'Off Broadway' Players Open Season

By Marci Willis

The Way Off Broadway Players officially opened their season with two one-act plays last week at the Baron Von Schleicher Playhouse, playing to a full house for each of the three performances. Audiences delighted in the humor of each play, directed by Jo Ann Sproul, and even enjoyed a cup of hot cider during the intermission.

In "The Bathroom Door", the actors and actresses left their Texas draws at home and brought a little of the "Queen's English" to Eldorado. Set in an English hotel, the play's conflict revolved around ... you guessed it ... the bathroom door.

Guests awaiting the bathroom, faced the problem in a variety of ways. The elderly gentleman, Dr. Jim Brame, sneaked a nip or two and advised the young man, Lewis Whitten, in the arts of gentlemanly conduct. The prima donna, Barbara Cosper, so dazzled the young man that he left discretion behind and demanded that the bathroom's secret occupant hurry up and come out.

Eventually, a small crowd of hotel patrons gathered outside the bathroom. Even the shy elderly lady, Mabel Blaylock, ventured out and suggested that someone's life might be in danger. Upon hearing this, the young lady, Kathy Mankin, took matters in hand and called the management.

All the while, the prima donna swooned and the men ran to her aid. Finally, the toothless Cockney maid, Glenda Nix, solved the problem: there was no one in the bathroom and the jammed door could be opened with a series of short kicks. The play ended as hotel patrons left manners behind and rushed for the bathroom door.

The second one-act comedy, "Quiet Please", was set closer to home, the Ozarks, and the characters were as familiar as next door neighbors. Two brothers, Jeff (Gary Smith) and Judd (Pat Ragsdale), shared a home but had not spoken to each other in years. Their mountain shack was divided by a chalk line and neither brother crossed to the other's side, but they grumbled and griped and taunted each other to the delight of the audience.

Of course, the good Christian women of the town wanted to settle this feud and restore brotherly love in Jeff and Judd's humble home. Sister Andrews, Sheila Prater, backed by a small army of Bible-toting women, tried valiantly to preach love to these two hard-headed "old fools".

Jessica and Jose, Kathy Mankin and Barbara Cosper, chimed in with "amens" and gave moral support to the group. Mattie, Mabel Blaylock, the more forceful of the bunch, used her Bible as a weapon to cram the message of love down their throats.

Nothing worked until a stranded woman, Catherine, played by Nancy Lester, came to Jeff and Judd for aid -- she was having car trouble. Unaware of the feud, she insisted that the brothers sleep together so she could have a bed for the night.

Not really knowing how to handle this air-headed city woman, the brothers unwillingly obliged. The next morning she left, and the brothers realized that the feud had been silly. It looked as if they were about to have a change of heart when they got in an argument about why they had stopped talking in the first place!

Those attending the plays were impressed by the quality of each performance and will be anxiously awaiting the next performance of the players.

Changes In Motor Vehicle Laws

Changes Effective September 1, 1989

Local Justice of the Peace Frank "Pancho" Bradley has stated there have been some changes made in the Motor Vehicle Division regarding driving with expired driver's license, registration or inspection certificate. The changes were effective September 1.

According to the changes made, Section 7, Chapter 3, Acts of the 43rd Legislature, 2nd Called Session, 1934 is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 7. (a) After the fifth day after the date a registration for a motor vehicle, trailer, or semi-trailer expires, any person operating the motor vehicle, trailer, or semi-trailer upon the highways of this State with a license plate or plates for any preceding period which have not been validated by the attachment of a symbol, tab or other device for the current registration period, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

"(b) A judge, at his discretion, may dismiss the charge of driving with an expired motor vehicle registration if the defendant remedies this defect within 10 working days. Additionally, the judge, at his discretion, may assess an administrative fee not to exceed $10 when the charge of driving with an expired motor vehicle registration has been remedied.

"Section 2. Drivers Must Have License. (a) No person, except those hereinafter expressly exempted, shall drive any motor vehicle upon a highway in this State unless such person has a valid driver's license issued under the provisions of this Act.

"(b) A judge, at his discretion, may dismiss the charge of driving with an expired driver's license if the defendant remedies this defect within 10 working days. Additionally, the judge, at his discretion, may assess an administrative fee not to exceed $10 when the charge of driving with an expired driver's license has been remedied.

"(c) A person may not receive a driver's license until he surrenders to the Department all valid driver's licenses in his possession issued to him by this or any other state. A surrendered license issued by another state shall be returned to the state accompanied by a statement that the person is licensed in this State.

"(d) No person holding a driver's license issued under the provisions of this Act shall be required to obtain any license for the operation of a motor vehicle from any other State authority or department.

"Section 3. (g) Any person operating a motor vehicle on the highways of this State, other than a vehicle licensed in another State and being temporarily and legally operated under a valid reciprocity agreement, in violation of the provision of this Act or without displaying a valid inspection certificate or having equipment which does not comply with the provisions of Article XIV of this Act is guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be punished as provided in Section 143 of this Act. A judge, at his discretion, may dismiss the charge of driving with an expired vehicle inspection certificate if the defendant remedies this defect within 10 working days. Additionally, the judge, at his discretion, may assess an administrative fee not to exceed $10 when the charge of driving with an expired vehicle inspection certificate has been remedied."

'Christmas & More' To Open Sunday, November 26

The annual "Christmas and More" store will open in Eldorado on Sunday, November 26 at 2 p.m. Once again the store will be located at the old Sudduth home on Main Street.

The store will feature Christmas decorations, gifts, clothing, baked goods, jewelry, quilts and many, many more items. The thing that makes the store so special is that every item for sale has been handcrafted by some talented Schleicher County person!

Participants in the "Christmas and More" project for 1989 are: Marty Edmiston, Rosa Calcote, Becky Sterling, Melissa Murr, Mary Etta Stricklan, Debbie Conatser, Pat Gentry, Sharon Fitts, Cleo Deaton, Candy Richards, Patsy Kellogg, Jewel Sudduth, Dena Day, Eloise Day, Gloria Swift, Nancy Lester, Viddette Sallee, Brenda Moore, Roxanne Adame, Dorothy Clark and Clara Mae Donaldson.

The Store will be open for one week. Store hours are Sunday, November 26, 2 to 5 p.m. and Monday through Saturday, November 27 to December 2 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The final day the store will be open is Sunday, December 3 from 2 to 5 p.m.

Refreshments will be served all week and it is even rumored that Santa might be at the store on Monday afternoon.

A gift wrap service will also be available. Everyone is encouraged to come and see the wonderful display of goods.

For more information on the Store please call any of the participants.

Life Among The Fishes

By Thomas Giovannitti

Nicholas and I were in San Angelo Saturday. When we were driving by the red arroyo we saw a grocery cart overturned in the stream bed. It dawned upon us that stream beds or the bottoms of ravines is where grocery carts go to die. I know you've heard the stories of the secret burial grounds for elephants so now my son and I have discovered where grocery carts go to die.

The cart we saw had to be three football fields from the nearest store where such carts come from. That cart would have had to cross at least one major street, pass through one or another developed property, go down into that soft red clay and pitch itself into the arroyo. Quite a feat considering most of those grocery carts are lame.

I don't know about you, but I always get a cart with one wheel either frozen at a ninety degree angle to the other wheels or a wheel that wobbles madly. The only thing I can figure out is that the cart manufacturer has a guy at the end of the assembly line whose job it is to cripple one of the wheels. Whether he does it with a sledge or an ax, the main thing he needs to accomplish is to make it so that cart won't go anywhere or at the most around in circles. Other than the faulty wheel alignment, most grocery carts are too large for two of them to pass each other in a store aisle.

Grocery stores are not so bad, but the discount department stores seem to make a real effort to make their aisles too narrow for two carts to pass. Of course with the twisted front wheel, even in the larger aisles there is a good chance of crashing into the other person's cart merely by failing to wrestle your cart to stay straight.

I thought maybe the cart people should do something about those deformed front wheels, but then I thought, if they did, there would be even more of them dead in the ditch.

Making a difference! Can you, could you, make a difference in someone's life?

Each year at this time we give thanks for our many blessings. Isn't that what Thanksgiving is all about? But, as we give thanks for our blessings, what about the blessings of others?

How often we get so wrapped up in our own lives that we forget those around us -- our friends, acquaintances, even those we do not even know. We are busier than ever before. There are more demands on our time.

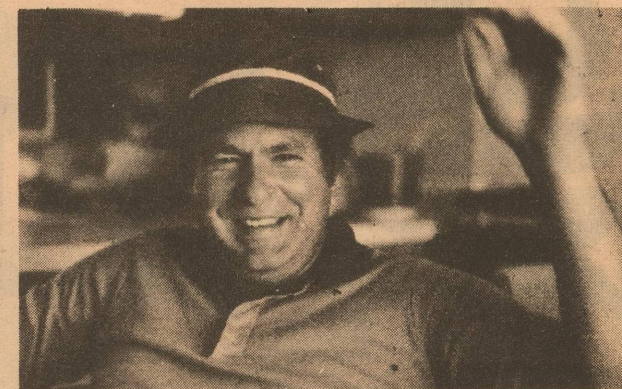

As we give our thanks, maybe we should remember those less fortunate. I know, you have heard that before. However, you can make a difference in someone's life. I can make a difference in someone's life.

Sometimes a simple "hello" can make all the difference in the world, or a telephone call to ask "how are you?". At this special time of year, let us each search ourselves and share a little part of ourselves with someone else.

Yes, we can all make a difference in someone's life. Think about it!

Few people like the virtues that they don't have.

Heard about a big executive who boarded a New York-to-Chicago train. He explained to the porter, "I'm a heavy sleeper and I want you to be sure and wake me at 3 a.m. to get off in Buffalo. Regardless of what I say, get me up, for I have some important business there."

Next morning the executive woke up in Chicago. He found the porter and sternly reprimanded him.

After the man had left, someone asked the porter, "How could you stand there and take that kind of talk from that man?"

The porter explained: "That ain't nothing. You should've heard the fellow that I did put off at Buffalo."

Sometimes we are absolutely, positively, 100% sure that we are dead right when far too often we are dead wrong. More than once, I have been soooo sure that I was right... Have told people what they should and should not do, how they should and should not act.

Really wish that I could stop being critical. Of course, criticizing folk is sort of fun... kind of entertaining...

Know what I really hate??...

'Til the next time...MAY GOD BLESS.

Persistent Sleeplessness: Is Milk a Culprit?

A study over a two year period of children less than five years old who had continual waking and crying during sleep hours revealed that 58 percent had inappropriate sleep habits. However, no explanation for the sleeplessness was found for 12 percent.

These children were entered into a trial in which cow's milk was excluded from their diets. Sleep became normal in 15 of 17 children after five weeks on the restricted diet. When they were allowed the milk, the sleeplessness returned.

The investigators warned, however, that only children with the most persistent sleeplessness that does not respond to other treatment should be considered for milk intolerance tests.

"On the Road Again"

(To the place Willie lives)

By Danny Crowder

Starting out the trip to Austin didn't have the same circumstances as the week before. For one thing it wasn't four in the morning, but instead two in the afternoon, which created easier feelings around the household.

Arriving in Austin I found out that after 17 years my loving traveling companion could still not tell the difference between right and left. After showing her the Rand McNally map that some band director had prepared in order for the faithful followers to spend the night at the same place where the "yellow dogs" would camp, the bell rang in the right spot.

Since we were traveling down Barton Springs Road in a southerly direction and the map stated that the Hyatt Regency would be between that street and the river, it should have not been difficult to determine what side of the road the hotel would be. After all, most rivers in the state do run towards the coast. Anyway, this little misunderstanding was rather quickly settled and we pulled into the parking lot.

Kids, kids and more kids, along with some excited parents, filled the Hyatt lobby. Don't let anyone tell you that a glassed in elevator will only hold so many people. It just depends on whether they are parents or excited band students trying to get to their rooms to see what the furnishings look like.

Being a Shriner, I have witnessed quite a few Circus performances, but it was a first for me to watch a trio inside the atrium glassed-in elevators being transformed into fascinating joy rides by a group of (from the country) kids. Anyhow, lights went out and kids were in bed early so that minds would be fresh (maybe not relaxed) to face the task that would be forthcoming.

While drinking coffee in the hotel lobby the next morning, I overheard a rather interesting conversation between the check-out counter lady and a Southwest Airlines Captain. It seems as if he only got two hours of sleep the night before. How could this possibly happen staying in a place of such glitzy. He said he didn't realize that there were so many people staying in his room, but after several wrong numbers the phone quit ringing. Knowing the nature of Eldorado kids ours could not possibly have been involved in such.

Rain and more rain. After a somewhat delay, the show went one. The Westlake booster club had a great concession stand, but I would bet that they would have never realized that their best seller would be large, Glad trash bags. I have seen some designer rainwear but never modified such as some of these were. I know that there are die-hard football fans in Texas, but they don't come any tougher than Eldorado band followers.

Students that were on the field that day can say they were very proud of the moms, dads, aunts and uncles and grandparents that were cheering them on to "Victory". When the green and white took to the field something miraculous happened. The sun broke through and put a spotlight on the assembled band. That should have laid to rest some disappointing afterwards feelings.

Guess what? Another superb performance. Then the bubble busted. The band had made the giant step, but they didn't get a chance to see how deep a track would be left. Two years ago I watched them have a chance for the first time to take that step. Somehow they just couldn't seem to raise that foot.

This year they found out what it took -- perseverance, a great big want to, through thick and thin band directors, and moms and dads that never got tired of saying "Oh not, band practice again".

In the 14 bands that competed there were no losers. There were five that was picked out as being a little more refined and polished as the others with the last chance of going head to head and coming out with one having the honor of being picked as #1. We never got a chance to see how deep the track would be, but in every band member's mind, they should never forget, that they were a part of making that mark. The supporters that have worked so hard to see you have that opportunity never will. The sun came shining through on the Eagle Band.

It also did for a very short while on our neighbors 30 miles to the northwest, who also made that step. Then, for them, it blacked out in a horrible way that no living person could ever answer the question, "Why?".

Seniors, juniors, sophomores, freshmen and eighth graders be extremely proud of yourselves, your community, the undying support that has been shown you, and a very special thanks in a way we all know how to a Supreme Being that shown the light on our heads and kept it burning. First place in district, first place in regional and the finals at State. What a proud saying "It shined in '89".

I want to thank Eleanora Love for getting out of bed and giving me the green and white ribbon for the streamers. The kids found out they were not made of crepe paper when they tried to yank them off of their radio antennas.

Historic Fort Holds Christmas Heritage Celebration

Eighth Annual Christmas At Old Fort Concho

Fort Concho National Historic Landmark will be filled with costumed entertainers, merchants, craftsmen and shoppers during the eighth annual Christmas at Old Fort Concho celebration, Thursday, November 30 through Sunday, December 3.

The festival is one of the largest Christmas heritage celebrations in Texas and Fort Concho's biggest public event during the year. Officials expect 35,000 visitors from across the nation to attend.

Admission to the 40 acre site for preview shopping on Thursday night is $10 for adults, $5 for children under 12 and $25 for a family. Friday, Saturday and Sunday, admission is $2 for adults. Children under 12 are admitted free.

Fort Concho was a U.S. military post from 1867 to 1889. It is considered one of America's best preserved western frontier forts. One hundred years ago the fort was abandoned by the Army. Christmas at Old Fort Concho is the last of many centennial of closing celebrations held this year to mark this anniversary. The nightly historical pageant and melodrama both tell how soldiers lowered the flag for the last time and marched out of the post on June 20, 1889, leaving it to civilian care.

During the four day festival, the fort's 20 historic buildings are decorated to reflect the diverse heritage and ethnic backgrounds of area residents. The Victoria House, Mexican House, German House, Early Texas House and Soldiers' Barracks are only some of the themes that echo the past. Inside the cut limestone buildings, merchants and artisans from Texas and across the Southwest will offer items for sale, some available only at this event. Outside, the glow from flickering luminaries and campfires tended by soldiers, cowboys and Indians light the grounds at night.

Additional festival highlights include religious services in the fort chapel, a sampling of ethnic foods, a holiday cooking lesson, children's parties, performances by the Fort Concho memorial troops, visits with Santa Claus, wagon rides, an animal manger scene, Christmas carolers, country cloggers and a cowboy church service with a chuckwagon breakfast.

Food and beverages will be served on the fort grounds at three restaurant locations, including the Arc Light Saloon which celebrates San Angelo's wild west beginnings.

Remove Old Insecticide Ear Tags

Ranchers who used insecticide ear tags for horn fly and ear tick control this past spring and summer should remove the old tags this fall.

"Tags that have been used four to five months on an animal will not emit sufficient insecticide to adequately control fly populations," said Jerry Swift, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

During the past three fly seasons, use of pyrethroid-impregnated ear tags has created a statewide problem with horn fly resistance to the insecticide.

As ranchers work with their cattle this fall, they should remove the old tags, said Swift.

The agent said the ear tag system for fly control exerts a constant selection pressure on the pest population and results in killing the weakest and most susceptible pests. Other pests that have the genetic ability to survive a sub-lethal dose of insecticide become parents for the next pest generation. Within a two-year period, this selection process can develop a pest population highly resistant to all labeled chemicals of the pyrethroid type.

Swift said producers may get a false impression that the old ear tags are still killing flies, since populations naturally decrease in the fall as flies enter overwintering quarters.

"The old tag is not helping with control but is silently adding to selection pressure, thus making the surviving population more resistant to the target insecticide," said Swift.

Fewer hours of daylight in the fall and cooler weather are environmental factors that induce pest diapause. Horn flies spend the winter months in the soil as a diapaused pupa.

"Fall fly tag removal is just a good management practice to reduce additional resistance to the list of insecticides," Swift said.

"When insect pests become resistant to an insecticide class, the economic incentive for future use of that compound is greatly reduced," said Swift.

Unsafe Driving Calls For Campaign

Faced with a staggering loss of human life and potential, the state highway commission decided to escalate its drive to decrease traffic accidents.

"This useless waste has got to stop," said commission chairman Robert Dedman.

Around the state each year, 3,000 or more people die in automobile accidents, mostly due to modifiable behavior such as speeding, drunken and drugged driving, and not buckling up.

The highway department is ready to invest $3 million over the next two years to halt the carnage on Texas roads and will seek the partnership of private sponsors to do so. The tool will be a public education program along the lines of the department's successful "Don't Mess With Texas" campaign.

"We want to go into this program with no preconceived ideas. We plan to use sophisticated marketing techniques to discover what kind of campaign and media will be most effective," said J. Don Clark, director of the department's Travel and Information Division.

In the past, the department's public awareness campaigns have been funded under federal regulations that rule out paid advertising. This new program would rely solely on state highway funds and corporate donations.

"We want to have the flexibility to use paid advertising so we can accurately target the audience we need to reach. A program that relies on public service time limits that possibility," Clark said.

According to Bob Hodge, director of the Maintenance and Operations Division, the department has an additional concern about speeders. "Texas is dangerously close to the federally mandated 50 percent rate of compliance with the 55-mph speed limit. As of July, the rate was only 50.45 percent. If Texans don't comply with the speed limit, we stand to lose 10 percent -- around $60 million -- of our annual federal apportionment for non-Interstate highways.

"The ironic thing," Hodge added, "is that those funds help us keep the Texas highway system as safe as we can make it, from an engineering standpoint. And automakers continue to improve safety technology every year. The only thing we can work on now is drivers' behavior."

"We want to approach it the way we did litter," said Clark. "The latest survey indicated a 64 percent reduction in lettering just in the four years since we started the campaign. The public, the media, and corporate sponsors are all doing their parts. Imagine what could happen if we used these techniques to save lives."

Gramm Urges Repeal Of Catastrophic Tax On Elderly

U.S. Senator Phil Gramm has urged Congress to repeal or totally reform the Catastrophic Health Care surtax which will cost Texas senior citizens $127 million next year and over $2 billion by the end of the decade.

"Congress' extraordinary inability to admit its mistakes, coupled with its massive reluctance to correct them, occasionally leaves the American people to suffer," Gramm said. "Such is the case with the catastrophic care law."

Under the law, the average, taxpaying senior citizen in Texas will owe $250 more when they file their income tax returns by April 15, a recent study by Gramm's legislative staff showed.

By the year 2000, a full 50 percent of the projected 1.4 million taxpaying senior citizens in Texas will pay an average mandatory surtax of $450 a year to fund the government program, the study revealed. The total cost to Texas senior citizens from 1990 through 2000 will be $2.4 billion.

Gramm was one of only 11 senators who opposed final passage of the surtax. "As I said then, The burden is going to be placed on basically middle and upper income senior citizens, people who have worked all their lives to be secure in their retirement, and they are going to have catastrophic costs whether they get any catastrophic benefits or not," Gramm noted.

"Millions of senior citizens, both in Texas and across America, will be forced to pay a surtax they can't afford for benefits that many will never receive," he added. "This is unconscionable."

Bullock Reports State's Financial Outlook Good

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said the state's financial outlook remains basically unchanged as the Legislature gathers for the special session.

"The good news is that there is no bad news. The state's economy is growing just as we predicted it would last summer," Bullock said.

Bullock, who is required by the Texas Constitution to issue a revenue estimate each time the Legislature meets, said there is no significant change in the outlook since the end of the regular legislative session last May.

"The Texas economy continues to expand and the outlook remains promising. But growth will slow as Texas becomes increasingly linked to the national economy. This trend is incorporated in the current estimate," Bullock said in a letter to state officials and lawmakers.

The estimated major fund revenue of $28 billion for 1990 and 1991 has not changed since June.

Interest Rate Set For Savings Bonds

The semiannual market-based interest rate for United States Savings Bonds, in effect from November 1, 1989, through April 30, 1990, has been set at 6.98 percent, the Treasury Department announced.

Jerrold B. Speers, Executive Director of the U.S. Savings Bonds Division, said that the new rate "reflects market activity during the past six months, and keeps Savings Bonds in the mainstream of financial products for the coming semiannual rate period."

Savings Bonds semiannual rates are changed each May 1 and November 1 to reflect market activity during the preceding six months. The new rate is 85 percent of the average market yield on five-year Treasury marketable securities between May 1 and October 31, 1989, 8.21 percent. The new rate represents a decline from the previous semiannual rate, 7.81 percent, which was in effect from May through October.

Yields at redemption are the average of semiannual market-based rates during the time held, compounded semiannually, or a minimum rate, whichever is greater. The current minimum rate is six percent. EE Bonds held less than five years earn interest on a fixed, graduated scale.

Sales of U.S. Savings Bonds, normally on sale through most of the nation's financial institutions and through company payroll savings plans, are temporarily suspended pending passage of the debt-limit extension now before Congress. When Savings Bonds go back on sale, all bonds issued during the remainder of November will earn interest from the first of the month. Payroll savings plan continue to operate normally, except that Bonds that would have been issued during the current suspension will be issued when the suspension is lifted. The issue dates of such Bonds, as usual, will reflect the month in which the full purchase price for a Bond was accumulated.

Some Adults On Social Security Need Payees

While most adults who draw Social Security are able to manage their own benefits, some beneficiaries are paid through another person who acts as a representative payee, Franklin H. Upp, Social Security manager in San Angelo, said.

A representative payee is someone appointed by Social Security to receive and use payments for the well-being of a beneficiary who is unable to manage benefits because of mental or physical impairments.

Once it has been determined that an adult needs a payee, the Agency tries to find the most qualified person for the task. The preferred payee is a relative who lives with the beneficiary. If none can be found, a friend who shows strong concern for the beneficiary, a organization, institution, or other qualified person may be appointed.

Social Security exercises the utmost concern in choosing the best payee, Upp said. Beneficiaries who need a payee are further protected because Social Security requires payees to file yearly reports showing how benefits were used.

For information about representative payees, call 1-800-234-5772. The San Angelo Social Security Office is located at 2214 Sherwood Way.

EHS Rodeo Team Attends Congressional Festivities

This article submitted by Johnny Griffin.

The Eldorado High School Rodeo team members and sponsors were among several hundred high school rodeo contestants that attended a special event at the State Capitol last Tuesday, November 14. The Congress of the State of Texas during the special called session of the Legislature declared November 14, 1989 as Texas High School Rodeo day and read a proclamation into the records of the Congress honoring Texas High School Rodeo.

Congressman Robert Junell of San Angelo was the sponsor of House Bill 51 that made the event possible. Congressman Junell decided to honor high school rodeo of this state after the Texas rodeo team won the National High School Rodeo that was held in Colorado last July. The Texas team has won the national title several times, but this is the first time that the team has been honored by the state.

The EHS team and sponsors were able to see the legislature in action, as well as all the other activities that surround the Capitol and law makers when the congress is called to session.

Our group had the privilege of witnessing one of the most disgusting group of people on the face of the earth "lobbying" their congress. I would suspect that there were about five to six hundred motorcycle gang members at the Capitol last Tuesday. These "bikers" were in Austin to protest the law requiring them to wear helmets while riding their motorcycles.

After viewing the group I tend to agree with the bikers -- they should not have to wear the helmets. After all, if they were in an accident the worst thing that could happen would be for one of them to survive. I have never seen a more disgusting group in my life.

Another thing that came to my attention is the number of television stations that covered the events in Austin. There were all the major networks present in the House when the clean cut, neatly dressed and well-mannered young men and women of the championship Texas High School Rodeo Team was presented to the state on the floor of the House of Representatives.

Now who do you think got to be on television all over this state on the nightly news? You got it, the filthy, low life and rude motorcycle gang members. The television industry would rather show the bad than the good in our state. I know now why I feel so depressed every time I watch the nightly news. The television industry chooses to promote the bad rather than the good in our nation.

The group had a wonderful time and I believe that each person that made the trip has a little better understanding of politics and how it works in the State of Texas.

Team members attending the special legislative session were Jamie Belk, Cy Griffin, Traci Paxton, Mondee Nelson, Crissi McCormick, Justin Paxton, Shane Criswell, Brent Moore and Stoney Hariman. The school sponsor Ann Darnell along with Mike Moore, Sherry Belk and Johnny and Julie Griffin also made the trip.

Drought Management Seminar Planned

Every day without a rain worries area ranchmen about what lies ahead for their operation. Should they feed or sell out? To help him with these and other decisions, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has planned a Drought Livestock Management Seminar for November 30 in Menard's Club Victoria. The seminar will begin at 2 p.m.

Setting the stage with an introduction as to the purpose of the seminar is District 7 Extension Director, Ken Cook.

Cook will be followed by County Extension Agents from four of the hardest hit areas. The four will give in the district, estimates of their counties drought conditions. The counties and their agents are: Concho, Rex Stultz; Menard, Sam Kuykendall; Schleicher, Jerry Swift; and Tom Green, Rex Jones.

San Angelo based Extension Range Specialist, Dr. Jake Landers is next on the agenda with his views of what to expect from the affected areas range conditions.

The next area of the program deals with reducing livestock numbers. Addressing the topic of steps necessary in thinning cattle herds is Dr. Jerry Cowley, Extension Beef Cattle Specialist at San Angelo. Dr. Frank Craddock, Extension Sheep and Goat Specialist at Uvalde, will speak on things to consider in trimming the numbers of sheep and goats on a ranch.

If conditions are such that the producer decides to wait for a rain, heavy supplemental feeding is essential. Addressing the topic of drought nutrition and feeding is Dr. Dennis Herd, College Station based Extension Beef Cattle Specialist - Nutrition and Dr. George Ahlschwede, San Angelo based Extension Sheep and Goat Specialist. Herd will speak on beef cattle feeding and Ahlschwede will address sheep and goat diets.

The seminar's final speaker will be Irion County rancher, Richie Cravens. He will speak on drought financial planning.

The afternoon will conclude with a dutch treat dinner.

For further information contact Sam Kuykendall at P.O. Box 727, Menard, Texas 76859 or call 915-396-4787.

Railroad Crossing Safety Plan Approved

A $10 million plan to install signals at 117 railroad crossings on the state's roadways has been approved by the highway commission. A separate plan to replank 146 crossings at a cost of $3.5 million was also approved. The two plans are part of ongoing programs to upgrade rail-highway crossings around the state.

"Texas leads the nation in the number of miles of railroad track as well as the number of railroad crossings on our highways," said Arnold Oliver, engineer-director of the highway department. "Approximately 9,300 of the state's 14,000 rail-highway crossings have no signal. This program, which is federally funded, allows us to improve safety at railroad crossings by providing automatic signal devices."

Oliver said the program addresses crossings across Texas. Locations are selected based on the number of trains per day, the speed of the trains, the average daily vehicle traffic, the type of warning device presently installed, and the incidence of train-involved accidents over the past five years.

An additional $3.5 million was approved in a plan to replank 146 railroad crossings in the state.

"Railroad crossing areas are typically the roughest sections on our highway system," said Oliver. "Since 1979, we have been replanking about 150 crossings annually, which gives us a 16-year replacement cycle. This works very well for the department as well as the public."

"We're very pleased that the combination of these two programs gives us a balanced way to address railroad crossing safety," Oliver said.

News From The Woman's Club

The Woman's Club met in the auditorium of the Memorial Building for their annual Thanksgiving luncheon on November 14.

The hospitality committee with Mrs. James Williams as chairman planned and carried out the Thanksgiving theme in food and decorations.

The women then adjourned to the Club Room for the business meeting and program.

Maureen Hodges, counselor for the Eldorado school system, demonstrated the McGruff program which is to be used in third grade as an aide for crime prevention, drugs, child protection and vandalism. McGruff is a puppet which has tapes placed inside and when played tells a story or acts out some phase of crime that gets a child's attention better than someone telling them to do or not to do some activity. The club voted to buy one unit to be used in third grade.

In the business meeting Mrs. Tom Ratliff read a thank you letter from M.D. Anderson thanking the club for what they had done for the hospital last year. The letter also asked for donations to help continue the work of research in so many different areas. The club voted to send a donation.

The program for the day was on Americanism which focused on preserving trees and our heritage. For roll call each one named a tree and gave a reason for its part in our heritage.

Gladys Mittel was program leader and Isabel McCutcheon presented a program on interesting and historical trees, with the help of several members.

The December meeting will be a trip to see Christmas in Old Fort Concho on December 12.

End-Of-Year Crop and Livestock Surveys

The Texas Agricultural Statistics Service will begin contacting farmers and ranchers across the state in late November for 1989 acreage, yield and production totals and end-of-year livestock and poultry inventories.

"Adverse weather conditions this year have certainly had an impact on Texas agriculture, and these surveys should help us summarize where the industry stands at the end of 1989," state statistician Dennis Findley explained.

"Information from these confidential surveys conducted by mail, telephone or in person will also help producers make their plans for the coming year.

"Sound production and marketing decisions require good, reliable information and some advanced planning, and our reports provide producers with solid facts and figures they can incorporate into their plans," Findley added.

As always, the Texas service will be trying to keep survey costs at a minimum, so Findley is urging producers to return their mailed questionnaires as soon as possible to avoid follow-up contacts.

"Remember, these are sample surveys, so if you are contacted it is important to provide the requested information, since one producer represents similar operations of the same type and size. Our estimates can be no better than the numbers producers provide," Findley noted.

Results of the surveys will be published in early 1990. Anyone wanting a copy of the results can write Information Section, Texas Agricultural Statistics Service, P.O. Box 70, Austin, Texas 78767.

Search Is On For Poster Artist

The search is on for the design for the 1990 Texas Folklife Festival commemorative poster, with an entry deadline of January 15, 1990.

Sponsored by the University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, the Texas Folklife Festival is an annual celebration of the state's ethnic diversity and cultural heritage, attracting 100,000 visitors from across Texas and the United States. Dates for the 19th Annual Texas Folklife Festival are August 2-5, 1990.

Each year, the commemorative poster is an important element in representing the spirit of the Festival. Interested artists or agencies should submit their poster design concept to the Institute's Festival office by 5 p.m. Monday, January 15.

Entries must include a poster design that reflects either the overall spirit or one aspect that is truly representative of the Texas Folklife Festival; a conceptual color design (more than one design may be submitted by an artist); artist's vita and references, and copies of previous work; an original black and white or color photograph for photo entries, along with conceptual design of finished poster; and an application and artist agreement form which is available from the Festival office.

All material must be accompanied by a return mailer with sufficient postage to ensure return, or be picked up at the Festival office by March 1, 1990. Unclaimed material will become the property of the Texas Folklife Festival.

For more information or to request an application and artist agreement form call the Texas

Folklife Festival office at (512) 226-7651, ext. 224. Entries and completed forms should be mailed to the Texas Folklife Festival, P.O. Box 1226, San Antonio, Texas 78294, or delivered to the Festival office at the Institute of Texan Cultures, 801 S. Bowie, HemisFair Park, San Antonio, Texas 78205.
