Major construction — These three three-story buildings are going up some four miles north-northwest of Eldorado on land owned by YFZ L.L.C., a limited liability corporation based in Washington, Utah. Recent allegations by Flora Jessop, a child rights activist from Phoenix, Arizona, have authorities scratching their heads and wondering if the buildings might be connected to a polygamist sect located on the Utah/Arizona border.

Who is Flora Jessop and why is she coming to Eldorado?

Flora Jessop was raised in the Fundamentalist Church of Latter Day Saints (FLDS), a group that long ago broke its ties with the Mormon Church, and under FLDS rules, she was forced to marry her older cousin when she was sixteen. The marriage proved to be the final straw.

Jessop said she didn't run away from Colorado City, AZ because of religion, but because of abuse. She says that she was sexually abused in her home, beginning at age 13. But, she was strong-willed and wasn't about to submit. So, Flora took the unheard of action (at least at that time and in that place) of taking her alleged abuser to court.

When a St. George, UT judge dismissed the charges, Flora says she was returned to Colorado City where she was kept a prisoner in her uncle's home for the next four years.

Jessop's escape was made good at the age of 18, and she stayed on the run for several years, convinced that she was being pursued by church leaders. Finally, she was able to move on with her life, even marry and start a family, but she never forgot what happened to her in Colorado City and agonized over the thought of other young girls having to live as she did.

That's when Jessop became an activist. She launched a group called the Child Protection Project through which she worked to educate the public about the horrors of polygamy. She also began helping girls escape from the FLDS.

Her most recent achievement came in January of this year when her group helped two sixteen year-old girls, Fawn Holm and Fawn Louise Broadbent, escape from Colorado City. Both girls had been promised in marriage to older men.

Jessop says that for years her work on behalf of the girls of the FLDS and against the church's polygamist policies have been hampered by the unwillingness of the State of Arizona to prosecute polygamists. She also notes that Colorado City's local government, including the police force and school board are controlled by FLDS members.

The FLDS is headed by its Prophet, Warren Jeffs, the 48 year-old son of the group's former Prophet, Rulon Jeffs. Published reports in the Salt Lake City Tribune and the Phoenix New Times state that in 2002 Jeffs wrested control of the group away from three of his father's lieutenants, the Barlow brothers, Dan, Joe and Louis, who were the sons of former Prophet, John Y. Barlow. Jeffs quickly excommunicated the three men and ordered them to leave their wives and homes.

Jessop says that recently the states of Arizona and Utah have begun cracking down on polygamy, and by extension the FLDS. The tougher enforcement resulted in Colorado City police officer Rodney Holm being convicted of unlawful sexual conduct with a 16 year-old girl, and one count of bigamy.

Holm's attorney, Rodney Parker of Salt Lake City, quickly announced his intention to appeal the conviction, citing the U.S. Supreme Court's recent overturn of the Texas sodomy law and its impact on a persons privacy of the bedroom.

The conviction sent shock waves through the FLDS community. Jessop says that Jeffs immediately began making plans to relocate some, if not all, of his followers. And, she says, that's where David S. Allred comes into the picture.

Jessop notes that Allred's middle name is Steed. She says his grandmother was Martha Steed and that her sister, Mary Steed was Rulon Jeff's 4th and "favored" wife. Jessop also claims that David S. Allred's wife, Rosa Barlowe, is the daughter of Dan Barlowe, one of Rulon Jeff's lieutenants who was excommunicated by Warren Jeffs. Additionally, Jessop says that Allred's sister, Jeanetta Allred is married to Warren Jeff's brother.

Jessop says that the fact that David S. Allred is involved in the purchase of 1300+ acres of land in Schleicher County, and the fact that buildings closely resemble those currently occupied by FLDS groups in Colorado City, AZ, are being built on that land, leads her to believe that some, if not all, of Jeffs' FLDS followers are headed this way.

Jessop says she is convinced that the FLDS has set its sights on Eldorado. That means she has set her sights here, too. When asked what if she is wrong about the buildings that are going up just north of town, and what if they turn out to be nothing more than a corporate hunting retreat, she just pauses and says, "I'm not wrong. This has all the signs and it people need to be aware."

Jessop cites the plight of her own sister, Ruby Jessop, as the only reason she needs to come here, or anywhere, in order to continue her fight with the FLDS. She says that Ruby was forced to marry her stepbrother at age 14. She escaped once, but was tricked into returning and now has two children of her own. Flora says that because of her previous escape, Ruby is never seen unattended.

Helping Jessop with her campaign against the FLDS are an ardent group of supporters. As for the awareness angle, there is the national media that is following her to Eldorado. She says that awareness is their job.

Flora Jessop heads up the Child Protection Program located in Phoenix, AZ. Persons desiring more information about Jessop are urged to check on the Internet at www.childpro.org or at www.helpthechildbrides.com

Corporate retreat or prophet's refuge?

Even as construction proceeds on a complex of three-story buildings some four miles north of Eldorado, rumors about the facility and its possible ties, if any, to a polygamist group located in southern Utah and northern Arizona are swirling through the community.

The buildings are located on a 1371-acre parcel of land purchased last year by a company named YFZ L.L.C., a Texas limited liability corporation based in Washington, UT. Documents filed in the Schleicher County Courthouse reveal David S. Allred as the YFZ corporate official who handled the transaction for the land. Allred is the only company official named in the corporation's organizing papers filed with the Texas Secretary of State's office.

Real estate closing documents associated with the property were signed by Mr. Allred here in Eldorado. At that time, Allred reportedly told several local citizens that he was planning to build a corporate retreat on the land. More than one local rancher has said that Allred told them he was the owner of Dave's Builders, a construction company in St. George, UT, and that his clients are located primarily in Las Vegas, NV. Those clients were the reason for the retreat, Allred reportedly said, so that he could have a place for them to hunt and be entertained.

Allred's assurances about the use of the land proved to be sufficient to settle local curiosity for a number of months. However, as construction progressed, its proximity to town and the county airport, made it inevitable that pilots who fly in and out of the airport would notice the scope of the project. Then came two events, ten days apart, involving a woman named Flora Jessop, from Phoenix, AZ.

First, on March 4, 2004, ABC's Primetime Thursday program aired an interview with Jessop regarding her life's work, rescuing young girls, forced to marry older men, from a religious sect known as the Fundamentalist Church of Latter Day Saints (FLDS), a splinter group that broke away from the Mormon Church many years ago after it turned away from the practice of polygamy, or plural marriages. Jessop said that she had escaped from the group at age 18 after being forced into a marriage with her cousin.

FLDS followers live primarily in the Utah/Arizona border region, with the majority of them living in the twin cities of Colorado City, AZ and Hildale, UT. The two towns are actually a single city that straddles the state line. The town was once know as Short Creek.

The second event came when Jessop began contacting people in Eldorado, including Success editor Randy Mankin, with questions about the buildings being erected on YFZ property here in Schleicher County. She also claimed that the project is affiliated with the FLDS. She explained that since escaping from the group 18 years ago, she has devoted her life to helping young girls get away from the FLDS. Jessop said she is convinced that recent upheaval in the FLDS organization, prompted by the death of the group's Prophet, or spiritual leader, Rulon Jeffs — and the subsequent ascension of his son, Warren Jeffs, to the office of Prophet — is a major reason the group is looking to relocate away from the Colorado City area.

Jessop further claimed that recent criminal convictions of FLDS leaders in and around Colorado City, has forced Jeffs to look for a remote place like Eldorado, where he could move some, if not all, of his followers.

Repeated attempts to contact officials with YFZ L.L.C. at its headquarters in Washington, UT, have been fruitless. Neither has the Success be able to contact David S. Allred. Phone numbers for Allred's company, Dave's Builders, listed on a business card he left here in the community, are no longer in service. The construction site is located off County Road 300 (Rudd Road) behind a locked gate on the property once owned by the late Red Cheek. Entry to the site is prohibited by a locked gate so the Success was unable to contact any of the construction workers who reportedly live at the site in mobile homes.

Likewise, calls to FLDS officials have not been returned. Neither could the Success contact Rodney Parker, an attorney in Salt Lake City, UT, who represents the FLDS, according to numerous published reports in Utah and Arizona newspapers.

Meanwhile, Jessop continues to press her case, announcing this week that she will be traveling to Eldorado on Thursday where she plans to hold a press conference. Jessop won't be com-

Once over easy — Five teenage juveniles escaped unharmed Sunday night March 21 when their 1994 Ford Explorer overturned approx. five miles out of Eldorado on County Road 300 (Rudd Road). The 15 year-old driver was ticketed for driving without a license and failure to control speed. Deputy George Arispe, Deputy Kevin Herbert and DPS Trooper Danny Nunez responded to the call. So did the Fire Dept and the ambulance service. Two of the youths were taken by ambulance to Schleicher County Medical Center for treatment. Trooper Nunez indicated the teenagers were "doing donuts" when the driver lost control.

Watch your language around those cows

Lena Lou Cherry of Sulphur Springs grew up on her family's dairy farm. "We would milk around five in the morning and again at about four in the afternoon. You've got to milk one corner on the back and one corner on the front to get a good rhythm down. In other words, the left back and the right front. You aim them together and they get into one stream and go into the bucket."

Lena Lou's grandmother taught her the proper dairy language. "She told me I couldn't say teat. I had to say quarter or utter. If I said teat she threatened to wash out my mouth with soap."

Lena Lou could not say the word bull.

"I had to say billy boy. She'd say 'Lena Lou, you go and check to see if the billy boys have water.' When I'd be down there in the pasture and I knew something was up, she'd say 'Lena Lou, you run to the house now.' Well, when she put three cows out with the bull, I knew darn well what they were gonna be doing."

by Tumbleweed Smith

Lena Lou used to herd the cows across what is now Interstate 30 in Sulphur Springs.

"I'd get out there and stop the traffic so I could get the cows across and down to another pasture. I had to do that twice a day."

The dairy had some goats on it. Lena Lou thought they were fun. She used to bring baby goats into the house and let them have the run of the place.

"I just loved to hear their little feet on the hardwood floors. They'd just scramble around. Those goats were a breed of their own."

The milk goats were the pride and joy of Lena Lou's grandmother. "She thought the reason she lived to be 94 was because she drank that goat's milk."

Some people had stomach problems and cow's milk made them sick. "My grandmother said she saved many a baby. When babies could not drink any kind of milk they could keep goat milk down."

Her grandmother milked about ten goats at a time.

"They were the kind of goats that had large quarters. I couldn't get my hands around them. When they're real tight with milk it's hard to get the milk to come out the end of that quarter. But my grandmother could take her thumb and first finger and pull just on the end and milk that goat clean in nothing flat. I never learned how to milk a goat."

Lena Lou's grandmother insisted the goats be milked by hand. "One time I took a big goat with large quarters into the barn and was going to put the milkers on her. You talk about jumping. Goats can jump. Every time I touched that goat, her back end came straight up and her front legs stayed on the floor. I understood why she milked by hand."

Lena Lou had lots of adventures on the dairy farm.

Let's take a step back and think for a moment

OVER THE BACK FENCE

even for people from out-of-state.

No, we don't have all the answers, and perhaps we never will. Still, that's no reason to scrap the Constitution.

On the other hand, being good neighbors implies a mutual respect and understanding, even for people from out-of-state.

The folks at YFZ have made it pretty difficult for us to communicate with them and there are legitimate reasons why law enforcement officials and emergency service personnel might want to be in contact with them.

Fire protection is a concern. Fire Chief Jerry Jones has the right to know what he might be facing if his department has to take on a fire in a multi-story building.

The EMS has legitimate concerns, too. So do the folks at the Water District. How many water wells are being drilled, and for how many people? Yes, even the most strident supporter of private property rights recognizes that the Water District's need to monitor the aquifer. That means issuing permits for water wells, even for people from out-of-state.

The Success could have run a story about the YFZ property last week, but we chose not to, mainly because of the sentiments that Sheriff Doran expressed...there's no apparent wrongdoing...people have the right to do what they want on their property, etc., etc.

We chose to run the story this week simply because it had become a story. The rumors around town had reached a fever pitch and the national media was set to pounce on it, with little regard for what was in the best interest of Eldorado or Schleicher County.

Still, I wish that someone, anyone, from YFZ had returned a phone call or responded to any of the two dozen emails we sent asking for a comment. It would have been nice to have heard their side of the story.

Oh, well, the genie is out of the bottle and, for better or worse, Eldorado is going to find itself in the eye of the storm, again.

A few months ago, as we all suffered through the tragedy of the First Baptist Church bus wreck, it occurred to me that too much media attention just isn't good for a little town. I'll admit to having that same feeling today.

Home insurance rates show decline

AUSTIN — In spite of reform legislation passed during the last session, two consumer groups — Texas Watch and AARP Texas — are not happy with insurance rates in the state.

The average Texas homeowner pays $1,390 in premiums, a 4 percent decrease from 2003. But the new legislation was expected to drop rates by 12 to 18 percent.

The groups said last week that Texans have overpaid some $287 million in premiums just since last August, based on an analysis of data from the Texas Department of Insurance. But Jerry Johns, a spokesman for the Southwestern Insurance Information Service, disagreed with the consumer groups' figure.

Johns said rates have stabilized in Texas and should begin dropping once more loss information is available. The process may take three years, he said.

Based on the new legislation, last year the Department of Insurance ordered Texas' largest insurers to roll back their premiums.

State Farm and Farmers took the matter to court and the litigation still has not been resolved. Twenty-seven other companies

No fountain of youth... Texans are getting younger, but no one has discovered a fountain of youth. The state's just getting more residents under 18.

New data show that the state grew by 350,000 people under 18 from 2000 to 2003, more than Florida or California, the nation's other two states in the top tier of young population growth.

"This shows how young Texas is becoming," state demographer Steve Murdock said. The trend, he continued, means that "demand for educational services will be particularly acute in the years ahead."

The new data also has Texas at 22.1 million population, an increase of 913,000 adults since 2000. Only California, with 35.5 million, has more residents.

$1.4 million decision...

A Henderson County District Court issued a $1.4 million judgment against Maria Elena Garza, whom Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott sued last year for operating a widespread scheme that defrauded hundreds of immigrants in and around Dallas.

By posing as an immigration officer, Garza persuaded hundreds of immigrants to pay her hefty fees, often in excess of $1,000, to process work visas, permanent residency status or citizenship forms. No work was actually performed.

Garza operated primarily from a bingo hall in Seven Points, southeast of Dallas.

In February, she was convicted in federal court on charges of mail fraud and impersonation of a U.S. immigration officer. At her sentencing hearing on May 18 she faces up to 68 years in prison.

The attorney general worked closely with the local police department in Tool, and with the U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Texas.

Bill kept busy with his chores on the ranch, pushing cedar, spraying pear and bitter weed, and taking care of the livestock, deer and black buck. He loved to dance, golf and fish.

Bill was a very active supporter of the West Texas Rehab Center and received many honors from the Eldorado Divide Soil and Water Conservation District.

Varsity softballers drop two games

On Tuesday, March 16, the EHS Lady Eagles lost, 13-0, to the Brady High School Lady Bulldogs. The girls in green were unable to recover after Brady seized the lead with a 4-run 1st inning.

Despite the lackluster score, seven different players got hits for the Lady Eagles.

Betsy Green and Clara Herrera supplied a one-two punch for the Eldorado girls; Green laced one hit and walked twice, while Herrera tallied a hit and sacrificed once. Melinda Hernandez went 1-for-2 and Courtney Whitten ripped one hit. Ashley Doran and Jessica Robertson got one hit apiece.

Then, on Friday, March 19, a spirited effort by the Eldorado girls could not quite prevent the Junction High School team from notching up a 15-5.

Things began well for the Lady Eagles as they scored two runs in the 1st and racked up three more in the 2nd. But Eldorado couldn't hold defensively and Junction finally reached the 10 run limit in the 5th inning.

Courtney Whitten and Anna Fuentes led the Eagles offensively, Whitten stroked a double and had one run, and Fuentes drove home a run and managed to cross the plate herself. Junior Selina Rojas tallied one RBI and also tacked on two bases on balls. Senior Rachael Fuentes touched home once and also chipped in with a walk. Amanda Figueroa finished 1-for-3, Betsy Green scored a run and Samantha Rodriguez walked once. Senior Clara Herrera walked once.

Following the loss, Coach Gibson explained, "It just kills us to have a long lay over between games like we have been having. With the Miles tournament rained out and the scheduling conflict with Winters, we had to wait a week and a half between games. We lose our consistency. We have to learn how to mentally be prepared for games."

Hospital trustees OK new health insurance plan

The Schleicher County Hospital District board of trustees met in regular session Monday night, March 22, 2004. Moments after the meeting began, the board went into executive session for nearly an hour. Joining the board behind closed doors were Hospital Administrator Sharon Dietz, Assistant Administrator Beverly Minor, Management Consultant Andy Freeman and Attorney James Kosub. About half way through the session Dr. Lillian Perez and her husband, Juan Perez, were called in to join the meeting.

When the board returned to open session they voted unanimously to refer a patient care concern to Medical Staff for review.

The seven trustees, including Shirley Joiner, Ricky Fuessel, Susie Richters, J.D. Doyle, Frank Williams, Jim Martin and Randy Mankin, spent most of the evening discussing health insurance benefits for the district's personnel. After hearing the recommendation from an employee committee, presented by Staci Jurecek, and after a lengthy discussion the board voted to upgrade its health insurance coverage somewhat. They also decided to continue offering the district employees the option to choose an in-house plan that allows employees to make use of services in the hospital and clinic. The new insurance plan will cost the hospital $127.65 per employee per month.

In her administrative report Sharon Dietz updated the board on grant applications that have been submitted to various agencies. She also discussed statistics and compared the way the hospital and clinic are being utilized now, as compared to the level of usage in recent years. Among other items, Ms. Dietz advised the trustees that Kim Taylor has completed training and received her certification as a "certified coder" which will help with filing Medicare claims electronically.

Beverly Minor then went over the district's financial reports, noting that the district ended the month in the black, with a profit of $8,164.00. The group reviewed also reviewed the bad debt listing and authorized a write-off of $17,099.90. It was emphasized that the business office will continue trying to collect the money, however it will be taken off the books and won't be tracked as a receivable. On the subject of debt collection, Sharon Dietz advised that efforts to use the county's small claims court as a collection tool are meeting with success.

It was then noted that there will be no contested races for Hospital Board in the May election, with Susie Richters, Jim Martin, Frank Williams, and Ricky Fuessel filing for open seats. It was noted that Shirley Joiner did not file and that there will be a vacancy on the board. The board then voted unanimously to declare the four uncontested candidates to be elected and cancelled the May election.

In other business J.D. Doyle informed the trustees that the KRONOS software system would require a separate server. He said the company refused to warranty its software unless it was running on its own server with no other software installed. Doyle expressed his displeasure with the arrangement but said that there was nothing that could be done. The trustees voted to spend $2,499 for a computer server.

Before adjourning the board approved the renewal of contracts for CHIP Rural Health of Texas, Shannon Med Plus, AgfaWet/Dry Film Products, Legacy and Sierra Medicare Supplement.

The next monthly meeting is slated for April 26, 2004, at 6:00 p.m. in the hospital board room.

What about a new Year Book?

The cost of the year books continuously increased to the point that no one was satisfied with them. Out of 600 students enrollment at SCISD only 100 copies were sold in the past several years. The "Talon" had less pages and only black and white photos for a reason...cost.

Most people thought that by paying $35.00 for a yearbook paid for the cost of printing it. Not so. The cost for printing last years was $10,800. Ads and concessions added a little to solving the financial problem, but still not enough. Each year some of the cost was reduced, but not all.

So each year the cost kept creeping up. The new books will be hard bound not hardback. All pages in color...the price is one we can live with...the book and the DVD will be ready when school is out. The book will contain essentials - mug shots, group shots, etc., for each campus. The DVD will contain extra stuff like morphing from childhood to present graduation pictures. Music and videos included.

The cost of "the" book is "at cost". At cost is $13.00 for the books and DVDs are on sale now. Students in Middle School and Elementary can go to the school secretary to purchase your book and DVD.

County okays interlocal agreement with City

The Schleicher County Commissioners Court held a relatively short meeting Monday, March 22, 2004 with all four commissioners present.

The court voted to approve an inter local agreement between the court and city council after several adjustments were made. Judge Griffin presented the draft to City Administrator Randy Mankin who will present it to the City Council at their next meeting.

The court then opened two bids for diesel fuel. Griffin fuel bid $1.239 per gallon and Regal Oil, Inc. bid $1.293. The court accepted the cheaper bid of $1.239.

No action was taken on the purchase of real estate for county use.

The court is looking at purchasing the building that previously housed Hugh's Tire Shop.

Construction update on cemetery chapel was briefly discussed. Judge Griffin stated the building kit was being prepared and hopefully in 60 to 90 days construction can begin.

One indigent requested for payment on an electrical bill was voted on by the commissioners in the amount of $90.00.

The commissioners then reviewed and paid the monthly bills.

The meeting ended with a special called emergency executive session on legal matters. In attendance was Sheriff David Doran, County Judge Johnny Griffin, Commissioners Matt Brown, Kirk Griffin, Bill Clark and Johnny Mayo. Also, present was County Clerk Peggy Williams and Treasurer Karen Henderson. The session lasted about an hour. No action was taken and the meeting adjourned.

ing alone. Buster Johnson, a county supervisor in Mojave County, AZ, the county where Colorado City is located, will be coming, too. He is said to be one of Jessop's strongest supporters.

Several print journalist and broadcast reporters are expected, as well, including reporters for the Salt Lake City Tribune and the Phoenix New Times, two newspapers that have devoted dozens if not hundreds of articles in recent years to the FLDS and the issue of polygamy on the Utah/Arizona border. A reporter with ABC's Primetime Thursday is also due here this week.

Locally, Sheriff David Doran explained that he has been in contact with Flora Jessop and is aware of suspicions she has about the construction on the YFZ property. "I know that Ms. Jessop is committed to her cause, and I applaud her for it. But, at this time I am not aware of any connection between the Fundamentalist Latter Day Saints and the buildings that are being built north of town," Doran stated.

"I take this very seriously, but at the same time, we have to understand that the people working out there and those who may soon be living out there have rights, too," the Sheriff continued.

"It is my hope that the people of Schleicher County will give this thing some time and let us do our job," Doran added. "If there's a need for law enforcement to step in, we won't hesitate to do so. But until then, I hope cooler heads will prevail."

Cost-share Program Available

The Natural Resources Conservation office in Eldorado is taking Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) applications through April 16th. The EQIP program is a cost-share incentive program available to landowners and operators for the purpose of carrying out conservation practices on their land.

Each county within the state receives a base allocation of federal dollars starting at $106,000. This money will be used as cost-share incentives to implement priority practices within the county. This year's priority concern, as identified by the Program Development Group, is pricklypear control.

Schleicher County also receives additional funding through EQIP to provide technical and cost-share assistance for Special Resource Concern Areas. Over 1.3 million dollars is available to carry out conservation practices within the South

Concho and Spring and Dove Creek Watersheds. At the present time there are very few applications being made and all interested individuals are urged to come in and sign up as soon as possible. Brush control, fencing, livestock pipelines, water storages and wells are just some of the conservation practices that can cost-shared within these special project areas.

Cost-share rates are set at 50% of an average cost. Landowners and operators can have multiple EQIP contracts on their land, so if you already have a contract you can still sign up to do additional conservation work needed. The local NRCS employees will review the application and ranking procedure with you and explain the program in more detail.

For more information, you can come by the office at 510 S. Divide in Eldorado or call 325-853-3535 Ext. 3.

Mule Train — Jimmy Spurlock from Goldthwaite passed through town last week in this mule powered wagon. Spurlock left Goldthwaite on February 8 and traveled to Big Bend. He was on his way home when he passed through town last Thursday. Spurlock says he bought the rig in Oklahoma and purchased the mule's, Kate and Mandy, in Kentucky. The mules are six years old. Spurlock says the worst part of the trip was coming up the hill outside of Iraan.

Schleicher County ISD trustees hold monthly meeting

The Schleicher County ISD board of trustees met Tuesday evening, March 23, 2004 in the Middle School Library with trustees Jo Helen Kotsch, Eddie Albin, John Paul Joiner, Lupe Sanchez and Kurtis Homer in attendance. Trustees Berta Nicholson and Jan Wanoreck were absent.

The meeting began with a group of 8th grade Language Arts students addressing the board about their experience with service and learning projects like the Eagle Arcade, Project Angel Tree, a local food drive, Willing To Teach Kids (WTTK), and Nursing Home adoption. After a slide presentation about the various projects, the students explained their involvement with their individual projects and how it changed them. The students included Jordan Gesch, Rasophy Swyter, Allie Perez, Megan Eubank, Michael Redish, Chelsey Hill, J.P. Joiner, Jasmine Ramero, Selvia Aranda, Juanita Segura, Franky Sanchez, Deisy Rios and Daniel Sanchez. The class has logged 11,970 minutes since January, using only one class hour each week to implement the projects.

The children, under the direction of Katrina Gonzales and Ilse Williams, noted that they learned many valuable life lessons while carrying out the service projects. Board President Jo Helen Kotsch told the students the are "a cut above others their age."

In other business, Elementary students, teachers and principal were recognized by the National Center for Educational Accountability by being named to the "Just for the Kids High-Performing Schools" list, due to a sustained high academic performance in Elementary Writing in 2001-2003.

Also, forty-three third grade students in elementary were recognized for achieving the minimum standards on the new TAKS reading test. Twenty-four of the students met the higher "commended" standard. Superintendent Gesch praised the third grade and their teachers for overcoming the hardships they incurred when their teacher Mrs. Sessom was away from the classroom due to deaths in her family. Gesch also commended the many substitute teachers who tutored the children. Students who don't pass the test will remain in 3rd grade.

During the public comments portion of the meeting, Leigh Ann Higgins and Mike Lux spoke to the board about Ag teacher Cory Steven's departure from the district. Mrs. Higgins is concerned about the future of the FFA program and the school's Ag department. Higgins and Lux both spoke of the long term educational benefits that an agriculture teacher gives to the students and said they hoped the school would seek out another young Ag teacher who will be active in the FFA program.

Next, the trustees voted to cancel the May school board election since trustees Berta Nicholson, Kurtis Homer both filed for reelection and don't have an opponent.

The board then approved 2005-2006 textbook adoption list recommended by the Textbook Adoption Committee. The committee is made up of elementary, middle school and high school personnel.

A $447,000 technology plan for 2004-2006, to be financed by a TIF Grant, was submitted for board approval. It was noted that the two year plan will be contin-gent upon the availability of state funds.

The board then approved the minutes of their previous meeting, the reviewed and approved the district's financial reports. It was noted the district had a fund balance of $1,341,928.00 on Feb. 29, 2004. An undesignated fund balance adjustment of $42,198 was then made for the acquisition of two vehicles.

The board voted to purchase a lot at 204 West Warner for $2,000. The lot is adjacent to the School's Annenberg Building and will be used to increase playground space for middle school students. Voting for the purchase of the lot were trustees Eddie Albin, John Paul Joiner, Kurtis Homer and Lupe Sanchez. Jo Helen Kotsch abstained.

Jim Brown an energy systems engineer from Austin met with the board and explained that the school as 107 air conditioning units and that 95 of them are in bad shape. He said that several 23 year-old units were still in use. He recommended that the board spend at least $700,000 to replace the 95 units and he offered several financing options. The board took no action.

The trustees then went behind closed doors for the discussion of personnel matters. They emerged from the hour-long executive session and voted to accept administration recommendations for teacher and professional staff contract extension and/or renewals.

High school teachers offered a term contract for the 2004-2005 school year are: Teresa Baker-Shirley, Angela Case, Alan Gillespie, Tom Gray, Gary Grubbs, Candace Henry, Chris McCravey, Paige Ragsdale, Anne Reeb, Melonie Reynolds, Don Richters, Amy Rutherford, Matt Rutherford, Gina Sauer (part time), Rene Valeriano, Teresa Vasquez and Bill Wells.

The following high school teachers will be offered a probationary contract for the 2004-2005 school year. They are Charlie Bunch, Jesse Garza, Marilyn Whitten and Brian Gibson.

High School Counselor Maureen Hodges and High School Librarian were offered a term contract for the 2004-2005 school year.

Middle school teachers offered a term contract for the 2004-2005 school year are Traci Charboneau, Tamalyn Dombroski, Katrina Gonzales, Kriss Griffin, Delia Herrera, Suzanne Johnston, Larry Meador, Christy Meador, Rick Singleton and Jim Wyatt.

Middle school teachers offered a probationary contract for the 2004-2005 school year are Lavonne Espinosa and Kittie Gibson.

Professional employees J.D. Doyle, John Kotsch, Susie Richers and Ray Ballew were offered a contract renewal for the 2004-2005 year.

Before adjourning, the board voted to accept two resignations from High School personnel, Linda Thomas and Cory Stevens, both of whom submitted letters of resignation. They will work through the end of the current school year.
