Hail, Water Damage Widespread: Boon to Dryland Farmers

Young crops were wiped out in many places... others damaged and some spared during Thursday afternoon's heavy downpour over the Plains with Bailey County's rain gauges over flowing in some places and ranging on down to 1 1/2 inches in others.

Coming on the heels of the afternoon storm was an additional torrent which hit the city proper about 7:45 and covered the area with another blanket of water and turned the ground white with marble-sized hail.

By noon Friday Blackwater Draw running along the southern city limits was flooding homes and businesses on lower south Main Street. Residents were evacuated from six homes in that sector as city employees and shovels to cut trenches across the pavement on Main Street to speed the flow of water into the open land in effort to save other home damage from rising water.

A barn on the Bill Jim St. Clair farm was unroofed during high winds accompanying late evening storm.

Traffic crawling along the highways during the height of the storm and only one minor accident was reported. A vehicle meeting a pickup pulling a tank which belonged to Red Barn threw mud on the windshield of the pickup. The driver of the pickup was blinded and swerved, overturning and had complications in making the repairs, D.B. Lancaster.

The house had been under surveillance here for some length of time.

The girls are being brought before Judge Don Cihak today (Saturday).

Making the arrests were Bailey County Sheriff, Dee Clements, Chief of Police Harold White and Patrolman R.B. Cunningham.

Bill Clayton Is County Representative

Bill Clayton of Springlake will become Bailey County's state representative, replacing Jesse T. George, as a result of a revision in state representatives' districts passed by the State Legislature last week.

George is completing his second term in office as representative of a district that includes, Bailey, Cochran, Yoakum, Hockley and Terry Counties.

Parmer County 4-H Horse Show Set June 10

The Parmer County 4-H horse show will be held Saturday, June 10 at the Bovina Arena.

Ronnie McNutt, county agent said activities will begin at 1 p.m. with the halter classes.

Note was made of two changes in this year's show. They are to the effect that all four-year old registered horses are now included in the younger registered class.

Judging of halter classes will be followed by performance events, Western pleasure, reining, pole bending and barrel racing are the four performance events in which 4-Hers will be participating.

The 4-H club group will be divided into two different age groups for the performance contests. Senior contestants will be members who are 13 years of age by January 1, 1967. Junior contestants will be members who are under 12 by January 1, 1967.

One other rule change is that single or roping reins are not allowed in western pleasure or reining classes. Length of ownership for eligibility has been reduced to 90 days.

Also the junior and senior winner of each performance event will receive a trophy. Ribbons will be presented to 4-Hers placing in halter and performance classes.

A concession stand will be available at the arena the day of the show.

They are presently in the process of converting the old warehouse to fireproof storage and data processing rooms.

Ernest Maloy, employee at the Shamrock Service station on American Boulevard, is in Bailey County Jail after reporting a holdup at the station Wednesday morning about 4 a.m.

Maloy reported to authorities that two colored men entered the station and took the money, leaving the establishment on foot.

After questioning, he changed the story and related that he had taken the money before calling the police.

Chief of Police Harold White and Deputy Sheriff Bobby Henderson arrested Maloy on the theft charge.

Sherriff Dee Clements said one person has been arrested in connection with the Treflan burglaries in the area and warrants have been issued for the arrest of two other persons.

The doors will swing open at 9 a.m. Monday, June 5 marking the Grand Opening of Gibson's Discount Center in Muleshoe.

The business, located at 1723 West American Blvd. in the building formerly occupied by Tri-Co Bowling, will be managed by John Leyta with John Gentry as assistant manager.

A total of 15 persons have been employed by the franchise co-owner O. L. Pierce, M. C. Dennis and Howard L. Pierce.

The businessmen also own the Clovis and Portales stores. Six sale days are to begin with the grand opening day. All items found in the Clovis store will be found in the new store here, including Health and Beauty aids, soft goods, houseware, hardware, sporting goods, toys and automotive supplies, plus many other novelty and gift items.

The store building has been completely remodeled and new fixtures have been installed. Store hours will be from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. week days and will remain closed on Sunday.

In response to the presentation of the bronze plaque, Gibson recalled the opening of the first discount store in Abilene and delighted his audience of newsmen with his memory of the very first full page advertisement that he purchased and how he had worried about how it was going to pay for it.

The tall, aggressive, good natured head of an organization told of plans at that time to have 300 stores in operation from coast to coast at the end of that year, and how much money his company spends in some of the key cities in which Gibson stores are located.

He said the company's advertising budget provides for the expenditure of 85 percent of each advertising dollar in newspapers and the other 15 percent in other media. The Gibson company then spent about $200,000 per year and predicted would soon be spending a quarter of a million dollars per week for advertising and promotion work.

"I think every dollar we have spent in newspapers has gotten good return," the head of the chain said.

Leyta has been assistant manager of the Portales store for the past 1 1/2 years. He

Mrs. Ed Harp was the winner of the American Tourist luggage given in a drawing at Lambert's Cleaners.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie McAlpin are moving to 1710 Lucy Lane, Beville. McAlpin was coach here for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Leasel Richardson will spend the summer in Dallas where he will be attending the SMU summer session in music.

From Paul Crume's column in the Dallas Morning News, comes the word that the world's record for being lost on a freeway is held by a Muleshoe housewife. The record is three days, 11 hours and 26 minutes.

Mrs. Alva Mays drove on to the Santa Monica Freeway at 9:18 a.m. back in September 1964, on her way to Pasadena to visit an injured sister. After 247.2 miles on nine freeways and 16 successful passes at the downtown Los Angeles interchange, a night at Bakersfield, a day spent in dense fog two miles north of Oceanide, and six citations for fast and slow driving, she escaped the monster through a new tunnel and ran into the ribbon-cutting ceremonies.

If it's anybody's business, it says in the column that Mrs. Mays was 43 when she drove onto the freeway and probably didn't feel any younger when she got off.

Miss Meriet Lamb, Los Angeles, is visiting here with her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Lamb and niece Magan Lamb.

Art Association Meet Monday

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Vern Sanford

By—Vern Sanford Texas Press Association

AUSTIN—State Legislators wound up their 60th session here on schedule, despite a hectic flurry of last-minute assignments, and left behind a far-reaching record of achievement in many areas.

No one can deny that there were some notable failures. But the accomplishments were impressive.

Here is a random look at some of the session's highlights:

BUDGET -- Lawmakers agreed on $2,400,000,000 in spending ($446,600,000 from general revenue) for 1968, without passing a tax bill. They will come back next year to budget for 1969. Funds provided for substantial increases in all areas of state government, including education, health, general administration and welfare.

SCHOOL TEACHERS -- After requesting a $68,000,000 salary increase program and being offered $35,500,000 by the Senate, teachers finally got $51,000,000.

STATE EMPLOYEES -- These workers came up with their most substantial salary benefits in history. Raises averaged about 14 per cent and ranged up to 30 per cent and more in some salaries.

veraged about 14 per cent and ranged up to 30 per cent and more in some salaries.

MEDICAID -- Title 19 hospitalization and medical aid to the needy -- most dramatic step in public welfare since launching of social security -- was implemented for Texas by passage of special act and appropriation of nearly $25,000,000.

EDUCATION -- Money was made available for 2,300,000 public school pupils and a 26 percent increase in higher education spending. Junior college appropriations were increased from $13,600,000 to $24,400,000.

CITY SALES TAX -- Cities got the authority they sought to supplement their property tax income by levying one per cent sales taxes on vote of their citizens after next August.

LABOR -- Although defeated on minimum wage, minimum and workmen's compensation law revision, labor came to terms with management on a compromise industrial safety act and an increase in unemployment compensation benefits from a maximum of $37 to $45 a week.

CONSUMER CREDIT -- State's first consumer credit code regulates lending at all levels. Rates of up to 240 per cent on very small loans stirred controversy, but the bill passed by big margins.

TRAFFIC SAFETY -- Major part of Gov. John Connally's recommended highway safety program was approved. It included a new drivers' license act, an auto inspection bill and establishment of a traffic program to be administered by the Governor.

OPEN MEETINGS -- Another Texas legislative first, and act to require open meetings of governmental agencies at all levels was signed into law by the Governor who termed it "a great step forward to provide a means whereby the public can be more informed on governmental and public affairs."

REAPPOINTMENT -- Legislators agreed on both Softball...

Cooperative manager said. "In some places, it was equipment to use for repair work. For instance, at Hartley Dairy the water was deeper than the men were tall and they needed to work and it was the following day before repairs were made there," he added.

The 20 units belonging to the Cooperative assisted Bailey County Sheriff's department, City Police, Highway Patrol and Bailey County volunteer Fire Department keep check on the clouds for tornadoes.

Young tomatoes on the E.W. Locker farm at the airport were completely destroyed.

Vernon Jamison said he received 1 1/2 inches of rain on his farm at Lariat and plot of hail which destroyed his cotton crop. Most of the farmers in that immediate area lost their cotton, Jamison said, however, it did lighten up some to the north, but the condition worsened in the West Camp area. "Most of us will be re-planting," Jamison said.

D.O. Burslemith who farms 12 miles northwest reports that around four inches of rain accompanied by a lot of hail wiped out his cotton crops.

C.C. Graef who farms 9 miles northeast of Lazbuddie reports 1 1/4 inches of rain with no hail. "The rain fell real nice," Graef said.

J.L. Kitchens in the Longview Community said the rain was a blessing to the dryland farmers who had not planted. They received about two inches of rain with very little hail. Some trailers and electric wiring was damaged due to high winds, however overall damage was considered slight.

W. B. Kirtrel, 9 miles south on Highway 214 received 2 1/2 inches of rain and very little hail. Most of the damage was due to washout, and if the sand don't get the rest of it, I will have to replant about 30 acres. I have three sandfighters 'on the mark, ready to go," Kirtrel said. More than an inch of rain fell on the farm Sunday.

Earl Bowers, Goodland, said some 6 inches fell on his farm with no hail. The wheat wasn't damaged, however small cotton was damaged.

Bowers said the strip of rough weather extended to an area about six farms around him and on into Morton. The rain fell in a 1 1/2 hour period.

Other rain reports over the area reported are Morton, 2 inches; Sudan, 3 inches; Springlake, 2 inches; Littlefield, 5 inches; Levelland, 2 1/2 inches; Friona, .62; and Earth, 2 inches.

essional and state House of Representatives redistricting. However, they could not get together on judicial reapportionment.

WATER -- Texas Water Development Board received $1,200,000 more for its operations and completion of a statewide master plan. Texas Water Rights Commission got a boost of $494,422 to aid in administering the new water rights adjudication act which also is a product of the 60th session.

POLLUTION -- Strengthened Water Pollution Control Board got #13,100,000 for its 1968 operations. An air pollution control measure also became law.

SUNDAY CLOSING -- Lawmakers tightened Sunday closing laws by repealing the "emergency purchase" provisions of the old law.

Key recommendations of Governor Connally which failed to clear the Legislature were proposals for sweeping revisions of the state constitution by a 450-member convention and legalized sale of liquor by the drink.

Bill to legalize parimutuel wagering on horse races never came to a showdown vote, but a referendum on the issue was approved for inclusion on next May's Democratic and Republican primary election ballots.

CONNALLY VETOES -- Most of the bills passed by the Legislature are signed into law. But once in a while the governor vetoes a measure. One he vetoed would have allowed cigarette distributors to make payment for cigarette stamps purchased from the state within 15 days after the purchase rather than when the purchase is made.

Connally said he vetoed the bill because, although it would have required the distributors buying on credit to put up bond, "this surety bond does not change the constitutionality of pledging the state's credit."

In addition, the Governor said the state comptroller has informed him that "the general revenue fund in the treasury would lose approximately $3,500,000 during this current fiscal year because of the delay in payments for cigarette stamps."

LEGISLATORS' PAY -- Both Houses approved -- and the people will get a chance to vote on -- the proposed constitutional amendment which would raise the salaries of legislators from the current $4,800 to a maximum of $8,400.

Measure, authored by Rep.

Alonzo Jamison of Denton, will be placed on the ballot in the next general election to let the voters decide whether they want to raise the salaries of their representatives and senators.

Mrs. Hilda Weinert of Seguin, for 16 years national Democratic committee woman from Texas and also former vice chairman of the State Democratic Committee, was honored in ceremonies during the closing week of the legislative session and her portrait was placed in the state senate reception room.

Washington Report

From Congressman BOB PRICE 10TH DISTRICT, TEXAS

Differences in the Selective Service Act of 1967 as passed by both the House and Senate will be ironed out by a conference committee this week.

The bill passed by the House extends the present Draft Act and related laws for four years and updates and improves the present Selective Service System in a number of ways:

1. A National Manpower Resources Board is established which, in conjunction with the National Security Council, will identify those professional, scientific and critical skill areas that justify a draft deferment.

2. Before any change in the existing method of determining the relative order of induction for registrants within the various age groups may be effected, the President is required to advise Congress that such change is in the national interest. The proposed change will become effective after the expiration of a 60-day period unless Congress adopts resolution rejecting the change.

3. A method of maintaining the authorized strengths of the Reserve and the National Guard is provided.

4. Uniform criteria for future undergraduate college student deferments are established. Students receiving such deferments shall be placed in the prime age group liable for induction after they leave school, receive a degree or attain age 24, whichever occurs first.

5. The President is required to establish, whenever practicable, national criteria for the classification of persons subject to induction. Such criteria shall be administered uniformly by all local boards.

6. Those opposed to participation in war in any form by reason of religious training and belief shall be exempt from service in the Armed Forces. Conscientious objectors will be required, if selected for induction, to perform noncombatant duty or two years of civilian service if they are conscientiously opposed to both combatant and noncombatant training and service.

7. Individuals are prohibited from serving on local or appeal boards after they have completed 25 years of service or attained age 75. Also, women may be appointed to serve on such boards.

The order of call for eligible registrants will be revised so that those in the younger age group would be called to active duty first. Under the present system of priorities for induction, the oldest are selected first from the age group of 26 years and under. This system has resulted in considerable uncertainty. An individual classified as available at 18

1/2 remains subject to possible induction until he reaches his 25th birth date. Moreover, the degree of his exposure to induction increases directly with his age and reaches its maximum point on the day before he reaches age 26. The younger men, as a group, are more adaptable to the rigors of military training and there are fewer dependents' problems at these ages. Also, a man who is awaiting a draft call has greater difficulty in finding and keeping suitable employment.

I believe that a system of carefully controlled student deferments should be continued. As noted by the American Council on Education, "Students are deferred for the National, not individual interests." If student deferments were abolished, the future supply of doctors, lawyers, college professors, research scientists, graduate engineers and other specialists could be seriously jeopardized. Moreover, in order to insure a maximum degree of fairness, those receiving student deferments shall not be eligible for another deferment except in extreme hardship cases. And, on termination of the student deferment, the individual shall be immediately liable for induction as a registrant within the prime age group regardless of his actual age.

The proposed National Manpower Resources Board, in conjunction with the National Security Council, will identify those occupations, professions and areas of postgraduate study that are critically required in the national interest and that warrant a deferred status.

Under this procedure, the number of deferments presently granted to students engaged in graduate study would be sharply reduced. The board also would identify skilled trade areas critical to the national interest which require continuation of apprenticeship programs. Trainees in such programs would be provided a deferred status similar to that provided college undergraduate students.

In the past, diverse classification actions by local boards have created certain inequities. The changes in the law embodied in the proposed bill should materially reduce, if not eliminate, this problem. Certainly, the uniform standards for student deferments together with the recommendation that future draft calls concentrate on the younger age group should improve the handling of future registrants. Also, the President is required to establish, wherever practicable, national criteria for the classification of persons subject to induction under the Draft Act.

Middle East Struggle

In Washington some diplomats feel that the Arab states are falling into the trap of accepting a new war with Israel before they are ready, in their current confrontation.

In recent years Egypt particularly has increased her military power by buying large quantities of arms and equipment from the Communists. Some believe the Arab states now possess an edge in equipment. Certainly they have the edge in numbers, in both manpower and weapons.

The United States is regarded as pro-Israel by the Arab countries, partly because of heavy financial aid annually sent to Israel by American Jews and partly because, politics being politics, the Jewish community, especially around New York exerts considerable pressure on politicians in Washington.

In Israel there has been concern of late that the Arab states were slowly gaining an advantage as they continued to arm and organize their superior numbers. But Israeli armed forces chiefs think Israel can defend itself as of today. And there are several hints from Israel that if war must come soon, Israel is prepared to accept it now.

Precipitating a final showdown will probably be judged an Arab blunder, though most diplomats concede that President Nasser of Egypt has realized certain non-physical gains in his stirring of the old pot at this time. The United States is officially against the use of force—which both sides have been guilty of employing in recent months.

If the Arabs are judged aggressors and lose, it could threaten Nasser's position in Egypt more seriously than any other event since he overthrew a degenerate monarchy more than a decade ago.

Just Like Old Times

THE WAR against poverty must be just about won, judging from the efforts of a couple of farsighted Americans. They have suggested projects that after the arrival of the complete Great Society will serve to remind future citizens how it was in the bad old days.

One of these is Sen. Gaylord Nelson who would like to see a national network of hiking trails, so that Americans can once again know the experiences of getting around without the aid of auto, mass transit or jetliner.

In seeking a national bill to launch the project, he has said, "I see no reason why we cannot have a hiking trail within one hour of every American who needs one."

If this is to be a federal scheme, it is remarkably unambitious as such schemes go. For one thing, there wouldn't seem to be much point in having a hiking trail if it is that far away from the would-be hiker. Assuming the senator means that the trip will be an hour by foot, the hikers will get an excellent hiking workout just getting to and from the trail, without having to use the trail itself.

If this plan had been properly devised, it would have envisioned a hiking trail within a hop, skip and jump of every hiker. This could be accomplished either by building hundreds of thousands of hiking trails around the country or by building one big one and moving all the hikers to it permanently.

But, if the senator's plan to preserve walking for posterity is small potatoes, that cannot be said of the plan cooking at the Smithsonian, which aims to preserve a slum. The idea, according to Insider's Newsletter, is to establish an authentic slum environment, complete with rats and smells, for future inhabitants of utopia to study.

When the directors heard about it, there was a terrible row. But now a compromise has been worked out, and the institution is buying an 1890s "almost extinct species of slum."

The slum will be torn down and reconstructed inside the brand-new Growth of the United States Hall by expert slum builders. Though it will include such realistic details as bare light bulbs and falling plaster, the directors drew the line at rats.

The museum says, however, that a mild slum odor will be added for effect. One company that specializes in producing flavors and fragrances has turned up its nose at the contract for producing slum odors. However, it has conceded that, if it is asked sweetly, it would produce a slightly disagreeable smell as a "public service."

This is noble of the firm, but after all, it isn't as though the Smithsonian were asking them to create a big stink.

Legislature Does Its Districting Job

When the Legislature really bucked down to the job, it buckled up congressional redistricting of the state in short order. And it turned in a creditable performance—though not a perfect one, as hard-working Chairman Gus Mutscher of the House redistricting committee admitted.

If there is any way to a perfect redistricting of a state as large, as diverse in interests and as varying in population as Texas, no one has ever found it. Not even the U.S. Supreme Court, which decreed that only the number of warm bodies, and their arbitrary division into districts of virtually equal numerical strength, should be considered.

Legislators being human, and politicians, it is hardly possible for them to exclude all other considerations, and they meet with a lot of objections if they attempt it. The people of a county, for example, are accustomed to thinking in terms of countywide interests and representation. Voters in any section of a county hate to be split off from their fellow citizens of the county and linked with those of other areas for purposes of representation. They are used to thinking of certain representatives as "their" congressman, especially if he has been long in office, and they dislike having suddenly to shift their loyalty—or even their opposition—elsewhere.

There are any number of ways to crave Texas into districts that meet the Supreme Court's one man, one vote formula, if county lines, popular preferences and present representation are disregarded. But the legislators are under strong pressure from certain areas and from members of Congress interested in avoiding a head-on race with another congressman in which one of them would be eliminated. To these pressures the district re-mappers pay some heed, as is only natural.

When a predominantly Democratic Legislature does the redistricting, the Republicans are loudest in protesting that they have been done wrong by. Probably in some cases they have—politics is seldom entirely absent from the minds of politicians. And if the shoe were on the other foot—that is, if a Republican Legislature were doing the redistricting—the howl from Democrats would be as loud and probably with as much justification.

In applying the equal population formula. It has been seven years since the last official census and population shifts since that time have rendered the figures inexact and the present distribution cannot be precisely known.

Whether the newly wrought redistricting, with its variance of 6.9 per cent up or down from the mathematical average of population, will meet the approval of the federal courts is another thing that cannot be known. If not, the Legislature will have been merely spinning its wheels and the courts presumably will take over the job.

At any rate, the accomplishment of redistricting has avoided a special session of the Legislature, and that is good. There is no certainty that the task would have been done better if deferred, and special sessions are costly. Avoidance of the expense is welcome when it is considered that in four more years, after the next census, the job will have to be done all over again anyway.

Fort Worth STAR-TELEGRAM

Looking at WASHINGTON

John Tower

Washington, D.C.—Secretary of the Treasury Fowler has changed his official position from one of an eight-billion-dollar deficit in fiscal 1968 (beginning July 1st) to an eleven-billion-dollar deficit. Most economists, however, feel he is being highly optimistic.

Other estimates in recent weeks have placed the potential deficit in the next fiscal year at 15,18 and 24 billions. Vietnam war costs are up, tax collections are down and the surtax asked by the President in January is certain to take effect later than anticipated, if enacted.

Because of fears the deficit may be huge, there is all kinds of speculation about the dollar, the U.S. gold supply and price controls. A run on gold could develop if such a deficit materializes and foreigners could seek to call in the thirteen billion dollars in gold reserves Washington has left.

If this should begin, the government could not allow the gold to leave, might resort to control of one kind or another, even price and wage controls, according to some. Those who fear the worst hint of a deficit in the next fiscal year of not fifteen billions but of thirty or forty billions!

The resulting inflation and the repercussions of such an event are so dire that it is possible only if Congress refused to vote a surtax or if the Vietnam war erupted into a major war in Asia) might be catastrophic.

Meanwhile, advocates of a national, government-operated lottery say the lottery is the easiest and perhaps the only easy way to solve the nation's financial problems. Already favored by so many in the draft, a lottery could produce an estimated twenty or thirty billions annually—much of the revenue taken from the under-world.

Of course, the position of many of the churches is one of strong opposition. Yet many countries have national lotteries today and several states in the United States have recently turned to them as a source of badly-needed revenue.

A national lottery could be inaugurated several months from the day of authorization. Income derived could be earmarked for education or other worthwhile purposes, lessening normal tax collections for other demands, such as the war in Vietnam.

Yet despite the belief of many in Washington that a lottery could probably ease the nation's critical financial crisis, possibly prevent ruinous inflation and a run on the U.S. gold supply or collapse of the dollar, politicians fear church opposition and few are willing to push the fight, either because they feel it hopeless or because they fear the consequences at the polls if they do so.

I have just finished a week filled with commencement speeches to several colleges and high schools in our state. It's a time of year particularly look forward to, because, as a former teacher myself, I always enjoy being with our students again.

They never fail to challenge me with their enthusiasm, knowledge, determination and confident quest for the future. Earlier this spring, I was asked to gather my thoughts and to talk with some Louisiana students about the future of America's future. Here's some of what I said to those students.

"Just as today's politics combines all national technology and all social aspirations, so will tomorrow's politics have to perform the function of collating and coordinating every facet of human behavior and human capability for the tightest number. It is the function of governments, set by men over themselves, to temper technology with reason, to infuse machines with morality, and to safeguard subjectivity from science.

"I doubt that we can expect our future world to be free of tyrants, or of evil, or of the covetous and the selfish. So, let us not expect perfection, though we continue to reach for it. Let us, rather, anticipate challenge and pursue progress.

"You must remember, most importantly, that the future must not shape you; but you must shape the future.

"For nearly two centuries Americans have made government of the people, by the people and for the people work. With the consent of the governed, we have established a republic encompassing both inflexible liberties and flexible realities.

"But must expect that a Republic which has survived thus far can certainly survive for much, much longer. Over the next century your government, with your participation and guidance, is going to create a climate for the most secure, most healthy and most prosperous domestic existence ever known to man.

"We are going to meet and deal with such things as tripled population, 100-year life spans, exotic drugs, unjourning weapons, ocean farming, fusion power, robots, artificial life, weather control, genetic control, space exploration, instant communication, urbanization.

"We are in the midst of a transition into a new era of emphasis on individual liberties, individual responsibilities, and individual protections against all-powerful, national government.

"We are proceeding into a new era in which every American will have constitutionally equal opportunities, in which increased urbanization will be reflected in equitable urban political power, and in which state governments will be revitalized so that they may help preserve the democratic diversity upon which American strength rests.

"In the international political arena we must decide whether tomorrow's world will be the monolith of communism or the diversity of self-determination.

"I believe our future contains for us neither world war nor communism. I believe this first because there is solid evidence this is the way things are going, and second because if we allow ourselves to react either nuclear war or communism the future of the world will not count for much anyway.

"I believe we can safely project this peaceful future because today's United States has it within her power to achieve this future for the world. And today's United States is strong enough, wise enough, and determined enough to do just that.

"This concern about and responsibility for the world's peaceful future is precisely why America confronts communist aggression in Vietnam today—and likely will confront it, or some other totalitarianism, again.

"The United States is today and for the future the free world's leader. We did not ask for that job. Sometimes we do not particularly like it. But, we have got it, and it is up to us to make this world secure from aggression so that every nation—large and small—can aspire to self-determination with some reasonable hope to success.

AMERICAN FEATURES

By George

JESSE T. GEORGE

As proof of Republican pledges to offer constructive alternatives to Great Society programs, the so-called Quie amendment will be offered as a substitute for the Elementary and Secondary Education Amendments of 1967 when the Administration sponsored bill comes before the House shortly.

This is the first major move by Republican leaders in Congress to give the states and communities a responsible share of control over the way Federal funds are allotted to finance local programs.

The plan provides for block grants to the states for elementary and secondary education rather than the multiple individual grants-in-aid under the rigid control of the U. S. Office of Education in Washington.

There is only one real difference of control. The Quie plan would give state and local authorities responsible power over the way Federal school funds are spent. The Administration bill would keep the control in the hands of the Washington bureaucracy.

In presenting his plan to the House, Congressman Quie explained in detail under its provisions Federal school funds would not be mingled with other State educational funds, that in the future no State private schools would get an even better deal than they do now, that poorer States would be protected, and that no violation of the civil rights law would be permitted.

But despite this, Administration officials from President Johnson on down have run far ahead of the Quie plan. The bill is in the area of administration of the Act and allocation of its funds.

The legislation which the Department of Health, Education and Welfare presented, and which the House Leadership accepted, retains these same rigid and arbitrary controls that have been so criticized in Dallas County.

"Opponents, myself among them, would like to see much of the red tape and paper work eliminated, and a wider range of discretion permitted state and local officials.

"The substitute bill which will be offered on the floor substantially achieves the moderate viewpoint."

I compliment my Democratic opponent for his frank and honest appraisal of a Republican sponsored bill and hope more of his caliber will join us in passing this most needed amendment to the Elementary and Secondary Education Act which would be a giant stride in the direction of giving state and local officials more discretion.

In the same terms, The President flew by helicopter to a high school in nearby Maryland where he denounced the Quie plan in a blast of torrid phrases.

The Milwaukee Sentinel, in an editorial, said: "Why the honest appraisal of a Republican sponsored bill and hope more of his caliber will join us in passing this most needed amendment to the Elementary and Secondary Education Act which would be a giant stride in the direction of giving state and local officials more discretion."

In fact, one of the Democrats of the Texas delegation, Rep. Earle Cabell of Dallas, expressed his opinion that the amendment as compared with the Administration bill as follows:

"In considering the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1967, emotionalism and partisanship have become so intense that they are clouding the real issues involved.

"There are very few members of the House who oppose the basic concept of providing assistance to overburdened school administrations where the load is increased due to a heavy influx of students from low income families.

"Where many of the more moderate members of the majority party have joined some members of the minority party in vigorous opposition to this creation and control over education.

June Brides Have Problems Wide

Dear Amy: I enjoy your articles, your advice to teen-ages and to adults. Being a grandmother doesn't make me immune from seeking your advice even though at my age, I should know all the answers myself.

I know that sometimes it is obligatory to give gifts on certain occasions, but how about the following: If a girl who is to be a bridesmaid gives a bridal shower for the bride-to-be, is a "Thank You" note sufficient or should the bride-to-be send a gift in appreciation for the girl's thoughts and efforts? Mrs. R. P.

Dear Mrs. R.P.: The "shower hostess" should be remembered with a token gift of appreciation from the bride-to-be. It need not be expensive. Recently, one of my young friends sent a lovely bouquet of fresh flowers to her "shower hostess" the day following the affair. This I thought was warm and lovely. Mrs. R. P.

Dear Amy: I am to be married. My question may seem unusual to you but I don't know how to treat my future in-laws. They are young, modern and very nice. I admit I feel strange with them at times, but it's not their fault. I know they are fond of me and they do everything to make me feel at home when I visit them. They're really very nice. I asked a friend and she said that I should act toward them as I would toward my own parents. But I can't do that because I honestly don't always talk to my parents very nicely. (You know how it is with your own parents, not always seeing eye-to-eye.) Your suggestions would be appreciated. Debbie

Dear Debbie: Start out by talking to your own parents nice. But no matter how kind you are to YOUR mother and father, be kinder to your in-laws. No matter what you say to your folks, they will forgive you because they love you. Your in-laws must learn to love you by your words and actions. AMY ADAMS

PERSONAL TO Mrs. J. F. (Pulaski, Tenn.): There are many reliable schools there are one. If your mother has a problem, hearing from you boys will help her to overcome it better. She will communicate with you, I know, as soon as she is able. Be kind, tolerant and have patience.

GONE WITH THE WIND-- The roof of a barn on Bill Jim St. Clair's farm is gone with the wind. High winds during Thursday's storm unroofed the barn and scattered debris about.

Save the Trail

THE APPALACHIAN TRAIL, until 1925, without being able to get a law passed to preserve the Katahdin area. In 1930 he bought 6,000 acres of the mountain top and gave it to the state as a wildlife sanctuary, forest and park.

And they frequently say, in Sutton's book about the joys of hiking on the 2,000-mile Appalachian Trail is an eloquent plea to preserve that trail and others in this country as wilderness.

The Suttons have organized a book to describe some of the sights and sensations experienced in hiking the trail to go for a long walk. My thoughts start out with me like Mt. Katahdin, Maine, occasional blood-stained mutineers daily weaving in sections of advice, topography and history. They make their presentation general, to be of interest both to the inveterate hiker and to the person who talks about going hiking someday. There are references to areas where one can drive a car to the trail and statements about the Maine segment definitely being for the experienced hiker.

A list of publications available and supplies needed are in an appendix.

The Suttons don't condescend to the nonhiker or overemphasize the delights of hiking, which they believe is enjoyable for most persons but not for everybody. They do frequently praise nature conservationists. Perceval Baxter, for example, served five terms in the Maine legislature and two terms as governor.

Senate Adjourned Wednesday: Early Special Session Foreseen

AUSTIN --- Senator Jack Hightower, along with fellow lawmakers of the 161-member State Legislature, returned home Wednesday following adjournment of the 60th session. The Senator had the distinction Monday of pushing through the Senate the final bill of the session, a proposal relieving county assessors and tax collectors from liability for civil damages in exercise of official duties.

House and Senate members worked through the final day polishing off last minute work before the 12 p.m. deadline climaxing the 140-day biennium work session.

Legislators will be called back to the Capitol sometimes next year, however, to appropriate funds for state spending in 1969, Senator Hightower said.

Governor John E. Connally is expected to call the special session early in the year, possibly in May after the state primaries.

Legislators last week cleared the way for adjournment by passing the one-year, $446.8 million general spending bill to finance state government in 1968.

The one-year spending measure was proposed by Governor Connally to eliminate the need for new taxes this year. Funds for the second half of the biennium will be appropriated at the special session.

Senate and House members also gave approval to a compromise, $48 million teacher pay raise providing an average increase of about $550 a year for state teachers.

The total appropriations bill is the largest in the state's history for one-year spending. The last major hurdle before adjournment was cleared when Legislators approved a House redistricting bill designed to comply with the new one man, one vote federal guideline.

Senator Hightower said he was pleased with the work of the Legislature and listed a House of its major contributions: -- passage of a local option, one per cent city sales tax bill -- revision of the Code of Criminal Procedure aiding police and public prosecutors in their fight against crime. -- reclamation and conservation programs preserving the state's vital resources.

The legislature convened January 10.

COTTON TALKS
FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

LUBBOCK, Ten more Texas counties, including Deaf Smith and Yoakum on the High Plains, voted May 16 through 19 to permit the lease or sale of cotton allotments across county lines within the state.

This brings to 89 the state total of counties from which producers may buy, sell or lease allotments to be moved outside the county. Gaines is the only other county on the Plains which approved the measure in the two previous referendums in 1965 and 1966.

Sixty counties approved inter-county transfers in 1965 and another 19 passed the issue in 1966.

Under the cotton section of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 inter-county transfers by sale or lease were allowed for the first time in 1966, but only after allotment holders voting by a two-thirds majority.

The 23 counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., gained 46,774 acres of cotton under this provision in 1966 and another 38,036 acres in 1967. Referendum approval is not required for transfers within a county or between counties if the move is between farms of the same ownership, but all transfers must be made during the period beginning June 1 and ending December 31 of each year.

In addition to the two Plains counties, Hudspeit, Hutchinson, Irion, Kimble, Maverick, Pecos, Reeves and Winkler counties approved out-of-county transfers in this year's referendum.

The ten counties have combined cotton allotments of 119,986 acres, of which 47,462 are in Deaf Smith and Yoakum counties.

Producer approval of transfers is good for three years, Donald J. Kendrick, 269 cotton producing counties held referendums this year. Next year the 160 counties which voted out-of-county transfers had the same previous referendums, plus the 60 which approved them in 1965, will be required to vote.

The organization of Water, Inc., is accomplished, 1,300 active people from every walk of life turned out May 24, heard optimistic reports on the chances for importing water to West Texas and adjacent areas, approved a charter by-laws for the new organization and elected its first state directors.

May 24 will be a day long remembered for its contribution to the future economy of the state. J.D. Smith, President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Smith, of Littlefield, is a member of the organizing committee which spent months preparing for the organization's first meeting and was elected to serve as one of 33 directors for Water, Inc. He was also chosen to serve as a member of the new association's Executive Committee.

John J. Kendrick, President of the First National Bank of Brownfield, was elected president of Water, Inc. K.B. Watson, Vice President and General Counsel for Power Natural Gas Company, Amarillo, was chosen first vice president.

Other officers include Gaston Wells of Dumas, second vice president, J.M. Collins of Plainview, secretary, and Jim Ed Waller of Lubbock, treasurer.

Directors were elected from 23 districts, with five additional districts to be established outside the high plains area. Also included on the board are 10 "directors at large."

In addition to the regular board, a six-man "advisory" board was established, Donald Johnson, FCG Executive Vice President, was given membership on that group.

Purpose of the new organization will be to work for the importation of vast quantities of water to West Texas and adjacent areas for use by agriculture, industry, municipalities and recreation. Now considered by engineers as the most likely sources of water are East Texas and the Mississippi River.

Kendrick said the first order of business for Water, Inc., will be a "housekeeping" nature - devising a charter, setting membership dues, appointing organizational committees etc.

"After these things are out of the way we will need to begin immediately with an educational and membership campaign in which we hope to thoroughly acquaint every individual and every business entity with the almost unlimited benefits that can come to the area through Water, Inc.," he stated.

He went on to say he recognized the necessity for dispelling doubt in the minds of many area residents as to the feasibility of importing water for irrigation and other purposes.

Two quotes from Marvin Nichols, partner in the Fort Worth engineering firm of Freese, Nichols and Endress, which has made a study of the project, should go far toward accomplishing that purpose.

In his address to the May 24 meeting, Nichols said "I can say without reservation that importation of water to this region is engineeringly feasible and that ways will be found to finance it." He later said "... imported water will come to West Texas is the region's residents display the kind of optimism, fortitude and stick-togetherness it's going to take to get the job done."

Speaking for Plains Cotton Growers after the meeting, Smith said PGC was proud to have had a part in the organization of Water, Inc., and that the 23-county cotton producer organization expected to have an active part in helping to achieve its objectives.

Missouri's George Shelby was elected president of the American Cotton Producers Association at a meeting of the group May 24 in Washington, D.C. He succeeded W.W. Hart of Sinton, Texas.

James Connor, Executive Director of the Missouri Valley Cotton Producers Association, Victoria, Texas.

Donal J. Kendrick, Executive Vice President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., attended the Washington meeting and reports that ACPA's immediate concern is for administrative actions which may be taken with regard to the 1968 cotton program, and the studies are being initiated to determine what kind of legislation may be needed in the cotton industry which producers from across the belt will be able to support.

He stressed that getting cotton legislation under which producers can live and prosper in 1968 and future years may well depend on whether policies can be enacted which producers can live upon behind such policies.

He said ACPA will meet again in the near future and that the organization hopes to outline basic legislative policies which producers from across the belt will be able to support.

LIBRARY News

Registration for the children's summer reading program is well underway, with over a hundred already registered. All children who wish to participate should start early in order to finish the required number of books, and earn their certificate.

The First Children's story hour for summer will be held next Wednesday, June 7th, at 2 p.m., and thereafter the 1st and 3rd Wed. of each month, at the same time. This is especially good for the 5 and 6 year-olds, who will start to school in the fall. Children coming for the first time should be accompanied by an adult, so that we can get their names right.

This past week the library was presented the lovely watercolor, donated by the Muleshoe Art Association. Those who weren't privileged to see it at their recent Art show, may now see it at the library. We are very proud of it, and hope that someday, the library will have a permanent collection of the art of this area.

In trying to anticipate the needs and likes of summer readers, the library has ordered and received 60 new books and the book-mobile is stocking new books regularly. Of our new books, the very best of the 1967 crop has been packed, with many popular sports, mystery, and adventure fiction for young readers, with a few slipped in for the enjoyment of us oldies. One notable book for children is the Caldecott award winner, "Up a Road Slowly"; also taking the Newbery award is "Sam Bangs and Moonshine"; and just for good measure some of the curious George books that the children would probably love the best. For adult leisure enjoyment we have added the much requested book, "Dr. Zhivago"; this is the book that was smuggled into Russia and which movie-goers have recently been able to see.

We now have the book you may have seen advertised by Hemphill - Wells recently, "Love is a Wilder Rose", a biographical novel, just released in May, about Harriet Potter, who came to Texas during the days of the fight for Texas independence, who was loved by her gambler husband, with two small children, to starve or survive any way she could; who after hearing of the death of her 1st husband entered into marriage with a dashing Colonel in the Texas Navy, only to have her 1st husband turn up to condemn her later. Proving again that truth may be much stranger than fiction, this is one you won't want to miss.

Speaking of Truth, we have added Ruth Montgomery's new book, "Search for the Truth", in which she explores psychic phenomena, in herself, and many of the people around her. This will be fascinating reading for those who like books on extra-sensory perception.

Another notable new book, I must mention is "The Encyclopedia of Exotic Plants", titled "Exotica". This book will be found in the Reference room, and is a beautiful big volume with full-color photos, and is a wonderful guide to the growing of plants of every description, and origin, I especially enjoyed seeing how very many species of the cacti that are shown in it. This book was presented to the library by Mr. and Mrs. Alex Williams, and was given in memory of Mrs. Williams Mother, Mrs. Amelia Andrew.

Veterans Q's and A's

Q-- Can the burial expenses of a wife or child paid by the veteran be deducted from his income for pension purposes?

A-- The expenses of last sickness and burial of a wife or child paid by the veteran pensioner can be deducted from his income for the year in which they are paid.

Q-- I am receiving a VA pension check as a widow. The words "unremarried widow," have been removed from my check. Does this mean I can continue to get a pension if I remarry?

A-- Remarriage of a widow causes her pension payments to stop at the end of the month before the month in which she remarried.

Q-- I was divorced from a veteran a short time ago. He is now in the hospital and is unable to make his payments to support our two children. Can I get VA payments toward the support of these children?

A-- If your husband has more than a 30 percent service-connected disability, and if he is receiving compensation payments because of it, you should contact the nearest Veterans Administration office and discuss your case with representatives there.
