Austin, Tex.—Extension of the federal Voting Rights Act, expected to be approved soon by the U. S. Senate, will have a dramatic impact on states, cities and counties, warns Texas Secretary of State Mark White Jr.

White is waging a kind of crusade to alert Texas officials and news media representatives what to expect and trying to rally last-ditch opposition.

The act, White emphasizes, would mean far more than federally-monitored voter registration and election procedures.

It would also require that every change in state voting laws, all legislative and local boundary line redistricting and even municipal annexations affecting voting precinct makeup would have to be approved by the U. S. attorney general.

White says Texas has done everything called for in the federal bill to protect voting rights—including passage of a law requiring bilingual ballots and registration materials.

However, the state still would be brought under the act, due to a retroactive provision. That section applies the law to states where fewer than 50% of voting-age adults were registered in 1972 or voted in the last presidential election.

White insists there is no substantial evidence of voting rights violations in Texas, and that applying punitive provisions of the act to the state is an injustice, "a fraud and an insult."

Impeachment Launched

The first impeachment action in 44 years was launched in the House against 229th District Judge O. P. Carrillo of Duval county.

A select committee unanimously approved a resolution containing 11 articles of impeachment. The House will reconvene August 4 at 10:00 a.m. to consider the resolution. If it, or any similar version, is approved, the Senate will be called into session within about a month to sit in trial of Carrillo.

The judge's Austin attorney, Arthur Mitchell, said he was notified, meanwhile, the Texas Judicial Qualifications Commission, has filed a complaint against Carrillo.

Mitchell aid legal action will be taken in an effort to prevent ouster even if impeachment is voted.

Short Snorts . . .

State Board of Education Chairman Joe Kelly Butler of Houston predicted Texas school districts will have to raise property taxes $200 million to $400 million a year under the new school finance law.

A statewide steering committee of prominent Texans has been named for the upcoming nonpartisan Salute To John Connally slated in Houston on July 31. Proceeds from the $25 a plate dinner will go for support of Connally's nationwide speaking engagement.

Texas liberal Democrats will outline presidential campaign strategies at a meeting here September 20. They plan to organize as "Texans for Somebody Else" (besides Sen. Lloyd Bentsen or Alabama Gov. George Wallace, that is).

Secretary of State Mark White Jr. abandoned plans to buy a new state printing press to produce a voters guide to the new constitution, and decided to take a commercial printing bid.

Comptroller Bob Bullock sent checks totalling $11.4 million to Texas cities representing July local sales tax collections.

Green Tomatoes In Season Again
Mrs. Bobbie Killebrew, who cooks at the Eldorado nursing home, brought a green tomato pie to Fred Gunstead last week as a gift from her mother, Mrs. McKee.

Mrs. McKee resides in an apartment of the low-rent housing unit here in Eldorado, and her specialty in season is to bake green tomato pies. Apparently the green tomato season is now on and she is baking pies for all her friends, of whom I am one.

Although she is 83 years old, she is very active and keeps her apartment spic and span.

Thank you both for your week-end snacks.

A Sweet Story . . .
The Rev. Keith Wyatt came on the job recently as pastor of the First United Methodist Church here and he and Mrs. Wyatt and 1½-year-old daughter are making their home in the parsonage.

It was a surprise for Rev. Wyatt to discover last week end that a swarm of honeybees had settled in the church loft, and made a considerable amount of honey. We understand the parsonage family were provided with two or three jars of natural-state honey, although the discovery entailed a minor clean-up job on the church property. And the swarm of bees left following the discovery.

REDDY'S HELPFUL FREEZER TIPS

- Defrost promptly—frost build-up of more than 1/4" makes cooling units work harder—they use more energy and wear out faster
- Prepare food for refrigeration by letting hot dishes partially cool before refrigeration or freezing.
- Keep it full—but without overcrowding. A half-empty freezer uses more energy, because air is harder to keep cold than chilled foods and liquids.
- Check gaskets to help prevent energy-wasting air leaks. Close door on a heavy piece of paper. If it pulls out easily, gaskets may be worn.

Internal Parasite Control In Cattle

Cattlemen should give particular attention to controlling internal parasites in cattle during this time of the year.

Stomach worms can pose a major threat to late winter and spring calves. The mild winter along with weather conditions have been favorable for the development of these parasites.

Another factor pointing to a buildup of internal parasites this summer is the increased number of cattle on farms. Overstocking is evident on many pastures and ranges.

Using clean pastures helps reduce problems from internal parasites. We suggest moving cattle to small grain and other stubble as soon as the crops are harvested. Hay stubble fields which have not been grazed since last year should also be utilized. Clean pastures reduce the chances of reinfection with worms, especially if cattle are treated with a wormer before being moved.

Several products are available to remove cattle worms. These include Thibenzole and Tramisol that should be given in dosages based on the weight of the animal, along with Loxon. Loxon in bolus form is a recent addition to the battery of worming products for cattle and calves.

For information on the kinds of worms affecting cattle and the most effective medication, we advise contacting the local veterinarian.

Summer Care Of Grape Myrtles

Grape myrtle flowers are beginning to put on a colorful display in Schleicher county. And proper fertilization and pruning will provide for an abundance of flowers for three months or more.

Although it's best to fertilize according to soil test recommendations, a general recommendation of six pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of root area per year is sufficient for most trees and shrubs. This amount should be applied in several applications, one of which should be just before new growth begins in the spring. The number of square feet in the root area is determined by the branch spread of the tree.

Powdery mildew affects grape myrtles and can be controlled by spraying with Benomyl, acti-dione PM or Karathane according to label instructions. Mildew is usually less of a problem if plants are located in sunny areas where air circulation is good.

Pruning is best done in late winter before new growth begins. The structure and trunks of grape myrtles are among their chief assets; therefore, we advise pruning only dead and twiggy growth to expose the sculptural character of the tree.

For dwarf varieties or in shrub borders where crape myrtles may be grown only for their blooms, severe pruning will help insure larger and more prolific flowers. Pruning faded and seedy blossom heads will usually promote more and better blooming late in the summer.

For a different touch to the home landscape, try dwarf type crape myrtles in tubs or pots on the terrace. They do best in sunny areas and are as satisfactory for container use as they are in the ground.

"Recycled" Sounds Better Than "Used"

College Station—"My husband and I are proud to announce that earlier this month we purchased a 'recycled' room air conditioner—not a 'used' one, but recycled," Mrs. Janice Carberry, family resource management specialist said.

By doing this, the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said she felt they were helping the environment by putting to use some of America's still good unused resources and not using new supplies of limited resources.

"But if we'd bought a 'used' unit, that would have meant it was second hand and people would have known that a new model was more than our pocketbook could afford.

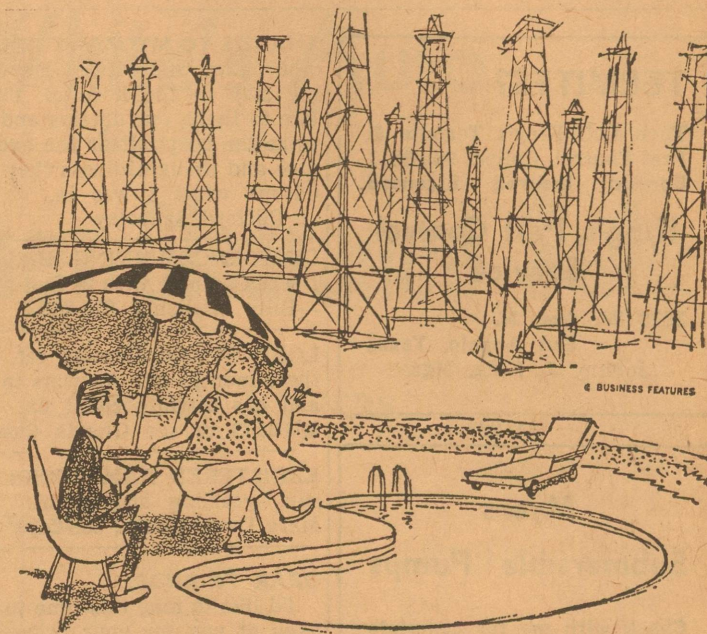

"Of course that's true, but it's not something we'd write home to mother or brag to the neighbors about," she said.

The psychology of this has made some staff members of the Federal Trade Commission think that many people will prefer "recycled" over "used." They have proposed a word change on used products being sold—recycled golf balls and tires, for example.

She said that by substituting the word "recycled" the stigma of buying some used products would be removed and the environmental concerns associated with recycling could be enhanced.

"They may have a point. There is a certain amount of pride in using stationery 'made completely from recycled paper.' Not too many people will boast of wearing 'hand-me-down clothes'—but a rare bargain found at a garage sale and recycled into a fashionable tunic top' is the same song with a niftier tune," she said.

Mrs. Carberry cautioned consumers to make sure they have a real need for the recycled item and that it still works before buying.

QUEER BEAST EXOTIC
According to word experts, the only thing exotic about anything exotic is that it's literally, "from a foreign land."

BREAD BAKING: A QUIET REVOLUTION

As economists quibble about how the nation's economy should work there's a quiet revolution going on in the American kitchen. A large management consultant firm calls it a "trading down" trend. What it amounts to is that consumers are buying ingredients like flour and yeast instead of frozen baked goods to save money. One supermarket manager observed that "frozen" pie buyers may trade down to pie crust mix while pie crust mixers move to bags of flour.
But most home bakers believe they are "trading up" as well as saving money by baking bread at home. In addition to saving money the quality of homemade bread has made a hit with most families.

There's old-fashioned flavor and goodness in the accompanying recipe for Buttermilk Rolls. Seasoned cooks know all about the virtues of buttermilk in chocolate cake, tender biscuits and tangy pies. It gives a silky texture and appealing flavor and aroma to yeast rolls. One ingredient not usually in yeast bread recipes is baking soda. The recipe calls for 1/4 teaspoon, a very small amount to be sure. But it's there to counteract the slight acidity of the buttermilk, the Test Kitchens of Fleischmann's Yeast who developed the recipe point out.
The roll dough may be shaped into knots or pan rolls. After baking, freeze half the recipe for future use.

BUTTERMILK ROLLS
Makes 2 dozen rolls
5 1/2 to 6 1/2 cups unsifted flour
3 tablespoons sugar
2 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1 package Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast
1 cup buttermilk
1 cup water

1/3 cup Fleischmann's Margarine
Melted Fleischmann's Margarine
In a large bowl thoroughly mix 2 cups flour, sugar, salt, baking soda and undissolved Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast.
Combine buttermilk, water and Fleischmann's Margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are warm (125°F. -135°F.). Margarine does not need to melt. Milk will appear curdled. Gradually add dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.
Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough in half. Form each half into a roll 12 inches long; cut into 12 equal pieces. Proceed according to directions (below) for desired shape.
Pan Rolls: Form pieces of dough into smooth balls. Place in 2 greased 9-inch round cake pans. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) for 25 minutes, or until done. Brush lightly with melted Fleischmann's Margarine. Remove from pans and place on wire racks to cool.
Knots: Form pieces of dough into strips 8-inches long. Tie each strip into a knot; place on greased baking sheet. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) for 15 minutes, or until done. Brush lightly with melted Fleischmann's Margarine. Remove from baking sheets and place on wire racks to cool.

POLYNESIAN ACCENT FOR SUMMER MEALS

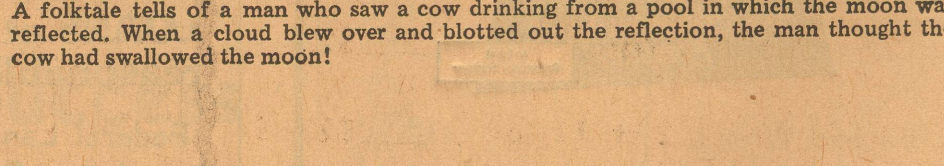

Warm weather is here again and friends and neighbors are departing on fun-filled vacations across the country and around the world. Advertisements and posters beckon many travelers to sunny islands with images of tropical splendor, sandy beaches and exotic food.
If, however, you are staying home you can still capture some of this island magic by giving summer menus a Polynesian flair. Fruit, nuts and spices can add glamour and sparkling flavor to many foods, from grilled fish to cool, crisp salads.

Treat your family to Tahitian Chicken, a delectable dish lavished with pineapple, bananas, lime juice and spices. Many doctors are recommending that everyone eat more poultry and fish and less red meat, eggs and whole milk dairy products in order to reduce their intake of cholesterol and saturated fat. Made with Fleischmann's 100% Corn Oil Margarine, Tahitian Chicken is ideal for such diets, and everyone will love the taste of this exquisite dish!
TAHITIAN CHICKEN
1 (2-1/2 pound) frying chicken, cut up
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons Fleischmann's Margarine

1 cup sliced onion
1/4 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1/8 teaspoon ground allspice
1/8 teaspoon ground cloves
1 chicken bouillon cube
1-1/4 cups water
3 tablespoons lime juice
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 can (20-ounce) pineapple chunks, drained
2 bananas, peeled and halved lengthwise and crosswise
Sprinkle chicken with 1/2 teaspoon salt. Melt margarine in a large skillet over medium high heat. Add chicken and brown well. Remove chicken. Add onion and cook over medium heat, stirring frequently, until transparent.
Stir in brown sugar, remaining 1/2 teaspoon salt, allspice, cloves, bouillon cube, 1 cup water and lime juice. Return chicken to skillet. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer about 40 minutes, or until tender, turning chicken pieces after 20 minutes.
Remove chicken to a warm platter; keep warm. Blend together cornstarch and remaining 1/4 cup water. Stir into liquid in skillet. Cook over medium heat, stirring, until thickened and boiling. Add pineapple chunks and bananas; heat through. Serve over chicken. Makes 4 servings.

A folktale tells of a man who saw a cow drinking from a pool in which the moon was reflected. When a cloud blew over and blotted out the reflection, the man thought the cow had swallowed the moon!

A truly American sentiment recognizes the dignity of labor and the fact that honor lies in honest toil.

Be A Smart Shopper About Consumer Complaints

Have you ever had a valid consumer problem? A product or service that didn't live up to its claims? Or a merchant who didn't sell what he advertised?

You have a right to help when you get stuck with faulty merchandise. But ask yourself a few questions before making a final judgment. The blame could fall on the manufacturer, the store or you.

—Did you follow use and care instructions carefully?

—Was the product used for its intended purpose?

—Did you have reasonable expectations for the product's performance?

Use the following steps to seek help when the blame falls on either the manufacturer or the merchant:

Solve The Problem Locally

Go to the store where you made the purchase. If possible, take the sales slip, product, tags, label and instructions with you. When the complaint concerns faulty merchandise or service, expect the store to either refund your money or exchange or repair the item.

First go to the department where you made the purchase; then try the complaint department. If all else fails, ask to see the manager.

Use courtesy in making a complaint. Try to avoid visiting the store during rush hours or just before closing time. Stay calm and state the facts.

Write the Company or Manufacturer

Write the company or manufacturer when the complaint cannot be handled locally. Look for the company address on the tag, label or booklet coming with the product. The local merchant may know the address. Remember the following guides when writing a company.

—Write a legible and business-like letter, using a typewriter if possible. Keep a carbon copy. Include your name, address and phone number in the letter.

—Identify the product purchased by brand name, model number, size, color and other relevant information.

—Explain the problem as precisely as possible. Include information concerning purchase date, price and previous steps in seeking help.

—Suggest the particular corrective action you would like from the company. This may include refunding money or replacing or repairing the product.

—When returning a product, mail it in the original box. Send the letter with the package if the product is small. By using certified mail, you can specify a return receipt so you'll know if the letter was received.

—Send a second letter if you don't hear from the company within a month.

Consult A Consumer Protection Agency

Consult a consumer protection agency or organization if you fail to get help from the company.

For individual disputes between buyers and sellers involving small amounts of money, the cheated individual has a right to sue in Small Claims Court without the help of a lawyer. Contact the Justice of the Peace.

It's your right to get help with a consumer problem. Speak up!

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

It is possible to go wrong in many ways, but right in only one. The former is thus easy and the latter difficult.

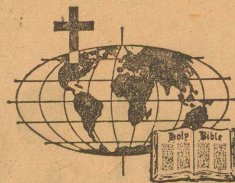

He is a mighty small man—almost too small to leave his footprints in the sand. But he is starting out on his own. He is exploring, seeking, learning. Where will his footsteps ultimately lead him? There are so many courses a child may take—so many that a person of any age can follow. But it is never too late to change direction, even if it seems as if a dead end has been reached. The beauty of life is that the word itself is synonymous with hope. If the direction your footsteps have been taking you is disappointing, then turn toward the Church. Remember, the Church has survived for centuries against odds that would have annihilated a lesser force. That in itself is reason enough to give it a chance—to see what it has to offer.
