Orland Harris Barbecue Tradition to Be Continued at Mias Amigas This Year

This year as in every year, Mias Amigas is being catered by Orland Harris. Orland's barbecue has been a tradition of Mias Amigas and most every major event around for over 30 years.

Harris barbecue is famous for its deliciousness, which is accredited to his secret recipe for barbecue sauce. Only his family know the sauce recipe and they aren't telling.

Besides his barbecue, Orland's red beans, and potato salad are also noted for their goodness. Dorothy, his wife, and his family have helped him in preparing and serving these. Said Harris, "I guess I started barbecuing for people when I opened my restaurant in Eldorado, that was after I came back from the war."

He now has three huge barbecue pits and a complete array of equipment for his catering service. This man is truly an expert at catering barbecue.

Harris always uses the best ingredients and barbecues the meat at least eight hours after which he slices it and he puts the sauce with the sliced meat in a large container keeping it warm until serving time. Also, he cooks only with liveoak wood. Harris has barbecued for the Southwest Texas Electric Cooperative Inc. for more years than he has for Mias Amigas.

He added, "The largest group I have ever catered was when the Jimmy Powell family hosted a party for Governor Briscoe in 1977." The last few years, Harris has cut down on the number of barbecues he prepares for groups.

"I only do about 30 barbecues a year now," stated Harris.

If you would like to have him begin a tradition for your family reunion that would keep everyone coming back, you need to ask him at least a month in advance and if you are lucky, he will consent.

The meal at Mias Amigas is a tradition.

Loeffler Issues Statement on 'Israeli Bomb Raid

Jim Overton, press secretary to Congressman Tom Loeffler, called Tuesday morning to issue a statement on Israel's bombing of an Iraqi nuclear facility.

Although admitting they were still pretty much in the dark, he said, "We must be concerned that the Israeli raid may complicate our peacemaking efforts in Lebanon as well as delay settlement of other Arab-Israeli problems in an already tense region."

"In addition, it raises the spectre of continued Soviet presence and penetration into the Middle East. It is a matter which must be monitored very closely."

Have you watched a baby absorbed in exploring his own hands?

He's learning to separate himself from the world around him.

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, reports that at first, a baby will spend long periods of time simply looking at his outstetched hand.

Why? It's the eight-inch connection.

A month-old baby is very near-sighted. Like a camera which is focused only for close-ups, the baby's eyes see clearly only those things about eight inches from his nose.

Faces, when they get into the eight-inch range, fascinate him. So do mobiles

Reading Program Begins

The Summer reading program starts June 15 and ends July 24. Our theme this year is "Monster Madness". The age group for reading will be from 6 years to 13 years old. The library has brought some new books on Monsters and also we will be getting 40 books per month for young people to read from Inter-Loan Library in Abilene, so there will be plenty of new books to read. Starting June 15 from 4-5 pm we will have the "Story Hour" at the library for children 3, 4 and 5 years old. This will be every Tuesday until the summer reading program is over July 24. Everyone is required to read 10 books in order to receive a certificate from the state library. All from the state library.

Also this year we will give the little people (3, 4, and 5-year olds) a certificate if someone reads 10 books to them.

The library is open now, after having been closed for several weeks. Hope to see all of you real soon.

Practice Boating Safety This Summer

With more than half a million boat owners in Texas, boating safety is a timely topic as summer approaches, says an official of the Texas Safety Association.

In fact, Governor William P. Clements Jr. has declar-ed June 7-13, 1981, as safe boating week in Texas to impress upon boating en-thusiasts the merits of safe boating, says Nelson Muel-ler, TSA's vice president for home and leisure activities. The observance will coincide with ational Safe Boating Week. "Safety and accident prevention behavior will save lives and increase the quality of water recreation for all Texans," reads the governor's proclamation on safe boating. The proclamation points out that 575 accidental drownings, man-y related to boating, occur-ed in 1980.

It's very hard for boaters speeding across the water to spot a swimmer's head. And even if boaters are alert, they might not be able to avoid swimmers that suddenly appear.

Slowing down is a good precaution to take to pre-vent this situation," he says. He suggests the follow-ing safety tips for boaters: *Continually scan the water ahead of your boat for objects in the water, parti cularly swimmers. Head-ing directly into the sun makes vision ahead diffi-cult. Wear a sun visor or sun glasses. *Before making a turn, look over the water in the direction of the turn.

*Never run too close to an anchored or drifting boat; swimmers might be near. *Always expect to find swimmers beyond the auth-orized swimming areas. If you see one, expect to find more.

*Don't be distracted by one hazard so that you fail to watch out for others. Mueller advised swim mers to swim near shore and never alone. Any swimmer entering a boat Channel for whatever rea-son should have a boat accompany him, the safety official adds.

Congressman Kent Hance, Democrat from Lubbock, and Tom Loeffler, Republican from Hunt, are Republican from Hunt, are working to have the 1,000 Barrel Exemption from the Windfall Profits Tax put in President Reagan's Tax Bill. If the exemption passes, it would apply only to independent producers and royalty owners. The Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Dan Rosten-kowski of Illinois, said he is considering the 1,000 Barrel Exemption, but hasn't made up his mind as yet. Hance is a member of the Ways and Means Commitsored by Dick Gaddy, is

Blood Machine Helping Patients

A laboratory machine normally used in a hospital blood bank is helping save the lives of a special group of cancer patients--mem-bers of the Jehovah's Witness faith in need of sur-gery at The University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute. Blood cell separators at the UT M. D. anderson staff came up with the idea of using the blood cell separator in the operating room to help bring a 21 year old Jehovah's Witness safely through surgery. The procedure since has been used successfully on four other patients.

The machine's most important characteristic for Jehovah's Witnesses is that the blood remains in con-stant contact with the pa-tient's body. "That's why the blood cell separator meets with the approval of patients and their families." said Dr. Jacques F. Dupuis, assistant professor of anesthesiology. "Pa-tients of this faith will not even consider having their won blood drawn in advance to have on hand during surgery. Such blood has been removed or 'separator meets with the approval of patients and their families, said Dr. Jacques F. Dupuis, assistant professor of anesthesiology. "Patients of this faith will not even consider having their won blood drawn in advance to have on hand during surgery. Such blood has been removed or 'sep-arated' from the body, which is against their reli-gious beliefs.'' Jehovah's Witnesses in-terpret certain biblical scriptures to mean that they are to refuse any type of blood transfusions, even in life-threatening situa-tions. This belief has jeopardized the lives of many Jehovah's Witnesses, who have died during or after surgery from blood loss, or who have died from disease because necessary surgery could not be performed effectively without blood transfusions. Dr. Dupuis and Dr. Ben-jamin Lichtiger, M.D. An-derson Blood Bank chief, devised the idea to use the blood cell separator to assist in cancer surgery on these patients. The m-chine is normally used to centrifuge whole blood taken from donors into its component parts. The collected white cells and platelets are vital in helping cancer patients fight infec-tion and hemorhaging.

The machine removes blood from the body at one rate and simultaneously re-turns it at a different rate. Because of that difference in rate flows, the blood cell separator can build up a reservoir of blood outside the patient's body during surgery and reinfuse it as needed. The blood remains in constant contact with the body, a factor vital to its use in treating Jehovah's Witnesses. So far, five M.D. Ander-son patients of the Jeho-vah's Witness faith, all with solid tumors, have utilized the blood cell separator during surgery. Although their individual conditions prior to surgery varied, in each case the doctors said the machine helped preserve precious blood during the operations. The surgical benefits of the blood cell separator are not limited necessarily to patients who are Jehovah's Witnesses, the doctors said. The machine could be used to help patients with rare blood types, for whom blood might not be readily available, or for patients who run the risk of con-tracting post-transfusion hepatitis.

awareness Consumer awareness of natural gas systems and how they operate can be an important factor in improving safety and efficiency. according to Texas Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple.

In a statement prepared for delivery to the Texas Senior Citizens Association convention. Temple said that with 500 gas companies and about 110,000 miles of gas pipelines in Texas, the Commission has a continuing monitoring program, consumer awareness can improve system safety and efficiency too.

Temple said consumers can check three things that the Commission itself checks when it examines a gas utility. First, check the amount of gas lost or unaccounted for with a call to the gas company. Leaks in the pipeline system or errors in gas meters can cause losses. A lost or unaccounted for figure of two percent is reasonable. The background and training of the people running the system is also important and should be checked, according to Temple. Finally, consumers should ask about leak surveys. Federal regulations require that residential neighborhoods be tested for leaks annually.

Temple also described the Commission role in
