomats will remain accredited to the Kuwaiti government exiled in Saudi Arabia.

Two British diplomats have also been holding out at their own embassy in Kuwait.

The Foreign Office in London said the two British diplomats would stay in Kuwait, regardless of the U.S. withdrawal.

President Bush has repeatedly expressed anger at the treatment of the U.S. diplomats, saying it violated international norms of diplomatic behavior.

They have been subsisting on meager rations, with their water and electricity cut off, and prevented by Iraqi troops from leaving the compound.

The United Nations Security Council adopted a resolution several weeks ago calling for the two embassies to be provided with food. But the world body was unable to make arrangements for restocking the two missions.

Houston chief to be mother for third time

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Police Chief Elizabeth M. Watson says the birth of her third child shouldn't take her away from the job for very long.

Mrs. Watson, the nation's first female police chief of a major city, said she plans to work up to the day of the birth, expected sometime next week. She then will take about six weeks maternity leave.

Assistant Police Chief Frank E. Yorek will take over as acting head of the department until Mrs. Watson returns to duty.

Mrs. Watson acknowledged that having a new baby would make things more difficult for her husband, who is a police sergeant, and their two other children.

"I won't deny that," she said. "But the only way I would consider leaving this position is if I thought I was not functioning well at this capacity. I made a commitment. I'm in it for the long haul."

Train derails

Wells said the DPS was notified of the accident shortly after 11 a.m.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

Stolen property

Staff reports

ODESSA — Three juveniles and an adult were arrested Friday afternoon in possession of stolen property shortly after a residential burglary, police officials said.

The arrests occurred in the vicinity of the 500 block of Avenue B about 12:45 p.m. after officers on patrol stopped to speak with four suspicious youngsters.

As the officers were interviewing the men, a woman ran up and said she had just been burglarized. At the same time the woman noticed the youngsters had some of her property and advised officers.

The suspects remained in custody Friday, and the adult, a 24-year-old Odessa man, was awaiting arraignment.

Foiled burglary

An alert neighbor helped interrupt a burglary in progress Friday morning, according to police reports.

John Tracy Moorer of Odessa and Willy Bell Jr., no address available, remained in jail Friday on charges of attempted burglary in connection with the incident. Bond was set at $10,000 for each suspect by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

According to reports, a neighbor spotted two men enter the backyard of a residence in the 4600 block of Anetta Drive about 9:35 a.m. and attempt to break a window apparently to gain entry. The witness then called police.

When officers arrived at the scene, the suspects were still at the scene and a chase ensued.

Moorer was arrested in the 4600 block of Anetta Drive and Bell was apprehended in the 4700 block of Kiowa Drive.

Cocaine bust

AMARILLO (AP) — Authorities have charged a pair of North Texas men in connection with the seizure of more than 770 pounds of cocaine.

Ricardo Rios-Munoz, 29, and Daniel Garza White, 21, both of Borger, are charged with conspiring to possess the cocaine, which was transported to Texas in a sting operation.

Rios and White, who are brothers-in-law, received the van and were arrested when they began unloading the cocaine, officials said.

About 500 more pounds of cocaine was seized in Los Angeles, FBI spokesman Don Ramsey said.

Lucas to be tried for 4 slayings in Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas, who once claimed he killed 600 people but later recanted his confessions, was extradited Friday to Florida to stand trial in four slayings.

Lucas, 54, came within a few days of execution in Texas before a stay was granted Nov. 29 in the 1979 slaying of an unidentified woman known as "orange socks," the only clothing she was wearing when she was found.

Lucas will be held in the Walton County Jail temporarily but would eventually be moved to a more secure state prison, said Dennis Williamson, special agent for the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

Lucas was indicted in May 1989 in the slayings of four people in Holmes, Jackson and Washington counties, all in the Florida Panhandle. Williamson said authorities began to believe the cases were connected in 1988 and eventually were led to Lucas.

"We are gratified that this brutal case will finally come to trial, allowing the communities and families involved to once and for all put this matter behind them," said FDLE Commissioner Tim Moore.

No trial dates were immediately scheduled, but Moore said four trials are planned because the slayings happened in three different counties in 1980 and 1981.

The indictments accuse Lucas of first-degree murder in the Dec. 15, 1980, shooting of gas station attendant John P. McDaniel Jr. of Jackson County; the Feb. 10, 1981, shooting of Jerilyn Murphy Peoples at her Holmes County home; the March 25, 1981, strangulation and stabbing of Brenda Jo Burton in Holmes County; and the April 9, 1981, slaying of Mary Ruby McCary, Washington County.

Besides the death sentence in Texas, Lucas was sentenced to six life prison terms, two 75-year sentences and a 60-year term for other convictions. In a recent prison interview, Lucas said he was anxious to get to work on the other cases.

"They're just conspiring to get all the unsolved murders pinned on me," he said. "I can't see why they're spending all this money on me and let guilty people run free."

After the one-eyed drifter recanted his claims of 600 murders, he said he actually was guilty of only one — that of his mother in Michigan in 1960. His former companion, Ottis Elwood Toole, 43, is imprisoned at Florida State Prison in Starke serving a life sentence on murder and arson charges.

Toole accused Lucas in court documents of some of the Florida killings, while Frank Powell III, the brother of Lucas' former girlfriend, told investigators of the murder of Mrs. Peoples.

Lucas has accused the pair of lying.

"I'd tell them to get their stories straight and quit lying about all these unsolved murders," he said.

Higher education leaders fight for fund increase

By James Cullen
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Texas higher education leaders, reacting to talk about further cuts to the state's colleges and universities, Friday started making their own case for a $938 million state funding increase.

Billy Franklin, president of Lamar University-Beaumont and chairman of the Council of Public University Presidents and Chancellors, at a press briefing said Texas still ranks ninth among the 10 largest states in faculty salaries, despite recent increases to an average of $39,755, while university libraries are "rapidly deteriorating" after five years of budget cuts.

Among the 60 members of the Association of Research Libraries, a national group of research-oriented universities, the University of Texas ranked 49th in expenditures per student, while Texas A&M ranked 54th and the University of Houston was 57th.

"The conditions in the state's other public senior institutions are even more bleak," Franklin said, as the Legislature has reduced library appropriations by 12.5 percent since 1985.

Public university staff members have received salary increases of only 15 percent since 1983, while costs have inflated 35 percent, he said.

Franklin also noted that family health insurance costs have risen beyond the means of many state university employees.

In addition, he said, underfunding of physical plant maintenance has resulted in deferred maintenance costs estimated as high as $700 million.

"Priorities are always most clearly visible when resources are most limited," Franklin said. "Higher education's priority for the future of Texas will clearly be signalled in the months to come."

The Coordinating Board recently sent the Legislature a request for $4.26 billion for higher education in the 1992-93 biennium, an increase of $938 million, or 22 percent, from the 1991 funding level, but legislative leaders are looking at places to cut next year as they face a state budget shortfall of more than $3.5 billion.

"There's no question that we need that kind of enhancement to remain competitive in higher education," said Charles Mullin, executive vice chancellor for health affairs of the University of Texas System, but he conceded the chances of getting $938 million are "fairly bleak."

Carol McDonald, president of the 40-member Independent Colleges and Universities of Texas, said a $75 million increase in student aid programs is "absolutely necessary" to give low-income students a chance to attend college, particularly since federal budget cuts have hit student aid programs.

"If we skimp here, there are going to be very long-term costs to be faced much later," McDonald said.

Except for an increase in the past biennium, said Marvin Felder, president of Temple Junior College, funding for community colleges have been in a "downward mode" since 1984-85. "We've been able to fill the potholes and keep the train running, but that may not be a forever situation," Felder said.

The Coordinating Board recommendation of a 39 percent increase, to $666.7 million for junior colleges in 1993, would be "livable," Felder said, but if the Legislature trims back, the colleges will have to make up the money elsewhere, either through property taxes for community colleges, higher tuition and fees or more donations from private sources.

UT medical schools would absorb budget cuts by reducing the number of beds in its six teaching hospitals, which would have a "significant impact" on charity health care, Mullins said.

Southwestern Bell ordered to give refund

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Southwestern Bell customers will get a one-time credit of as much as $10.11 on their next telephone bills under an $87.5 million refund included in a rate case settlement the Texas Public Utility Commission approved recently.

Beginning with bills mailed Friday, residential customers will see a credit on their bills ranging from $9.53 to $10.11, the company said in a news release.

The credit includes $8.72 in credit for Southwestern Bell service and an additional credit for other applicable federal, state and local fees and taxes, which will appear under "Other Charges for Southwestern Bell."

Depending on the type of service and rate structure, business customers will receive credits ranging from $2.91 per access line to more than $40 per access line in some instances, Bell said.

Most business customers — those with single-line, flat-rate service — will see a credit in the range of $9.80 to $10.38 per access line.

Customers should receive their credits on bills received in December or early January.

The credits are part of the $1.2 billion rate settlement the PUC approved Nov. 28 that included a four-year freeze in basic local rates and Bell commitments to modernize telephone equipment.

Other features that will be implemented, subject to PUC review, include:

- Reduction in the fee for service connection from the current $60 to $38.35.
- Reduction in Southwestern Bell's regional long-distance rates by 9 percent.
- A 40-percent reduction in interstate access charges to long-distance companies, which is supposed to be passed on to ratepayers, over four years.
- A 60-percent reduction in residential Touch-tone rates and a 33-percent reduction in business rates over four years. Residential users will see their Touch-tone surcharge drop 25 cents to $1 in the next month.

The terms of the settlement will be implemented despite the plans of Public Counsel C. Kingsbery Ottmers, who represents residential and small business ratepayers, to appeal the PUC decision to district court in Travis County.

Ottmers and attorneys for 110 Texas cities who intervened in the case said the PUC should have obtained a greater rate reduction.

Texas exports top $38 billion in past year

AUSTIN (AP) — Exports of products made in Texas continued to grow at a rapid rate last year, topping $38 billion in sales or nearly 11 percent of the nation's total exports, the state comptroller's office reported Friday.

Since 1987, Texas exports have grown at an annual rate of 14.2 percent, about 2½ times faster than the 5.7 percent growth rate for the overall state economy.

The report on exports was featured in the December issue of Fiscal Notes, a monthly publication produced by the comptroller's office.

The state's 1989 total of more than $38 billion ranked second in the United States behind California's $54 billion, the report said. New York ranks third at $27 billion in exports.

Last year, foreign export sales had an overall economic impact of $111 billion in Texas, according to the report. In addition, more than one million jobs, or 15 percent of the state's workforce, were related directly or indirectly to the export business.

Reporter jailed for withholding unpublished information

Averyt

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A newspaper reporter was handcuffed and booked into jail Friday for her refusal to answer questions about her interviews with a murder defendant.

An apologetic State District Judge Eric Brown gave Libby Averyt one last chance to answer the questions before he signed the order to jail her for contempt of court. But the 26-year-old Corpus Christi Caller-Times reporter again refused.

"Miss Averyt, it appears we are both actors playing our parts," Brown told the reporter before sheriff's deputies led her off to jail. "We are both doing our jobs."

Brown ordered her jailed Thursday, but did not sign the order until Friday morning. The judge found her in contempt of court during a pre-trial hearing in the capital murder trial of Jermarr Arnold.

The contempt finding came after Ms. Averyt was ordered to testify. She invoked the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution and similar provisions of the Texas Constitution upon refusing 12 times to answer questions about her interviews with Arnold in October and November.

She and newspaper attorney Jorge Rangel maintained that journalists should not be compelled to reveal information obtained from news sources if that information was not published.

But Brown said the rights of a man on trial for murder outweigh the press' privilege to withhold material.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Friday afternoon refused to consider an appeal filed by Rangel and attorneys Bill Allison of Austin and Tyler attorneys Mike Hatchell and Greg Smith.

"Right now, today, I'm prepared to spend the weekend in jail," Ms. Averyt said Friday afternoon after her appeal was refused. "I have not changed my mind about answering the questions ... I still have a strong belief that if this is allowed to happen, then fewer people are going to talk to me."

Nine media organizations opposed to the reporter's jailing filed a "friend of the court" brief on Ms. Averyt's behalf Friday at the Criminal Appeals Court.

"The purpose of the brief is to reinforce the importance of the issues before the court and the potentially far-reaching effect of the ruling," said Thomas S. Leatherbury, a Dallas attorney who helped file the brief.

He said the reporter's jailing "could lead to greater use, more indiscriminate use of subpoenas by prosecutors and defense lawyers, and chill reporters' efforts, make them shy away from controversial issues."

San Antonio television reporter Brian Karem was jailed for 13 days earlier this year for his refusal to reveal who helped arrange an interview with a murder suspect.

Brown ordered Ms. Averyt jailed indefinitely until she answers a defense attorney's questions about her interviews with Jermarr Arnold. Arnold faces trial in the 1983 slaying of 21-year-old jewelry store clerk Christina Sanchez.

"We think that the proceedings up to this stage have a very chilling effect on newsgatherers," Rangel said Friday.

In Ms. Averyt's stories, Arnold discusses the 1983 robbery and slaying and expresses his lack of remorse, his belief that he deserves the death penalty, his previous criminal activity and how he says he manipulated the insanity defense in prior trials for other crimes.

Defense attorneys protested when the judge last week allowed the prosecution to enter the articles as trial evidence. But defense attorney Carl Lewis said if the articles are allowed, he should be able to cross-examine Ms. Averyt on the context and certain unpublished content of her conversations with Arnold.

Lewis said without Ms. Averyt's testimony, the only way he could respond to the articles would be placing Arnold on the stand. That would violate Arnold's Fifth Amendment right not to testify.

'Right now, today, I'm prepared to spend the weekend in jail.'

— Libby Averyt, Arrested reporter

Body in tree identified

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities have determined that a corpse found in a tree near the Trinity River south of downtown is the body of a 20-year-old Dallas woman missing for more than seven months.

Dental records revealed the body is that of Christina Gill, who was last seen on May 3 at a nightspot in Deep Ellum, a neighborhood on the east side of downtown. Her car was later found in an apartment complex where several of her friends live.

Ms. Gill's family has spent more than $100,000 on fliers, private investigators and ground and helicopter searches. John Gill, the victim's father, quit his job to concentrate on the investigation.

Investigators speculate that Ms. Gill's body was washed into the tree by floodwaters during the spring. It apparently had been hidden by dense foliage until the leaves began to fall, Detective Jim Gallagher said.

The Dallas County medical examiner's office is trying to determine when and how Ms. Gill died.

"What little there was of internal organs we couldn't tell a lot," field agent Bob Lange said Friday.

John Gill said the family's probe into her disappearance will continue despite the grim news.

"It all looks very bleak, and obviously it's a bad time around here," Gill said. "But I still am not confident that it's her, and even if it is, we have an awful lot of questions that need answers."

Bush cancels quail hunting

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Persian Gulf crisis didn't keep President Bush from his Maine vacation in August, but a White House spokesman says his annual quail-hunting trip to Beeville is out.

"Bush will spend Christmas at Camp David. He doesn't have any plans to go down there (to Texas)," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. "With everything that's going on, he just thought that was best."

Civic leaders in Beeville on Thursday were shocked to hear Bush would not be making the trip. He has been hunting near Beeville every year for the past 25 years.

"We're sure going to miss him. His arrival here every year is an event," said Dave Moore, president of the Beeville Chamber of Commerce. "But, the community is not going to hold it against him. I think everybody thinks he should be there until this is settled."

Referring to Bush's Maine vacation shortly after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, Moore said, "I think he caught some flak when he was fishing last summer."

Secretary of State James Baker, who participated in last year's hunt, also will skip the trip to Beeville this year, officials said. Baker will be traveling to Baghdad after the holidays for talks with Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

Bush was a congressman from Houston in the 1960s when he first made a trip to the Lazy F. Ranch. Located about 15 miles east of Beeville on Texas 59. The ranch is owned by Houston oilman Will Farris, a longtime friend of the president.

Moore said Beeville has enjoyed the national exposure of the annual trip, which also turned into a miniature economic boost as members of the national press corps and Bush's entourage bought cowboy boots and Western wear to take back to Washington.

Lori Manuel, owner of Beeville Boot and Western Wear, said boots were last year's hot seller. Ms. Manuel, who stocked some extra merchandise in anticipation of the president's trip, isn't sure the president will really miss the Beeville trip.

"I don't believe anything the White House says anyway," she said.

College students support ponytail

BASTROP, Texas (AP) — A group of University of Texas students Friday rallied in front of an elementary school in support of a third-grader who has been isolated from his classmates because he refuses to cut his ponytail.

The Campus Organization for Freedom, Expression and Education also said it collected about 1,000 signatures on a petition urging the school to allow 8-year-old Zachariah Toungate to attend school with his fellow students.

"Basically, it asks for the Bastrop schools to let Zachariah back into class and to not discriminate arbitrarily in their dress code," said John Garrison, a spokesman for the group.

The rally is the latest show of support for Zach, who has gained national attention in his battle with school officials.

His mother, September Toungate, said Zach has received letters and drawings from children and adults from across the country.

Ms. Toungate said that she, her mother, her daughter and Zach joined the group of about 15 demonstrators, who chanted, "Free Zach" and "Education, not discrimination."

Farmers need loans now

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers planning next year's crops cannot afford to wait another month for the Agriculture Department to make low-interest loans available for this year's losses from natural disasters, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Friday.

Bentsen, D-Texas, told Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter that a month's wait before the 4.5 percent interest loans would be available is "totally unacceptable."

Unlike past years, Congress this year failed to pass a direct disaster aid package for farmers who lost production to bad weather. Instead, Congress waived a prohibition against emergency disaster loans to producers if crop insurance was available.

Congress also set aside $600 million for disaster loans this fiscal year.

In an Oct. 31 letter to Republican congressional candidate Hugh Shine of Temple, Yeutter said the crop insurance requirement would waived if Congress approved the plan as part of the 1990 farm bill. The farm bill was signed into law Nov. 26.

But Bentsen said he has been told by members of Yeutter's staff that farmers will not receive the benefit of the crop insurance waiver until it is formally announced by the secretary and that such an announcement may take a month or more.

"That is totally unacceptable," Bentsen told Yeutter in a letter Friday. "Farmers in many areas, such as Central Texas, have completed their harvest and are in the process of making financing arrangements for next year. They and their bankers are on a cycle of production that is dictated by nature, not by federal regulations. ... They cannot wait another month, even for a Cabinet official."

Grand juror not in probe

AUSTIN (AP) — A member of a Travis County grand jury investigating House Speaker Gib Lewis and a San Antonio law firm said Friday he will not participate in the probe.

L. DeWitt Hale, a former House member and general counsel to the House General Investigating Committee, is a member of the grand jury.

After a report by the Austin American-Statesman concerning his position, Hale said, "I do not want my presence on the grand jury to cast any shadow on its activities or color any of its decision, however honorable my intentions might be.

"I will not resign from the grand jury, but I will recuse myself from any further participation into the investigation involving the speaker of the House or other lawmakers with whom I have been associated and whom I hold in high esteem."

Mother, baby reunited

EL PASO (AP) — Inga Edwards showered her son with kisses while family and friends wept when she was reunited Friday with her 6-week-old child who had been abducted this week.

Waiting passengers applauded when the pajama-clad baby, wrapped in a blue blanket was placed in Ms. Edwards arms' shortly after 1 p.m.

"It's a blessing," she said as she smiled and stared at Eric Christopher Clayton, who seemed drowsy from the flight. "I'm excited."

Tinkerer spent 1,000 hours making dollhouse

PARIS, Texas (AP) — Although he had never seen a Victorian dollhouse before, Don Riddle accepted the challenge of building one for his church's annual bazaar.

After investing more than 1,000 hours of labor on the house and drawing the plans himself, Riddle completed his task in August.

"I had never built a dollhouse, but it was fun," said Riddle. "I had no idea of what it would consist of. I could do a lot more as far as the detail, but you just get tired and say 'I've got other things to do.' "

The powder-blue Victorian house contains a bit of Paris' history, as the edge-grain pine flooring came from the old Delaney Building; the red gum wainscoting and chair rails came from a doctor's old home; and the toy bench located in an upstairs bedroom is made of cypress from a City of Paris water tower at Lake Crook.

In addition, Riddle said he found that furnishing the dollhouse is a different world, with replicas available by style and period.

"I didn't realize that this was such a big deal," he said. "Literally everything you can think of is available (for these houses). What amazes me is that there is enough market for these things (miniature fixtures and furnishings) that someone is making them.

"I was in a shop in Dallas and a lady asked me how long I had been working on my dollhouse. I told her since March and she said that she'd been working on hers since 1979.

"There is really no way to say that you're through; you just reach a point and quit. But obviously, there are more things that I could do. You could work on the thing forever."

Riddle noted that the biggest problem he had in making the dollhouse was his equipment.

"All of my tools are made for bigger jobs; not for miniature work," he explained. "Most of these things are a one-to-one scale, where one inch equals one foot, which is fine except that an inch is not easily divided into twelfths. So I went through three legal sized scratch pads to convert the measurements."

A professed "compulsive tinkerer" for four years, Riddle has made his popular bird feeders for the church bazaar. His next project is to construct a Christmas living room (miniature scale) for his wife.

Of his Victorian house, Riddle says he hopes "someone gets it who will appreciate it and not let it be wrecked."

Romania postpones price increases for basics

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — The government, facing growing criticism and the threat of nationwide strikes, on Friday postponed increases in the prices of basic foodstuffs and services.

The move was seen as a concession to the wave of protests and criticism that followed the lifting of state price controls on Nov. 1, which doubled and tripled prices on many foods and consumer goods.

The decision to postpone further price hikes, which was announced on state TV, said basic goods, such as bread, meat, dairy products, sugar, oil, soaps, medicine and medical services will continue to be subsidized.

The announcement said price increases on those items, which had been scheduled for Jan. 1, would be postponed until June. It gave no further details.

The decision appeared to reflect growing nervousness among officials that the opposition was gaining strength and could pose a threat to Premier Petre Roman's government.

The National Drivers' Union issued a statement Friday threatening a nationwide strike Monday unless the government resigned in favor of a "government of national unity."

WORLD

They also demanded the dismissal of all former Communists who are still leading local governments and industry.

Union officials have indicated that the nationwide Fratia union might declare a general strike next week.

Also, a coalition of opposition groups called the Anti-Totalitarian Democratic Forum demanded the government resign.

President Ion Iliescu criticized the alliance as a "street movement that tries to substitute the political opposition."

"I call on all responsible elements and citizens to assure a favorable climate for the anniversary of the revolution," Iliescu said in a televised address late Friday. "Make December a month of ... national conciliation."

Opposition groups not represented in Parliament, such as the broad-based Civic Alliance, are planning protest rallies throughout the country this month to mark the one-year anniversary of the revolution that overthrew Nicolae Ceausescu's Communist dictatorship..

Silviu Brucan, who helped found the governing National Salvation Front, said in an interview Friday that it would lose the next election, scheduled for 1992, because of the tough economic reforms it must enact to transform the heavily centralized economy.

But Brucan, who no longer holds an official position in the Front, called on the opposition to abandon its efforts to bring down the government now.

Turnout low in Maurita elections

NOUAKCHOTT, Mauritania (AP) — Low voter registration indicated a small turnout Friday for local elections, which drew heavy participation in the first multiparty races in four years ago.

The local council elections are the only political choice in the military-ruled North African nation, which gained independence from France in 1960.

The 1986 vote changed the makeup of local councils, but power still rested with the central government's military committee.

Soldiers patrolled the streets as polls opened early Friday. But few people lined up to cast ballots.

"I'm not voting," said Aly Ahmoud of Nouakchott, who walked past a polling station. "It's better to stay home and rest. The local council for me means high taxes."

Only 90,000 people in the capital of 700,000 had registered to vote. Authorities blame part of the problem on apathy, but residents complain of bad organization and their disdain for the bureaucracy.

The authorized parties competing in Nouakchott include Marxist, Islamic fundamentalist, black nationalists and the ruling pan-Arab nationalists.

Lewis honored

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Washington running back Greg Lewis was picked Friday as the winner of the first Doak Walker National Running Back Award.

Lewis, a second-team All-America, rushed for 1,278 yards on 229 carries and scored nine touchdowns this season before injuring his right knee in the Huskies' final regular-season game.

"It's something of a great honor to me and I really appreciate being considered as one of the nation's best running backs," Lewis said.

The award is named for Walker, 63, a pro football Hall of Famer who won the 1948 Heisman Trophy while playing for Southern Methodist.

Joe Vaughn of Washington was first runner-up and Kevin Washington of Troy was second runnerup.

MHS, Lee advance

■ Midland High, Midland Lee and Amarillo Tascosa become the hopefuls to end the reign of Austin LBJ in the MC basketball tournament.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Some wild happenings are taking place at Chaparral Center this weekend in the Midland College Invitational high school basketball tournament, but not too many fans seem to care.

Here is just a few things that happened on opening night before a sparse crowd:

Midland Lee ended a four-game losing streak with an overtime victory over El Paso Bel Air.

Midland High also advanced in the winner's bracket with a victory over Lubbock Estacado.

Austin LBJ, the only champion this tournament has ever known, beat highly regarded Fort Worth Paschal to keep hopes alive of a third consecutive championship.

And Amarillo Tascosa accepted charity in what was considered a minor upset over El Paso Eastwood.

But it was the Lee-Bel Air game that set the tone for the tournament that continues today at 8:15 a.m. and ends with the 8:30 p.m. championship.

The Rebels, in the throes of turmoil with a losing streak and three players (Herb Crisp, Rube Harrell and Brian Rippee) quitting the team, erased a 12-point first half deficit to knot the game at 54-54 at the end of regulation on a key basket by Matt Campbell and then won it in overtime with three players on the bench with five fouls when reserve John Watson hit a three-point play to give Lee a 59-56 lead on the way to a 61-60 victory.

Watson hit a short jumper and was fouled.

"I just took it up and put it in," said Watson. "I wasn't nervous on that free throw because the basket gave us the

Baseball deal made

■ Minor Leagues to vote Thursday on agreement aimed at preserving baseball's 87-year-old structure.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Negotiators for the major and minor leagues reached agreement Friday on a seven-year contract that will preserve organized baseball's 87-year-old structure.

The sides had said earlier in the week that they were near agreement and they wrapped up the final two issues Friday during day-long negotiations.

"We've been on a conference call all day," said Sal Artiaga, the president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. "We reached an agreement that will have the unanimous recommendation of the executive committee."

The deal, which has a reopener after the 1994 season, will be sent to the minor leagues on Saturday and Artiaga said the leagues will vote Thursday either in a conference call of by fax ballot.

Major league spokesman Rich Levin said he was not sure when major league owners would vote on ratification.

Each side had threatened to go off on its own and Artiaga said the main work ahead was erasing the bitterness of the dispute.

"We have to start repairing the relationship," he said from Los Angeles. "That's something which is extremely important. You can only do it through mutual trust and understanding.

"This is a people business. I'm confident we will all rise above the differences we have had."

The sides agreed Friday to the method under which major league expansion teams will compensate the minor league teams whose territory they are taking over.

Bearkat season comes to thumping halt

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

COLEMAN — The Valley Mills Eagles ended Garden City's ride through the Class A playoffs with a 56-8 stomping in state quarterfinal action here Friday.

The Bearkats outgained Valley Mills 291-282, but the Eagles picked off eight Shae Scott passes and got touchdowns from freshman wingback Donnie Sadler on a 68-yard punt return and a fake field goal to take a 29-8 halftime lead.

Valley Mills then stuffed the Bearkats on a goal line stand early in the second half and made it a route with 27 third quarter points.

The Eagles had 312 return yards, including 176 yards on interception returns alone. Scott, who had completed 60 percent of his pass attempts going into Friday's game, was 9-of-32 for 157 yards and no touchdowns.

As a result, the 114 yards gained by Garden City quarterback James Soles were largely meaningless. Soles still finished with nearly 2,200 yards this season.

Garden City coach Sam Scott saw Eagle explosions of one form or another kill the 'Kats.

"We just gave up too many big plays," Scott said. "And we didn't have enought big plays ourselves."

Valley Mills coach Allen West said intensity was the key.

"The kids really played super-charged football," West said.

Sadler set the tone for the rout less than three minutes into the game when he fielded a punt on his own 32, took a block from senior cousin Andy Sadler, and streaked down the right sideline. Punter Allen Hoelscher tried to tackle Sadler at about midfield, but the shifty Eagle made the usually sure tackling Bearkat grab nothing but air.

"I was going toward the middle, but my blockers set up a wall down the right sideline and I was able to do the rest," Sadler said.

Valley Mills' Jason Hicks lined up for the ensuing extra point attempt, but holder Sadler took the snap and pitched the ball laterally to Michael Bohannon, who ran the ball in to give the Eagles the lead with 9:41 left in the first period.

Garden City answered with a five-yard run by Soles with 4:08 left in the quarter. The Bearkats' only TD of the evening was set up by a 46-yard pass play from Scott to Richard Morales.

Valley Mills took the lead for good less than a minute after Soles' TD on a three-yard keeper by quarterback Hicks with

Lady Rebels take second straight win

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

Even though field goals and fans might have been considered on the endangered species list Friday night, Midland Lee's girls basketball team was hardly fazed as the Lady Rebels took their second straight win with a 34-31 decision over Class 3A Denver City at the Lee gymnasium.

The victory gives Lee its first back-to-back wins of the year while making the Lady Rebs' season record 5-7 in the process. The Phillies dropped to 4-7 with the loss.

While Rebel supporters had to decide between attending the Lee boys basketball game in the Midland College Invitational tournament at the Chaparral Center, the girls game at Lee, or a public forum at Midland High on the possible banning of Confederate symbols at Lee, the smattering of spectators on hand saw just 28 field goals fall in the game.

And despite the fact that Lee has scored fewer than 40 points in its two recent wins — the Lady Rebels downed Andrews 38-26 Tuesday — the slower tempo was not by way of design on the part of Lee head coach Shirley Stephenson.

"We've actually been trying to play a faster-paced game. We are just hanging in there, trying to get some momentum going. But maybe we are getting more self-disciplined, so what the heck. What's the difference if you win 34-31 or 65-62," Stephenson queried.

Indeed, the Lady Rebels cut their turn-

Lady 'Dogs propel past McCamey

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

For a change, the Midland High girls found themselves breathing a little easier on the court Friday night. No squeeze-'em-out-at-the-end buzzer beaters or narrow-miss, one-point losses.

Friday night's 53-41 Lady Bulldog win over the McCamey Lady Badgers was decisive and impressive. And head coach Jim Raughton finally found himself not scratching his head with mixed emotions afterward, but enjoying his team's win.

"We did some good things," said Raughton, of his now 6-6 Lady 'Dogs. "I'm pleased, but I'm always pleased when we win."

MHS set the tone early in the game, holding the Lady Badgers to just 12 points in the first half. By intermission, the Lady Bulldogs had taken a 24-12 lead. McCamey held tough with MHS, as both teams racked up identical 29s in the final 16 minutes; the Lady Badgers outscored MHS 17-10 in the fourth quarter, but by then, MHS was too far ahead for it to make a difference.

"We just shot the ball a little better," Raughton said of his 'Dogs' 34 percent overall effort from the field. MHS hit 7-of-13 shots in the third quarter, their best span of the entire game.

Ashley Chase finished with 12 — 10 of which came in the first half, including back-to-back three-pointers at the end of the half; Donna Eaden lit up the board in the second half, when she scored 10 of her 15.

Phoenix nets big win, snaps three-game skid

Associated Press

Jeff Hornacek scored a season-high 28 points and Phoenix took control with a 13-1 second-quarter spurt and rolled to a 129-110 victory over the New Jersey Nets on Friday night.

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak — the Suns' longest since losing four straight to the Los Angeles Lakers in the 1988-89 playoffs — and was only the second loss in seven games for the Nets.

Sam Bowie had a season-high 27 points for New Jersey, which broke its league-record 34-game road losing streak in Phoenix on Nov. 23.

Phoenix won without Xavier McDaniel, who was acquired in a deal with Seattle for swingman Eddie Johnson and two first-round draft picks.

McDaniel wasn't needed against New Jersey, not with the way Hornacek was shooting. He hit 12 of 16 shots from the field, scored 20 points in the first half and seemed to be at the center of every Suns' spurt.

Celtics 112, Mavericks 104

Robert Parish led a balanced attack with 26 points night as the Boston Celtics improved their all-time mark against the Dallas Mavericks to 18-3.

Boston boosted its road record to 6-2 with help from Reggie Lewis' 23 points and 21 by Kevin McHale.

Rolando Blackman had 35 points to lead Dallas, which lost its fourth consecutive game and ninth of 11 in its worst start since 1981-82. Derek Harper added 22 points for the Mavericks.

Boston, off to its fastest start since 1985-86, got only 6 points from leading scorer Larry Bird, 15.1 under his season average. Bird, who had only 5 points in a game against Milwaukee on Nov. 13 — his lowest output since 1986 — was 2-for-11 from the field.

The Mavericks trailed only 85-80 with 10:03 to play on Blackman's jumper, but Boston responded with an 8-2 run capped by Dee Brown's basket with 7:06 remaining.

NBA Roundup

76ers 135, Nuggets 126

Charles Barkley scored 40 points and grabbed a season-high 22 rebounds, leading the Philadelphia 76ers to a victory that kept the Nuggets winless in nine road games this season.

Barkley, the NBA's leading scorer, connected on 14 of 19 shots. Orlando Woolridge, the second leading scorer, led the Nuggets with 36 points.

Ron Anderson scored 12 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter as the 76ers bettered their record at home to 10-1. Hersey Hawkins also had 24 points for Philadelphia.

Trail Blazers 127, Pacers 105

Portland improved its record to 17-1, matching the second-best start in NBA history, and stayed unbeaten on the road.

Clyde Drexler led Portland with 23 points, followed by Buck Williams with 20 and Terry Porter 19. Indiana was led by Chuck Person with 22 points.

The Trail Blazers, who led by as many as 26 points in the fourth period, extended a 2-point edge to 36-20 with a 16-2 run in the first period. Williams scored 7 points and Duckworth, who finished with 15 points, had 5 during the spurt.

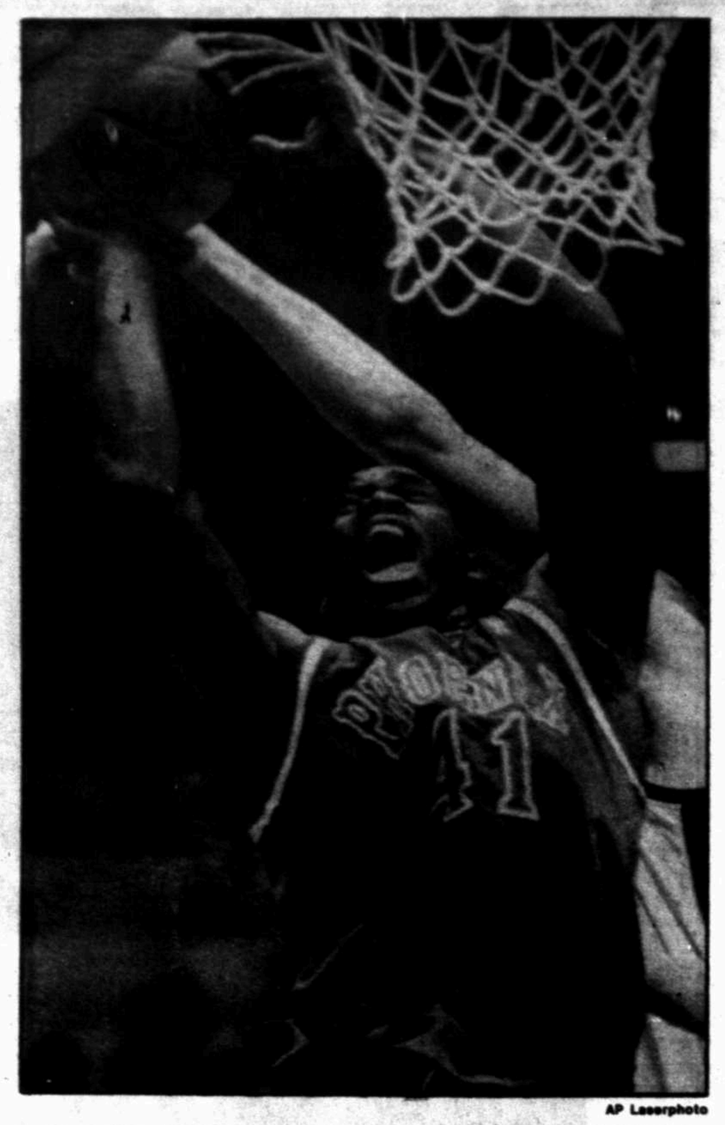
Magic 106, Sonics 100

Otis Smith scored a season-high 33 points and the Orlando Magic, horrendous from the foul line for three quarters, hit 11 of 12 free throws in the last five minutes to beat Seattle.

The victory was the second in three games for the Magic, which stopped a seven-game losing streak at New York on Tuesday night. Seattle, which traded leading scorer Xavier McDaniel to the Phoenix Suns earlier in the day, lost for the seventh time in eight games.

Bucks 104, Hawks 103

Fred Roberts' 20-footer as time expired climaxed a comeback from an 8-point deficit in the final 3:09 and gave the Milwaukee Bucks a victory over the Atlanta Hawks.



AP Laserphoto

Mark West (41) of the Phoenix Suns is hit from behind by New Jersey's Sam Bowie during first quarter action Friday night.

The Bucks, who handed the Hawks their sixth consecutive homecourt defeat, started the rally from a 98-90 deficit when Alvin Robertson hit two free throws after Glenn Rivers was charged with a flagrant foul on Robertson's breakaway.

Bulls 108, Knicks 98

Michael Jordan scored 33 points Friday night and the Chicago Bulls won their seventh game.

The margin of victory was the smallest by the Bulls in their last five games. They routed their previous four opponents by a margin of 29 points.

The win was Chicago's 12th in their last 15 games.

Jazz 101, Lakers 79

Karl Malone scored 27 points and John Stockton added 20 points and 17 assists as the Utah Jazz snapped the Los Angeles Lakers' eight-game winning streak.

Utah, which has won eight of nine games, built a 54-39 lead at halftime, and the Lakers, shooting 43 percent for the game.

Warriors 113, Pistons 110

Mitch Richmond scored six straight points in the final three minutes as the Golden State Warriors beat Detroit, the Pistons' first four-game losing streak since April 1988.

Richmond and Chris Mullin led with 25 points each.

Watson added, "I was nervous about the overtime because we had three or four players on the bench with fouls."

Midland High won a 77-67 victory over Class 4A Lubbock Estacado with an up-and-down effort that had coach Jack Stephenson saying, "Well, we can play better and we will, but this wasn't our best outing of the year.

"I don't know. I try to keep things simple, but we seem to be confused out there. I'll try to make it even more simple Saturday for Tascosa."

Sophomore Antwan Goodley led the Bulldogs in scoring for the second straight game with 16 points while Erick Johnson came through with 14, Rodrick Hickey with 11 and Brian Rounding with 10, all in the first half.

MHS held a 12-point lead in the second quarter, but Estacado narrowed the margin to 52-50 in the third quarter before the Bulldogs finally settled down and took care of business.

The Bulldogs won the Tall City tournament two weeks ago and this win kept them on track for a run at another tourney crown.

The scrappy Estacado team was led by the 18 points of Ricky Smith and 16 from Zebbie Lethridge.

LBJ took a 15-point first half lead against Fort Worth Paschal and then hung on for a 75-70 victory to stay on track for that third straight tournament title and run the Jaguars' record to an impressive 10-1. However, LBJ got some bad news when 6-10 junior Keith Morgan injured an ankle.

"We played a good first half and a sloppy second half," said LBJ coach Mike McShane. "We lost our concentration and I'm hoping it was because the kids were worried about the big kid (Morgan). He might have busted his ankle.

"We knew being placed against Paschal in the first round that this could be a big test for us, and Paschal played well, but we didn't play our best."

LBJ's 6-5 Ray Jackson, who has signed with Michigan and who looks to be the key talent in this tournament, scored a game high 27 points. Broderick Barbers led Paschal with 18 points.

Amarillo Tascosa hit 34 of 43 free throws, including 20 in the fourth period, to take its 62-55 win over El Paso Eastwood in the tournament's first game. Eastwood only had nine free throw attempts in the game and was outscored at the charity line by a 34-5 (29-point) margin.

Tascosa was led by Kevin Von Netzer with 17 points, hitting 13 of 16 from the free throw line. Chris Simon led Eastwood with a game high 19 points.

"I can't figure it," said Eastwood coach Bobby Lesley. "We're not even the team pressing in the game."

Lee was celebrating its overtime win Friday night, but the smallish Rebels will have to face powerful LBJ in the championship semifinals today at 1:30 p.m. Midland High will test Tascosa in a game that looks like a good match-up in the other semifinal at 11:45 a.m. The two winners meet at 8:30 p.m. for the title while the two losers play for third place at 6:45 p.m.

Loser's bracket action takes place at 8:15 a.m. when Eastwood and Estacado tangle while Paschal and Bel Air meet at 10 a.m. The seventh place game is at 3:15 p.m. while the consolation championship is at 5 p.m.

Indiana routs Niagara behind Cheaney's 19

Associated Press

Calbert Cheaney scored 19 points and ignited two big runs as No. 7 Indiana routed Niagara 101-64 on Friday night in the opening round of the Indiana Classic.

San Diego played North Carolina-Wilmington in the other first-round game.

Indiana (6-1) also got 16 points from Pat Graham, 14 from Greg Graham, and 11 apiece from Lyndon Jones and Pat Knight as the Hoosiers won their fourth straight game.

Niagara (1-4) was led David Bertram with 13 points and Brian Clifford with 10.

The game marked the first time the schools played each other since 1968, when Calvin Murphy scored 47 points for Niagara in an 86-83 Indiana win.

Top 25

No. 23 Texas 112
Loyola, Md. 68

Dexter Cambridge scored 25 points and Joey Wright added 21 as No. 23 Texas pounded Loyola, Md. in the opening round of the Longhorn Classic.

Texas will play the winner of the other first-round game between Sam Houston State and Texas-Pan American for the tournament championship Saturday night.

Texas (2-2) has won 11 of 12 games in its own tournament, losing only to Utah State in 1987 finals.

Loyola (2-4) led 18-10 as the Greyhounds held Wright, Texas' scoring leader at 25.3 per game, in check early. But Cambridge, a highly touted 6-foot-7 junior college transfer, came off the bench to score 14 points and another reserve, guard Teyon McCoy, had 10 as the Longhorns led 44-31 at halftime.

No. 17 St. John's 76
George Mason 65

Malik Sealy scored 29 points and keyed the decisive runs in each half as No. 17 St. John's beat George Mason in the opening round of the Cougar Classic.

Brigham Young, the host school, and Eastern Kentucky met in the other first-round game and the winners meet Saturday night.

No. 18 LSU 101, Chapman 68

Shaquille O'Neal had 18 points, 16 rebounds and six blocked shots and played just 20 minutes in No. 18 Louisiana State University's victory over Chapman College.

LSU's third consecutive win improved the Tigers' record to 3-1 heading into a nationally televised game against No. 2 Arizona on Saturday.

No. 4 Syracuse 103
Alaska-Anchorage 85

Fourth-ranked Syracuse got 16 points each from Billy Owens and Conrad McRae and sputtered to an 18-point halftime lead and easy win over Alaska-Anchorage, the Orangemen's 14th consecutive opening-round win in the Carrier Classic.

Houston remains in NHL hunt

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston still has a chance to get a National Hockey League franchise. A second group of local investors said it plans to buy out an NHL application issued to Rockets owner Charlie Thomas.

Businessman Ralph O'Connor, formerly on the board of directors at First City Bank and Texas Eastern Corp., confirmed to the Houston Chronicle that the group he heads has talked with Thomas about buying his application for a franchise.

But O'Connor said the talks have broken off.

"We didn't get close (to completing the deal) because of a lack of time and a different agenda," O'Connor said. "However, we have been in contact with the NHL, and they have advised us that they would welcome an application from another group."

A possible site for the proposed arena could be in a 74-acre parcel owned by JMB Realty Corp.

Group may call for halt of NAIA title tilt

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — A civil rights group threatened Friday to seek legal action to halt the NAIA championship football game Saturday if suspended Mesa State tailback Marlo Johnson isn't reinstated.

The NAACP believes Johnson's civil rights were violated and he didn't receive due process, NAACP regional chairman Lawrence Lewis said Friday.

"We are not angry, we just want justice to be done," Lewis said.

Johnson was suspended Monday by coach Jim Paronto after he was alleged to have hit a spectator in the face with his helmet in the closing seconds of the Mavericks' 10-9 victory over Central Arkansas last Saturday.

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Look out, here come the new millionaires.

Gary Gaetti, Jack Clark, Brett Butler and 12 others became instant free agents Friday, the result of a collusion settlement that also will cost baseball owners $280 million. After a week in which 19 free agents were signed for $121 million, the "new look" for National League ERA leader Danny Darwin, Jack Morris, Dave Smith and the rest figures to be expensive.

"Has there been an Oklahoma land rush today? No. A lot of money was spent at the winter meetings, and people are still weary," said agent Randy Hendricks, who teams with his brother, Alan, in representing Darwin and Smith, along with new-lookers Mike LaCoss and Larry Andersen. "But we think people will start getting down to business on Monday, and we expect serious and significant bidding for our players."

Darwin and Smith have expressed interest in getting out of Houston. LaCoss seems happy with the Giants and Andersen, traded from the Astros to Boston last August, might wait and see.

Dave Henderson, Charlie Leibrandt and the others set free have until Jan. 29 to sign with a new team or keep their current contracts.

Gaetti just finished a three-year, $4.4 million contract with Minnesota, and faced the choice of going to salary arbitration or working out a new pact with the Twins. Terry Pendleton, the best free-agent third baseman signed at the meetings, got a four-year, $10.2 million pact from Atlanta.

"We haven't had any calls yet, but I'm sure we will," Jim Bronner, Gaetti's agent, said. "Gary is certainly going to explore all the options. We've had preliminary discussions with the Twins and we haven't had any unpleasantness in Minnesota, but I think the team expects we will see what's out there."

Butler, who had two years left on his contract in San Francisco, has indicated he would like to move closer to home and play for the Braves. Atlanta is not adverse to spending for free agents, having signed Sid Bream and Pendleton this week.

Clark may be headed to Boston. The Red Sox want power from their designated hitter, and Clark no longer has his job in San Diego — the Padres traded for first baseman Fred McGriff at the meetings.

Henderson probably will stay with Oakland, provided the Athletics come up with the right dollars. The Athletics chose not to sign center fielder Willie McGee at the meetings and then got Willie Wilson, presumably to back up Henderson.

"Our first course of action is to find where Oakland is on this," said Doug Baldwin, Henderson's agent. said. "There have been indications that there will be some interest from other teams, but the relationship between David and the Athletics has been good for both sides.

"David doesn't have any sense of urgency, but I think we can be at issue with this very shortly. (Oakland general manager) Sandy Alderson and I both know the market, and neither one of us likes to dance around."

The New York Yankees, who lost free agent reliever Dave Righetti this week, could lose two starters. Mike Witt and Dave LaPoint each were given new looks, and so were California's Chili Davis, Detroit's Mike Heath and Minnesota's Juan Berenguer.

Rangers willing to let Hough go

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers decided Friday not to offer salary arbitration to free agent pitcher Charlie Hough, meaning they will not be able to re-sign him until May 1.

Texas did offer arbitration to free agent pitcher Craig McMurtry, who has until Dec. 19 to accept or refuse the offer. If he refuses, the Rangers have until Jan. 8 to sign him, or the club cannot re-sign him until May 1.

Hough was 12-12 last season with a 4.07 ERA in 32 starts. McMurtry was 0-3 with a 4.32 ERA in 23 games and was 1-1 with a 2.70 ERA in six games at Class AAA Oklahoma City.

Foyt rehabilitates under scrutiny of Oiler coach

Associated Press

HOUSTON — A.J. Foyt always has been a man in a hurry and a man of determination.

America's most famous auto racer now is persevering with the help of the Houston Oilers to get his battered body back in shape for one last hurrah.

Foyt, whose lower legs were crushed in a September racing accident in Wisconsin, is working under the daily supervision of Oilers strength and rehabilitation coach Steve Watterson in hopes of being able to compete in the Indianapolis 500 one final time.

"I really appreciate the Oilers letting me come over here," he said during a workout. "The players have been real nice to me.

"Steve's just done miracles with me. He's really pushing me, working me four and five hours a day every day. Steve calls the shots and I just do what he wanted me to do."

Watterson began treating Foyt on Nov. 20.

"I was thoroughly amazed at the injuries to his legs and feet," Watterson told the Houston Chronicle. "I mean, his ankles were dislocated. He had pins in his toes. The tibia in one leg actually split. He broke it in half, and it came up and out his thigh. The fibula was dislocated.

"His right foot was totally dislocated at the ankle. He had a laceration of the patella tendon. I just couldn't believe it."

Foyt didn't want to be in therapy 30 to 45 minutes three times a week at a clinic, Watterson explained, because he wanted to get back in a race car as quickly as possible.

So Watterson visited Foyt's shop to see what a driver must be able to do in the car.

"I wanted to measure the mechanisms, how the legs fit and how much range of motion would be required," he said. "A driver puts his feet in a box 8-by-18 inches. There's just no margin for error."

Watterson also had to confront the well-known Foyt penchant for being demanding and being in charge.

"A.J. is one tough son of a gun. He told me, 'I'm going to do this, and I'm going to do that," Watterson said.

"I told him, 'Look, A.J., you're the driver of your car and you tune your car because you know everything about it. But you're not the driver here. I'm the driver. You're the car.' He agreed and we set up seven goals for him."

The first goal is to walk.

"They all said it would be six or eight months before I could even walk, but he's got me on crutches already," Foyt said.

Other targets including going to his ranch and riding his bulldozer, then being able to play with his grandchildren without difficulty. After that, he wants to walk his race horses, then go hunting, and then get in a race car and compete.

The ultimate goal is to be proficient as he was before.

"Each of those steps allows for a lower margin of error," Watterson said. "Some of the functions will never be back the way they were originally, so we'll have to make modifications."

Suns acquire X-Man in trade with Sonics

Associated Press

PHOENIX — The Phoenix Suns, off to a slower-than-expected start in the NBA this season, traded forward Eddie Johnson and two future first-round draft picks Friday to the Seattle SuperSonics for forward Xavier McDaniel.

Seattle will get Phoenix's first-round selection in the 1991 draft and a first-round pick in either 1993 or 1994.

The Suns acquired a first-round choice in 1993 from the Philadelphia 76ers in an Oct. 28 trade for rookie forward Jayson Williams, a first-rounder who could not agree to terms with Phoenix.

If that 76ers' selection is a lottery pick, the Suns will keep it and instead give Seattle a first-round choice in 1994.

McDaniel, a first-round draft pick of Seattle in 1985 out of Wichita State, has a 20.6 career scoring average and was an All-Star in 1988.

The 6-foot, 7-inch, 205-pound McDaniel averaged 21.8 points and 5.4 rebounds in 15 games this season for the SuperSonics.

Johnson, a 10th-year pro who was the league's Sixth Man Award winner in 1988-89, averaged 13.5 points and 3.1 rebounds in 15 games for Phoenix this season.

He averaged 21.5 points in 1988-89 but his career-best is 22.9 per game in 1984-85 for the Kansas City Kings.

The Suns obtained the 6-foot, 8-inch, 215-pound Johnson from Sacramento on June 21, 1987, in exchange for forward Ed Pinckney and a second-round draft pick.

Phoenix played at New Jersey on Friday night while Seattle was at Orlando but neither Johnson nor McDaniel could play for their old teams after the trade was announced.

Suns spokesman Barry Ringel said if McDaniel passes a physical, he would make his debut for Phoenix in Saturday night's game at Orlando.

Johnson was expected to fly from New Jersey to Milwaukee and join the SuperSonics for Sunday night's game against the Bucks.

Phoenix took an 8-7 record and a three-game losing streak into Friday night's game against the Nets.

Rose reportedly has his sights set on restaurant business in Florida

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Pete Rose plans to move to Florida after he is released from prison and is thinking about going into the restaurant business, a television station reported Friday.

Rose said during a rare interview at a federal prison camp in Illinois that he wants to put his legal troubles behind him when he is released, WLWT-TV said.

Rose also repeated his assertion that he deserves a place in the Hall of Fame, the television station said.

"I don't think of it as a gift," Rose was quoted as saying. "I've given 24 years of my life to baseball. I think I've earned it."

Rose, a former Cincinnati Reds manager who was baseball's all-time hits leader, began serving a five-month sentence on Aug. 8 for failing to report income to tax authorities. He was banned from baseball in 1989 for gambling.

WLWT-TV anchor Jerry Springer said he interviewed Rose in the prison camp's cafeteria for several hours Friday. Prison officials do not allow cameras or tape recorders on the prison grounds.

Rose appeared to be physically fit and in good spirits, Springer said. He said Rose appears to have lost about 10 pounds since entering prison.

Rose said he plans to move to Boca Raton, Fla., when he finishes performing 1,000 hours of community service that a federal court ordered him to perform in Cincinnati.

Rose told the television station that he looks forward to working in the restaurant business and possibly in radio or television broadcasting. He has dabbled in the restaurant business in Cincinnati.

Matador 2 wins Maxi Yacht title

CHARLOTTE AMALIE, Virgin Islands (AP) — U.S. yacht Matador 2, led by Bill Koch's, won the 1990 Maxi Yacht World Championship Series on Friday.

Paul Cayard's Italian vessel, Passage to Venice, finished first in Friday's seventh race, which covered 25 miles.

Longobarda, an Italian yacht with John Bertrand at the helm, was second Friday. Matador, with Virgin Islands Olympic silver medalist Peter Holmberg at the helm, came in third.

Dennis Conner steered French yacht Emeraude into fourth place Friday, followed by Vanitas, which had John Kolius at the helm. Congere, a U.S. yacht, rounded out the heat.

Matador 2, a possible America's Cup defender, finished the competition with 32.25 points, followed by Passage (36.5), Longobarda (41.5) and Vanitas (58).

The Maxis are the world's largest racing yachts, 80 to 85 feet long with crews of 25 to 32.

Exchange student sets prep extra-point mark

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Barely six months after he saw an American football for the first time, Arne Riepe set a national high school record for extra points in a season with 85.

The previous record was held by Alan Cockrell of Parkwood High, Missouri, who kicked 81 in 1981.

An exchange student from Oberhauser, Germany, Riepe knew nothing about American football until August, when he enrolled at Haynesville as a junior.

"Soccer, yes, but I didn't know American football," he said.

He looked a bit perplexed at the hoopla over Haynesville's 42-20 victory over University High in the Class A championship game Friday night.

He didn't know who Morten Andersen was, either. Andersen, among the most accurate field goal kickers in the history of the NFL, plays for the New Orleans Saints and was himself an exchange student from Struer, Denmark, when he began his career as a kicker at Ben Davis High in Indianapolis and went on to become All-American at Michigan State.

"I came in August. I didn't really know what they were asking when they asked me to come out for football, but I said, 'OK. Why not? I'll try it,'" he said.

It would be nice, he said, to follow Andersen's footsteps into the NFL.

He missed only three extra points all season. Haynesville's high scoring offense, averaging 21 points a game, left him litle opportunity for field goals, but he was successful on six of eight attempts with a long of 42 yards.

'Canes still grumbling about defective fields

Associated Press

MIAMI (AP) — The University of Miami hasn't become a perennial championship contender by taking its defeats lightly.

In fact, Miami is still grumbling about its 31-30 loss to Notre Dame in 1988 and has put the blame on two defective practice fields.

The school filed a lawsuit 18 months ago against All-Pro Athletic Surfaces and several subcontractors who helped build the fields on the Miami campus.

The suit, which went to trial this week, contends the artificial turf and natural grass fields built in the summer and fall of '88 were so faulty that it is "reasonable to assume" they led to the Notre Dame victory.

School attorneys say the university's "failure to practice on the fields" may have resulted in defeats, lower attendance, reduced television revenues and fewer charitable contributions.

In a deposition by athletic director Sam Jankovich, who was scheduled to testify Friday, he said the artificial turf was unusable because of "puddles all over the field."

When the fields aren't covered with standing water, the university claims they are too hard and the turf continually comes loose.

When he took the stand, coach Dennis Erickson called the artificial turf "the worst field I've ever seen."

All-Pro says the school's own faulty design is to blame for the artificial field's deficiencies, and the company says it has nothing to do with the natural grass field, which was built by another firm.

Companile and Associates, LRC Corp. and Michael Cambron built the natural grass field. Campanile and Associates has a counterclaim against the university, saying it still owes $9,600.

University lawyers plan to take a deposition from former Miami coach Jimmy Johnson, whose team occasionally had to used the baseball stadium for practice.

He said his team rarely practiced on the artificial turf because "there were bubbles" and "seams coming up." He called the natural turf "unusable."

For three years, Johnson, now coach of the Dallas Cowboys, and Erickson primarily used the Hurricanes' old practice field.

All-Pro, an Oklahoma-based corporation specializing in artificial turf construction, was retained by the university in May 1988 with the stipulation that both fields were to be finished by Aug. 1.

When asked by All-Pro lawyers in the deposition whether Miami's performance had been affected by the practice fields' delayed construction and quality, Jankovich replied: "I'm not so sure that there hasn't been. When we were preparing for Notre Dame, and we lost, there could have been."

All-Pro lawyer Sharon Blake replied, "And so you're going to credit the fields to the wins also?"

"No," Jankovich said, "I'm crediting that to the talent."

The trial being heard by a six-member jury before Dade Circuit Judge Philip Bloom is expected to end late next week.

California Bowl to feature big plays and stingy defense

Associated Press

FRESNO, Calif. — It's the big-play offense of San Jose State against the stingy defense of Central Michigan when the teams meet in Saturday's California Bowl.

The Spartans (8-2-1) averaged 35.2 points per game (12th best in the nation), while the Chippewas (8-2-1) merely led the nation in scoring defense, allowing 8.9 points per game.

"Most of our wins were in dominating fashion," San Jose State coach Terry Shea said. "It just seems like when we needed the big play, when we needed the turnaround and the momentum, we were able to come up with the big play at the right time."

The offense is led by Ralph Martini, who passed for 2,928 yards, and Sheldon Canley, who has 1,248 yards rushing and 386 yards receiving. The Chippewas counter with Jeff Bender (1,978 passing yards) and tailback Billy Smith (1,047 yards).

But Central Michigan relies on defense, which includes seven seniors led by free safety David Johnson.

"Our style of football is very disciplined," Chippewas coach Herb Deromedi said. "It has to do with where you've got to be, what you've got to take away."

The game between the Mid-American champions and Big West winners is in its 10th year, with the Big West holding a 5-4 lead.

This will be Central Michigan's first California Bowl

Big East comes out ahead in early meetings with ACC

Associated Press

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Although the ACC-Big East challenge left the Atlantic Coast Conference on the short end of a 6-2 score, neither league is reading much into the early-season series.

Big East Commissioner Mike Tranghese says he's been around long enough to know not to gloat over victory.

"I've been to the Final Four and we've won our national championships," Tranghese said Friday. "But I've also been there when we've had no one get to the round of 16.

"I'm excited for our teams, obviously, but I've learned that was yesterday," he added. "These are two great leagues and I'm sure that some point, some time and some place, we're going to be 1-5."

The ACC bettered that 1-5 mark Thursday night in Chapel Hill when No. 10 North Carolina beat No. 14 Connecticut 79-64 and Wake Forest lost to Villanova 91-82.

ACC Commissioner Gene Corrigan said winning isn't everything, particularly in December.

"We started this to create great games, and really, that's what we've done," Corrigan said.

The matchup is as much for the players as the fans, he said.

"And when they play with the kind of spirit and enthusiasm that they have the last three nights, it's just great to watch," Corrigan said.

No. 21 Virginia put the ACC on top with an 84-80 victory over No. 11 Pittsburgh on Monday night. Boston College drew first blood for the Big East in the second game at Richmond, Va., dropping Maryland 100-85.

Tuesday night, Seton Hall beat Clemson 78-62 and No. 5 Syracuse defeated North Carolina State 86-79 to give the Big East a 3-1 lead.

On Wednesday, 17th-ranked St. John's beat No. 20 Georgia Tech 73-72 in overtime. That set up the featured matchup between fifth-ranked Duke and No. 6 Georgetown. The Hoyas dominated the middle with 6-foot-10 Alonzo Mourning and 7-2 Dikembe Mutombo to the Blue Devils 79-74.

"They make you think about what you're doing when you take the ball to the basket," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "Historically, Georgetown has the lowest percentage in the country in field-goal defense."

With the Big East holding a commanding 5-1 lead, Thursday's games went as expected, although the North Carolina had to overcome a 40-33 halftime deficit to beat Connecticut.

Wake Forest coach Dave Odom's comments pointed out the bright side of losing to tough competition.

"Tonight's game really exposed a lot of flaws in our team," he said. "That will give us coaches a lot to work on, and we need that. I think by the first of the year we will have a much better ballclub."

While North Carolina coach Dean Smith was on the winning side, he also saw the challenge as a learning experience.

"We still had a lot of unforced turnovers, which I have no explanation for," Smith said.

Red-hot Vikings could be doomed outdoors

Associated Press

NFL Roundup

The Minnesota Vikings may be out of their element when they try and extend their winning streak to six games against the New York Giants.

The Vikings (6-6) have not won any of their four games outdoors this season, and outside a domed stadium they are 1-11 over the past two years.

On Sunday, it's Vikings vs. Giants outdoors at Giants Stadium.

Meanwhile, the Giants (11-2) are 6-0 at home, their only two defeats coming in their last two games — at Philadelphia and at San Francisco. Their defense has allowed an NFC low of 148 points, but their offense has sputtered in the past two weeks, scoring only one touchdown, none in the last seven quarters.

The Vikings, on the other hand, have rebounded from a 1-6 start and moved into a second-place tie with Green Bay in the NFC Central, and more importantly, into position for a wild-card playoff berth.

"Being 1-6 obviously was the low point of the season," Vikings coach Jerry Burns said. "We had a team meeting and resolved to play and prepare as hard as we could. At that point to get back in the playoff race was a longshot, but we're in position now ... "

49ers (11-1) at Bengals (7-5)

This is the first time San Francisco and Cincinnati have met since the 49ers beat the Bengals 20-16 in the Super Bowl two years ago. The loss still hurts.

"They took our Super Bowl ring," Cincinnati defensive lineman Tim Krumrie said.

The 49ers also won the Super Bowl last season and have the league's best record this season, putting them atop the NFC West.

Bears (10-2) at Redskins (7-5)

Chicago already has clinched the NFC Central title for the sixth time in seven years, while Washington, another inconsistent team, is fighting for a wild card berth.

"It's our last game against an NFC team and we need it to get in the playoffs," Redskins quarterback Mark Rypien said.

Bills (10-2) at Colts (5-7)

Buffalo has the best record in the AFC and the top-ranked quarterback in the league in Jim Kelly.

Kelly started his run toward the top in the season's opener when Buffalo beat the Colts 26-10. He "He reads coverages well and he releases earlier this year than he did in the past," Colts linebacker

Broncos (3-9) at Chiefs (8-4)

Kansas City has won three straight to gain a share of the AFC West lead with the Raiders, while the Broncos have lost four in a row and occupy last place.

However, one of Denver's victories this season was over Kansas City — 24-23 on David Treadwell's 22-yeard field goal as time expired.

Raiders (8-4) at Lions (4-8)

It's the Bo vs. Barry Show.

The Raiders' Bo Jackson is coming off his best rushing game of the season — 117 yards on 13 carries and two touchdowns in a 23-20 victory over Denver.

The Lions' Barry Sanders, the defending NFC rushing champion, leads the conference again.

Eagles (7-5) at Dolphins (9-3)

For the second straight week, the Dolphins, ranked second in the league in defense, face a high-powered offense. Last Sunday, Washington riddled the vaunted Miami defense for a season-high point total in winning 42-20.

Cardinals (4-8) at Falcons (3-9)

Scott Campbell starts at quarterback for slumping Atlanta, in place of Chris Miller, who suffered a fractured clavicle in last Sunday's 23-17 loss at Tampa Bay — the Falcons' fifth defeat in a row overall and their 17th straight on the road.

Seahawks (6-6) at Packers (6-6)

Green Bay hopes to have quarterback Don Majkowski back. The decision to return will be his.

Majkowski has missed 2½ games with a deep bruise of the rotator cuff of his throwing shoulder.

Browns (2-10) at Oilers (6-6)

Cleveland has lost seven in a row and is on pace to set a club record for losses in a season. In their last four losses, including three under Jim Shofner, who replaced Bud Carson as coach, the Browns have yielded an average of 36 points per game.

Saints (5-7) at Rams (5-7)

Both teams still are in the playoff chase. This is the first of four straight division games for the Rams, who play San Francisco, Atlanta and New Orleans again on New Year's Eve in the season finale at the Superdome.

Patriots (1-11) at Steelers (6-6)

New England has lost a franchise-record 10 straight games, while the Steelers are hoping to make the playoffs despite two losses in three weeks to Cincinnati.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Notre Dame basketball coach Digger Phelps jokingly compares his team to a classic oil painting of the Revolutionary War.

"The drummer's going down, the fife guy's going down, the flag's going down. They're all wounded, and one guy's limping," Phelps said.

"That's how we're going into Pauley (Pavilion). But we'll be there."

Notre Dame, having hit the skids with five straight losses after a pair of opening victories, faces No. 8 UCLA Saturday at Los Angeles.

Phelps said an upset would put the Irish back on track.

"All you've got to do is beat somebody good," he said. "That's where your confidence goes right up."

Notre Dame's losing streak is its longest since the 1981-82 season. The Irish have not lost more than five in a row since Phelphs' first season, 1971-72, when they had losing streaks of six and seven.

Notre Dame's confidence plummeted after a 91-77 defeat at lightly regarded Butler on Wednesday night, the latest in the string of Irish defeats.

"In the second half you could see it in their faces," Butler's Darin Archbold said. "They looked baffled. They didn't seem to know what to do."

The season had looked promising earlier in the year.

But the Irish lost sophomore starter Monty Williams to a heart condition in September. Although in relatively good health, Williams would be taking a dangerous risk to play competitively, doctors said.

Then last Saturday, starting guard Tim Singleton crumpled during a game against Kentucky with an injured back. He'll be out at least six weeks, and if surgery is required, probably the entire season, Phelps said.

The Irish opened the season by beating Fordham 56-46 and Iowa 77-68 in the first two rounds of the Big Apple NIT.

"No one expected us to do anything," forward LaPhonso Ellis said after the Iowa victory.

But then came No. 2 Arizona in the semifinals, and the Irish lost 91-61, their worst defeat in nearly nine years. No. 5 Duke then beat Notre Dame 85-77 in the third-place game.

Golf

SUN CITY, South Africa — David Frost of South Africa, the defending champion, shot his second straight 71 Friday and took a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the Million Dollar Challenge.

Germany's Bernhard Langer, the leader going into the round, ran into trouble on the 16th and 17th holes and took a 74, dropping into a tie for second place.

Langer put his tee shot into a bunker on the 16th, then missed his putt for par. On the 17th, his tee shot landed in the rough in line with a large rock. That was too much for Langer. He threw his club in disgust.

Tied with Langer at 144 is Spain's Jose-Maria Olazabal, who fired five birdies in eight holes for a 70.

The Million Dollar Challenge, played in the resort of Sun City northwest of Johannesburg, offers golf's biggest prize — $1 million for first place. Only 10 players compete, and each is assured at least a six-figure prize.

Fulton Allem of South Africa and Steve Elkington of Australia shared fourth place at 145. American Ken Green and Scotland's Sandy Lyle were at 147.

Tim Simpson of the United States was another two strokes back.

Tommy Armour III was at 152, and his fellow American, Robert Gamez, was last at 155.

IBF light-flyweight title goes up for grabs

Associated Press

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Michael Carbajal's nickname is "Little Hands of Stone," a tribute to his idol, Roberto Duran.

Saturday, Carbajal puts his International Boxing Federation light-flyweight title on the line against Leon Salazar, a Panamanian whose style closley resembles Duran's.

"That's the way everybody describes it," Carbajal said. "But I don't look at the tapes. I'm just going to go in there and fight."

The scheduled 12-round bout in the 108-pound division will be nationally televised by NBC from the 4,852-seat convention center at Rawhide, a Western theme park here.

Carbajal, a Phoenix native and 1988 Olympic silver medalist, is 17-0 as a pro with 11 knockouts and will be defending his title for the first time.

He took the IBF belt from Thailand's Muangchai Kittikasem on a seventh-round knockout on July 29 at the Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum in Phoenix.

The 23-year-old Carbajal has had two non-title bouts since then, scoring a third-round KO of Oscar Calzada on Sept. 20 in Las Vegas and a fifth-round KO of Luis Monzote on Oct. 25 at the Coliseum.

Salazar, 15-2-1 with 12 KOs, is undefeated in his last 15 fights and is 6-0 the last two years with five knockouts.

His only losses came in his first two pro bouts — four-round decisions to Silberio Barcenas in Panama City on March 1 and Dec. 20, 1986.

"He's the No. 1 contender. He deserves a chance," Carbajal said. "They say he's very dangerous, very tough. I'm ready for it. My focus is not losing my title."

Salazar, 23, is fighting in North America for the first time but has no problem with facing Carbajal in his home state.

"He's a great champion, but he will have to show how great he is on Saturday," Salazar said through an interpretor. "I think his time has come, whether it's here or someplace else."

Despite the comparisons to Duran, Salazar said "he is not my hero. I have only myself. I am a different fighter."

"I just heard he's a pressure fighter. That's about it," he said.

SMU to interview Florida A&M coach

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida A&M coach Ken Riley said he will travel to Dallas this weekend to interview with an 11-member search committee for the head coaching job at Southern Methodist.

Riley played for SMU athletic director Forrest Gregg when he coached the Cincinnati Bengals and was a secondary coach under Gregg at the Green Bay Packers in 1984-85.

"It's a major opportunity, but again, you have to find out where you want to go with it," Riley said. "It could be rewarding for a person to go out there and do a good job."

Riley guided the Rattlers to a 7-4 record this year.

Bavaro agrees to fine for bumping official

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Mark Bavaro of the Giants on Friday agreed to pay a reported $7,500 NFL fine, saying he lost his composure two weeks ago when he bumped an official.

The incident caused Bavaro to be ejected from New York's game against the Philadelphia Eagles.

"It was just an emotional time in the game," Bavaro said in his longest conversation with reporters since the 1986 Super Bowl. "It was a little overexuberance and the league found it in their best interest to fine me. I accept that and I'll continue on the rest of the year."

Neither Bavaro nor league spokesman Greg Aiello would disclose the amount of the fine. Two newspapers reported it was $7,500.

Aiello said the league considered the matter closed.

There had been some initial fears that Bavaro might be suspended for bumping umpire Dave Hamilton late in the Giants' 31-13 loss on Nov. 25 in Philadelphia.

The incident happened seconds Byron Evans returned an interception 22 yards for a touchdown. Bavaro got into a shoving match with a couple of Philadelphia players, and Hamilton ended up on the ground after either tripping or being pushed inadvertently.

"After my review of the judgment, the report had some inaccuracies, some discrepancies and some bias," said Bavaro, who rarely talks with the media.

"But when all is said and done, if I had shown more self control and more composure, the whole incident could have been avoided.

"That being true, I accept the fine. I'll pay it and the fact it does go to charity makes it all the more acceptable to me, just knowing some good can come out of the whole situation."

Bavaro did not answer questions from the media who surrounded him in the Giants locker room. Once when interrupted, he asked to be allowed to complete his statement, which he seemed to have memorized.

"It just goes to show there are certain actions or certain consequences to be paid for your actions," the former Pro Bowler said. "You live and learn. I've learned from this situation not to show too much emotion or too much exuberance on the field. I just hope it's a good example for the kids out there who I try to be a role model to, that there is a penalty when you break the rules or step over the rules."

Bavaro is the Giants second leading receiver with 27 catches for 336 yards and five touchdowns in a season that has seen him bounce back from a severe knee injury. He missed the final half of last season because of the injury and underwent reconstructive surgery in the off-season.

The knee was slow in coming back and there were severe doubts about his availability for the season as late as August. He has overcome those problems and appears to be returning to the form that gained him Pro Bowl status.

Formula One plans changes

PARIS (AP) — The governing body of Formula One auto racing announced Friday plans for changes to improve safety and overhaul the points system that determines its championship.

The measures were approved Thursday by the World Council of the International Federation of Automobile Sports (FISA). The council also decided to form a special inquiry commission to implement other changes to improve safety in Formula One races.

All drivers involved in serious disputes during the 1990 season are to be called before the inquiry commission.

This presumably would include the 1990 champion, Ayrton Senna of Brazil, and his chief rival, Alain Prost of France. Their collision in the Japanese Grand Prix helped ensure that Senna won the title.

Another measure approved by the council involves the compilation of points that determine the season's champion. The policy has been to count only the best 11 finishes for each driver out of 16 total races. The council voted to count all races in the future.

Another change is to ban use of back-up cars in restarts. In the past, drivers who crashed in the first lap often were able to resume driving in a back-up car if the race was stopped and then restarted.

This happened at Monaco this year when Prost and Gerhard Berger were involved in a first-lap crash.

Midshipmen 6½-point underdogs in annual clash with Army Cadets

By Ralph Bernstein
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Navy coach George Chaump isn't sure why Army is a 6½-point favorite over the Midshipmen in Saturday's game.

"You try to figure where they came up with the 6½-point Army favorite. There's not too much difference between the teams," Chaump said. "It's a lot closer than you think."

Both teams are 5-5 and Navy is trying for its first winning season since 1982, when the Middies were 6-5. The Midshipmen beat Army last year on a final-second field goal after losing the three previous seasons.

Army-Navy

It will be the final game for Army coach Jim Young, who is 4-3 against Navy. He will remain at West Point as part of a performance enhancement program.

"I've been coaching 35 years," Young said. "I just felt it was time to quit."

Young insists that his retirement doesn't give the Cadets a psychological edge.

"I'm into it as a last game, but that doesn't ride on my mind all the time. I don't think the players focus on it every play," he said. "They're just into winning."

Chaump agrees with Young.

"Naturally, it's meaningful for them, but I think during the game the players won't be thinking that it's Chaump's first game or Young's last game or who won last year," Chaump said.

Coaches and players feel an extra incentive to provide an exciting, entertaining game for the service people in the Persian Gulf.

"We have friends over there now, so many people we know," Navy quarterback Alton Grizzard said. "It's an extra incentive to do well."

The Army-Navy game hasn't had an impact on the rankings for more than 25 years, but the tradition and the pregame parade of the Cadet corps and Midshipmen brigade still makes the event a happening.

Tagliabue stands by Super Bowl move

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue is standing by his recommendation to move the 1993 Super Bowl out of Arizona because of the furor over a paid holiday honoring slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King.

"They explained their point of view in terms of the electoral decision in Arizona," Tagliabue said Friday night after meeting with a group of political leaders from the state. "It was a useful exchange of views."

Gov. Rose Mofford and Sen. Dennis DeConcini presented the case for a state where voters last month rejected ballot initiatives to honer King.

But Tagliabue said he would still recommend to club owners at their March meeting that the 1993 Super Bowl be moved from Tempe, Ariz.

Mofford, DeConcini, Phoenix Cardinals owner Bill Bidwill and several other political leaders said they would continue to press within the state for a holiday honoring King.

Mofford said she would not rule out an executive order establishing a paid holiday before she leaves office in March.

"I will continue to press for passage of the Martin Luther King holiday in Arizona. It's the right thing to do," Mofford said. "The people of Arizona want this resolved."

Vada Manager, a spokesman for Mofford, said earlier that such an order wes "the least likely option."

"The governor firmly believes there has to be a legislative solution," Manager said.

DeConcini conceded the state may not act in time to save the 1993 NFL title game, but said sentiment in the state was moving toward a holiday to satisfy concerns raised over the issue.

"They have their interest to pursue," he said of the NFL. "We have the state of Ariziona's interest to pursue."

Also meeting with Tagliabue were Phoenix Mayor Paul Johnson, Tempe Mayor Harry Mitchell and William Shover, head of the local Super Bowl organizing committee.

A so-called "test drive" proposal to declare a holiday temporarily and have voters decide in 1992 whether it be made permanent was suggested by several King supporters in the state.

Gov. Bruce Babbitt declared a King holiday before he left office in 1986, but Evan Mecham rescinded the order when he took over the governor's office in 1987. Attorney General Bob Corbin had said Babbitt lacked the authority to declare the holiday.

That led to a stream of organizations moving planned conventions and meetings out of the state.

Local officials have said the Phoenix area stands to lose about $200 million if the game is moved.

NC quarterback sets standard

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Burlington Cummings quarterback Donnie Davis broke the single-season national high school passing record Friday night during his team's state championship contest.

The senior completed 14 of 17 passes for 185 yards in the opening half to move his total passing yardage to 4,337, breaking the national record of 4,179 set Lupe Rodriguez of Mission, Texas, in 1987.

Davis threw two touchdown passes and ran for another score in the first half as his team took a 19-7 lead in the North Carolina 3-A title game.

Davis now has 43 touchdown passes this season. He threw 38 last year.

His 14 completions gave him 269 this season and 555 for his career, moving the senior into third place on both national single-season lists.

BEARKATS: Eagles romp

(From 1B)

3:22 left in the period. The go ahead score was set up by Bohannon's runs of 27 and 33 yards.

Bohannon led all rushers with 157 yards on 16 carries. The Eagles eventually took a 29-8 lead on Sadler's 11-yard scoring run off a field goal attempt late in the half, but Garden City made its final challenge on their first possession of the third quarter.

Scott and Morales connected on a 57-yard pass play to the Eagle six, and Soles crashed to the one on first and goal, but the star tailback got nothing on second down and a motion penalty on the next play pushed the 'Kats back to the six. Scott's third down pass fell incomplete and his fourth down pass was picked off by Hicks at the goal line and returned to the Garden City 41 with 9:43 left in the quarter.

Thereafter, the Bearkats were only able to manage 57 more yards, while the Eagles were romping with two Bohannon TDs, another TD keeper by Hicks, and a 60-yard interception return by Mickey Veteto that completed the scoring with 11 seconds left in the third quarter.

Earnhardt gets bulk of awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Dale Earnhardt took home the bulk of the awards and a good portion of the money Friday night at the annual NASCAR Winston Cup awards banquet.

The 38-year-old Earnhardt out-dueled Mark Martin this season to win his fourth series championship. In doing so, Earnhardt won nine of 29 races, four pole positions, an all-time racing record of $3,083,056 and pushed his career earnings to another motorsports record of $12,782,634.

He collected checks for $1,089,726 in Winston Cup awards Friday night. Among his other awards were $230,000 from corporate sponsors.

"It was really an incredible season," Earnhardt said. "Winning that fourth championship means a lot to me, and winning our first championship since 1987 means a lot to our (Childress Racing) team.

"The money is nice, but that championship, and sitting at the head table (Friday night) is what really matters."

Earnhardt's team, owned and campaigned by former driver Richard Childress, also shared in the glory and the money, with crew chief Kirk Shelmerdine getting $10,000 for a pole award and Eddie Lanier earning $20,000 for winning engine builder of the year.

Martin was also second in money winnings, finishing the year with $1,302,958. Geoff Bodine was third with $1,131,222, followed by Bill Elliott $1,090,730 and 1989 series champion Rusty Wallace $954,129.

Rounding out the top 10 were Ken Schrader at $769,934, Kyle Petty $746,326, Morgan Shepherd $666,915, Davey Allison $640,684 and Ricky Rudd $573,650.

In all, $3,413,527 was handed out at black-tie dinner in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in midtown Manhattan.

The NASCAR Award of Excellence, given by the sanctioning body for outstanding contributions to the sport, was received by Chris Economaki, longtime television reporter and commentator and publisher of the National Speed Sport News, a weekly racing newspaper.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A writing project could be the key to tremendous career success. In February, an effective memo attracts the attention of someone influential. Give free rein to your creativity. Try your hand at fiction or poetry next June. September 1991 will usher in a period of rapid financial gains. You will reap long-overdue rewards. Your personal relationships improve when you show more interest in your loved ones' concerns.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Kim Basinger, superstar Sammy Davis Jr., comedian Flip Wilson, actor John Rubinstein.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Better communication is the key to greater business and financial success. Things may not go exactly the way you planned. Keep calm. You will be delighted with the end results!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An unexpected breakthrough is a source of delight today. A favorite hobby or avocation could become your main occupation. Holiday shopping is both tiring and satisfying. You find wonderful bargains!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Taking on too many tasks or errands could be counterproductive today. Put first things first. Get together with people who share your long-term goals. Romance enjoys favorable influences.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A good day to look for holiday gifts and new avenues of financial gain. Treat close family members and friends to something special. You will enjoy wrapping presents and writing holiday cards.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Reaching a mutually beneficial agreement should be easy today. Just avoid making special demands. Be more patient with teen-agers. Romance has real substance. Look to the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A great day for teaming up with others and negotiating deals. Everyone can profit. Raising funds may be as simple as one, two, three. A date turns out better than you anticipated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A long-range project requires great care. Waiting out a problem could be the right thing to do. Joint funds are more useful than ever now. Indulge your loved ones a little.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are able to accomplish great things today. Astute on-the-job planning will bring beneficial changes. You and a newcomer really click. Entertaining at home proves rewarding. Romance is heady.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Financial transactions should proceed according to plan. Be more flexible when faced with changes at home. Mate needs your support. Have the courage of your convictions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your personal magnetism is at a peak, helping you win financial backing. Partnership matters are favored. Mail your holiday cards. A romantic relationship has great potential.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A good day for signing employment contracts and financial agreements. Pooling your resources with others would be a shrewd move. Showcase your abilities. Keep entertainment costs down.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your sense of humor and affability win you new friends today. Love and trust are on the rise. Make contact with a wide variety of people; you have lots of clout with someone influential.

TODAY'S CHILDREN seem wise beyond their years. Although they appear shy on the surface, these Sagittarians are quietly assertive. They will probably be happiest working for themselves as writers or lawyers. Elegant clothes and formal dinners will appeal to their sense of stylishness. They make excellent hosts and considerate guests. Count on them to be fiercely loyal to their families and friends.

It's official: Ted Turner to marry actress Fonda

ATLANTA (AP) — Media magnate Ted Turner confirmed Thursday that he and actress Jane Fonda will be married, about a year from now.

"We're engaged. We are going to wait a year," Turner said during a private reception before a Variety Club of Atlanta dinner in his honor.

Ms. Fonda shyly displayed the engagement ring given her by Turner, chairman of Atlanta-based Turner Broadcasting System Inc., the parent company of Cable News Network.

"I've been married twice, but I never had one before," she said of the ring, an opal set between two diamonds.

Turner bought the ring at Tiffany's last month in Los Angeles. At the time, a publicist for Ms. Fonda said he planned to give it to her on her birthday, Dec. 21.

The marriage would be the third for both Ms. Fonda, 52, and Turner, 51. She has two children, he has five.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Corey Feldman's latest run-in with the law is over traffic tickets.

Feldman

The 19-year-old star of the movies "The Lost Boys," "Gremlins" and "Stand By Me" was arrested late Thursday, said Sgt. Pat Findley of the Los Angeles Police Department's Hollywood division.

Officers had spotted his BMW blocking a driveway and discovered there was an outstanding traffic warrant for his arrest, Findley said. They also determined that Feldman had a suspended driver's license, Findley said.

Feldman was released early Friday after paying $528 in outstanding tickets and fines, Findley said.

He was to appear in Los Angeles Traffic Court on Jan. 2, the sergeant said.

It was Feldman's third arrest this year.

NEW YORK (AP) — First they were accused of stealing somebody else's voice. Then, it was the Grammy thing. Now, lip synchers Milli Vanilli are accused of stealing somebody's melody.

Lip synchers Milli Vanilli are being sued for alleged copyright infringement by Blood, Sweat and Tears' David Clayton-Thomas.

Clayton-Thomas says the melody of the song "Spinning Wheel," which he wrote in 1968, was used without his permission in "All or Nothing" from Milli Vanilli's hit album "Girl You Know It's True."

"This suit is about the song they didn't write on the album they didn't sing," said Clayton-Thomas' lawyer, Robert Marcus.

The duo, Rob Pilatus and Fabrice Morvan, were forced to give back a Grammy they won for best new artist after it was revealed they did not sing the album's songs and were lip-synching the words in concerts.

The suit, filed Thursday, seeks $120 million and names as defendants Pilatus, Morvan, producer Frank Farian and EMI Music Publishing Inc., which holds Clayton-Thomas' music copyrights in trust.

The whereabouts of Farian, Pilatus and Morvan were not immediately known.

LONDON (AP) — Actress Joan Collins says she wants people to see her play roles other than "the glamorous vixen type," so she's filming eight Noel Coward comedies for British television.

Collins

Collins is best known for playing the decidedly vixenish Alexis Carrington Colby on the TV series "Dynasty." She currently is starring in a London stage production of Coward's "Private Lives."

"I don't always want to be perceived as the glamorous vixen type," Collins said.

The television project, entitled "Tonight At 8:30," will begin airing in April on the British Broadcasting Corp., Collins told reporters Friday.

The new series will cast her in roles that range from a fading music hall star to an elegant femme fatale.

Tom Hanks, co-star of the soon-to-be-released motion picture, "Bonfire of the Vanieties," is made up for taping of promotional annoucements for NBCs "Saturday Night Live." Hanks will guest host the show with the Texas-based band, Edie Brickel and The New Bohemians.

Injured Trail Blazer plans return to native Puerto Rico

Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Ramon Ramos said "thank you" Friday. Considering what happened to him a year ago, the words seemed a miracle.

The 23-year-old former Portland Trail Blazer, whose lifelong goal of a professional basketball career ended in a near-fatal car crash last Dec. 16, returns to his native Puerto Rico on Saturday.

"You've been so good to me," he told the staff at the Rehabilitation Institute of Oregon at a going-away gathering Friday. "Thank you very, very much."

Speaking slowly in a soft voice, Ramos repeated the "thank you" again and again. Then he turned to the bank of cameras and reporters and asked, "Any questions?"

Ramos' father, Ramon Sr., had requested that there be no questions from reporters for his son, who is not, and probably never will be, fully recovered from the severe brain injury suffered in the crash.

Still, someone did ask if he was anxious to get home.

"I've been trying to go home," he said.

The 6-foot, 8-inch Ramos helped Seton Hall to a second-place finish in the 1988 NCAA tournament. He signed with Portland as a free agent and had just been activated by the Blazers when tragedy struck.

The car Ramos was driving in the early morning hours was traveling at 84 mph to 102 mph when it hit a patch of ice on Interstate 5 south of Portland, flew 40 feet and rolled eight times. Ramos, who was not wearing a seat belt, was thrown from the vehicle and landed on his head.

He spent the next two months in a coma. Doctors gave him a 50-50 chance of living. When he slowly emerged from the coma, he was transferred to the rehabilitation institute. Five months ago, he was allowed to move back to his apartment with his parents but he continued daily therapy at the institute's Community Re-Entry Service.

"I think he's made significant progress," said Cheryl Flegel, manager of the re-entry program. "It's been amazing to watch him change from day to day and week to week and month to month."

But he will require rehabilitation for several more years and may never be able to completely care for himself.

"We hope that he will be able to live at least in a supportive situation, where he may have some support in and out or actually living with him," Flegel said.

Ramos now understands the seriousness of his injuries and the impact on his basketball career.

"I think it's been extremely difficult for him like it would be for any of us when we recognize that we've lost something that we worked very hard to achieve," Flegel said. "And with that comes frustration and anger and difficulty in controlling all those kinds of emotions.

"At this time it is difficult for him to be on a basketball court, but he will do that again."

Last week, Ramos was taken to a Trail Blazer game, but he left abruptly.

"He just turned around and walked out," said Charlene Hodges, the Blazers' vice president of finance. "His dad said just seeing the players on the court bothered him. He got quiet for several days after that."

Ramos' parents have remained in Portland throughout their son's recovery. Ramon Sr. thanked all those who had helped the family, especially the doctors, nurses, therapists and Trail Blazers.

"I can't find enough words to express my gratitude," he said through an interpreter. "But I can assure you all that we'll always have you in our hearts."

Players and coach Rick Adelman have come to the institute to help with Ramos' rehabilitation.

Turner grabs Walker lead

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — New Zealand's Greg Turner moved into a one-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the Johnnie Walker Classic Friday by firing a 3-under-par 69 in the second round. He had a 137 for 36 holes.

Former U.S. Amateur champion Chris Patton and Simon Owen of New Zealand, who shared the first-round lead at 67, both fell well back after dismal rounds Friday. Patton had a 79 and Owen a 75 in windy and rainy conditions.

Gabriel Hjertstedt, a 19-year-old Swede, matched Turner's 68 and moved into second place at 138.

Hjertstedt turned pro after helping Sweden to victory in the Eisenhower Trophy in New Zealand two months ago. He has made the cut in his four professional tournaments.

"I'm out here enjoying myself and learning," Hjertstedt said. "I want to be on top when I am 30 or 32."

Australian Rodger Davis and American Raymond Floyd were tied for third at 139 after rounds of 69.

PGA Tour money-leader Greg Norman dropped five shots in the first four holes but rallied to finish with a 73 for a 144 total. British Open and Masters champion Nick Faldo had a 74 for a 146 total.

Floyd complained about the weather, which went from blistering heat and powerful winds to cool conditions and rain and back again.

Because the greens remained firm and fast, the wind had affected putting more than in any tournament that he could remember.

"The wind made a decent golf shot look horrible and it almost got to the point where we had to hit a perfect shot every time to survive," Floyd said. "I'm drained."

African soccer players decry German racism

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Three African soccer players in the German league complained Friday that racism is growing among German fans..

"We are not fair game," the three said in a letter published Friday in the newspaper Bild, and they asked fans to stop shouting racial slurs at the black players during games.

The letter was signed by Anthony Yeboah of Ghana, Souleyman Sane Senegal and Anthony Baffoe, also of Ghana. Yeboah plays for Eintracht Frankfurt, Sane for Wattenscheid, and Baffoe for Fortuna Duesseldorf.

All three teams are in the first Bundesliga division. Sane is one of the leading forwards with seven goals this season.

"The last half of the year has been very difficult for us. Racist calls from the stands are unfortunately increasing," the letter said. "The kind of insults we have to endure at the stadiums breaks our hearts."

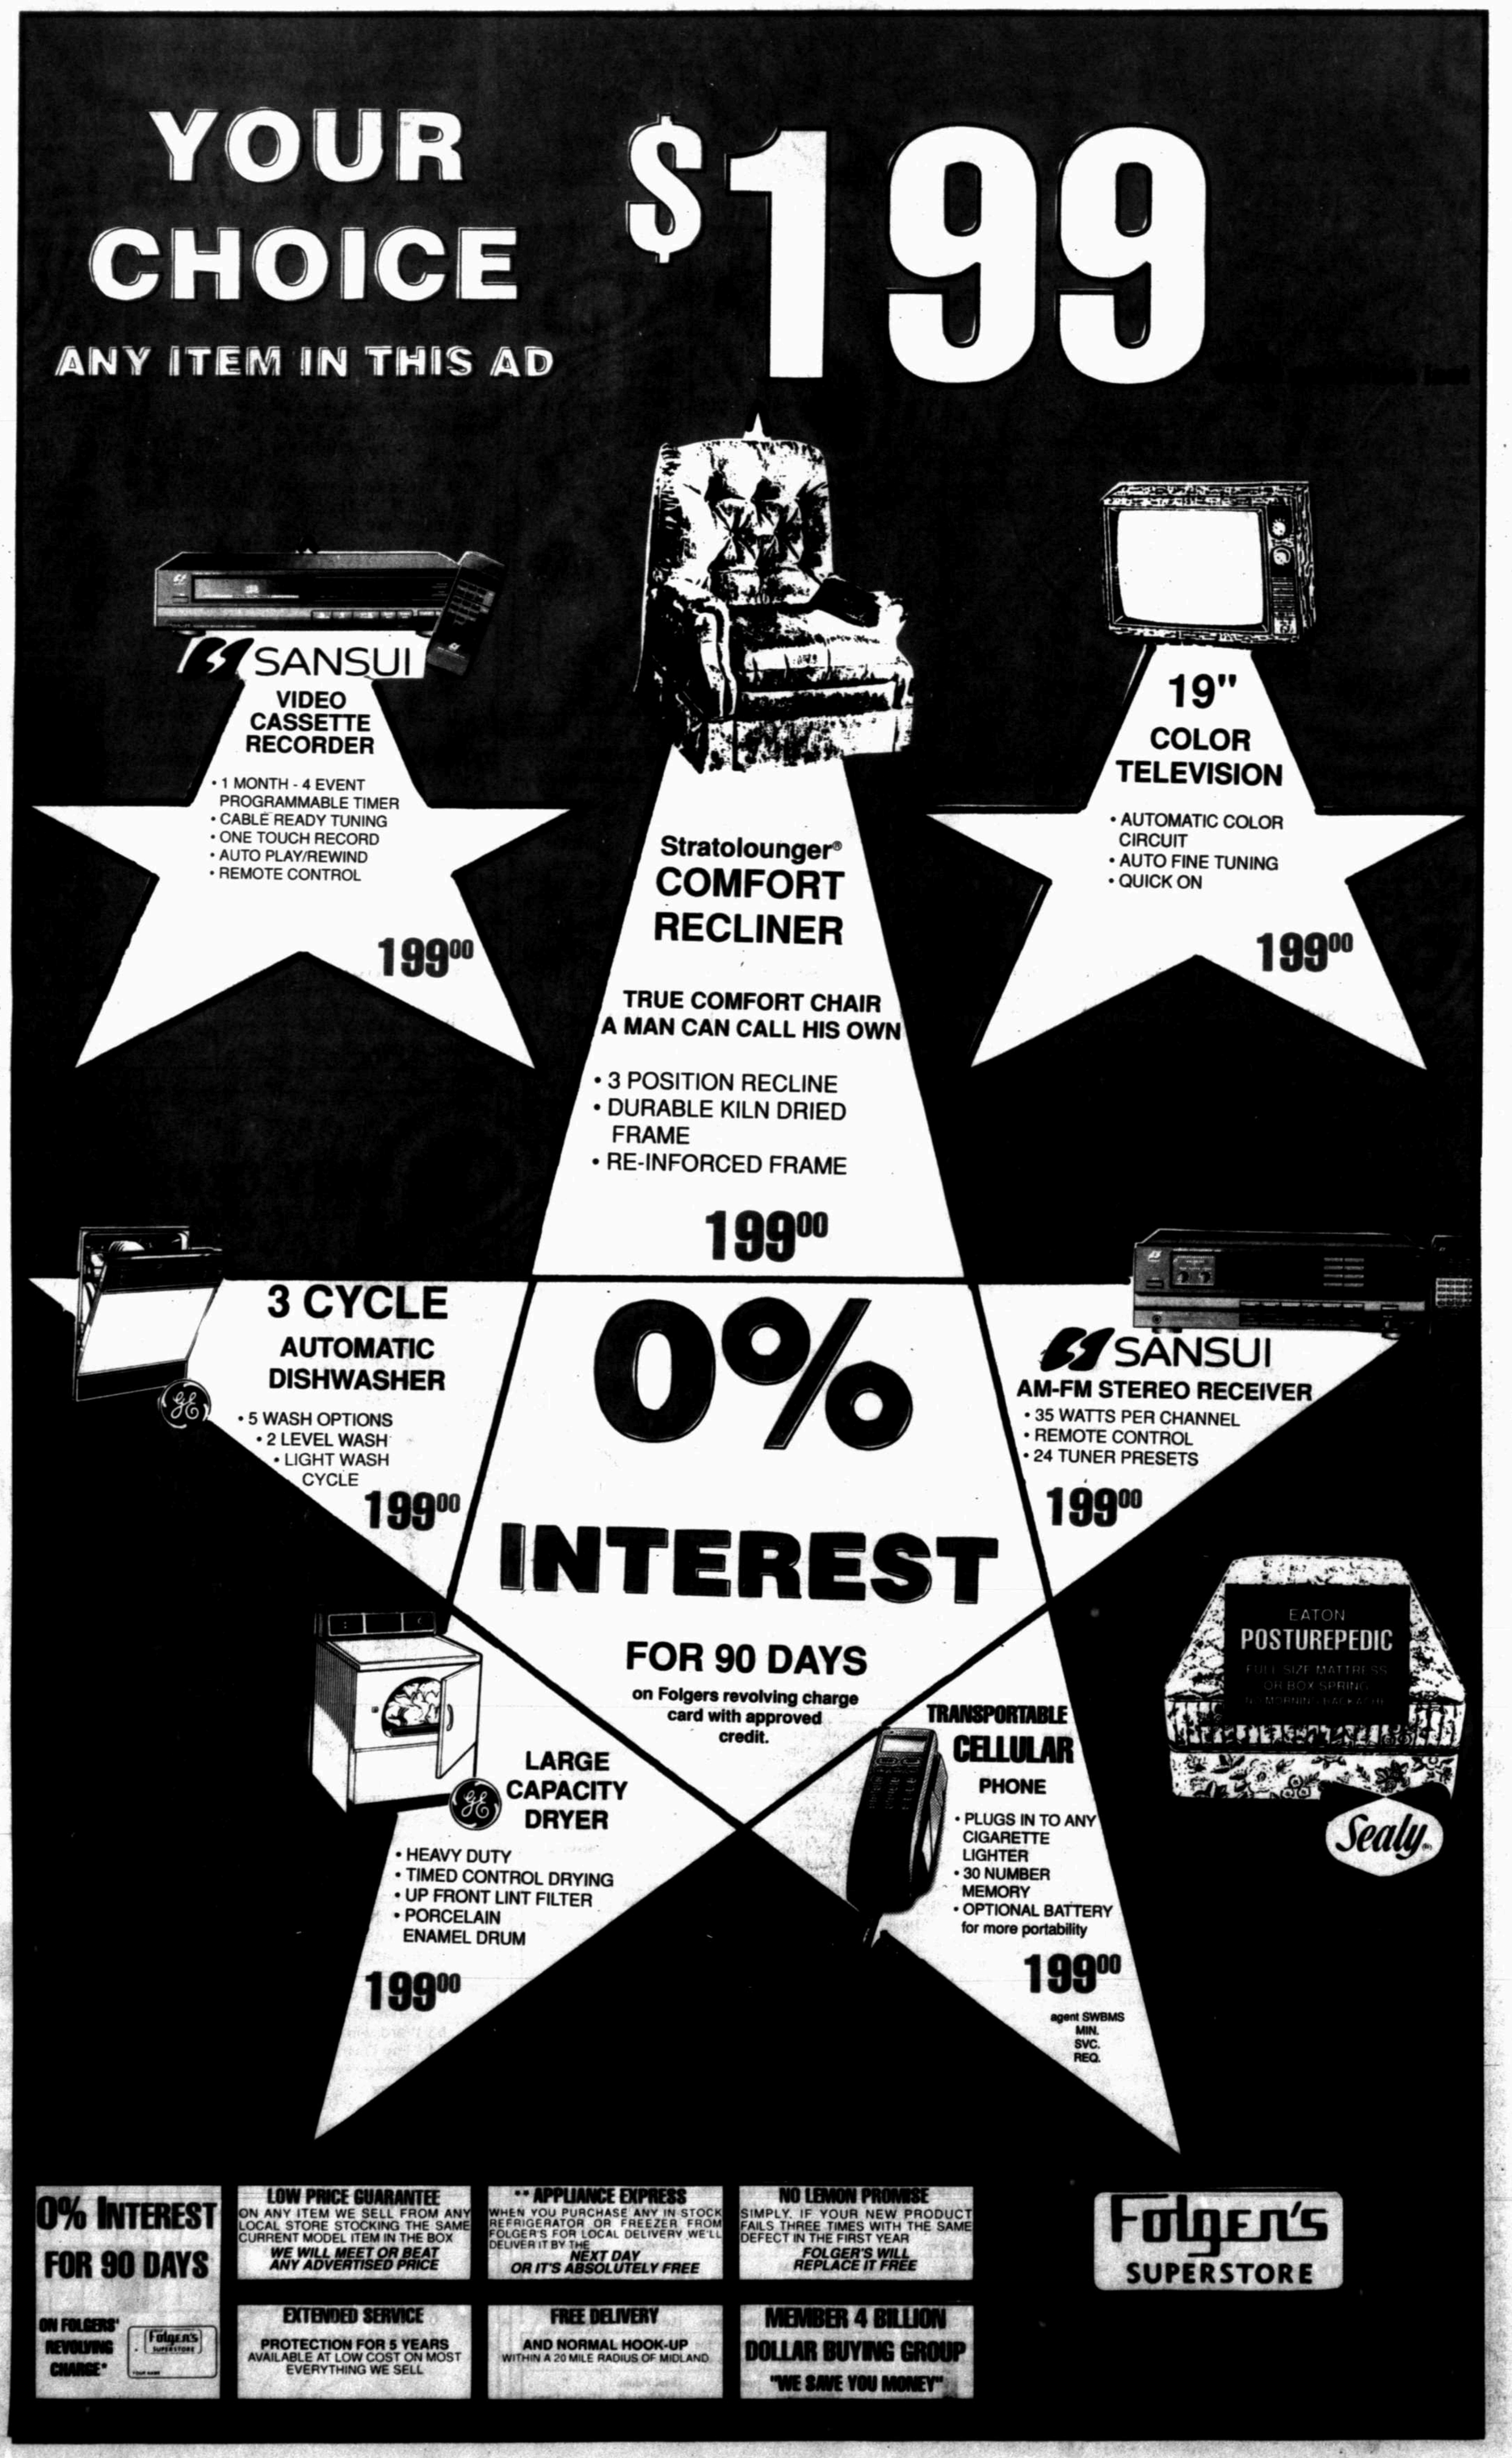
The letter urged German clubs to do more to stop their fans from insulting black players. It said only one club, St. Pauli from Hamburg, had printed leaflets asking fans to stop insulting African players.

The three players said racist fans were showing a "fearful ignorance of our culture," adding that such behavior was increasing the danger of violence at stadiums.

"Will we have to fear for our lives next? The clubs have to make a move. In no other European country are black soccer players exposed to such defamation," they said.

Yeboah, Baffoe and Sane said they will join the players union, hoping that their colleagues will show some sympathy.

"Dear fans, how would you feel in a foreign land if you were so insulted? Black or white, people have the right to be handled with dignity. Think about it when you go to the stadiums," the letter concluded.



Tomato juice tossed on women wearing furs

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Animal rights activists caused a stir at the opening of the La Scala opera season Friday night when they hurled tomato juice at women wearing furs.

The trio — two women and a man — hurled juice at plain-clothes police who surrounded them, turning their shirts and jackets red. At least two women's furs were splattered red by the juice.

"This is not the temple of 'bel canto' (beautiful song) but an exhibition of furs which drip blood!" the man shouted as he was dragged out of the theater.

The demonstrators slipped through tight security into the main entrance to attack the women in furs.

Police said the three demonstrators were released without charge.

La Scala's gala night, inaugurating the opera season of Italy's most renowned theater, has a long tradition of protests.

However the most feared demonstrators, striking metalworkers, did not show up. Dozens of riot police quietly patroled the theater area, near the cathedral square in downtown Milan.

Despite freezing temperatures, about 200 onlookers standing behind iron barriers commented on and applauded the entrance of smart theater-goers.

On the artistic side, the gala night was enlightened by a rare performance of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart's Idomeneo.

The opera's main characters were played by Swedish tenor Gosta Winbergh and by three American singers — Delores Ziegler, Carol Vaness and Patricia Schumann.

Riccardo Muti conducted the opera.

World trade negotiations collapse over subsidies

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — World trade negotiations collapsed Friday when the United States and the European Community refused to back down and end a bitter dispute over reductions in farm subsidies.

"They must both have glass eyes because no one blinked," Canada's trade minister, John Crosbie, said after bargaining was suspended in the 107-nation negotiations, the most comprehensive trade talks ever.

Uruguay's foreign minister, Hector Gros Espiell, halted five days of discussions after the EC rejected a compromise requiring deeper cuts in its extensive farm support program.

Gros Espiell promised to restart the talks, possibly next month in Geneva, after further consultations to try to resolve the contentious farm issue.

But no one seemed in a hurry to get together again.

"When it is clear that a basis exists for successfully concluding the round, the United States will return to the negotiating table," said U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills.

"We need this cooling-off period to get a full evaluation of the situation," said India's commerce minister, Subramanian Swamy.

President Bush, who was in Caracas, Venezuela, said late Friday the United States "remains committed" to completing the trade talks.

"Accordingly, it is our hope that participants, especially the EC, will take this opportunity to reflect upon their position on agriculture and develop the political will to negotiate real market-opening agreements while there is still time to do so," said Bush.

The suspension occurred in what was supposed to be the final week of bargaining in the Uruguay Round, the negotiations begun in 1986 in the South American country.

The talks were designed to overhaul the world trading system by rewriting the rules and lowering barriers to trade in 15 areas, including textiles, agriculture, manufactured goods and services such as banking, telecommunications and construction.

Success, officials have said, will give an enormous boost to the world economy well into the 21st century.

The agriculture fight attracted the most attention during the bargaining because the United States and others have insisted they won't budge on other areas without a deal on farm subsidies.

The United States, backed by Australia, Argentina, Uruguay and others, insisted the community slash such assistance by 75 percent to 90 percent, with the deepest cuts in export subsidies.

The EC refused, contending that hefty slashes would force some of its 10 million farmers off the land. Its original offer called only for a 30 percent cut in limited areas.

Each side blamed the other for the failure.

"We were prepared to continue negotiations ... We didn't walk out of the room," said Frans Andriessen, the community's top trade official.

The negotations are sponsored by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which was set up in 1947 as a forum and an agreement for promoting freer world trade.

Three of a kind

At this point these three kittens are not very different from one another. Similar marking . . . all cuddly . . . identically impelled with a desire to explore the world.

Later they will begin to show individuality and respond to the personalities of those humans who soon become their world.

The human process of growing up has parallels. Only gradually does individuality become evident. The developing child will also be strongly influenced by those closest who, likewise, become his or her world.

Our churches and synagogues in their ministry to families build upon this principle. While strengthening family relationships, they help children to grow spiritually at their own pace. Their emphasis on truth and commitment makes the example of grownups more effective, more inspiring.

Your children deserve and your family needs God's ministry to YOU.

Tall City Christian has new minister

Dr. Lee Wineinger has accepted the call to come to Midland to minister to the new Tall City Christian Church. Wineinger is well qualified to work in helping to establish this new congregation. He has been involved in new church pioneering in both Texas and Arizona.

Wineinger

Wineinger and his wife, Marlene, have three married children, twin sons in college, and one daughter, April, at home. He has served in preaching ministries for some 24 years, seeing more than 450 commitments to Christ. Counseling has been an important part of his ministries as he has sought to minister to hurting lives and relationships.

Dallas Christian College is Wineinger's alma mater. He received the master of divinity degree in preaching from Lincoln Christian Seminary, Ill.; and the doctor of ministry in marriage and family from Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary, Pennsylvania in 1984.

Wineinger is past president of Martinsville, Ill., Lions Club, and board member of the Chamber of Commerce, is a member of the American Association of Christian Counselors and American Association of Family Counselors.

Beginning with a five-year professorship at Dallas Christian College in the 1970s, Wineinger has worked with healing of mind and body through counseling opportunities. He worked with the families of the mentally impaired for two years and directed treatment of men in a residential drug and alcohol recovery program.

The Wineingers hold enrichment experiences for couples, singles and families, and Dr. Wineinger is extremely concerned to enhance relationships in the context of the church. He feels strongly in non-denominational Christianity.

Having worked and studied with many different "stripes" of Christians, he believes in the unity of believers through fulfilling Christ's commission to make disciples (learners, followers). "We want to reach out to those hurt and discouraged with encouragement from the creator of the university," he said.

Local Bible study group becomes incorporated

The Businesswomen's Bible Study, originating in Midland, has now incorporated to become Myrtle Tree Ministries. The staff of Myrtle Tree is Paula Ramsey, founder and president; Pam Holleman, chairman; Kate Bushon, secretary; Marie Holloway, prayer chairman; Lisa Powers, seminar and retreat coordinator; Kay Andrews, accountant and supplies coordinator; and Ann Sealy, Bible study group coordinator.

The organization has been formed to be a means of bringing organized Bible studies to working women in other communities. Groups are now being formed in Lubbock and Hobbs, N.M. Information from Myrtle Tree will be sent to anyone interested in having a group organized in another town or community.

Myrtle Tree Ministries has produced a study notebook "Called To Blessing" which is made available to those attending the Bible Study groups, or it may be purchased in Midland at the Lighthouse Bookstore and Dearly Beloved gift shop or at the Odessa Scripture Shop.

The Midland group, meeting at the ClayDesta Twin Towers West, Suite 140 each Thursday from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., will begin a new study on January 3, 1991. The study will be presented by Paula Ramsey and is entitled "The Place of Blessing." All working women are invited to attend. Interested parties needing further information may call 683-5610 or 682-6748.

The men's Bible study, led by Johnny Brown and Dean Rowe, will meet in the above suite each Wednesday at noon. All men are invited to attend. Brown and Rowe, along with Steve Becker and Dick Spencer make up the Board of Directors for Myrtle Tree Ministries.

Judaic customs being revived

NEW YORK (AP) — Traditional customs and ceremonies are being revived in Reform Judaism that had once largely abandoned them, a survey found.

A commission for the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and its rabbinical organization, the Central Conference of American Rabbis, reported these findings:

■ Yarmulkes (skullcaps) are provided at 59 percent of the congregations.

■ Nearly all the reporting congregations kindle the Sabbath candles before Friday evening services.

■ Blessings are recited before and after reading from the Torah (Biblical books) at Sabbath morning services at 87 percent of the congregations, and more than half report marching with the Torah held aloft.

■ Like Orthodox and Conservative congregations, two days of Rosh Hashana are observed by 35 percent of the Reform congregations.

Rabbi Sanford Seltzer, director of the survey commission, said the trend "is not a return to Orthodoxy, but rather the expressions of a post-Holocaust generation of Reform Jews seeking new dimensions of spirituality."

Group to divest tobacco firms' portfolio

BOSTON (AP) — Trustees of the Unitarian Universalist Association have decided to divest its portfolio of stocks and bonds of companies engaged in the manufacture and distribution of tobacco products.

Services held in hotel lounge

By Joe Edwards

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The preacher wears jeans and a western shirt. The worshipers sit on bar stools. The offering plate is a cowboy hat.

It's the Nashville Cowboy Church, which holds services in a hotel lounge.

Harry Yates, 47, the minister-founder of the church, says cowboys attended church services in saloons, so since late September he's been preaching every Sunday in the hotel lounge.

"We've been called a few names here and there about meeting in the bar and dressing the way we do," Yates said. "I seem to remember that Jesus was called a wine bibber. I think we're in good company. We're supposed to preach the gospel everywhere."

Yates' clerical garb for the non-denominational service is jeans, western shirt, bolo tie and cowboy hat — the collection plate.

"We're not doctrinal, and I just preach a short message, 15 or 20 minutes," he said.

Yates, ordained in the Independent Assemblies of God, doesn't rail against drinking and carousing and the like.

"We don't preach against things. We just preach the gospel of Jesus Christ."

A couple of guitar players supply the music.

When services are over, worshipers get $2 off the price of brunch at the hotel restaurant. "It's an incentive," Yates said.

Attendance has averaged more than 30 even though the church is just getting started. Roughly half are tourists, many of whom spent the night before listening to cry-in-your-beer country music at the Grand Ole Opry three miles down the road.

"Tourists come to town and don't bring suits and ties," Yates said. "At our services, you can dress any way you like. We're trying to take away excuses for not going to church."

Bob Darmos, a manager for a Nashville trash company, has been attending the church regularly.

"I was skeptical at first, going to a saloon and being so casual. But you can relax, be yourself and worship. It puts you in the right frame of mind."

Priest-novelist envisions theoretical changes

By George W. Cornell

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholic leadership at present says "no" to some theoretical changes that a prominent theologian and a big-selling priest-novelist imagine as happening.

Girzone

They cast their visions in different forms, one in a scholar's hypothetical scenario of a new pope's election, the other as a fictional account of an American bishop's path-breaking innovations.

If their fancies precede reality, then Roman Catholicism one of these days will officially take up ordaining women and allowing priests to marry if they choose.

That doesn't appear plausible under the present firm stance against it by Pope John Paul II and the shunning of the idea by the recently concluded Vatican synod on the priesthood.

However, surveys find majorities of American Catholics would approve it, and it comes to storied fruition in a new novel, "The Shepherd," and also flowers in the speculations of Notre Dame scholar, the Rev. Richard McBrien.

In the novel, the Rev. Joseph F. Girzone, an Albany, N.Y., priest, tells of a dutiful Midwestern priest who is named a bishop and begins a series of drastic reforms.

These include assigning married priests to evangelizing tasks, ordaining women as deacons, a first step toward the priesthood, and forming a unified ministry with Lutheran, Methodist and Episcopal bishops.

Girzone, whose previous best-selling novel, "Joshua," portrays a modern-day Jesus figure, keeps Joshua around in the new novel to advise and encourage the bishop in critical moments.

"Don't put new wine into old wineskins," Joshua advises. "Old molds are part of the past and are not sacred. New situations need new tools if the church is to help people through difficult times."

The publisher has sent copies of the novel to all the country's cardinals, archbishops and some bishops.

The fictional Bishop David Campbell meets stiff opposition, even on his own staff, but gets confidential support by many bishops, though they fear to take similar steps.

He also has the secret backing of the pope himself, who strives to hold off upset Vatican officials. On the pope's death, the reformer Campbell, by a fluke of circumstances, succeeds him.

McBrien, head of the theology department of the University of Notre Dame, envisions the reforms as coming with the conjectured election of a new pope, John XXIV, about the end of the decade.

In a syndicated column, McBrien says the imaginary new pope, named after the late reforming Pope John XXIII, immediately announces the calling of another ecumenical council, Vatican III.

Among its surmised concerns would be the church's ban on contraception, ignored by most Catholics, the shortage of priests, the requirement of priestly celibacy, and the ordination of women.

"I expect that some members of the church who were pleased with many ecclesiastical policies during the past decade will not be comfortable with the changes I have announced," the fancied new pope tells a news conference.

He nullifies the Vatican's recently promulgated "loyalty oath" and expanded "profession of faith" for priests, and announces the resignation of the Vatican's doctrinal watchdog, Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger.

"The church itself must remain acutely conscious of its own sinfulness and weakness," the new pope says. "That is why I will issue no call for discipline and obedience, unless it is good news, and unless it is obedience to the reign of God, which is a reign of justice and peace."

Unlike the previous Vatican council, the imaginary new one would include lay persons as well as bishops, as many women as men, and delegates of other Christian churches would have the right to participate in debates.

"As the church enters a new century and a new millennium, we must show the world what it means to be a community of understanding, of patience, of mercy and compassion," says the fancied new pope.

In Girzone's novel, "The Shepherd," the reformist U.S. bishop also finally becomes pope, but only after his revamping of church practices gets him exiled to an isolated, desert post.

Girzone keeps his theology folksy, writing in a simple, almost fairy-tale style. His previous novel, "Joshua," has sold nearly a million copies.

In the new novel, the bishop gets regular encouragement from the almost ubiquitous Joshua about the difficulties of introducing new and revitalizing forms of ministry.

"God is concerned about his children, not about structures, which exist only to aid God's children," Joshua says. "When you ask yourself, 'What would Jesus do?' the answer is simple, but to follow is the way of the cross.

"Church leaders are no different than anyone. ... They may have the good of the church at heart, but they, like others, rarely ask, 'What would Jesus do?' "

LIFESCOPE

Get Ready For The Great Harvest! Lifescope Says, "Which Part Will You Be In?"

Jesus told [the crowds] another parable, "The kingdom of heaven is like a man who sowed good seed in his field. One night, when everyone was asleep, an enemy came and sowed weeds among the wheat, and went away. When the plants grew and the heads of grain began to form, then the weeds showed up. The man's servants came to him and said, 'Sir, it was good seed you sowed in your field; where did the weeds come from?'

"'It was an enemy who did this,' he answered.

"'Do you want us to go and pull up the weeds?' they asked him.

"'No,' he answered, 'because as you gather the weeds you might pull up some of the wheat along with them. Let the wheat and the weeds both grow together until harvest, and then I will tell the harvest workers: Pull up the weeds first and tie them in bundles to throw in the fire; then gather in the wheat and put it in my barn.'"

. . . Then Jesus left the crowd and went indoors. His disciples came to Him and said, "Tell us what the parable of the weeds in the field means." Jesus answered, "The man who sowed the good seed is the Son of Man; the field is the world; the good seed is the people who belong to the kingdom; the weeds are the people who belong to the Evil One; and the enemy who sowed the weeds is the Devil. The harvest is the end of the age, and the harvest workers are angels. Just as the weeds are gathered up and burned in the fire, so it will be at the end of the age: the Son of Man will send out His angels and they will gather up out of His kingdom all who cause people to sin, and all other evildoers, and throw them into the fiery furnace, where they will cry and gnash their teeth. Then God's people will shine like the sun in their Father's kingdom. Listen, then, if you have ears!"

[The Lord showed the apostle John a vision about the end times:] And I looked, and behold, a white cloud, and on the cloud sat One like the Son of Man, having on His head a golden crown, and in His hand a sharp sickle. And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to Him Who sat on the cloud, "Thrust in Your sickle and reap, for the time has come for You to reap, for the harvest of the earth is ripe." So He Who sat on the cloud thrust in His sickle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

Minister both Methodist, Catholic

Associated Press

Convinced it's now warranted, the Rev. William R. Farmer is both a United Methodist and a Roman Catholic. The combination contrasts with the separate institutional postures, but he says there is firm basis for it.

Farmer

His rare, joint allegiance puts into effect for an individual the ecumenical movement's unifying goal for the churches. They haven't yet made it formally, but he says the way has opened for it on essentials.

Consequently, he said, he acted to "live a reality that is here, but that still is hidden to most people" — even though Protestant-Catholic dialogue teams have found sufficient mutuality for it.

"You have to act proleptically, to see something coming, and act now as if that which is coming is already here," he said in an interview. "It's apparently not going to happen in my lifetime.

"So I've taken steps to actualize it in my own life in a practical way. It works for me. I don't see any need to wait for official bodies 100 years from now to iron out some of these minor things."

Farmer, 69, a longtime New Testament professor at Southern Methodist University's Perkins School of Theology, joined Holy Cross Roman Catholic Church in Dallas last Jan. 25, but he also kept his Methodist affiliation.

His unusual step has raised some canonical questions in both denominations that still are to be clarified. He said he has had a "lot of reaction, the gist of almost all of it positive."

"I don't regard it as a conversion, or that I've put away my Methodist heritage at all," he said, noting that he continues his Methodist university post and serves as an assistant pastor at St. Luke's Community Methodist Church in Dallas.

At the same time, Farmer said, at the Catholic Holy Cross parish led by a longtime friend, the Rev. Timothy Gollop, he was seen as "bringing into that church a very rich Methodist heritage."

"I'm trying to be fully in both congregations in a single ministry, and in the whole church, recognizing its oneness, above all in matters of race," Farmer said.

Both he and Gollop are white. The two congregations on Dallas' south side are made up largely of blacks and Hispanics. Farmer said that "the new age of ecumenism" is taking place in concepts of God's "option for the poor."

"It's grass roots ecumenism," he said. "It's happening all over the world, in homes, in churches. Officials don't know what to do with it. Accordingly, there are no provisions for it and no restrictions against it.

"It's best not to cause scandal, but go ahead and do it, being sure you're doing it in good conscience and doing it in obedience to the Gospel."

'There still are differences and some are important, but they're not great enough to justify our not being able to share the Lord's Supper.'

— The Rev. William Farmer

Temporarily, Farmer is on leave as resident theologian at the Methodist Mission Resource Center at Emory University in Atlanta and as a research scholar at Columbia Presbyterian Seminary there.

He said that when he returns to his teaching post and ministry in Dallas in January, it will be up to the Roman Catholic and United Methodist bishops there to adjudicate his special status.

"They're studying it," he said. "It doesn't mean we're out of the woods. I don't know what the outcome will be. A lot of good friends in both churches have been very encouraging. It remains to be seen what the bishops will do."

Farmer said Catholic dialogue teams with Methodists, Lutherans and Episcopalians have found concurrence on most major issues, including a modified papacy, with the pope as presiding officer over a representtive council.

He said basic accord also has been found on Christ's "real presence" in Holy Communion. "Basically, Roman Catholic understanding of it is very close to that of (Methodist founder) John Wesley," Farmer said.

"There still are differences and some are important, but they're not great enough to justify our not being able to share the Lord's Supper," he added. "It's a scandal that we're divided at the Lord's table.

"We ought to be ashamed at the excuses we use. It must be very painful to Christ."

Farmer said that as assistant pastor at St. Luke's, he does not preside in celebrating Holy Communion, but receives it both there and in the Catholic church. Catholic rules generally bar Protestant reception in Catholic services.

With his dual membership surmounting that barrier personally, Farmer said the churches "should find some way of taking communion together on an officially approved basis."

Most rank-and-file church people, both Protestants and Catholics, "still are living with stereotypes of the past," in which the two Christian branches are seen as contradictory, he said.

"But when you get together, and look at the living Gospel, you find those contradictions disappear," he said. "You find out that essentially they are the same faith."

Blind minister with guide dog accused of insubordination

ELLENDALE, Del. (AP) — A blind minister who was barred from the pulpit when he brought his guide dog to services has been accused by the church's head pastor of alleged insubordination, disrespect and causing dissension.

The Rev. Le Roy Singleton will get a chance to argue his case Sunday before the 128-member congregation of the Mount Zion AME Church, said the head pastor, the Rev. Ellsworth Coleman.

Coleman said he levied the allegations during a recent church meeting.

"I said to him he was out of line by going outside of the church to the news media with these problems. ... I told him that what he had done has caused (dissension) within our church. I said he was disrespectful of the church laws," Coleman said.

Coleman did not mention any possible discipline against Singleton.

Singleton had sat in the pulpit ever since he was ordained in 1988. But when he got the dog from a training center in September, the pastor, the Rev. Ellsworth Coleman, banished the pair to the back of the church.

"The whole thing stems from one thing. He does not want the dog in the church," Singleton said.

Singleton has maintained that he and Digby, a German shepherd-collie mix, should be allowed to sit anywhere in the church, including the front pew with other ministers.

"If (Coleman) doesn't invite me up there (in the pulpit), I can accept it. But I feel that I should be able to walk into the church and sit anywhere I choose to be seated," Singleton said.

Since being barred from the pulpit, Singleton has contacted the local chapter of the National Federation of the Blind, which called the news media about the dispute.

WORLD IN BRIEF

France, German work for unity

BONN, Germany (AP) — Germany and France, seeking to set the tone for an European Community summit, on Friday urged that Europe create common citizenship and defense policies.

But Chancellor Helmut Kohl and French President Francois Mitterrand said EC leaders "should respect the obligations already made" to the North American Treaty Organization.

With the Cold War over, there has been growing discussion over the role of the U.S.-dominated NATO in Europe. Many have proposed strengthening Europe's own defenses.

Kohl and Mitterrand made the proposals in a letter to Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti, the host of the EC summit Dec. 14-15 in Rome.

"The political union should embrace a genuine common security policy, which at the end should lead to a common defense," they said.

The letter was released in Bonn as NATO defense ministers announced tentative agreement on a new defense strategy. The defense ministers, meeting in Brussels, called for a reduced U.S. presence in Europe, smaller forces and maintaining a mix of conventional and nuclear arms.

Theft suspect charged

PARIS (AP) — A 30-year-old Corsican was charged Friday in connection with the 1985 theft of nine impressionist masterpieces from a Paris museum.

The works, including Claude Monet's "Impression Sunrise," which gave the movement its name, were stolen Oct. 27, 1985, from the Marmottan Museum.

During the daytime theft, five masked gunmen held about 40 visitors and guards at bay while making off with four Monets, two Renoirs and three other works. The stolen works were recovered by police this week.

The suspect, Pierre Comiti, was arrested in Corsica and flown to Paris, where he was charged Friday with receiving goods stolen in an armed robbery. Judge Catherine Courcol ordered him held indefinitely.

Police questioned Comiti after finding photographs of the stolen paintings at his home in Corsica, a French-controlled Mediterranean island. He reportedly led investigators to an unoccupied villa where the paintings were being kept.

Round of talks end

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — U.S. and Filipino officials ended a third round of talks on the future of U.S. military bases Friday without agreeing on the extent to which Philippine laws should apply to the facilities.

"Both sides understand the importance of satisfactorily addressing this vital component of the prospective bilateral defense relationship," a joint statement said.

"Any agreement entered into by both sides will fully reflect Philippine sovereignty as well as the full measure of equality and partnership ... the U.S. has with its other allies and partners around the world," the statement added.

The United States controls Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base, which are among the largest American overseas military facilities, and four smaller installations under an agreement that expires in September 1991. A new treaty is required to keep the facilities after that.

Philippine panel spokesman Rafael Alunan said discussions on the status of forces agreement, which defines the extent to which Philippine laws apply to the bases, will continue in January.

U.S. chief negotiator Richard Armitage left Manila Friday shortly after the latest round of talks with Filipino officials led by Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus.

Flight inquiry adjourns

DUMFRIES, Scotland (AP) — A Pan Am official on Friday told an inquiry into the 1988 terrorist bombing of Flight 103 that one of the flight crew who died on the doomed jet should not have been on board.

The inquiry then adjourned for the Christmas holidays until Jan. 22.

Pan Am's director of flight services, Michael Sullivan, said Flight 103, with 246 passengers on board, should have had 12 flight attendants instead of 13.

All passengers and crew died when the flight exploded over Lockerbie, Scotland, on Dec. 21, 1988.

Falling debris from the jumbo jet that orginated in Frankfurt, Germany, killed 11 others on the ground.

Soviets demand meeting

MOSCOW (AP) — Hard-line lawmakers who want to take emergency control of the country met with legislative leaders Friday, but a powerful right-wing politician called the meeting unconstitutional and boycotted it, news reports said.

The organizer of the meeting in the Kremlin played down any serious divisions, indicating he hopes the increasingly assertive hard-line politicians can be unified in the fractious political climate enveloping the country.

In a separate development, a lawmaker reportedly said his faction would demand that parliamentarians vote on the "professional aptitude" of Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze for supporting the possible use of force against Iraq.

Promised rebuilding unfulfilled in Armenia

MOSCOW (AP) — State television, showing tear-streaked faces and ramshackle tents, said Friday on the anniversary of the 1988 Armenian earthquake that thousands of Armenians remain homeless despite government promises of help.

"We didn't fulfill our duty," a somber correspondent reported from Armenia on the national nightly newscast "Vremya."

Panning across whole blocks of idle construction equipment and tent cities, the correspondent described the failed rebuilding effort after the quake that killed 25,000. He stopped short of outright criticism of the government on its own national newscast.

"The 2-year-old state program for restoring the area of the earthquake is frustrated completely. Only a few have received new apartments. And thousands of others are doomed to spend their third winter in tents and railway cars," said the correspondent, identified only as an Armenian.

Hundreds of people, some crying and most appearing sullen, were shown gathering in a central square in Yerevan, the capital, to honor the dead as bells tolled between 11 a.m. and noon to mark the earthquake. The first shock had hit at 11:41 a.m. exactly two years ago.

The earthquake, measuring 6.9 on the Richter scale, immediately leveled hundreds of prefabricated apartment buildings and trapped tens of thousands of people under tons of rubble. Homes of 500,000 people were destroyed.

Top government leaders, including President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov, made widely publicized trips to the devastated areas and promised a sweeping rebuilding campaign. But two years later only about 25-33 percent of the damaged homes and buildings have been rebuilt, Soviet media reported.

"Two years to restore the house was only a promise, made from the bottom of our hearts, but still a promise," the correspondent narrated.

The newscast showed concrete blocks, apparently intended for new housing, standing in piles on the sides of pits. Poorly clad people were shown lifting corrugated steel onto the top of tents to use as roofs.

"To this national grief is added today's troubles: empty shelves," said Eduard Shaknazaryan of the Armenpress News Service, referring to the worsening Soviet economy.

"There is nothing in the shops but bread and mineral water," Shaknazaryan said. Despite a system of rationing, food is difficult and expensive to obtain in the capital of Yerevan, he said, with a three-hour wait in line for milk, no eggs for sale, and a chicken at private markets costing about $13, or about one-tenth of a month's salary.

Church bells tolled Friday across Armenia, calling survivors back to their ruined homes to lay flowers and mourning wreaths on the anniversary of the earthquake.

In the villages of Leninakan and Spitak, which were hit hardest by the quake, memorial services were held to remember the hour when disaster struck. Shaknazaryan said relatives of those killed returned to the villages to place flowers or wreaths at the sites where loved ones died.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda sent four reporters across the republic to survey the lingering effects of the quake, and they came back with grim findings.

Colorblind crayon maker retiring after 35 years on the job

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Crayola company officials might be turning a little red, make that fuchsia, with news that its top crayon maker is colorblind.

Emerson Moser, who is retiring next week after 35 years, isn't colorblind in the sense that he can't see color at all. It's just that some colors are confusing to him.

That means trying to spot the difference between a cadet blue and a blue green can make him feel, well, like a shrinking violet.

"If you have a serious case of it, you could foul up a lot of materials," said Moser, 63, who has made a record 1.4 billion crayons. His title at Binney & Smith Co. is a crayon molder.

As far as Moser and the company can tell, there's been no threat of children coloring the sky green and the grass blue — unless they were doing their Andy Warhol imitations.

"He's blue-green colorblind, but despite his handicap, he's gone to the top of his trade," said Brad Drexler, spokesman for the Easton-based company.

Moser has made seas of salmon, pecks of plums and is a king crayon craftsman, Drexler said. Tuesday, Moser made yards of yellow and Wednesday, it was oodles of orange — colors that give Moser no trouble.

"When you have shades of one color, you get a little doubt about it. Before you go do anything, you double-check yourself," said Moser.

It's the second technicolor shock to come out of the Crayola plant this year. In August, it retired eight traditional colors into the Crayola Hall of Fame.

The company is asking Moser to donate his final pair of ankle-high boots, splashed with the waxy colorful remains of his time on the job, for inclusion in the hall.

"The colors splash a little bit when it comes out of the kettle into the bucket," said Moser. "People daily clean their shoes, but I don't. I have a multicolored pair of shoes. It's probably made them waterproof.

"This pair I have now ... there's yellow on them, because I worked yellow today, and some orange and some red," Moser said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

A company doctor detected Moser's slight vision problem during a physical conducted when he was hired Oct. 12, 1953, as a floor boy in the packing department.

"It's so slight that if the doctor wouldn't have tested me, I probably would have never noticed it," Moser said.

Less than two years later, Moser graduated to the most colorful job in the world, pouring molten wax into 2,400-crayon molds nearly 100 times a day. Once the wax is set, crayons are flicked out of the racks and stacked in a bin for a conveyor belt to carry them to a labeling machine.

At Crayola, there are subtle shades of everything.

For less than obvious reasons, Moser likes the eight basic Crayola colors: black, white, red, yellow, green, blue, brown and orange. And even though he says he likes the retired colors, Moser says there's no reason to wax nostalgic about retiring the crayon colors.

"The new ones are nice. The other colors were nice, too. But you can't survive on sentiment. Sentiment doesn't keep a company moving forward."

Arizona Gov. Rose Mofford is helped by Sen. Dennis DeConcini, left, as she arrives at a Senate Ethics Committee hearing on Capitol Hill Friday.

Mofford defends one of the 'five'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arizona Gov. Rose Mofford defended Sen. Dennis DeConcini at an ethics hearing Friday, testifying that his help for Charles H. Keating Jr. came when the businessman was held in high esteem.

Mofford, who knew the Arizona Democrat as a 10-year-old altar boy, was a character witness for DeConcini — one of five senators under investigation for their intervention on behalf of former S&L owner Keating.

She testified Keating was "considered a very successful businessman and very charitable" in 1987, when the senators discussed his complaints with thrift regulators.

Keating's American Continental Corp. of Phoenix, parent of California-based Lincoln Savings and Loan Association, employed 3,500 people in 1987, Ms. Mofford said. The corporation was a major lender in Arizona and considered a solid company in which to invest.

Federal regulators closed Lincoln, a failure that's expected to cost taxpayers $2.3 billion.

The committee is trying to learn whether the $1.3 million raised for the five senators by Keating and associates influenced the conduct of DeConcini or Sens. John McCain, R-Ariz., Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., John Glenn, D-Ohio, and Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

A theme in the defense of all five senators is that they provided normal constituent service to Keating, who complained that Lincoln was unfairly treated by thrift regulators.

"His work with constituencies certainly was a hallmark" of DeConcini's career, Mofford said.

"A problem was never too big or too small," she said. "Any time there was a problem with the federal government, everyone would say, 'Call Dennis DeConcini's office.'"

One of DeConcini's accomplishments, Mofford said, was getting President Bush's anti-drug coordinator, William Bennett, to make the Arizona-Mexico border a high priority area for drug interdiction.

Bennett, recently named Republican national chairman, is the brother of Robert S. Bennett — the Ethics Committee's special counsel in the Keating case.

After Mofford's testimony, which lasted less than 20 minutes, the hearings adjourned until Monday.

Jobless rate soars; Recession takes hold

WASHINGTON (AP) — The worst two-month stretch of layoffs since the 1981-82 recession pushed civilian unemployment to a three-year high of 5.9 percent in November, the govenment said Friday.

Payrolls fell by 267,000 last month, the Labor Department said, after a 180,000-job loss in October. Since June, when the unemployment rate was 5.2 percent, nearly 1 million Americans have joined the ranks of the unemployed.

Practically all the nation's industries have been affected.

"This report looks like a recession. It walks like a recession. . . . It is a recession," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at the Boston Co. "And it's full-fledged, accelerating and widespread."

In apparent response, the Federal Reserve Board moved to stimulate the economy by nudging interest rates lower. It pushed the rate charged among banks for overnight loans to 7 1-16 percent, down from 7 7-16 percent earlier in the week.

A handful of banks, in turn, trimmed their prime rate from 10 percent to 9¾ percent. That is the rate charged banks' best business customers, but a wide variety of business and consumer loans are tied to it.

November's 5.9 percent jobless rate was the highest since unemployment was 6 percent in October 1987. Many analysts predict unemployment could hit 7 percent next year.

"The negative momentum is not yet spent. . . . We are in the heart of the downturn now. There is no turning back. It cannot be reversed. The question is how deep and how long will it last?" Sinai said.

With 7.3 million Americans looking for work but unable to find it, November's losses hit hardest in the manufacturing sector, which has been sliding downhill for months. Factory payrolls declined by 200,000, the biggest one-month drop since 1982.

The automobile industry alone lost 55,000 jobs, reflecting temporary shutdowns to avoid excessive inventory buildups.

Construction lost 62,000 jobs as the housing market continued to deteriorate. Over the last six months, that industry has seen jobs tumble by about 250,000.

The service-producing sector, which until a few months ago had been enjoying healthy job gains and keeping the economy steaming ahead, showed widespread weakness too.

Retail trade lost 70,000 jobs because general merchandise stores are falling short on their normal seasonal hirings. Employment also fell in wholesale trade and in finance, insurance and real estate.

All the job-loss calculations are seasonally adjusted.

Labor costs, frequently blamed for intensifying the nation's inflation problems, rose only slightly in November. The average hourly worker made $10.13 an hour last month, up one cent from October.

Ex-lawmaker's conspiracy trial ends before it begins

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A former state lawmaker pleaded guilty Friday to charges of conspiring to accept a bribe and tampering with a witness in a Statehouse corruption scandal.

The plea by former Rep. Tom Limehouse averted a trial set for Monday.

In return for his plea, the government dropped a third charge that he took a $2,000 bribe to support legislation legalizing betting on horse and dog racing in South Carolina.

Limehouse, who appeared before U.S. District Judge Falcon Hawkins, faces a maximum sentence of 30 years in prison and a $500,000 fine. The dropped charge had a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

The Summerville Republican withdrew from the Nov. 6 election but did not resign his seat like several other lawmakers under indictment.

The federal probe at the Legislature has led to bribery charges against nine lawmakers and drug charges against a tenth lawmaker and a Statehouse lobbyist.

Earlier this week, former state Sen. Rick Lee and former state Rep. Luther Taylor became the first of that group to be sentenced.

Lee, R-Boiling Springs, got six months at a halfway house and five years' probation. Taylor, D-Columbia, was given 6½ years in prison.

Lee had pleaded guilty to accepting a $2,000 bribe from lobbyist Ron Cobb for his work on behalf of the pari-mutuel betting bill.

Taylor, the first to go on trial, was convicted by a jury in October on six counts of violating the Hobbs Act, a federal anti-bribery law.

He was charged with conspiring to solicit bribes and with accepting a total of $4,300 from a lobbyist-turned-FBI informant for supporting the betting bill.

Books about sex, drugs vanish from libraries

By Craig Brandon
Hearst News Service

ALBANY, N.Y. — Not all the books that leave the library go through the check-out desk.

While librarians here say book stealing is not a serious problem, particular kinds of books frequently vanish from the shelves, never to return.

Which books get stolen most often?

■ Books about sex, drugs and witchcraft. Librarians called this the "embarrassment factor." People were simply too ashamed to bring the book to the check-out counter.

The most stolen book in this category is Alex Comfort's "The Joy of Sex," a manual complete with drawings.

Most librarians say the embarrassment factor is a significant problem, but Ann Seemann, director of the Schaffer Library at Union College said that wasn't the case where she works.

"I don't think there's anything that college students are ashamed to check out," she said.

■ Reference books on auto and home repair, gardening, astrology, careers and colleges. Cost seems to be a factor here, librarians said. Why buy a book when you can steal it from the library?

At the Shenendehowa Public Library in Clifton Park, N.Y., the all-time most stolen book is Linda Goodman's "Sun Signs," a horoscope book.

Some librarians said they fight the theft of car repair manuals by keeping the most up-to-date copy in the reference room and letting the older copies be checked out rather than stolen.

Medical manuals and newsletters from investment services are also frequently stolen, librarians said. Locating the copy machine close to the books has helped. "We noticed that when we raised the price of photocopies we started to lose a lot of current periodicals and investment services," said Robert Jaquay, director of the Colonie Town Library here. "When we reduced the price again, it seemed to stop."

■ Expensive art and photography books. This is the realm of the professional thief. In the early 1980s the libraries suffered a rash of book thefts by gangs who signed up for library cards using false identification and then checked out books worth up to $1,000 each.

Several librarians said expensive art books were damaged by patrons who "razored out" pictures in art books, apparently to decorate the walls of their own homes.

■ "Steal This Book," by Abbie Hoffman. This 1971 book seems to be in a category by itself. A manual of anti-establishment sabotage, it gave instructions about how to rip off the phone company and how to mail bricks back to corporations attached to their "business reply mail — no postage necessary" cards.

A recent article about book theft in the New York Times Book Review reported that the New York Public Library and the Library of Congress have been unable to keep "Steal This Book" on their shelves.

"A used paperback edition today goes for $55 (or for nothing) if you can find one," the story said.

'Be adaptable,' shuttle crew says

■ More nation stories/ 1D

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's astronauts, with help from scientists on the ground, pushed forward with their stargazing Friday in a rush to make as many observations as possible with the shuttle's hobbled telescopes.

The four astronomers aboard Columbia talked about their problems operating the $150 million Astro observatory during a live lesson from space for middle school students and a question-and-answer session.

"Unfortunately, we've had some failures with computer terminals which have caused us to have to redo the way that we operate this mission. So it's been quite tedious and time-consuming to figure out how to do that," astronaut Ron Parise told 41 youngsters at NASA centers in Alabama and Maryland.

"But we're slowly working around everything and we're getting science data and doing our job," Parise said.

Added astronaut Jeffrey Hoffman, "We've shown that in space flight you have to be extremely adaptable and be able to accommodate things that fail and ways of operating which we never even planned before."

Observations were halted for half a day Thursday when a flight deck computer overheated and shut down. The only other onboard computer for operating Astro's three ultraviolet telecopes failed in a similar manner Sunday.

Lint, probably from clothing worn by the seven-man crew, was found clogging the air vents of the computer that failed Sunday. After the lint was removed Thursday, the terminal was turned on but immediately turned off when a burning odor once again filled the cabin.

Flight director Bob Castle said it was not known whether the lint was the cause of the problem and whether that made the other computer fail. The lint will be analyzed after the flight to determine its source, he said.

Following Thursday's failure, NASA hurriedly devised and implemented a plan in which ground teams aim and turn on the telescopes, with the astronauts using a joystick to zero in on the targets. The telescopes were tested successfully one by one and by Friday were producing results surpassing scientists' expectations.

Parise and fellow astronaut Robert Parker, for example, focused all three telescopes on a quasar for 51 minutes, three minutes longer than planned.

"That's what happens when you have good, old-fashioned astronomy ... and a little bit of help from your friends," Parker told Spacelab Mission Operations Control in Huntsville, Ala.

Other high-energy targets observed Friday included numerous galaxies and a supernova that exploded in 1987.

Some scientists, including Barbara Pfarr of the ultraviolet imaging telescope team, even were enjoying the new method of operation because of their increased participation.

"Commanding from the ground is rather fun," she said.

One of the more exciting findings of the day came from Astro's X-ray telescope, which was unaffected by the computer problems. The instrument has its own pointing system and is controlled by computer commands sent from Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

Goddard scientist Peter Serlemitsos, the X-ray telescope's principal investigator, said he found conditions to be right for a black hole to exist in a Seyfert galaxy — one with a bright, compact center — 325 million light years away. That, in turn, "tells us that indeed there are likely to be giant black holes at the centers of these galaxies," he said.

Lawmakers rally to defense of regulator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress are protesting a reported attempt by White House chief of staff John Sununu to block the reappointment of a top banking regulator faulted for being too tough.

Sununu blames Comptroller of the Currency Robert L. Clarke for creating the so-called "credit crunch" gripping the Northeast, government and industry sources said Friday.

Clarke's five-year term expired Dec. 2; he continues in office until a successor is appointed. The comptroller is responsible for overseeing nationally chartered banks and reports to the Treasury secretary.

Bankers and borrowers have complained for a year that Clarke's examiners have overreacted to the savings and loan crisis and are deepening the economic downturn by discouraging bankers from making even good loans.

Within the last week, White House aides have been calling bankers and business executives "asking pointed questions" about Clarke, another source said.

However, members of the House Banking Committee are strongly defending Clarke.

Sears announces big markdowns

NEW YORK (AP) — With the reality of a poor Christmas season sinking in day by day, retailers have begun cutting prices and launching big ad campaigns in an effort to draw reluctant customers.

Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, is leading the way. Sears began an aggressive nationwide television and radio drive Thursday night advertising steep markdowns on apparel items and special incentives such as no-interest financing on major appliances.

Sears and other big national retailers announced Thursday their sales fell in November from last year's levels as consumers, worried about their jobs, the economy and the Middle East, curbed their holiday spending.

The big storeowners, watching the days pass and their business lag, are getting nervous and trying to find ways to bring in customers.

"We looked at the trends through the end of November and have anticipated those trends would continue," Matthew Howard, Sears' senior vice president for marketing, said Friday.

Sears is advancing by several weeks planned markdowns on winter clothes, particularly coats and other outerwear. Warmer weather in many parts of the country has stalled apparel sales.

The company is advertising "after-Christmas prices just in time for Christmas."

Howard said in a telephone interview the retailer is trying to boost its flagging sales of big-ticket items by waiving interest charges on major appliances and home electronics items between now and March.

Appliances, furniture and other expensive merchandise has been hit the hardest by the slowdown in consumer spending that began as the economy slowed and worsened after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait in August.

J.C. Penney Co. Inc. has also marked down prices, but unlike Sears, it is not instituting a company-wide program, spokesman Duncan Muir said Friday.

"In markets where business is slow, there'll be more promotions," Muir said, noting that sales have been particularly sluggish in the Northeast.

Janet Mangano, an analyst with Jesup, Josephthal & Co. Inc., said more "sale" signs will appear if business does not soon improve.

"Next week is it. They won't be able to hold out" if sales do not pick up, she said.

Muir said Penney would be deciding on markdowns "on a day-by-day basis, especially when you're in this critical time."

Although customers in many stores have been seeing price reductions all along this season, most were planned well in advance. Retailers, who expect to make half their annual profits at Christmas, have resisted taking more aggressive markdowns because of the devastating effect price cuts can have on their balance sheets.

Sears does not expect its earnings to suffer as a result of its new program, Howard said.

He noted that the 20 percent to 40 percent markdowns on apparel are less than the 30 percent to 50 percent reductions that would have been posted later in the month, although there is more merchandise in the stores now than there would be after Christmas.

Most retailers are expecting business to pick up during the last 10 days of the season, and are hoping for a big weekend right before Christmas.

The stores are trying to avoid a repetition of the severe markdowns that resulted in a disastrous Christmas for some companies last year. But consumers, besides being more budget-conscious this year, have learned that if they put off their shopping until later in the season, they may get the merchandise they want at a better price.

R.H. Macy & Co. Inc., one of the companies hit hard by markdowns last year, has had fewer reductions this year and does not expect to change its strategy, said James Fingeroth, a spokesman for the retailer.

Crude oil transferred from damaged tanker

N.Y. Times News Service

Aided by calm Pacific seas and clear weather, most of the crude oil from the damaged supertanker Keystone Canyon has been transferred smoothly to another vessel.

During Friday's maneuver, the 855-foot Keystone Canyon and 869-foot Kenai were lashed together about 190 miles west of Morro Bay.

The Keystone Canyon has a 20-foot fracture in its hull but was not leaking oil. However, the oil was transferred because of fears that the tanker's stability might be affected by the crack.

Observed from a Coast Guard surveillance plane 400 feet above the water, the two tankers rolled gently in the shimmering ocean.

Tiny waves broke over the bow of the Keystone Canyon, which was riding above the waterline now that most of its cargo had been pumped to the Kenai.

The plane, a turboprop Hercules, arrived at midday to drop supplies to the 122-foot Clean Bay, an environmental cleanup vessel on standby duty.

The Kenai, which has less capacity than the Keystone Canyon, was scheduled to sail to El Segundo near Los Angeles late Friday night.

If all goes well, the Keystone Canyon will be permitted to enter San Francisco to transfer its remaining 10,000 barrels of oil to a barge, U.S. Coast Guard Captain Tom Robinson, said after the airlift.

The transfer would be made in the bay south of Alameda.

The crack was found while the Keystone Canyon was off the Washington coast on Sunday.

PERSIAN GULF CRISIS

Threat of war hasn't lessened, Bush warns

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The White House warned Iraq Friday "there's no lessening in the threat of war" even with release of American hostages.

But, "Things are moving in the right direction," said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater as President Bush arrived on the last stop of his South American tour. Bush came to Caracas to thank Venezuela for easing this fall's global oil crunch with increased production of crude.

Fitzwater said the U.N. vote authorizing military action against Iraq "forced this series of events. It forced Saddam (Hussein) to make concrete changes."

Iraq still must comply with United Nations demands for its withdrawal from Kuwait and fulfill all other conditions set forth by the world organization, Fitzwater said.

Bush received a 21-gun salute as he arrived in Caracas for talks with President Carlos Andres Perez.

As it has on each stop of his week-long trip, the Persian Gulf crisis overshadowed events the day.

IRAQ'S PARLIAMENT overwhelmingly endorsed Saddam Hussein's order to release more than 8,000 foreign hostages. Among them are 900 Americans.

"We hope that some Americans will be able to come out tomorrow," Fitzwater said.

Yet, Fitzwater said the crisis had not eased.

"There's no lessening in the threat of war," he said. "That threat exists just as strong as ever."

On the hostages, Fitzwater said said the United States proposed to Baghdad flying all Americans out on planes chartered from Iraqi Airlines or from other companies, the same way more than 2,000 other Americans have departed Iraq and Kuwait.

As a backup, the government has been checking on the availability of U.S. airlines and charter planes, he said.

Fitzwater said he believed that all Americans in Kuwait had been accounted for, and that the United States expects there will be no reprisals by Iraq against anyone who hid Americans in Kuwait.

HE EXPRESSED skepticism over Iraq's motives in freeing the hostages.

"They have concluded that the hostages no longer work for them and that the issue works against them," he said.

He said Baghdad, in promising to release the hostages, was trying to divide the global coalition against Iraq and "weaken the international will in the gulf."

Caracas was the last stop on a week-long tour to salute the emergence of democracy and economic reforms throughout the region.

As in Chile, where guerrillas set off half-a-dozen bombs and police tear-gassed anti-Bush student demonstrators, Bush's visit ignited traditional anti-American sentiments.

Army and National Guard units took over the Andean city of Merida to prevent further violence from student protestors and eight people were injured in clashes between students and police in Caracas late Thursday. Several police officers were reported injured, one seriously. Students also marched against the Bush visit in Maracaibo, Venezuela's second largest city and its oil center, and in Valencia.

TOASTING PEREZ at a state dinner, Bush saluted the tide of democracy and economic reforms that have swept South America, "leaving Cuba as the lonely totalitarian holdout in our hemisphere.

"So we are close, very close, to a democratic hemisphere, from Alaska to Argentina," Bush said. "This era of peaceful change came about in no small part because of the unwavering leadership and example of a democratic Venezuela."

In his toast, Perez said, "Our solidarity is firm" against Iraq.

He said Venezuela supports the U.N. decisions and steps taken by the United States "to safeguard mankind from a catastrophic war" caused by Iraq's attempt to erase from the map "a universally recognized state."

As he arrived in Caracas from an overnight stop in Chile, Bush expressed disappointment over the collapse of global trade negotiations in Brussels.

Bush blamed the collapse on the failure of the European Community, Japan and Korea to reduce farm subsidies, and said he hoped they would reconsider and negotiate "real market-opening agreements while there is still time to do so."

After Iraq invaded Kuwait, Perez joined with Saudi Arabia to lobby OPEC members to sustain production levels and stabilize prices, and increased his own country's output 20 percent to 2.4 million barrels a day.

"THAT'S MADE a major contribution not just to our economy but particularly to energy-dependent economies in the developing world," a senior administration official said of the efforts of Venezuela and Saudi Arabia.

The price of oil has fluctuated wildly since August, rising when Persian Gulf tensions increased and receding when peace prospects seemed to improve. Perez has called for talks among consumers and producers to see if a way can be found to stabilize prices.

Officials said Venezuela advocates creation of a hemispheric oil reserve for emergencies, but that the United States has so far shown little interest in the idea.

Connally says he's returning with hostages

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally told his wife Friday that he and oilman Oscar Wyatt will be returning from the Middle East on Saturday with several American hostages.

"We don't have a count on them yet, but we will call them later this evening to get more information," said Jake Elliott, a spokesman for the Connallys.

Elliott said Nellie Connally spoke with her husband about 3 p.m. Friday, but "it was a very garbled call and Mrs. Connally didn't get a lot of details.

Iraq's Parliament on Friday confirmed Saddam Hussein's decision to release about 8,000 Westerners, East European and Japanese hostages who have been held since the Persian Gulf crisis began with the Kuwaiti invasion of Aug. 2.

Connally, who is a member of the Coastal Corp. board of directors, joined Coastal chairman Wyatt on a trip to see Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad last weekend.

Coastal officials said the pair met with Saddam on Wednesday in "a personal visit hosted by the Iraqis."

Connally and Wyatt had spoken Monday with Iraqi Industry Minister and Acting Oil Minister Hussein Kamel Hassan, Daddam's son-in-law.

But Coastal officials declined to elaborate on the exact purpose of their visit.

In a news release late Friday, Mrs. Connally reported the men are planning to arrive from Amman, Jordan, in Houston between 9 and 10 p.m. Saturday.

"I believe they're coming aboard a Coastal plane, but whether it's coming in at Houston Hobby or Houston Intercontinental, we don't know," Elliott said.

He said he expected more details sometime during the night or early morning Saturday.

In an interview with The Houston Post last month, Connally questioned, "Why should we commit the lives of American soldiers to place Kuwait's ruler back on the throne? We can't justify that."

Connally, a former secretary of the Navy, told The Post at the time, "I don't think anyone in this country would be willing to lose thousands of American soldiers to secure a source of oil."

Hostages celebrate expected freedom

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Foreign hostages gathered in a Baghdad hotel Friday to sip beer, celebrate their upcoming release and reflect on their months in captivity.

"A new character emerges with people who are faced with adversity," said Chris Mayer, 24, of England, who was held as a "human shield" at an Iraqi military base north of Baghdad.

"I've had my feet on the ground but you really go through a self-examination period," said Robert Vinton, 58, a Santa Fe, N.M. businessman who was held at a base south of Baghdad.

"I'll become a better person and a better husband after this," Vinton added, embracing his wife, Sue, who had traveled to Baghdad to try to free him.

The celebration followed a vote by Iraq's parliament to endorse President Saddam Hussein's call to release all foreigners trapped in Iraq and occupied Kuwait since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion.

"It is a monumental occasion," said Vinton, who had been brought from the military base to a Baghdad hotel Wednesday to see his wife. She had come to Baghdad with other American and British women seeking freedom for their loved ones.

Vinton and 50 to 60 American and British hostages and their wives cheered and toasted their promised freedom.

"If you have your hands in the meat grinder and if you get them out in one piece, how would you feel?" said Garry Carr, an oilworker from Fort Worth, Texas.

Carr said Iraqi soldiers captured him in Kuwait in the first hours of the invasion, sent him to Baghdad and a few days later to a phosphate plant.

The hostages had few complaints about their physical treatment, but they said Iraqi soldiers had stolen their belongings.

"We were treated extremely well. They tried to get us everything we asked for," Guy Seago, 45, of Johnson City, Tenn., said of his guards.

"They guys were very human. They provided us with what they could. They did their best," said Tallmadge Ledford, 45, of Windhow, N.H.

"My main complaint was the loss of freedom," said Ronald Ginn, 49, a computer consultant from Seattle.

Marines skeptical about news

N.Y. Times News Service

RIPPER RANGE, Saudi Arabia — The Marines of 1st Battalion, 7th Regiment greeted Friday morning as they have greeted most mornings in the four months they have been deployed in the desert of northeastern Saudi Arabia: with a healthy dose of skepticism.

The news that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein plans to release all hostages reached these Marines late Thursday night and early Friday morning. But, like most things over which they have no control, the desert-weary Marines said they will believe it when it happens.

"It's a positive sign, but it doesn't mean we're going home anytime soon," said Staff Sgt. George Chelini, 33, of Butte, Mont.

"We were waiting for something to happen out here, but nobody has gotten too excited about it yet," said Staff Sgt. Randy Miller, 31, of Kenosha, Wis.

Some of the skepticism about Saddam's motives was prompted by battalion commander Lt. Col. Jim Mattis, who gathered the troops and told them Friday not to get their hopes too high too quickly about a quick resolution to the crisis in the Gulf.

"I told them if things go wrong they've got a heckuva job in front of them so they should remain a little skeptical," said Mattis, of Richland, Wash.

Instead of spending Friday thinking about the situation, Mattis had his unit, which is based in Twentynine Palms, Calif., engaged in a rigorous training exercise in which they assaulted a fortified position with amphibious assault vehicles, firing live ammunition and donning gas masks to practice for a possible chemical attack.

"Right now they're ready to do the job," Mattis said of his Marines. "I don't want them backing off that and losing their edge if the time comes when we have to do it."

Some of Mattis's troops said they believe Saddam is backing down from a military confrontation because he has begun to appreciate and understand the amount of firepower arrayed against him.

The 230,000 American troops in Saudi Arabia are expected to be joined by more than 180,000 over the next month and new equipment and ammunition is arriving daily.

"It's just a matter of time before he (Saddam) backs down," said 1st Lt. Robert Burns, 25, of Cleveland.

Many of the Marines said they were glad to hear that the hostages will be spared.

Lance Cpl. Kreig Garrison, 24, of Barstow, Calif., said the troops got more excited last Sunday when heard that Iraq had test-fired several Scud missiles than they did when they heard about the hostages. The troops were placed on a higher state of alert for little more than an hour after the missile firings were discovered.

"It finally looked like something was going to happen and morale went up real fast when we heard about it," said Garrison. "Then afterward it dropped down and everybody was in a bad mood for several days."

Garrison, like many other troops in Saudi Arabia, said he is frustrated by the waiting but is glad President Bush took the initiative on the Gulf crisis.

A Navy bugler plays "Taps" to conclude a ceremony marking the 49th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor. Behind him are etched the names of the USS Arizona crew members who died in the bombing raid.

Veterans remember war dead

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — David T. Best's journey to honor a childhood friend killed 49 years ago at Pearl Harbor ended Friday at the stark limestone facade of the Indiana World War Memorial.

Best, 72, traveled from his Hayward, Calif., home to join other World War II veterans at a service honoring the 2,403 Americans killed in Japan's assault on the Pacific Fleet.

Best glanced at a photograph of Paul B. Free, whose life ended at 20 as he climbed into his airplane on Dec. 7, 1941.

"Few things stir man's compassion so deeply as remembering the supreme sacrifice of an old buddy. Sleep, comrade, sleep in peace," Best said.

Veterans alternated reading 10 names a minute while tolling a large, silver bell from the USS Indianapolis one time for each American who died.

Similar ceremonies took place elsewhere, including in Hawaii, where dignitaries boarded the USS Arizona Memorial for wreath presentations, a 21-gun salute and echo taps. At the Pearl Harbor Naval Base, a "missing man" flyover by Hawaii Air National Guard jets ended a minute of silence marking the time of the attack.

The USS Indianapolis was sunk between Guam and the Philippines by a Japanese submarine July 30, 1945, two days after it unloaded parts and nuclear material used in the atomic bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The bell later was recovered from the ship.

"We're not here to refight the war or verbally bash the Japanese. On a lovely Hawaiian morning 49 years ago, Americans who saw the sun rise did not see it set," said the Rev. Russell Blowers, minister of the 91st Street Christian Church and veteran of the Eighth Air Force. "With the tolling of the bell, remind us that someday the bell will toll for us."

"We are hoping this will lead to bells tolling all over the country next year on the 50th anniversary," said Elbert Watson, chairman of the World War II National Commemorative Association, which sponsored Friday's service.

Watson asked the Japanese government to apologize for the attack that drew the United States into World War II. Some Japanese are trying to persuade their leaders to apologize before President Bush visits Japan next spring.

Japan has apologized to South Korea and China for its military actions in the 1930s and 1940s. No official apology has been issued to the United States.

Huge crowds swamp church

COLFAX, Calif. — A strange and colorful play of light on the whitewashed wall of a tiny Catholic church is drawing huge and growing crowds to this Gold Rush-era village in the Sierra foothills.

On Thursday, up to 4,000 people, many who arrived at St. Dominic's Catholic Church before dawn, sought a glimpse of what believers say is a daily visitation from the Virgin Mary.

Every day since Thanksgiving, for one hour starting about 9:30 a.m., a multicolored image has appeared on the interior wall of the church over the left shoulder of a four-foot statue of Jesus.

To believers, seeing the rainbow-like apparition is a unique and moving spiritual event. To doubters, it is nothing more than an intriguing refraction of early morning sunlight filtered through stained glass. To church officials and the police, it is a potentially explosive problem.

As word of the phenomenon has spread, the normal 8 a.m. Mass of 20 to 25 worshipers grew at first to fill the church to its 250-person capacity. Then it doubled again Wednesday as 300 people crammed into the small structure and 200 more spilled out its front door.

The church was filled before dawn Thursday. By 9:30 a.m., a crowd of up to 4,000 people waited quietly in the chilled mountain air hoping to see what many are convinced is an earthly visit from the mother of Jesus.

"It's a good feeling, but it's kind of scary," said Kevin Lenz, a plumber from nearby Auburn, Calif., who viewed the apparition for the third time Thursday.

"It's unbelievable is what it is."

For the first time since the image appeared, church officials took steps Thursday to control the crowds. A temporary barricade, like those used to direct passengers at airport ticket counters, prevented close inspection and kept worshipers from approaching the wall on which the image appears.

Shell Western E&P Inc.

An equal opportunity employer.

PART-TIME INCOME AVAILABLE

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several routes which need to be filled with qualified, responsible individuals. Now is one of the best times ever to obtain a route in your area!

Often asked questions:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current carrier force is already 65% adult and 35% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:

- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- YOUTHS who are involved in afternoon school functions, but want to work!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a carrier?

Depending on the size of the route(s) from $200 to $600 monthly! Some motor routes make even more. Although no motor routes are expected to be available, depending on your service record, you may qualify to move up to a motor route later!

How long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the route(s). Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carriers choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 AM Monday - Friday and 7 AM on Saturday and Sunday

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, carriers do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!

RESERVE YOUR ROUTE NOW! APPLY TO:

Toys For Life

Help us share the true meaning of Christmas with the children at Midland Memorial Hospital. We are asking for your participation by helping us help the less fortunate to have a brighter Holiday Season.

Drop a new, unwrapped toy with a value of ten dollars by Windtree, Wydewood, Wildflower or Polo Park Apartments and register to win three months free rent on a six month lease.

All toys will be donated to the Midland Memorial Hospital Cancer Treatment Center for children.

Please bring toys suitable for children between the ages of two and eight years.

Let's remember the true spirit of Christmas by opening up our hearts and giving these children a Christmas they will always remember.
