75TH YEAR

ELDORADO—SCHLEICHER COUNTY, TEXAS (76936)

Thursday, July 29, 1976

Number 31

by Lyndell Williams
Texas Press Association

Austin, Tex.—Texas-style presidential preference primaries apparently are banned by a new mandate of the Democratic National Convention.

Actually, the law authorizing primaries for presidential delegate selection in 1976 expired by its own terms this year.

However, Gov. Dolph Briscoe and others have spoken out for renewal of the statute next year in essentially its old so-called winner-take-all form.

The Democratic convention voted to instruct the party's commission on future presidential primaries to outlaw at all levels delegate selection procedures decided by a plurality.

Texas and a dozen other states this year elected delegates at the senatorial and congressional district level in primaries where those who received a plurality of the popular vote won. Delegates representing other presidential candidates got no representation in the districts.

Republicans wanted no part of the Texas primary in the first place, but Democrats control the Texas legislature and they passed the bill (they thought) to aid U. S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen who was then seeking presidential nomination. Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan were the beneficiaries on winner-take-all provisions.

Plan Submitted

A proposed plan for settlement of $1.4 billion in lawsuits against Lo-Vaca Gathering Company was reviewed by the Railroad Commission.

It calls for separation of the gas distribution system from its parent firm, Coastal States Gas Producing Company, and creation of a new independent company.

It also provided that Coastal must spend $230 million over a 15-year period in the Lo-Vaca supply area in searching for new natural gas supplies.

Austin, San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Brownsville, Lower Colorado River Authority and other cities and districts are served by Lo-Vaca.

VRA Check Ordered

The House Elections Committee is conducting a survey to determine impact of the controversial federal Voting Rights Act on 4,000 local governments in Texas.

The act requires governmental units to get U. S. Justice Department approval on all changes in laws or procedures bearing on elections and voting rights—including annexations and boundary changes.

Short Snorts

The number of Bob Bullock's toll free line for information on taxes has been changed to 112-800-252-5555.

More than 500 Texas cities received checks totaling $13.4 million from July sales taxes. Gross sales during the first quarter in Texas came to $30.6 billion, up from $26.9 billion for the same quarter in 1975.

While speculation increased that he may be the Republican vice presidential nominee, former Gov. John Connally took off for a July rest on his ranch near Floresville.

In the future, institutions seeking corporate charters to grant higher education degrees will have to get certification from the Coordination Board, Texas College and University System.

TO CONDUCT SERVICE

The First Baptist Church, of which Rev. Gene Stark is pastor, will conduct services this Sunday, August 1st, at the Nursing Home.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

By JANNETTE WILKERSON

The Historical Society will meet August 2, at 7:30 in the Museum. Everyone is invited to attend.

Have you seen it? It's really something. If you ever wondered what Bob McWhorter looked like in the first grade, or what Bob Bradley wore to school, or how Lois Etheredge looked in boots, or Fenna Whitten with her hair parted in the middle, it's worth the trip. You'll see things you thought you had forgotten, and even classmates you haven't thought of in years. I'll bet you'd forgotten that Ben Hext sold his confectionary business in 1923 to Sam Lawhon. Did you know the old Hotel used Buffalo hair mattresses? And it was not that long ago when you could go to the grocery store and not have to mortgage your Mother-in-law. In 1938 you could buy bacon for 29c a pound, ground beef for 10c a pound, chuck roast for 15c a pound, a 10 pound bag of potatoes for 16c, and a big fat hen for 25c a pound. So the days before dishwashers, clothes dryers, and electric toothbrushes did have other advantages.

If you find yourself with some spare time, jump into your car (or boat) and spend the afternoon at the Museum. You'll be proud of it. Anyone wanting to work in the Museum from 3:00 to 6:00 p.m., call Margaret Frost at 853-2709, and get your name on the calendar.

Farm Safety Deadline Extended

Farmers now have until October 25 to comply with certain safety standards under the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) that were to become effective June 7.

The safety practices concern guarding tractor pull take-offs (PTO), displaying safety signs and providing initial employee training for machinery operations.

Even though the deadline has been extended, farmers should continue with preparations to meet these safety standards, we advise.

Particular emphasis is on guarding the PTO drive line. The tractor shield on the rear PTO shaft must be kept in place. However, the master shield may be removed when necessary to operate PTO driven equipment, provided the guards on such equipment cover the tractor PTO shafts.

Regarding safety training, a farmer must instruct every employee in the operation and servicing of all equipment with which that employee is involved.

Among the safe operating practices in which the employee must be instructed are the following:

- Keep all guards in place when the machine is in operation.
- Permit no riders on farm equipment other than persons required for instruction or assistance.
- Stop the engine, disconnect the power source and wait for all machine movement to stop before servicing, adjusting, cleaning or unclogging equipment, except when the machine must be running to be properly service.
- Make sure everyone is clear of machinery before starting the engine, engaging power or operating the machine.
- Lock out electrical power before performing maintenance or servicing equipment.

The requirement for safety signs calls for such signs to be placed at prominent locations on tractors and PTO driven equipment indicating that power drive system safety shields must be kept in place.

Furthermore, when removal of a guard or access door might expose an employee to any equipment that continues to rotate after the power is disengaged, the employer must provide warnings to look and listen for evidence of rotation and not to remove the guard or access door until all component movement has stopped.

Complying with these safety standards will make the farm a safer workplace, so they should become a part of the farm operation as soon as possible.

The Rev. and Mrs. Gordon Garlington joined friends from Pecos and New Mexico last week on a fishing trip to Colorado.

The Lester Dahlberg family went on a trip recently to Dallas, San Antonio, and the Texas coast.

CONSERVING ENERGY

Tips From Whirlpool Home Economists

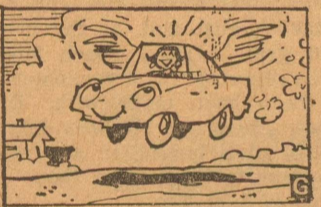

Planting a few shade trees can add a lot to the beauty of your home ... but did you know they can also help your air conditioner do a better job?

Trees help absorb and block heat before it gets inside—so your air conditioner has an easier job keeping you cool.

You can help by turning on the air conditioner in the morning so it has a head start on the day's heat. Try to schedule cooking, laundering and dishwashing for the cooler hours, and remember to use your range and bathroom exhaust fans to draw heat and steam outside.

The Wonderful World Of Tomorrow

Automobile experts know that one way to save energy for the future is to have lighter cars. They also know that one way to have lighter cars is to make more parts of plastic. It has been predicted that by 1980, there will be 400 pounds of plastic in every car.

An increasing number of plastic plates will probably be seen on American tables. That's a pretty healthy idea since they can't develop the unsanitary, dirt-collecting craze-cracks that china can.

It has been predicted that by the year 2,000, the plastics industry will contribute so much to the American economy that it will account for 7.2 percent of the Gross National Product and employ 1.3 percent of the labor force.

Bleached, Unbleached Flour Facts Presented

College Station, Tex.—Flour is the common denominator of home baking, providing the base of almost every baked food.

And with the interest in "natural" foods, many consumers are wondering if unbleached flour is any better than bleached flour.

Mrs. Sally Coble offers some insight into the differences between the two.

She's a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Nutritionally, bleached and unbleached white flour are almost identical. Both are suitable for baking. Unbleached flour is ideal for breads, though it does not make as good a cake as regular bleached flour."

She explained that freshly milled flour has a creamy color because it contains carotenoids, the same pigments that make fruits and vegetables yellow. When such flour is stored for several months, it becomes whiter and the baking qualities improve.

"This natural process of aging can be accelerated by the addition of certain oxidizing agents that are permitted for use in flour. Flour treated in this way must be labeled as bleached," she explained.

Aged flour is more golden in color and more expensive than chemically bleached flour, she said.

Good Laundry Care Provides Longer Garment Use

Even when care label instructions are followed perfectly, consumers may find problems occurring with home laundry. Some of these problems are shrinking, tearing, fading, loss of fabric body, and mysterious spots appearing on the clothes.

Many troubles often relate to fabric quality and performance, rather than clothing care practices, but proper laundry procedures can lengthen the life of garments and produce cleaner clothes.

To reduce garment shrinkage, look for shrinkage control guarantees on labels when buying clothes and avoid using hot water and high-drying temperature.

Shape may be restored to some garments by blocking them while wet. But when garments have not been properly preshrunk by the manufacturer, little can be done to prevent shrinkage with the first wash. In fact, some fabrics, especially knits, have a progressive shrink which causes them to shrink with subsequent washings.

Tearing may be caused by over use of chlorine bleach, overloading machine, too low water level, garments not mended before washing, and hooks and zippers not properly closed or fastened.

Fading problems can be reduced by checking labels for colorfastness information when buying and by avoiding use of chlorine bleach and hot water on noncolorfast clothes.

Loss of fabric body is usually a fabric performance problem. Finishes which are applied to garments by manufacturers are sometimes only temporary and are removed by the first washing.

While lower water temperatures may help, nothing really can be done to eliminate this loss. Nor can the temporary finish be easily distinguished from a permanent finish. When buying garments, choose brands you have found reliable previously.

Mysterious spots appearing on the clothes may be caused by chemical reactions.

Spots which look like grease are often caused by a chemical reaction between detergents and fabric softeners. To remove this stain, treat with full strength liquid detergent or a detergent paste and wash again.

To prevent this problem, be sure garments are thoroughly rinsed before adding fabric softeners in rinse cycles and avoid over use of fabric softeners which may build up on fabrics and on tub walls and be released later by hot water.

Fabric softeners need not be used with every washing.

Mysterious yellow or brown stains may be caused by excessive iron or manganese in the water or by a chemical reaction when chlorine bleach is added to water with high iron content.

To remove the stain, treat garment with a rust remover and rewash. To prevent such stains, install an iron filter and use a water conditioner to suspend iron particles.

The proportions of small rooms with high ceilings can be improved by painting the ceiling a strong bright color or covering it with wallpaper in a colorful, busy pattern.

Ushers were Jim Bob Arrott of San Angelo, Paul Page Jr. of Eldorado, Russell Stocks of Kent, and Randy Gardner of San Angelo.

Reception was held in the garden of the bride's home in Eldorado.

The bride graduated from Eldorado High School and attended Texas Tech. She will be a junior at Southern Methodist University in Dallas this fall.

The bridegroom graduated from Van Horn High School and from Southern Methodist University. He will be coaching in the Highland Park system this fall.

Rehearsal dinner was given in Las Brisas Inn by Mrs. Joan Stocks Nobles.

Following a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, the couple will be at home in Dallas.

Kathy was presented at the alter gowned in a French Empire Wedding gown designed especially for her by the Houses of Banchi. It was of pearl white imported English net with all over schiffle embroidery of delicate dogwood branches and blossoms. The dress was accented with appliqued Venise lace dogwood blossoms, veiled over moon glow Peau-di-Soie. The bodice featured a Sabrina neckline edged in garlands of white dogwood blossoms of Venise lace. The classical empire bodice was highlighted with long slender candle stick sleeves with accents of wedding bell cuffs. Gentle fullness fell to form the Napoleons court gown skirt front, and fullness was gathered to the back of the Empire bodice to form a full wateau train that fell to a full chapel train. Garlands of Venise lace flowerlets encircled the entire hem line. Gathy wore an Empire capulet covered in schiffle embroidery, alencon lace flowerlets, and petite buds of lace. From the capulet fell her bouffant mantilla of imported English silk illusion edged in petite dogwood blossoms of Venise lace linked with schiffli embroidery. The train of her mantilla brushed to cathedral length and was deeply enriched at the train of the mantilla.

Kathy's attendants were gowned in an array of fresh colors of strawberry, crocus, and plum polish cotton Empire court gowns designed especially for them by Priscilla of Biston. The gowns featured deep portraite necklines framed in ruffles of brussels moon glow lace. The basque bodices featured a natural waist line that was encircled in double faced moon glow silk satin French ribbons, and Durndal skirts fell from the waist with gentle fullness and belled to brush the floor. Deep flowers encircled the hem line edged in brussell lace flowerlette edging.

Kathy was a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority at Texas Tech University. She was on the Dean's List each semester and will attend Southern Methodist University in the fall as a Junior.

Joe was a member of the varsity football team at Southern Methodist University and graduated December of 1975. He will be coaching at Highland Park in the fall. Kathy and Joe will live in Dallas following their honeymoon.

Fred Igo Completes Workshop In Austin

Mr. Fred Igo, Vocational Agriculture Teacher, Eldorado High School, recently completed the one-week Inservice Workshop for Teachers of Cooperative Part-time Training in Vocational Agriculture. The workshop was held in Austin and was conducted by Agricultural Education, Department of Occupational Education and Technology, Texas Education Agency.
The completion of the workshop qualifies Mr. Igo to conduct the Cooperative Part-time Training in Vocational Agriculture and he was awarded a certificate in recognition of professional preparation.
This phase of the vocational agriculture program will give students an opportunity to spend part of their school time in one-the-job training with local agricultural business and industrial firms. Students participating will enroll in regular high school courses, including one period of related agricultural instruction, during which time they will study information related to their on-the-job training. They will spend 15 hours each week on the job learning the skills and management practices involved, under the guidance of a skilled instructor selected from the firm in which the student is working.
According to Mr. J. A. Marshall, Director of Agricultural Education, Texas Education Agency, Austin, Texas, 372 schools conducted this type of training program during the 1975-76 school year. Over 400 schools will offer the program during the 1976-77 school year.
Further information concerning the program may be obtained by contacting Fred Igo, Vocational Agriculture Instructor, or Robert Jay, High School Principal.

Jim Nugent Honored In Legislature

Austin, Tex.—Rep. James E. (Jim) Nugent of Kerrville has been honored by the Texas House of Representatives for a lengthy tenure of service to the citizens of District 56 which began in the 57th Legislature and extended through the 64th Legislature.
The award was in the form of a handsome plaque, presented to Rep. Nugent this week in Austin by Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives Dorothy Hallman, and signed by Governor Dolph Briscoe and Speaker of the House Bill Clayton. It stated: "This is to certify that James E. (Jim) Nugent was duly elected State Representative from District 56 and served the State of Texas with honor and distinction in the 57th through 64th sessions of the Texas Legislature."
The veteran Kerrville legislator predicts one of the busiest sessions affecting some of the most important legislation in the past decade when the 65th Texas Legislature convenes next January 1. Rep. Nugent will spend considerable time during the interim visiting his constituents and soliciting their views and counsel on the upcoming economic and political problems throughout the 10-county 56th District.

Views Of Others Important To Making Balanced Policies

(by Congressman Bob Krueger)
Our government was designed to operate with a series of checks and balances. These balances were to come from the stability resulting from powers shared among the executive, legislative, and judicial branches. The balancing procedures provided for by the Constitution must also find some means of expression through good legislation, which needs to find an equilibrium between opposing and often contentious forces.
Washington now has countless groups that urge their special viewpoint on legislation. It is not surprising that these groups should exist, since the demands on legislators are so varied that they cannot possibly keep up with. For example, all of the 18,000 bills that have been introduced in the 94th Congress. Nonetheless, some of these groups would be more persuasive if they would try harder to understand the views of others.
When I was at the Democratic National Convention last week, a young man came up to me and asked me to support legislation to protect against the inhumane treatment of baby seals. I assured him that I favored such legislation and would indeed support it. He then proceeded through several other instances of inhumane treatment toward animals and of proposed legislative solutions, and came to the question of the killing of coyotes. At that point, I asked him whether he had ever seen, as I have, young lambs bleeding to death after a pack of coyotes has passed through, savaged them, taking blood from their throats, and leaving them to die slowly. I suggested the use of a sodium cyanide gun, which kills in three seconds, is far more humane to the coyote than the coyote is to the lamb. Then I pointed out that if coyotes were running loose in the streets of New York, removing meat from supermarkets and destroying the livelihoods of people there, that he might wish to rethink his attitude toward these predators. He was astonished, and first suggested that perhaps the government could provide special fences to fence out coyotes, demonstrating a sense of geography more attuned to Manhattan than to the vast expanses of sheep ranches in Texas. I pointed both to the difficulty of fencing such areas and the unworkability of fencing coyotes. He asked sincerely, if naively, whether the coyotes could somehow be made to practice some kind of birth control. Obviously, he did not understand the problem.
My point is not to attack environmentalists nor to choose easy targets for ridicule. The environmental movement over the past 15 years has awakened Americans to a great deal that is important in our national heritage and has encouraged us to preserve landscape and buildings that might otherwise have been lost forever. My point is, rather, that organized groups that attempt to guide legislators and inform them about their particular concerns would be more effective if they sought both to understand in advance the views of others who might disagree with them, and if they would show respect toward the people whom the legislator is in government to represent. The American nation has heard many dissident voices and has seen confrontations and "demands" from many quarters. But the significant ability of our nation to balance various demands and to blend many cultures and ideas is no less important today than in earlier times, and those who wish most effectively to influence public policy would do well to recognize that tradition and to act with a goal of balanced policy.

Market Report

College Station, Tex.—Beef supplies are more plentiful than a year ago, and prices are "trending down" in Texas grocery stores, Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt reports.
Most often featured are chuck roasts and steaks, round steaks and liver, this consumer marketing information specialist said.
She is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.
In other meat items, fryer chicken prices are about the same as last week, but some stores are offering "thrifty buys on mixed fryer parts."
"Small-size turkeys have attractive price tags, too."
"And egg supplies are adequate for the demand," Mrs. Clyatt said.
Grocery features include a variety of canned vegetables, catsup, noodles and tuna—good choices for hot-weather meals, she added.
Fresh vegetables with most economical prices are cabbage, carrots, yellow and zucchini squash, cucumbers, snap beans, beets, corn, okra, blackeye and purple hull peas and green peppers. Excellent quality eggplant is on the market now and prices are somewhat lower, she reported.
In fruit departments, peach supplies are generous and prices more reasonable than last year.
Several varieties of grapes — Thompson Seedless, Ribiers, Cardinals—are at their peak now.
Other seasonal fruits include cherries, strawberries, nectarines, plums, cantaloupe, honeydews and watermelons.
Consumer Watchword: Reconstituted powdered milk does not appeal to everyone's taste, but mixing whole milk with powdered in equal parts, and left standing overnight in the refrigerator then served cold, many people won't be able to tell the difference from whole milk.
Chris Faulk and family were here from Corpus Christi recently and he expects to be transferred to Sonora in the near future.

Natural Gas

WASHINGTON—A lot of gas is being generated in Washington, but it is not, alas, the kind that we need to heat our homes and fuel our factories this winter.

For the last several years, Congress has been wrangling over what to do about the shortage of our safest and cleanest-burning fuel, natural gas.

This shortage is crippling industry in some parts of the country, and is forcing consumers in all parts of the country to pay more for energy than they ought to have to pay.

Since 1954, the Federal Power Commission (FPC) has had the authority to set the price at which natural gas sold on the interstate market—gas produced in one state and sold in another—can be sold. The FPC authority is over the wellhead price—the price before transportation and distribution costs are added in—and does not apply to gas produced and sold within the same state.

The FPC, prodded by politicians and so-called "consumer" groups, has set the wellhead price very low, so low that producers of natural gas have not been able to justify the enormous expense of searching for and developing new deposits of natural gas.

The result has been a serious and increasingly severe shortage of natural gas in the Northeast and Midwest. Consumers in these regions pay an artificially low price for gas, but fewer and fewer are able to obtain gas at any price.

The situation is much better for consumers in the intrastate market, which is unregulated. They are usually able to obtain the supplies of gas they want, but they pay a higher price for it than they would have to pay if natural gas producers did not have to compensate for break-even or loss operations in the interstate market.

The obvious economic solution to the problem is to remove price controls from natural gas. This could, in the space of a few years, end the shortage and lower the overall energy bill to consumers.

There are gas deposits within the continental limits of the United States large enough to fill our natural gas needs for many years to come. But these deposits are deep underground, and it would cost more to develop them than gas producers could expect to receive under current controlled prices. So the deposits remain untapped.

And because the gas deposits remain untapped, more and more industrial and residential consumers face an expensive conversion of their heating systems to fuel oil and coal, both of which cost more, pollute more, and are less safe than natural gas.

Deregulation would increase the price of natural gas somewhat, but not by a very large amount because the wellhead price is only about one-fourth of the price to the consumer of natural gas. Transportation and distribution costs account for the great bulk of the price the consumer pays. Even so, the deregulated price would still be substantially below the price of alternative fuels.

What is obvious economically is not always obvious politically, and the odds are against decontrol when the Senate takes up a "compromise" natural gas bill next month.

Preferences

People who are sailboat buffs look down their noses at powerboats. Conversely, those who prefer powerboats think there is too little action in the sport of sailing. It's a matter of personal preference.

Fortunately, there is enough water in the world to permit both kinds of boating. Also, there is enough of everything on this earth to enable us to live in dignity while doing personally what we like best — IF we use our resources properly . . . and remember to consider our fellowman.

Personal preferences . . . consideration. These two things apply to boating, to be sure. They also apply to choice of a mate, where to live, kind of occupation, and where and how to worship. You have freedom of choice. Don't forget to use it.
