At Jerusalem, they spent four days touring the major attractions. Late last week, their flight came through Ireland where they stopped briefly on their way back to the States. By Friday they were back in the U. S. and Saturday were back home in Eldorado.

Post Script

Every week or so a woman comes to The Success office and asks if we know of any houses to rent.

In the conversation that follows she explains that the husband works for an oil company out of Sonora but there are no vacancies there and she wonders about Eldorado.

Of course, we don't and we recommend that she go to the City Hall and West Texas Utilities offices to see if they know of anything that has been vacated. But that is a faint hope.

Eldorado is full of scores of mobile homes and there is room for some more if anyone has the money to buy one.

Sonora cannot accommodate any more mobile homes for the reason that their sewer system can't accommodate any more.

Blackie!
The stray, who is making her home for two weeks at the Eldorado Nursing Home is by common consent named Blackie.

She continues to be well fed and she plays around on the lawn with other dogs and she presents a future problem.

She is a female and she seems to be attracting boy friends!

News of building:
The foundation has been cast for the new addition being built onto the headquarters building of Southwest Texas Electric Co-Op. The cement tile blocks are on the site and workmen planned to start up with the walls this week.

—ps—

Foundation work has been started and cement tile is on the site of the McCormick building to be erected on South Main for the Soil Conservation Service.

Another phase of inflation:
On July 1st, The Success, increased local subscription rates to $6.00 a year, and out-of-county ones to $7.50.

This was necessitated by hikes in Second Class postage that took effect on July 1st, along with increases in other overhead costs.

These subscription prices have already been in effect for some time among a number of other weekly newspapers over this area, and we are now following suit.

Happy Ending To Lost Purse Story

Mrs. Sheila McClure laid her purse on the hood of her car Thursday here in town, forgot it and then drove off and when she thought about it later, it was lost.

By Friday, the purse was found by Luke Brame and he returned it with the money in it to Mrs. McClure. She and her parents, the J. D. Redwines, have expressed their thanks to the community in general for having such honest young people, who take appropriate action when required.

Eldorado Seeks More Low-Rent House Units

At a meeting last week between City Council members, the Housing Authority Board, and Mrs. Donnie Gilmore, superintendent of the local Public Housing units here, further plans were made to apply for 72 new public housing units in Eldorado.

The subject was brought up by the Council at their May meeting, at which time it was tabled for further action. The need for the units has been felt, especially for the units for the elderly near the Court House which nearly always have a waiting list of applicants.

Approval for more units is to be sought from the Federal Government's Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

When the initial low-rent houses were built in Eldorado about 10 years ago, it took several months to get the City approval, and it took about two years for actual construction to get started.

Mrs. Parker Returns From Trip To Alaska

Mary Jo Parker returned home recently from Cordova, Alaska, where she and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Shannon of Austin, Texas, spent a three week vacation visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Isleib and children, Heather and Ned.

Mary Jo reports the weather at Cordova, which is one of the largest seafood industries locations in Alaska, as variable as Texas weather. Temperatures were from 43 to 80 degrees with bright, sunny days or cold, heavy rains, and the sea changing her moods with the weather.

The beautiful summer display of wild flowers, abundant berries, birds and wild-life were a constant delight, against the background of the glaciers and Chugach Mountains. With the sun setting at midnight, the days were more than adequate to enjoy it all.

Nursing Home Notes

Our regular routine was carried out, with very few exceptions, in our Home last week.

Likely, many of our residents' relatives, who visit here occasionally, were going other places on vacation trips, so on account of that we may have more visitors than usual next week.

Most of us are well, but Frank Reed is still not doing as well as usual; also Weynona Bennett isn't doing as well as we wished that she could, but we hope by next week we can report that they are improving.

Andrew Campbell tells us that he is doing fine now, and we are glad.

Week before last, Maggie Sluder's son, Earl Sluder and his wife, Sue, their daughter, Sandy, and their son Duard Earl, of Houston, Texas, visited her and Maggie's brother Elwood Sparks, and his wife, Stella, and we failed to include it in last week's news. I am sorry about that.

Ruthie Day is still on vacation, and we will be glad to have her back with us again next week.

Betty Hanusch conducted our Bingo game last Wednesday and the winners were; Lester Garrett 1 game, Elva Daniels 3 games, Bess Andrews 2, Beulah Harris 2, Victor Rodriguez 1, Maggie Sluder 1, Erna Rexroat 1, and LaVita Brooks one game.

On Friday Rebecca Adame conducted Bingo for us and winners were; Carrie Blakeway 1, Erna Rexroat 2, Victor Rodriguez 1, and Ella Casbeer 1.

We all enjoy visitors, so you all come! "Square meals make round people." —LaVita Brooks and Beulah Harris, reporters.

He assumes the position July 18, becoming responsible for directing all operations of the division.

The Connecticut native joined General Telephone Company of the Southwest in 1967, after having been affiliated with Southern New England Telephone. ### Folklife Festival Is Less Than A Month Away

San Antonio, Tex.— The state's largest and liveliest social studies workshop—the annual Texas Folklife Festival—will run August 4-7 in San Antonio. During the four day celebration, representatives of 30 ethnic, cultural, religious, and national groups will be on hand to share their history with visitors to the sixth annual Festival.

Festival participants from over the state gather at The Institute of Texan Cultures on HemisFair Plaza to demonstrate crafts, food, costumes, music, and dances of the state's settlers. The Festival is an outgrowth of a continuing educational program at the University of Texas at San Antonio's Institute which is aimed at discovering and preserving the traditions and customs of our forefathers. Ethnic groups at the Festival demonstrate and teach ancient crafts such as Japanese brush letter writing, German sausage stuffing, Korean kite making, Wendish noodle making and Russian egg painting.

The pioneer area emphasizes the crafts and skills developed by Texans confronted with the harsh realities of frontier life. Visitors can learn such skills as making adobe bricks, horsehair ropes, sunbonnets, candles, lye soap, pottery, saddles, thatching roofs, and repairing plows. The more energetic can lend a hand at the barn raising, enter the spike driving contest, or challenge champion arm wrestlers.

When you get hungry you have a multinational choice of foods. There are Chinese egg rolls, Lebanese cabbage, rolls, fresh baked bread, yam pie, coon oil cookies, barbecue, tacos, blintzes, sausage, and the newly proclaimed state dish, chili.

When you wear yourself out from working and eating, you can sit back and enjoy the continuous entertainment on one of seven stages. Lebanese belly dancers share the stage with bluegrass bands and flamenco dancers. Folk singers, oompah bands and bagpipers vie for the audience's attention.

Children have their own special area at the festival where they can learn how to make toys out of scrap wood, cloth, and corn husks. They can sing-along with Marsha Jones as she relates the history of southern folk music in song and story or take a ride on Jethro Holmes' oxen Tom and Jerry.

The festival is a kaleidoscope of color, song, and dance. Each booth is an event in itself. Storytellers abound. Bill Brett comes to the Festival to demonstrate horsehair rope making, but if you stop to talk, he can also tell you about boar hunting.

Those with a competitive spirit can enter contests to see who is the best at milking, chicken flying, horseshoes, watermelon seed spitting, pudding eating, Italian or Belgian bowling, arm wrestling, or tug of war. For children, there is the first official Berm Sliding contest. The grassy berm, or hill, surrounding the Institute has long been a favorite of the youngsters and this year they will be trying for prizes when they slide down the berm on pieces of cardboard.

Tickets for the Festival are $3 for adults and $1 for children under 12. The festival begins at 5:00 p.m. on August 4-5, and at noon on August 6-7. Gates close at 11:00 p.m. each night. There is no parking at the site, but free shuttle buses will run from downtown parking lots and local shopping centers. Free parking can be arranged for charter buses. For more information, write: Institute of Texan Cultures, P.O. Box 1226, San Antonio, Texas 78294.

Ivy—Versatility Plus!

Ivy is a decorator's delight. Attractive, versatile and hardy, this plant quickly perks up a home, apartment or office. Hang ivy if you like graceful trailing vines, or place it on a desk or table for a slightly more formal appearance. Planted in the container of a large plant or small tree, ivy makes an interesting ground cover.

Ivy comes in numerous varieties. English ivy alone offers about 70 choices, including Canary Island ivy with large green leaves, Pittsburgh ivy with small dark green leaves or Little Diamond ivy with small variegated leaves.

Pamper ivy with but the barest essentials. Use a good, basic soil mix (equal parts loam, sand and peat moss) and keep the soil fairly moist — not soggy. Plastic planters help soil retain moisture so watering can be infrequent. Rubbermaid offers planters with drainage holes and removable saucers, a plus for healthy plant growth. They come in attractive styles to suit most any decor. Keep ivy in a cool room (not above 70°F in winter) and give it bright, indirect light and it should reward you with lush growth.

Repot ivy only when roots begin to grow through the planter's drainage holes, or if it has been in the same container for up to two years. During the growing season — from spring to fall—ivy needs frequent pinching to retain a nice shape. Don't be afraid... pinch off the new growing tips every so often and it will branch into a prettier, fuller plant.

Ivy has one main enemy — red spider mites. To prevent mites from attacking, give foliage a weekly bath in rapidly-running tepid water. If leaves begin to look dusty underneath with a faint web-like or grainy appearance, mites may have settled in. If so, isolate the plant from others. Rinse it well under water and spray with Kelthane (easiest to handle in emulsion form). Follow with the same procedure a week later. Weekly showers and good humidity will help combat spider mites and hinder them from attacking. Inspect any plant carefully before you buy to avoid possible pests.
However you decorate with ivy, you can't miss. With so many varieties and such easy care, it provides that splash of greenery that helps make a room come alive.

State Capitol News . . . Yarbrough Confesses To Wrong Doing

by Lyndell Williams
 Texas Press Association

Austin, Tex.—Indicted State Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough admitted his guilt to a hastily called news conference last week but did little else to clear up the confusion surrounding his future plans.

Yarbrough, while confessing to My Wrongoings and My Sins Against God and the People who Elected Me Their Servant, refused to elaborate on the scope of the sins or whether or not he planned to resign from the bench of the state's highest court.

Yarbrough's confession came at a press conference called in the Supreme Court chambers amidst tight security and with his wife and three small children looking on.

He stuck strictly to the terse, if somewhat confusing, prepared statement, refused to answer reporters' questions afterwards, and reportedly left town with his family immediately following the short session.

Yarbrough was indicted June 30 by a Travis County grand jury on felony charges of forgery and aggravated perjury.

One day earlier, Houston Dist. Atty. Carol Vance, disclosed tapes he said were of Yarbrough plotting the murder of a Victoria banker who gave testimony against the jurist in another proceeding.

Armed with these tapes and the record of the grand jury, the Judicial Qualifications Commission met July 2 in a closed door session and announced later it would proceed with efforts to have Yarbrough removed from the Supreme Court bench.

At the same time, House Speaker Bill Clayton announced a removal hearing would be held by the House of Representatives on July 15 during the special session.

The resolution introduced by three House members, calls for Gov. Dolph Briscoe to remove Yarbrough from office. The governor has no choice but to comply if the resolution is adopted by a two-thirds majority of both houses of the legislature during the session.

The removal hearing, at which Yarbrough can testify in his own defense, may be held before a select committee or by the full House membership acting as a committee of the whole.

The 35-year-old former Houston attorney also faces disbarment proceedings. He is the first sitting judge of the Supreme Court to ever be indicted.

Tackling the problem of what to do with food waste, KitchenAid appliance researchers have developed stronger home food waste disposers that should help. Units are made with a cast iron drain chamber and a stainless steel grind chamber — both of which resist corrosion from food acids. And, the disposers include an effective anti-jam mechanism and quick click mounting system (that cuts installation time and costs).

FACTS ABOUT WINES

DECANTING YOUR WINE

Did you know that about 85% of all wine sold in the U.S. today is in half gallon or gallon containers as well as new 1.5 and 3 liter metric sizes? Millions of Americans are switching to wine in larger sizes because they get more good wine for less money in big containers.

After buying a gallon of wine many people decant it. Decant, an old French word, means to remove the wine from its original container without disturbing the natural sediment build-up caused by years of storage. The container used to hold the decanted wine became known as the decanter.

Preserving Wine Freshness
Today, most wines aren't made to be kept around for years; thus sediment isn't a problem. Decanting wine from a large container makes it easier to store in your refrigerator, serve at the table and keeps it fresher longer. Once you've opened your gallon, air trapped in the bottle after you reclose it will begin to change the wine. Air isn't wine's friend over the long haul and if you mix the two for too long, you'll end up with a bottle of wine vinegar.

How To Decant Wine
Here is how to decant. First, make sure your smaller bottle or decanter is clean, sterile and that the top closes tightly. Using a funnel, pour wine from the large container into the smaller one. Fill it right to the top keeping out unnecessary air.

Once you decant your wine, keep it in the refrigerator. Take decanted red wine out about an hour before using if you like your red at room temperature. After use, refrigerate again. Your wine will last longer and taste better.

Our Cribari 1.5 liter bottle is one of the new metric sizes. It provides about eight six-ounce servings. Try buying wine in these new larger sizes. You will save money and get more wine for it as well. And by all means, decant for a longer wine life.

SSI Recipients Should Report Changes In Circumstances

People should promptly report changes in circumstances that could affect their supplemental security income (SSI) payments and should not wait to hear from social security, according to Franklin Upp, social security district manager in San Angelo, Texas.

The SSI program makes monthly payments to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 or over or blind or disabled. Eligibility and monthly payments amounts can be affected by changes in income, resources, living arrangements, marital status, and other circumstances.

"To get the right SSI checks to the right people on time," Upp said, "the Social Security Administration periodically contacts people getting payments to review their eligibility and monthly payment amounts."

"But we may not be in touch with people as often as their circumstances change," he said. "So they should report changes to us as promptly as possible."

Failure to report changes—or delay in reporting—can mean penalty reductions in payments. "People can get information about reporting changes by calling or writing any social security office," Upp said.

The supplemental security income program is administered by the Social Security Administration, an agency of the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The San Angelo social security office is at 2214 Sherwood Way. The phone number is 949-4608.

Krueger Pledges Visits To All Towns In Texas

U. S. Congressman Bob Krueger of Texas, who announced July 4 that he will run for the United States Senate in 1978, has pledged to attempt to visit "every town in Texas" during his campaign.

"For too long, persons seeking statewide office have concentrated their efforts in only the major metropolitan areas and have forgotten the people in the smaller cities and towns that make up so much of Texas."

"As one who grew up in a small town (New Braunfels) and as one who has always been close to the land, I think it extremely important that persons in public office make every effort to not only visit rural America, but to understand that often it is in the nation's smaller cities where our values were set, where our heritage remains strongest."

Krueger, himself part of a ranching family, stressed the importance of agriculture during his July 4 announcement speech:

"I pledge to work to strengthen one of the most powerful forces in our economy—agriculture—by enlarging opportunities for agricultural export."

Krueger, as member of the U. S. House of Representatives, has co-sponsored legislation calling for additional agricultural exports.

Krueger said he will also work to attract light industry in rural Texas, "the kind of industry that will provide additional jobs but will not pollute the air, jam thoroughfares and result in housing shortages, but the calibre of industry that will make life better for people who lives in areas outside of metropolitan centers."

"We also must recognize that agriculture, though not the massive employer it once was, remains a major industry for Texas and we must keep it that way with programs for farmers and ranchers to give them the incentive to want to continue as farmers and ranchers but to also provide their sons and daughters the incentive to want to follow in the footsteps of their parents."

Garden Check List For July

—Water at the first sign of water stress (wilting, off-color foliage, etc.). Learn to recognize drought symptoms. It is normal for plants to wilt during the heat of the day even if adequately watered. Drought stress is usually indicated if they don't recover in the late evening.

—Plant mums, zinnia, marigold, Joseph's Coat and other plants for fall color anytime this month.

—Palms transplant best during the warm season.

—Leaves falling? Probably due to lush growth this spring following the excellent spring rainfall. The sudden change to hot, dry weather is causing the roots to work overtime trying to supply enough moisture. During periods of water stress the shaded leaves often fall.

—If plants show symptoms of iron chlorosis, spray the foliage with copperas or iron chelate used according to the instructions on the package or refer to L-435, Iron Chlorosis.

—Check recently planted landscape materials regularly. Dry, hot weather can be deadly if the plant is not adequately established.

—Hanging baskets require extra care in July and August. Soaking basket and root ball in a tub of water is an excellent way to water and fertilize. Do not use fertilizer solution if root ball is extremely dry. Irrigate first then fertilize after the plants are well drained.

—Remove spent flower stalks on cannas to encourage continuous flowering.

—If fire blight has attacked your loquat, pyracantha, pear and cotoneaster and the leaves on some branches appear to be burned, prune out the diseased portion and treat pruning shears with a disinfectant after each cut to prevent further spread of the disease.

—Pinch copper plants to make them bushy and compact.

—Check mulch on landscape beds, replenish or replace where needed. —Gladiolus corms can be dug, cured, and stored once the foliage has turned brown.

—Clean up iris beds and thin out clumps if crowded. Can be transplanted anytime from late July to October.

—Roses still require a regular spray application for blackspot control.

—Roses also require plenty of water and regular applications of fertilizer if you want a good display of fall color. If plants are becoming too tall, sacrifice some of the small summer flowers and cut the plants back about 1/3 to 1/2 to encourage new growth and fall flowers.

—Going on vacation? Many reliable junior high and high school boys and girls are looking for an opportunity to earn some extra money. They can keep the lawn mowed, garden and lawn irrigated, keep the papers and ads picked up and in general, make the place look like someone lived there.

Prepare To Plant Bluebonnets Next Month

If you are planning a cover of Texas bluebonnets for the home landscape next spring, seeds should be planted as soon as possible. They must be sown by late August if blossoms are wanted next spring.

Late summer planting is essential as bluebonnets are actually winter annuals. They germinate in late summer, exist as a small rosette of leaves throughout the winter while developing a good root system, and then grow rapidly during the spring rainy season to produce acres of blue flowers.

Many seeds are wasted each year due to improper planting. Just tossing the seeds into a grassy area along the road or in the corner of the yard does little else than provide expensive food for birds.

Germination is also a problem. Poor germination usually occurs unless something is done to soften the hard seed coat to allow moisture to penetrate.

Preparing the seeds before sowing is important. Bluebonnet seeds look and act like pea gravel. The hard seed covering must be softened or scratched to allow moisture to penetrate and cause germination.

The often recommended practice of puncturing the seed with a needle or ice pick will work but is rather time consuming as well as hard on the hands. Scratching the seed coat between two layers of sandpaper that have been glued to boards will also help.

To treat large quantities of seed, mix them with sand and tumble them in a cement mixer to scratch the seed coat. Or, they may be soaked in warm water for a few days, changing the water at least daily until the seed feels soft.

After the treating, broadcast the seed on tilled soil, cover with one-quarter to 1/2 inch of soil, firm the soil, and water. Keep the soil moist until seedlings appear—usually in a week to 10 days.

Once established, bluebonnets seed themselves year after year provided the seed has been allowed to mature, grass or weeds have not become too thick, and there has been sufficient rain in July and August to soften the seed coat. With a late summer drought, it would be advisable to soak the bluebonnet bed several times to assure good germination.

It is usually a waste of time to plant bluebonnets in a heavy stand of grass. They don't like heavy competition and will usually be crowded out by a lush stand of grass.

Little Known Facts About America's Resources

RECYCLING FOR MINERALS

Many Americans are finding junk can be much too precious to throw away.

While exploration and development of new resources are clearly necessary and, experts say, ought to be accelerated, recycling is a viable way to increase the availability of the minerals this country needs.

ALUMINUM RECYCLED in one year came to about 252 million pounds. Millions of pounds of other metals were also recycled.

Recycling has been practiced for many years, most obviously in the case of such precious metals as gold and silver. But J. Allen Overton, Jr., president of the American Mining Congress, points out that scrap iron, copper from automobile wiring and radiators, lead from batteries and other metals are also recycled. With the emergence of a heightened conservation ethic by the general public, recycling of aluminum cans has risen sharply.

New technologies might one day permit an increase in recycling. At present, however, the significant labor involved in collecting and transporting discarded products and reclaiming their separate metallic contents means that this can be only a partial answer to total needs.

Even as a partial answer, however, it involved recycling some 73,000 million pounds of iron and steel scrap, 706 million pounds of copper, 145 million pounds of zinc, 252 million pounds of aluminum and 996 pounds of lead in 1975 alone.

The Perpetual Potluck

Foolproof Food For Senior Citizens

Just because you live alone doesn't mean you have to dine alone. This is something to remember, especially for senior citizens who often have nutrition problems simply because it is too much effort to prepare a "proper" sit-down meal for just one person. The solution, as many elderly singles have discovered, is to treat dinner as a party at least several times a week.

Here is a menu specifically designed for a senior citizens' dinner party. It's based on that perpetual favorite—the potluck! The hostess prepares a main dish, and one of the guests brings dessert. What could be simpler? With a minimum of time and effort, everyone dines heartily.

Food for this delicious party meal, checked by the Carnation Laboratories, provides excellent nutritional balance for this particular age group. Choosing foods from all four basic food groups, at this meal six people receive generous amounts of the ever-necessary protein at a sensible calorie level. With all the beneficial ingredients that supply better than 1/3 of the Recommended Daily Allowances of calcium, iron, vitamins A, B, and C, the calories per serving are also only 1/3 of the RDA's. This keeps the weight and waistlines under control for those who tend to be less active.

The main dish is a Quick 'N' Easy Beef Stew with Dumplings. Choose inexpensive cuts of stew meat to spare the budget, and tenderize meat before cooking to spare the digestive system.

For dessert serve Almond Fruit Squares. Pass along the recipe when you ask one of the guests to bring dessert, and you'll be doing everybody a favor. Not only will everyone enjoy the good food, they'll enjoy the company, and with this potluck eating pattern, senior citizens can dine happily ever after.

Check Your Car's Air-Conditioning System Now!

DETROIT — Spring's the season for a motorist to pay attention to his car's air-conditioning system, which was probably neglected during this hard and tough winter, says John Farley, Chrysler's technical service manager.

Motorists can check out their own system to see if it's working properly and even do a simple under-the-hood inspection to determine whether the air-conditioning system needs help before the hot-weather season.

It's best to do these things as early as possible, says Farley, for three reasons.

"You don't want to be uncomfortable that first hot day. You don't want to do costly damage to your car by running a faulty A/C system. And, you want to avoid the crowd at the dealership or repair facility when everybody else in town takes the car in to have the 'air' fixed."

Farley suggests the following tests for your car's air-conditioning system. First, when the engine is fully warmed-up, turn on the air-conditioning system and check to see if the system responds to the control settings. Does the cold air get colder when you move the control? Does the cooling level reduce when the lever is moved toward the warmer settings? If not, the temperature control cables or the air doors (which redirect air within the system) may need adjustment.

If there's no cool or cold air at all, a trip to a repair facility may reveal the need for something as minor and inexpensive as a new fuse.

Next, check the blower operation. Can you tell the difference between low, medium, and high, or whatever designations your system has? If there are vibrations or unusual noises at any blower speed setting, make a note to have that checked.

Test drive your car with the air conditioning on to check for additional vibrations. These may be caused by a compressor bracket which needs tightening or by the blower motor and cold air ducting's looseness. These, too, are inexpensive adjustments.

When an A/C system is recharged, the filter-dryer which removes the water from the internal parts of the system and traps foreign particles is also replaced, too. Total cost for both recharging and replacing the filter-dryer is moderate for work on a major automotive system, and Farley says that dealerships and service facilities sometimes run springtime price specials.

There's a do-it-yourself freon kit on the market, according to Farley who advises against its use.

He says, "It's really difficult to add just the right amount of gas. If you add too much freon, you can overload the A/C and do costly damage to the compressor."

"If you add freon yourself, you probably won't replace the filter-dryer unit. Then you invite trouble from a dryer-filter unit which is fully saturated. It can't pick up any more moisture from the system. The moisture will collect within the system and freeze shortly after you turn on your air-conditioning. When you shut it off, the ice will melt but will freeze again when you try to make the A/C work again."

"There could be personal danger from that freon kit," continues Farley. "People can burn themselves with it; the burn is actually a frostbite." The danger of frostbite and damage to the eyes is such that A/C servicemen always use special gloves and wear safety glasses when recharging an air-conditioning system.

Farley says that these jobs to ready your A/C system for the coming hot weather can run from pennies (for replacing the fuse) to moderate repair costs for replacing the filter-dryer and recharging the system. However, it's a lot better than neglecting your A/C until you need to replace the compressor itself, a much more costly operation.

Agency for Consumer Protection

WASHINGTON—The road leading to the creation of many a Federal agency—and to the growth of the bureaucracy—has been paved with the best of intentions.

Those in Washington now advocating an Agency for Consumer Protection assert that it is the last best hope to protect American consumers. It would not become just another unresponsive Federal agency, they argue, adding still more to government's bloated budget.

For many Texans fed up with the outlandish size of the Federal bureaucracy, such an argument by now falls on deaf ears. It's a tired old refrain and one which makes less sense each time we hear it.

But the chorus for lumping consumer advocacy into another super agency resounds, now with strong support from the Administration. Such a proposal, in addition to layering still more bureaucrats in Washington, raises more serious questions about the performance of all the other regulatory bodies whose clear mandate now is supposed to be protection of the public interest. This of course includes consumers and all other Americans who pay the taxes to finance government agencies and services.

As proposed, the consumer agency would be limited to a $15 million budget the first year, and would have authority to intervene in behalf of the consuming public in all regulatory actions. It would seek out instances of consumer fraud and publish information on products and services.

In theory, one agency to serve as a consumer watchdog may have considerable emotional appeal. Instances of misrepresented advertising and shoddy merchandise are everyday experiences for many of us. An agency to redress an accumulated list of grievances indeed sounds like sweet justice.

Regrettably, that same promise of a voice in Washington to speak for the public was heard when each of the 72 other independent regulatory agencies sought congressional approval. One and all were conceived to serve the public interest: to regulate the private sector where the potential for abuse was thought to exist.

Few are living up to that mandate.

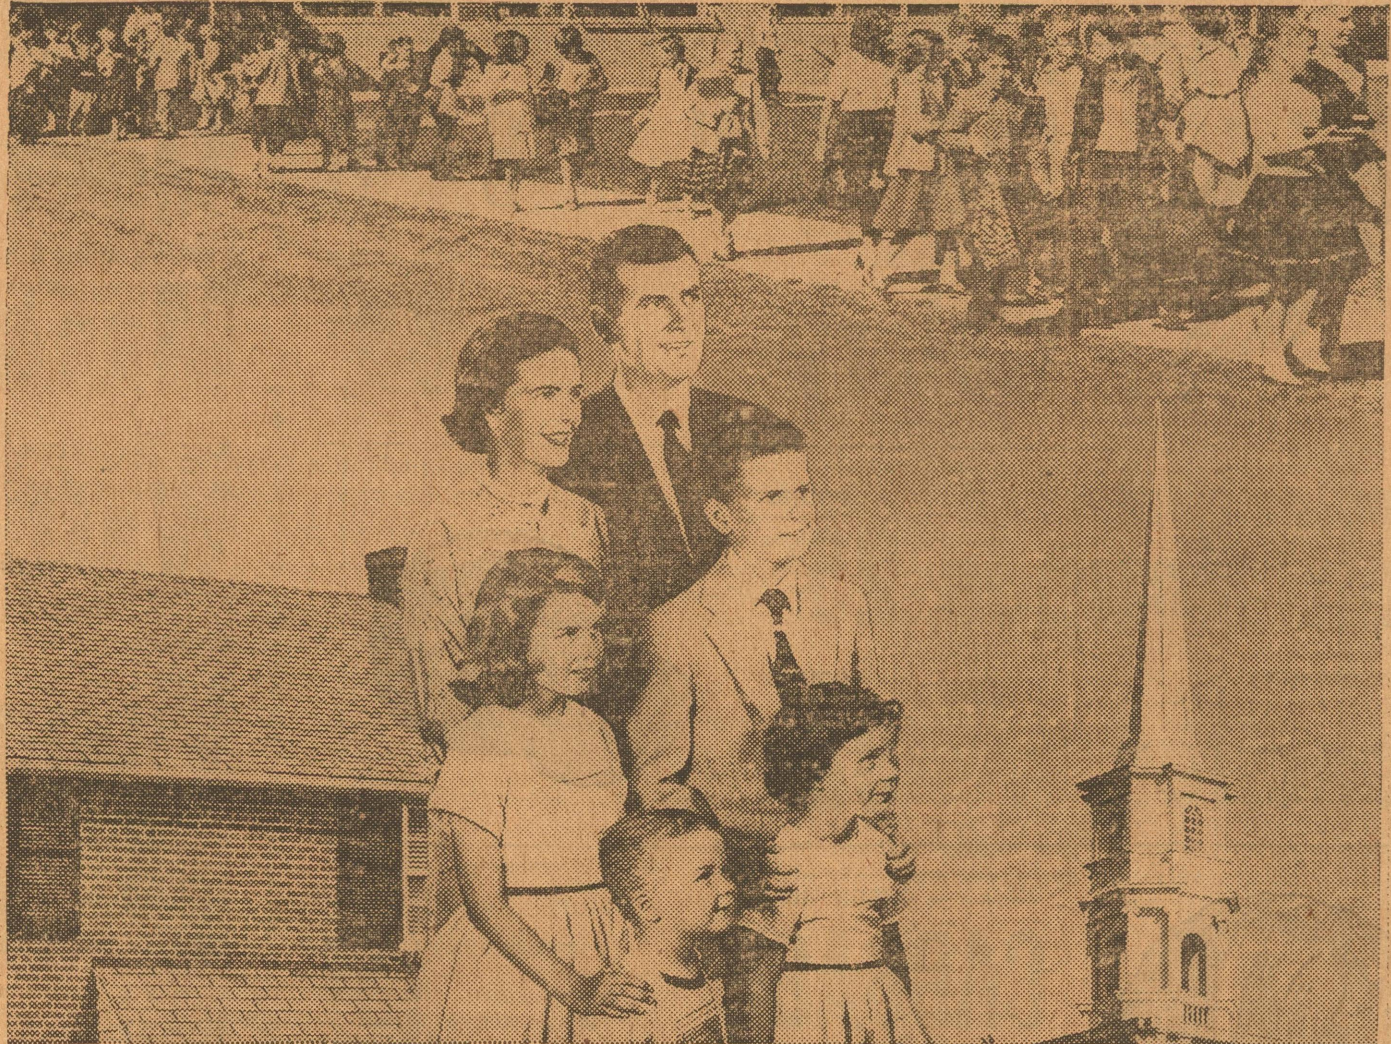

The fact of the matter is the Federal agencies best attuned to the principle that more is never better. Government studies report that most Federal agencies already have designated departments to answer consumer needs. At last count, over 400 government bodies and units had express authority to administer over 1000 consumer related programs and activities.

It is a sad commentary on the state of these departments if still another agency must be created to answer the perceived need. It means a lot of what the Federal government is supposed to be doing in the name of consumer protection either has failed miserably, or worse, has been neglected.

And it amounts to an admission that the Federal agencies have fallen far short of their mandate to the public, confirming an already strong suspicion held by many Texans and other Americans that the regulatory bodies exist primarily to serve the special interests they regulate.

Consumers among us all—and we all are—have every right to expect our money's worth for the goods and services we purchase. We should expect no less from the government agencies already established with taxpayer money to protect consumer rights.

HOME . . . SCHOOL . . . CHURCH! The predominant influences in the life of a child.

The Home provides love, security, example—to shape the growing personality.

The School develops the mind, stimulates initiative, nurtures social responsibility.

The Church cultivates faith and character, building the spiritual foundations of a noble life.

Wise parents understand the vital importance of each of these influences in the growth of their child. They work faithfully to strengthen all three.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .

... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
