'Open' Race For Congress Is In Offing

For a lengthy 32-year period, from 1942 to 1974, O. C. Fisher served as Congressman of the 21st District here in Southwest Texas. That year he announced his retirement to his ranch near Junction. Thus 1974 saw the first "open race" for Congress in memory and several aspiring candidates threw their hats in the ring, including the present Congressman Bob Krueger of New Braunfels. He went through two very bruising Democratic Primaries and the General Election to emerge victorious.

After being installed in office early in 1975, Krueger became a popular political figure, especially after he worked on his gas deregulation bill and tried to get it through. Nobody challenged him in 1976 in the Democratic primary as he sought re-election.

Now, it's less than half a year until start of the 1978 political year and Krueger has announced he will run for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator from Texas and try to unseat Republican Sen. John Tower in November of 1978.

We thought that when Krueger won his Congress post in 1974, he was fixed for the next 30 years or so. But with his recent announcement to seek a higher office, it means that '78 will once again see the 21st Congress post up for grabs.

Already Nelson Wolff of San Antonio, who ran three years ago for Congress, has announced he will try again next year for the job running as a Democrat. More news from his office is given inside this Success issue.

Bobby Locke of San Antonio is apparently going to try as a Republican. A letter from him is on page 6 of this Success issue.

So apparently there are some "straws in the wind" starting to blow in regard to the political year in the offing, and there probably will be other candidates come out for the $55,000 a year job of Congressman in the months ahead.

Wolff and Locke are getting an early start.

Post Script

While I was listening, in the Nursing Home, to the late CBS news at 10:00 o'clock Sunday night, there came the news that 75% of the wheat crop was ruined in northwestern Minnesota on account of a siege of ants.

It wasn't until they mentioned Pennington county that I realized that they were talking about my home county!

St. Eliaire is a village in the county eight miles south of Thief River Falls, the county seat. I grew up in St. Eliaire and learned to set type by hand in my brother's print shop, in 1918 and 1920 I was working as a printer for the Thief River Falls Times.

I have two nephews who are farmers in the county near St. Eliaire, Bob and Raymond Gunstad.

I intend to send them marked copies of this paper and I hope they write to me—about the crops, of course.

Eight Return From State FFA Convention

Eight Eldorado FFA members attended the 49th Annual State Convention of the Texas Association of Future Farmers of America in Fort Worth last week. Members attending were Mark Thornton, Jerry Jackson, Mike Redwine, Benny Logan, Billy Bob Harlin, Mike Lux, Leonard Lloyd and Carl Igo. Fred Igo, local vocational agriculture teacher, accompanied the members on the trip.

Several parents of FFA members were in attendance at the convention also. Those attending from Eldorado were Mrs. Delmar Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Redwine and also relatives of Jerry Jackson who live in the Dallas-Fort Worth area were visitors at the convention.

The local talent team composed of Mark Thornton, Mike Redwin, Benny Logan and Jerry Jackson performed in the state talent competition at the convention Wednesday night. They did a most excellent job playing in the Tarrant County Convention Center. A guitar picking singer from East Texas was State Talent winner.

The voting delegates from the chapters throughout the state attended six convention sessions and elected a state FFA Sweetheart, a slate of state officers, delegates to the National FFA convention to be held in Kansas City in October, and a candidate for National FFA President. The Eldorado chapter was awarded a superior rating based on the accomplishments of the chapter.

Local members saw some points of interest in Fort Worth. They dined at the Old Spaghetti Warehouse which is located in the former office building of Swift Packing Company. Most of the buildings occupied by Swift Packing Co. and Armour Packing Co. are in some state of being demolished. The local members were somewhat awed at the size of the stockyards pens for livestock, although many of the facilities have been torn down.

The New Mini Store Will Be Open Sometime Later This Week

Little Likelihood Of Power Failures In Area

Abilene, Tex.—West Texas Utilities Co. customers are using record amounts of electricity this summer, but generation engineers say the system is capable of supplying any demands.

Three new record peaks have been set and daily consumption is running above average. But in response to questions prompted by the recent New York blackout, WTU officials said that even though usage likely will continue increasing if the weather stays hot, the projected peak will be within the system's generation and transmission capacity.

Carl Yancy, WTU systems operation manager, said it is "highly unlikely" that a blackout similar to the one in New York could occur here.

"Of course no one can be absolutely certain, but there is no doubt in my mind that our system is reliable," Yancy said.

He explained that WTU's eight major power stations are strategically located near the load centers and that the transmission net work is designed to eliminate too much dependence on one plant.

Total generating capacity is 1,055,500 kilowatts, Yancy said, and the all-time consumption peak so far was 747,000 kilowatts, which was recorded at 5:00 p.m. on Monday, July 11. Last year's record peak was 725,000 kilowatts on Aug. 11.

WTU officials have forecast a summer peak of 785,000 kilowatts, which is 270,000 kilowatts below the company's generating capacity. This reserve of about 26% is considered good by national standards.

And the reserve would more than make up for the loss of the company's largest generating facility, which is the new 200,000 kilowatt unit, at the Fort Phantom Power Plant near Abilene.

The system also could receive back-up power from neighboring companies, Yancy pointed out.

Heavy consumption is occurring this summer in spite of customer efforts at conservation, company officials said. They attribute the increase to the hot weather and to the fact that WTU is serving about 3,000 more residential customers now than at the same time last year.

Though the system is geared up for any emergency, company spokesmen acknowledge there is no sure guarantee against an electrical outage, particularly those caused by acts of nature.

Yancy said the last system-wide blackout occurred in April, 1961, when a phone wire broke and fell into the Paint Creek substation. The outage spread throughout the system, although all service was restored completely within 40 minutes.

Since then, automatic oil circuit breakers have been installed to prevent a recurrence.

Regionalism And Economic Development

from the office of Lloyd Bentsen United States Senator

The ability of the people of the United States to work together and solve problems has always been one of our greatest assets. The economies and the destinies of the various regions of this country are irrevocably intertwined.

America today does not need and cannot afford the sort of antagonistic regionalism in which one area attempts to solve its problems at the expense of another. When regionalism is vigorously pursued, it has the potential to destroy our national unity.

Recently I have felt compelled to speak out against regionalism that has appeared in Congress in a new political form. A coalition of Congressmen from the Northeast and Midwest have banded together in an effort to garner more federal funds, at the expense of the South and Southwest.

These Congressmen have one objective: to get more federal funds for their areas.

This is an aggressive, grasping form of regionalism that is dangerous. Not only does it destroy the unity which is our greatest asset, but it inhibits our ability to deal with national problems on a national basis. It is founded on phony logic and statistics, and it proceeds from the premise that federal funds, federal programs, and federal allocations are the key to resolving the very real and difficult problems afflicting the various areas of this country.

These problems have a historical base.

As many of the industries that for over a century provided the foundation of the Northeast's industrial prosperity have become outdated and inefficient, there has been a definite movement of population away from the Snowbelt and into the Sunbelt—the South and Southwestern United States.

But the Sunbelt is not to blame for the current problems of the Northeast any more than the Northeast is to blame for the historical low per capita incomes that have existed for so long in the South and Southwest.

The Northeast and other regions face an obvious requirement to update their industrial capacity, to establish new and more efficient industries. And the rest of the country should help, and is prepared to help.

We in the Sunbelt recognize that our future, and our prosperity are irrevocably linked to that of the Northeast and the Midwest. But we are not prepared to accept the argument that their problems—the crumbling cities, the outdated industries, the high levels of unemployment—are attributable to the relative prosperity of our region.

A recent article in Fortune pointed out that Texas has the BEST environment for business in the country, with New York having the worst. But surely New York doesn't seek to place the blame for its problems on Texas or other Sunbelt states.

The point I want to make is that the Northeast is mistaken in attempting to export the blame for its troubles, while at the same time relying increasingly on the federal purse to seek redress.

The recent pattern of robbing the Sunbelt that we have seen written into formulas for distributing federal funds in both the $4 billion Public Works Employment Act and the Community Development Act is going to have to change. In resisting and responding to the Northeast offensive, we who represent the Sunbelt must drive home the point that it is not the federal purse, but private investment, individual initiative, and a system of incentives that will enable each of the different regions to meet the challenges facing our country today.

In the meantime, instead of arguing with us about the allocation of funds, the coalition of Congressmen from the Northeast and Midwest should take a page from the Texas book and try to improve their climate of investment. We are only as rich as our poorest region.

MENARD HOSPITAL LOSES OVER $6,500 DURING MAY

The Menard Hospital operated with a patient load of 31.51% during the month of May. This low occupancy rate resulted in a $6,541 loss for that month.

Hospital Administrator Bill Beach made the report to the Menard County Hospital Board at the monthly meeting Monday evening.

Beach also reported that the hospital is unable to pay current bills amounting to $11,974 because of the low patient load in the hospital. The Board agreed to give the hospital $8,000 to be applied on the bills of indigent patients. —Menard News.

Melt chocolate over hot water; cool. Sift flour again with sugar, baking powder, salt and soda into a large mixing bowl; stir in wheat germ. Add remaining butter, milk and almond extract. Blend until moistened, then beat at medium speed for 2 minutes. Add eggs and cooled chocolate; beat 2 minutes longer; stir in the 1/3 cup chopped almonds. Turn into prepared pans.

Bake in a 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes, just until layers test done. Let stand in pans 10 minutes, then cool thoroughly. In deep bowl, crush coffee granules. Add cream and 3 tablespoons sugar; beat stiff. Place 1 cake layer, almond side up, on serving plate; spread with 2/3 of the cream. Top with second layer, almond side down. Top with remaining whipped cream and additional almond slices.

What About An Audit?

Dallas, Tex.—What goes on during an audit of a Federal income tax return? What am I expected to do? Can I appeal an audit?

Taxpayers in the North Texas area who have asked themselves these questions can find the answers in Why Me, Tom Krolik?, an Internal Revenue Service film which follows fictional taxpayer Tom Krolik through a simulated IRS audit and subsequent appeal of the auditor's findings.

Veteran actor James Whitmore narrates the film. Whitmore was nominated for an Academy Award for his portrayal of President Harry S. Truman in Give 'Em Hell, Harry! and subsequently has been portraying President Theodore Roosevelt in the stage presentation, Bully!

While observing as Krolik goes through the audit and appeals process, Whitmore interviews IRS employees who answer his questions extemporaneously. The audience learns from the interview how tax returns are processed and selected for audit, and of the IRS approach to collecting delinquent taxes. The film also covers the audit appeals procedure and types of assistance available to taxpayers.

English and Spanish versions of the IRS film are available free of charge for showings by North Texas community organizations and other groups.

Contact Marlene Gaysek, IRS Public Affairs Officer, at 1100 Commerce Street, Dallas, Texas 75242, or telephone (214) 749-3567 to get more information and schedule showings.

Consumer Food News

College Station, Tex.—Soft-shell squash quality is high and prices low; beef prices are up a bit, and dairy specials are many in Texas grocery markets this week.

Current economical food buys, compiled by Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, are the following:

Fresh Vegetables—Budget buys include yellow crookneck and straightneck, zucchini and white flat, or "patty pan" squash—along with green beans, cabbage, and corn. Other economical good-quality items are cucumbers, carrots, head lettuce, radishes and green onions—as well as snap beans, okra and southern peas, such as black-eye, purple hull and crowder.

Beef—Prices are slightly higher, but specials include chuck roasts—the arm, the blade and the boneless blade roasts—along with fresh briskets, hamburger, sirloin tip roasts and liver. Other specials appear on sirloin, chuck and round steaks.

Dairy—Look for specials on many dairy products—milk, yogurt, sour cream and a variety of cheeses.

Fresh Fruits—More peaches on the market offer better flavor—however, quality varies as do prices. Nice quality appears in cherries, nectarines, plums and apricots in most markets—and lower prices make cantaloupes and watermelons more economical.

Poultry—Fryer chickens, turkeys and turkey parts offer real economy for the summer. Egg production may rise slightly in upcoming months; currently eggs are one of the good protein buys. Buy refrigerated eggs and keep them refrigerated to retain quality.

Pork—Production is decreasing as usual for this season, but it remains above last year's levels. Best buys are bacon, smoked picnic, whole semi-boneless hams, and chops—and canned ham, one of the most economical buys at present.

Grocery Market Aisles—Budget buys lean toward easy-fixing picnic-type foods, such as tuna, crackers, peanut butter, sandwich buns and breads—and pork and beans.

Frozen Food Chests—More economical buys appear on prepared dishes, such as fried chicken, Salisbury steak, stuffed peppers and complete dinners.

Consumer Watchwords: Choose soft-shell squash that's free from blemishes and is fresh looking. Avoid squash with hard rind or stem that is dry, hard, blackened or shriveled. Squash should be firm and heavy for its size.

BANKING IS EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

An Ounce Of Prevention—Your Safe Deposit Box

By Willis W. Alexander, Executive Vice President, American Bankers Association

A convenient and inexpensive ounce of prevention for storing valuables can be found where you bank—in a safe deposit box.

For more than 100 years, banks have offered their vault facilities for safekeeping of their customers' property. Today, many people house their valuables in these vaults that furnish maximum safety and privacy.

But, before you raid your mattress, make sure you understand the service. While safe deposit boxes provide maximum safety, they are not foolproof, and you should take certain precautions.

It is advisable that an accurate and complete inventory of each item in storage be kept in a separate place. It should include important dates, serial numbers and even duplicate copies of appropriate documents.

Some banks prohibit certain items to be stored in the box—such as securities, jewelry, and coin and stamp collections—so, read the lease contract carefully. All banks restrict the storage of money.

Safe deposit boxes are available at most banks in standard sizes ranging from 2 x 5 x 24 inches to several cubic feet. Costs range from $5 per year for the smallest to more than $50 for the largest.

Security is provided through a two-key system. You have one key and the bank has a different key. Both must be used to open two locks to gain access to your valuables.

The contract agreement between you and the bank also provides the legal relationship for use of the safe deposit box. The bank's responsibility is to exercise proper care in preventing access to the box by unauthorized persons. Unless you appoint a deputy, only you are entitled to access.

Another alternative is a joint contract in which two or more individuals are co-lessees. With this arrangement, if one person is out of town or incapacitated, someone else can enter the box if necessary.

Loss need not stem from front-page burglaries. Fires, floods, earthquakes and explosions can destroy the contents of safe deposit boxes, too. Ask your insurance company about safe deposit box coverage under an extension of your homeowner's or renter's policy. Some offer special "customer's safekeeping policies" specifically designed to cover the contents of your safe deposit box.

One final tip: remember when filing your tax return that a safe deposit box rental fee is tax deductible if an earning asset is stored in the box.

Homemak. Teachers Meeting In Dallas

If "home economics" conjures up visions of girls stitchin' and stirrin'—look again! The vocational homemaking teachers of 1977 have their fingers in many pies—but most of them are not for eating. Vocational Homemaking Education is on the go these days. It is an expanding, lively career field where young men and women learn skills that will help them get a piece of the pie—the economic pie. They learn how to earn money, manage their resources, and how to lead a quality life.

To keep abreast of the latest teaching materials and innovative teaching techniques, vocational homemaking teachers will spend a week in Dallas July 25-29 attending the State Inservice Conference for Vocational Homemaking Teachers. The conference is under the direction of Ms. Elizabeth F. Smith, State Director of Homemaking Education, Texas Education Agency, and her staff. Miss Dana Owens, teacher in the Eldorado Public Schools, will participate in the conference to be held in the Hilton Hotel.

Sessions dealing with "Effective Fatherhood," "Sensitizing to the Process of Aging," "Breaking the Stereotype Mold," "Techniques to Conserve Energy," "The Homemaker In Transition"—and 16 other special interest sessions and seminars, plus two general sessions, will provide the opportunity for the teachers to learn new ways to improve and integrate the new knowledge into their teaching.

According to Billie Champan, Executive Director of the Vocational Homemaking Teachers Association of Texas, the inservice training in today's world topics keeps homemaking teachers at the top of the list of the state's best informed educators.

Exhibits of the latest equipment and teaching materials will be open to teachers attend the conference.

The Awards Banquet of the VHTAT Wednesday evening will honor Outstanding Legislators, the Outstanding Administrator in the State, and the Vocational Homemaking Teacher of the Year. Also receiving awards for tenure will be 137 teachers of homemaking education totaling 2,735 years of service to Texas school children.

More than 2800 teachers are expected to attend the week-long meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. John Luman have returned home from a trip to Louisiana where they visited their son and Mrs. Luman's mother. The Lumans had as their guests their three step-grandsons, Eric, Jeff and Russell Vaughn. The boys also visited their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Vaughn and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wolfe in Colorado City, Texas. The Lumans took the boys back home to Louisiana.

Ray Lewis Ballew of San Angelo was a patient in the local hospital over the week end, and early this week.

SHAPE UP YOUR HOME IN SPRING TRAINING

It's spring training time for baseball players and cost-conscious homeowners. Players are putting their muscles into shape after a winter of rest.

Homeowners are flexing their muscles by putting their houses into shape after a winter of storms.

It's easy to strike out against insects, rodents, and the elements. That's why homeowners should play ball with aluminum wire screening: the defensive super-star in the home and builders league.

Aluminum screening keeps pesky base-stealing rodents off the base paths at home.

It breaks up hit-and-run plays by playful mosquitoes. And never lets pop flies fall in through windows for Texas Leaguers.

Balky squirrels, mice, and rats can't score because aluminum screening always blocks home plate.

Rust, rot, and fading can't even get to first base. Aluminum screening doesn't even need a new uniform—just an after-game massage of soap and water.

It won't stretch under pressure, stays flat, and never flaps, billows, or tears at the frame because of mosquito line drives.

You can't burn up this even-tempered star. It's fireproof.

This diamond in the rough is strong and protects against scratch hits, even in storms or high winds.

It never stains or streaks, and has a perfect average against ultra-violet hits.

Each wire is round before weaving and stays round in the screen, assuring maximum-size mesh throughout screening.

It doesn't attract dust or dirt electrostatically and strikes out cleaning problems.

This lightweight but powerful fielder can be purchased from just about any hardware or building materials store in your area.

According to the Aluminum Association, it has a long career span.

Aluminum wire screening is big-league protection against any weather. Ask our fan club.

They'll tell you we're the best. On any field.

The Consumer Alert . . .

On Door-To-Door Magazine Sales

by John L. Hill, Attorney General

Austin, Tex.—It's hard to resist a smiling youngster who rings your doorbell and asks you to subscribe to a magazine to help him earn a college scholarship.

It's especially difficult when he adds that part of the purchase price of the subscription will be donated to charity—and even more enticing when the price you are quoted seems so reasonable.

But watch out! That's the word from our Consumer Protection attorneys about such situations.

There are numerous instances of traveling magazine "crews" working one part of the state and moving on to another, selling magazine subscription contracts on the basis of fraud and deception. Our lawyers recently obtained a permanent injunction against one such operation, which was representing itself to be a "community service" and "youth education service."

And while consumers are being defrauded in such operations, in many cases the youngsters who are working on the crew have also been the victims of misrepresentation. Many have responded to classified newspaper advertisements which indicate glamorous jobs involving travel, resort hotel stays, and the opportunity to meet interesting people are "available to the right applicants."

What they frequently find is a job selling magazine subscriptions as part of such traveling crews—most often at below average wages.

In our recent court case, sales persons on the crew were telling potential subscribers that they were working toward a college scholarship which they would get if they sold a certain amount of magazine subscriptions. Sometimes they varied the story by saying they were working for a savings bond bonus. In reality, they were paid a straight sales commission on the subscriptions they sold!

In addition, in this case, subscribers were given the impression that the price they agreed to orally was the total price, when in reality they learned later that their agreement required that they pay an additional amount to a third party before their subscription would begin.

The defendants also told consumers that part of the purchase price would be donated to charity, although none was. Also, they failed to tell purchasers of their right to cancel a home solicitation contract within three business days and to supply a "notice of cancellation" to mail if cancellation was desired, as required by Texas law.

Our lawyers note that many times, in such operations, the purchaser ends up paying more than he would if he ordered the magazine from the publisher directly. The typical sales pitch in such magazine sales operations is that you'll pay "pennies per week." Remember, though, that 48 pennies per week equals $24.96 per year, so it's important to consider the total price you are agreeing to pay.

You should also be aware that some magazine sales operations have failed to provide the subscriptions even though they were paid in advance for them.

If you have a consumer complaint involving door-to-door sales of magazines or other items, get in touch with the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division in Austin, Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, El Paso, Lubbock, or McAllen. Outside those areas, call this toll-free number: 112-800-252-9236.

A Tail Of Rats To Riches

You know you've really got the world by the tail if you take on a cause. And Morris, the finicky star of 9-Lives cat food commercials, has done just that.

This June, Morris is serving as spokesperson for a cause that's near and dear to his furry heart—national Adopt-A-Cat Month. The program, sponsored by 9-Lives Cat Food for The American Humane Association, is designed to encourage people to adopt cats and kittens from animal shelters.

Morris, of course, takes personal interest in the program because he himself is a shelter alumnus. Fame and fortune have been kind to this charismatic cat. But like many other Hollywood heroes, Morris wasn't raised on chauffeured limousines and high-class restaurants.

Before his cat food commercial days, Morris was forced to eke out a meager existence among the feline underclass. Roaming from back alley to back alley, it seemed that luck was not in the stars for the tattered tom.

Seeking warmth and affection, Morris one day padded his way into an animal shelter. But while other cats were adopted, he was always left behind. Then one day—moments before Morris was scheduled for a permanent catnap—the furry feline was "discovered" by animal talent scout Bob Martwick. And his rats to riches story is history from then on.

Although Morris now leads the life of luxury on his bachelor estate in Lombard, Illinois, he has not forgotten his humble beginnings—or all the other cats and kittens faced with the same dilemma. Each year, thousands of homeless cats are cared for by animal shelters. According to The American Humane Association many are adopted, but a greater number must be humanely destroyed.

As spokesperson for Adopt-A-Cat Month, and as a former shelter resident himself, Morris knows that most humane society cats are healthy animals. And felines (a superior race, according to Morris) are intelligent, clean and lovable.

Morris hopes that many of his finicky friends will find purrmanent homes this month. And everyone who adopts a feline in June will receive a free adoption kit, compliments of Morris and 9-Lives. Included in the kit are letters from Morris to the new owner and his feline, a copy of the Feline Constitution, an official adoption certificate, a paw-tographed litho of Morris, a complete cat care booklet, and a coupon for free cat food.

So why not visit your local animal shelter this month and adopt a cat? Morris knows you'll be happy you did. And your new feline will give you nine lives worth of love and affection in return!

Hay Potential Still Good

Dry weather has limited hay making in some sections of Texas this year, but there is still plenty of time for good hay production, says a pasture and forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Due to the long growing season and the fact that most of the state generally receives good late summer and early fall rains, a good hay crop is still possible. It's important to fertilize hay meadows now so that the grass will be able to make good growth once the rains come. Cutting grass at the proper stage of growth will also insure top quality, high protein hay.

Invest In Accident Prevention

With National Farm Safety Week set for July 25-31, it's especially a good time to give more consideration to accident prevention, says an agricultural safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The theme of the week is Safety Is a Good Investment and emphasizes that accidents result not only in personal injury but in costly equipment damage, medical expense, loss of valued talent and skill of agricultural producers and workers, and production loss.

Top 4-H Horsemen To Compete

Top 4-H Horsemen in Texas will be competing at the State 4-H Horse Show, July 26-30, at the Astro Arena in Houston, announces a horse specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The open invitational portion of the show will be held July 27-28. The regular show of entries qualifying in district competition begins with the showmanship class the afternoon of July 28. Finals in the open classes will be held that evening, and finals in the regular show will be held Saturday evening, July 30.

Cooperative Leaders To Meet

Some 2,500 cooperative employees, managers and directors, educators, youth leaders, young farmer couples, and government staff people will be participating in the 1977 National Institute on Cooperative Education (NICE) of the American Institute of Cooperation at Texas A&M University, Aug. 15-18. Theme of the weeklong meeting will be: Cooperation—Making it Work. Particular emphasis will be given to finding ways to make cooperatives work, particularly in marketing and agricultural products, says a professor of agricultural cooperation at Texas A&M.

Accident Control

Safe operating practices for lawn mowers include shutting off the mower when moving it from one level to another, when leaving it unattended, and when removing debris, says the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

REPUBLICAN CONGRESS HOPEFUL SCORES PRES. CARTER ON KOREAN PULL-OUT

(The following Press Release is from Bobby Locke, for US Congress, GOP, 117 Bend Tree, in San Antonio, Texas 78233.)

rea to the Communists, and the sure and certain blood-bath that would stain the souls of every American.

I have this day written President Carter, asking him to reconsider the Korean pull-out, and to take whatever necessary military steps to secure the return of our captured soldier.

—Bobby Locke

Once Again the North Korean Communists have murdered American troops.

I think most of us are beginning to understand that the North Koreans are waiting for the withdrawal of American Forces so that they can move against the South. Our military leaders have warned against such a pull out, and what the consequences would be, yet President Carter insists on the withdrawal against the wishes of the majority of the American people.

I can only believe that military morale is at an all-time low when soldiers in the field are not listened to, or supported by, their political leaders. I wonder why we waste the time and money of making them professionals when we will not take their advice.

North Korea is a powder-keg looking for a match! We can not abandon the people of South Korea to the Communists, and the sure and certain blood-bath that would stain the souls of every American.

The Korean Question

WASHINGTON—In an unpredictable world, America's commitment to its allies and to world peace has always been a stabilizing influence.

That is why the Administration's policy announcement that our troop strength in South Korea should be reduced and phased-out over a five-year period is disturbing. Clearly, it would jeopardize the basic stability in Korea that exists now and plant the false impression that American resolve to maintain strengthened world alliances is guaranteed only from one administration to the next.

Pulling our troops out of South Korea would foster confusion and uncertainty among other friendly powers in Eastern Asia, and elsewhere, forcing them to reassess the course of American foreign policy, and sowing the seeds for a new and potentially dangerous world order.

The Administration's withdrawal plan, conceived largely in campaign pledges—without the benefit of consultation with our own military experts or with the affected governments in the region, particularly South Korea—is based on the naive assumption that future South Korean military strength could replace the deterrence to aggression the American presence provides.

Nothing could be more inconsistent with the facts. With America's military presence, and South Korea's military strength, any threat from the North would be countered. This is understood. Without that presence, perceptions of South Korea's overall strength would change drastically.

There is ample reason to believe that an American troop withdrawal might be just the spark needed to ignite the tinderbox that is the Korean peninsula.

The North Koreans have made clear their objective to unify the two Koreas. Undoubtedly, a wavering American commitment to the Seoul regime would be perceived as an opportunity to achieve that objective.

History has shown us that ill-considered foreign policy decisions reap consequences that may not fully unfold until years later. South Korea's carefully developed strategic defenses have assured stability in that portion of the Asian mainland. Withdrawing American troops, and by implication our commitment to maintain peace there, would heighten tensions that could create the same climate for hostilities which incited the North Korean attack 27 years ago.

Future generations of Americans could pay the price for today's errors in judgment.

If we are to avoid in Korea the tragic miscalculations of foreign policy which long-characterized American involvement in Vietnam, the American people must be fully apprised of developments, and the Congress must be a full partner in the decision-making. Up to this point, that joint consultation has been virtually nonexistent.

For over a quarter century, the American presence in South Korea has represented the only hope for peace and stability for that Nation's people. Their belief in us should not be undermined now.

Love is trust. It is belief. It is faith, and like faith it is the substance of all things hoped for. Faith is a young man and woman standing before the altar to be united in holy matrimony. It is a little child holding his mother's hand. It is a patient looking into the eyes of the doctor. It is a mother or father sadly waving goodbye to a son, off to war.

Faith is all this and more! It is trust in divine providence, a belief in joyful reward. It is all mankind kneeling before God in quiet prayer . . . at home . . . in church . . . or under the canopy of heaven.

Church is for all of us—a place to strengthen, to increase, to confirm our faith. You can make your faith stronger by going to church this Sunday.
