Far West Texas residents brace for water war with GLO

Trans-Pecos water battle has local implications

Partisans in a growing battle over West Texas water rights gathered Tuesday in Alpine for a public hearing regarding a proposed lease agreement for water development on state lands. Jerry Patterson, Commissioner of the General Land Office (GLO), chaired the meeting of the School Land Board where a proposed deal with Rio Nuevo was unveiled.

The deal, if approved three months from now, will allow Rio Nuevo to explore for water in the Trans-Pecos region of Texas and sell some 16 billion gallons of water each year from state-owned lands.

While the deal doesn't directly affect Eldorado and Schleicher County, the legal implications emanating from the lease agreement could make it easier for outside entities to tap into the Edwards-Trinity Aquifer, the county's only source of potable water.

At question is the state's ability to exempt itself from the guidelines adopted by local water districts.

A GLO spokesman dismissed the concern, pointing to a list of ten "talking water conservation districts applicable to the subject activities and operations. May unitize portions of the Leased Premises only with consent of Commissioner."

But, a separate talking point appears to leave the agency some wiggle room by saying that the agency is "subject to local regulatory approval or adequate mitigation."

Local attorney James Kosub says that the term "adequate mitigation" is intentionally vague and could be interpreted several ways.

An odd mix of farmers and ranchers, municipal water system operators and environmental activists have challenged the proposed Rio Nuevo deal. One group, headed by the Lone Star Chapter of the Sierra Club, said that the

With the elimination of Sonora last Saturday from the 2A State Playoffs, the All-District Team for District 2-2A was announced and the Eldorado Eagles placed a total of 15 players on the squad.

Junior wide receiver Terrell Boysaw, who counted for nearly 1,000 receiving yards, was named 2-2A Newcomer of the Year. He also earned 1st Team honors at wide receiver. Sophomore punter Jorge Bustos also earned 1st Team honors.

Senior wide receiver Frankie Arispe was named to the 2nd Team. So was senior linebacker Seth Taylor, junior kicker Simon Duran, junior offensive tackle Will Griffin and sophomore defensive tackle Kyle Taylor.

Senior Cole Wilkerson was named All-District Special Team Player.

Six Eagles were named to the 2-2A All-District Honorable Mention Team. They included senior linebacker Alan Dykstra, senior offensive tackle Chris Sanchez, junior offensive guard Manuel Arispe, junior offensive guard Joey Hernandez, sophomore linebacker Frank Edmiston and sophomore center Frank Wipff.

Senior Jaron Haney of Wall was named the district's Most Valuable Player while senior Jarryd Taylor of Ozona was named Offensive MVP and senior Brad Mayfield of Ozona was named Defensive MVP. Freshman Caleb Ramos of Sonora shared the Newcomer of the Year honors with Eldorado's Terrell Boysaw.

EHS Head Coach Gary Grubbs told the Success that he was proud of all his players this year and was especially pleased with this year's crop of seniors. He noted that the number of juniors and sophomores earning spots on the All-District squad points toward a good year in 2004.

The Eagles struggled through a disappointing season in 2003, their third in a row. That could change dramatically in 2004, especially if the University Interscholastic League realignment moves the Warbirds down into Conference 1A. The realignment numbers are due to be released in February, 2004.

deal "differs significantly from traditional state land transactions: selling groundwater pumping rights to state land means selling rights not only to the water immediately under that land, but also, essentially to any water that can be pumped from under adjacent lands."

The argument is an old one, tied directly to the state's "Right of Capture" laws. Currently, landowners and their lessees may pump any water they can capture in their wellbore, regardless of how that pumping impacts neighboring landowners.

For his part, GLO Commissioner Jerry Patterson says that he must consider the proposed Rio Nuevo lease from a statewide perspective. "Water is not a regional issue, it's a statewide issue," Patterson said. "The School Land Board is actively engaged on this issue across Texas with a constitutional mandate to earn money for the Permanent School Fund. This is a long-term goal of the Board, and as Land Commissioner, I will be seeking input all along the way."

Many state and local officials disagree with Patterson's approach. Some point to a 1997 law that promised to leave decision-making on Texas water issues at the local and regional level.

One such is Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs who told reporters that Patterson is, "abdicated every bit of state responsibility to these guys."

Combs is joined by Kathleen Hartnett White, Chairwoman of the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality, in opposing the Rio Nuevo deal. They explain that the proposed lease was negotiated without competitive bidding and has not been reviewed for its impact on the area's aquifers. Hartnett, hails from Valentine, in Jeff Davis County. Combs is a rancher from Brewster County. Both counties contain land that would be subject to the Rio Nuevo lease.

Commissioner Combs accused Patterson of selling out the entire west-

My name is Mary Ann Pina Gonzalez. I would like to take this opportunity to announce my candidacy for the office of Schleicher County Tax Assessor Collector.

I am currently employed and have been since 1998 by the County & District Clerks office of Schleicher County. Prior to 1998, I was employed for 18 years in the banking business. I feel that my past working experiences would allow me to serve the citizens of Schleicher County in a professional manner in which the citizens deserve.

During the upcoming campaign months, I will do my best to see as many people as I possibly can. This will allow you to get to know me better and for what I stand for or even introduce myself to those who may not know me at all.

I would like to ask for your consideration in the March Democratic Primary.

Commissioner Patterson must answer questions about Rio Nuevo water deal

Thankfully, the water in those lakes isn't under Commissioner Patterson's control.

Many of the Commissioner's colleagues have distanced themselves from him and his controversial decision, as well they should. Mining water, especially irreplaceable groundwater, for the profits it will deliver, is foolhardy at best, maybe even criminally negligent.

How does Commissioner Patterson suggest we replenish the 16 billion gallons of water he proposes to pump each year? He doesn't.

Add to all of this the fact that the agreement to lease water rights to a newly formed company called Rio Nuevo was made without public notice, without benefit of competitive bidding, and without the consent of the people, and the whole thing begins to smell pretty fishy.

Even the smallest of cities in Texas, and Eldorado is certainly among those, is required by law to notify the public when it intends to spend more than $25,000 or before it can sell or lease any public property. Even then, they are prohibited from entering into an agreement solely for the benefit of a private individual or company.

Commissioner Patterson's water scheme appears on the surface, at least, to be little more than a political boondoggle aimed at enriching a few well-connected investors. The Republicans who helped sweep Commissioner Patterson into office, and I count myself among them, should demand answers.

Why was Rio Nuevo allowed to develop the very water plan that stands to make its investors wealthy?

Why was Rio Nuevo the only company involved in the process?

Did the fact that many of Rio Nuevo's investors have strong ties to Lt. Governor Dewhurst play a part in the decision to limit competition?

Why harvest the water in the first place when many water planners argue that the aquifers in question cannot be replenished?

Will local water districts and the regional water planning groups created by the landmark legislation in 1997 have the right to limit, or even prohibit the commercial mining of water from beneath their territorial jurisdiction?

If not, why not?

Are the two universities funded by the GLO so strapped for cash that it has become necessary to throw caution to the wind and plunder the water reserves of the most arid portion of the state?

Does Commissioner Patterson believe that his 12 percentage point victory over David Bensen in 2002 really gives him a mandate to act so recklessly?

Does the Commissioner realize how soon the 2006 election will be upon us? Or, does he even care?

Houston native, and Commissioner of the General Land Office, Jerry Patterson has a plan to tap the water resources of far West Texas and add some money to the state coffers. I only point out that Commissioner Patterson hails from Houston because I find it odd that someone from such a wet and green part of the state should look to arid and usually brown West Texas as a source of water.

Patterson defends his decision to lease water rights in and around the Davis Mountains, that region of Texas where voters are few and far between, as being in the best interest of the state. I can't help but wonder if he would be so free with the water in the lakes around Beaumont, or Dallas/Ft. Worth where voters are a bit more plentiful.

asking that they consider a process called budget execution to shift funds and give state workers their first pay raise in years. That would enable state employees to get some relief prior to Sept. 1, 2005.

Rest In Peace...

In one of the first programs of its kind in the nation, the Texas Historical Commission has staff traveling the state to record and investigate historic cemeteries.

Funded by a grant from another state agency, the Department of Transportation, THC employees are expanding the Texas Historic Sites Atlas by adding information on historic cemeteries. They're calling it the R.I.P. program.

The agency currently is focusing on cemeteries in the state's fastest-growing counties, where historic sites in general are the most vulnerable. The program is expected to continue into 2005. The atlas of historic sites can be viewed by going to the THC Web site, www.thc.state.tx.us.

Insurance costs compared...

When you write that check for auto insurance, especially if you have a teenage driver living under your roof, you may think it's pretty expensive. But take heart — Texans only pay the 19th highest premiums in the nation.

According to the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, the range of auto premiums in the U.S. is from $586 to $1,182 a year. The median national cost for liability, collision and comprehensive was $817, only $3 a year below the figure for Texas.

sion some time next spring to come up with a new way to finance public school districts in Texas. But a large number of both poor and wealthy school districts have joined forces in a lawsuit aimed at equalizing funding.

The only thing students of Texas politics can write down in their notebook right now is that in 2005, somehow, the way we support public schools likely will change.

TPEA asks for help...

The next regular session of the Legislature is more than a year away, but the Texas Public Employees Association already is gearing up to fight for more pay for state workers.

During the last session, a state budget shortfall resulted in a mini-budget shortfall for the state's then-200,000 or so person work force. Several thousand employees lost their jobs through layoffs and reorganizations. Lawmakers offered no pay raise and reduced benefits. That reduction, the Employees Retirement System estimates, amounts to about a $900 annual cut in pay.

One manifestation of TPEA's focus on 2005 is a slick re-do of its magazine, Texas Public Employee. The association has hired a public relations firm to do all it can to show the people of Texas that they get their money's worth from state employees.

In the most recent issue of that magazine, Andy Homer, TPEA's director of government relations, said the association has sent letters to Perry and the 10 members of the Legislative Budget Board

Government grows fourth arm - litigation

AUSTIN — If it's been a while since you studied government (they used to call it civics), there's been a slight change in how things work.

Used to be, there were three branches of government at both the federal and state level — the executive, the legislative and the judicial.

Those who framed our Constitution envisioned a governmental system of checks and balances. If a judge or judges ruled an action taken by either of the other two branches to be unconstitutional, that was that.

Now, in a figurative sense, the fourth branch of government is litigation. One example is redistricting, a constitutional requirement of the legislative branch. But in Texas, a federal lawsuit will be the final arbiter.

The same thing is happening with the complicated issue of school finance. Gov. Rick Perry has said he will call a special ses-

ROLLING ALONG

WITH TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Josh Cosden was a Flamboyant Petroleum Pioneer

What a life. Back and forth from rags to riches. Joshua S. Cosden was born in Kent county, Maryland in 1889. As a young man, he worked as a drug store clerk, earning $20 a week. Because of health reasons he moved to Bigheart, Oklahoma where he operated a small refinery. He got oil by skimming waste crude from the surfaces of ponds and rivers in the area, hauling it in a leaky tank wagon to his refinery. His main product was kerosene, which he peddled from house to house in the little town.

When the oil fields started opening up around Tulsa, Cosden sold his refinery and built another one in the center of the oil activity. Within a few years it was worth fifty million dollars.

In 1918 he built Tulsa's first skyscraper, a 15 story building with marble pillars and gold chandeliers in the lobby. He and his new wife set up housekeeping in the penthouse. They owned a nearby river front home which had an indoor tiled swimming pool and an outdoor tennis court made of clay from France. They acquired a lavish estate at Newport, a fine home in Palm Beach and a stable of 32 race horses at Saratoga. The Cosdens bought a yacht and sailed to Europe with friends and became popular with the most prestigious members of high society.

Cosden began trading on Wall Street and pledged the stock of the refining company in a venture that proved disastrous. When the market declined in 1921, Cosden lost heavily. His board of directors stripped Cosden of his control and changed he name of Cosden Refining company to Mid-Continent Oil Company. Cosden sold his race horses, his Palm Beach estate and other properties at sacrifice prices.

With his social and financial position in ruins, he left Tulsa and headed to Texas. From 1924 to 1927 he operated a modest lease business in the northern part of the state. Then in Brown county he obtained oil leases and sold them for nearly a million dollars. With that money he established oil leases in Howard county and in 1929 built a refinery in Big Spring.

Both the oil production and the refining business proved successful and Cosden was well on his way to another fortune. He opened a plush office in Fort Worth and easily sold new stock in his company. Within three years he again was a rich man. Then ill fortune struck again. The stock market crash of 1929 reduced the value of Cosden stock to 25 cents on the dollar. The company was thrown into receivership. In 1933 a group of friends and business associates raised half a million dollars for him to use in buying back the refinery at the receiver's sale. Cosden worked to put the refinery on a paying basis, but by 1935 the company was again in receivership.

Cosden returned to Oklahoma, took over an idle refinery, obtained a $100,000 loan, made a success of the refinery and sold it to Kerr-McGee. Cosden went back to Fort Worth, set up a small office and started working on another fortune. In poor health, he decided to go to Palm Springs, California for relief. He died on the westbound train in November of 1940. He was 51.

Sheriff appointed to WTRCA advisory council

Schleicher County Sheriff David Doran is one of fourteen sheriffs who have been invited to serve on the West Texas Rural Counties Association's Law Enforcement Advisory Council. The Council will be working with WTRCA and OSS-Law Enforcement Advisors, a professional consulting firm, retained by WTRCA.

The sheriffs have banded together to proactively address operational and training issues that are of common concern. OSS is providing each sheriff with the most up to date and comprehensive policies, procedures and training available in the state.

Eight of the fourteen sheriffs and members of their staffs attended a kickoff meeting in Abilene October 29, 2003. OSS presented each sheriff with model Policy and Procedures Manuals in both hard copy and CD-ROM, which will enable Sheriff Doran to customize the manuals for his office. The four-hour workshop was videotaped for the sheriffs who were not able to attend the kick-off meeting.

The Law Enforcement Advisory Council has been asked by WTRCA to determine the most desirable format for the advanced liability training to be provided for their deputies and jailers by OSS-Law Enforcement Advisors. Regional training programs will be conducted throughout the year, bringing officers from member counties together for the specialized training. The cost and coordination of the entire project, including training, is being provided by WTRCA Risk Management Pool, Schleicher County's law enforcement liability carrier. This project is expected to save each sheriff training costs, while improving mutual support during emergencies.

Kathleen Hicks-Miller, Risk Manager for WTRCA, said, "We are very excited about the tremendous support we are receiving from this group of sheriffs. We may be in rural west Texas, but the professional assistance and training being provided by OSS-Law Enforcement Advisors is of the highest caliber and is equal or better to the assistance and training provided in very large, property-rich, metropolitan areas. Better yet, the topics and locations are being handpicked by the Law Enforcement Advisory Council, so we know our sheriffs are getting what they want and need. The WTRCA Board of Directors is very proud to bring this program to Schleicher County at no additional cost to Sheriff Doran's budget or the taxpayers of Schleicher County. Judge Johnny Griffin represents Schleicher County on the WTRCA Board of Directors.

worries local water officials

ern part of the state, "It's like 30 pieces of silver," she told reporters.

Tuesday's meeting in Alpine gave members of the public their first opportunity to express their opinion of the deal. Cindy Cawley, manager of the Plateau Underground Water Conservation District attended the meeting on behalf of her district. She tells the Success that GLO officials got an ear full.

"It was the first public hearing that I have ever attended that all of the public comment was in opposition of the topic. There was no public comment offered in favor of the Rio Nuevo deal," she said. "It was a very cohesive group saying the same thing...don't take our only water supply."

Cawley says she is concerned how the Rio Nuevo deal will be interpreted and acted upon by other state agencies, particularly the Permanent University Fund, which administers 2.1 million acres of land in 19 West Texas counties. Included in that total are more than 61,000 acres in Western Schleicher County. The Permanent University Fund was set aside by the state's founding fathers to benefit the University of Texas and Texas A&M University.

The prospect of a reinterpretation of existing water rules worries Cindy Cawley. Those worries are magnified by the fact that the City of San Angelo has already expressed an interest in acquiring water rights within Schleicher County.

"I'm concerned that Commissioner Patterson's deal for Trans-Pecos water could be used as a tool to get around the rules we have adopted locally," Cawley stated.

Steve Hartman, Executive Director of University Lands and West Texas Operations for the Permanent School Fund, told the Success that his office already leases water rights to municipalities.

"We are currently providing half the water for Midland and the entire supply for the City of Andrews," Hartman said. He noted that other towns such as Wink and Kermit also get their water from well fields leased from the University Lands.

Hartman said that San Angelo officials have not contacted his office regarding water leases in Schleicher County.

Hartman added that he has never had any issues with the rules laid down by local water conservation districts. "We've always worked very closely with them and I've found them to be very helpful," Hartman said. He admitted, however, that he wasn't sure if local water districts have the authority to regulate underground water on state owned land. "That's a good question," Hartman said, "I don't think anyone really knows."

State Representative Harvey Hilderbran told the Success that he, too, is concerned about the water battle in West Texas. "I've been watching it closely and will continue to do so," Hilderbran stated. "I have always supported the local water districts and will continue to do so."

Meanwhile, the West Texas Water War continues to heat up. At stake are billions of gallons of water and millions of dollars in profits, not to mention the lives of those whose farms and ranches, cities and towns rely solely on groundwater beneath the parched West Texas landscape.

Then you turn this knob—Eldorado firefighters looked on recently as Andrew Day, a technician with Max Air Compressor Systems, demonstrated the department's newest piece of equipment, a cascade air system that will keep the firemen's breathing packs fully charged and ready to roll. The equipment was purchased with a grant through the Texas Forest Service.

The Blotter is a summary of the previous week's activity by the Schleicher County Sheriff's Dept. For practical reasons of time and space, The Blotter does not include every call made to the Sheriff's office, nor does it include routine security checks, minor traffic stops or routine patrols. Incidents of major impact will be reported separately. Subjects reported to have been arrested are presumed innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

More than just a Nursing Home

State inspectors have found Schleicher County Nursing Home to be Deficiency Free!

When the time comes that you or one of your loved ones require more care than family and friends can provide, consider the advantages offered by Schleicher County Nursing Home. Unlike some distant facility in a far off town, we're right here in Eldorado. You know us and we know you...and we know how to provide the specialized care you need.

Recognized for our commitment to long term care, Schleicher County Nursing Home attracts residents from throughout the area. Our staff of trained and dedicated professionals understand that each resident is an individual with unique needs. Unlike larger facilities, Schleicher County Nursing Home doesn't take a "cookie cutter" approach to delivery of care.

Many factors contribute to the choice of a long term care facility. Proximity to loved ones, planned activities and a homelike atmosphere are but three of the reasons many have chosen Schleicher County Nursing Home as their home away from home. We appreciate the trust that so many of our neighbors have placed in us. We work hard every day to make certain that trust is deserved.

Please feel free to call or come by. We'll be happy to visit with you about the long term care options at Schleicher County Nursing Home. We'll take as much time as necessary to answer all your questions. After all, we're more than a nursing home...we're your neighbor and we want you to feel comfortable and understand all your alternatives.

We have beds open now!
Call or come by while they are still available!

Description of advanced practice nursing roles

by Rebecca Silva
Hospital Director of Nursing

I am often asked about my education and future related to my nursing career. I have found myself explaining often what it means to be a Clinical Nurse Specialist (CNS) and Nurse Practitioner (NP). NP's and CNS's are often grouped into a common phrase of Advanced Practice Nurse and this is fine if you know the distinctions.

The community of Eldorado has known midlevel care providers as physician's assistants but, the midlevel care providers such as NP's and CNS's, Nurse Midwives, and Nurse Anesthetists, have caused some confusion.

Clearly, midlevel care providers are not physicians but, we (CNS's NP's, and PA's) do have limited prescriptive authority. We do assess, evaluate, implement, and evaluate treatment plans. And, most of all, we have roles that we assume in our positions which include collaborative care and education opportunities for our clients.

If a line were drawn to define between specializations of these advanced care givers, it would have to be a dashed line as there is much cross movement.

NP: Practice in many settings and may specialize in adult, family, gerontologic, pediatric, and women's health.

They integrate nursing theories and models in their practice of holistic medicine while emphasizing health promotion and disease prevention.

Are educators, researchers, consultants, case managers, and activists.

May assist with staff education programs and care planning for patients.

Minimum educational preparation is a Master's degree in Nursing and completion of a nationally accredited NP program. Prescriptive authority is granted separately and is dependent on state laws. And yes, NP services are reimbursed by Medicare and private insurance.

NP organizations support by providing educational opportunities, promoting the role, setting standards of practice and/or education, support legislation, and by facilitating networking.

CNS: Are expert clinicians, consultants, educators, researchers, and collaborators. Specializations are available in a variety of areas including medical/surgical, gerontologic, parent-child, community health, acute care and mental health.

Minimum educational preparation is a Master's degree in Nursing and they are certified in a particular clinical specialty. Coursework includes advanced scientific concepts, advanced health assessment, advanced pathophysiology, research methodologies, and program planning. The CNS must also be skilled in budgeting and case management.

Practice is research-based; they promote scientific inquiry in clinical practice by utilizing current research findings and by conducting and facilitating nursing research.

Serve as resources and role models for expert patient care and case management. This mentoring of staff usually differentiates the CNS from the NP role.

traditionally on an inpatient basis; however, many may practice in a variety of settings.

May be responsible for staff education and developing care plans for patients.

Traditionally, CNS's have assumed faculty teaching positions and continued graduate education at the doctoral level to pursue research interests.

We hope that this helps to clarify the opportunity we have in our community in that we are privileged to have an Advanced Practice Nurse working in our Family Health Clinic. Francisca Gonzales RN, ANP is a welcomed addition to our caregiving family at Schleicher County Medical Center. If you have further questions about the roles of midlevel providers, call me. Have a great week.
