Please The 'Brunch-Bunch' With Hearty Corned Beef

Flying footballs and wind-tumbled leaves signal autumn's arrival, an ideal time for a leisurely weekend brunch. It's a relaxed way to enjoy a family gathering or serve friends in easy fashion. Economical canned corned beef is a super-convenient meat for a hearty brunch entree, baked in its serving dish. The mingling flavors of zesty corned beef, cheese and rye with the zip of caraway and onion seasoning are certain to please most any bunch for brunch. Eggs and an extra sprinkling of cheese, both baked on top, add a bright good morning, good eating touch. Round out the menu with chilled fruit juices, crusty warm rolls and coffee or tea

Three centuries ago, ladies of Williamsburg, Virginia, entertained graciously, ele-gantly, imaginatively. The most important, and most elegant, meal of the day was dinner, served at two or three o'clock in the afternoon.

ALL DESTRICTION OF CHICK

In true colonial Williamsburg tradition, dinner was a splendid affair. It included several large cuts of meat, fowl and fish, plus game birds, seafood dishes and meat casseroles, boiled puddings, vegetables and a variety of desserts.

Chicken 'n' Ham Bake was one of the popular items on the dinner menu. It combines two of Virginians' favorite meats in one dish. In this Williamsburg-inspired recipe, the cubed chicken and ham are mixed with a sage-flavored cream sauce, then topped with bread cubes and baked. Versatile stick Blue Bonnet Margarine is used not only to flavor and moisten the bread cubes, butit also gives a rich buttery flavor to the cream sauce

This colonial recipe is ideal for a family dinner. Or, it can 1/2 teaspoon rubbed be served as one of several meat dishes when entertaining a larger crowd, as was done in the 18th Century. CHICKEN 'N'

The statewide oil allowable for February will be held to 98% of ring from here to Port Neches by potential production.

Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace noted the U.S. last year paid $35 billion for imported foreign oil-equal to $400 for each of 88 million American workers. Crude imports in 1976 were more than 5.8 million barrels daily (based on the four-week average of January 7). That is an increase of more than 1.1 million over 1975. Commissioner Jim Langdon said Fexas had 49 fields with an allowable of 10,000 harrels a day or more in 1971, with 88% of them producing their allowables. Last year, he said, the number of fields capable of that much production dropped to 28. Wallace blamed need for imports on miproper management of natural resources in Washington.

Both Virginia and Georgia claim the origination of Brunswick Stew-Virginians saying it was named after Caroline of Brunswick, wife of King George IV; Georgians claiming it was named after the town Brunswick, Ga. In any case, this hearty, robust stew is a combination of chicken and other meats and vegetables, highly seasoned with red pepper. Brunswick Stew is just one of the many American dishes preserved since colonial times.

From New England to the Southwest, from the North to the Deep South, our American heritage is evident in our cooking. Shaped by history, climate, terrain and availability of ingredients, American cooking is still quite regional. And every American family projects its heritage in its cooking.

Here's our version of colonial Brunswick Stew. Chicken, onion, corn tomatoes and lima beans combine with a savory broth for this hearty, economical supper dish. Versatile Blue Bonnet Margarine gives this old-fashioned stew that good buttery flavor.

A special fiber crafts display of gallery and museum quality arts from the Houston area will be presented by Jana Vanderlee. The display contains prize-winning massive wall hangings, basketry and clothing design. Mr. Vanderlee, a fiber crafts instructor from San Jacinto College in Houston, also writes for several crafts oriented magazines.

Approximately 30 sales booths will offer excellent handmade fiber crafts for sale. Booth exhibitors re chosen by invitation only from those previously juried by the Foundation. Consistent, high quality materials and fine workmanship will be featured in items offered for sale.

A special brochure giving sche-dule, hours and other important inforfation may be obtained by writing the Texas Arts and Crafts Foundation, P. O. Box 1527, Kerr ville, Texas 78028.
