Post Script

It used to be in rural towns like Eldorado that the good old summertime marked the influx of magazine subscription salesmen, and salesmen for other products and services.

That was then a traditional line of work college students engaged in, and maybe years ago they could make money at it. Like other facets of these changing times, these sales pitches no longer go over out here in the hinterlands. Rural residents watch the same T.V., read the same magazines and newspapers, and have access to most other things that their big-city cousins do, and are thus no longer gullible to propositions. That is in addition to the fact that rural areas have lost population.

While the present day salesmen may make their contacts by long-distance direct dialing telephone, many of their approaches date back to the horse and buggy days when they were called "drummers" . . .

By now, we have heard all the hoary approaches:

"We're making a survey . . ."

And here comes the hot pitch.

"I'd like to call on you and show you how to save some money."

In what way?

"You may subscribe to any of these magazines for the cost of postage alone."

For about the same cost as dealing directly with the publisher.

"You may buy this hospitalization plan for just 12 cents a week."

But how much protection and coverage will it give?

"Make an appointment with our photographer, and you will get an enlargement absolutely free."

But how many other dollars worth must be purchased first?

Now, as always, college students are amenable to summer work, but they seek out employment less uncertain and precarious than that of door to door selling.

After the Walter Cronkite news at 5:30 I find myself with nearly three hours of sunshine and often take-off for a 40-mile drive around the Reynolds loop in order to arrive home just before twilight.

While making this trip the past Saturday I took a side road and pulled in to Cecil and Gertrude Williams' store in Reynolds community. Original purpose was to call by and see if I could buy some of their snapped black-eyed peas for which they are famous. They were fresh-out since others had been there before me.

But anyway the three of us sat down and visited for a while. I observed that all the crops were looking lush all the way around Reynolds community, and Mr. Williams agreed, but observed that more rain would be desperately needed pretty soon.

Then the subject got around to politics and Cecil said, "They shot the man I wanted to vote for. I voted for George Wallace the last time, and if he doesn't get the nomination I'm going to vote for Nixon. I don't care for any of the other candidates that the Democrats have."

What Mr. Williams said in those few words may very well be what thousands of other Texans are thinking by the time election comes in November.

Regional Profile Data To Be Gathered

San Angelo, Tex.—Interviewers from the Concho Valley Council of Governments will be calling on randomly-selected families throughout the 13-county Concho Valley Region during the next few weeks in connection with a Regional Profile Project.

The Profile, when completed, will give public officials detailed, factual bases of information about the Concho Valley Region and specific problem areas. In addition to acquiring data throughout the region on demographic and economic conditions and trends, the Profile will also be designed to ascertain what the problems are, as perceived by the people of the region. CVCOG interviewers will particularly be gathering data about problems of housing, health, employment and manpower, and aging.

It will then be possible to either match problems with existing programs for improvement, or, where gaps exist, assist local governments and agencies in structuring and recommending new methods of meeting those needs. Data-gathering has begun in the San Angelo area.

AMERICAN FIRSTS

THE FIRST practical motorcycle built in the United States was manufactured in Buffalo, N.Y., in 1900. It was really little more than an ordinary bicycle fitted with a one-cylinder engine, a flat belt and a rear wheel pulley.

THE FIRST motorcycle hill-climbing contest held in America was won by Glenn Hammond Curtiss in 1903. The race created quite a sensation because few people at that time thought motorcycles were powerful enough to negotiate steep hills.

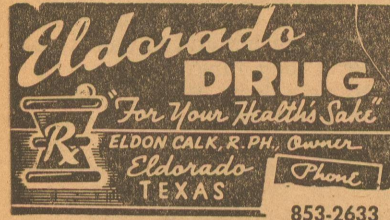

THE FIRST internationally sanctioned motorcycle road race to be held at California's Laguna Seca Raceway will take place July 21-23, 1972. Sponsored by the people who make Kawasaki motorcycles, the historic contest will feature professional racers from all over the world who will flash through the 1.9 mile circuit at more than 130 miles an hour.

Austin, Tex.—The Parks and Wildlife Commission handed one controversial issue back to the Attorney General and was handed another one by the Legislature.

PWC voted four-to-two to ask Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin to review and reconsider a May 26 ruling that a 1970 contract to purchase 3,965 acres of Mustang Island property for park development is a "binding obligation."

Martin's opinion, according to PWC Chairman Jack Stone of Wells, is expected in about a week. The Mustang Island battle has raged from Austin to Washington and back and through the federal courts and has figured in battles over Senate confirmation of PWC members.

Legislators, in special session, thwarted long-standing plans of the State Highway Department to build a 10-storey, $20 million headquarters building on a block near the capitol and governor's mansion.

Instead, the Legislature decreed, the Parks and Wildlife Department would purchase with $1.5 million from its cigarette tax the barren, dusty block in downtown Austin and convert it into a park.

The highway department was directed to consider placing its plush new building elsewhere. Neither agency, conceded legislative leaders, was deliriously happy with the arrangement.

Under the circumstances, however, neither seemed to have much choice.

Game Law Fuss Calmed

Texas game wardens will no longer enforce state game and fish laws near the mouth and jetties of the Sabine River, an area of disputed ownership with Louisiana.

Louisiana last month threatened to appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court Texas officers' attempts at enforcement in the area. Attorney General Martin informed Louisiana Atty. Gen. William J. Guste Jr. Texas will keep its commitments in the disputed areas of the Gulf south of the Sabine River Mouth.

The area was recently found by a Supreme Court-appointed master to belong to Texas, but Louisiana appealed the decision.

Inflation Still Threat

Inflation is still a strong threat, though Texas is recovering from economic recession, according to a University of Texas Bureau of Business Research study.

Unemployment remains high, says UT BBR, but estimated personal income rose 9% in the last year and bank debits 10%.

The unemployment level, frowned on by the Bureau, was 3.8% in May, which is lower than the 4.1 of a year ago but considerably below the national 5.9% rate.

Consumer spending and residential construction were seen as strong. The rate of the consumer price index rise slowed somewhat after the presidential price freeze, BBR found.

Highway Department Wins Award

Texas Highway Department received the National Safety Council Award of Honor for an outstanding occupational safety record during 1971.

"Less than five out of 1,000 of the nation's total number of work units meet the award of honor requirements," said Howard Pyle, National Safety Council president.

The Texas Highway Department got the award for a 52% decrease in frequency and 42% decrease in severity of accident rates of its employees last year.

Texas Beef Cattle Leader

Texas is the nation's leader in all major categories of the beef cattle industry, Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White states.

The livestock industry in Texas is a $2 billion industry, accounting for almost half the total agricultural income of the state. There were 12.8 million cattle and calves in Texas in January, more than five million head above second-ranked Iowa.

Rankings by counties for livestock categories include the following (one through 10):

All cattle and calves: Deaf Smith, Parmer, Hansford, Castro, Swisher, Sherman, Randall, Ochiltree, Hale, and Hopkins.

Texas ranks second in the nation in number of slaughter plants, third in cattle and calves slaughtered during 1971, third in sheep and lamb slaughter and 15th in hog slaughter.

Democrats At Miami Beach

One hundred and 30 Texas Democrats—most of them new to the party wars—are busy at Miami Beach this week, helping nominate a candidate for president.

Another 70 alternates were named to the convention.

The Texas delegates, headed by gubernatorial nominee Dolph Briscoe of Uvalde, are closely divided as to supporters of George Wallace, George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey.

Texas Exhibit Planned

A special Texas exhibit is planned at the fifth annual El Salvador International Trade Fair November 3-20.

The fair is one of the top trade expositions in Central America and attracts commercial firms from surrounding Central American states. Several Texas manufacturers have indicated an interest in sponsoring exhibits. The International Trade Division of the Texas Industrial Commission and the Texas Department of Agriculture are sponsoring the Texas exhibit.

Edith Runge "Outstanding" Conservation Rancher

Edith Runge of Eldorado was selected by the Board of Directors of the Eldorado-Divide Soil and Water Conservation District for the annual award of "Outstanding" Conservation Rancher.

At their regular weekly meeting last week, Bill Rountree, District Conservationist, presented Mrs. Edith Runge with the Lions Club plaque which is given each year to the outstanding conservationist in the district.

Mrs. Runge took over the operation of the ranch several years ago when her husband, J. Forrest Runge, passed away. For some 25 years Mr. Runge served as a district director of the local soil conservation district. During these years extensive conservation work was carried out on the Runge ranch.

For years cattle, sheep, and goats were run on the ranch. A few years ago the goats were sold as the labor problem seemed to be getting worse. Now, only sheep and cattle are run on the ranch.

Some of the planned conservation practices that Mrs. Runge has carried out are: 76 acres of pasture and hayland management; Contour farming on 70 acres; Maintain terraces; Crop residue management on 70 acres; added water for better grazing management; carried out a pasture rotation grazing system; proper grazing use on all grassland; extensive brush control program carried out with deferred grazing system; cross-fences constructed to give better grazing distribution. All of her land has been adequately treated to reduce erosion to a minimum under normal use.

The Runge ranch consists of some 2,240 acres and is located northeast of Eldorado.

Safety In The Bathroom

Each year home accidents disable more than four million Americans. Listed are safety guidelines for the bathroom, a number-one accident trap. To prevent slips and falls in the tub and shower, use suction-type tub mats or nonskid adhesive strips. Install safety grab bars in walls next to the tub, and make sure that shower-curtain rods, towel bars and soap dishes are firmly anchored. Promptly wipe up water spilled on the floor.

Childproof medicine cabinets with a safety lock and insist that children ask permission before taking anything from it. Empty the contents of partly-filled medicine bottles in the toilet before throwing them out. Since little children can drown in small amounts of water, never leave an infant or toddler alone in the tub. Always test hot bath water with your wrist and teach children to do the same. Tell youngsters who want to run bath water themselves that they should first turn on the cold tap then adjust the hot water to get the right water temperature.

If you have young children make sure the bathroom lock can be easily opened from the outside.

Water and electricity don't mix, so never touch an electrical fixture or an appliance with wet hands or while you're standing on a damp floor. Don't use electrical appliances such as hair dryers, heaters and radios in the bathroom.

If the light over the medicine cabinet has a metal chain for switching on and off, replace it with a cord made of nonconducting material. An even better way to eliminate this shock hazard is to have the chain replaced by a wall switch located away from faucets, radiators and pipes.

Safety glass or plastic is best for glazed shower or tub enclosures, and use only unbreakable plastic or paper cups. When you scrub the bathroom, use only one kind of cleaner at a time. Mixed together, some cleaners and disinfectants produce harmful gases.

Safety guidelines block accidents in the home only if they are used. How To Launder A Blanket

Softness and fluffiness won't go down the drain if you launder blankets correctly. To wash blankets add soap or detergent to warm water in an automatic washer. Agitate to dissolve the soap; then stop the washer.

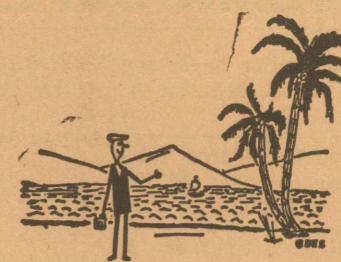

Add the blanket and submerge under water, soaking it at least 10 minutes or longer for heavy soil. Turn the washer control to the end of the wash cycle in order to pump out water and spin the blanket for about a minute.

Advance the timer to a deep rinse and allow the washer to complete its cycle automatically. Then tumble-dry blankets on a high setting about 10 to 15 minutes. Three or four towels pre-heated will help dry the blankets more quickly.

Remove wool blankets while still damp. Man-made fibers can be machine-dried completely.

GOD SPEAKS TO YOU NOW

I was feeling low, disturbed in mind and not knowing which way to turn. Then I sat still and relaxed. Soon these words came to my mind:

"Be still and know that I am God." Psalms 46:10.

"In quietness and confidence shall be thy strength."

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, lean not unto thine own understanding; In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." Prov. 3:5-6.

"Be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might." Ephesians 6:10.

"The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want." Psalms 23:1.

I had read these words, they were filed in my memory, and came into my conscienceness when I needed them. Thus God spoke to me through his word. So he will speak to you, but you must be tuned in. YOU CAN USE YOUR GOD GIVEN ABILITY TO READ HIS WORD. YOU CAN OPEN YOUR HEART TO RECEIVE IT, BELIEVE IT, AND ENJOY OBEYING IT. THEN KNOW A GREAT FEELING OF PEACE WITHIN AS IT DIRECTS YOUR LIFE.

The first Psalm promises rich blessing to the man whose delight is in the law of the Lord.

GOD IS SPEAKING TO YOU PERSONALLY NOW!

ARE YOU TUNED IN?

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

By The Ministerial Alliance of Eldorado

Worship In The Home

The first six verses of the 22nd chapter of the Book of Proverbs should be read, then single out the 6th verse for the text. "Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

When do we begin saying prayers with children? We begin when God gives them to us. If a husband and wife are self-conscious about praying together, they will not be if they say their prayers in the presence of a new-born child.

We are learning more and more about the importance of the child's early life. What do we intend to surround this child with? Family tensions? The shrill noise of the cocktail party? The business of parents leaving for many engagements? The quietness of peaceful loving family life? The devotion to God, of father, mother, brothers and sisters?

Before the child walks or talks he may join the family in the dramatic and awesome act of offering up self, soul and body as a reasonable and holy sacrifice unto God.

What is important for our children to have? They must have good medicine, nourishing food, clean clothes, warm homes, disciplined habits, good schools and normal associations. But there is another thing which is rightfully theirs. Christ came that they might have life with Him. Herein lies the only abiding freedom. When a child, so soon a man, learns to identify himself with Christ, he has become a new creature.

—Fred Cox

Baseball is one of the few experiences of life in which you learn immediately and unquestionably whether you're safe—or out.

In other pursuits we can go on for years thinking we're safe when we're not.

Of course, in life as in baseball it is what a man attempts and decides to do, and how well he fulfills his aim, that determines whether he'll be safe. And in life, too, each venture calls for determination and a knowledge of the rules.

For many youngsters in our community the church is the sandlot of life. In the church's youth activities they find their training and experience—for one day on the "diamond" of life they'll be making decisions and pitting their strength against serious challenges, relying on the religious convictions and moral principles they gained on the way up.

In weighing your child's need of spiritual development remember this: In life, each day doesn't offer a new ball game!

New Publication On Cattle Feeding Systems

A new publication concerning cattle feeding systems is now available. The 35-page booklet is entitled "Budgeted Costs and Returns of Fifteen Cattle Feeding Systems in Four Areas of Texas." It is part of a larger study designed to develop planning information for managing cattle feeding systems. Authors are Dr. Don Farris, professor, and Ed Williams, former research associate both in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology at Texas A&M University.

They describe a feeding system as the feeding (or pasturing) of an animal of specified sex and grade from a particular starting weight to some specified finishing weight.

Areas selected in the study were the Panhandle (Amarillo), North Texas (Fort Worth), South Texas (San Antonio), and East Texas (Houston). These were chosen to reflect the different cattle-milo price relationships which exist in Texas.

Included were both the farmer-feeder type operations (1,500-head capacity) and large commercial feedlots (20,000-head capacity). Comparisons of systems consider costs, returns and rate of turnover. Consequently, return per head of feedlot capacity and annual feedlot net revenue are appropriate bases for comparisons. The study indicates that the level of revenue of revenue for each area was not as important as the ranking of the systems by annual net revenue. This type of ranking suggests that the most profitable systems were the feeding of light heifers to USDA Good grade and backgrounding of feeder calves on pasture.

Since management of cattle is a complex business and profit achievement is dependent on many factors, the publication examines and compares various sectors of production. The booklet is complete with maps and numerous informative tables.

As expected, the study revealed the Panhandle area has more profitable systems than any other area for both types of feedlots. This is largely due to the lower prices of milo in the Panhandle area. The competitive advantage of South Texas relative to the Panhandle would be improved if the export demand for milo were to decline. In North, South and East Texas, the most profitable systems were finishing Good heifers from 400 to 700 pounds and backgrounding feeder steers on pasture. Finishing Choice steers from 600 to 1,050 pounds showed negative returns in all areas.

This publication, MP-1022, should be of interest to all in the cattle feeding business. A copy can be obtained from the Department of Agricultural Communications, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

Blossom-End-Rot Of Tomatoes Discussed

Blossom-end-rot in tomatoes may be blamed on several conditions, but the resulting breakdown is due to water being withdrawn from cells on the blossom end of the fruit.

The withdrawal results when the water uptake by the plant's roots is insufficient to make up for that lost in transpiration (plant growth processes).

The breakdown of the fruit begins as a green-water-soaked area which rapidly turns gray to dark brown in color, followed by shrinking and collapsing. Further decomposition of the fruit can occur if microorganisms enter the affected area.

Insufficient water uptake occurs when the soil is too dry. Also, poor aeration resulting from excessive soil moisture can prevent water uptake by the roots. Standing water will cause most plants to wilt or die because the roots' air supply is cut off. In addition, when hot winds and low humidity occur, many plants cannot take up enough water to counteract the moisture lost from transpiration.

Calcium deficiency or low levels of calcium in the soil can contribute to blossom-end-rot. This condition is limited mainly to the East Texas area. Calcium has a regulatory effect on the plant's transpiration rate. High calcium levels in the plant favor low transpiration rates while low calcium levels favor high transpiration rates.

It is suggested using calcium nitrate for the nitrogen needs of tomatoes, limestone when soil tests show a need for lime, and agricultural gypsum at the rate of 50 pounds per 1000 square feet when tests indicate low calcium. This can help in controlling blossom-end-rot.

A temporary treatment is achieved with calcium chloride applied as a foliage spray to run off. The suggested rate is one pound of the compound per 25 gallons of water. Should hot dry winds or other unfavorable conditions persist, repeat the spraying at about five-day intervals. Calcium chloride may sometimes be obtained from farm implement dealers who use it in farm tractor tires.

Nematodes and diseases that block water intake also can contribute to blossom-end-rot. In addition, root pruning and deep cultivation can prevent water intake. However, these problems can be avoided by using nematode and disease resistant varieties, practicing crop rotations and using mulches.

In addition to tomatoes, blossom-end-rot is also a problem in peppers and watermelons.

South And West Texas

College Station, Tex.—South and West Texas cattlemen seeking to expand their herds are looking less for greener grass in neighboring rangelands and concentrating more on improving their own.

"The region has reached a point where the land is supporting nearly all the cattle it can," explained Calvin C. Boykin, a researcher with the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Texas A&M University.

"Ranchers will have to apply some range improvement techniques if they want to raise more cattle to take advantage of the current high in cattle prices," he advised.

In a special project for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Boykin analyzed the economics of typical, medium-sized livestock ranches in eight counties in South and Far West Texas.

He found herd sizes had generally increased rapidly over the past few years, primarily because operators were sowing grass in worn out croplands.

As the price of cattle increased, so did return on investment. Between 1967 and 1970 operators in most ranches surveyed had boosted returns from between 80 cents and $1.77 for every $100 invested.

Still, Boykin pointed out, no cattleman in the surveyed region is getting rich. The highest investment return registered by any ranch in the survey was that of a 16,000-acre operation in Presidio County, which made $4.85 for every $100 invested. In the rest of the region, ranches surveyed returned between $2.27 and $4.18 for every $100 their owners invested.

In a business in which comfortable returns generally begin at 7% Boykin observed that most ranchers in the area studied would probably do better by leaving their money in savings accounts.

"But people here stay in business for a lot of reasons, not the least of which is that they own a lot of land—land that is in most places increasing in value," he said. "Land appreciation is not a factor considered in these investment calculations."

Boykin estimated that in some parts of the region, rangeland values increase by as much as 13% per year.

Counties sampled in his survey included Brooks, LaSalle, Live Oak, Maverick, Starr, Culberson, Pecos and Presidio.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wimer have returned from a trip to Colorado.
