Miss John Alexander Dies At Age Of 88

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon in the First Baptist Church here for Miss John E. Alexander, 88, who died last Wednesday in the Sonora hospital.

Clocks Going Back To Standard Time

The return to "sun" time is imminent. Make a note that daylight saving time will end for this year on Sunday, October 26—at 2:00 a.m. officially.

Unless Congress alters the law, daylight time will come back again on April 26, 1976.

For local people, it is recommended that when you go to bed Saturday night, you turn your clock and other timepieces BACK one hour. You will then sleep an hour later the following morning from what you have been used to.

About the only workers who will make the time change when it occurs officially will be those working a night shift for an oil company or hospital.

A year ago Congress advocated that daylight saving time be in effect for just the three summer months—June, July and August—when school was out. It would end on Labor Day when school took up again and football season started. It was a sensible idea, but was voted down.

Giant Parachute Ride Is Being Built At Six Flags Over Texas

Arlington, Tex.—One of the most popular thrill rides in history, a towering parachute drop, will be revived in modern form by Six Flags Over Texas for the theme park's 1976 season. The 200-foot-tall mechanical giant, costing 1.5 million dollars, will lift riders 175 feet into the sky before its 12 parachutes suddenly "break loose" and plummet earthward with breathtaking speed.

After a spine-tingling drop of more than 30 feet, the parachutes will billow open and the rate of descent will begin to slow.

Six Flags General Manager Dan Howells rode a prototype of the parachute device during recent tests at a plant near Berne, Switzerland, where the ride is being fabricated.

He said, "The initial drop is just like jumping off a three-storey building. It's got to be the most exciting sensation ever built into a thrill ride. To say you experience a 'falling sensation' would be a gross understatement."

An identical ride is being built for the Texas entertainment center's "sister park," Six Flags Over Georgia, near Atlanta.

Howells said similar rides once existed in Chicago and at New York's famed Coney Island. The only one still in operation is located at Fort Benning, Georgia.

He said, "Our research shows that the old Coney Island version of the ride was the most popular attraction in Coney's Steeplechase Park, even though it was competing with as many as six of the world's most exciting roller coasters at one time or another."

"We think it's fitting that the parks here and in Georgia, are bringing an ultra-modern version of the parachute ride back to the public in the nation's bi-centennial year."

The main structure of the ride will be a metal tube nine feet in diameter topped by a circular building which houses the ride's complex machinery.

Twelve huge arms will jut in a circle from the top of the structure, each supporting a parachute guided by steel cables.

Dangling beneath each of the colorful chutes will be a chair which can seat two large adults or three smaller persons.

The riders will be carried up at a speed of 15 feet per second and, as Howells put it, "They'll come down a lot faster." He added, "The entire ride, from liftoff to touchdown lasts only 28 seconds... but what a 28 seconds!"

The ride will carry as many as 1,200 passengers an hour, making it one of the highest capacity attractions in the park.

Howells said the exact opening date for the ride will depend on the time of delivery from Switzerland. "Right now we're hoping for operation in early April," he commented.

The rides in Texas and Georgia will be formally dedicated in simultaneous ceremonies.

Officials said the parachute drops will incorporate elaborate safety systems, and that each of the dozen chutes will be under full safety control, even during the initial free-fall effect.

At Six Flags Over Texas the parachute drop will be located between the park's Puppet Theater and the entrance driveway.

Land for the 100-foot-diameter site is already being cleared, and construction of the foundation will begin in a few days.

Howells concluded, "The parachute drop will be exciting just to watch. Standing on the ground, listening to the screams and watching the riders is quite a show."

PROTECTING OUR DRINKING WATER

"The quality of tap water is crucial to good health. The public demands that its milk, soda, beer, and other beverages not be contaminated. Why not water, too, which is also imbibed?"

That question, posed in a recent issue of the highly respected professional journal, CIVIL ENGINEERING, is one that greatly concerns community officials. They must not only solve this problem, but also meet recently established goals formulated by the federal Environmental Protection Agency for the quality of water leaving water treatment plants. Because both EPA and state agencies want reservoirs covered to preserve water quality, such cities as Philadelphia, Charleston, S.C. and Salt Lake City have turned to comparatively low cost floating covers to protect local water supplies.

According to the magazine, the floating covers, made of "Hypalon" synthetic rubber, are being used to protect water from airborne contaminants, and are expected to provide savings in maintenance and chemical treatment. These Rooffloat covers are designed and installed by Globe Linings of Long Beach, Ca., using material supplied by Burke Industries of San Jose, Ca.

For example, John R. Bettis, Water Department manager and engineer, in Charleston, is quoted as saying the cover allows the city to deliver better quality water because of more uniform distribution of chlorine treatment. Savings are effected because evaporation of chlorine-treated water is eliminated; in addition the cover provides savings on maintenance. Since the new cover keeps out leaves, twigs and other contaminants, cleaning is no longer necessary.

In Philadelphia, where an old reservoir basin has been covered, city Water Commissioner Carmen Guarino expects the cover of "Hypalon" to last 25 to 40 years, with no maintenance problems. The savings in chemical over the life of the cover should pay for most of it, according to Commissioner Guarino, who also anticipates better water quality, maintenance savings, and no drowning accidents.

At Salt Lake City, a floating cover of "Hypalon" was installed at much lower cost than other covering methods and allowed the reservoir to be returned to service in only 30 days. "Unlike some covers, this one blends beautifully into the scenic surroundings," according to the magazine.

"Hypalon" has been used to line industrial waste ponds and pits for many years, thus protecting the underground water table. For example, in Texas, where local EPA regulations are very strict, brine storage ponds are used in various industrial processes; it is vital that this lagooned saltwater not leak into the groundwater. Reinforced membranes of "Hypalon" have been widely employed here because of the material's impermeability, as well as its strength, chemical and sunlight resistance, and good dimensional stability. Similarly, it has been specified where repair of old, leaking reservoirs is undertaken, as in a recently completed job in Syracuse, N.Y. installed by Globe using Burke material.

The importance of protecting groundwater from seepage from a variety of sources, agricultural as well as industrial, led the Du Pont Company, which makes the raw "Hypalon" from which the reinforced membranes are made, to develop an entirely new material for uses where "Hypalon" synthetic rubber is not necessarily suitable, or may be too expensive. An unsupported membrane, the new "3110" sheet has excellent resistance to a wide range of chemicals.

Ponds lined with this material serve various functions, ranging from a sewage and drainage lagoon adjacent to the New York State Thruway to an irrigating canal which contains liquid fertilizer used to irrigate orchards in Texas. A feature of the system is a hand-held welder which produces exceptionally reliable seams on the site.

In introducing the "3110" system, the Du Pont Company is extending what one engineer called its line of "industrial diapers for soggy bottoms." In addition to such general purpose linings as those made from "Hypalon" and "3110," Du Pont also offers neoprene for installations where superior oil resistance is required; and EPDM, usually considered the material of choice where high temperature resistance is involved.

FRENCH COOKING MADE EASY

CROUTES AU FROMAGE

A sophisticated substitute for cheese and crackers served as hors d'oeuvres, snacks, soup partners or dessert are Croutes au Fromage (pronounced "kroot zoh fro-mazh"). Literally translated as cheese croutons, they are actually wafer-like rounds of cheese pastry filled with additional cheese. This version features the complementary flavors of Cheddar cheese in the pastry rounds with Swiss or Gruyere spread between.

Doing double duty as shortening and spread is rich, flavorful Blue Bonnet Margarine. Tests conducted in a French cooking school comparing Blue Bonnet and butter found no difference in performance or flavor.

Accompany them with tomato juice for an appetizer or snack, with soup for lunch, or with fresh fruits for dessert.

CROUTES AU FROMAGE

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) Blue Bonnet Margarine
- 2 cups unsifted flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Generous dash cayenne pepper
- 2 cups grated Cheddar cheese
- 6 tablespoons heavy cream
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 1/2 cups grated Gruyere or Swiss cheese

(1) Cut 6 tablespoons margarine into flour, salt and cayenne pepper. Cut in Cheddar cheese. (2) Stir in heavy cream until mixture leaves sides of bowl and forms a ball.

(3) Roll dough out to 1/8-inch thickness. (4) Cut into rounds using 2-inch cookie cutter. Brush with beaten egg and place on ungreased baking sheets. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) about 8 minutes, or until delicately browned.

Just before serving, cream remaining 2 tablespoons margarine into Gruyere or Swiss cheese. (5) Spread mixture on half the rounds. Top with remaining rounds. (6) Bake in hot oven (425°F.) about 2 minutes, or until cheese is melted. Makes 32 appetizers.

Anaplasmosis Increasing In Cattle

Anaplasmosis is becoming more widespread in Texas cattle. Anaplasmosis is a disease caused by a small parasite that enters the red blood cells of animals. It causes anemia and sometimes death and is usually spread from carrier animals by ticks, flies and mosquitoes or a puncture from a sharp unclean object.

Symptoms of the disease are rapid breathing, constipation, frequent urination and slobbering. Animals may go off feed. As the disease gets worse, fever goes up and membranes around the nose get pale or yellowish.

A vet should be called immediately since untreated animals can die within 24-48 hours after symptoms develop.

A blood test for diagnosing the disease and finding carrier animals is available from the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory at College Station. The test costs $2.

Infected animals should be separated immediately from the rest of the herd. These can be treated by feeding 5 milligrams of chlortetracycline per pound of body weight per day for 60 days.

As a preventive measure against anaplasmosis, cattlemen can feed .5 milligrams of chlortetracycline per pound of body weight per day during the season when the disease is most prevalent. This precaution will reduce the severity of the disease.

Also, make sure dehorning, ear marking, castration and vaccination equipment is cleaned and disinfected after each use.

Vaccination will not prevent the disease but will help reduce its severity and will cut death losses.

Sowbugs (Pillbugs) Common Garden Pests

If certain crops in your fall garden are being eaten away, the culprit may be a grayish-black bug called a sowbug.

Sowbugs, often called pillbugs because they curl up to look like a small round pill, are not insects but are closely related to shrimp and crabs. The flattened, segmented bugs range in size from ¼ to ½ inch long.

Sowbugs like cool, moist places near compost or under stones or boards. They feed mostly on organic matter but will eat young and tender shoots of vegetables such as lettuce and beans. They also feed on fruit of strawberries and blackberries and introduce organisms that cause the fruit to rot.

Use of carbaryl (Sevin) bait around the edge of gardens and between rows is one way to control the tiny pests. Also put the bait in corners or likely hiding places.

The bugs can be trapped by putting lettuce or cabbage leaves or other plant residue between rows in a garden in the evening. The next morning, destroy those that have collected on the leaves.

The Ozona Stockman last week reported that remodeling recently completed at Big "O" Theatre includes a new and much larger lighted sign mounted in a brick planter. The sign can be seen for miles.

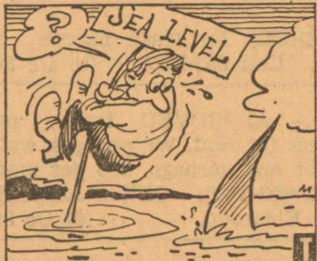

Also, the patio adjoining the theatre has recently been remodeled to include a covered top with hanging baskets. Besides serving in the restaurant before the nightly shows, the theatre now offers Monday lunch between the hours of 11:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m.

The Big "O" Theatre is located on the highway north of Ozona and is one of our fine Success advertisers. The firm has our best wishes in this latest phase of improvements made to their facilities.

1st UNITED METHODIST CHURCH of which Rev. Keith Wyatt is pastor, will conduct the services this coming Sunday afternoon, Oct. 26, at the local Nursing Home. The service will start at 3:30.

Quick Quiz!

Distances are sometimes deceiving. To be able to see just the tip of a 200 foot oil rig that is 54 miles out at sea, how high above sea level would you have to be (a) 62 feet (b) 262 feet (c) 1,662 feet?

ANSWER

"C" is correct. You would have to be standing 1,662 feet above sea level. That means that if you stood on top of the Empire State Building, you would still need a 412 foot ladder to see even the tip of that oil rig.

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE

Prepared by the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters, the national society of life insurance professionals who have earned the CLU designation by meeting high educational, ethical and experience requirements.

Q. There's nothing I like better than a good book. But whenever the author starts with those sub-plots I get confused and lose interest. I feel the same way about life insurance policies. Do you think you could explain to me, in less than a thousand words, why they put in all that confusing fine print?

A. In a word, yes. First of all "fine print" in itself is pretty much a thing of the past. But the clauses you are referring to are put in there for your benefit. The legal language is necessary because a life insurance policy is a legal contract that has to stand up in court, even long after the people who originally were concerned with it are gone.

Your rights as well as the company's obligations must be spelled out. Actually, it's a one-sided contract: you can cancel it at any time, but the insurance company can't, unless you run out of premium money or the company can prove fraudulent misrepresentation within the first two years. After two years, the policy becomes incontestable.

If you are in doubt about any provisions in your policy ask a CLU to go over it with you point by point. He'll be happy to oblige.

Wash and dry a full load, but never overload... it is essential for each item to move freely for proper cleaning and drying.

Choose the correct cycle for washing modern materials. Perhaps hot water isn't needed, and only a gentle drying temperature.

Too much detergent can clog machine and drains... always measure, don't guess! Follow the manufacturer's recommendations for your type equipment. Mixing brands of detergents can cause graying of clothes.

Many manufacturers of permanent press garments recommend machine washing and machine drying for best results. Following instructions on the garment tag can help preserve the life of your clothing and give you wrinkle-free clothes without need for ironing. A big savings!

Clean-Up Held At Barrio Saturday

The Barrio Clean-Up Campaign got under way last Saturday, Oct. 18th, at 8:30 a.m., with sirens announcing the beginning drive. However, it was not actually the beginning as residents of the "barrio" had been gathering debris for a period of three weeks. What started out to be a one day clean-up mushroomed into a gigantic affair, and organizers found that the cooperation of the community had been grossly underestimated in every way.
In spite of this error in judgment (which resulted in insufficient amount of heavy moving equipment) 56 loads of accumulated trash were placed and lifted onto one city and two county dump trucks and one pick-up and trailer, with one front end loader and 48 volunteer workers.
As the nine member crew moved in, there was no real belief that members of the barrio would actively join in the picking up. And this was so, for a couple of hours and then things began to happen. One by one, individuals got into the swing of action and by mid-afternoon, four work crews were operating at the near frenzy point and with great comradeship.
One work crew was made of women and children. Unbelievable, the performance. The truck was handled by a lady who could maneuver that piece of machinery as if she had been born in it. About 1:00 p.m. four young adults joined this force and the group was able to fill and move out a truck at almost the same pace as the crews made up of men.
Three young men in the 14-15 year range took up the axe and felled three large mesquite trees, each 6" to 8" in diameter, thus clearing the alley so that homes on the block could be serviced by city equipment on a regular basis.
Any idea that the men of the barrio will not help was proven false. They did, and in spite of the fact that the whole day's work saw only about one tenth of the necessary work done, they decided among themselves that next Saturday would be a repeat on a much larger scale. Each one would bring a work companion and hopefully more equipment could be supplied.
The day ended with aching muscles, sore backs, bruises and minor lacerations, smoke filled eyes and even scorched hair, but oh the greatest feeling of knowing what a group of determined people, working together, can do.
Any firm or company owning front end loaders, or dump trucks, that would consider their use on a Saturday for this purpose, is asked to phone 853-2763 and state their requirements or stipulations. Among our workers are men with commercial licenses and skilled operators for front end loaders. We know now that there are plenty of willing workers. We just desperately need the equipment. Thank you. —The Community Council Members.

Auto Insurance Up

Auto insurance rates are going up again—away up—by a statewide average of 17%.
The increase just ordered by the State Insurance Board effective January 1 is the largest in more than 15 years.
Texans will be paying $112.8 million more in premiums next year. At that, the hike is less than the insurance industry wanted. Industry spokesmen asked a 24.9% increase which would have meant $165.4 million in additional premiums.
Total state premiums at the elevated rates will come to about $363.6 million a year.
Actual increases vary according to age, residence, make and model of cars, driving records and use of vehicles. They will range from $8 to $43 more annually for a typical auto owner. But a young, unmarried male driver in Houston may see an increase from $581 to $706 in his total premiums.
Full comprehensive will go up an overall average of 8.8%, $100 deductible collision 12%, bodily injury liability 21.1%, property damage liability 16% and uninsured motorist coverage 32.4%.

by Lyndell Williams
Texas Press Association
Austin, Tex.—Gov. Dolph Briscoe rocked proponents of a new state constitution by coming out firmly against all eight revision propositions on the November 4 ballot.
Briscoe's announced opposition may have applied the finishing blow to revision this year, many observers of the campaign feel.
Others insisted the Governor's resistance will not be crucial.
Briscoe centered his criticism on proposed annual sessions of the legislature.
He said he feels yearly meetings of lawmakers would be counterproductive, would sharply increase state spending and lead to a full-time legislature.
The Governor also specifically criticized the judiciary article (merging of top courts), lifting of welfare spending ceilings, increasing bonding authority of the Permanent University Fund and continuing constitutional authority for a two cent property tax dedicated to state buildings.
He said the proposed new document would be subject to endless court tests and interpretation, confusion and chaos in state government and reduced checks and balances on government.
Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Atty. Gen. John Hill, House Speaker Bill Clayton, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and other revision proponents disagreed entirely with the Governor.

LOOKING BACK

—Mr. WREN JACKSON—

In record books the Bicentennial this year the Schleicher County Medical Center Nursing Home is going to write the history of all those residents who came to Schleicher County in the early days. The first of the residents in it we would like to write about is Wren Jackson, age 93.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam A. Jackson were the proud parents of a baby boy born December 27th, 1879 in Erath county. He was reared there with his seven brothers and three sisters. In August of 1901 at the age of 21 Wren and his brother Pat Jackson age 23 came to Bexar County, (which later became Schleicher County) by wagon as most of the settlers did at that time.

Wren and Pat applied for land in the north east part of Schleicher county. Pat received three sections at $1.25 an acre and Wren received four sections at the same price. When lived in the wagon and Pat resided under an oak tree (which still stands) while proving their land. During this time they worked for Mr. Jim Henderson Sr. who branched near them in Concho county. Many hardships were to come over the years trying to settle and ranch a new land, one being having to carry water some five miles to their homestead when their own natural tank would dry up.

Wren Jackson was married to Mildred Jones from San Angelo, who by the way was the first woman to work for J. C. Penney's before her marriage. After their marriage they moved to Reagan County where they resided.

An interesting note about Mr. Jackson is that he and Mrs. Sam Williams are, as far as we know, the only two that bought land during that period who kept the original grant throughout their lifetimes.

Mr. Jackson is back in Schleicher County and we are very proud to have him here at the Nursing Home, and we congratulate him on his long life and being one of the first settlers in Schleicher county.

A thank you goes to Mrs. Dick Jackson from San Angelo who helped me write this article on Mr. Jackson. —Ruthie Dacy, A. D.

RELIGION IN AMERICAN LIFE

WELCOMING GOD TO AMERICA'S BICENTENNIAL

As we celebrate America's Bicentennial we are reminded that, while our founding fathers differed profoundly in their personal faith, they had learned from bitter experience that the health of any nation would depend upon the free exercise of religion within its society.

Based on their religious convictions they wrote eloquently in the Declaration of Independence, "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights..."

These were men of spiritual insights who valued their God-given rights more than the material security they possessed. They did more than merely accept a faith in their Creator. They voluntarily lived by it and some died for it. It was no idle boast when they stated, "and for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

Religion has always been a cornerstone in American life and has in each generation provided us with men and women of enormous inner strength... a strength which came from God. Our religious institutions, preserved and sustained by our forefathers, cultivated individual beliefs, brought an integrity of purpose to bear upon our social order, and propagated our highest moral and ethical values.

We who are privileged to live now need the same reliance on a religious faith if we are to achieve the equality of creation and to fulfill those "unalienable Rights." Our times demand as deep a faith, as firm a will, and as dedicated a people who will put God-given truth above self-serving ends. Religion was essential to our founding fathers and it must be a part of today's "survival kit" if a tricenennial is to be observed in the year 2076. At the beginning of it all, President George Washington stated, "To attempt government without God is impossible." Benjamin Franklin is reported to have said, "Men will be governed by God or they will be ruled by tyrants."

Welcome God into your Bicentennial celebration so that truth, which is the basis for the freedoms we cherish, may be preserved for posterity.

GREAT WOMEN IN HISTORY

PRETTY AND VERY POPULAR, SHE GAVE UP A SOCIAL LIFE TO TAKE CARE OF THE OLD AND THE SICK. IN 1854, A SLIM ENGLISHWOMAN NAMED FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE LED A SMALL BAND OF VOLUNTEERS TO TURKEY TO NURSE MEN WOUNDED IN THE CRIMEAN WAR. BY ENFORCING SANITARY CONDITIONS SHE REDUCED THE DEATH RATE FROM 42 TO 2 PERCENT AND EVENTUALLY MADE NURSING A WORTHY CAREER FOR WOMEN!

POPULAR LIQUEUR WAS LAUNCHED AS THE RESULT OF THE GOOD WORKS DONE BY MARIE BRIZARD, THE DAUGHTER OF A FRENCH CARPENTER WHO DURING AN 18TH CENTURY EPIDEMIC IN FRANCE CURED A WEST INDIAN NATIVE. AS A TOKEN OF GRATITUDE HE CONFIDED TO HER THE SECRET OF AN ELIXIR. THE BASIS OF THE REMEDY WAS ANISE AND IT PROVED SO SUCCESSFUL IN THE TREATMENT OF HER PATIENTS THAT MANY WISHED TO CONTINUE TAKING IT AFTER THEY WERE RESTORED TO HEALTH. THIS WAS LAUNCHED MARIE BRIZARD ANISETTE!

IT WAS AN UNPOPULAR CAUSE BUT FOR MORE THAN HALF A CENTURY SUSAN B. ANTHONY FOUGHT TO WIN FOR WOMEN THE RIGHT TO VOTE. MANY PEOPLE MADE FUN OF HER, BUT HER EFFORTS WERE SUCCESSFUL. IN 1920, BOTH MAJOR PARTIES ENDORSED WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE!

In Lake Huron, Canada, there is an island which contains a lake in which there are several islands.
