The debate team of Paul McWhorter and Matt Bumgardner went 4-2, being beaten both times by 4A schools. The reader's theatre, directed by Ken Wilson, received a very good rating. Members of the cast were Carl Igo, Cleve Clark, John Ben Cawley, Sally Cawley, and Hank Hutcherson. The speech activities are coordinated by Kathy Hillman.

Earlier this year the debate team of Paul McWhorter and Jym Trumble participated in the San Angelo Central High School Debate Tournament. The boys placed third in their division, with Paul being named the third best speaker in the tournament.

REMEMBER WHEN?

Eldorado school principal, Mr. Tycon, used a paddle to impress these words, "You should never play hockey to go swimming!" to Jack Elder, Oran Enochs, J. T. Ballew and Chester Anderson, one Spring day.

However, revenge was sweet when upon the departure of Mr. Tycon, after loading up his family and saying his goodbyes, happened to sit on a "settin'" of eggs snatched from Mrs. Truckman's chicken house.

It remains a mystery to this day as to how the eggs found their way into Mr. Tycon's car. But stranger things have happened. Remember rain? Well it used to rain so much that those Enochs kids either had to wade across the draw, on their way home from school, or wait until the water "ran down." —J. Wilkerson.

Men's Day Held At First Baptist Church

The First Baptist Church enjoyed Baptist Men's Day Sunday with all the Christian laymen of the church leading the morning service. A prayer breakfast was held at 8:00 Sunday morning with 15 men present. A choir rehearsal followed the breakfast and a 20-voice men's choir sang, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" for the special during the morning service.

Other special music was presented as "How Great Thou Art" was sung by a trio made up of T. P. Robinson Jr., Weldon Davis, and Steve Blaylock. For the offertory, Jim Bob Byrd played a medley of hymns on his clarinet. The music was led by Steve Blaylock, Lynn Whitaker played the piano and Rev. Gene Stark played the organ. Testimonies were given by T. P. Robinson, Jr., and Keith Richardson. Ronnie Mittel led the congregation in a responsive reading entitled, "The Godly Man." Henry Moore delivered the children's message. The invocation was led by Leon Strickland and Granvil Hext welcomed all visitors.

The speaker for the morning message was Fred Igo, local ag teacher in our high school and a deacon in the church. His message was entitled, "What is Life?" and was a challenge to really grasp the life offered by God in the person of His Son, Jesus Christ.

The men of First Baptist Church are to be greatly praised for this wonderful day of blessings.

Letters From the People

Dear Editor:

I attended the thought provoking Round Table discussion at the January 19 P-TA meeting. Twelve parents and Mr. Whitaker discussed mutual concerns.

Questions were answered about the extent, cause and settlement of the recent school fire. Parents were assured that no school activities would be canceled because of the fire. In answer to a question about the amount of funds spent on athletics, Mr. Whitaker stated that the prime objective of the school is education and that approximately 3% of the school funds are used for the athletic program with football being almost self supporting.

Parent-Teacher Conferences were questioned if they are more valuable if parent or faculty initiated. Mr. Whitaker told of the lack of response to invitations asking parents to come and help determine the most suitable course of study for their child in High School.

Mention was made of the recent Study by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to accredit the school. The Study details the many strengths of the Junior and Senior High School and acknowledges areas where changes would be of value.

A self evaluation of the PTA was begun to determine what effective contribution the P-TA can make to the students, the teachers and the parents of Eldorado. President Bumgardner announced that this would be the topic of the next P-TA.

Sincerely,
Sally Head

The February P-TA meeting will be held this coming Monday night February 16 in the school cafeteria starting 7:30 p.m.

The "No-Frost" Controversy: Fact or Fiction?

In our energy-conscious society, one of the persistent stories making the rounds is that no-frost refrigerators are quite costly to operate.

Reports that frost-free models use 50% to even as much as 80% more electricity than manually defrosted models may be confusing many consumers unnecessarily.

"Such charges are misleading; they cannot be substantiated," according to Jane Butel, manager of the Consumers Institute for General Electric and Hotpoint.

"Refrigerators without the no-frost feature may save a little electricity, but the claims of vast savings are exaggerated," Ms. Butel says.

Basically there are three types of refrigerators. Single-door models that must be manually defrosted. Two-door cycle-defrost models in which the refrigerator section is frost-free and the freezer section must be defrosted. And two-door models that are completely frost-free in both sections.

The manually defrosted models are generally available only in small sizes. GE, for example, offers only two: one at 9.5 cu. ft. and one at 11.5 cu. ft. Comparing the larger model to a similarly sized cycle-defrost unit does show a difference in operating cost, but Ms. Butel points out that few consumers today are interested in a small refrigerator without a true freezer section.

A more valid comparison is made with 14 cu. ft. models, a size far more common in American homes, says Ms. Butel. GE offers a cycle-frost model rated 13.6 cu. ft. that uses 99 kilowatt-hours (kwhr) a month, and also a 14.2 cu. ft. no-frost model with a Power-Saver feature that can hold energy consumption down to 111 kwhr a month. (Ratings are based on laboratory tests — power consumption may vary in actual usage.)

At the current 3.2¢ kwhr national average cost for electricity, the 12 kwhr difference amounts to just 38 cents a month.

Ms. Butel's research also has shown that most large no-frost refrigerator-freezers actually cost less per cubic foot to operate than do cycle-defrost models. On the same test basis, GE's 11.8 cu. ft. cycle-defrost unit costs $.258/cf/per month — or $.304 — while its 23.8 cu. ft. no-frost side-by-side model costs $.184/cf/per month with the Power Saver switch on Dry, or $.438.

"The no-frost unit in this example does cost almost 50% more to operate than the one you have to defrost," says Ms. Butel. "But when you remember that it has twice the capacity, it's quickly apparent that you don't pay a penalty for the added convenience of frost-free operation."

Beginning early in 1976, all refrigerators will carry energy usage labels that will enable consumers to estimate operating cost before they buy.

Winter Tempter-Idaho Bean Soup

On a chilly winter evening, there's no better eating than a savory, homemade bean soup. A native of Idaho, the large, white Great Northern beans are the nourishing base for Idaho Bean Soup. After soaking, the beans are simmered slowly with a meaty ham hock, vegetables and seasonings to deliciously blend the flavors.

Several varieties of dried beans grow exceptionally well in Idaho's sunny farming areas. A valuable source of nutrients at just pennies per serving, the quality protein in dried beans becomes fully complete when supplemented with just a small amount of animal or complementary plant protein.

Idaho Bean Soup freezes beautifully so make a big batch for now and later.

Idaho Bean Soup

- | | |
|------------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 1 pound Idaho Great Northern beans | 1 onion, sliced |
| 10 cups water | 1 clove garlic, minced |
| Smoked ham hock (about 1½ pounds) | 1½ cups diced potatoes |
| | 1 cup diced carrots |
| | Salt and freshly ground pepper |

Soak beans overnight in water. Or for quick soak, bring beans and water to boil and boil 2 minutes; then cover and let stand 1 hour. Add ham hock, onion and garlic to soaked beans. Cover and simmer 1½ hours. Add potatoes and carrots and simmer 1 hour. Remove ham hock and cut up meat. Return meat to soup. Season with salt and freshly ground pepper. Heat well. Makes 6 servings.

Telly Savalas On Greek Cookery

Born Aristotle Savalas, Kojak star Telly Savalas has an ethnic background which qualifies him as an "expert" on authentic Greek cooking. Attempting to describe the special combination of subtle flavors and seasonings that gives dishes "their wonderful Greek-ness" Telly listed ingredients from some of his favorite dishes.

"There's honey for sweetness, along with lemon, mint, oregano and cinnamon as seasonings. All, of course, are carefully balanced."

Taking a break between rehearsals for a Greek dance segment to be featured on his television special airing February 18 on CBS-TV, Telly expressed a fondness for the following lamb recipe.

"Just serve it with some celery egg-lemon, potatoes a la Greque and chilled retsina," says Telly, "and I'll be right over."

Telly's Lamb Pallakari

- | | |
|-----------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 1 4-5 lb. leg of lamb | 2 garlic cloves, minced |
| Salt | 2 tablespoons chopped parsley |
| Pepper | ½ cup olive oil |
| 1 tablespoon oregano leaves | ½ cup lemon juice |
| 2 teaspoons mint flakes | 2 lbs. baby onions |
- Rub meat with salt and pepper; pierce on all sides with fork. Combine oregano, mint, garlic, parsley, oil and lemon juice; pour over meat. Cover; marinate in refrigerator overnight, turning occasionally. Simmer onions in enough water to cover, 5 minutes; drain. Place lamb and onions in roasting pan; brush with marinade. Roast at 350°, brushing occasionally with marinade, 2½ to 3 hours or until meat thermometer registers 165° to 170°. Garnish with watercress and olives, if desired. 8 to 10 servings.

REDDY'S Conserve and Save Tips for Your DISHWASHER

- ★ Clean the filter screen often. A clogged filter can reduce the efficiency of your dishwasher.
- ★ Use only detergents manufactured specifically for dishwashers. A wetting agent helps prevent water spots on glasses and silverware.
- ★ A dishwasher will usually hold a whole day's dishes. It takes as much hot water and energy to wash 1 dish as it does a full load. Stack your dishes out of sight in your dishwasher and wait until you have a full load to turn it on.

Good Attendance Is Necessary

During the 64th Texas Legislature, House Bill 1126 was passed. This bill made several changes in the operation of the Texas Public School System. One major change, and probably the most important, was in the finance article. Under the Foundation School Program, a school district may receive state financial aid for minimum salaries, current operating expenses, categorical program aid, and transportation services. The amount of state aid to each school district shall be based on the district's ability to support its public schools. The amount of state aid is based on CURRENT AVERAGE DAILY ATTENDANCE. This means that any day a child is absent, funds from the state are reduced and must be made up by local tax money. For this reason, please do not permit your child to be absent unless it is absolutely necessary. An absence is excused when the absence results from:

1. Illness of the child;
2. Illness or death in the family of the child;
3. Quarantine of the child and family;
4. Weather or road conditions making travel dangerous.
5. An absence approved by a teacher, principal, or superintendent of the school in which the child is enrolled; or
6. Circumstances found reasonable and proper.

Attendance has been good; however, some absences are not necessary and state money has been lost. The school asks for your cooperation in keeping our taxes as low as possible.

How To Dress Up Scrambled Eggs

Every hostess likes to depend on foods that taste good, look appealing and are as easy to prepare as frozen concentrated orange juice. Often she looks to a favorite dish that comes to the table all dressed up.

For a company breakfast or fun brunch, the clever cook turns to the scrambled eggs everyone loves but she brings them to center stage in a baked pie shell, topped with sausage, all dressed up. Ordinarily, she wouldn't have time to mix up and roll out the pastry since breakfast is a morning meal and every minute counts; but now, she can count on an already prepared frozen pie shell, as good as her own and certainly time saving. She cooks the eggs, green pepper and onion in a skillet with seasonings as the pie shell bakes easily in the oven.

Just before serving, our cool cook mounds the eggs in the hot pie shell and garnishes the tempting offering with whatever she likes such as cooked sausage links, shredded cheese or bacon bits. With orange juice, sweet rolls and plenty of fresh hot coffee, wedges of company scrambled eggs are delicious, delightful and delectable — any time of the year.

An interesting booklet containing more recipes for dessert and main dish pies is available by sending a label from a package of PET-RITZ Pie Crust Shells and 35 cents in coin to: Pet-Ritz Recipe Book, 400 South Fourth Street, St. Louis, Missouri 63166.

- Company Scrambled Eggs
- | | |
|--------------------------------------|--|
| 1 PET-RITZ Pie Crust Shell | 8 to 10 eggs |
| 3 tablespoons butter or margarine | 1 teaspoon salt |
| 1/2 cup green pepper, finely chopped | 1/2 teaspoon ground basil |
| 1 medium onion, finely chopped | 1/2 teaspoon thyme |
| | 1/4 cup PET Evaporated Milk |
| | Few drops liquid hot pepper sauce (optional) |
- Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Remove pie shell from freezer and let thaw 10 minutes. Prick bottom and sides of shell with a fork and bake for 10 minutes.
- While Pie Is Thawing: In large skillet, melt butter or margarine. Cook and stir green pepper and onion until onion is tender, about 5 minutes. Beat eggs, seasonings, evaporated milk and few drops liquid hot pepper sauce until well mixed.
- While Pie Shell Is Baking: Pour eggs over pepper and onion and cook over low heat, gently pulling cooked portion of eggs away from edge of pan, letting uncooked portion flow to bottom. (Avoid constant stirring.) Cook until eggs are thick but moist, about 8 minutes.
- Mound eggs into hot pie shell. Garnish with parsley, your favorite cheese, shredded, or your favorite omelet sauce, if desired. Cut into wedges and serve. Serves 4-6.
- Variation: Substitute 1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained, for chopped green pepper, or top egg mixture with cooked bacon bits or sausage links just before serving.

Budget Battle

WASHINGTON—Statistics, according to Websters, are the "systematic compilation of instances for the inference of general truths."

But statistics in the mouths of politicians can become dangerous weapons. Keep that in mind as you choose your side in the annual Battle of the Budget.

President Ford has submitted to Congress a proposed budget which he thinks is just right. Some think the budget is too low. Others think it is too high. Each will muster armies of statistics to prove his case. Facts and figures will fly like rockets and bombs.

The average citizen can be numbed by the endless flow of numbers if he isn't careful. Different numbers that give different impressions can be applied to the same situation with equal accuracy. It is vital to know what the numbers mean.

For instance, the budget the President has recommended calls for spending 394.1 billion dollars in fiscal year 1977. That's a truly mind-boggling sum. Those who, like myself, want to persuade you that the government is spending too much will point out to you that if you were to spend a million dollars a day, it would take you more than 1,000 years to spend $394 billion. Or we'd tell you that the federal government is planning to spend $1,833 for every man, woman and child in the country. Or we'd tell you that the federal budget has more than doubled in the last 10 years, and increased tenfold in the last 30 years.

On the other hand, those who want to persuade you that the government should be spending more than it is will point out to you that the budget as a percentage of the gross national product, the total value of goods and services produced in the country each year, has increased only slightly in the last 10 years, from 20.5 per cent to 21.5 per cent.

The thing to keep in mind is that no set of statistics can "prove" that one side is right and another is wrong. The central questions in the budget battle can be given only subjective answers.

There are three central questions that must be answered in the Budget Battle. They are:

1. How much of your money should the federal government spend?
2. What should the federal government spend your money on?
3. How should the federal government acquire from you the money that it will spend?

I will address each of these questions in subsequent columns. But the important thing for you to keep in mind throughout the budget debate is that it is YOUR money we are talking about. The federal government has no resources of its own. All that it has is what it takes from you, in one form or another. Recognition of that fact could have a profound effect upon which side you will join in the Battle of the Budget.

Seat Belt Use:

There Ought to be a Law

What's your favorite choice for the top issue of the year?

- Inflation?
- High taxes?

For some 50,000 families a year, the big issue is one of their loved ones killed in a traffic accident.

For more than two million families, the talk is about one of their members being maimed on the roadway, perhaps crippled for life.

One way to reduce these grim statistics is to pass laws requiring all passenger car occupants, with a few exceptions, to wear seat belts. Although belts are now used by only 25 percent of the population, they've been installed in 90 percent of the cars on the road, all at a cost to consumers of more than $5 billion. And, although seat belts are designed primarily to protect the wearer from harm, they also help the driver keep control of the car by holding him in place during sudden swerves or side-swipes.

In this way, according to the Highway Users Federation, wearing seat belts is a boon to everyone on or near the road. In fact, if all automobile drivers and passengers wore seat belts the annual death toll would be reduced by at least 10,000 vehicle occupants alone, to say nothing of pedestrians who might benefit from those errant drivers who maintained better control of their vehicles in a crash.

Since 1968 when seat belts became mandatory equipment on automobiles, efforts to get motorists to voluntarily wear the belts largely have failed. These failures—and the known value of seat belt use—make a strong case for carefully drafted laws encouraging safety belt use. But critics say that such laws are an invasion of personal freedom.

Freedom to do what?

Smash one's head through a windshield? Or endanger other lives?

Freedom in a civilized society is conditional. We can drive freely on the highway as long as we follow the rules. We are free to write and speak what we please, as long as we do not violate libel and slander laws. We are free to eat, as long as we don't steal the food; drink, as long as we don't kill someone while drunk; and be merry, as long as we don't destroy property. We can practice any religion freely unless it involves human sacrifice.

But when we talk about freedom to not wear seat belts, we are saying that we are free to risk death (and yet attempted suicide is a felony) or injury (although self-mutilation is prohibited) and that we are free to avoid the consequences of our actions (yet we all have to pay for accident victims through support of emergency medical services).

The fact is that we don't have unfettered freedom, without responsibility. It is unrealistic and arrogant to assume that freedom to self-destruct is inalienable. The social structure is designed to protect and nurture—and everyone pays for this service.

The issue here is not a misinterpreted view of personal freedom but one of personal safety. It's high time for state legislators to look to the real issue—and the real benefits—of mandatory seat belt use laws.

Trees Require Little Fertilization

Shade trees seldom require supplemental fertilization in lawn areas where a good lawn maintenance program is followed. Fertilizing trees once every three years is generally sufficient except in sandy areas.

Over-fertilization of trees can force excessive top growth, making them vulnerable to storm damage. Over-fertilization is especially probable if a tree's root zone is confined to a limited area and this fact is overlooked.

The safest method of computing the amount of fertilizer to apply to a tree is this: figure the number of square feet included in the branch spread of the tree and then use two pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet. For example, a tree having a 36 foot branch spread would cover about 1,000 square feet. This would require 24 pounds of a complete fertilizer with an analysis of 8-8-8 to supply the two pounds of actual nitrogen required (24 x .08 equals 1.92). A fertilizer analysis of 16-20-0 would require 12 pounds of the material to supply the needed nitrogen. The same complete fertilizer recommended for lawn use will be satisfactory for fertilizing trees in the county.

If a tree's zone is confined to buildings, curbs, walks or streets, compute the fertilizer application on the basis of actual root zone. If the root zone area of the tree in the above example is 22 feet by 20 feet, then the fertilizer application would be based on 240 square feet rather than 1,000 square feet. Thus only one-fourth as much fertilizer would be needed. More frequent applications may be needed when root zones are confined.

Normally trees should be fertilized in late winter or early spring. However, trees with restricted root systems can be fertilized a second time in late fall.

Broadcast the fertilizer evenly beneath the branch spread of the tree and then water thoroughly. Without moisture the tree roots cannot utilize the nutrients.

More detailed information on fertilizing trees and shrubs is available at the county Extension office.

Sauerkraut's Superb In This Reuben-Style Pie

Since everyone's on the lookout for creative entree recipes that are practical too, here's an adaptation of the popular Reuben Sandwich in a casserole pie. It's current food fashion news, for hearty rye bread, Swiss cheese, canned corned beef and sauerkraut have the "layered look," baked in a delectable egg custard sauce. Crisp 'n tangy canned or glass-packed sauerkraut provides the tartly delicious flavor zing in this thrifty recipe that will nicely serve eight.

"Reuben" Pie

- | | |
|--|---|
| 8 slices dark rye, caraway rye or pumpernickle bread | 1 can (27 oz.) Libby's Sauerkraut, well drained |
| 2 tablespoons prepared mustard | 6 eggs, slightly beaten |
| 1 cup shredded Swiss cheese | 2 1/2 cups milk |
| 1 can (12 oz.) Libby's Corned Beef, broken into small pieces | 1 teaspoon salt |
| | 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce |
| | Paprika, garnish |

Spread whole or half slices of bread lightly with mustard. Arrange in single layer in 3-quart oblong baking dish (13 1/2" x 8 3/4"). Sprinkle bread with half the cheese and all the corned beef. Press moisture from sauerkraut until almost "dry"; arrange kraut over beef. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Combine eggs, milk, salt and Worcestershire; pour over all. Sprinkle with paprika. Cover tightly; refrigerate 6 hours or overnight. Bake uncovered at 300° F. for 1 hour 10 minutes or until egg mixture is firmly set. Yields 8 servings. For a zesty accompaniment sauce, serve ketchup seasoned with a bit of prepared horseradish.

Courtship to marriage is but as the music in the playhouse till the curtain's drawn.

BIBLE QUESTIONS

Question: "Where does all this discussion lead?"

Answer: When evidence of God is presented, then the next step is to concede that He has the right to speak to His Creation. In His communication to mankind, He has provided a standard of guidance for man to maintain a quality relationship with Him. It is testimony of His own character for Him to prefer this moral activity to any not complimentary to His own personality.

In speaking to man, His will has been expressed as that standard toward which man must move. And since there is this standard, there must of necessity be penalty for NOT reaching it. There was first the Will—"From any tree of the garden you may eat freely, but from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil you shall NOT eat..." Here God provided clear and simple instructions, easy to understand, but emphasized by the next phrase, "... for in the day that you eat from it you shall surely die." Genesis 2:16, 17. Herein is God's standard of behavior of His creation, man, upon His creation, earth, regarding other of His creation, His Will and the possible penalty. Here is the transgression of God's Will, SIN, and the result, DEATH, or separation from God.

These are facts, but another fact that escapes most is the possibility of reconciliation to God, suggested by God Himself in Genesis 3:15. Passages relating to man's possible redemption and reconciliation being planned before the world's creation are Matthew 13:35. Jesus said, "I will utter things hidden since the foundation of the world."; Ephesians 1:3, 4, Paul speaking to the church, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places in Christ, just as He chose us in Him BEFORE the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before Him."; and Ephesians 3:11, 12, "This was in accordance with the eternal purpose which He carried out in Christ Jesus our Lord, in whom we have boldness and confident access thru faith in Him." Carefree

People smile and turn around to look at them as they run down the street hand in hand. For this moment they are carefree with the exuberance of youth, with seemingly endless tomorrows stretching before them.

But, life being what it is, there comes an end to this sort of thing. Just now they are in love. If they stay in love, if they marry, responsibilities will follow.

If their love subsides, there will be the pain of separation . . . and perhaps a little heartbreak. Whatever happens there will be good times and bad.

Somewhere along the line they will need more than themselves. All of us do! If they have found the Church they will be lucky. Incidentally — have you found the Church?
