Sharon Brown Leads Local Youth

"All things work together for the good of those who love the Lord and are called according to his purpose." That is Romans 8:28 from the New American Translation of the Bible and also the motivation behind Sharon Brown, the minister of youth and education for First Baptist Church.

The tall and talented young woman is a very busy person, as she is in charge of many things connected with her position, including Sunday school, vacation Bible school, a youth program, Bible study, outreach, counselling, camps and retreats, fellowship and youth revivals.

In addition to her church work, she is a walking, talking encouragement to almost every young person in the city as she attends almost every athletic and social function that involves young people. She also organizes and plans functions for young people including skating parties, Halloween parties, Christmas parties and many more.

The Kentucky native is well experienced to help young people, holding a bachelor of arts degree in sociology and law enforcement juvenile delinquency from Eastern Kentucky University and a masters degree in religious education from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. She has also worked with teenagers in a high crime area and in a children's home for the emotionally disturbed in the Cincinnati, Ohio area.

Besides her extensive education and background in working with young people, Miss Brown has two major talents that draw young people to her, music and athletics.

She was a volleyball player in college and has been in several different choirs. In fact, one of the hardest times of her life was having to sit out of the regional finals in college because of a broken foot suffered during warm up.

After college, she was offered three top management jobs in large corporations, but loved working with youths so much, she turned down all three to come to Eldorado and work for First Baptist Church.

Miss Brown has many strong feelings when it comes to helping young people. After working with emotionally disturbed children, she firmly believes in helping youngsters in their home environment before they develop severe problems. The key to that, she says, is showing them that they are loved.

"It is so frustrating to work with them (emotionally disturbed children) and then have to send them back to the environment they came from," she said, adding "You help them more if you reach them before they have severe problems."

She also believes "Kids need a strong and consistent leader." There should be only one chief and then the Indians."

"Kids also need fellowship. I would never condone anything that is destructive, but I feel kids should be allowed to be kids. They should be allowed some freedom and we should realize that they are kids. I guess I will always be a kid at heart."

Well-known to almost all teenagers in Eldorado, she also believes there is a point where there becomes a difference between being a friend and being a leader and you have to know where that difference begins.

"Communication is the key in working with young people," she says, "I ask the kids for ideas and opinions and try to listen and take their advice. That makes them feel good, but they now I have the ultimate decision. If there becomes a gap between myself and one of the kids, I try to repair that gap."

But the biggest factor, she believes, is sharing Christ with youngsters and showing them how He has helped her through some very hard times in her life. That is where her favorite scripture reading comes in. "Romans 8:28 is what motivates me. God will work it all out for the good, providing we follow His work."

Another firm belief is to never go against the wishes of the child's parents. "I do not always agree with the parents about discipline or something else, but I never tell a kid that. God ordained the family and we should always support the family. When everything else is gone, we should still have our families."

In fact, she believes, that in today's world, most people put their security in material things instead of their families, when "they should put their security into something stronger (God)."

Court Scrutinizes Pay Scale

Schleicher County commissioners decided to re-evaluate the entire pay scale of all county employees and equate the pay scale during their meeting Monday.

The decision came following a discussion about a ten percent cost of living raise approved during the last commissioners court meeting.

They discussed salaries with county treasurer A.G. McCormack, sheriff Orval Edmiston and county clerk Helen Bebee. During the discussion, commissioners noted that if some employees received a ten percent raise, they would be making more than the department head, which is usually an elected official. Elected officials cannot receive a raise in salary until the raise is advertised.

County judge Johnny Griffin pointed out that 30 percent of the county's budget goes to salaries whereas most businesses spend 50 percent of their budgets for salaries.

Consensus of the court is to work out a pay scale for employees after evaluating each employee on their performance, longevity and qualifications. They unanimously agreed to rescind the already passed motion for the ten percent raise, to work out a new salary scale. They then plan to give the ten percent raise after the new scale is adopted.

In other business, the court decided not to take action on fencing the cemetery because there is so much opposition to the project, which commissioners are estimating will cost $10,000. The court is asking for input from the general community about their feelings on the project.

John Callison, custodian for the golf course and county park, met with the court and asked that the county purchase three pieces of playground equipment for the park.

The court approved the request for a 20 foot waded slide, an eight foot merry-go-round and a set of monkey bars, which costs $1792. They will be installed at the west side of the park next to the airport.

Commissioners also discussed grant money from the Texas Aeronautics Commission which has been granted to the County in the sum to $75,000. The money could be used for purchasing a right of way for an airport, but the county must have a clear title to the land. However, up to now, the county has not been able to work out arrangements with owners of land around the airport for a purchase of acreage.

Santa Announces Visit

The Schleicher County Progress Council has received word that Santa Claus will be making his third annual appearance during the Super Santa Celebration and parade Dec. 17.

"I enjoyed my last two visits in Eldorado so much, I am really looking forward to visiting with all of the Eldorado children again," Santa said in his telegram.

The progress council is now in full swing preparing for Santa's visit. There will be floats in the annual parade made by the Brownie troops and at least one other organization, the Beta Sigma Phi sorority. Anyone wanting to enter the parade with a float, car or other project, should contact Kim-et Nelson or Carolyn Mayo. Prizes will be awarded to the first, second and third place winners.

Letters are being sent to businesses for the merchants' drawing. Merchants wanting to participate and have a box in their stores should contact Rick Sterling, Ron Sutto, Carolyn Mayo or Kim-et Nelson.

Shirley Jackson's art class at Eldorado High School will be painting posters for the Super Santa Celebration. The posters will be distributed to local merchants.

The committee is looking forward to a great parade for Eldorado with an enthusiasm of Christmas Spirit. All help will be appreciated.

Kim Payne Has Variety of Talents

by Victoria Powell and Tom Dean

The school bus—not the quietest place, but one of the most likely in which to find Kim Payne. "Spare time? What is that? The tall, green eyed, brunette asks as we bump along the road.

We all know Kim is a talented young lady, but most of us know only of her academic and athletic abilities. However, Kim has an array of interests. Among them are singing, drawing, and writing poetry. She is also very active in her church. Singing in the youth choir and making visits are just two of the many activities involved there.

Even though Kim's interests cover a wide range, if she had to focus on one particular area, she would look toward the arts: singing, drawing, and writing. Although she says she would not want to go outside church or the local community with her singing, she would like to further her skills in the other areas, especially drawings. Kim has also spent some time composing poetry. She has sent one of her poems to be considered for publishing but hasn't heard from the publishers yet.

Kim is a very outgoing person. She enjoys her time alone but also loves helping others. She plans to go to ASU and then transfer to Texas Tech her junior year to obtain a degree in physical therapy, a field in which her interest in helping others will be fulfilled. Kim wants most to help children with physical disabilities and victims of accidents and disease. Although she is career minded, Kim states that if she has a family, it will come first. Kim has been influenced greatly by her friends in Eldorado and by the church and its activities. But, her mother gets much of the credit for Kim's direction. "I want to follow in her footsteps. If I could be half the mother she is, I would be a great one." Although she is very busy, Kim believes there is "a time for everything" and is usually able to find it.

Three Served In Military

By Craig Griffin

Veterans Day, November 11 honored many men throughout the United States for their time spent in the Armed Forces. Among those honored are four EHS faculty members who contributed 14 years, 11 months and 29 days of their lives in defense of our country.

Mr Igo who served in the Marines for approximately seven years was 17 years old when he volunteered for duty in World War II. He was stationed in San Diego and camp Pendleton in California, while overseas he fought in New Caledonia, Guadalcanal, Peleliu, Okinawa and North China. Discharged in 1946, he was called back to active duty during the Korean War and was stationed in Japan, South Korea, North Korea and San Francisco, California.

Mr. Whitaker was drafted into the Army when he was 22 years old. He was already married and attending college. While in the Army, he was stationed at Camp Roberts, California, Fort Bliss, Texas. His overseas duty was spent in Tokyo, Edijema and Sindai, Japan.

Mr. McC Carson contributed three years, five months and 29 days of his life to the Air Force. He was 19 years old when he was "urged" to join. During those three years plus, he was stationed at Amarillo, Texas; Denver, Colorado; and San Angelo, Texas. While overseas, he was stationed in Japan.

Mr. McDonald was 21 years old when he was drafted into the Army where he spent two and one-half years of his life. He was stationed in Oklahoma, Virginia, Washington and New Jersey. He also spent some time in Germany and France.

When asked what they gained from being in the service, all four of them said that they lost bad attitudes, grew up, learned to appreciate our country as a place to live. When asked what they lost, Mr. Igo said, "I lost nothing; I gained far more than I ever lost." Mr. McC Carson said, "I lost my bad attitude." Mr. Whitaker said, "I lost two years away from my family." Mr. Mac said, "I lost time; I was delayed in starting my teaching career."

These four men agreed that all young men in our country could use some military training and that all believe in the draft. They also agreed that women should not be drafted into the military to fight but that there is a place for them in the military.

Senior Girl Wins In Leader Program

Senior Kim Payne is the local winner in a contest which she and Shelly Squires recently entered. The competition is the Century III Leaders program. Now in its seventh year, this program is designed to bring together student leaders in order to discuss the issues which face America in her third century.

One outstanding senior will eventually collect the $11,500 scholarship which goes to the national winner. That person will be selected at the Century III Leaders Conference, March 5-8, 1982, at Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia. Two winners from each state and the District of Columbia will receive $1,500 scholarships along with all-expense paid trips to the Williamsburg conference. Two state alternates will each receive a $500 award.

In all, this program awards $218,500 in scholarships and provides for 102 students to attend the Williamsburg conference. The program is administered by the National Association of Secondary School Principals and funded by Shell Oil Company.

SPRIT AWARDS WINNERS--There are the nine boys who received the spirit award during the 1981 football season. They were elected by the coaches each week and their names were engraved on a plaque which will be kept at school. After the last game, the team voted on a player who they felt would receive the award for the entire season, Shane Wells. On back are Randy Lentz, Brad Thomas, John Church, Whit Paxton and Shane Wells. Infront are Nicky Dahlberg, Floyd Fay, Eddy Montalvo and Jimmy Lloyd.

Dear Friends

Knowing how busy all of you are preparing for Christmas. I am sending word of a very special Christmas shopping spree you can enjoy right here in Eldorado.

On Saturday, December 5th, there will be a Christmas Bazaar at the Fellowship Hall of the Methodist Church from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

There are Christmas cakes, pies, cookies, and candies--many in pretty decorated containers; Christmas decorations for doors, tables and trees; as well as beautiful stained glass pieces, musical outdoor wind chimes, quilted pillows, counted cross stitch, needlepoint and ceramics. I've heard of beautiful card tablecovers, a knitted afghan as well as other knitted items, beautiful handmade toys as cute as can be and many useful wooden items that have been handmade

For all you youngsters there will be a very special area Nothing here will cost more than $3.00, so don't miss this special area just for you.

Lunch will be sold in another section Don't miss it!!!!

Merry Christmas to all, Santa

A CREEPY CREATURES--These Amoco employees found a surprise waiting for them when they were working on the Jimmie Powell Ranch, namely a den of rattlesnakes. They flushed the crawly animals out of the den and killed them. Then they brought them into Eldorado and displayed them on the sidewalk in front of Jerry's TV. Watching (from and distance, of course) are Douge Yates, Glenda Harris and Joey Jones.

Conservation District Wants Public Opinion

The Secretary of Agriculture has invited the public to comment on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's proposed soil and water conservative program. The Secretary's preferred program features expanded roles for local and state governments and targeting of USDA dollars and personnel to conserving critical resource problem areas.

People who are interested in the program, or potentially affected by it, are urged to comment. Responses will be accepted through January 15, 1982, and can be mailed to State Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service (SCS), P.O. Box 648, Temple, Texas 76703.

Fred Stumberg, district conservationist for SCS at Eldorado said the Secretary's proposed program would concentrate more USDA assistance in areas where soil erosion and other problems threaten to reduce agricultural productive capacity and to increase agriculture production costs. Basic USDA technical and financial assistance would continue in all areas.

The program would use local and state conservation coordinating boards to identify critical problem areas, set priorities, and develop programs for local and state action to solve the problems. These boards would be based on existing organizations--conservation district boards, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committees, extension advisory boards, and other groups.

Based on the recommendations from these local and state boards and national priorities, more USDA assistance would be aimed at reducing the most serious soil erosion and related problems.

Stumberg said the program is the Secretary's proposed response to the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977 (RCA). It is contained in an RCA Program report and a summary leaflet with response form that can be reviewed at the local SCS or Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

The basis for the program is an appraisal of the condition, trends and natural resource problems of the nation. Published in two reports, the appraisal is also available for public reference in the two USDA offices.

West Texas Utilities Company has filed for a general increase in its retail rates, citing inflation, high interest rates and an essential major construction program as the reasons for the action.

The official filing was made Wednesday in Eldorado by Leroy Reeves, local manager.

Mr. Reeves said the application is a systemwide request for higher rates. Simultaneous filings were made in other incorporated towns for retail customers within their jurisdiction and with the Public Utility Commission of Texas for an increase to retail customers outside incorporated towns.

The filing with PUC also includes customers in eight incorporated towns which have ceded jurisdiction to the PUC.

WTU filed October 15 with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for a rate increase to wholesale cooperative and municipal customers.

The proposed rates would produce an increase in total revenue of $32,256,983. This amounts to 15.4 percent based on adjusted revenues of $209,402,398 for a 12-month test period ending September 30, 1981.

WTU requested that the new rates become effective January 1, 1982. Mr. Reeves said that a rate increase granted WTU last year "did not get the job done." That increase was for an average of 8.3 percent and was only the second in the company's entire history.

"The relief you granted us has been overrun by inflation and high interest rates and the need to build additional facilities," Mr. Reeves said.

Growth in demand for electric energy, caused by a steady increase in new customers and higher usage by old customers, is forcing WTU to expand its facilities.

WTU's newest power plant was completed in 1977, and since then the summer peak demand has grown to a point termed "uncomfortably close" to the system generating capacity.

The current construction program includes a coal-fired power station at Oklaunion, near Vernon. Although ownership of this plant will be shared by two sister companies in the Central and South West Corporation, Oklaunion will be the most costly project ever undertaken by WTU.

So far, WTU has lagged well behind most of the industry in increasing its rates. A recent report from the Public Utility Commission shows WTU's rates to be second lowest in the state among investor-owned companies and fifth lowest among all utilities.

Under the proposed rates, an average bill for basic residential service would be increased by 19.1 percent. For example, a residential customer using 600 kilowatt-hours per month would pay $40.95, compared to $34.39 under the present rates--a difference of $6.56. This would include fuel costs.

The city has several options in responding to WTU's request. It may deny the increase, suspend the increase for a certain period of time, or approve the increase. The city also has the option of denying the request and ceding future jurisdiction to the Public Utility Commission. Eight municipalities in the WTU service area chose to cede jurisdiction last year.

42 Club Is Oldest Groups Learn Skills

The oldest women's club in Eldorado is still going strong and it is very rare that one of its members misses a meeting. The club is the 42 Club which meets twice a month with members taking turns being the hostess.

When the three tables of players meet, there is a constant clicking and clacking of dominoes as the experts play the game at an amazing rate of speed.

And, of course, the whole purpose is to have fun and that they do. Officers this year are Lillian Mikeska, president and Bessie Doyle, reporter.

Artists Do Their Thing

'Doing your own thing,' is the theme for the Eldorado Art Club, which is now two years old. One of the newest clubs in town, it is open to the public but is composed mostly of women. There are eight to 12 members who meet each fourth Tuesday in the Memorial Building.

Members work all day on whatever they want or at times a guest will present a lesson art.

The club is made up of many women who really have a talent to be proud of.

There are two very active home extension clubs in Schleicher County whose purpose is to learn about homemaking skills but also take part in service type activities.

The two clubs are the Reynolds group and the Good Neighbor Club.

Club members meet once monthly for educational programs and help with senior citizen parties and fund raising events.

The clubs are guided by Nancy Lester, extension agent.

Players Enjoy Bunco

There is a lot of fun when 12 Eldorado women meet once a month to play Bunco at the El Dorado Restaurant.

Usually the women enjoy a meal with each woman taking a turn being the hostess. Prize for bunco, high, second and booby winners are given each time and everyone always has a lot of fun.

Chairman is Linda Walling and co-chairman is Joy Gibson.

want to do when you grow up?

Women Choose Modern Careers

and girls, especially the latter. Women now have the opportunity to join any profession they choose. They are now doctors, lawyers, truck drivers, principals, congressmen, mayors, office managers and business owners, just to name a few new positions now open to women. Becoming more aware of their world than their mothers and grandmothers were, they are an important factor in the development and growth of their communities, states and even our nation. As women are joining the work force in Eldorado, this city, too, is gaining from input women are putting into every phase of life here. And it just happens that the new push from women is coming at a time when Eldorado is growing at a very fast rate, which may contribute to the many opportunities now open to women here.

Women also seem to dominate the area of music, not only in the teaching field, but also on a volunteer basis. Many women with musical ability here play or sing for weddings, funerals, dances and many other occasions. Many local women have also found an outlet for their talent in the field of art, displaying beautiful works in oil painting, water colors and tole painting, just to name a few. And, of course, women still fill traditional roles in club and volunteer work, a force that is vital to many areas of life in any community. Eldorado has six church groups and five womens clubs and one service organization.

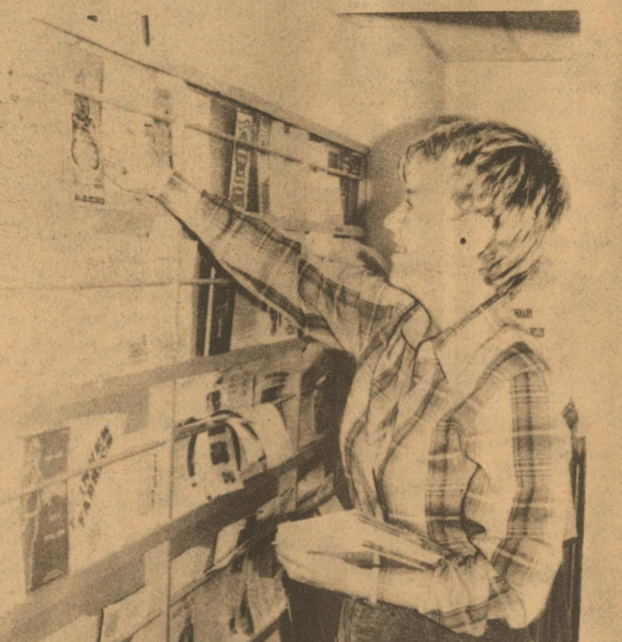

And in the meantime, women still fill the most important and dearest role of all, that of wife and mother. In a modern world, they not only take an active part in business, government, club, school and other areas, but they are also the family bookkeeper, nurse, chauffeur, cook, maid and handyman. They are still the number one shopper for the family, being in charge of buying everything from baby bottles to riding lawnmowers. In short, women today fill almost every role there is in this modern world and and of the most talented of them are in Eldorado. And that is what this special edition is all about.

Several local women have taken advantage of the town's growth to begin their own businesses, sometimes using their own talents to make handmade articles for sale. The town's two dress shops, two florist shops, three arts and crafts shops and one gift shop are all owned and operated by local women. The new Heart O'Texas office and three convenience stores are managed by women and several other women are part owners in businesses with their husbands, which includes many farmers' and ranchers' wives. And women still remain on the business scene as muchly needed secretaries, clerks and waitresses, vital workers to their employers.

In the medical field, Schleicher County Medical Center offers women an excellent opportunity for employment and career advancement. There are five women registered nurses, seven LVN's and many women aides in addition to many other women employees. In the school system, women dominate men in number, not only filling the traditional roles of teachers, but two women, are also coaches. In fact, there are 49 women teachers in the local system out of a total of 64 professional people, and 71 women employees out of a total of 88 employees. Women have also become a strong factor in local government. Eldorado now has a woman city secretary and hospital administrator, two women on the hospital board, one woman on the school board and three women county officials.

On the church scene, women have always had a strong role and still do. In Eldorado, they help with every phase of church work except filling the pulpit, but there is one woman minister of youth and education. In some churches, women are being allowed to help with Sunday services.

In the school system, women dominate men in number, not only filling the traditional roles of teachers, but in two cases also as coaches.

Nancy Lester, Extension Agent

What do you want to be when you grow up?" used to be an easy question for youngsters to answer. Little boys wanted to be doctors, firemen, policemen and cowboys. Little girls wanted to be nurses, teachers, mothers and secretaries. But because we live in a modern world the answers to that question have been thrown wide open for both boys

Auxiliary Has New Shop

Mary McGinnes, Louise Logan, Evelyn Stigler

When Schleicher County Medical Center was built here 12 years ago, the medical auxiliary was formed and since then it has been a vital part of the hospital's growth. With the help of several money making projects, memorials, able to purchase badly needed equipment for the hospital. When the hospital expanded last year, a new gift shop was built for the auxiliary so they could expand their merchandise. They are also buying a vending machine with snacks for visitors and patients. The new gift shop features many handmade items including TV socks made by Mrs. P.K. McIntosh, baby items, bibs, aprons, and hot pot holders. They also sell stationery, thank you notes and other greeting cards. Some of the equipment the auxiliary has purchased for the beauty shop, a whirlpool bath, wheelchairs, commode chair, stereo and record player and camera. They also renovated the old piano. ## Sorority Has Local Impact

Beta Sigma Phi may be an international sorority, but it has meant much to many Eldorado women and the community itself. The local chapter has been active here for 12 years, conducting many service projects that have helped people in the community. Members have been especially helpful to residents of the nursing home, providing them with Thanksgiving and Christmas gifts yearly and visiting them on special occasions. They also began a scholarship for local high school graduating seniors who want to go to either a trade school, junior college or four year college. Just recently, they donaated $100 to a fund to buy new street signs for the city. Two service projects that double as money making projects are the annual Halloween Carnival and the New Year's Eve Dance. The carnival gives local youngsters the chance to do something fun on Halloween instead of destructive pranks and the dance gives the adults a chance to have a good time on New Year's Eve without having to go out of town. There are several traditions that are also important to the sorority. They make a layette for the first baby girl born after April 30 in the local hospital because that date is the anniversary of the sorority's founding. They also celebrate that date with a Founder Days Celebration and installation of officers. The sorority honors their husbands in two socials yearly, the Thanksgiving dinner and a hamburger supper at the end of the year. Officers for the sorority this year are Mary Nolen, president; Sherry Martin, vice-president; Vicki Du-hon, recording secretary; Flora Hubble, treasurer and Debbie Ballew and Glenda Harris are corresponding secretaries. At least 50 women have been active in the Eldorado chapter since its beginning.

Club Proud of Town

The past, our heritage; the present, our responsibility; the future, our challenge," is the motto for the Woman's Club of Eldorado and it lives up to it very well. During the 61 years of activity in Eldorado, the Woman's Club has met many challenges to improve the present life of Eldorado. They began a lending library for several years convinced the county commissioners to begin the county library which is now located in the Memorial Building. The 22 active members and 14 associate members have also begun a fund to purchase new street signs for the city, after recognizing the need for such a project. Another far-reaching project has been an art show stressing children's creative art. Getting Eldorado cleaned up and improved to make it more beautiful is another project of the club. Their major fund raising project is the annual Parade of Homes held each year.

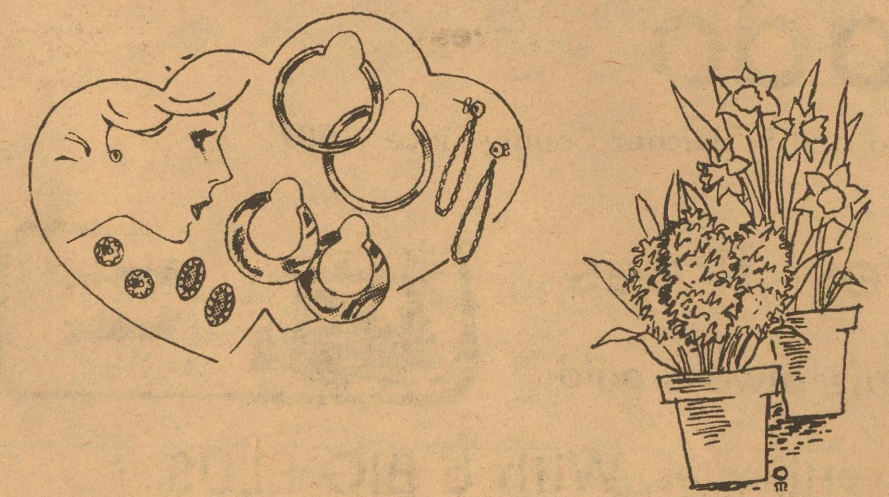

This year the event will be held Dec. 13. One highlight of each year is the book review sponsored by the Woman's Club for the entire community. 1981 officers are Mrs. S.D. Harper, president; Evelyn Stiger, vice-president; Mrs. Gladys Mittel, second vice-president; Mrs. James Williams, secretary; Mary Hext, treasurer and Mrs. Clayton Doremire, federation council representative.

Women Assuming Roles On Government Level

Government has always been a man's world. But just recently women have invaded that area and even Eldorado has several women greatly involved in government.

On the county level, Dorothy Evans has been working at the courthouse since 1968. She first worked for the sheriff and tax assessor-collector as clerk and deputy sheriff. When the two joint offices were split in 1979, she filled out the unexpired term of Sheriff Orval Edmiston. She was re-elected to the position in 1980, becoming the first woman tax collector here.

Helen Bebee became the first woman county and district clerk here in 1977 when she was appointed to the position by the county commissioner's court. She won her bid for re-election in 1978.

Prissy Paxton now holds the position of commissioner for precinct three, serving her first term. She is not the first county commissioner here, as Vy Henderson was commissioner of precinct two several years ago.

Several women have served on the hospital board during the last 12 years, the longest tenure for a woman being served by the late Winnie Jackson. Geneva McWhorter, Evelyn Wimer and Madelyn Mertz have also served on the board. Presently two women, Becky Sterling and Pat Sykes, are on the board, both serving their second term.

During the last 12 years, Miss Lillian Kroeger has been hospital administrator, seeing the hospital through its beginning and two building projects.

Mrs. J.F. Runge served on the school board several years ago as did Delia Pina who helped with the planning of the new building construction completed last year. Frankie Hardy is now the only woman sitting in on the school board.

There is not a woman currently serving on the city council, but Vida Mercer served one term on the council four years ago. Carolyn Mayo became the first city secretary in this town three years ago and is seeing the city and helping the council through many problems the city is currently facing.

All of these are women who believe in good, strong local government and a close control on spending. They are conscientious and operate their area of government very effectively.

This is the routine faced the community of Eldorado.

The schedule is Commis-

Board meetings, Club en-

let the Leader know what is

Nell Edmiston is a dedi-responsibility of arranging the format of The Schlei-has set out priorities which has proven by test to be appropriate for our circulapaper filled with local

Is it difficult to be a female journalist? Nell has stated she has sometimes felt unsure of what the terminology or information
when it deals with oil

more research on her part.
Nell also faces the indiffer-

Business World is Open

A growing town, higher price of gasoline and rushed schedules for working women have provided good opportunities for several local women to become active in the business world. And several Eldorado women have "taken the bait" to begin their own business or help their husbands expand their joint businesses.

Cathy Niblett, owner of Cathy's in downtown Eldorado, has been in business for the past ten years handling not only floral items for weddings, funerals and special occasions but also many items women enjoy shopping for and buying.

Vernell McCallas and her husband, Gene, jointly own and manage the town's only department store which handles everything from bobby pins to mattress covers.

Jerre Honey and her daughter, June Whitten, opened the Holley House two years ago and offer women many items for the home.

The town's two dress shops are owned by women. The Cottage, owned by Mary Leggett of Eldorado and Kathy Frerich of San Angelo, is located with the Holley House and features many new fashions which any woman enjoys shopping for. The Cottage also sponsors monthly style shows which have been attended by at least 70 women each time. Peggy Mittel owns the second dress shop, located on Highway 277.

At least two local women have put their talents to profit by selling handmade goods in their shops. Pat Gentry, owner of Pat's Sew-n-Sew and Mary Conatser, owner of Mary's Gifts, both sell their handmade sewn, crocheted, painted or knitted items.

Another woman, Prissy Paxton, has opened a book-keeping service, located across from Hext Grocery.

One new office, the Heart o' Texas branch office is being managed by a woman, Lucy Burk, who is a native of Eldorado who returned to her hometown to take the position.

Also, at least three convenience stores, the Adobe Mini-Mart, the Kwik Pantry and Sofges Grocery are being operated by women.

There are also beauty shops in Eldorado, all operated by women, Tooter Dunham, Johnnie Harris, Pat Lloyd, Marga Smith, Carolyn Moya, Helen Fay and Rene Calcote. All offer up-to-date hair styles for women who want to look their best at all times.

Several other women are part-owners and work side by side with their husbands including Annette Jackson with Top's Liquor Store, Mary Sofge with Sofge's Grocery, Loyce Parker with Parker's Foods, Jo Callison at the Eagle Dairy Mart and many others.

This is not to leave out the farmers' and ranchers' wives who have always worked side by side with their husbands, driving cotton trailers to the gin, keeping books, feeding livestock and helping during lambing and calving season.

Also invaluable on the business scene are the secretaries whose employers could not manage a day without their dictation, bookkeeping, organization, and reception skills.

Also invaluable are those clerks, waitresses and cooks who stand for eight straight hours to make hungry customers happy.

In short, the women of today's world are filling more and more positions in the business world. They love it; they thrive on it and the community will be much better for it because the woman is usually the ultimate consumer and women in business know how to keep their peers happy.

Economics Teacher Sees Changes in Students

Tailoring, baking and child care used to be the main course of home economics, but now that women have become more career and community minded, all of that has changed; just ask Miss Dana Owens. Miss Owens has been a home economics teacher here for 26 years and has noticed some very real differences in her students because of a quickly changing world.

First of all, her classes are not composed solely of girls. About ten years ago, boys invaded the home economics classrooms and now number 33 out of a total of 87 students.

"We now teach two years of home economics instead of three," she said, adding that the third course is now "home and family living," a class composed of 33 senior students.

"And now almost half of my students come from one-parent households and all of them have more freedom than was allowed before. Most of them have their own cars and are more responsible than before for their own actions since there are more working mothers than before." Also, girls are more active in sports now and some have after-school jobs, so her Future Homemaker chapter has dwindled from 40 members to 16.

All of these things have entered into the way Miss Owens teaches today.

Now teaching the daughters of some of her first students, Miss Owens now teaches less tailoring in her clothing labs because students want "quantity not quality." But she still requires first year students to sew with natural fibers to learn the importance of grain. But in the second year, students are allowed to sew with man-made fibers because they are more popular. She also teaches wardrobe coordination more because that is what the students are interested in.

In cooking classes, she now teaches students how to use convenience foods wisely but still experimental in cooking whereas girls still tend to cook "like Mother does."

When teaching care of the home, her teaching learns toward taking care of carpeting and natural finishes on paneling instead of wooden floors and wall paper. In her home and family living class, she teaches budgeting, time management, laundering, shopping, meal planning and other life skills.

Because of the pressures she knows these students will face in the future she is showing them a series of films on stress. "We all face stress in a marriage or adult situation," she said "and these films will help students to understand themselves." She also makes students do a self-analysis of themselves about things that cause stress for them.

Today the short brunette does not use a textbook except for reference, but has noticed that the textbooks have eliminated sex stereotyping almost completely.

After 33 years of teaching, she believes that the peer pressure for youngsters is more important than any other pressure. "My students come from so many different backgrounds," she explains, "Each is individual and unique and have his/her own set of problems to be dealt with."

But she believes that with a good spiritual background and strong family ties they can meet these pressures and become successful and secure adults. And she is trying her best to do her part in teaching them everything they need to know about themselves, their lives and the world around them.
