Edgar Sauer Brings in First Bale Monday

The first bale of 1973 cotton was ginned about 2:00 p.m., Monday at Mikeska Gin.

It was brought in by Edgar Sauer of Reynolds community and it weighed 545 pounds and had been hand-picked.

Cotton is opening rapidly in the county and men at the gin are predicting a better crop than last year. Best of all the price is highest it has been in years—about 50 cents a pound.

Look, Prizes, Too ! !

The covered dish supper sponsored by the Eldorado Booster Club will be next Monday, October 1st, at 7:00 p.m. in the Memorial Building auditorium.

The junior high, "B" team, and varsity football players that are present will be introduced. The film of the Eldorado-Winters game will also be shown (hopefully on the new projector). For a special treat, there will be a drawing for door prizes.

All interested persons, especially parents are urged to attend. Each family is asked to bring two covered dishes: one a meat or casserole dish and the other a salad, vegetable or dessert.

The Eldorado Booster Club has started a drive to raise money for a film projector for the school physical education classes. The cost of the projector is around $950. Donations from any individuals and businesses will be appreciated and will entitle you to a chance for a door prize, Monday night.

The name drawn as Booster Of The Week was Fred Morrison. He will accompany the varsity team to Winters this coming Friday.

The junior high and "B" teams will host Sonora here tonight, for their first home game. Make a special effort to be there. (You, too, Mr. Hall.) Friday, the varsity team plays in Winters. —Rep.

Then remember—Monday is the special date. Bring your dish; will furnish a plate.

We will take your money, and name.

The supper is planned for one and all.

So c'mon now, and have a ball!

Post Script

For disabled people unable to appear at the polling place for voting, a new law has been set up, providing for a Certificate of Disability.

When completed it will have to be signed by a licensed physician, and enables the disabled one to obtain an absentee ballot in all future elections.

It is the opinion of this writer that very few of the disabled will bother to seek the certificate.

Mrs. Jeffrey came into our shop last week with a clipping from a Success issue of 40 or 50 years ago. Unwilling with age, it stated:

JOHNNIE WHITLEY CAPTURES COUNTY ALTITUDE RECORD

Guess you could call it altitude record—Johnnie Whitley who lives on the Davis Ranch has caught 10 eagle hawks in 21 days and he caught them up in the air. Johnnie set a trap on the end of a long well rod and set it up for the hawks to light on. Besides the ten he caught in the trap he has shot one.

Schleicher county's half-century-old courthouse is being sand-blasted this week, to restore the structure to its original appearance.

This "pretying up" is a Golden Anniversary gift to the building. Construction started in 1923 and the court house was completed and put into use the following year, 1924.

Later on, while C. S. McKinney was county judge, the court house was painted yellow. That paint was sand-blasted off in 1951.

Now County Judge Bob McWhorter and his Commissioners are looking into the possibility of having the building sprayed with some kind of clear sealer, which would protect the native stone walls from further weathering, but at the same time preserve the natural appearance of the stone.

Another Defensive Driving Course sponsored by the Eldorado Lions Club is being held this week at the Memorial Building, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights.

The classes are held 7:00 to 10:00 p.m. conducted by San Angeloans. At the meeting Monday night, 35 were present. That is about as many as attended the first such course held here several weeks ago.

Those who successfully complete the course earn a 10% reduction in their car insurance rates.

News of building:
Buddy White is getting ready to start construction of a three-bedroom house in Sunset Acres. He owns the lot by the Bill McWhorter house. Contractor will be D. E. Jackson of San Angelo.

The renovation of the interior of the First Baptist church is continuing. The project calls for new paneled walls and carpet.

The new custom-made pews are due to be delivered shortly after the first of the year.

RITES PENDING FOR MRS. YATES

Report was received here Tuesday that Mrs. Wendell Yates died Monday night in a San Angelo hospital following an illness. She was the former Bonnie Mund of this place. Arrangements were pending as The Success went to press this week.

We will print a detailed obituary next week.

Haley Transports Sold To Dallas Based Firm

Last Thursday evening Mrs. Paul Haley confirmed in a phone conversation what has been brewing all summer—

Haley Transports has been sold to Sonics International, a Dallas-based firm. Paul and Velma plan to take a long deserved vacation.

Haley Transports got its start in Eldorado shortly after the close of World War 2, when Mr. Haley began trucking crude oil from the new Schleicher county wells. The business developed rapidly along with the oil play until it included at least a score of large oil transport trucks and as many truck drivers, with Haley trucks being seen all over West Texas and into New Mexico. A branch office was finally set up at Hobbs, N. Mex., with Delmer Jackson in charge.

In the recent deal the Hobbs office has been closed and Mr. Jackson was returned to Eldorado where he is now in charge of the home office.

Halliburton recently moved from Eldorado to Sonora, leaving vacant Ray Tisdale's former Chevrolet building on South Main. Haley's has leased it and has put Thomas Byrd there to be in charge of repair and maintenance of the fleet of Haley trucks.

In its modern office building a block farther south, business is dispatched under direction of Delmer Jackson with the assistance of Junior Isaacs, Kenneth Love and Ethel Etheredge.

In our conversation last Thursday Mr. Haley stressed that there will be no change among Haley Transport employees.

The business will continue under the name of Haley Transports.

New Brucellosis Regulations Listed

Texas livestock producers will be faced with new regulations on brucellosis control following a statewide public hearing in Austin on October 1st.

The changes are being proposed by the Texas Animal Health Commission so that Texas will be able to move toward a "certified brucellosis free status" and thereby be able to comply with the standards of other states to which cattle are shipped.

Outlined below are the major changes in the brucellosis testing program:

1. Testing of all animals two years of age and over at local auction markets rather than just testing those that terminate at slaughter.

2. Maintaining cattle in groups until they are tested and found clean or are quarantined, with testing expense to be paid by the seller.

3. Herds found to have the disease will be tested until they have two negative tests, not to exceed 120 days apart.

4. Retesting must be done within 60 days.

5. Animals may move from ranch to ranch owned by the same individual within a county or similar certified area without testing.

6. Animals moving and changing ownership must be tested. Numerous other conditions and procedures are also specified in the proposed changes. To get all the details on the new brucellosis program, producers should go by the county Extension office to review a copy of the proposed regulations.

In addition to the above report from Mrs. Haley, the Success has received the following news release from Greene-Webb Associates in Dallas, which reads as follows:

Haley Transports, Inc., of Eldorado and Sonora, Texas, has been acquired for cash and notes by Dallas-based Sonics International, Inc., and will operate through C&W Transport Services of Breckenridge, Texas, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sonics, it was announced by Owen Woodward, President of C&W.

Woodward noted that the growing demand for oil field and transport services are such that consolidation of services of the two companies will result in more effective services to users throughout West Texas.

Both companies also offer brine sales and disposal services to producers, Woodward added.

In addition to its transport services, Woodward noted, Sonics also provides the oil producing industry with engineering, laboratory and other field services from 10 locations in Texas and New Mexico.

Cancer Group To Meet

District Director Election Is Set For October 4th

A district director will be elected Thursday, October 4, for Zone 5 of the Eldorado-Divide Soil and Water Conservation District. The election is to be held on the Big Oak Ranch (Copeland Ranch) presently owned by Walter C. Pope. Exact time and details of the election will be given out later. A barbecue lunch is being planned for the election.

The election will be for a five-year term. Walter Pope of Fort McKavett is the present director. He is seeking re-election.

District directors election is to be held in Zone 5 of all the districts throughout the county. The election in each district for this zone is to be held sometime after September 30 and before Oct. 16.

To date over 3,000 conservation districts have been formed, and their function is to plan and carry out programs to conserve and develop land and related resources such as water, forests, fish, and wildlife. By coordinating the services of a variety of government agencies, districts provide many services. These include conservation plans for farms and ranches, business properties, subdivisions, commercial areas, and public lands.

Districts do not aim toward power, but rather to bring about widespread understanding of the needs for soil and water conservation and to activate the efforts of public and private organizations and agencies into a united front to combat soil erosion.

This election day comes once a year in Soil Conservation Districts. Districts over the state assemble in conventions and elect their representatives on the District's Board of Directors. Only resident landowners may vote or qualify as directors.

The second spraying will begin Saturday, Sept. 29 and Sunday, Sept. 30. If weather forecasters predict bad weather, could possibly start spraying Friday.

Civic Leaders Attend RC&D Meeting Here

Civic leaders from Concho, Menard, and McCulloch counties met in Eldorado on September 20 to discuss the future development of San Saba Valley DC&D area and set up area resource committees.

The meeting was held in the Memorial Building. Clay Atkins, chairman of the DC&D county steering committee welcomed the group and then turned the meeting over to John Royal, chairman San Saba Valley RC&D.

Cities, counties, service clubs, women's clubs, conservation districts, and other groups were present.

In RC&D projects, local citizens plan and take action to protect and develop natural resources, expand economic opportunities, enlarge potentials for individual development and improve quality of living in a community.

It was pointed out at the meeting that RC&D projects can help improve living conditions in an area. But they require a lot of effort from the local people. It takes all interests working together—rural and urban alike—plus teamwork between public agencies to have a successful RC&D project.

There were some 30 members present at the meeting. Other subjects on the agenda that were discussed included status of the RC&D program, use of inventories and evaluation on proposed RC&D projects, reports from each county chairman, and questions and answers.

McCulloch County (Brady) is to host the next San Saba Valley RC&D meeting.

When I Came To Eldorado

Forty-seven years ago, one hot summer day I came to Eldorado and guess I came to stay. I thought I wouldn't and then thought I would, because everyone I met seemed so very good. I was very lonely and also very blue. I had just lost my companion and I didn't know what to do. My children were all with me and they were all so good. They tried to make me happy in every way they could. When I walked down the street people met me with a smile. It made me stop and think that life is still worth while. But now I am old and blind and cannot see my way. But I am still in Eldorado and guess this is where I will stay. Until the Good Lord calls me home to that Bright World on high where I hope to meet you all again in the Sweet Bye and Bye. Although I am blind I still can see the dear good friends you have been to me and the good kind words given that made my life worth while to live.

Composed by Mrs. J. F. Sophronia Jeffrey. She is 94 years old.

Some Mail Frauds Are Still Prevalent

(by John L. Hill, Attorney General)

Austin, Tex.—Although the federal mail fraud statute—one of our oldest consumer protection laws—has been on the books for 99 years, the fertile minds of confidence men keep producing schemes that lead to consumer disappointments and law enforcement actions.

One of the most famous of mail frauds undoubtedly was the simplest. The promoter advertised in newspapers and magazines: "Last Chance. Send $1." His postoffice box number followed.

By the time government officials put a halt to that, the fellow had gathered in $200,000 worth of dollars which had been rushed by mail by people who didn't want to miss out on that "last chance." No charges were filed, however, since the advertiser had not misrepresented anything, and hadn't promised anything he did not deliver.

Most of the frauds which are perpetrated cost the victims much more—not only in money, but in terms of time and effort.

Among the most vicious, I believe, are the fake job promises.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division has been the recipient of complaints from persons who followed through on advertisements about employment guidance, only to have their hopes dashed. Typically, the advertiser offers information about "job opportunities" to the person who will send $3 or $4 to learn more.

In some cases, the mailing of the money is the last episode, but the average consumer just chalks the loss off to experience.

Other schemes are more complicated, and more lucrative. They may involve a notice that the sender of the original fee has been "accepted," and for a couple of dollars more, he or she is urged to return an "application" to rush the referral process.

If the consumer doesn't hear any more after that, real disappointment sets in. By then enough time and effort and hope has been invested that the person really feels cheated, and turns to an agency such as our Consumer Protection Division, or a county or district attorney, or the U. S. Postal Inspector.

While enforcement of the federal mail fraud statute is a function of the postal service, deceptive advertising is illegal under the Texas Deceptive Practices-Consumer Protection Act as well, and our state and county prosecutors can take action. The new act even provides for a court order to refund the consumer's money.

Another advertised practice to beware of is the "learn-at-home" or "work-at-home" plan which promises you fabulous financial rewards if you will send in some money to learn how to sell salve, raise minks, write advertising copy—there are many twists to this.

Usually, you are required to buy some "materials" for the study or manufacture described.

Remember that there is no easy way to learn at home or to earn at home. The money and time you spend will be your own, and there is no guarantee that your efforts will sell.

We know that some reputable schools and "cottage" manufacturing industries do provide real educational services and part-time employment on a mail-order basis. The fraudulent operator is banking on your confidence in the honest operations when he advertises his.

Deceptive consumer practices always have seemed to me to be the worst sort of fraud.

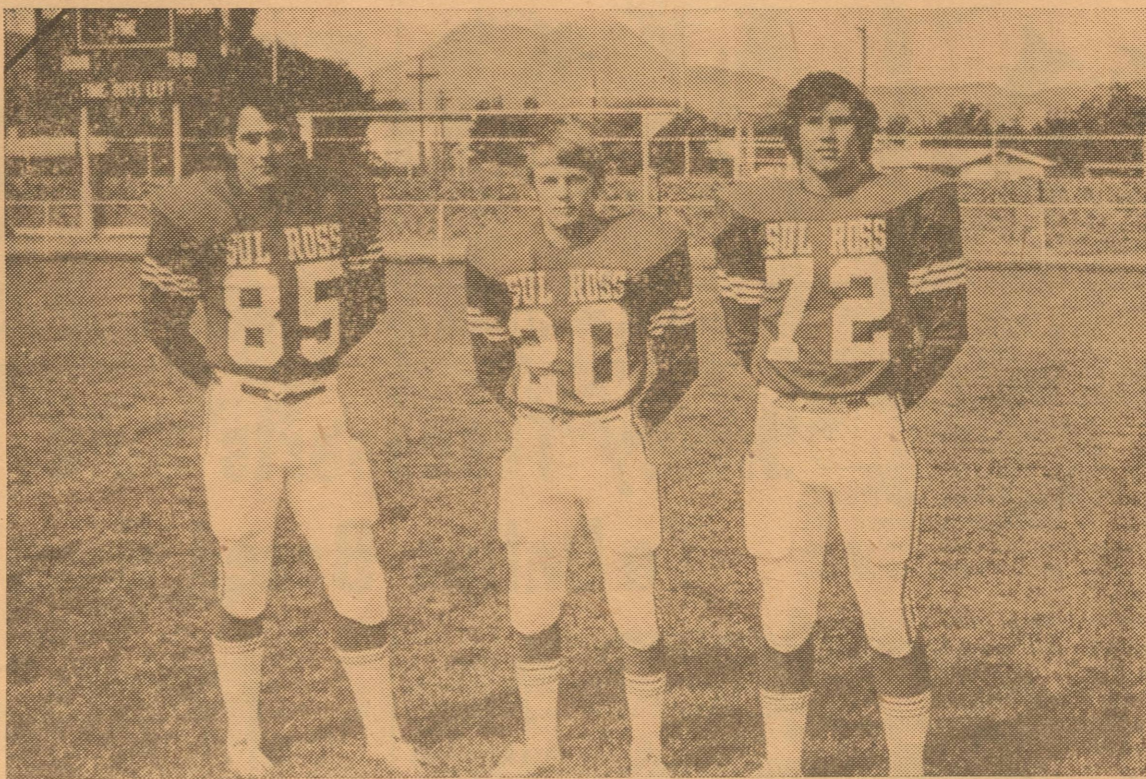

But at a time when inflation, economic distress and unemployment are major problems, cruel misrepresentations of learning and earning plans are especially outrageous.

If you have any doubts, or complaints, do notify the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division office in Austin, Houston, El Paso, Lubbock, San Antonio or Dallas, or your better business bureau or county or district attorney.

STATE FAIR OF TEXAS

The eyes of the world will be focused on Dallas in October when two important events transpire: the opening of the world's largest and most modern airport, and the State Fair's 88th production, titled "World Gateways Exposition", Oct. 6-21. Exhibits, entertainment and products from nations 'round the globe will parade before the more than three million Fair-goers who keep the turnstiles clicking every year for the two weeks run of the Fair. New automobiles and fashions, furniture and appliances and cookery, along with livestock and roller coasters will make up the 1973 Fair. The well-loved, romantic operetta, Sigmund Romberg's Student Prince will open Oct. 5 for 20 performances in the plush Music Hall in Fair Park.

"Pruseir Peprus" ?!

Ever feel that fixing a full supper is just a scramble? Skip the scramble one evening. The Eldorado Booster Club is sponsoring a covered dish supper and would like for you to make it a "surprise supper."

First of all, surprise everyone and come! It will be Monday, Oct. 1st, at 7:00 p.m., at the Memorial Building. Bring a couple of "surprise" covered dishes, share good food, and enjoy good fellowship. You may be surprised at what a good time you can have.

It is probably no surprise but the coaches will introduce the members of the junior high, "B" team, and varsity team football players.

Just so you will not be completely surprised, the Booster Club will be soliciting memberships and would also appreciate donations for the purchase of a new film projector. A nice surprise would be for each person to give generously.

Mark your calendar now and plan to attend the "surprise supper." Do not be surprised if a few other surprises are planned between now and then.

Snell To Retire From Highway Department

Austin, Tex.—J. A. Snell, district engineer of the Texas Highway Department in San Angelo, will retire October 31, State Highway Engineer Luther DeBerry has announced.

Snell will be succeeded by D. R. Watson, presently district planning engineer in Paris.

Snell's retirement will close a 44-year career with the Texas Highway Department. Employed first as a summer employee, he joined full time in 1930 after graduation from the University of Texas.

Assigned first to the Waco district, he became assistant district engineer there in 1946. He was appointed district engineer in San Angelo in the year of 1954, in charge of construction, maintenance and operation of highways in Glasscock, Sterling, Coke, Runnels, Reagan, Irion, Tom Green, Concho, Crockett, Schleicher, Menard, Sutton and Kimble Counties.

"Jesse Snell has served with distinction as an engineer and an administrator in one of our larger districts," DeBerry said.

World Gateways To Be State Fair Theme

The world of transportation, the world of tomorrow and the world of imagination will be superimposed over an outline of Fair Park when the State Fair of Texas presents "World Gateways Exposition" from October 6-21 in Dallas.

Sparkling international exhibits, reflecting worldwide progress and products, will highlight this salute to Texas as an emerging commercial center in the global community. Japan, Romania, Denmark, Mexico, South Africa and the Philippines are among the countries to be represented in the spacious World Exhibits Center.

A continental flavor will characterize the State Fair Musical production of Sigmund Romberg's everpopular "The Student Prince." Old Heidelberg will come alive in the New Music Hall for 20 performances.

Musical groups from the earth's four corners, including the acclaimed Trinidad Cavaliers Steel Orchestra and Variety Show, will provide daily entertainment over the park. Each of the 16 fair dates will also feature multiple circus performances and a colorful parade of theme-designed floats, bands and marching units.

The Pan-American Livestock Exposition, October 6-14, spotlights a National Hereford Show along with judging of champion beef and dairy cattle, breeding swine, sheep and goats. The State Fair of Texas Horse Shows will present winners from the national show circuit against a background of music in the modern, air-conditioned Coliseum.

The lure of the 1974 models will attract many of the three million fair visitors to the Automobile Show for a panoramic preview of next year's cars. Fashion shows, food demonstrations and displays of winning entries in more than 900 competitive classes will be presented in the Women's Building. Corny dogs, carry barkers and a collection of amusement rides unsurpassed in variety and thrills make up the mile-long Midway.

New worlds of entertainment and experience plus all the old-fashioned fun associated with the nation's largest annual exposition are offered for the $1.50 gate admission. Children under 12 are admitted for 75c.

Eldorado-Divide District News

The Great Plains Conservation Program continues to be an added tool for effective conservation on farms and ranches in Schleicher county. Since the Eldorado-Divide Soil and Water Conservation District was activated into the Great Plains Conservation Program in 1972, 33 contracts on 93,700 acres have been prepared. All conservation practices planned in 17 contracts totaling 36,169 acres have been completed and the contracts have expired.

The amounts of practices applied in 1973 continue to be comparable to past years. Brush control by dozing or root plowing and range seeding in the dozed and root plowed areas is again the most acres done. Brush control and range seeding was carried out on 5,480 acres this year. This year's accomplishments brings the total of range seeding to 28,037 acres and brush control to date total to 38,524 acres.

Other cost share items carried out to date are fences 89,685 feet, walls for livestock water 18, water storage tanks 12, pipeline for livestock water 24,289 feet, terraces 81,135 feet, diversion terraces 8894 feet and land leveling 161 acres.

Management type conservation practices as well as enduring type practices have been applied and maintained by all GPCP producers. All rangeland under contract is deferred at least three months during the growing season one year out of three. Following range seeding the pasture is deferred from the beginning of the growing season until after frost for two successive years. All the young grass seedlings that come up have an opportunity to become established and make seed. Grasses already established become more ingrown and more forage is produced for livestock and wildlife use.

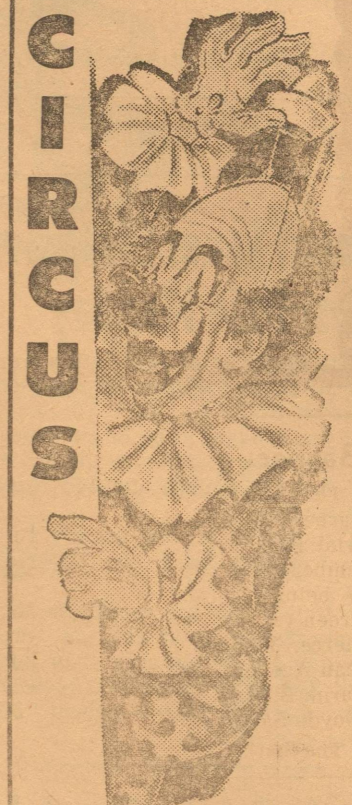

Proper grazing use on the 82,741 acres of rangeland is applied each year. Grazing half and leaving half of each year's growth helps continue the range improvement until maximum potential production is reached. Growing more grass and then properly using it enables ranchers to attain maximum potential production.

Removal of undesirable brush, pear and tasayillo, has reduced the use of available moisture by unprofitable plants. More of the desirable plants for good livestock and wildlife use can be grown in their place. More feed means more meats from all type animals, more wool and mohair. On farmland the same results are brought about by the right use and treatment of the land. More food and fiber is produced. More production on all agricultural land means more income for land users.

Farmers and ranchers are not the only ones benefitted by the soil, water and plant conservation practices applied on agricultural land. The quality as well as quantity of all agriculture products has been enjoyed by everyone in America as well as many outside America.

Participation in the Great Plains Conservation Program is fully voluntary on the part of the individual farmer or rancher. However, to participate in the program farmers and ranchers are required to develop a complete long-range plan for making the needed changes in his land use or in his cropping system needed to conserve the soil and water resources. Then the farmer or rancher (producer) enters into an agreement with the secretary of Agriculture to carry out the plan according to a schedule acceptable to the producer—but within 10 years. The cost share for the entire job is set aside when the agreement is signed.

Seasonal Marketings

What foods normally come to market in late September and October?

Many consumers are asking this question for the first time in years because they are trying to match menus with food supplies in season. This is a practice of many smart consumers. By utilizing those foods in season consumers can assure their families of an adequate nutritional diet and can assure their food budget of a decrease in most cases.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture keeps a daily record of fresh fruit and vegetable shipments from all major producing areas through its market news service. These records show a dozen fruits and 21 vegetables in season in late September and October.

Vegetables: Beets, broccoli, brussel sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, corn, cucumbers, eggplant, escarole-endive, greens, lettuce, dry onions, green onions, peppers, potatoes, radishes, squash, sweet potatoes, tomatoes.

Utilize this list in planning meals and shopping trips in September and October. Purchase seasonal foods for a healthy, happy family.

"Tweed" Texans . . .

Tweed fabric surfaces are big news. Fabrics and garments currently available in Texas stores indicate this new fashion emphasis for Fall and Winter '73.

Named for the Tweed River in Scotland where first produced, today's tweeds include an assortment of light to heavyweight, rough textured, sturdy fabrics.

Although originally a woven woolen fabric, they're currently available in a wide variety of fibers and blends—offering ease-of-care and a wide range of styling possibilities. There's a cost for every pocketbook plus a natural look and hand.

Traditionally, tweeds are characterized by their mixed color effect—such as Donegal tweeds. They also may be the same color, checked, plaid, striped and patterned.

Tweeds tailor exceptionally well in suits and sportswear for both men and women.

This fabric offers "plus" features for every individual if selected accordingly. Depending on boldness, it projects self-confidence and sophistication.

Tweed texture can minimize figure faults and irregularities.

Bulkier tweeds, on the other hand, become slender figures. However, petite persons should not choose an extremely large-scale tweed since the contrast would be overpowering.

When in doubt of the overall effect or appearance, stand in front of a mirror and hold the garment or fabric to your body in the area it will be worn. Does it make you appear larger or smaller?

Observe effects on the skin and eyes when worn near the face. Coarse or fine features can be complemented by the proper textured tweed.

Preschooler Tall Tales

Also with his limited experience, a preschooler—even five and six years old—may not know the whole truth. Parents can share some of their experience with him instead of criticizing his lack of insight.

At the same time they accept his tall tales, they can help him distinguish fact from fiction.

That way, he starts growing in his ability to understand the truth of a situation. For most children this ability develops slowly.

Sometimes, of course, a child will tell a lie. Though parents' natural reaction is to uncover the truth, it's more important to uncover the reason for a story.

The child may be wanting to conceal his guilt, or he's afraid of punishment he "knows" is coming. Perhaps he's lying as an act of hostility, or he could be trying to fool himself. And, unlikely as it may seem, he could be looking for praise and affection.

Parents do their best when they talk with the child and reassure him, so he doesn't feel the need to lie.

If lying is a fairly consistent problem, work together to decide if some disciplinary action would remedy the situation—let the child have a hand in choosing the action.

While no one is a "born liar," no one is born to tell the truth, either.

Preschool children need parents' help in seeing things as they are—and having the confidence to tell about it.

Factors Cited for Fruit Tree Failure
Many homeowners may be wondering why their fruit trees failed to bear this year. The failure can be the result of several different factors.

The first step in fruit production is to keep the tree healthy by proper watering, fertilization, pruning and insect and disease control. A soil test can determine the proper nutrient requirements for a particular species of fruit in that soil. All-purpose fruit sprays can prevent foliage and fruit damage from insects and diseases.

Most hardy fruit trees need a certain amount of cold weather to break their winter rest period and to promote spring growth. When winters are too mild, spring is delayed, irregular and slow as occurred in 1971 and 1972. Trees grown in climates warmer than their native one often bear poorly because of insufficient cold. Before planting a fruit tree, check its adaptation to your area.

Later winter frosts will kill open fruit blossoms, as experienced across the state this past spring. If temperatures are predicted to drop below 28 degrees after blossoms are open, trees should be covered or some type of artificial heat should be provided.

Another frequent problem is pollination. Some fruits such as apples, pears, and plums require cross-pollination to insure fruitfulness. Therefore, two or more varieties of each fruit type should always be planted together. These fruit types are described as "self-unfruitful." On the other hand, all peach varieties recommended for Texas are self-fruitful, and trees of a single variety may be planted.

Occasionally, fruit trees will bear heavily one year and sparsely the next, which is known as biennial bearing.

Most trees set more fruit than can be maintained, putting stress on the trees to mature such a large number of fruit. Thinning the fruit annually and especially in heavy years will relieve some of the stress and hopefully keep the tree from falling into a biennial bearing pattern. After thinning, the fruit should be larger and tastier.

Dirty Air Cleaner Chokes Engine Performance

Since a tractor or combine engine takes in about 9,000 gallons of air for every gallon of fuel it burns, it's important that the air cleaner be serviced regularly.

In dusty conditions, dirt can ruin an engine in less than a day's work, if the air is not filtered.

Proper care of the air cleaner results in better economy and insures longer engine life. An efficient air cleaner removes dust particles that grind away engine parts such as cylinders, rings and bearings. A clogged air cleaner will choke the engine, causing loss of power and excessive gas use.

After about every 10 hours of engine operation, the oil bath air cleaner cup should be removed and supplied with new oil. Scrape the dirt from the bottom of the cup and wash in kerosene or solvent before refilling.

Dry paper filters on newer tractors function much like air filters on automobiles. These filters can be blown out a couple of times with an air hose, but be careful not to puncture them. Clean and replace often when working in dusty conditions.

It is suggested to follow the instructions in the operator's manual for detailed procedures on servicing air cleaners.

Man Accused Of Bilking Home Owner

Ft. Worth, Texas.—The Tarrant County grand jury accused a contractor Tuesday of violating a seldom-used law after it heard testimony that he bilked a home owner.

Assistant Dist. Attorney Joe Shannon Jr. said Roy Singleton could receive a prison term of two to 10 years if convicted.

Shannon said a resident of the Fort Worth area employed Singleton to pour the foundation for a home he was constructing.

"The indictment alleges that the home owner paid Singleton for his work and materials, but that Singleton failed to turn over part of his money to the business which furnished the concrete," Shannon said. "As a result, the business holds a lien on the home although the owner had paid for the concrete."

Shannon said Dist. Atty. Tim Curry's staff found a section in the state penal code which provides for prison terms when contractors fail to turn over money to suppliers and liens result. —reprinted from Dallas News at request of J. H. Mace.
