

NOT SO BAD — Duwain Sauer shows off a field of shoulder high irrigated milo in the Reynolds Community. Sauer said he began watering in February and it took two months to fill the cracks in 60 acres of land. The second time, it took 14 days. But even after receiving water, the milo heads are not fully formed.

DRASTIC CONTRAST — Shown is a contrast in the field on the Sauer farm. In front is part of a field that did not receive water during irrigation. In back stands milo that is a good three feet taller than the milo that did not receive water.

NO HOPE — Sauer jokingly pours a little water on some milo which has suffered from severely high temperatures and lack of moisture this year. Actually, it is not a joking matter, as this field will not produce enough milo to warrant harvesting.

"That's awful!" I said setting in inside the cardboard box.

I should be getting used to packing up the older kids things, as one by one they leave the nest. It's never been easy, but this time it seemed harder putting 18 years worth of my only son into suitcases and boxes.

Since he left to go to work in Odessa the entire house has slipped into a somber state of semi-mourning. I never thought I'd really miss dragging dirty socks from under his bed, stumbling over the football and tennis shoes, begging him to take out the trash, or trying to explain that I wouldn't scream at him if I didn't love him.

Now suddenly, there are no freaky sounds blaring from his tape player and nothing to do with left overs. As I rolled the posters of Batman and Robin, Farrah Fawcett Majors, a giant light bug, and the Dallas Cowboys, I kept thinking, maybe I wasn't strict enough with him, or maybe I was too strict. Will he call us if he needs anything?, or will he survive alright without a mother to tell him what to do?

The job I started, fighting back the tears. About half way through cleaning his room I was ready to strangle him. I've never seen so much junk. I found a new shirt crammed in the pocket of his football jacket, and a note that read, "Sorry, I can't make it. My old lady's on the warpath!"

So now the 'big ole world' has claimed another one of my babies. I sat on the edge of his bed and looked at the boxes filled to capacity with his worldly possessions. It's a feeling of accomplishment and of sorrow. You bring them so far, then it's up to

I held the stupid looking monkey for awhile, then placed it back on the shelf — and that's something to think about this week.

County Pool Closed Because Of Vandalism

Anyone heading for the swimming pool Saturday to beat the 100 plus temperatures was disappointed to discover the pool closed. Reason for the closure was the large amount of broken beer bottles found around the pool

According to pool operators Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fatheree, the pool was closed because there was so much glass it presented a hazard to swimmers. They said glass was found under both diving boards, on the side of the pool, in the pool itself and all over the general area.

This is the second time this has happened, and three persons have already cut their feet.

The pool was reopened Sunday. Schleicher County Sheriff Orval Edmiston said the problem at the pool was only a part of the vandalism problem in the city.

He said the parking lot at the swimming pool and at the school, where vandalism is also a problem, are public places so people can legally park there at any time.

legally park there at any time.

However, he added that persons caught littering any public place are subject to heavy fines. He said he has asked persons parking at either place to leave, but he said they returned later.

Edmiston said that these persons responsible for the vandalism are not necessarily of one race or age group. "You might be surprised who these persons are," he said.

The pool is owned and maintained by the county and therefore comes under jurisdiction of the county commissioners court. The court has discussed the problem several times, but has taken no action in regard to closing the pool.

Officials and the pool operators have expressed that the pool is for the public to enjoy and it is a "shame that those not responsible will have to suffer if it is closed."

Clifford Curry Named High School Principal

A new principal for Eldorado High School has been named by the Schleicher County School Board. He is Clifford L. Curry who presently lives at La Grange.

Curry is the former superintendent of Round-Top Carmine Independent School District in Carmine. He is presently self-employed.

A native of Olton, he graduated from high school there and received a bachelor of science and a masters of education degrees from Texas Tech University. He has done advanced work at Southern Methodist University, North Texas State University, the University of Texas and Southwest Texas State University.

He taught at Olton, and was high school principal and assistant superintendent at Pettus High School in Pettus, before moving to Carmine.

He has taught classes in Texas history, United States history, American History, American government, economics, speech, sociology. He has also directed one act plays and

Heat Coming On Strong, Ranchers, Farmers Suffer

It's hot, hot, blistering hot and to top that off, it's also very dry. Although no official records for Schleicher County are readily available, temperatures in San Angelo, in fact the entire state, have broken several records. Temperatures have passed the 100 degree mark every day for about 10 days.

Hardest hit by the hot weather and especially by the lack of moisture are farmers and ranchers who face the possibility of having no crops and feeding hungry cattle with expensive

According to Jerry Swift, county extension agent for agriculture, this county usually receives 18-20 inches of rain and it has already received about 14. However, he said the rain "fell at the wrong time, all together."

He said the cotton and maize crops would be the shortest crops in at

"If cotton farmers do not receive any rainfall within the next 10-15 days, there will not be 100 bales of cotton produced in the county," he said, adding that even if it did rain in that time period, the crops still might not make it.

"We usually hope for a bale to the acre, but this year, we'll get a boll (of cotton) to the acre," he said, "In fact for the most part, there's not enough to harvest."

Duwain Sauer, farmer in the Reynolds Community, said the lack of moisture wasn't as hard on the crops as was the high heat. Some of his maize which was irrigated still did not fill out properly, primarily because of the lack of moisture.

Thursday and is for junior high girls.

Some farmers who do not irrigate have already plowed up their crops to get their land ready for next year.

As for ranchers, Swift said most stock is still in good condition, but that if it does not rain, that will change. He added that if there is no rain in August, he predicts a big sellout in September. "Most of these ranchers are not going to carry livestock through the winter like they did last year," he says.

In addition to that, hay prices will soar, he said one rancher had to pay $108 a ton for hay last spring and "it will go up this year." Although he said some farmers are making a small amount of hay which will help a little

He said there will be a problem with sheep eating prickly pear, a problem that goes along with dry conditions. "But sheep are a good drought animal," he said.

Presently, the market for both cattle and sheep are good, with lambs bringing about 60 cents a pound and cattle bringing between $4-500 a pair and 50 cents a pound for slaughter calves.

of drought, it lays in the fact that there is not a problem with crop insects such as boll weevil or grasshoppers this year.

Swift said the two cases of screwworms reported recently in this county were unusual in dry conditions ditions.

However, he said the county would soon be badly infested by army worms which are a result of the moths that invaded this county in the spring. The worms feast on trees, gardens and crops.

Meanwhile, gardeners in the county are also suffering because their gardens are burning up. Almost all vegetable crops are lost by this time, except okra which thrives in the heat.

Of course, there is nothing a farmer can do about hot and dry weather except to get ready for the next year, then retreat to the shade and pray for rain next year.

City Trying To Solve Water Pressure Problems

Water pressure in the city has been noticeably down in recent weeks, but after a called session of the city council Tuesday night, things may change shortly.

Two of the city wells are out of order because of needed repairs. A pump had been pulled out of one of the wells and must be taken to Dallas for repairs. Also, the motor on the well at the airport burned up last week, leaving the city with only three wells to furnish water.

City aldermen Bobby Sykes, Billy McCravey, Vida Mercer, Jimmy
Doyle and city manager Phil Olson discussed the problem and made plans for necessary trips to remedy

the problem.

Olson was to go to Lubbock Wednesday to get a Chrysler for the airport well. Aldermen said it would take at least a week to put it in.

Sykes was to make arrangements to get the pump to Dallas so it can be repaired. Council members were unable to say how long it would be before it is in working order again.
City employee Marvin McAngus said the city is pumping water 24 hours a day, but still cannot keep up with the demand.

Therefore, the city council is asking citizens to conserve water and use it only when they have to. If everyone would slow down on water usage, the pressure may build up, they said.

In other business, Wally Nichols of B&H Maintenance and Construction on the Mertzon Highway appeared before the council to ask that water and gas lines be extended to the new industry. The building is located just over the city limits. The council rejected the proposal because od already existing problems with water and gas pressure.

A new maintainer which the city purchased will be arriving Thursday or Friday.

Mayor Pat Ragsdale was unable to attend the meeting because of an

Loeffler Criticize Government

Inflation and the federal government's involvement in local and state affairs were the main topic of discussion by Tom Loeffler who visited Eldorado last Wednesday. Loeffler, who is running for U.S. Congress in the 21st district, was guest of honor at a coffee in the El Dorado Restaurant and then a luncheon with the Lions Club.

"My real emphasis is on inflation and the rate of inflation which is about ten percent a year. This has a negative impact on all of us: the young trying to get started, a business trying to hold together, a family trying to meet a family budget and the retired trying to live on a fixed income," he said.

"The answer is not more and more intervention or voluntary wage and price control," he added. "This would mean the federal government will tell you and me how much we can make and how much we can sell our goods and services for. What we need is 30 percent across the board reduction for federal income taxes over the next three years. This will help the economy grow and cut back inflation."

"At the same time," he continued, "We need a strong congressman in Washington to work hard to reduce our national debt to cut back federal regulations."

"I think proposition 13 is a step in the right direction. It is telling officials we're fed up on taxation and the government spending our tax dollars on programs like food stamps for coal workers who are not working voluntarily," he said.

During the Lions Club luncheon, he said, "The primary responsibility of the federal government is to assure us of our national security, not to be involved in our lives at home. We have to stay number one militarily so that our friends and allies will stand behind us. The responsibility of government is on the local level, then the state level and only at the last resort, the federal government. But now the federal government has it in reverse. Remember, a government big enough to give all these services is Loeffler has released his stand on several issues. He supports the concept of 100 percent parity achieved through a free trade in an open world market. He believes any man has a right to protect his property from predators and is against "licensing, registration or any other form of gun control."

also big enough to take it all away.'

He says the United States must become energy-independent again, relying on domestic energy supply rather than on vulnerable imported

He is also a believer of capital punishment and stronger punishment and laws, and right to work laws.

On the issue of welfare, he said he believes in reducing size and complexity of bureaucracy and red tape. Welfare cheating must be eliminated and strict enforcement of distribution should be backed by appropriate punishment for those taking unlawful admirates.

Loeffler answered several questions for local citizens which numbered about 35 at the coffee and 20 at the Lions Club. Most of the questions centered around taxes, fuel adjustment costs and education.

Youngsters Head For Paisano Camp

Several local youngsters will be attending the historic Paisano Baptist Encampment when it has its 58th consecutive session next week. They will be among 2,000 persons from West Texas who are expected to attend.

Bible teaching, music, preaching and fellowship will be included in the daily program.

Paisano Encampment was started in 1916 by a group of cowboys who met for prayer under the large oak trees located in the area of the present 1,000 acre encampment grounds. Dr. George W. Truett, legendary Baptist preacher and longtime pastor of the First Baptist Church, Dallas, was one of the camp pastors for many years. Except for some years missed during World War I, the camp has continued, with consecutive sessions since 1921.

Featured preachers for this year are Dr. James Flamming, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Abilene, and Dr. Daniel Vestal, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Midland.

Encampment music will

Jerry Arthur was born May 9, 1943 on Mother's Day to John and Doris Arthur. Dr. K. B. Round delivered Jerry and later his own two children, Todd and Toni.

Jerry remembers his early school days and his cousin, Travis Strother, who was just like his brother. They used to have a real grand time playing in Knickerbocker where they lived then.

Jerry's face lit up with a smile as he recalled this shenagan, "We were about 8 years old and were out hunting lizards around Mrs. Rathbone's car, (she was my favorite teacher) with a pump B.B. gun. "Well, Travis leaned over and I drilled him in the rear so we parted friends for at least 45 minutes," he laughed.

'Another time my brother, J.T., had an old solid rubber tire bicycle and I snuck it out to ride. What I forgot to do was to roll up my jeans. After I got my pants leg caught in the chain, J.T. found me. He Jo Barnes Lane, 69, died Saturday in a Christoval nursing home.

Graveside services were held Monday afternoon at Fairmount Cenetery, under direction of Robert Massie Funeral Home.

She was married to Seth E. Lane. He died in 1974. Mrs. Lane lived in Lubbock 30 years, prior to moving to Christoval four months ago.

Survivors include her grandson, Otis Whittenburg of San Angelo.

One pet he remembers was a cat named Smitty. "It was Christmas time and they were putting decorations on the tree. It was my job to hold Smitty wrapped up in a towel. He went haywire and ran all over me scratching something fierce. They teased me and said the cat had hydrophobia and I had two or three days left maybe. I must have been about nine then. After two or three days passed I figured I'd make it after all.

The other pet in Jerry's life was also a disappointment. It was a rooster named Oscar that Jerry decided to show in 4-H. "I didn't have nothing else so I just decided to show my old rooster. He was a Rhode Island Red. I hurried home that afternoon to train Oscar and got pecked and spurred all over that pen. After about a week of being whipped up- on by that rooster, Dad and I took him to the chopping block and sweet revenge was mine. We had rooster and dumplins that night,"

Jerry's first seven years school was spent in Knickerbocker. Junior High was in Lee in San. Angelo. The last three years were spent in Christoval when Knickerbockerconsolidated with Christo-

Jerry was quarterback on the football team and the last three games they only had a total of six boys. The team kept at it though and in his senior year, they lost to Mertzon which cost them the district championship.

He also participated in basketball and track, where he ran the intermediate selling light bulbs for a senior project and ended up selling them singlehanded door to door with Bonnie as his chaffeur. There were five seniors in the class that year and they had twenty cases of light bulbs to sell. They had a great trip to Galveston, Houston and San Antonio.

...Formerly Miss Rosellen Maness

breezes around these days, but you have to get up about five o'clock in the morning to find them. Admittedly, that's not much fun, but then what do you do when Mother Nature goes on a tirade and keeps blasting away with her hot furnace?

I thought last summer had to be the worst of all. Now here we are listening to the same song and suffering the second verse. Drouth and extreme heat have just about foreclosed on the chances of there being anything like a normal crop year in this county, and the prospects for a decent grazing season grow dimmer each day we continue without rain. If it's any consolation, we're a lot better off in Schleicher County than some other portions of the state. It is dry and hot just about everywhere, and even the trees are losing their leaves in the Cisco-Weatherford area. Those anxious glances you see farmers and ranchers casting toward an un-relenting sky are for real.

There are disturbing reports about depredations at the local swimming pool. Seems there are those in ne community who have so little respect for the safety and comfort of others as to throw glass bottles and carcasses of dead animals into the pool. A story elsewhere in the paper gives you the details. Makes you wonder what kind of a community we have become. It's bad enough that we have those in our midst who would stoop to such tricks. It's even worse to think that we as a community haven't the strength to demand that a situation such as this be

There are a few cool rectified. We elect officials whose job it is to take care of the public's interest. Those officials assume a cloak of responsibility when they ask for their office and are elected. We ought to have the backbone to demand that once elected they meet a high standard of performance. It should not take too much effort to abort the actions of those who seem bent on obstructing the use of a public and vital recreation facility which the pool represents.

> I was visiting with a friend on the telephone the other day.... one of those 100 degree plus days....he happened to be in the mountains of New Mexico. When asked what the weather was like, he replied that it was pretty good, about sixty degrees and raining. In my mind's eye, so to speak, I could smell the sweet scent of wet pine, and hear the water dripping on the needles. Which would make any low-lander want to close up shop, put his troubles behind and head for the tall country. It would be nice if we could all make it, but just being able to think about it being cool and pleasant somewhere else can help you make it

ursing Home News

Everything is moving along about as usual in the home so far as I know.

We want to remind the mothers of small children that every Monday morning at 10:30 we have a 30 minute story reading for young children here in the dining room. All children are welcome.

Last week I wrote in my nursing home news that Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kent of Woodville, Texas had brought a large amount of fresh fish to the nursing home that they had caught near where they live. It was so very thoughtful of them to do that for us and we all appreciate it very much and we enjoyed the fish immensely. When the news was printed in the Eldorado newspaper last week there was a misprint in the name of the ones who brought us the fish. When I received my copy of the newspaper and read my column, I was shocked and surprised to see that it stated that Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kent brought the fish to us here at the home, because the article I handed in to the printing office stated that Mr. and Mrs.

them. I am very sorry that this happened and the newspaper apologized. For the newcomers in Eldorado who have not known Tom and Lela Kent I am giving you the following information in regard to
