(NE)- There are five men vying for two alderman posts. They include Billy McCravey, Bobby Sykes, Allen Kuykendall, Richard Kent, and Jim McWilliams.

BILLY McCRAVEY

McCravey, who has been city councilman for two years, says he would "like to continue the work we've been doing all along.'

He has a wife, Sarah, who works at First National Bank, and four children, Mike, Chris, Maureen and Jeanine, who are all grown. McCravey, 55, is an Eldorado native and has been in business with the Eldorado Wool Company since 1948. He is a high school graduate and attended college one year. He is a Methodist.

He has a wife, Pat, two sons, Bobby and Steve, and belongs to the Baptist Church. Sykes is a rancher in this county and served on the School Board for several years. He graduated from Ballinger High and Texas A&M University. He says he is running for re-election to continue the job he has been doing in his past

ALLEN KUYKENDALL

Kuykendall, 49, who has lived here eight years, says he would like "to give the electorate a chance to have a choice instead of having one person running for office," adding, "I would try to do what Rain for month of Feb. - .48" the people want if elected.

The sixth grade teacher at Eldorado grade school has a wife, Jean, and a son, Rennond, 25. He is a Lutheran and belongs to the Historical Society. He holds a bachelor of arts degree and is working on a masters degree.

RICHARD KENT

The owner of Kent's Automative, Richard Kent commented, "I want to try to do a little better job, as the city is going to be a problem this year unless it is unincorporated.'

"FIRST BORN"

There is always something very special about your "First Born." They help you discover a world of joy, pride, tears, and happiness you never thought possible. They serve as teacher, entertainer, and guinea pig, to pioneer the way for future children.

The "First Born" has his or her work cut out for them from their moment of arrival. No matter how 'ready' you think you are, you're always taken a-back by that first meeting. I remember, like yesterday, the first time I met Terri. I felt pretty secure armed with a Dr Spock Baby Book and six dozen Curity diapers. Then the door flew open and in jogged a nurse with a pink bundle under her arm and chirped, "Here ya go, Mommy," and then she was gone, and there I was...I peeped inside the wrapping on my present to find 6½ pounds of pink wiggle, a mat of black hair with a pink ribbon scotch taped to her head, and dark eyes squinting past tiny clinched fists. It didn't look like love at first sight on her part and I thought she was gonna hit me.

If she had been a fuzzy puppy, I would have known immediately how to react. But this was something really different. For some unknown reason, I said, "Hi, How are ya?" She just sighed and looked at me a little bored. It didn't seem to bother her that she didn't even have a first name yet, or that everything she would wear for the next six months was blue, or that her basinette was covered with little blue bears wearing football suits. I had established she had come equipped with all the things new Mothers look for and since I'm not too good at snap decisions, she was a T-E-R-R-I instead of a T-E-R-Y. By the time the nurse came to get her, I didn't want her to go back to the nursery. Those first few minutes alone together is a time mere words prohibit the sharing of, and they belong to Me, Terri, and God.

One tiny dependent piece of humanity given in trust and love, to one young and flusterated new Mother. I guess God knew what He was doing, even if I didn't, because that was 21 years ago and when I saw her this weekend, standing in her doorway, arms outstretched, wearing Levi's and a tee shirt that read -- "Sweathogs Got Class" -and a smile that would light a cave, she'll always be Mother's joy and Daddy's little blue bear in a football suit. It seems the 'new' never wears off your "First Born," and when they get the Motorcycles paid for, maybe she'll consider a "First Born" of her

The Express News Will Change To Friday

And it is also a little premature to cover coming weekend news events on Thursday. Therefore, a Fribetter serve our news cov-

As the Girl Scouts celebrate their sixty-fifth birthday, I believe that it is fitting and proper for us to take a moment and reflect on the assistance given to us over the years. Eldorado has given its support to Girl Scouts through the years and the Council is grateful.

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the citizens of Eldorado and the organizations that have been helpful for their support.

With help such as yours, El Camino Council is headed towards its "Road to the Future." This is evidenced by the increased number of girls and adults registered and the increased concern for the financial needs of the Council by the various communities served in our eighteen-county

JUST JOGGIN' ALONG!

Publisher, ED MEADOR

There's all kinds of running . . . and this seems to be the season for the political kind as well as the physical. The candidates have announced for school board, the hospital board and the city council. To some of you these races may not hold too much interest, and you probably don't intend to pay too much attention to the outcome of the various races, or participate in assuring that qualified people are elected to the various positions.

However, if you gave it a little thought, you might be surprised to realize that those who will be elected will be handling hundreds of thousands of your tax dollars. They will not only direct the expenditures of these funds, but will also be the driving force behind the policies followed by the various agencies involved. In short, the welfare of our community is placed in the hands of those to be elected. A serious and concerned public should manifest itself on election day.

Those grass fires of a few weeks ago have resulted in at east one good thing. Mike Moore has taken the lead in getting local ranchers to purchase CB radios for the fire trucks to enhance communications. More and more we are seeing the tremendous value this equipment has in emergency situations. The cost is small compared to the value the units will have in future fire situations . . . and you know those situations are coming.

Warmer weather seems to bring out the sporting blood in us all, and this last week of more pleasant temperatures has been no exception. The Eldorado Tennis Club started play Monday night, and some new faces made their appearance. Marylue Olson said she "had a ball", but reported that husband Phil thought you were supposed to use a racquet like a baseball bat. Phil retorted that it was just his Norwegian backhand. Ruthy Dacy was nimble as ever and in good form in spite of an ankle injury last Fall. I didn't even try . . . I'm still recovering from jamming my left elbow into one of the Rocky Mountains up in Colorado recently. My skis left me with no visible means of support and I've suffered from it ever since! (There's a moral there somewhere.)

We don't like to brag, we just want you to enjoy those anemonies in our office flowerbox too. I never got such returns in my life for so small an investment. In case you haven't looked, slow down the next time you drive by and see a little of God's handiwork. When I planted those bulbs last year and had known which ones were what color, we could have come up with a bicentennial flowerbox.

Well, we've gotta shear the goats. That means about six Hostesses were Mrs Ken weeks of weather worry, and you're right in the middle of a Ogden, Mrs W.A. Van situation where you need a good rain and can't really afford t . . . especially if its cold . . . which it most likely will be. Ranchmen all over the Plateau face this dilemma twice each year, and if they get by without losing those delicate animals, they are lucky indeed. This time the risk is really there when you consider that a two year old mutton in the hair is worth about $55. Out of the hair, a cold rain makes him only buzzard food. Oh, for the life of a rancher!

Let's Pause A Minute

A Message from Eldorado's Ministerial Alliance

by Gene Stark, Minister First Baptist Church

In I Peter 2:9, 10 Peter describes Christians as God's chosen people. Just as ancient Israel became God's chosen people when they pledged themselves to the covenant found in Exodus 19, Christians, the new spiritual Israel, have covenanted with God through the salvation in which they have trusted. This salvation was made possible through the death and resurrection of the Lord Jesus. As God's new people, according to the Spirit, Christians are a people of purpose. God's people, who have experienced a spiritual rebirth, are a "chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a people of his own, that we might show forth the priases of him who hath called us out of darkness into his

We are living in a time when much interest is geared toward the idea of "roots". Alex Haley's quest for his personal roots led him to Africa and the beginning of his family through the people who lived in a tiny village. With that knowledge, he had a sense of "roots" that he had never known before. The people of God, born-against Christians, have their roots in the promises of God. The one who said we must be reborn (John 3), also said he would never forsake us. The people of God have spiritual roots that grow deeper than any earthly kind of roots. God's people are precious in his sight. Christians are God's very delight. They are his favored people. They are his precious

In Malachi, God's children are compared to jewels, or precious stones. Consider the characteristics of a jewel. A jewel is formed in the earth, hewn and fashioned and polished by a master craftsman and made to be a thing of beauty and infinite value. When God, the Master Craftsman of life, shapes and forms our lives, how we can sparkle and bring joy to others! But, as his people, as his treasured jewels, we must allow the rough places to be smoothed away. Sometimes the cutting is deep and penetrating. Sometimes it takes a long time to transform the diamond-in-the-rough into anything of worth and beauty. But when the transformation is complete, a diamond may be used to cut another stone, to add more jewels to the crown. Let us then not be content to remain hidden and untouched in the dark recesses of the earth, but rather give ourselves over to Him in whose hands our lights will shine out before men to illuminate a sin-sick world!

Indeed, Christians are people with purpose in living. We are to proclaim that God has brought us out of the darkness of sin into the light of his presence through the forgiveness found in His Son, As the people of God, we have an exciting adventure to live. We can lead others to the fulfillment in life that we possess.

If you have not been reborn spiritually, you can be. If you are not a spiritual child in the heavenly Father, you can be. Trust in the Lord Jesus (John 3:16) and join the people of God in a congregation of your choice. The godly person has roots that no other roots can replace. The godly person has strength that cannot come from anything or anyone, but his heavenly Father. It is said of the child of God, "And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth its fruit in its season; its leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper" (Psalm 1:3). That's the kind of roots the world craves and needs!

Life Insurance -An Important TELEVISION ENTERPRISES, INC. Decision

A decision to buy life insurance should depend on needs of those who will receive its benefits, Lynn Bourland, a family resource management

"Adequate life insurance is one way to have financial security for a family in case the wage earner(s) should die--and it provides protection from debt collectors to a single person's heirs.

"Also, life insurance enables anyone with a modest income and little savings to build an estate large enough for surviving dependents to continue their accustomed standard of living," she said.

Miss Bourland is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System--and she is author of "Life Insurance" (MP 1262), a publication available through County Extension Offices statewide. Among its several topics, the publication includes a chart to help families "size-up" their insurance needs, she

In determining whose life should be insured, it is most important to first protect a family from losing the main wage earner's income. A single person who owes no large debts has little need for life insurance, the specialist * said.

How much insurance a * family needs depends on the number and ages of children, the surviving spouse's earning power, and the amount of other resources dependents will have.

A minimum of four or five times the main wage earner's annual income is recommended by money management experts, Miss .. Bourland said.

"Also consider other financial factors that life insurance can protect.

"For example, in 1974, incomes were earned by 55 * per cent of the wives in U.S. families. In addition to dollars earned, services provided by the homemaker -that would have to be replaced by paid help -- should be considered.

"Before buying insurance on a child's life, remember to first adequately insure the main wage earners," she added.
