Adult Sewing Class Offered

The Eldorado Homemaking Department will offer a Sewing Class for out-of-school youth and adults with the first class meeting on Thursday, May 30, at 2:00 p.m. in the homemaking department.

There is the increasing demand on the family clothing dollar with seemingly fewer methods to individualize the ready-made articles. The homemaker uses many avenues of self-expression and creativity as well as economic understanding, and it is natural to want to share these abilities as well as to learn others. The informality in these classes gives the participants a chance to not only learn methods of clothing construction, but how to achieve more for less money, and to create clothing with individual taste.

There is no charge; however, small sewing equipment must be furnished by the student as well as her pattern and material.

Garment construction will be done by the student under supervision in order to learn techniques and short cuts.

After the first meeting on May 30, the following classes will be held on June 3, 6, 7, 10, and 11th from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

For further information, contact Dana Owens, Homemaking Teacher, at school 2771 or her home 2692.

On Fine Jewelry As An Investment

(by John L. Hill, Attorney General) Austin, Tex.—One popular investment today, and periodically throughout the past, is fine jewelry. Gold jewelry, diamond rings, and other jewelry with precious metals and stones are being purchased in record amounts.

But it is often impossible for an inexperienced consumer to tell if a piece of jewelry or an uncut stone is what it is represented to be.

Reports from other states indicate there is a rash of deceptive practices in segments of today's jewelry market, although most jewelers are honest and depend on customer good will. Sometimes, however, even an unwary jewelry store owner may be "taken."

One report revealed that a jeweler who had been selling "amber beads" for years discovered when he had the beads tested that they were not amber at all. His foreign supplier had misled him.

Federal Trade Commission officials report that the problem is compounded by the fact that so few people who are taken advantage of by deceptive practices in the jewelry industry ever discover the deception and file complaints.

It is usually only when a person has a piece of jewelry appraised for insurance or when he tries to sell it that he becomes aware that he has been taken.

A diamond engagement ring is often the first piece of expensive jewelry many persons purchase. It's of great importance to select a highly reputable jeweler and to depend on his advice when picking a diamond, since for most couples an engagement ring is a major investment.

There are four things to consider when buying a diamond, carat, color, clarity, and cut. And there are two standards grading systems that classify diamonds by these four criteria. One system is used by the Gemological Society of America, the other by the American Gem Society.

Attorneys in our Consumer Protection Division learned of a consumer who bought a diamond from one jeweler, only to have another jeweler appraise the stone a few months later at about half what he had paid for it.

To avoid such disappointments, have the jeweler indicate on the sales receipt the exact description of the diamond according to one of the two standards mentioned. The receipt should state which standard was used and should indicate precisely the diamond's carat size, clarity, color and cut.

"Carats" and "points" are terms of weight for diamonds. There are 100 points to a carat, so a quarter of a carat is written ".25." It takes 149 carats to make one ounce. The Federal Trade Commission standards require that there be no more than one-half point variance from the exact weight in grading a diamond.

Diamond color can range from colorless to canary yellow, with the colorless ones generally preferred. A very few diamonds can be accurately described as "blue-white," but they are quite rare. Occasionally a diamond may naturally possess an unusual tint, but it is also true that artificial methods such as subatomic particle radiation, heat treatment, or chemical methods may be used to tint a diamond or to conceal an off-tint. Such treatment should be disclosed to the purchaser.

Clarity refers to the absence of imperfections in a diamond. Most of them have imperfections, but if they aren't too visible to the naked eye, the stone is more valuable. Most jewelers advise consumers to purchase a stone with as few invisible flaws as possible. They say that any diamond with visible flaws is likely to have poor resale value.

Cutting is the fourth thing to consider. It's the method by which jewelers shape a diamond and arrange its facets (or reflecting surfaces) to get brilliance and fire. Experts advise consumers not to compromise on the quality of a diamond's cut, since poor cutting can ruin a diamond's proportions and beauty.

Jade and American Indian jewelry are two other types of jewelry especially popular today.

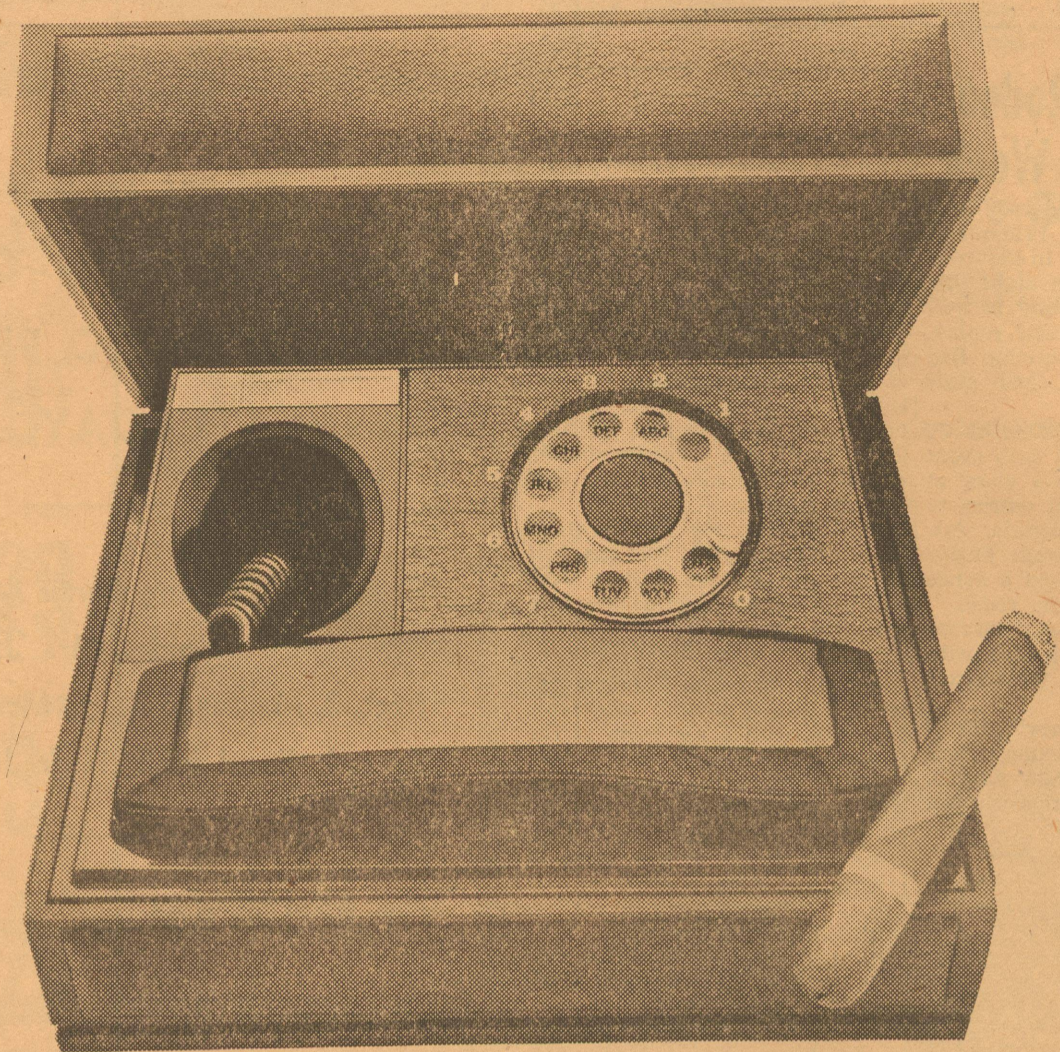

Because of increased trade with China and a corresponding interest in Chinese goods, jade is now in the limelight. It has been valued in China for thousands of years, although the best jade comes from Burma.

Our attorneys have reports from a consumer agency in the East about a woman whose $6,000 "jade" jewelry piece turned out to be green garnet worth about $1,000, so investigate carefully before investing.

Due to the recent upsurge of interest in American Indian silver and turquoise jewelry, many amateur collectors are combing the market for good buys.

Experts warn that it's not the cost of the materials that makes Indian jewelry so valuable, but the quality of workmanship. Therefore, it is very important to rely on the guidance of a good dealer who generally trades directly with the tribes producing quality jewelry.

Wolff Pledges Rural Development If Elected To 21st Congress Post

State Senator Nelson W. Wolff, candidate for Congress, 21st District, released his position paper on rural development today. In it he called for careful planning for the future of our country. Wolff stated: "Today we must plan for the future as never before because of the complexities of our world. Any proposal for long range development must keep in mind the absolute necessity of maintaining and improving the land which is devoted to the production of food and natural fiber. If we fail in this, we fail not only ourselves but all those who follow us on this earth."

Wolff revealed that a recent study by the United States Agriculture Department showed that employment has been rising faster in rural than in metropolitan areas and stated: "The real key to developing and improving an area is employment. Job development, through private enterprise, is the only effective and reliable method for rural development we have."

Wolff outlined three major areas that he said were critical to rural development. He stated that there must be increased clean industrial growth and a greater rate of return on agricultural production. Wolff also called for more tourism and recreational facilities utilizing the historic and natural resources of Texas. "I recognize," said Wolff, "that rural development encompasses not only natural resources and industrial development, but education, health, housing, transportation and other community services as well. As you United States Congressman, I feel that I can play a vital role in implementing many of these vital programs."

Sen. Wolff visited here Wednesday of last week in interests of his campaign for Congress. His statement, in part, follows:

Rural Development
The farmers and ranchers of America own most of the land in our nation. This is necessary because any industrial nation, if it is to survive and maintain its independence in the world today, must have a solid agricultural base on which to build prosperity. Our nation has grown more in the last 50 years than any other has in 3 or 4 times as long. Today we must plan for the future as never before because of the complexities of our world.

While some ill-informed individuals would like to ignore the needs of the ranchers and farmers of this country, I realize the importance of their needs. Due to our methods of farming, U. S. farm exports, which totaled a record $12.9 billion during fiscal year '73, boosted the nation's agricultural trade surplus to a record $5.6 billion. In times of international doubt in the strength of the dollar such a trade surplus increases the confidence and value of the U. S. Dollar worldwide.

The 21st Congressional District has about one half of its people living in major metropolitan areas and one half living in smaller towns and on farms or ranches. Sheep and goat raising is the predominant agricultural interest in the district. Cattle and other livestock play an interrel role in the food production of the 21st district. Grains, cotton and food products are also grown in the district. Total agricultural production in the district exceeds a billion dollars in value.

Many people have stated that it will be difficult for a person to represent the 21st Congressional District because of its urban-rural split. I do not believe that this is the case. The many times I have crossed the district I have found that the problems are diverse but not conflicting. The problems of a rural area is interrelated to the problems of an urban one. Some may wish to over-emphasize differences. I see the similarities. A strong national defense, an effective foreign policy, the need for improving our economy and to find solutions to the energy crisis are all ideas and beliefs held by all of the people of the 21st district whether they live in the city or on a ranch.

Over the past few decades we have seen a shift of population to the urban centers of this nation and state. This is all too well illustrated by the fact that 146 or well over half of Texas' 254 counties lost population between 1960 and 1970.

Candidate Krueger Visits Here On Campaign Swing Through The Area

Congressional candidate Bob Krueger visited Eldorado voters on Wednesday (May 22), the third day of his week-long tour of small towns in the western part of the sprawling 21st Congressional District.

Krueger attended a campaign reception at El Dorado Restaurant hosted by Floyd West while his traveling supporters from various parts of the district knocked on Eldorado's residential doors to distribute information about the congressional candidate.

Krueger is an independent businessman and rancher who carried 18 counties in the May 4th Democratic Primary. He now faces Nelson Wolff of San Antonio for the June 1st runoff election.

Calling himself "the only conservative left in the race," the independent businessman explained the reason for his week-long tour is "I want the voters to know that I intend to represent all 32 counties in the district."

"This is the choice the voters have," Krueger told Eldorado residents, "a candidate hand-picked by the San Antonio power establishment, or an independent man who comes to you completely open about his personal and financial background, as well as letting you know exactly where he stands on important national issues."

Throughout his campaign for retiring Rep. O. C. Fisher's seat, Krueger has distributed several thousand copies of his current and past income tax returns, his campaign financial reports, and his position papers on important national issues.

After calling on his opponent to be "as candid as I have been about my financial background and positions on important national issues," Krueger charged his opponent with using "smear and fear tactics in this campaign for serious national responsibility."

"These are the same 'dirty tricks' that brought us Watergate and Sharpstown," the independent Democrat asserted, adding, "voters in the 21st Congressional District should expect better behavior from candidates seeking their trust."

"One important position of mine which my opponent has tried to distort is my support for right-to-work laws," the independent businessman and rancher said.

"When I announced my candidacy for this office last December, I also announced my firm support for right-to-work law, a fundamental right for all citizens," Krueger said.

Explaining that he does not believe that right-to-work belongs in the state constitution, Krueger emphasized, "Our state constitution should be modeled after the American Constitution, which is a document of broad guidelines that many countries have copied."

"There are no laws in our national constitution; there is not even a law against murder. By the same token, a right-to-work provision belongs in the form of a statutory law, rather than in the state constitution," Krueger noted.

The Hill Country native also told voters that he will "draw from my years as head of my family's business and ranching interests to provide me with important experience for representing all the people in the 21st Congressional District."

"An independent businessman cannot operate by spending more than he takes in—and neither can the federal government," Krueger asserted.

The independent Democrat cited the failure of the government to hold down spending at a time when crucial industries are operating at full capacity as a significant contribution to inflation.

Latest Krueger Endorsements

Bob Krueger's momentum-gaining campaign for U. S. Congress gained a hefty boost when the independent businessman received four more endorsements from public officials in different regions of the 32-county 21st Congressional District.

Mayor Gordon Donop, Sr., of Llano, and City Commissioner Cato Cedillo, of San Angelo, are two elected officials who recently cited Bob Krueger as "the best man to represent all 32 counties in the 21st Congressional District."

Alex Gonzalez of Fort Stockton, former administrative assistant to U. S. Rep. Carl White, and Raymond Kneese, a member of former congressional candidate John Poerner's steering committee, called Krueger "the only candidate with no political ties and no political debts."

Upon learning of these most recent endorsements, Krueger said, "I'm deeply moved that my campaign to represent all of the people in the 21st Congressional District has gained such tremendous support from all areas of the district. It's become increasingly clear to me that the voters are tired of old-style political tricks and professional politicians who seek the next-highest office each election year."

Market Report

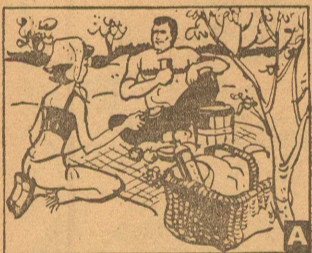

College Station, Tex.—Onion prices dipped to lowest levels of the year during the past two weeks, one authority reports.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, estimated this year's onion crop 13% greater than last year's, with prices three to four times lower.

Cabbage, carrots, broccoli, soft-shell squash, cooking greens, radishes and green onions are other "economically priced vegetables worth considering this week," the specialist said.

The Easy Season

When warm weather rolls in like frothy blue surf, thoughts often turn to picnics, backyard barbecues, the whole free and easy life of casual entertaining, relaxing and enjoyment. Make the food and drink suit the mood: good and easy so the host and hostess can have fun too.

Pack your picnic cooler with a generous variety of cheeses, meats, hardboiled eggs and salted "love apples" — also known as baby tomatoes — crusty French bread and fruit.

For a patio party with a difference, try hunks of marinated lamb. Serve with hot rolls, crisp tossed salad, and mushroom kabobs.

Don't forget the wine. Americans are fast discovering what Europeans have long known: Wine makes the meal, especially one like Brillante, the light refresher from Spain's Bodegas Bilbainas.

Two great ideas in one, Brillante Blanco (white) and Rosado (rose) can go with whatever food you fancy. Medium-dry Blanco is smooth, well balanced, voluptuous yet delicate, with a flowery bouquet. Rosado is semi-dry, soft, mellow and fruity. Either fits right in with fine, unfussy summer entertaining!

The Germans believe that he who carries mugwort in his shoes will not grow weary!

A Southern superstition warns that you should never put a letter in your girl friend's left hand, or your friendship will come to an end...on a bad note!

PAR-TEE

The welcome mat is out for the Robert Jay family and N. J. Lucas family. These folks are a nice addition to our group and we hope to see them often on the course. We're happy to have Newell "back home" as new highway patrolman.

We were glad to see so many on our course over the Memorial day week end. Two groups were out from San Angelo. It's always great to have visitors that enjoy our course.

Winners of Sunday's Mixed Four-some were Mary Waldron, Bob Page, Ronnie Sauer and John Nikolaik after a play off with the team of Eddie Kinser, Gary Derrick, Ray Lewis Ballew and Delbert Taylor leaving them in second place.

Monday, being the holiday, we had a special play. Delbert and Tim Terry came up with the idea, with some help, of a One Club Scotch Twosome.

Each player selected his one club before being paired. All 18 holes were played with this club. Have you ever tried to putt with a five iron? Heard A. G. McCormack comment that he was throwing his putter away and Truba Derrick should as she couldn't miss a putt with her five iron. Anyway it was lots of laughs.

Winning first place with a score of 79 no less, was Chuck Adams and Juanita Taylor.

Truba Derrick and John Pitts, Mary Waldron and Bob Whitten, Delbert Taylor and A. G. McCormack all came in with a score of 80 so it was a three way tie for second place and were paid as such.

Gary Derrick and Bob Sykes won next place.

Charlie Hahn and N. J. Lucas won fourth.

The team for having the most score also won a golf ball being Gladys Mittel and Steve Sykes.

Anyway it was lots of fun and has been suggested we try it again.

A covered dish supper was served at the clubhouse at 8:00 p.m. Twenty-five members were present. We will have our supper earlier next, folks.

It's great to see Sandy Donaldson break hitting the ball again.

Happiness is contagious. Be a carrier! —Rep.

STILL SOME COPIES OF THE GRADUATION SUCCESS ISSUES — JUST 10¢ EACH

If you don't vote this Saturday, the San Antonio political machine will elect their candidate for U.S. Congress.

If you DO vote, we can have a conservative minded congressman who will represent ALL the people of the 21st district.

Unlike Nelson Wolff, the San Antonio political machine's candidate, BOB KRUEGER is a man from our part of the district. Bob is from Comal County and as a boy his family taught him to be an honest, hardworking, and conservative minded man.

Coming from Comal County, Bob Krueger knows what it's like to want a representative who will not forget the people outside the very large metropolitan areas. BOB KRUEGER IS COMMITTED TO REPRESENTING ALL THE PEOPLE OF THE 21ST DISTRICT.

Krueger is a straight shooter and has taken a stand on every issue:

- FOR a balanced budget
- FOR the right to work
- FOR a strong national defense
- FOR maintaining all our local military bases
- FOR predator control
- FOR a tough anti-crime and drug abuse program
- FOR an agricultural policy which encourages rather than discourages production
- FOR a fair share tax plan
- FOR oil depletion allowance
- AGAINST Federal Land Use policies
- AGAINST forced busing
- AGAINST general amnesty
- AGAINST gun control
- AGAINST wage price controls
- AGAINST metro-government
- AGAINST a national socialized medicine program

Bob Krueger, like Gov. Coke Stevenson and John Poerner, knows how important it is to have a congressman who'll represent us, not forget us.

Vote against the San Antonio political machine.

Six Flags & Seven Seas Have Summer Season On

Arlington, Tex.—Texas' tourist season went into full swing as its number one attraction, Six Flags, and the world's largest inland marine life park, Seven Seas, began daily operation for 1974 on Saturday, May 25.

Six Flags will maintain the daily schedule through Labor Day, operating from 10:00 a.m. until 10:00 p.m. The theme park will return to a weekend schedule during the fall.

Bob Freeman, Six Flags' general manager, said attendance has been running well ahead of advance projections with more than 380,000 visitors during the spring months.

Seven Seas, which is operating for the first season under the management of Six Flags, Inc., has drawn more than 26,000 visitors since its May 3 opening. This figure is more than double that for the same period last year.

The sea park will be open daily from 10:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m. through August 25. With the exception of Labor Day, Seven Seas will be open on week ends only during the fall months.

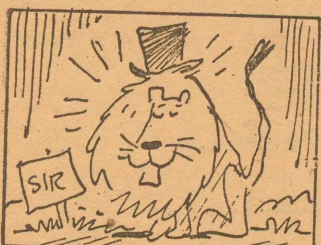

The entertainment centers are located in Arlington, Texas, midway between Dallas and Ft. Worth.

"From one extreme to another," is an expression heard most everywhere. Too hot, to the opposite too cold, or too dry, to the opposite too wet. The latter has been the case since the good rains started the last of April. Before the rains it was too dry for anything to grow and too dry to plant anything. The good rains have made it too wet to plant for a time but soon all crops can be planted (weather permitting) and in most places moisture will be sufficient for good growth for some time.

How much rain did you get? is about the first question farmers and ranchers ask one another following each rain. It is surprising how much rainfall varies from one area to another. However, this is most always the case and sometimes the distances between the two gauges is not very much. Variances of as much as an inch has been experienced by some farmers and ranchers on their own place.

Since the latter part of April some places have received 6.20 inches. Other areas have received more and some places less. Most always the amount varies from one place to another. However, one of the more important things is sometimes overlooked, that being how much of the water was kept where it fell for crop use.

The average yearly rainfall for the last 38 years for Schleicher county is 19.50 inches. No doubt close to 100% of the farmers would agree that this would be real good provided two things would be controlled. The first thing that is equally important as getting adequate rain is getting it at the time when most beneficial. The second item is the one that is not given enough consideration, that being holding all rainfall on the land where it falls for crop use. Getting the moisture when needed from rainfall can not be controlled by man. Holding all the water that is feasibly possible to hold where it falls can be controlled by those who use the land. A big percentage of the farmers in the Eldorado-Divide Soil and Water Conservation District apply and maintain conservation practices to hold rainfall received on their land.

Contour farming and level closed end terraces are two of the conservation practices needed on cultivated land to help hold the maximum amount of water where it falls. Land that is nearly level usually requires only contour farming. However, land can be almost level and still need terraces to help hold the water from big rains that fall in a short period of time. Farmers have found that having terraces on nearly level fields pays good dividends. Increased crop yields on sloping fields can be observed almost every year where good level terraces are constructed and maintained.

Pecan Nut Casebearer Control

Control measures for the pecan nut casebearer should be applied during the period of May 24-30. Pecan nut casebearer moths have emerged in an erratic pattern this year and a second chemical application may be needed approximately seven days after the initial application according to area entomologist Dr. Mike McWhorter.

The second application should provide the extended nutlet protection needed to reduce damage from casebearer larvae developing from the last portion of the egg laying period. Homeowners and orchardists should continue to examine developing nut clusters for the small flat white to reddish casebearer eggs to further pinpoint the need for additional chemical applications.

Insecticides may be mixed with various fungicides and zinc sulfate to improve overall nut quality and tree health. Thorough tree coverage is necessary to obtain maximum benefit from the spray mixture.

Insecticides such as Sevin, Zolene, Malathion or Guthion can be used to control the pecan nut casebearer. The selected insecticide should be mixed and applied according to the directions on the container labels.

Additional information on insecticides and pecan pests can be obtained at the Schleicher County Extension agent's office.

Home Gardens May Need Extra Fertilizer

With home gardens making good progress in most areas, now is the time to consider additional fertilizer applications. Most vegetable crops will respond to additional fertilizer. Soil type, type of fertilizer, row spacing and the particular crop will determine the amount of fertilizer used.

More fertilizer can be applied to heavy clay soils than to light sandy soils because heavy soils hold nutrients better. Crops grown on sandy soils will respond to light, frequent applications of side-dressed fertilizer.

Additional fertilizer applied as a side-dress application should be of a form that is readily available to growing crops. The most common forms are ammonium sulfate (21-0-0) and ammonium nitrate (33-0-0). Most home grown vegetables will respond to light applications of nitrogen but show little benefit from applications of complete fertilizers containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium.

Apply fertilizer between the garden rows and work it into the soil if possible. Be careful to avoid root damage and do not place the fertilizer too close to the growing

FRICTION—THEN RUIN

Packed into every watch are cogs and wheels, levers and springs. Varying in size and shape, each helps keep time. But look more closely. A thin film of oil adheres to many of the moving parts. Without it there is friction—then wear and . . . damage.

Within most towns, you'll find banks and shops, supermarkets and churches. They vary in size and purpose, yet each contributes to an orderly society.

Faith in God is essential to society. Without it there is friction—then distrust and . . . ruin.

In church people find faith that gives greater meaning to life in a complex and rapidly changing world. Is your life running smoothly? Why not attend church this Sunday?
