EHS Student To Compete In Map Contest

Students from Eldorado High School will compete in the local level of an outstanding educational program entitled Discover Early America: The National Historical Pictorial Map Contest which is taking place in schools in the twenty-first congressional district. The contest will be held on February 14, at Houston, Texas.

Now in its third successful year, the Discover Early America map contest has been highly acclaimed by students, teachers, and administrators. Implemented in every congressional district in the nation, the contest is designed to encourage students to study geography in relation to historical events in early America. Elementary school students compete by class, middle school students by class or in small groups, and high school students in small groups or as individuals.

Teacher Bill Wells, as well as principal Ken Newman, have been instrumental in implementing the contest at Eldorado High School. Representative Lamar Smith is responsible for bringing the program into the twenty-first district, with the assistance of Elizabeth Battle who administers the program at the district level. Judges for the competition will include a Social Studies Coordinator.

Students participating in the Discover Early America map contest complete special outline maps of the original thirteen colonies, creating ways to illustrate significant events, persons, and places that shaped the Colonial and Founding periods of our history. Key criteria of the competition are historical accuracy, artistic creativity, and imagination. The student participating in the contest is Whitney Fuessel.

Barton To Attend Leadership Seminar

Cory Barton

Cory Barton, a sophomore at Eldorado High School, will learn about "America's Incentive System" during an all-expense paid trip to the West Texas Leadership Seminar. The Seminar is affiliated with the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation and will be held May 17-19, 1991, on the campus of St. Mary's University, San Antonio. More than 200 outstanding sophomores from throughout Central and South Texas will attend, each representing a different high school. The seminar is sponsored by Optimist Clubs, Kiwanis Clubs, Greater Federation of Women's Clubs, and business establishments in the community.

During the Seminar, these future leaders will hear from today's distinguished leaders in business, government, education, and the professions, allowing them to leave the seminar with a better understanding and appreciation of the American economic system and the democratic process. In addition, personal improvement skills will be developed and motivational techniques will be discussed.

The Foundation was established 33 years ago by movie and stage actor Hugh O'Brian in the belief that America's greatest resource is its youth. This is the ninth year for the West Texas Leadership Seminar to be held. The purpose of the Foundation and the affiliated Seminars is to seek out, recognize and reward leadership potential in sophomores.

Cory is a member of the State Cross Country qualifying team, One Act Play, the Debate team, the Varsity Girls Basketball team and the Principal's A team.

Congratulations, Cory, on a job well done!

Life Among The Fishes

by Thomas Giovannitti

How do they know if we are calling right now? I am somewhat fascinated by the Television adds that present me with a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity or my only chance to get this genuine "whatever," "only through this TV ad!"

In addition to the particularly swell main item, the spot announcer always tells me that if I call right now I will receive--absolutely free--another fine gift. So, my question is: How do they know if I am calling "right now" or fifteen or twenty minutes later. Maybe I have just written the number down and won't even call until a couple of days pass. Will I still be eligible for the fabulous free gift, or will the operator tell me that since I did not call right when the announcer said I should call "right now," that I don't get the free video or all opera bloopers or the "Gikon" 35mm camera--completely free--along with all of my favorite hits of the 70's? How would this person know? Does the company make him watch television so he can judge if I called right after the ad? How long is "right after"?

I have one other question, too. Why are none of these great special offerings of the best of every kind of music known to mankind and few kinds of music no one wants, ever sold in stores? Won't self-respecting merchants be caught selling these things? Are they not able to offer the free prize? And what about this guy who claims to be president of the Seventies preservation society? Here is this long sideburned guy in a polyester leisure suit claiming to be president of an organization which appears to get its members from the group of folks who call right now to order all of their favorite 70's songs, and he wants us to believe him. Wonders will never cease. Everyone knows that the 60's is the only decade worth preserving, anyway!

Laugh and Live

Jerry Swift - Schleicher County Extension Agent

The first national study of groundwater contamination, conducted and announced by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in November, is generating major public interest in the problem.

Dr. Bill L. Harris of College Station, soils specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and an Extension Service committee from several disciplines have addressed some frequently asked questions dealing with groundwater protection. Here are some of the questions that arise most often.

Q: Does mankind benefit from fertilizer and pesticide use?

A: Fertilizers and pesticides improve the yields and quality of food and fiber crops. Throughout the world, insecticide programs, when directions are followed carefully, continue to save lives and improve living conditions for animals and humans by helping curtail or eliminate diseases such as malaria, yellow fever and typhus. They assure crop yield and quality stability and enhance food safety.

Q: In the United States alone, pesticide use has more than tripled since 1964, with about 2.5 billion pounds applied annually to animals and plants for protection. Doesn't this increased use result in potential danger to the environment?

A: Urban and rural residents both use considerable chemicals and are concerned that runoff from rain or irrigation can funnel soluble nutrients from a large landscape to smaller collection point where the chemicals can be leached into groundwater or lakes and streams. The continued, largely unregulated use of such chemicals could contaminate lakes, streams, ponds, wells and groundwater. All citizen groups need to join in a team effort to help assure the safe use of pesticides and fertilizers.

Q: Are injurious effects such as fish kills, reproductive failures in birds and acute illnesses in humans and animals correctly correlated with chemicals in water?

A: The exact sources of damaging chemicals are not always apparent, since natural contaminant sources also may be present. In addition, many people have a poor understanding of the results of longterm use of chemicals. The exact source of the problem may be difficult to track, since it may result from dumping of waste materials or other careless action and not the prudent use in ordinary agricultural production practices.

Q: How safe is groundwater for drinking water?

A: Groundwater is the most difficult water source to monitor or model in determining potential contamination. This water moves below the earth's surface between rocks and porous material, and gathers in large expanses beneath an area. These reservoirs are used by man as a reserve of fresh water and as a supply to wells and springs. But contamination of groundwater, often purer than surface sources, can limit the water's use. Half of the U.S. population relies on groundwater for drinking water. More than 90 percent of rural drinking water is retrieved from a groundwater source. Nevertheless, with all of the groundwater withdrawn each year, only a small amount is used strictly as drinking water. About 82 percent of the groundwater is used to irrigate crops. Studies by state agencies and the EPA have detected a few problems, but in general, our groundwater is safe to drink.

County Agents Report

Q: Since fertilizers and pesticides may jeopardize the quality of water supplies beneath the soil's surface, how can each individual help protect the groundwater supply?

A: The persistence and movement of pesticides are influenced by a chemical's formulation, solubility, reactivity, and material form and by specific type of soil at a given location. Natural climatic conditions or environmental changes by man -- such as irrigation -- also will influence effectiveness of the applied chemicals and their influence on the environment. If applied too liberally to upgrade poor soils, nitrogen can become a principal nutrient pollutant. Precipitation and animal waste may add to the nitrogen reserve. Legume crops, aided by microorganisms, can biologically convert atmospheric nitrogen into inorganic nitrogen, adding to the total soil reserve of nitrogen. Avoid excessive nitrogen applications to assure that the applied nitrogen and natural amount in the soil not exceed crop needs.

Q: Does knowing the soil type help one to monitor and control nitrogen supplies?

A: Nitrogen is highly soluble and moves with water through and off soils. Sandy soils are open and porous, allowing rapid water movement. Clay soils tend to seal at the surface, promoting rapid runoff. Either condition can lead to excessive nitrogen losses when improperly fertilized. Apply fertilizers at or near the time and in the amounts that the plant needs and can use them.

Q: How can a producer or gardener obtain the best use of phosphate fertilizers?

A: Phosphorous, unlike nitrogen, does not readily leach or move. Control soil erosion to prevent movement of the fertilizer through the soil with water. It tends to be tightly held in the soil particles. Manage soil pH to maximize the efficient plant use of fertilizers, incorporate the fertilizer if possible and band phosphate fertilizers.

Others contributing to the Extension Service's B-1642 publication, "Protection of Groundwater from Fertilizers and Pesticides," were Dr. Denise McWilliams, Tommy D. Valco, Dr. Dale Pennington, Dr. John Sweeten and Dr. W.B. Gass.

Our Sympathy

VIRGINIA KIMMEY

Virginia Kimmey, 70, formerly of Eldorado and San Angelo, died Tuesday, January 22, at Northeast Baptist Hospital in San Antonio.

Graveside services were held on Saturday, January 26th, in the Eldorado Cemetery under the direction of Kerbow Funeral Home.

Mrs. Kimmey was born on August 6, 1920, in Sylvester, Texas. She married Murray O. Kimmey on June 6, 1937, in San Angelo. She was a homemaker, and in prior years had been very active in political affairs.

Mrs. Kimmey is survived by her husband, Murray, of San Antonio; one son and daughter-in-law, Truman and JoAnne Kimmey of San Antonio; one daughter and son-in-law, Su-An and Jo Winkler of San Angelo; her mother, Rose Edmiston of Eldorado; her sister and brother-in-law, Margaret and H.E. Nixon of Eldorado; her brother and sister-in-law, Glen and Ruth Williams of Lovington, N.M.; a sister-in-law, Frances Phelps of Florida; nine grandchildren; numerous nieces and nephews and a special little friend, Christopher Scooter Fitzgerald.

A Thought Of My Own (?)

In the wake of the Persian Gulf crisis, much has been said about our civic responsibility to be patriotic and supportive of our country's principles. It is to the credit of this our American nation that its citizens are greatly concerned with doing the right thing, with being good citizens. But perhaps we are falling down on one of our most important civic duties. Too often we neglect our responsibility of striving for rational judgment; instead, we give in to rationalization.

Rational judgment is based on fact finding--it attempts to put together a solution that fits the facts; rationalization puts together facts so they fit our "solution." Without doubt, it is much easier to rationalize than to reason...

In this Age of Information it doesn't take the brain of a computer whiz to make better use of the ample opportunities we are given to start a "fact collection" of our own.

We have, for example, the opportunity to read more than the headlines of our newspapers. We have, even if we are not wealthy enough to afford a subscription of our own, access to news magazines (Time, Newsweek, U.S. News and World Report) that present more detailed and sometimes even more meaningful accounts of world (and national) events than our TV and radio networks. Speaking of TV, the most readily accessible of all sources, I might mention that those of you who are fortunate enough to own a satellite receiver, have access to the newsreporting of other nations. You will be amazed to hear what Canadian (CBC) or British (BBC) newscasters find noteworthy. If you speak Spanish or another foreign language, your choices are even greater. Never limit your fact finding to one source only.

Where do you take the time? Where, for example, would we find the time to read an eight-page analysis (Am I serious? You bet.) of the "Road to War" (Newsweek, January 28, 1991) ? If we can make time to watch 3 1/2 hours of Superbowl coverage (and that is only the game itself, not all the other pre-and postgame hoopla), can't we also make time for about 30 min. worth of political fact finding?

If we want to maintain our freedom, we must understand what a famous American thinker (Erich Fromm) once stated: "The right to express our thoughts means something only if we are able to have thoughts of our own." In order to develop thoughts of our own, we must struggle to refuse ready-made soundbite conclusions; we must postpone our judgment until we have gathered a sizeable fact collection of our own.

Let's get busy.

An Apple A Day

by Lee R. (Smokey) Taylor, R.Ph.

Beware of Fried Veggies: If you're trying to eat more vegetables, beware of sauteed, fried, and deep-fried ones served in restaurants.

Australian researchers have found that vegetables absorb much more fat in cooking than meat. For example, a serving of eggplant absorbed 83 grams of fat in just 70 seconds of frying, which was four times as much as an equal portion of potatoes.

Stir-frying, on the other hand, is a relatively low-fat form of cooking.

"Belles" - Adult Comedy

by Jo Ann Sproul

The two-act comedy "Belles" will be more interesting to adults than children. This is the first production aimed primarily at an adult audience. Although it is a comedy, there are some very intense scenes as well.

The six sisters are all different. Audrey, played by Staci Dunlap, is a ventriloquist; Glenda Nix portrays Annece, the alcoholic; Jo Ann Sproul is Peggy, who stays home with Mama; Candy Richards portrays Rosanne, a ministers wife; Trudy Niblett and Debbie Joy are the two younger sisters - one in college and the other a "way-out" health food connoisseur.

Directed by Gary Smith, the play will be presented on February 2nd, 3rd, 9th and 10th. The February 2nd performance is sold out, but tickets are still available for the other performances.

Call or go by C.R. Sproul's office for more ticket information. The telephone number is 853-3343.

Friend Clifford Schooley brought a poem by our office. I don't know where he found it, but I'm glad he passed it on to us.

Heaven's Grocery Store

I was walking down life's highway, a long time ago, One day I saw a sign that read Heaven's Grocery Store, As I got a little closer the door came open wide. And when I came to myself I was standing inside, I saw a host of angels; they were standing everywhere, One handed me a basket and said, "My child, shop with care." Everything a Christian needed was in that Grocery Store. And all you couldn't carry you could come back the next day for more. First, I got some Patience, Love was in the same row, Further down was Understanding, you need every where you go.

I got a box or two of Wisdom, a bag or two of Faith. I just couldn't miss the Holy Ghost, for it was all over the place. I stopped to get some Strength and Courage to help me run this race, By then my basket was getting full, but I remembered I need Grace.

I didn't forget Salvation for Salvation that was free, So I tried to get enough of that to save both you and me. Then I started up to the counter to pay my Grocery Bill, For I thought I had everything to do my Master's will. As I went up the aisle, I saw Prayer and I just had to put that in.

For I knew when I stepped outside, I would run right into Sin.

Peace and Joy were plentiful, they were on the last shelf. Songs and Praises were hanging everywhere so I helped myself. Then, I said to the Angel, "Now how much do I owe?" He just smiled and said, "Just take them everywhere you go." Again, I smiled at him and said, how much do I really owe? He smiled again and said, "MY CHILD, JESUS PAID YOUR BILL A LONG TIME AGO."

A while back, I picked up some "Spiritual Groceries" at a Christian Renewal experience called "A Walk to Emmaus." This week some of my friends are there getting their supplies. To Sidney, Pete and John I would simply like to say, "Happy shopping, friends. I love you."

"Till The Next Time... MAY GOD BLESS!"

A Touch Of History

by Rene Calcote

Delbert Edmiston graduated from Eldorado High School in 1941 and entered the service in the fall of 1942. He left behind his fiancée, Imogene

Miller, a school teacher at Mayer, Schleicher County Rural School. The couple later married while Delbert was on leave.

After training, Delbert served in the Air Force as a first engineer on a B-24 bomber. During a bombing mission over Bremen, Germany, December 20, 1943, his plane was shot down and the crew had to bail out.

He was captured and taken as a Prisoner of War and was interned at Stalag XVII B. Delbert later told many stories of his 500 days of captivity.

He told of the bitter, cold winter in a tar-paper barracks, while he was still wearing the same uniform. Another time he related how some of the POW's spent weeks digging a tunnel for escape, only to be faced with a firing squad at the end. In another incident a Russian POW was shot trying to retrieve a package of cigarettes.

Delbert related the inspiration that kept him going during this difficult time was his relationship with the other POW's. They shared stories, played games and planned sports events. They looked forward to mail from home, even though it was three or four months late. Delbert's first message was from Gene telling of the birth of their first child, Genelle Sue.

On June 1, 1945, Delbert boarded a ship for home. On June 11, the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor was a welcomed sight, even though he was proud to have served his country and was proud to be an American!

Basketball Update

On January 8, 1991, the Varsity Girls Basketball team travelled to Iraan. The final score of the game was Eldorado-36 and Iraan-40, in overtime.

"This was a hard game to lose because we played well enough to win, but simply did not make our free throws down the stretch. The second half we played great defense and held Iraan to only nine points. In the closing minutes, we had several chances to win, but failed to execute properly," stated Coach Bobby Helmers.

Scorers for Eldorado were: Claudia Martinez-14, Cory Barton-11, Katie Hardy-4, Lindy Hardy-2, Roxanne Martinez-2, Amy Henderson-2 and Crissi McCormick-1.

On January 11, the Varsity Girls played McCamey in Eldorado. The final score was Eldorado-44 and McCamey-42.

"The girls pulled back into a tie for second in district with this victory. We played hard and did the things we had to in the closing minutes to win. Our overall shooting was still a little off, but we made our free throws and played well late in the game. We knew we had a victory and just let McCamey score the last 3 point goal. Again, our destiny is in our own hands," stated Coach Bobby Helmers.

Scorers for Eldorado were: Claudia Martinez-13, Katie Hardy-10, Amy Henderson-9, Crissi McCormick-4, Kris

On January 15, the Varsity Girls travelled to Wall. The final score of this game was Eldorado-46 and Wall-50.

"The girls lost a hard fought game against Wall. Our girls outscored Wall in the second half by four points but it was too little, too late. This was a good game for us and set the stage for the second half of district. Claudia and Katie led the scoring with 17 points each," stated Coach Bobby Helmers.

Scorers for Eldorado were: Claudia Martinez-17, Katie Hardy-17, Cory Barton-6, Amy Henderson-5 and Roxanne Martinez-1.

On January 18, the Varsity girls traveled to Stanton. The final score of this game was Eldorado-56 and Stanton-43.

"We started off the second half of the district with a good road win to Stanton. The girls started off pretty flat, but showed a lot of poise and pulled away at the end. Amy Henderson had a good game and led the scoring with 14 points," stated Coach Bobby Helmers.

Scorers for Eldorado were: Amy Henderson-14, Lindy Hardy-9, Claudia Martinez-9, Stephanie Ledbetter-7, Katie Hardy-7, Cory Barton-4, Dena Lloyd-4, and Crissi McCormick-2.

It All Adds Up to Safety
A user's guide to the electrically safe operation of household appliances
The wrong combination of household appliances can dangerously overload a circuit. Fire, electrical shock and damage to the circuit and the appliance may result. Before you add another appliance to the circuit, be sure that circuit can handle the load.

Step 1: Check your breaker panel to determine the amperage each circuit can handle. The size of the breaker (15 amp, 20 amp, etc.) is the limit of the load a circuit can carry.

Step 2: A breaker or a fuse is designed to stop the flow of current if a circuit is overloaded. Use only fuses and breakers rated for the circuit: never use a 20 amp fuse on a 15 amp circuit.

Step 3: Determine what kind of load your appliances are putting on the circuit. The wattage of the appliance should be listed somewhere on the appliance. Divide the wattage of the appliance by the voltage required (either 110 volts or 220 volts) to get the amperage required to operate the appliances.

Example - a microwave oven uses 1500 watts of energy and requires 110 volts to operate.

= 1500/110
= 13.64 amps

Step 4: Add up the amperages required for each appliance on a circuit. If the total is greater than the load limit of the circuit, remove appliances from the circuit until the total is less than the limit.
