Consumer Food News

College Station, Tex.— Peaches and lake fish promise lower prices, eggs and turkeys are reasonable, and beef offers several specials, according to one report.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, summarizes this week's food buys as follows:

Fresh Fruits— Peaches prices coming down, while other good choices are pineapples, winter pears, bananas, grapefruit, oranges and lemons. Prices are more attractive on cantaloupes, watermelon and honey dew melons. High prices expected to lower later on seedless grapes, apricots, plums, cherries and nectarines.

Fresh Vegetables— Quality and economy appear on snap beans, corn, cucumbers, broccoli, and sweet peppers—along with cabbage, carrots, summer squash, okra and eggplant.

Green Onions at moderate prices, can replace more expensive Cooking onions in menus.
Poultry— Egg prices are exceptionally low, turkeys have reasonable prices, and fryer chickens are one of the best protein buys available.

Beef— Check food ads this week for specials on cube and sirloin steaks, chuck cuts, corned beef, ground beef and liver.

Pork— Canned hams have moderate prices, slab bacon has economy prices—and frankfurters are meat bargains, although prices are a bit higher than last week. Pork liver has low prices.

Fish— More lake fish are available since the northern Canadian lakes are open for fishing. Be on the lookout for lower prices.

Dairy— June is Dairy Month. Look for features on sour cream, cheddar cheese and lowfat milk.

Grocery Market Aisles— Canned vegetables and fruit juices lead the grocery value parade, with strawberry preserves, fruit cocktail and vegetable oil following.

Consumer Watchwords: Hold food budgets down with an eagle eye watch for low prices—and the large supplies that usually mean low prices.

Tennis Club Holds Second Tournament

The Eldorado Tennis Club held its second tournament Saturday, June 18, with competition held in four divisions and trophies awarded in each event for the first two places.

Nursing Home Notes

It is threatening rain this Monday morning and I believe the farmers and ranchmen would all be glad to receive about one inch or so of moisture now.

Likely the clay sub-soil is still pretty moist, but the topsoil, and down for several inches, is dry.

Members from the West Side Church of Christ here in Eldorado conducted the service in the Dining Room Sunday. There were 12 people from out in town who came for the service and to visit in the Home. We were so glad to have them.

We all enjoy visitors, and we wish that more friends of the Residents in the Home would visit here, more often.

There were a few who came to visit this last week, as follows: Mae Mercer's daughter Lois Tyler from San Antonio and her granddaughter Nora E. Poe of San Angelo, visited her last week.

Charles W. Sudduth and son Larry from Carrollton, Texas, visited their grandmother Lizzie McCravage and also Vernal Sudduth their uncle.

Hixie Potter's guest was Virginia Striegler from Edinburg, Texas. Mrs. E. L. Mayton and Mr. and Mrs. I. Love from Luling, Texas, also visited Vernal Sudduth.

Beulah Harris's grandson, Alva Lee Harris from Van Horn, and his six children, Robert, Scott, Kirby, Melanie, Lee, and Jane Ann visited her last week. Elva Daniels' son from Oregon came by to visit her. He was on his way to Atlanta, Ga., on business for the company he is employed by.

Frank Reed seems to be having a little backset the last few days, but we hope he will be much better soon.

Ebbie Donaldson is still in the Hospital and isn't doing as well as we wish he could, but we hope he will begin improving soon.

Of all the things you wear, your expression is the most important. —LaVita Brooks, Beulah Harris, reporters.

Decorating Baby's Room? Beware Of Old Paint

By Mary Hilton
Diaper Service Consumer Information Council

Gingham ruffles at the window... an antique rocking chair... and there you have it, the beginnings of a cozy room for your baby. If you are fortunate enough to find such a treasure, add an Early American "dry sink" or "wash stand" as an infant changing table with cotton diaper storage below. Antiques are sturdy, and have a charm all their own.

Remember to strip the old paint from antiques in the baby's room—from anything in the house, for that matter. Beautiful as that faded old red rocking horse is, it may be dangerous.

Paint used not too long ago contained lead, which is a deadly poison if eaten. Hundreds of children have become ill from tiny bits of lead-based paint chewed from a bed nail or an old painted toy. Children will chew on the most unlikely objects! The dyes used to color old wallpaper were often poisonous. Green wallpaper, for example, often contained arsenate of copper.

Festival participants from over the state gather at The Institute of Texan Cultures on HemisFair Plaza to demonstrate crafts, food, costumes, music, and dances of the state's settlers. The festival is an outgrowth of a continuing educational program at the university of Texas at San Antonio's Institute which is aimed at discovering and preserving the traditions and customs of our forefathers. Ethnic groups at the Festival demonstrate and teach ancient crafts such as Japanese brush letter writing, German sausage stuffing, Korean kite making, Venetian noode making and Russian egg painting.

The pioneer area emphasizes the crafts and skills developed by Texans confronted with the harsh realities of frontier life. Visitors can learn such skills as making adobe bricks, horsehair ropes, sunbonnets, candles, lye soap, pottery, saddles, thatching roofs, and repairing plows. The more energetic can lend a hand at the barn raising, enter the spike driving contest, or challenge champion arm wrestlers.

When you get hungry you have a multinational choice of foods. There are Chinese egg rolls, Lebanese cabbage rolls, fresh baked bread, yam pie, corn oil cookies, barbecue, tacos, blintzes, sausage, and the newly proclaimed state dish, chili.

When you wear yourself out from working and eating, you can sit back and enjoy the continuous entertainment on one of seven stages. Lebanese belly dancers share the stage with bluegrass

BOBBIE KILLEBREW

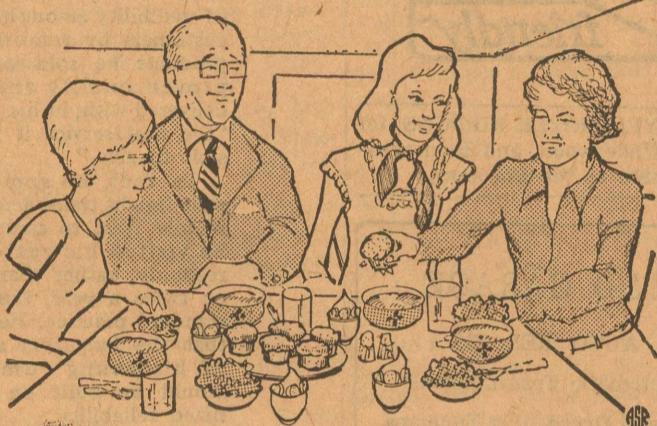

16 Or 60, This Is A Super Supper

No matter what age group you're serving, vegetarian meals can be a welcome taste change. Grandparents and teenagers alike will enjoy this quick and easy dinner that you can prepare in no time.

Lima Cheese Bake is the colorful entree. Add a green salad, bran muffins and vanilla pudding for dessert. The menu is both easy to eat and high in calcium — an important plus for teens and senior citizens. The whole meal is balanced nutritionally and also supplies 1/3 of the Recommended Daily Allowance of protein.

Dry butter beans in a mustard-cheese sauce are the starters for individual casseroles. A special bonus comes from making the sauce with Carnation Instant nonfat dry milk. This helps keep the calories down while still supplying substantial protein. Onions and tomato slices are added, and the entire casserole is baked until bubbly.

From start to serving, this meal can be prepared in 40 minutes or less. Begin by preheating the oven and then fixing the Lima Cheese Bake as directed and place in the oven. Make the instant pudding and decorate each serving with fresh sliced bananas. Then set the table. Pop the muffins into the oven to warm them through and make a crisp green salad. You're ready.

All generations will love this food combination. Meatless meals will continue to be a regular part of your menu planning when they are as simple to fix as this one.

- Lima Cheese Bake
(Makes 4 individual casseroles)
- 2 tablespoons butter
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/8 teaspoon white pepper
 - 1 1/4 cups liquid Carnation instant nonfat milk
 - 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded process-American cheese
 - 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
 - 3 cups (2 15-ounce cans) drained cooked dry butter beans

- 1/2 cup very thinly sliced onion
- 8 (1/4-1/2 inch thick) slices tomato

Paprika
Melt butter in medium saucepan. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Gradually stir in liquid instant milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture just comes to boil and thickens. Remove from heat; stir in cheese and mustard. Place 3/4 cup beans in each of 4 individual buttered casseroles. Pour half of sauce over beans. Top with onion slices and tomato slices. Pour remaining sauce over top. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 10-15 minutes or until bubbly.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

FOUR BASICS FOR BUSINESS SUCCESS

By Karl D. Bays
Is it possible that some of the ingenious ideas successfully used by large corporations can also be used by individuals? In excerpts from a recent speech, one of America's most successful businessmen tells how a large hospital supply corporation uses four basic principles to achieve business success.

KARL D. BAYS—From salesman to board chairman of a large corporation, he has applied four basics for business success.

In 1922 there really was no hospital supply industry. Sales people covered huge territories, representing narrow and specialized product lines, visiting their customers sporadically.

Then a 25-year-old hospital supply salesman named Foster G. McGaw founded American Hospital Supply Corporation with the aim of creating a central and truly reliable source of wide-ranging health care products and services. He revolutionized marketing in the hospital supply business.

McGaw applied to the hospital supply field the first of four basic principles for business success I'd like to outline here.

Unhesitating Reliability

That principle is unhesitating reliability. He developed an unheard-of credibility among hospital customers by assuring that products he sold were of proven quality and were delivered with, in his words, "the best service it is possible to give."

In fact, he sometimes rode freight trains across the Middle West to assure that he visited his customers regularly, rather than once or twice a year, the more standard practice. He knew that the long-term success of his young company would be built on recognized reliability.

Does this simple principle apply in this technological age? It certainly does.

We're seeing, and will continue to see, an unwillingness among our customers to settle for products and services that don't deliver real value.

learn new ways to fill them. In the early 1950s, for example, hospitals began to see that sterilizing and reusing hospital supplies created many problems. The danger of cross-infection among patients was high, and so were operating costs. American responded by pioneering development of many single-use supplies.

Hospital supplies like syringes and surgeon's gloves, made economically enough to be thrown away after single use, reduce dramatically the dangers of infection and help increase efficiency.

We have made an ongoing practice of asking sales and marketing people to continue, and increase, their learning about the needs of our customers. We've established clear channels from our sales force to our research and development people.

Be A Consumer Advocate

Finally, there's a fourth simple and related principle. Be a consumer advocate.

From a very early age, customers develop an attitude toward business. In the long run, that attitude is shaped not just by advertising and certainly not by rash promises. No commercial will change the attitude of a child who opens a thousand-piece jigsaw puzzle and eventually discovers that the company only packed 999 pieces.

We've looked at four principles that are startling only in their simplicity—and in their continuing great importance. Be unhesitatingly reliable. Sell service. Never stop learning. And be a consumer advocate.

I feel they're the true standards against which people are judging not just health care, but just sales and marketing, but business and our economic system as well.

Karl D. Bays is chairman of the board of American Hospital Supply Corporation, a leading manufacturer and distributor of health care products.

Rouget de Lisle, the composer of "The Marseillaise" was a royalist and narrowly escaped the Guillotine.

I have some information for you on weatherstripping. Hope you find it useful.

Select weatherstripping according to its exact use for saving money. Materials for weatherstripping are available as a roll or in kits complete with fasteners.

Four basic types of weatherstripping currently on the market are pliable gaskets, rigid strip gaskets, spring metal strips, and threshold weatherstripping for doors. Some are concealed, and others, mounted on window and door surfaces, are visible.

Pliable gaskets such as adhesive-backed foam, felt, and vinyl are available in rolls—and attach with brads, staples, or by their own adhesion. These flexible gaskets are highly visible. If painted, the gaskets may harden and become ineffective.

Pliable gaskets are more effective on doors than on windows—and although they are inexpensive, they lack durability.

Most rigid strip gaskets are rolled vinyl with an aluminum strip backing or a non-absorbent sponge attached to wood. Both types are durable, easy to install and are visible. It is okay to paint the wood or metal—but not the gasket.

Spring metal strips of bronze, aluminum, or copper are easily attached to doors or window frames with brads. This type of metal weatherstripping provides good draft control and is extremely durable—although it may make doors difficult to open and close.

Threshold weatherstripping eliminates drafts at the bottom of the outside doors. Three types are available and come in ready-to-install kits. The most inexpensive and easy to install are metal and have felt strips which drag a flexible edge against the existing threshold.

Another type is the complete metal threshold. Use it to replace a worn threshold. Some have a raised vinyl inset which forms a seal when the door is closed.

The most expensive threshold weatherstripping is the automatic door bottom. This mechanism allows a metal strip to spring upward and clear carpeting. These units are more difficult to install.

In general, remember that unless doors and windows fit properly, weatherstripping will not effectively stop air leakage.

Highlights and Sidelights From The STATE CAPITOL

by Lyndell Williams
Texas Press Association

Austin, Tex.—Gov. Dolph Briscoe cleared his desk of legislation passed during the regular session and announced he will call lawmakers back to work July 11.

Briscoe settled on the early July date for a special session on the complex issue of public school finance which evaded all earlier efforts at solution.

I think it should be possible to accomplish the work of the session in a week to 10 days, Briscoe pointed out. There is enough agreement that we should be able to work out a good school finance bill in a relatively short period of time . . . I am giving everybody an opportunity to plan around the (July 11) date.

House Speaker Bill Clayton and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby have indicated they favor the legislature's early passage of something similar to the conference committee report which died on final night of the regular session. The bill provided about $900 million in additional school aid.

Briscoe saved some of the most important bills until last. Among the last measures approved were consolidation of three major state water agencies, the Sunset Bill providing for phase-out of outmoded state agencies and the new medical malpractice act.

Crime Unpredictable

Total index crime doubled during the last four years, and may do so again 1977-1980.

City areas with 78% of the population reported 78% of the crime, but the violent crime rate is higher in rural areas.

The C.J.D. study also revealed these findings:
—Last year, a quarter billion dollars worth of property was reported stolen in the state.
—The typical murder victim was 20-35 years old and a white male. The typical person arrested in murder cases was the same age and also white male.
—Average take in robberies was $440. About 41% of Texas robberies are solved.

Nearly 20% of the 187,182 burglaries were committed without need for force, and more than half were committed in daylight—the vast bulk in private residences.

Attorney General's Opinions

Atty. Gen. John Hill handed down opinions concluding:
—A telephone company is authorized to lay buried telephone lines within the right-of-way of a county road without the approval of the commissioners court. However, the company must place its lines in such manner as not to inconvenience the public in use of public roads.
—Political subdivisions which are self insurers under the Workmens Compensation laws are liable for the gross premium tax on insurers, but may deposit its funds in a savings and loan association.

Short Snorts . . .

A $200,000 community center and museum honoring the late former Gov. Coke R. Stevenson at Junction is being planned through a private solicitation of funds.

Texas oil and gas wells produced 663,043,946 mcf of gas in March 1977, down .19% from field runs a year earlier.

A Texas Aeronautics Commission hearing examiner has recommended that Chaparral Airlines, Inc. of Abilene be permitted to offer scheduled air passenger service between Abilene Municipal Airport and Dallas Love Field.

Safety For Machine Operators

All machine operators should consider special attention to safety factors, points out a safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Particular emphasis should be given to keeping children away from machines, keeping your mind on the business at hand, keeping hands away from working parts while the machine is running, placing all protective guards in place, and especially showing respect for all machines.

Hot, Dry Conditions

For Texas farmers and ranchers, the next few weeks will hold nothing new as far as the weather is concerned if the National Weather Service officials are right in their forecasts.

Nearly all of Texas is expected to have below normal precipitation for the period of mid-June thru mid-July, according to the National Weather Service. On the temperature side, the mercury should climb to above normal levels for the northern half of the state while southern and western sections should experience near normal temperatures.

The hot, dry weather that has prevailed for several weeks and that is in the forecast for the next 30 days will have a marked effect on the state's agriculture, notes the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Crops in eastern sections, particularly have been suffering from lack of moisture although recent rains have provided some relief. Another month of dry weather could cause serious losses in areas where moisture is already short. Additional hay cuttings will also be at a minimum should the dry conditions persist, and forage for livestock grazing will be limited. Some increase in livestock market is already under way due to poor grazing conditions.

Even in areas where moisture is still generally adequate, surface moisture is depleted rapidly during periods of hot, dry weather, so all of the state's dryland agriculture could be suffering by mid-July if the weather forecasts hold up.

On the positive side, the hot, dry weather should allow field operations to move forward and should help producers keep up with spray programs to control crop insects and diseases.

Looking down the road, the National Weather Service sees some reprieve from the hot, dry conditions in late July and August.

With a general idea of the type of weather in store, Texas farmers and ranchers must pay particular attention to all management aspects so as to meet their production objectives.

Cattle Prices Gain But Producers' Share Less

A slow, steady increase in retail beef prices may soon be giving cattle producers a slightly bigger piece of the beef profit pie, notes the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Cattlemen have been suffering from an extended period of low prices, but retail beef prices have increased about 5% in recent weeks. The national average composite retail price for beef was $1.41 per pound the third week of May.

Choice fed steers in that same week averaged $40.86 per hundredweight, up 11% over the March average price.

Consumers have been paying more for their beef mainly due to both the higher cattle prices and an increase in the cost of marketing. This latter cost, of course, does not benefit cattle producers.

The marketing part of the beef industry has accounted for a larger and larger portion of the consumer dollar spent on beef. More money was paid into higher labor rates, transportation costs and packaging. This left the producer with a smaller piece of beef profit pie.

While the farm-to-retail price spread dropped substantially in April and early May, it has jumped back up again during recent weeks. The only hope for cattlemen, therefore, is higher retail prices to the consumer.

DAVIS-BACON ACT

WASHINGTON—Consumers in Texas and elsewhere are skeptical about government's ability to hold the line on steadily rising prices, and there is just cause. Solutions to the inflationary cycles we've experienced have even Washington's most renowned economists baffled.

But some of the principal contributors to inflation plainly could be eliminated if Congress and the Administration did not shrink from the hard decisions necessary to bring prices under control.

The 1931 Davis-Bacon Act, which established government's prerogative to set construction industry wages on federally involved projects, represents a case in point. Its enormous inflationary impact on construction has been an unfortunate fact of life since then.

Justification for the Act seemed overwhelming in the depression-beleaguered economy of 1931. Davis-Bacon outlawed the payment of substandard wages, a common practice among unscrupulous contractors scrambling to compete for the few contracts available. As enacted, the law permitted the government to establish "prevailing" construction wages for a particular area.

In theory, the law served a humanitarian purpose. In practice, it has been a complete contradiction of congressional intent.

The economy of 1977 is a far cry from the one confronting us during the Great Depression years. It's more volatile now for one thing and prone to fluctuations at the drop of a hat. Inflation is the barometer of our economic health today. Yet while recognizing this fact, Congress has stubbornly refused to repeal the Davis-Bacon Act which sends inflation rippling throughout the construction industry. And as any casual observer of economic trends knows, inflation in one segment of the economy inevitably spreads to others, spelling higher prices for all of us and lost purchasing power.

Operating in different economic circumstances, through the Federal government's maladministration, and because of the basic inequities of the law passed in 1931, Davis-Bacon maintains artificially high construction wages on federally involved projects.

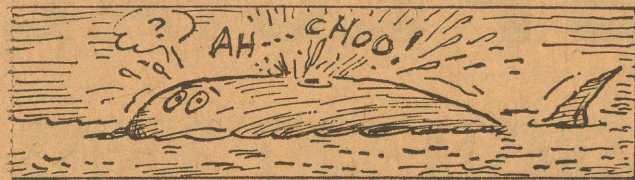

If this seems like empty rhetoric, consider these wage inconsistencies: on Federal projects—all under Davis-Bacon provisions—the average construction workers commands $7.84, while his counterpart in private construction averages $5.14. In Houston, the 1976 hourly rate for carpenters on Federal projects was $10.70. The overall manufacturing wage rate amounted to $5.76.

Congress' watchdog agency, the General Accounting Office, has documented more incriminating evidence. GAO has calculated that Davis-Bacon alone contributes 5-15 per cent to the excess cost of construction, taking a $1-3 billion bite annually out of taxpayer pockets.

Since it is estimated that nearly one-third of all construction is subject to Davis-Bacon provisions, the inflationary consequences to the economy as a whole are painfully clear.

Unfortunately, Davis-Bacon now works to the disadvantage of the very workers it was enacted to help. The law, for example, does not recognize special categories of workers such as trainee or apprentice. It thus discriminates against those comprising the largest ranks of the unemployed—the young and unskilled—while protecting the higher paid worker whose wages are propped-up by a form of government subsidy.

Outright repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act clearly would be in the best interest of the American economy. Short of that, passage of amendments to the law which I have introduced to correct some of the more detrimental effects to the economy would be a firm indication that Washington is serious about its war on inflation.

Appliance Makers Paying More Attention To Handicapped

There was a time when, to most Americans, the word "handicapped" conjured up a picture of the unfortunate amputee selling pencils on a downtown streetcorner, or a blind person tapping his way with white cane across a busy intersection.

But the word "handicapped" today is much more all-encompassing.

After three major wars in less than 40 years, most Americans are familiar with the permanent physical impairments that guns, tanks and bombs can inflict. But there also is greater awareness of the handicaps imposed by birth defects, and by such crippling diseases as polio and multiple sclerosis.

And with medical science keeping people alive longer, there are legions of senior citizens afflicted with crippling arthritis and other infirmities of age.

Add to these the more than two million blind and visually handicapped persons and it is apparent that a large segment of our population today cannot easily - if at all - make use of many of the household products that most of us take for granted.

For example, food has to be prepared and clothes have to be washed in practically every household, and neither job is an easy one for the blind or even for those persons whose sight is merely impaired.

Some appliance firms, however, are recognizing the needs of the visually handicapped. General Electric, for example, provides Braille style knobs free of charge for any of its GE or Hotpoint brand ranges, as well as Braille control panels for its home laundry equipment.

Special controls for those whose sight is failing may be ordered free of charge by sending the model and serial number of the appliance to Jira Buxton for ranges, or Douglas Bailey for laundry equipment, at General Electric, Appliance Park, Louisville, Ky. 40225.

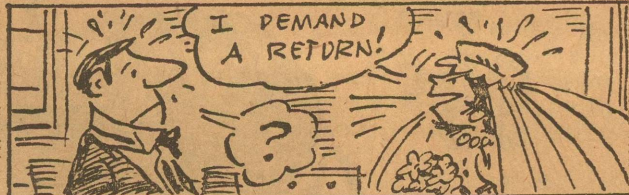

For the physically handicapped, who may find it difficult to reach the controls at the back of many ranges, small portable appliances often prove more convenient. However, GE also offers high/low ranges with controls up-front and eye-level, as well as wall oven and surface units with more accessible controls.

Countertop microwave ovens offer a good alternative because they can be located almost anywhere, and have up-front controls.

Appliance use-and-care manuals on all products now made by GE and Hotpoint are available on tape cassettes for the visually handicapped. They are obtainable from the Center for Consumer Products Recordings, Associated Blind of Kentucky, P. O. Box 306, Louisville, Ky. 40201. Requests should indicate product, brand, model number and year purchased, if known. There is a nominal charge of $1.25 to cover cost of the cassette and packaging for the mails.

Increasingly, the handicapped are finding they are no longer isolated from the benefits of our technological society. American know-how is working for those who need it most.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

He's always there on that busy corner—like thousands of other paper boys across the land.

And he doesn't get discouraged though you ignore him day after day. Give him so much as a glance and you'll hear his hopeful, "PAPER . . . MISTER?"

What makes him so ready and eager to serve? It's the certainty that he has something everybody needs.

On many corners there are churches. And they never cease urging you to come . . . always ready . . . eager to serve!

Here again is the certainty of something EVERYBODY needs!

What they have has come to be called the Gospel . . . an ancient word that means "Good News." A few Sundays in church and you'll understand why!
