Sesquicentennial group picked in Mertzon

A Committee Meeting for the upcoming 1986 Sesquicentennial was held December 20th at the Community Center in Mertzon. Lee Storey, Area Coordinator of West Texas for the Sesquicentennial, was present to officially declare Irion as a Sanctioned County.

According to Donna George, Committee Chairperson, a flag and plaque was also presented by Mr. Storey. These objects are currently being shown at the Irion County Courthouse, and later will be placed at various locations in Mertzon and Barnhart.

On this committee, are representatives from every known organization in Irion County. Plans were discussed at this first meeting involving fund raising, new logo and flag, and individual placements. The Committee hopes to have a contest centered around the logo and flag.

There are around 25 members now, and anyone is welcome to attend. The meetings are scheduled every 4th Monday. Contact Donna George for more information.

Schleicher County gears for 4-H/FFA Show

Once again it's time for the annual Schleicher County 4-H and FFA Project and Livestock Show. This year the show will be held January 11 - 12, with the official kick-off at Friday at 9:00 a.m. The two day event will be held at the Ag Barn and will also feature a BBQ lunch prepared by Orland Harris at noon Saturday.

The show will feature a dog show, food show, youth and women's craft and art needlework exhibits and the livestock show and action.

The dog show will feature a "Groomed Dog Division" and a "Dressed Alike" dog and exhibitor division with three age brackets: 7 & under (Sub Junior); 8 - 13 years (Junior) and 13 - 19 years (Senior).

The food show will include three food divisions and three age divisions:

Yeast Bread, Cakes & Pies and Candy & Cookies; Kindergarten, 1st & 2nd grade (Sub Junior), 3rd grade - 13 years (Junior) and 14 - 19 years (Senior). All entries must be at the Ag Barn before 9 a.m. Saturday January 12th and entry forms should be in by January 10th.

In the Women's and Youth Division, exhibits of needlework, quilts, hobbies and crafts will be displayed. Entries must be turned in at the Ag Barn before Friday the 11th at 9:00 a.m.

Saturday's activities will include the presentation of awards. The Livestock Premium Sale will be held at 4:00 p.m., the Food Premium Sale at 5:00 p.m. and the Chinese Auction will be held at 6:00 p.m. A dance will follow the day's festivities at 9:00 p.m. Saturday night.

Children await Livestock Show

It was reported in the Leader that the Irion County Stock Show slated January 12 was incorrectly stated as being sponsored by the Irion County 4-H Club. This annual contest for the project is in fact sponsored by the Irion County Live Stock Association. We regret this error.

The Stock Show will begin at 8 a.m., Saturday, January 12, and a BBQ, sponsored by the Mertzon Lions Club is set for 12 noon. The Premium Sale will begin around 1 p.m. and an auction will run throughout the event. This auction is featuring donated items from area merchants, with proceeds to go to the 4-H and FFA. All donations are tax deductible. Wes Minton is the auctioneer.

This will be the first outing for many youngsters this year, some as young as 9yrs, and the Association encourages all children between 9 and 18 years of age, as well as their parents to participate in this project. Scott Holland is the Association Chairman for Irion County this year. For more information, contact him or Tommy Estes, Show Chairman.

The past Super Santa Celebration was, as always, enjoyed by the citizens of Eldorado. Merchant drawings had only three businesses participating and the following is a list of the participating merchants, their prizes and the winner of each:

McCalla's Dept. Store: Full size acrylic blanket - Annie Speck.
Cottage Crafts: Surprise gift - Augustina Rodriguez.
Sofge's: $35.00 in merchandise - Sharon Fitts.

In the General Drawing the winners were:

Shaw's Motel: $20.00 in cash - Jesse Jenkins.

Heart O' Texas: $25.00 savings account - Delsa Perez.

The House Decorating Contest saw many Eldorado homes being decorated for the holidays, therefore, making this part of the celebration one of the most beautiful. Winners from each precinct were:

Precinct 1 - Mr. and Mrs. Domingo Pina.

Precinct 2 - Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reidy.

Precinct 3 - Manuel Martinez.

Precinct 4 - Dale Bettis.

The $25.00 Grand Prize Winner was John Edward Meador.

Honorable Mention went to Carmen Rodriguez, James Rameriz, Matt Chalmers and Juanita Shurley.

The Progress Council heartily thanks WTU and Southwest Texas Electric Co-op for again putting up the Christmas lights in the downtown area and to all the citizens who worked so unselfishly to make Super Santa Celebration a success.

1984 top story PAVE PAWS

1984 was definitely an exciting year in Eldorado and Schleicher County with the official ground breaking of Southwest PAVE PAWS being held October 30th. Eldorado was alive with activity as Senator John Tower, Congressman Tom Loeffler and numerous U.S. Air Force dignitaries from Goodfellow AFB as well as all over the United States, converged for the ceremonies at the site 8 miles north of Eldorado and then adjourned to the courthouse lawn for an afternoon of BBQ and visiting. The 10-story facility will be under construction for approximately two years and will be one of only four early warning radar installations of its type in the nation.

Leader Editorial

The Problem

"Drinking and Driving don't mix. It can kill a friendship, Friends don't let friends drive drunk". All of these have been heard on radio and television, but none have really been taken seriously until now. As national concern about drunk driving increases, not only is the driver at fault, but the company or individuals that aid, tolerate, or ignore excessive drinking by their employees or guests, can now be held at fault.

For decades taverns, restaurant and liquor store owners and their employees in many states have been potentially liable for alcohol related accidents. There are millions of areas where businesses interface with booze, and each one is a danger point. Take the tavern that gave away beer, as well as the radio station that carried ads for the offer, paid $92,500 to the parents of a Parkville, Mo., boy killed by a drunk driver. The driver had patronized the bar, after hearing the ad.

But controversy remains. Who is really at fault? Are liquor-serving establishments responsible for the acts of others? Are over-inebriated people responsible enough for themselves? According to Duncan Cameron, director of communications for the Distilled Spirits Council of America, "The problem isn't oversupplying, it's overdemanding. If a person wants to get drunk, he'll find a way. The individual driver is the one who has to bear the responsibility. If you think you can solve the drunk driving problem by punishing bar owners and coporate hosts, you're wrong." Yet from the victims' point of view, "you can't just walk away from responsibility anymore. Who are you going to want to pay for that?, yourself or an employer who in some small way contributed to the accident?"

Basically, trust is an important part of everyday driving. You trust the driver in the other lane to stay on his side, to know what he's doing, and not to kill you. He in the other lane, trusts you to do the same. That's a lot of trust. So why are so many maimed or killed in alcohol related accidents? Is the trust not there then? Is the lethargic state of mind at fault? The dulled senses? Is the empty stomach to blame for absorbing too much alcohol?

People who drive and drink think it's their own problem and no one else's business. That's 100 percent wrong. There is no situation more social than drinking. You're in 2000lbs of steel, shooting down the highway at 60 miles an hour, and all that separates you from that other guy going 60 miles an hour is a little white line.

Many people feel weak, ill, shaky, and full of pain the day after. Why then, do they do this? Do they enjoy the feeling the morning after? Do the previous nights feelings far out weigh the morning after?

"You have a drinking problem anytime you have any kind of problem related to your drinking" said one man in the county jail. Another said "When you get behind the wheel of a car, you take a chance. But when you get behind the wheel and your drunk, you have no chance." These two men are spending 60 days in jail for third time DWI offences. Each had to pay close to $1,000.00 in fees, court costs, lawyers fees, work missed, towing charges, and probation fees.

The number of drunken driving arrests in Texas have declined 11 percent in the last year, thanks to raised minimum fines, mandatory jail sentences for repeat offenders, required 90-day license suspensions for drivers who refuse blood-alcohol tests, and DWI convictions becoming permanent on a defendant's criminal record. In the first nine months of 1984, there were 98,600 DWI arrests. Driver's license suspension for DWI for the first 11 months of '84 totaled 30,500, and the number of people ordered to take educational programs because of DWI arrests were 59,000.

According to Gene Sage in Chicago, owner of the Sage's restaurants, he has one of the most comprehensive programs in the country aimed at reducing problem drinkers. Any waiter or waitress who works for Sage more than 10 days, receives training that enables them to detect problem customers early, and to shift them tactfully away from more drinks.

Also at Sage's, free soft drinks are offered to the "designated driver" in any group that comes in. Protein-rich hot d'ouvers are served with drinks, to absorb alcohol. And during the holiday season, he hires a full time driver with a car for each of his four restaurants to drive overim-bibing customers home. Sage says "Our customers come to us knowing that we will take care of them. They know what we're doing, and they applaud it. Many should follow our example." Like the tube said, "drinking and driving are a crashing experience."

CAA Museum to host Eggenhofer

Kerrville, Texas—An exhibit of work by Nick Eggenhofer, emeritus member of the Cowboy Artists of America, will open the 1985 season at the CAA Museum in Kerrville.

The show, which will open January 13, will consist of 110 original illustrations for his book about the old west -- "Wagons, Mules and Men" -- published in 1961. The exhibit will continue for three months.

Nick Eggenhofer occupies a special place in the world of western art. For the past 64 years he has been drawing and painting pictures of the West -- of the men and women who made it what it is, and the animals, wagons, and equipment that they used.

Eggenhofer was born in Gauting, Bavaria, in 1897, and, filled with desire to experience the American West -- an obsession affecting thousands of Germans then and since -- he emigrated to the United States in 1913.

He studied art at Cooper Union in New York in 1920, sold three watercolors to Street & Smith, the famous publisher of pulp magazines, launching him on a three-decade career of illustrations for "Western Stories", "True", and "Argosy" magazines.

In the 1950's he turned to book illustration and dust cover design. He created 50 of them in all. In 1961 he wrote and illustrated his definitive work titled "Wagons, Mules and Men", which documents the men, methods, and routes used to push the frontier ever westward. This book is now out of print. He actually did 112 illustrations, of which 110 will be in the Cowboy Artists of America Museum show.

Also in 1961, Nick and Louise Eggenhofer moved to Cody, Wyoming, where he still lives. His work there became more imaginative and broader in scope. He was awarded the Trustees Gold Medal by the National Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in 1973.

His work was exhibited at the Buffalo Bill Historical Center in Cody in 1975 and 1981. He became a Cowboy Artists of America member in 1970, choosing emeritus status in 1974.

In 1981 his autobiography, "Horses, Horses, Always Horses", was published by Sage Publishing Co., Inc., Cody, Wyoming, and is available at the CAA Museum and other stores where Western art books are sold.

Heald and Davidson vows exchanged

Miss Amy LaVonne Heald became the bride of Gregg O'Neil Davidson, Saturday evening, December 22, 1984 in a ceremony held in the First Baptist Church of Eldorado. Rev. Ron Sutto of Eldorado officiated at the ceremony.

Miss Heald, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor length white velvet gown and train accented with lace and seed pearls. Her dress featured organza and velvet sleeves and a mandarin collar with lace overlay. Her gown also featured a lovely floor length veil.

Maid of Honor was Ms. Angie Heald of Eldorado and bridesmaids were Gina Patton and Dusti Murph, both of Eldorado. Their gowns were of red velvet accented with white fur head bands and each one carried white muffs.

Best Man was Jimmy Davidson of Brownwood, Texas and Groomsman were David Hastings of Midland and Joe Barrera of Eldorado.

Ushers were Robert Arthur of San Angelo and Gene Hendricks of Odessa.

A reception was held following the ceremony. Members of the House Party were: Mrs. Shelly Phillips, Mrs. Melissa Lentz, Mrs. Julie Harlin, Ms. Mary Lisa O'Harrow, Ms. Kelly Badgett, Ms. Becky Schrier, and Ms. LaVonne Vannett. Rice Bag girls were: Wendy Conner and Cheramy McCorkle.

Amy was feted with a Linen Shower in Midland. Serving as hostesses were Sid Crouch and Marie Dillard. She was also feted with a Miscellaneous shower in Eldorado. Hostesses for the shower were Helen Pfluger, Ester Bumgardner, Melonie Reynolds, Maureen Hodges, Stassi Jones, Jo Ann Heffernan, Mary Robinson, Marcy

Willis, Jeanie Childers, and Wilma Logan.

The bride was feted with a brunch in the Eldorado home of Melissa Lentz. Hostesses included Mrs. Lentz, Angie Heald, Julie Harlin and Gina Patton.

A rehearsal supper was hosted by the couple's families at the First Baptist Church. The barbeque supper was prepared by Orland Harris.

Out of town guests attending the wedding were: Mr. Kelly Badgett of Midland, David Hastings of Midland, Mrs. Shirley Davidson of Midland, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Robins of Corpus Christi, Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Conner and Wendy of Keller, Mr. and Mrs. James Morris of Irving, Mr. and Mrs. Rich Benson and children of Euless, Mrs. Sheila Fallon of Irving, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Arthur and sons of San Angelo, Gina Mitchell of San Angelo, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McCorkle and daughter of Euless, Mr. and Mrs. Fritts and son of Midland, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Westbrook of San Angelo, H.J. Davidson of San Angelo, Patsy and Stephanie Jackson of San Angelo, Mr. and Mrs. T.E. Martin of San Angelo, Jim Martin of San Angelo, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hendrix and son of Odessa.

Amy, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Heald, is a graduate of Eldorado High School and Commercial College in San Angelo. She is employed as a secretary for Alan B. Shouse and Co. of Midland.

Gregg, the son of Shirley Davidson of Midland and Gary Davidson of San Angelo, is also a graduate of Eldorado High School and is a part time student at Midland College and is employed by Midland College.

After a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, the couple will be making their home in Midland.

Sesquicentennial meeting held in Austin

In the midst of hundreds of enthusiastic Sesquicentennial volunteers gathered at the Austin Sheraton Crest Inn for the first Statewide Leaders' Conference, the Sesquicentennial Commission sanctioned an impressive number of organizations as new Texas Independence Communities, Counties and Associations.

During a concurrent meeting at the Sheraton on Friday, November 30, the Commission gave the official nod to 119 community county organizations and 27 statewide non-profit associations. The new Texas Independence Communities, Counties and Associations are listed separately.

The official title allows the local organizations to use the Sesquicentennial logo on promotional materials, sell commemorative items, and have their events listed in the soon-to-be-published Guide to Sesquicentennial Events for 1986. Similar privileges are extended to the Texas Independence Associations. For approval, the communities, counties and associations were required to meet several criteria, including drafting of a master plan of the group's proposed Sesquicentennial events, projects and activities.

While the Commission deliberated on the applications before it, scores of representatives from other Texas Independence Communities, Counties and Associations as well as those still working on their applications for official approval attended the Conference on Friday and Saturday, December 1. Workshops on fundraising, school projects, advertising and promotional tips, and legal issues were held for the participants, who also heard a variety of speakers including Secretary of State Myra McDaniel and the Hon. David Allred, son of former Governor James Allred.

"There is no doubt in our minds that the Sesquicentennial will be a true success after witnessing the energy, enthusiasm and ability of the 500 volunteers who attended the conference", said Randy M. Lee, Sesquicentennial Commission executive director. "We are proud to be able to say that each and every one of these people is a part of the total statewide Sesquicentennial effort, and will help make this truly a grassroots celebration for every Texan."

Arbor Day observed January 18th

Arbor Day, an observance which recognizes the importance of planting trees, will be celebrated in Texas on January 18, this year.

Beginning in a Swiss village more than fifteen hundred years ago, Arbor Day symbolizes the need to plant trees in cities and towns as well as for wood and paper products.

In the United States, Arbor Day began in a state which had at the time less than three percent of its land area covered with trees -- Nebraska. Since that first Arbor Day in 1872, the idea has spread to fifty states and the Virgin Islands.

Temple was the site of the first

Arbor Day in Texas in 1889. An Arbor Day resolution was passed shortly after that first ceremony by the Texas State Legislature. In 1949, the third Friday in January was designated as Arbor Day in Texas.

Because only 13.6 percent of Texas' total land area is in forest land, and this mostly in East Texas, many Texans are not aware that this amounts to an estimated 11.7 million acres, or 18,583.2 square miles. This, while perhaps a small portion of the entire state, nevertheless amounts to an area larger in size than the states of Maryland (10,577 sq. mi.) and New Jersey (7,836 combined.

It is also larger than the four New England states of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island, with a combined land area of 15,437 square miles.

Besides the obvious benefits of the timber industry in Texas, which generates 150,000 jobs, $82 million in taxes, and $5.1 billion in sales annually, urban tree planting can have a far-reaching effect on a community.

According to Larry Schaapveld, urban forester with the Texas Forest Service in Fort Worth, trees serve many functions in urban areas.

"Trees do much more in a town or city than provide color.

Tax benefits due for rehabilitation of structures

Considerable federal tax benefits are possible for the rehabilitation of historic structures, and leading national and state preservation organizations will sponsor a workshop on the tax incentives, program procedures and technical problem-solving. "Successful Rehabilitation" will be held in San Antonio, February 15-17 and should provide helpful information to architects, investors and preservationists.

The 25 percent Investment Tax Credit for the rehabilitation of historic structures has created much interest in the preservation and business communities in recent years. The San Antonio workshop will outline step-by-step procedures for qualifying for the tax incentives, and will also provide specific information and both technical and legal aspects of the program. Issues such as compatible new additions and adapting historic interiors will be considered. The workshop will be sponsored by the Association for Preservation Technology (APT), in cooperation with the National Park Service and the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Workshop faculty includes Max imilian Ferro, AIA, RIBA of the Preservation Partnership, New Bedford, Massachusetts; Hugh Miller, AIA, conservation technology consultant, Springfield, Virginia; and Baird Smith, AIA, Geier Brown Renfrow Architects, Washington, D.C. state officials and tax experts who administer the program at the state level will also be on hand.

The workshop, which is sponsored locally by the Texas Historical Commission, the state agency for historic preservation, is one of five of such gatherings scheduled across the nation. The $350 fee, which covers course materials, lunch for three days, and an opening reception, is available only if registration is postmarked at least three weeks prior to the seminar. The fee is $400 after that date.

Additional information and registration forms are available from APT, 345 Union St., New Bedford, Ma 02740, 617/996-3383 or 613/238-1972.

Reader's Opinion

The new tax plan offered by Treasury Secretary Donald Regan won't do a thing for the U.S. economy except turn a disaster into complete catastrophe. Donald Regan proposes to eliminate wholesale a host of useful tax incentives and credits, while simplifying and lowering the basic tax rates. Proponents of the Treasury plan—and ever so-called "Flat Tax" gimmick of the sort espoused by Rep. Jack Kemp and others—claim that to achieve maximum economic growth, it is only necessary to cut taxes or make them "fairer". But by itself, that won't generate any additional revenue. Under the Treasury plan, the federal budget deficit will stay in the stratosphere—just where the Wall Street crowd can use it to blackmail the president.

There is only one way to close the U.S. budget deficit and put the nation on the road to a real economic recovery. That is to gear up industrial and agricultural production, so that the additional jobs and profits increase the federal tax revenue base.

This is not a matter for the fools who call themselves economists to debate. The United States is immediately threatened with overwhelming Soviet military-strategic superiority. Unless we produce, on crash basis, the beam weapons defense Lyndon LaRouche and President Reagan have championed, this country is finished. But by doing so, we can begin to generate a national economic boom which additional measures can spread world wide.

We need a World War II style emergency defense economic mobilization. Right away, we need more people at work producing more steel, machine tools, nuclear plants, farm machinery, meat, dairy products, and grain—much much more, to begin to meet the actual economic needs of the Third World nations, whose ultimate long-term defense against Soviet Imperialism, not to mention famine, disease and war-rest, like our own, on rapid economic development.

With a fully-funded "no budget limit" commitment to producing beam defense, like the Manhattan Project that build the atom bomb, the U.S. could revolutionize production techniques, while immediately putting back to work the idle factories, farms and people who can get this country moving again. The LaRouche international monetary, credit and tax reforms, would make that possible—and could be applied easily, once the basic decision is made in Washington that nothing must be allowed to interfere with building a beam defense.

Liveoaks can cause poisoning

Oaks are trees or shrubs with alternate, entire, toothed or lobed leaves. Shinnery has many underground stems that give rise to woody shrubs that may be only a few feet tall. Liveoak can grow very large, but often occurs in thickets or mottes of smaller trees. Unlike shin oak, it stays green through the winter.

Both liveoak and shin oak are considered fairly good forage during most of the year. Liveoak provides green forage for both livestock and deer during winter months when little green forage is available. They do, however, cause poisoning during certain periods of the year. Most losses occur during the spring budding period. The buds, small leaves, flowers, and stems are palatable and poisonous when consumed in quantity. Cattle, sheep, and goats have been poisoned by oak. As the leaves mature, they become less palatable and are not eaten in the same quantity as the young growth. Poisoning can also occur later in the year from consuming large quantities of acorns. Acorn poisoning has been suspected from most species of oak other than liveoak.

Management measures to prevent oak bud poisoning include moving animals to pastures with little or no oak or penning and feeding livestock for 3 to 4 weeks when oak first buds in the spring. Losses in cattle have been reduced by feeding a supplement containing hydrated lime prior to and during the time oak was consumed. Acorn poisoning can be prevented by placing stock in pastures without large amounts of acorns or by supplemental feeding so that large quantities of acorns are not consumed.

The old year ended with the assistance of a much needed 3% inch rain falling on the divide. Even up in the day, gullies still ran rampant in the draws with shed off
