WASHINGTON BY GEORGE DURNO
Grade A—
 Prof. Rex Tugwell took a licking on his food and drug control bill for this session of congress even though Senator Copeland adopted it and reworked it several times.

The much-publicized Assistant Secretary of Agriculture didn't leave the arena however without winning one modicum of comfort for the conservative groups that backed his measure.

When he couldn't get congress to play along with him Tugwell went quietly to the White House and salvaged everything he could that didn't require new legislation.

It consisted of an amendment to the Canning Industry code requiring that by August 30 the canners must establish definite standards of food quality and start printing them on their labels.

President Roosevelt's inclusion of the quality standards clause in the canning code is being hailed as a victory for the nine women's organizations that fought most vigorously for the food and drug bill.

Derogation—
 Prof. Tugwell, who inherited the No. 1 mantle of the Brain Trust from Ray Moley, continues to be the target of an adroit attack that keeps his name constantly in print—usually in somewhat unfavorable light.

WE STILL ARE INFANTS IN SOCIAL PROGRESS

The fact that modern civilization has two faces, one of which has been modeled with much more skill than the other, comes close to being the basic point of all our troubles. These two faces are the material realm of science, invention, and technical progress, on the one side, and the social realm of human relations, emotions, and mass thinking, on the other.

The former is very far advanced; the latter is a constant reminder that we are relatively only a few generations out of barbarism. A striking illustration of this was furnished not long ago by Dr. William E. Wickenden, president of the Case School of Applied Science.

Suppose, says Dr. Wickenden, that you translate the history of the human race, covering approximately a million years, into the terms of a man's lifetime. Suppose that the race, in other words, is a man of 50 years old. How long has the race been civilized? "In terms of personal adjustment rather than race adjustment," he answers, "it is as if civilization had begun only 19 days ago, as if a cumulative science went back only to midnight and a habit of deliberate invention only to this morning, and the age of electric power had begun about the time we reached our offices this morning."

In other words, we have been out of the wilderness only a very short time and our acquisition of those complex tools by which modern society is maintained dates back only an hour or so. That being the case, it is small wonder that we have not yet discovered how to extract the utmost in human values from the machines which our ingenuity has devised. We have done marvelously

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN - I. Labor Policy

The experience of the last sixty years shows with reasonable certainty that labor disputes tend to become acute in the last phase of depression and in the first phase of revival. Evidence to support this generalization can be found by examining the "Business Annals" compiled by Professor W. L. Thorp and published by the National Bureau of Economic Research. This book lists the main economic and political events of each year of American history which made it or marked it as a year of "prosperity," "recession," "depression," or "revival."

WHEN THE LAW SPEAKS

The language of the law can be a delight to the layman—when it isn't a pain in the neck. In Italy a farmer let a pig stray into the road. A motorist swerved aside when the pig refused to move, and damaged his car. He sued the farmer for damages, holding the farmer responsible for the pig's acts. The case finally reached the supreme court, which rendered its decision as follows: "When the comportment of an animal, without going into the hypothesis of fault or force majeure, sets in motion elements which otherwise would have remained inert, and these elements in turn, through no fault of their own, but due to

But it is not until 1922, when the recovery was under way, that there are serious strikes in coal and in the railroad shops. After that there are no important labor troubles of national significance until 1933-1934.

This is a perfect proof of the generalization that labor troubles come at the turning point of the business cycle. I should not venture to assert, but the evidence is good enough to justify us in recognizing that our present labor troubles are by no means unprecedented at this stage of recovery.

That is a good thing to recognize. It helps to deflate the notion that we are confronted with something utterly new in our experience. It is good to deflate that notion because to deflate it is to strengthen the hands of those who wish to take a moderate and conciliatory attitude. The record shows clearly enough why such an attitude is justified, and from the record of past experience one can draw, I believe, certain very useful ideas for judging these controversies.

The first is that labor unrest at the end of a slump is fundamentally a sign that labor has recovered confidence in the economic future and is taking steps to participate in the profits. In the worst phase of a depression there are no strikes because labor is too frightened. The docility of the wage-earner might almost be called his equivalent of hoarding. He hoards his job fearing to lose it. But when revival begins his courage revives, and since we have not yet reached a level of civilization where the wages bargain can always be made intelligently, the wage-earner's new courage takes the form of unrest and strikes.

The second point is that the acuteness of the unrest will be roughly proportionate to the failure of industrial managers to convince labor that as soon as it is humanly possible labor is really to participate in the revival. That is why the refusal of an employer to meet the wage-earners and deal with them is so unenlightened and so unchevichous. If he refuses to meet them because he is unwilling to give them satisfaction, he supplies them with the moral justification for striking. If, on the other hand, he is unable to give them satisfaction because his company's earnings do not permit it, he is very short-sighted indeed if he does not make every move possible to lay the true facts before his employees. For while there will still be irreconcilables among the wage-earners, there is among the mass of workmen a fund of reason and common sense which it is stupid and wrong to ignore. The successful employer is a man who not only means to let labor participate in recovery, but proceeds on the assumption that he can make a fair case intelligible and convincing to labor. If he does not act on that assumption, he undermines the position of the wisest labor leaders and plays straight into the hands of their extremist rivals.

The third point is that a final settlement of the labor problem is not yet in sight, that the development of what might be called a constitutional system within industry is only in its earliest beginnings. From this it follows that acute labor crises have to be dealt with by improvised adjustments, by compromise, conciliation and the like. It is no use to invoke great principles about the rights of labor or the rights of capital. For no great principles exist and none still exist until, by trial and error, we learn how to work out a system of representation, until employees and employers acquire the discipline which is needed to make representative government work, until a method of analyzing and determining the wages bargain has been invented and perfected. That is why the matter has to be approached as a question not of clear right or clear wrong, but of compromise and adjustment of patience, of moderation, of give and take. Such a view does not lend itself to rhetorical eloquence but it is the true view in most human conflicts which have not, like international affairs, for example, become organized and subject to established laws. When there are no established laws, men have to get along by the resort to diplomacy. (Copyright, 1934, New York Tribune, Inc.)

Shortage Of Relief Funds Makes It Impossible To Allocate Funds For Average Family, Says Dresden

AUSTIN, (UP)—Due to relief fund shortage in Texas, it is impossible to make an allocation of funds to a given average family of five persons that would constitute an adequate relief budget for such a family, according to Director Marie Dresden of the Texas Relief Commission.

In Texas, the establishment of family budgets is based upon the volume of funds available for relief and upon the situation in which a given family of five, for example, may find itself.

The determination of such budgetary relief requirements is placed in the hands of the social service staff of the Texas relief commission. Case investigators, in determining the basis for the budget in a family of five, take numerous factors into consideration.

Geographical location of the family is important. Under normal circumstances, a family of five may be more sustaining—all else being equal—in the balmy south Texas area than in the drought stricken area of the Panhandle.

In the wintertime, the utility expense in protecting the family groups from cold would increase the relief cost to a family of five residing in Amarillo in comparison to another family of similar size in Brownsville.

Should tragedy come into the family of five, afflicting children with tuberculosis or rickets, both which are on the increase among destitute children, a special diet for these persons would increase the cost of relief.

Medical cost, dental treatment and hospitalization are other factors. Where acute or chronic illness makes professional services necessary, this gives cause to a disproportionate relief cost for which the state must pay. Seasonal garden possibilities enter into budget making for a family of five. In certain regions of Texas, gardening is possible over a long season. In these areas, family budget reductions are the rule. At the same moment, in drought areas, a family of similar size may cost the state thrice the amount of the former.

Rural and urban living conditions and requirements are an important factor to be considered in family relief costs. A family may be sustained more cheaply, as a rule, in rural areas than in large cities where rents and other living costs are higher.

Possibilities of periodic employment must be regarded. Many families are taken from a relief roll temporarily when even temporary employment is available to adult family members.

Family resources as an outstanding factor. Home-ownership, the presence of relatives with modest but independent income, and similar items are subject to close attention by relief agents.

In Texas, the average relief cost of maintaining a given family of five will vary in accordance with the above and other factors that effect a family budget. This will range all the way from $8 to $30 per month and it obviously becomes almost impossible to give a flat, artificial average relief cost per family under such circumstances.

The average cost of relief per family (not a family of five, but a family) throughout the state is $10 per month. Probably the average would be $12 for a family of five. This is not sufficient to give complete relief as would be given if additional funds were available.

A. K. Merrick Demonstrates That Good Living May Be Had On Farm

Raises For Needs And Cans For Off Season, He Explains

BY O. P. GRIFFIN
County Agent

That an independent living can be made on a Howard county farm is well demonstrated on the farm of A. K. Merrick, one mile west of the Lamesa Highway 5 miles west of Big Spring. "We have always tried to raise everything we need and to can for off seasons" is Mr. Merrick's way of explaining his success on this farm.

Crops on this farm of 320 acres with 285 acres of crop land this year consist of cotton 112 acres—feed crops including Milo, Kaffir and Hegari 60 acres. Several plantings of corn and peas at different times for a succession of raising ears and green peas for the table—20 acres of melons—40 acres of pasture planted to sudan and sorghums—30 acres to be planted about July 1st to corn and forage crops and beans.

Beside these field crops the Merrick farm has a large garden irrigated from two wells. In this garden there are now growing water-melons, cantaloupes, string beans, cucumbers, Irish potatoes, tomatoes, okra, pepper and lima beans. A successive planting of these and other vegetables together with corn and peas from the fields furnish an abundant supply of fresh green vegetables almost the year round.

Mr. Merrick, while providing such abundance of vegetables for his table does not neglect the livestock products necessary for a well balanced diet. On his farm are 6 milk cows and heifers, two broods sows and hogs to produce pork and bacon, and 150 white Leghorn hens. From the crops listed above it will be seen that these will be well taken care of with both pasture and feed.

But while this is a well balanced farm it is also a cotton farm. Last year after plowing up 63 acres of cotton it produced 60 bales on the remaining 95 acres.

Mr. Merrick has lived on this farm for 24 years. He has raised a family of 10 children and paid for the farm in that time. He has gone through several droughts but has seldom had to buy any feed. The fact that he has "tried to raise everything we need" has contributed very largely to his success.

The Newark, N. J., city commission plans to buy the house in which Stephen Crane, author of "The Red Badge of Courage" was born and to convert it into a recreational center for children.

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Karin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you feel sweet and buoyant and full of vitality.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-side and feeling in your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. You often break out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Expect Record Attendance At Drug Men's Meet

SNYDER, Tex. (UP)—President Lee T. Stinson of the Texas Pharmaceutical association, expressed the opinion here that the 25th annual session of the organization at Mineral Wells June 18 to 21 will break the attendance record of 2,300 set in 1927.

Probably the chief harbinger of a banner convention, Stinson said, is heavy sale of lapel buttons, which are being worn by druggists and drug salesmen from one end of the state to the other. Each button carries a picture of Stinson, with the caption, "Meet Him in Mineral Wells June 18-21." The executive committee of the state druggists' group is composed of: Stinson; Shine Philips, Big Spring, vice president; Walter D. Adams, Forney, secretary; and Sam P. Harben, Richardson; John B. Ray, Abilene; B. B. Brown, Dallas; E. H. Oliver, Longview; Henry F. Helm, San Antonio; and L. S. Cooper, Corsicana.

Tarrant County Negroes May Get To Vote July 28

FORT WORTH, (UP)—Negroes may be allowed to vote in a Tarrant county Democratic primary election for the first time on July 28.

County Democratic Chairman Hugh Small is considering the question, after a delegation of negroes called on him. Small will place the matter before the county committee when it holds its next meeting.

"Personally, I do not see how we can exclude negroes any longer, in face of the United States supreme court decision holding that negroes have a right to vote in a primary," Small said.

Small was referring to the Nix case which went to the higher courts from El Paso.

In 1932, the first election year after the decision was handed down, the local committee stepped around the negro voting question by ignoring the petitions of the negroes.

Candidates in the past have opposed the negro vote. Small pointed out, claiming that to campaign among them would complicate matters. Many candidates also fear negroes would vote in blocks instead of expressing individual choices.

Small doubted this. He estimated the negro vote would be negligible, that out of about 1,500 qualified to vote in Tarrant county, only about 500 would do so.

It was indicated the Tarrant county committee would request the state Democratic executive committee to authorize county committees to use their discretion in handling the negro vote question.

Golden Eagle Bus Lines Seek Permit For Intrastate Hauls

Charles C. Boynton, Dallas, district manager of Golden Eagle Bus Lines, was in Big Spring Wednesday on company business. Mr. Boynton was here circulating a petition asking Big Spring people to sign it, in order to help the company, which is conducting an interstate business in Texas, to secure intrastate rights for their bus line. The company will seek a hearing before the railroad commission of Texas shortly, asking that intrastate rights be given the company that they might be able to carry passengers to destinations within the state. The company at present is allowed to carry passengers through the state only.

Late Wednesday afternoon a large number of signers had been obtained. The Golden Eagle line maintains a division point at Big Spring at present, and, according to Mr. Boynton, if his company is allowed intrastate rights, their schedules will be materially increased, affording three trips each way each day.

"If the Texas railroad commission grants us a permit for intrastate business, it is going to make possible for Texas a sleeper coach service, effective October 1st. We will have on the sleeper coaches at weight of about 14,000 pounds loaded, accommodations for eighteen passengers to the bus. These coaches will also be air-conditioned and beautifully stream-lined," said Boynton.

Mr. Boynton is visiting cities and towns in West Texas which would be served by the new service, if the railroad commission grants his company the permit. No date has been set for a hearing before the commission, said Boynton. The petitions will be used in support of the company claims for granting of the permit, Boynton said.

HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

Surely No More Elegant Whiskers Than These Were Ever Seen Anywhere

Men of fate in the days before the World War. Here are the two cousins who ruled over hundreds of millions of men, Czar Nicholas of Russia, left, in English uniform, and King George V of England, right, in Russian regimentals, a quaint courtesy observed among the royal rulers of that time—when visiting each other.

Mrs. Leslie Carter, who won fame playing Maryland Calvert in "The Heart of Maryland," went on under David Belasco's management to become one of the leading figures on the American stage. Many remember her as "Zaza" and "Du Barry." Here she is at the height of her long career.

Women suffrage is so taken for granted today that it is hard to realize that these women are wearing prison garb for their part in fighting for it. Arrested in the disorders which went with agitation for suffrage, these women are lined up for transport to Holloway prison in London.

His baton was a scepter that ruled the field of martial music in America for 39 years. John Philip Sousa, "The March King," is shown here as he looked at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893. No parade is complete today without "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

No mystery story ever ran into so blank a wall as the real story of Dorothy Arnold, beautiful heiress who stepped out of a Fifth Avenue store one day in 1911 and was never seen again. Every paper in the country ran Dorothy's picture, and her frantic parents spent more than $100,000 seeking a trace. Kidnaped? Murdered? Just disappeared? No one ever found out. The mystery was complete.

Opening Day Fair Crowd Breaks Record

Throngs once more lined the famed Avenue of Flags when the new World's Fair opened in Chicago May 26. A crowd of 154,663 broke the 1933 opening day record of 119,675. Visitors were surprised to find the Exposition actually completed. Foreign villages and the new exhibits proved most popular with sightseers. Above is shown a section of the opening parade, in which 10,000 marched.

Cosden No. One Team Defeats Herald Type Lice

Hard Hitting Outfit Wins

Refinery Crew Scores Four Runs In First Two Innings

A hard hitting Cosden soft ball team was too much for the Herald Type Lice Wednesday, and the Cosdenites blasted out a 4 to 2 victory over the newspaper aggregation.

Cosden went to bat first and tabbed two runs in quick order. Martin led off with a hard line drive over third that was good for three bases. West doubled to score Martin and Moxley doubled to center-field to bring West in.

The Heraldites put two on base in their half of the first frame, but failed to count any when M. Burleson missed second base and was called out.

The Cosdenites completed their scoring in the second inning when they added two more runs. Tarras tripled to center-field and raced home on a good hit by Smith, Refinery left-fielder. Smith added on a single.

The Type Lice opened their scoring guns in the second inning when Savage scored. Curly Ebbs added the second and last run in the fourth inning.

Beaumont Boy Wins 9th Game

Exporters Hold Dallas To Two Hits In Five To Three Win

DALLAS, (AP)—"Red" Phillips, tall Beaumont right-hander won his ninth game this season when he stopped the Dallas Steers Wednesday night, 5 to 3. Phillips limited the opposition to two hits. His mates gave him ragged support, making five costly errors, but the errors apparently did not bother "Red" who fired his bullet-like speed ball over the plate. The exports pounded little Sal Ghattio for seven hits, bunching most of them in the fifth for three runs.

The game was called at the end of the eighth to allow Beaumont time to catch a train.

MISSIONS 4, BUCS 3

GALVESTON—Clarence Feiber was too good for the Galveston Buccaneers here Wednesday night, his left-hand work sending the homelings to a four hit 4-2 defeat. A combination of two errors and a base on balls before anyone was retired in the ninth caused his removal, but before that he was in rare form. He fanned eight.

PANTHERS & BUFFS 1

FORT WORTH—Art McHenry's Texas leaguer into right field in the eighth inning, scoring two runs enabled the Cats to defeat Houston, 5 to 1, here Wednesday. George Anderson followed with a double to bring the third tally.

The Robinsonites may find Sam Warren's Midland Hokus Pokus soft ball team a tough bunch to crack when they journey to Midland Friday night. But as soon as lights are erected here the Midlanders will return the game playing with the 14-inch outasm ball and performing on a 45 foot bases instead of 60 foot.

Tulsa Oilers tallied six runs in the fourth inning and coasted to an easy victory here Wednesday over the Oklahoma City Indians, 10 to 4.

A pick up from "Hank" Hankins, Midland: "A little nigger was calling a ball game. 'Strike one!' he yelled, and the big black at the bat glowered at him. A moment later: 'Two!' said the little nigger with less enthusiasm. 'Two what? What you tryin' to say, nigger?' the big one said, fixing him with a wintry glare. 'Two-high!' the converted one quavered.

The more one reads about the pending Baer-Carner's tussle the more jumbled the situation gets. Press reports have been very conflicting. A United Press report: "Baer continues to concentrate on the body, and shook off Johnson's barrage with grunts and grins. He went two rounds each with Dynamite Jackson, Ciel Harris and Ray Laxer, winding up with six rounds of gymnasium work. MAXIE APPEARED IN EXCELLENT CONDITION."

An Associated Press story: "Both Manager Hoffmann and Jack Dempsey agree Baer is still FAR FROM HIS PEAK, and the former said he would ask the New York State Athletic Commission to postpone the fight when he and Baer appear before the solons Friday morning."

Ernie Gross (Casey Jones), who started weekly wrestling matches here a few weeks ago, has faded from sight and with Jones has gone the wrestling. Casey left word that he would be back shortly, but nothing has been heard from him.

WHAT A TIRE! WHAT A TIRE!

IF YOU think the non-skid tread on your present tires wore out too soon — you're right!

Ordinary treads can't stand the strain of modern driving.

But come in today and see a tire that will!

The new "G-3" All-Weather! It has a wider tread — flatter tread — more rubber in the tread — more non-skid blocks in the center of the tread — and gives 43% longer non-skid mileage than the best previous Goodyear All-Weather.

No matter what car you drive — no matter how you drive — this tire will give you more safety — AT NO EXTRA COST!

WARNING!
Watch the rest of the industry try to copy this amazing tire. Watch them try to duplicate Goodyear's claims. But, remember, you have to have "non-skid" before you can have "non-skid mileage." And to have "non-skid," you have to have GRIP where you see it here—GRIP in the center of the tread—the place where it counts, because it's the spot where the tire contacts the road. Look at the grip on this Goodyear Tire and ask yourself why buy any tire that lacks this safety? And keep in mind that you cannot successfully build this type of non-skid tire without the extra-durability of Supertwist cords.

Grocery Contingent Plays Game With Only Nine Players

The Linck soft ball team made strong rally Wednesday to defeat Cosden No. 2 team 24 to 20 in a league game.

The grocery contingent, in order to keep from having to forfeit the game, played with only nine players, one short of a full line-up. Several of the Linck regulars were ill and unable to play.

The Linckmen were on the short end of the score from the start and were trailing 14 to 6 at the end of the fifth inning.

They went to bat in the sixth and led off with six consecutive hits. The Refinery boys lost their hold before the batting attack and went to pieces, the Linck team piling up 18 runs in the last two innings to nose out the Cosdenites by four runs.

B. Rockhold Makes Ace On Municipal Links Wednesday

Beverly Rockhold became a member of the "Hole-In-One" club Wednesday morning when he scored number five on the Municipal golf course.

Rockhold was playing with Vernon Mason when he made the shot. He used a spoon. It was the first ace made on the Munny course, Charles Akey said.

Number five is a short 143-yard par three hole. Beverly played the difficult nine-hole course in 40, only four strokes above par.

Chicago Wins In 6th Inning

Manager Frisch Ousted From Field After Encounter With Umpire

ST. LOUIS—A six run rally in the thirteenth inning Wednesday gave the Chicago Cubs a 12 to 6 victory over the Cardinals, and pushed the latter club from the league leadership. Manager Frank Frisch, of the Cards, was ousted from the field after a twelfth-inning encounter with Umpire Rigger.

GIANTS & BOSTON 3
NEW YORK—Carl Hubbell pitched his eighth victory of the season for the Giants Wednesday beating Boston 6 to 2, as his mates bunched Huck Betts for five runs in the first inning. It was the Giants 19th victory in 25 home games.

PHILLIES 12, DODGERS 4
PHILADELPHIA—All sorts of things happened to the unhappy Brooklyn Dodgers as they lost their straight game to the Phillies Wednesday, 12 to 4.

Four pitchers were bombed out of action, Catcher Al Lopez was cashed from the game by Umpire Magerkurth in the seventh and in the same inning Tonyney Frey was spiked by Dick Bartell at second base.

PIRATES WIN TWICE
CINCINNATI—Pittsburgh's Pirates gathered two games from the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday, the first by a timely single, the last by the heavy hitting of the Waner boys.

The scores were 3 to 1 and 5 to 1, with the last game credited to Birkofer, a rookie pitcher from the Cincinnati sandlots.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE

BY WALTER C. BROWN

Chapter 24
AMBIGUOUS REFLIES

"The usual place for Mr. Dufresne's gun is in the highboy in the dressing-room," Harper asked. Andrews nodded in agreement. "Now, does any other member of this household keep a gun or revolver on hand?"

"Donaghy, sir, he has a special permit to carry a weapon. Mr. Dufresne's order."

"What type of gun is it?"

"An automatic. I am not familiar with others."

"Any others?"

"Not that I know of, unless you want to take account of the guns in Mr. Dufresne's armor room."

The detective smiled and shook his head. "No, I've seen them and they're all antique collectors' pieces."

"Are you still positive that you do not recognize the murderer's man?"

"Look at these photos again."

The old man examined the three facial views without the slightest sign of hesitancy or repugnance. "He is a complete stranger to me," he reiterated, returning them.

"Then how about Hamill, the policeman? Did you ever talk to him?"

"No, sir. No doubt I have seen him in the neighborhood at times, but I never paid any particular attention."

"All right, Andrews. That will be all for the present. If there are more questions we'll deal with them as they arise."

The butler withdrew as quietly as he had entered, leaving Harper feeling highly elated over the success of his ruse. It was plain that old Andrews suspected nothing about the revolver which had been reposed in his master's room, and, since it was gone, Dufresne himself had probably made off with it. The promptness of the hiding, too, suggested that Dufresne had been the eavesdropper by the cellar stairs.

The important thing was to gain possession of that gun. At that moment Lafferty returned to the breakfast-room. "There's no doubt of its being gone," he reported. "I looked everywhere. Dufresne walked in while I was searching."

"How did he act?" Harper asked eagerly.

"Suspicious and inclined to be a little nasty about it. How did you come out?"

"Andrews readily admitted that the revolver is Dufresne's."

"Then Dufresne hid it," Lafferty declared emphatically. "It's too bad we have to tread so damned quietly there."

"What do you mean?"

Lafferty gave a wry smile. "Why, Dufresne's the one man we simply can't pin it on. He's the only one of the lot with a 100% bulletproof alibi. He was not only dead drunk at the time of the killing but looked away under police guard. Yet he knew that the fellow was shot with that gun and not by Hamill's, otherwise he wouldn't have hidden it. Say," he exclaimed, looking startled, "how in thunder did he come to know that?"

Harper echoed his wonder. "Yes, how did he know that? Maybe we're barking up the wrong tree again. Suppose it wasn't Dufresne who removed the gun? Either the murderer himself slipped away with that gun or else confided the story to Dufresne, and he's covering up for him. Now we know that the murderer is not only alive, but walking around in this house."

Lafferty scratched his chin thoughtfully. "If we could only get that dead man identified. Somebody in this house knows and is deliberately suppressing his identity."

Harper smiled. "We can wear kid gloves, too, but we'll keep the brass knuckles slipped on under them."

"You mark my words, Steve. This minute you let fly with the facts we've uncovered there'll be a yelp and they'll try to run us off this case so it can be nailed up and buried in a hurry."

Harper's lips tightened. "Just let them try it. I'll carry this fight right up to the Director's office. Powerful as Dufresne may be, Connors won't let them hush it up by pinning it on Hamill."

They heard Officer O'Connell's voice from the hall greeting some one and a moment later Acting Captain Quigley, of the Fourteenth Precinct, entered the room.

"I got your message, Sergeant," Quigley explained. "What's on your mind?"

"There are plenty of puzzling features, Captain. But what I want to ask some questions about Officer Hamill. First, what was his rating on marksmanship?"

"First class," Quigley answered promptly. "Hamill's had a sharpshooter's citation for years."

As Harper remained silent, the Captain of the Fourteenth went on. "I see what's in your mind, Harper, but even a rotten shot could top his man over at that distance."

"There's much more to it than that," the Sergeant answered. "What about Hamill's personality? Was he nervous, hasty, quick to use his gun?"

"No, no, nothing like that. Just the opposite. Hamill was a quiet, cool chap, very sure of himself. His theory was that guns should be used only as a last resort."

"Tell me this, Captain. Did Hamill know Mr. Dufresne by sight? Did he know that the Dufresne house was untenanted at this time?"

"Your first question I can't answer definitely, but I don't believe he did. I've been attached to the Fourteenth for eight years and I never met him. The answer to your second question is 'Yes.' Last June I got a notice was filed with us that the Dufresne family was leaving for the summer. This notice was given by a John Whitmore. Know him?"

Harper nodded. "He's one of the servants here."

"Have you any record of an automobile found abandoned in this district? Were any cars tagged last night for illegal or overnight parking?"

Quigley looked surprised. "Not one, Harper. Nobody with any sense would have left a car out in that storm."

"Well, I appreciate your help, Captain. I've got a much clearer picture of Hamill, at any rate."

The commander of the Fourteenth Precinct took his leave and Harper rose from the table. "I guess it's time we twisted the lion's tail," he remarked. "We'll get Mr. Dufresne's personal opinion on guns that disappear into thin air."

The detective, however, was spared the trouble of sending for the master of the house for at that moment Pierre Dufresne himself walked into the breakfast-room.

"Good morning, Mr. Dufresne," Harper greeted him. "This is my colleague, Detective Lafferty. You probably saw him around here last night."

"Yes, and this morning, too—exploring my wardrobe. How are things going, Sergeant?"

"Oh, as well as can be expected," Harper replied casually. "There is so much routine in a case like this. By the way, Mr. Dufresne, I must list the firearms on the premises. Can you give me a list?"

"Firearms, Harper? Well, taking myself first—I have a gun, of course, and a police permit to carry it, although I have never availed myself of the privilege. Do you require details, Harper?"

"If you please."

"This gun is an automatic action, caliber .38. I believe, though I am not sure. It is so long since I handled it. It has never been fired. I'm glad to say."

"And where is it now?"

"At the Asstairite."

Harper was making notations of these replies. "Do you not keep a gun here in this house?" He kept his voice as casual as possible.

"Certainly—the automatic. I keep it wherever I am staying, but I do not carry it about with me."

"My chauffeur, Donaghy," he continued, "carries a gun whenever he is on duty."

"Quite so, Mr. Dufresne. You did not have your gun with you yesterday afternoon when you were ambushed?"

"No. As I said, I never carry it. It is too awkward, too bulky. I would feel ridiculous with one bulging out of my pocket."

The detective grinned. "Are there any more guns in the house?"

"Not of my knowledge nor my consent."

"That settles that, then," Harper pronounced, treating the inner meaning of his words.

Dufresne's glance played over the miscellaneous objects scattered across the detective's work-table. "Now that the thing is over, I don't mind admitting that I was frightened by those threats and after that adventure yesterday afternoon I felt pretty shaky. When do you expect to close up shop here?"

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) Administrator takes inside their cases would be handled just as expeditiously if they stayed home and give him their much more time for work. But nearly a dozen instances have developed recently where correspondents of out-of-town newspapers have searched frantically and vainly around PWA headquarters for groups they had been advised were enroute. The hunts came to an end in hotel suites where the travelers were enjoying their jynkets without a thought of bothering Ickes et al. A member of a delegation from one mid-western city returned home and put in his expense account at city hall. One item for $300 which was questioned was explained away as a liquor bill "to break the ice." The men at PWA say it would take quite a few of them to drink $300 worth. They lament that they didn't get a drop.

Marksmen

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has taken official notice of the wave of gangster machine gunnery that continues to harass the nation. The U. S. Coast Guard has experts to train its men in pistol and rifle marksmanship. Morgenthau has ordered that all Treasury agents whose duties require them to carry firearms should take the Coast Guard course and qualify. The newest group of federal marksmen will include Secret Service, narcotic agents, Customs inspectors, Border Patrol and Treasury Department guards who stand watch over all those millions in gold.

Consolidation

Morgenthau has hopes of uniting the Customs Bureau, Border Patrol and Coast Guard into a unified agency for patrolling our land and sea borders against smuggling. If the President can be persuaded to say nothing of Madame Secretary Perkins—the Treasury chief would like to include the Immigration Service, now under the Department of Labor. He argues there's obvious increased efficiency and economy to be had. It will be next winter before this can be put over. Such consolidations are accomplished by Executive Order which must be before congress for sixty days, becoming effective if not vetoed.

Independent

Rep. Henry B. Steagall of Ozark, Ala., chairman of the powerful house banking and currency committee, has demonstrated an independence of thought, this session that has run him afoot of the White House on several major concessions.

At the moment administration officials are a little peeved at him because he didn't give their new housing bill more enthusiastic support in committee.

He last tangled with the White House by holding out for a guarantee of federal bank deposits up to $10,000. Mr. Roosevelt finally called Steagall on the phone and told him the administration was more interested at present in helping little fellows than those who can maintain $10,000 bank balances. The White House preferred a $2,500 maximum continued.

Notes

"Prematurely born quintuplets in Canada show how the New Deal is spreading," sniffs Republican Leader Clegg. Japan's best posted naval expert with diplomatic experience is assigned to Washington as naval attache. The son of China's minister to Washington is about to marry the richest heiress in China. The ceremony will take place in London. Truckloads of speeches delivered—or purporting to have been delivered—at this session of congress are going out for campaign purposes. Uncle Sam pays the freight. A fine airplane in bronze adorns Jim Farley's floor in the new Postoffice Department. It looks like a mail plane.

NEW YORK BY JAME McMULLIN

Britain is rapidly approaching an exchange crisis and may adopt dramatic remedies to meet it. Local authorities say the pound is overvalued at present levels against our 50 cent dollar and must soon show noticeable weakness. This in itself wouldn't hurt British feelings but might easily lead to an embarrassing exodus of funds—including the huge demand deposits of American and other foreign capitalists who thought London was the safest place to leave their money. Such withdrawals in volume would seriously cripple Britain's financial dealings. A slight but significant trickle of cash from London to New York began last week. So don't be surprised some morning to find that proud Britain has suddenly taken the undignified step of applying rigid exchange restrictions. If this is done in the manner insiders expect, it will be virtually impossible for those who have money in London to get it out except in the form of British goods. That would buoy British exports and deliver the pound from the mercies of foreign speculators. This might be a setback to sterling bloc plans but experts say that would be preferable to the disruption which would follow an important flight of capital.

Effect

Such a move might hamstring the American patriots who rushed their cash into English balances for safekeeping. It would not interfere with our government. Rather it might help plans for long range international stabilization. London will probably be more willing to talk turkey with us if she has an emergency of her own to meet.

Morgan

The informed say that J. P. Morgan & Co. will close the books of its securities business this week and will then be entirely free to qualify as a bank of deposit under the Act of 1933. The firm's decision to stick to commercial banking avoids current legal complications but does not imply that the securities business has been chucked out the window for good. A new securities firm can be organized at any time with Morgan capital behind it. Meanwhile the partnership will continue to function as an effective unit. Wall Street still has considerable respect for Morgan judgment and the implied lack of confidence in the future of the securities business has left its mark. This will have a dampening effect on enthusiasm for new corporate issues. Already several underwriting houses begin to wonder whether they haven't been over-optimistic about the value of amendments to the Securities Act.

The Morgans haven't attempted to influence the views of other firms directly but indirectly their abstention will complicate considerably the problem of corporate re-funding.

Future

A Morgan partner recently told a friend that one reason the house isn't interested in the securities business is because it hasn't any important customers to take care of in the refinancing field until 1935. A large block of Great Northern 7s matures in January of that year. Of course the house has an interest in smaller issues which come due before then but most of them can be privately handled through the cooperation of other bankers—a Laekawanna—without official Morgan participation.

Trades

Private bankers who are sticking to the securities and are advising their foreign depositors they must shift their funds elsewhere—and frequently recommending a specific new depository. These friendly gestures are by way of a trade for cooperation later from commercial banking sources. The deposits were chiefly useful to back up underwritings. Without them new credit lines are needed to give the proper financial background. It's forethought to pave the way for them now.

Sectional

Mr. Roosevelt's Gettysburg speech impressed New York chiefly by his attack on sectionalism. The informed comment it was both timely and significant. New Yorkers recently returned from visits around the country report there's plenty of sectional feeling left—enough to jeopardize national programs unless curbed. It's said to be chiefly noticeable in New England.

Cream

United Airlines faces the first real threat to its New York-Chicago business—cream of the crop—this summer when TWA gets enough new Douglas transports to provide more frequent service as promised. TWA now flies two daily round trips in better time than United—though its route is longer. United's answer is "commuter service every hour on the hour." The competition may mean more business to both lines—but not for the railroads.

Lost

Aircraft interests find their fears of the McKenna testimony were justified. Local sources report the Congressional Record—carrying the British charges of inferiority against U. S. planes—has been used to such good effect in South America that one U. S. company finds a $1,500,000 order slipping from its grasp. Informed observers say the total of lost business may come to several times that figure. General Mitchell's blasts at the Army Air Corps haven't helped either.

Bystander

A pioneer of commercial aviation—whose once extensive irons are now out of the fire—sums up the dismal story this way: "The administration found 1,500 railroads—and wants a few big units. It found a few big aviation units—and wants them split into jackstraws. "When you have to deal with a government that doesn't know its own mind the best thing to be is an innocent bystander."

Sidelights

Brokerage house customers' men only get one-month contracts now. They get used to for a year—then 6 months then 3 months—and what next? Some of the big wire houses have been losing as much as $5,000 a day in the recent dull markets. Former active stock traders have been busy in wheat lately. Wall Street hopes they return soon to their old love. "Kykunkor" (Witch Woman), the all-African presentation of tribal dancing and music, has built an amazing success here from a showstopping. It may become a feature at the Century of Progress with Wall Street backing. (Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Allred

(Continued From Page 1) arose and moved for continuance. Allred explained that under the laws of the state that a case was automatically continued when a member of the legislature, acting as an attorney, moved for continuance and presented an affidavit that he was a member of the legislature. Notwithstanding this fact, Allred said he had recovered more than a million dollars from one oil company alone for the "school children of Texas" and more than four millions from other sources which the land commissioner predicted would ultimately yield twenty millions. "When I opened my campaign last December, I set forth as part of my platform the immediate passage of the strictest lobby regulation law that could be placed on the statute books and I likewise denounced in no uncertain terms the practice and sale of purported influence by public officers," said Allred. "Within the past few months President Roosevelt has outlawed the same evils in our national life and legislation of the character which I proposed for the state seems now to have the brightest chance of passage in the national congress it has ever had. "It is a well known fact," the Attorney General told his Big Spring audience, "that certain selfish interests maintain high-price and high-pressure lobbies in Austin, the first purpose of which is to scuttle such legislation derogatory to their interests that cannot be defeated. "Not all of the representatives of various concerns interested in legislation at Austin must be labelled as lobbyists and grasping, of course. But there are lobbyists who are slyly scheming who will employ every crafty device in a complete repertoire of tricks to reach the ear of a legislator. This type will not hesitate at intimidation to attain their purposes. "Bogus of our honest business institutions have been driven to a semblance of these same underhand practices purely for self-defense. Thus, my friends, legitimate business is being made a "hapless victim. Too often the sponsors of legislation are forced to bargain with the bloc votes which the "third house"—the lobbyists—controls. "But this thing must end. Common decency demands that we pass an effective lobby regulation bill, a bill which will wipe out this evil and prove a real salvation. "Blood brother to the lobby issue and also highly important is the employment of legislators by the "big interests"—the wealthy corporations. "So long as a small bloc of the members of the legislature is permitted to accept 'retainers' from these privileged interests, the people of Texas will get no relief. Until that time comes when this and the lobby evils are eliminated, there is no hope for tax relief, no hope for adequate and effective regulation of the utilities, no hope for criminal and court reforms which we seek. "He urged strict regulation of public utilities and their rate charges. Allred was introduced here by Judge James T. Brooks who said he had observed the attorney general's rise from district attorney, that his record was good, Brooks paid a tribute to Allred as young, ambitious, aggressive and honest. He commended the attorney general to the electorate as governor of Texas.

FLORIDA WOULD SAVE BASS FOR SPORTSMEN VISITORS

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Led by the Florida Junior Chamber of Commerce, conservationists are seeking to outlaw the sale of black bass in this state on grounds that commercial selling threatens to render the species extinct. Five years ago, they said, thousands of sportmen were attracted from all parts of the nation by the bass which literally teemed in Florida's lakes and rivers. And their annual visits brought millions of dollars into the state. But now the chamber says, the word has gone out that commercial fishermen have just about doomed the species and the sportmen who spent so generously are not coming in such numbers.

ARENA BURNED IN 'YARDS' FIRE FAMOUS SPORT RING

CHICAGO, (AP)—Deater pavilion, one of the buildings reduced to twisted beams and ashes in the $10,000,000 stock yards fire, was the scene of many important sport events in its heyday. Boxing, six-day bike racing and bowling were major attractions there. Mickey Walker, Tommy Loughran, Shuffie Callahan, Benny Leonard, Johnny Coulon, Pinkie Mitchell and Jackie Fields all fought there. In 1915 "Iron Man" Reggie McNamara rode his first Chicago bike marathon there. Five years ago the American Bowling congress was held in the pavilion.

ANCIENT CARRIAGES FOR MUSEUM

PARIS (UP)—Thirty carriages of an ancient vintage have just arrived at the Chateau of Compiègne for the museum of vehicles. The French State Railways and the Compagnie du Nord consented to transport the huggies to Compiègne free of charge, and among the donors are: the Count of Alencastre, who gave a mail-coach; M. Kellner, a victoria with eight springs; the Countess de Sainte-Aldégonde, a phaeton.

IRISH ARMY MAY MARCH IN BRIAN BORU UNIFORMS

DUBLIN, (AP)—The Irish Free State's army may revert to the uniform of the Erin of centuries ago. A proposal is being considered by the government that the army dress as did Brian Boru's soldiers when they routed the Danes at the battle of Clontarf. At present the soldiers are garbed like American troops, except that the uniforms are green. One suggestion is that the soldiers wear kilts and shawls. But economy is a leading objection since a kilt takes more than three times as much material as a pair of trousers. Opponents of this scheme heartily inquire: "If kilts, why not bows and arrows?"

FRENCH BIRTH RATE FALLS WHILE DEATH LISTS GROW

PARIS, (AP)—French births dropped so sharply in 1933 that advocates of large families are doubling their efforts. Nearly 40,000 fewer Frenchmen were born during the preceding year. The total births were 682,880 as compared with 722,246 in 1932. Since there were a few more deaths than in the previous year—961,062 as compared with 960,883—the net gain of births over deaths was 21,598 or about one-third that of 1932.

Tiny Town Has 5,000 Visitors

CADIZ, O. (UP)—Difficult it would be to find a more remote town than Deerfield. Its 50-soul population is well hidden in the southeastern Ohio hills. But Deerfield annually is host to upward of 5,000 visitors on Memorial Day. Soldiers of three wars are buried in its two tiny cemeteries which fact, along with a special program and service on the day, heavily pushed by the community, draws Memorialists from a wide area.

Many Ask What Will Become Of River Bed After Rectification

EL PASO (UP)—Many persons asked the question: What will be done with the old river bed after the Rio Grande channel is straightened under the $6,000,000 rectification program authorized under international treaty between the United States and Mexico? L. M. Lawson, American boundary commissioner, finds many incredulous listeners when he tells them that the old bed will be leveled off instead of filled up. "The Rio Grande is a silt bearing stream," Lawson said, "and the river bed gradually has risen until it is higher than adjacent territory. "The river near El Paso really rides on a ridge, enclosed within levees. The bottom of the present river channel, after the new channel is cut, will be found higher than adjacent territory, and the levee there will be no need of filling it up. "On the other hand, the new channel will be dug along a route that is lower than the present river bed. Cutting of the new channel will not be so much a matter of digging as of merely building levees—for the bed of the proposed channel is nearly low enough already. "Title to property that will be detached from one country and added to the other by the channel change is to be acquired by Mexico and the United States, and then traded, so that the new river will be the real boundary.

FLOATING HOSPITAL ASKED BY SPANISH FISHING FLEET

MADRID, (AP)—The ministry of marine has been asked by the Society of Fishermen to send a hospital ship into Irish waters so that the 3,000 Spaniards fishing those waters each summer may have medical attention. The petition states that each year there are numerous deaths from neglect among the crews of the 269 fishing boats which put out from Coruna, Oron, Huelva, Pasaia and Santander. The crews, knowing neither English nor Gaelic, can not make themselves understood at Irish coast hospitals. A ship manned by Spanish physicians, the petition says, assuredly would reduce the death toll.

URN DISCOVERY IMPORTANT

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UP)—The finding of urn burials by a University of Cincinnati excavation party in Asia Minor was described today as the "most important discovery of the archaeologists" by Dr. William R. Ingham, one of the sponsors of the expedition. Dr. Semple was notified of the discovery in a cablegram, which said fourteen incinerator urns had been found.

AMERICAN FILMS TRIPLE ENGLAND'S HOME OUTPUT

LONDON (AP)—Nearly three times as much American movie film as British was registered here last year. Dr. Edward Burgin, of the board of trade, told the commonsense registrations of British film amounted to 1,262,197 feet, including 69,777 feet made overseas in the British empire. Films of United States origin totaled 3,583,428 feet while other foreign films totaled 190,567 feet.

MUSSOLINI CLOSURES AIR GAP—IN TRAVEL TO NEAR EAST

ROME (AP)—Arrangements for covering a "blind spot" in Europe's air communications with Asia Minor, Africa and India, have been approved by Premier Mussolini. The plan involves running a special night train from Rome to the Adriatic air terminal at Brindisi. Planes which now have to stop overnight at Athens, under the new arrangements will make Istanbul and Egypt before nightfall.

Bank Nite $70 Cash Prize

SPORT SLANTS By ALAN GOULD

On the basis of spring happenings, the National League shouldn't have much trouble picking up a lineup to try to square accounts with the American League for the heating taken in the all-star game at Chicago last July.

HOW ABOUT THE BABE? One of the toughest problems for the American League to solve in its all-star selections will be whether to keep Babe Ruth in right field, where his defensive weakness might offset his slugging potential.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Idea. Aged and spavined or otherwise handicapped, we can't imagine the all-star lineup taking the field without the Babe. He might be withdrawn for purposes of defensive strategy later, but he belongs in the starting group, if for no other reason than the fact his home run decided the 1933 game and that the Babe has always had the faculty of rising to the boisterous occasions. His public will demand it and so will Ruth.

SOME MORE GUESSES Rollie Hemaley wouldn't be a handicap behind the bat, the way he has been going this spring under the influence of Rogers Hornsby, but the experts probably will turn orthodox and pick Bill Dickey, Rick Ferrell the 1933 all-star performer, or Mickey Cochrane.

Another angle in Jimmy's favor is that he has a habit of squaring the accounts. He never was able to get even for three beatings handed him by Bud Taylor, but McLarnin turned the tables on Sammy Mandell, Ray Miller and Billy Petrolle in return bouts. McLarnin beat Petrolle twice in 1931 to make up for the shellacking Billy gave him in Madison Square Garden the year before.

ROSS HAD HIS "DOWNS" Sam Levy, the Milwaukee observer, recalls that Barney Ross was considered just a "punk kid" by his managers when the former Golden Gloves champion was trying to make the professional grade in 1928.

It is logical to assume that McLarnin is on the downgrade now but such is the popularity that now of a natural rivalry, as well as the doubt of those who had to a large extent idolized the Irishman and scurried around looking for excuses for him after his downfall.

CRITICAL STAGE IS NEAR FOR CROPS IN DROUGHT AREA

Weather during the next two weeks will just about tell the story for many of the principal crops of the country, now suffering from drought and intense heat. Both winter and spring wheat are entering the most critical stage of their growth right now, according to J. B. Kincaid of the U. S. Weather Bureau.

Corn still has a chance. The principal damage to corn so far has been the delay of germination. Rains within the next week or 10 days could help the corn crop. Ordinarily the last half of June and the month of July is the critical time for corn.

The cotton belt has had excellent weather for the most part. Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina had more than normal rainfall in May, while parts of Texas and Oklahoma were deficient. In no large section has excess rainfall been harmful to cotton or sufficient to encourage exceptional boll weevil development.

Dietically speaking the rattlesnake is paradoxical—violative of rules that should apply—according to George (Rattlesnake) Motl, mechanic and West Texas' leading snake hunter.

But despite this, the snake meat is found to be the cleanest looking of all West Texas animals and reptiles when the skin is removed, says Motl. In fact, some Mexicans prize rattlesnake "steaks" quite highly.
