Chili: Deep In The Heart Of Texas

American humorist H. Allen Smith once observed: "Every man who cooks chili believes with all his heart that his chili is infinitely superior to all other chilies on earth."

The origins of chili are somewhat obscured. Depending on which side of Texas/Mexico border your loyalties lie, national pride may force you to claim credit for this food item that one "chili-head" describes as, "protecting against colds and malaria... aiding indigestion... clarifying the blood... developing robustness and resistance to the elements... and acting as a stimulant to the romantically inclined."

Certainly Texas is the chili capital of the U.S., boasting the nation's highest per capita consumption. But whether the "Bowl of Red" has its beginnings here or south of the border, Texas history is chock-full of chili. According to Texas lore, back in the 1890's one West Texas jail made chili so good and with so much beef a man once broke into jail to get some.

The earlier quoted Mr. Smith, who also is self-proclaimed "world champion chili cooker," once asserted tongue-in-cheekly that chili first saw the light of day in San Antonio, thanks to Canary Islanders who were recruited from the Old World in the 18th century by the King of Spain to discourage French interlopers into the new southwest.

In his now classic The Great Chili Confrontation (Trident Press), Smith relates the story of his monumental chili cook-off a few years ago with a member of the Chili Appreciation Society International in the Texas ghost town of Terlingua.

Terlingua has since become the permanent site of this annual epic battle. Author/chili-head Smith has said of Terlingua, "When Lyndon Johnson declared war on poverty, Terlingua promptly wanted to know where to go to surrender."

Whatever its origins, chili is uniquely western hemisphere, and there are as many ways to prepare it as there are preparers. Variations can occur in every ingredient normally associated with chili (and others not so normally associated).

So popular is this "ambrosia," as many chili-heads call it, that literally scores of food processors around the country have developed and canned their own varieties of chili, all the way from mildly spiced to the kind that some Texans love to describe as "hot enough to make the tonsils slip." Not a particularly savory description, but you get the idea.

If you'd like a free folder showing new ways to serve Texas Chili (no "tonsil slippers" here), send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Armour-Star Texas Chili, Dept. PR, 111 West Clarendon, Phoenix, AZ 85077.

GEORGE S. PATTON

General George S. Patton, pictured beneath a silver-blue sky, symbolizes American soldiers of all wars. With face shaded he is depicted in statuette form watching protectively over future guardians of our country now attending the United States Military Academy at West Point. In full color this heroic poster, 2 by 3 feet in size is the first "Sculptograph" ever created. Patton, one of "The Super Soldiers," helped whip the Germans and conquered America's hearts at a time when heroes were important. May we regain that respect during our Nation's Bicentennial celebration. For information about how to obtain this magnificent poster, already a collector's item, write D.S.M., Inc., P.O. Deer Trophy Awards At Edmondson's Store

Glynn Edmondson reports on results of the Top Package Store Deer Trophy Awards as follows: Grand Award went to Bill Burrell of San Angelo for an early season kill on the Page (Millican) Ranch northeast of Eldorado. Burrell's buck sported on extremely heavy rack with 13 points and a 22½ inch spread for a total score of 35½.

Second place winner was Joe B. Kent, local distributor for Tom's Toasted Peanuts, who presented a rare enter combination with a 17-point 17½ inch spread and a total score of 34½, killed in the Ozona area.

Third place trophy was claimed by Jack Eaton, also a San Angelian, with a 16 pointer, barely beating Robert Parker, a local boy, who brought in an unusual 15-point buck. Both Eaton and Parker's deer were taken in the Eldorado area.

Other entrants measured good kills, proving that Schleicher county and environs are still producing trophy quality bucks in spite of record kills over the past years.

The New Alchemists

WASHINGTON—Over the years, people have believed some frightfully silly things about economics.

In the Middle Ages, people called alchemists thought they could change base metals into gold.

They were wrong.

In more recent times, people called "Keynesians" thought governments could spend more money than they take in in taxes without doing anyone any harm.

They were wrong, too.

Keynesians are the disciples of the famous British economist, John Maynard Keynes (1883-1946). He was the high priest of deficit spending.

In his General Theory of Employment, Interest and Money, published in 1936, Keynes said there was no harm in deficit spending because people "owed the money to themselves." Not only was deficit spending harmless, he said, but it was a positive boon to mankind. Deficit spending could serve as "pump-priming" to get a sluggish economy moving again during times of recession. It would even out the peaks and valleys of the business cycle, and provide for the steady growth of the economy.

Keynes' theory exploded like a bombshell in the economic and political world of his day. At that time, for an economist to say what he'd said was like a preacher telling his congregation it was all right to sin.

Politicians were especially delighted with Keynes' theory. He'd told them they could have their cake and eat it, too. They could vote for the spending programs their constituents wanted without having to vote the taxes to pay for them. And everything would be just fine.

Well, not quite everything. The politicians ignored an important warning that Keynes had issued. He said that deficit spending was a good thing during times of recession, to get the economy moving again. But Keynes added that in times of prosperity, governments should run budget surpluses, to make up for the previous deficits.

But spending programs are popular and taxes are unpopular in good times as well as bad. And politicians run for re-election in good times as well as bad. So budget deficits have been growing ever larger, without regard to economic conditions.

Keynes had said it was impossible to have inflation and recession at the same time. We all have learned to our sorrow that he was wrong.

The truth is there are no shortcuts to national wealth. Governments can no more spend a nation into prosperity than base metals can be changed into gold. Governments must live within their means. Spending must be tied to income. It is time that Keynesian economic policies were put on the shelf, next to the charms and potions of the alchemists.

We all know the shock of losing something we value. A misplaced book or valuable papers — even a treasured heirloom — gone astray can frustrate us for hours or even days. Diligent search often ends the mystery, but the memory of our exasperation lingers.

Yet while the loss of something material is easily grasped, many of us never realize that we may be missing important intangibles . . . like the secret of a richer, more satisfying life.

This search needn't take long, though. Millions find the faith that fulfills — every Sunday in church.

So can you.
