Kimerly's tailoring skills earned her top honors in the District 7 4-H Fashion Show in San Angelo July 15. The youth was among 107 from the 17 county district competing in the annual event sponsored by the Texas Extension Service and West Texas Utilities.

A Patriotic theme highlighted the Annual District 7 4-H Fashion Show in San Angelo July 15. More than 100 4-H youths from Extension's West Central District modeled at the affair held at the Texas Agricultural Research and Extension Center. West Texas Utilities has sponsored the event for more than 37 years.

Competing from Schleicher County were Shianne Middleton, Amy Clark, Jennifer Lively, Kimberly Beach, Hillary Hodges, Ginger Reynolds, Katey Lively and Lindsay Johnson.

To compete at the district level, each of the contestants had to win her division at the county show. Seniors were judged in four categories: Tailored Daywear, Non-Tailored Daywear, Active Sports and Specialty Wear, and Evening Wear. The top senior in each category is eligible to represent the district at the State 4-H Fashion Show set in August 22-24 in Nacogdoches, Texas. Junior and Intermediate division were split into four categories, Short/Split Skirts/Pants/Set, Skirt and Tops, School Dresses and Dressy Attire.

category received rosettes provided by West Texas Utilities. Cotton garment winners were presented cash awards provided by Rolling Plains Cotton Compress of Sweetwater. Wool and mohair winners received cash awards provided by the First State Bank of Paint Rock. Heidi True of Gillespie County was recognized with a special scholarship from the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association Auxiliary. Best Model Awards were presented in the Junior, Intermediate, and Senior divisions.

Mr. Bill Tedder, Manager, Public SVS Department with West Texas Utilities, was honored as a Friend of 4-H by District 4-H Council Members Marshay Wuest and Deron Robinson. Mr. Tedder is retiring this year after 25 years with West Texas Utilities.

Seventeen counties are included in the West Central Extension District, also known as District 7.

Recycle Eldorado

The recycling committee collected paper and cardboard goods on Wednesday, July 17th, and hauled them to a San Angelo recycling plant. The community response in helping with the recycling effort has been good. The collection of paper goods will be held once a month at the courthouse square. The date and times of the collection will be published in the newspaper.

Some examples of paper goods accepted are: cereal and cracker boxes, cardboard boxes, laundry detergent boxes, paper sacks, paper feed sacks, office stationery, computer paper, natural oil and gas meter charts, etc. Magazines, newspapers, and telephone directories are not accepted.

Within a few months, bins will be set up in town to take the following items: clear glass containers with the lids removed; colored glass containers with the lids removed; vegetable or juice cans-rinsed and with labels removed; and aluminum cans.

Look for more information on these items and where the bins will be located in this newspaper at a later date.

Once again, we would like to thank everyone involved in this community effort to recycle.

Life Among The Fishes

by Thomas Giovannitti

Now, for the rest of the story. Along with the two Constitutional amendments, we will also be asked to vote on three local option taxing options.

The first will be whether we want to allow 20% of the value of a homestead residence to be exempt from taxation. The second will be to vote to exempt $10,000 of the value of the homestead of a disabled person or person over 65 from taxation; third to tax all tangible personal property other than mobile homes that is not used for the production of income.

Now I told you I was going to vote against the two amendments to the Constitution but more people might vote for them than against them so I better vote on these local option questions to protect myself, right?

Since I own a residence homestead, it only makes sense that I would vote for the first option. Since disabled persons and persons over 65 often are living on fixed incomes they could surely use the exemption so I am probably going to vote for the second option. Since I own mostly tangible personal property and not much intangible personal property I am going to vote against the third option.

By the way, absentee voting has already begun so you may, if you wish, come over to the Courthouse and vote your feelings on the two amendments and the three local options.

My problem is the legislature has not given me an option that matches my true feelings. You see, I don't think that holding down taxes at all costs is the most important thing in my life. In fact, I think taxes are one way to ensure that we receive the kinds of services that the government ought to provide. I realize that government is not efficient, but then government is called upon to do things that, if there was profit in it, private industry would be already doing.

Education is essential, and probably one of the most important services provided by the State. It ought to be provided evenly to all of the children of this State regardless of race, color, or the wealth of the school district in which they live. I think this super school district idea, based upon the inequality of property tax is not the answer either to raise sufficient funds or to distribute them evenly per pupil all over the state.

Sorry folks, but the only fair way to do it is to tax every person who works for his income, whether that person is and individual or a corporation and then pay each school district per pupil.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank The Sutton County and Schleicher County EMTs, Firepersons and Medical Personnel for their invaluable help during the weekend of July 6-7, 1991. You responded quickly and efficiently to our period of need. It is uncommon for a small hospital to have such a "wild and wicked weekend".

Knowing that there are still community members who are willing to volunteer their invaluable support services to their community and neighboring communities allows me to have Pride in Rural Texas. I somehow find it appropriate that this spirit of volunteerism, efficiency and caring showed itself during the 4th of July weekend, Thank You!

A special thanks goes to Dr. Pajestka for his efficient handling of triage and treatment of the high number of trauma victims during the weekend.

Thank You!

Sincerely,
John Hempel

County Agents Report

COMMON TOMATO PROBLEMS

Dr. Samuel D. Cotner,
Extension Horticulturist

Tomatoes are by far the most popular home garden vegetable in Texas, but they also cause gardeners the most trouble. A short description follows of the most common problems facing Texas gardeners when they try to raise a bumper crop of vine-ripened tomatoes.

Blossom-end Rot - This problem shows up every year. It first appears on the bottom of the tomato as a large, dry, or brown or black sunken area. It affects both green and ripening tomatoes and is primarily caused by fluctuating moisture supply. Blossom-end rot can also be related to a lack of calcium in the plant. Staked and pruned plants are more likely to suffer from blossom-end rot than unstaked or caged plants. During most years, the rot is likely to appear on the earliest tomato fruits of the season. Blossom-end rot often starts when the plants are putting on quick growth and are suddenly exposed to a hot, dry spell or, in some cases, excessive moisture. The plants are unable to absorb adequate moisture, and this brings on blossom-end rot. Maintaining uniform soil moisture and applying a mulch around the plant will help reduce blossom-end rot.

Insect Damage - Stink bugs, spider mites and pin worms are the most destructive insect pests of tomatoes in Texas. Stink bugs suck juice from the developing fruit, causing hardened and discolored spots on the fruit which are very noticeable at maturity. Spider mites can literally suck a plant to death, resulting in low yields of small fruit and ultimately in plant death. Pin worms can devastate a plant if not controlled; they often bore into the fruit near the stem scar and attack the foliage. Control methods must begin early, utilizing recommended chemicals, if these pests are to be adequately and easily controlled.

Fruit Cracking - Fruit cracking is often a severe problem, especially when the weather changes from hot and dry to sporadically rainy.

Just heard a story about three fellas who went mountain-climbing. One of the climbers fell.

The other two men could not see him from where they stood, so they yelled down to him, "Are you all right?"

The fallen climber yelled back, "Yes, I'm still alive, but I think I have broken both of my arms."

"Well," yelled his compatriots. We will throw you a rope and pull you up."

As the two men were pulling him up, one of them remembered that he had said that both of his arms were broken.

"How are you holding on to the rope?"

Third man yells back, "WITH MY TEEEEEEEEEEETH!"

Lately, several of my friends have been experiencing some pretty hard times. I just wanted to let these good folk know that they were being thought of. There is no need for me to tell you that life is not fair. You have already found that out for yourself. What I will tell you is that you are not alone.

Friends, we have all been through some of those rotten times. Some of us have faced more than bad times than others. If you are going through trials and tribulations, grit your teeth and keep on keeping on.

'Till The Next Time...

MAY GOD BLESS!

A Touch Of History

Colonel W.L. Black

by Rene Calcote

A true collector's item are the colorful red, green and gold antique labels that were printed in 1892 to mark cans of goat meat canned at the old "Range Cannery Co." This cannery was located in south eastern Schleicher County near Ft. McKavett.

The labels remain as brightly colored as the day they were manufactured. At one time, they were quite plentiful, but today they are limited due to years of storage. People who own the unique antiques are reluctant to estimate their value. Matted and framed, they make a beautiful wall hanging, representing our heritage.

Col. William L. Black, an innovative Civil War Veteran from Missouri via New York, purchased 30,000 acres of land west of Ft. McKavett shortly after the military left. He established an extensive sheep and goat raising enterprise. Col. Black brought Angora goats to Texas, helping establish the mohair industry. He built a power-producing dam, a tanning yard, and in 1882, made an effort to put the village on the map by founding the Range Canning Co., which attempted to sell canned goat meat as roast mutton in eastern markets. The world was not ready for canned goat meat, and the new enterprise suffered a quick demise. The Colonel's work was not a total loss, as the mohair industry flourished in the Texas Hill Country in the future decades.

Editor's Note: The Schleicher County Museum has a few of these old labels for sale, donated by Liane Kothmann. Any one interested in purchasing them may call 853-2747 or come by the museum during hours.

Senior Ambassadors

The Senior Ambassadors of First Baptist Church met Monday night, July 22, after being postponed for a week due to night Vacation Bible School. There were eighteen in attendance.

The meeting was called to order by vice-president, B.F. Blaylock, in the absence of the president, Harry Mercer. Opening prayer was led by Delia Pina.

Sandwiches, chips and drinks were served by Dana Owens and Virginia Griffin.

The itinerary for the Fall Foliage Tour of October 24-November 2 was handed out.

Minutes were read by secretary Dana Owens, and approved. The treasurer's report was given by Mary B. Robinson, stating that we now have over a thousand dollars in the bus fund.

Pictures of the Canyon trip, already taken, were shown by Mary, along with a slide show of the Fall trip, to be in October. Geneva McWhorter had Kodak pictures for everyone to view that were taken on the scouting trip that she and Mary made.

Everyone enjoyed the pictures and anticipates making the trip.

Host Families Needed

Sherry Hubbard, local representative for ASSE International Student Exchange Programs, has been searching for volunteer host families in San Angelo and surrounding areas. However, the response has not been sufficient to find homes for many of the outstanding exchange students who are scheduled to arrive in August.

Available students include: Sonia from Holland who enjoys photography, swimming and jogging, Jan from Finland who loves to play soccer, and Christian who is a member of the local volunteer fire department in his hometown in Germany.

You can help make a student's dream come true by calling ASSE at 1-800-333-3802 or Sherry Hubbard at (915)658-8155.

ASSE International (formerly American Scandinavian Student Exchange) is a nonprofit, tax-exempt, public benefit organization. ASSE is officially designated as an exchange visitor program by the United States Information Agency (USIA), is affiliated with the Swedish and Finnish Ministries of Education, Cooperates with the Canadian Provincial Ministries of Education, and is approved by the New Zealand Department of Education.

WTU Update

West Texas Utilities Company has completed a study to determine the best organization and staffing levels to meet future electric service needs of its customers.

The study's purpose was to improve WTU's efficiency and achieve an optimum staffing level. A seven-member employee task force completed the study in April, and the recommended changes were begun immediately.

Overall, WTU plans to reduce its workforce by about eight percent over the next several years through attrition, like resignations and retirements. The company will do this by reviewing various positions throughout the company. The workforce had already been reduced by 10 percent during the last five years through attrition.

Other basic changes include regrouping operations into four divisions from six districts; establishment of business operations areas within each division to supervise groups of local offices and produce a smaller and more manageable span of supervision; and the creation of an Operations support group to consolidate the customer accounting and various engineering functions that support customer operations activities. Several departments in WTU's General Office in Abilene have undergone restructuring and reorganization.

Concerning specific local changes, the new Southern Division includes the present San Angelo district and the towns of Winters and Santa Anna from the Abilene district. Jamie Rainey will be division manager. The two areas in the division are the city of San Angelo and the Three Rivers area, which includes the rest of the division. Fred Hernandez will be business operations manager for the city of San Angelo, which will be district headquarters, and business operations manager for the Three Rivers area will be Mike Martindale.

Rainey came to WTU in 1975 as an office clerical trainee in San Angelo. She was promoted to management trainee, energy efficiency consultant, to San Angelo local manager in 1984 and to marketing manager in San Angelo in 1990.

Hernandez started at WTU in 1984 as a temporary laborer at Fort Phantom Power Station. He became a management trainee in Abilene District the following year, then worked in various areas throughout the company as a management assistant II.

Health News

By Dr. Rico J. Forlano

If you wake up in the morning and your head is locked in a turned and tilted position, your trouble is called spasmodic torticollis. The pain may be so severe that you can not get out of bed. This can affect people of any age or sex, but it usually affects people between the ages of 25-30. The neck spasm usually occurs on one side causing the head to turn and tilt. Torticollis can be caused by sleeping in a bad position, a cold breeze blowing on your neck, or stress. Treatment for this problem is heat, stretching exercises, physical therapy, chiropractic treatments, and counseling if it is due to stress.

The first fire fighting organization in America was started in Philadelphia.

OUR CONDOLENCES

E.H. Nixon

E.H. Nixon passed away last week. He was an old friend that never failed to speak to everyone he knew. He and Juanita used to say to me "We can set our watch every morning at 7 a.m. by the rattle of the cattleguard when Earl (my Dad) would come check on Luke's livestock." Well, my dad kept an eye out for them, too. About 2 months ago, Dad said "I haven't seen Hanson in 3 or 4 days - reckon I better go check on him." It just so happened I had seen Hanson at the store that day so we knew he was all right. We can all be thankful for the people that keep an eye out for us in one form or another.

Laura Page Schneeman

Laura Page Schneeman, 3, of Big Lake died July 12. She is survived by her parents Dan and Terri Schneeman and one brother, Will. Terri is a graduate from Eldorado High School, and Terri's parents, Elmer and Willene Garlitz, are still residents of Eldorado. I wanted to reflect our sympathies to the families and, as a mother myself, feel what they must feel.

Laura you gave us a lifetime of love

Though you only reached the age of three.

Your precious memory will be with us always

In the minds of your brother, your Dad and Me.

You have a special place in our heart

That will not weaken over the years,

For we know our "Little Angel"

Will be safe, free of hurt, no more tears.

Thank you for all you've given us -

We will proceed as God has planned

And see you when the time is right,
Meeting, again, in the Promised Land.

Our condolences to the Schneeman and Garlitz families for their loss. You have so many friends here that would like to help lighten your burden. Maybe this will help in some way.

County Agent's Report

Tomatoes usually start to crack during warm rainy periods, especially if these conditions follow a dry spell. The tomato simply expands too fast, causing the skin to crack. The best way to avoid cracking is to keep the moisture supply as steady as possible throughout the season.

Cafacing - This is another type of tomato cracking or scarring. The tomato fruit develops unusual swellings and streaks of scar tissue, and they can be misshapen and deformed. This is not a disease; it is caused by abnormal development of the female part of the tomato flower at bloom time. Fruit that sets when temperatures are 55° F or below often exhibit cafacing.

Blossom Drop - Blossom drop plagues Texas gardeners during both cool and hot conditions. In some years, many of the early-season blossoms simply fail to set and fall off. This is caused by cool nighttime temperatures below 55° F. Once temperatures rise above 75° F at night and are combined with temperatures above 92° F during the day, most tomato varieties drop their blooms. For this reason it is difficult to get large-fruited tomato varieties to set under mid-summer conditions in most areas in Texas. Small-fruited varieties, such as Small Fry or Red Cherry, have the ability to set under relatively cool temperatures as well as high temperatures. These should be planted in every garden in Texas to insure both early as well as mid-season fruit set.

Leaf Curl - Curling or "leaf roll" is very common in Texas but it does not usually harm production. Some varieties, such as Texas A&M University's Saladette, Chico and Monte Grande, have genetic characteristics which cause a natural leaf curl. High sunlight conditions in combination with pruning and staking also promote leaf curl. Under severe conditions, leaf curl may result in less protection of the maturing fruits and result in sunscald.

Sunscald - This occurs when green or ripening tomatoes get too much exposure to the hot Texas sun. At first, a whitish patch appears on the side of the tomato facing the sun. This spot tends to get larger as the fruit ripens and becomes grayish-white in color. To guard against sunscald, be careful not to overprune plants and remove protective foliage. Growing tomatoes in cages is an excellent way to avoid most problems associated with sunscald.

Headaches

by Dr. Rico Forlano

Headaches are one of the most common reasons people seek medical and chiropractic attention—yet, they remain one of the most misunderstood medical conditions. For most people, the headache is relieved with an over-the-counter remedy, a prescription medication, or a chiropractic treatment. For some people, these treatments only temporarily relieve the symptoms. People with chronic headaches can experience a strain in the relationships between them and their family, friends, and co-workers. What may be even harder on people who suffer from headaches is to hear others tell them, "it's only a

Don't just dump oil

Used motor oil is one of the main sources of municipal hazardous waste. It contains toxic heavy metals, such as lead, chromium and cadmium, and some dangerous organic chemicals.

Every year, do-it-yourself oil changers improperly dispose of more than 170 million gallons of oil — an amount equal to 16 Exxon Valdez oil spills. Because sewage plants are not designed to deal with it, oil dumped into a sewer can cause big problems. Often oil passes through storm sewers directly into rivers, wetlands and the ocean, posing a threat to aquatic life and cities' drinking water.

Hayes writes about the environment for USA WEEKEND

A single quart of oil can contaminate 250,000 gallons of water. An estimated 40 percent of the country's water pollution, in fact, is due to waste oil.

When thrown out with the garbage, oil leaks into the soil and can contaminate the ground water. This is one reason that 20 percent of the Environmental Protection Agency's top-priority cleanup sites are abandoned municipal landfills.

But used oil can be more than just a waste product. It can be recycled into fuel or lubricant, conserving precious natural resources. Many communities have established oil-collection programs. Some will pick up oil at the curb with other recyclables.

- Here's what you can do:
- Make sure gas station attendants recycle your oil when they change it.
 - If you change your own oil, take the used oil to a station for recycling.
 - Contact your local fire department about proper disposal of other automotive fluids, such as antifreeze, transmission fluid and brake fluid.

Hayes, an organizer of the original Earth Day, is president of the environmental group Green Seal. For more information, send a self-addressed aamped envelope to "Motor Oil," Green Seal, 7, Box R, Stanford, Calif. 94309.

headache;" "you have another headache?" "you always have a headache;" you are a headache;" or "it's just in your head."

One of the reasons that headaches are so hard to treat is that there are more than 20 types of headaches. Another reason is that although 2 people may experience a similar type of headache, the causes may be different and so the treatment for one may not work for the other. Therefore let's take a look at some of the different types of headaches, their signs and symptoms, and their treatments.

One of the headaches that we are all familiar with is the migraine headache which is a vascular headache involving the blood vessels in the head. Migraine headaches run in families over 50% of the time, usually occur in women between the ages of 10-30, and may gradually disappear after the age of 50. These headaches may be preceded by depression, irritability, restlessness, or anorexia. After this initial phase, a person with this type of headache could experience a dull or throbbing headache on one or both sides of the head, starting at the base of the head and going to the front of the head. These headaches can last from hours to days. Some of the other major symptoms associated with migraines are nausea, vomiting, pain behind one eye, photophobia, blurred vision, and cold extremities. Migraine sufferers are usually irritable and seek seclusion.

Migraine headaches can be brought on by emotional or physical stress, lack of excess sleep, missed meals, eating certain foods such as chocolate or alcohol, bright lights, menstruation, or oral contraceptives. Relief from migraines can be achieved by resting in a quiet, darkened room until symptoms subside, over-the-counter or prescription medications, biofeedback to relieve stress, and chiropractic treatment.

The cluster headache affects mainly middle-aged men. Women rarely get this type of headache and there is no family history associated with it. Usually, the pain comes at night and lasts 20 minutes - 2 hours. Some patients experience as many as 6 or more attacks a day. These attacks usually last for weeks or months and then disappear for months or years before a new cycle of headaches begins again. These headaches usually involve one-sided nasal congestion, running nose, tearing eyes, drooping eyelids, and loss of sweating over the affected side of the face.

Alcohol, stress, glare, and certain foods can trigger cluster headaches. Anyone suffering from these headaches should record the foods they eat that trigger these attacks and avoid eating these foods and drinking alcohol. Prescription medications and chiropractic treatments are recommended.

The tension headache can affect a person of any age or sex, but it is commonly seen in people who also suffer from migraine headaches. The pain is usually described as a band-like pressure around the head and tightness in the neck. In some patients these headaches occur rarely; in others they may occur on a daily basis. Over-the-counter pain medication is usually effective for this type of headache. However, when this treatment is not effective or when a person seeks relief without the use of drugs, then other methods have also proven to be effective. These include relaxation through the use of massage, hot baths, biofeedback, chiropractic treatments and physical therapy.

The hypertension headache is usually seen in adults with very high blood pressure. The person with this type of headache will usually wake up with it and complain of a throbbing, band-like pain. It is usually caused by hypertension of sudden onset and is treated with anti-hypertensive medication.

Brain tumor headaches can be seen in people of any age or sex and cause either a localized or generalized pain which becomes more frequent and severe with time. One of the key symptoms of this type of headache is that it is worse at night and can be severe enough to waken the patient. Tumor headaches will also produce blurred vision, double vision, slurred speech, personality changes, lack of coordination, mental changes, vomiting, problems with swallowing, weakness on one side of the body, and seizures. Treatment for these headaches is surgery, chemotherapy, and pain medication.

The meningitis headache can be seen at any age and in either sex. It is caused by bacterial or viral infection of the central nervous system. The pain is generalized and is accompanied by a stiff neck, fever, vomiting, and an aversion to light. The headache usually worsens with flexing of the neck. In older children and adults there might be irritability, confusion, drowsiness, stupor, and coma. Antibiotics are the treatment of choice.

Temporal arteritis headaches are usually found in people over 50 in either sex and is usually associated with arteriosclerosis. The headache may be on one or both sides of the head and is a severe, throbbing, boring, stabbing pain felt on the sides of the head. The headache is characterized by weakness, anorexia, and weight loss; the scalp and the arteries in the temple are tender to the touch and can be felt pulsating. Half the people with this type of headache have visual problems and 40% have visual loss. This constitutes an emergency situation and patients should consult their medical doctor for treatment. Hypoglycemic headaches occur at any age or sex and are usually caused by heavy ingestion of sweets, skipping meals, or by an overdose of insulin in insulin-dependent diabetics. The headaches are preceded by blurred vision, double vision, slurred speech, weakness, and personality changes. People with these headaches need to contact their medical or chiropractic physician for proper dietary information that will aid in correcting the problem.

Post-traumatic headaches are caused by a head injury even in the absence of a loss of consciousness. The headache can appear within a day, week, month, or as much as a year later. The headache is constant, dull or throbbing; localized or generalized. It may be accompanied by nausea, vomiting, impaired memory, poor concentration, emotional instability, and increased irritability. If you have a head

Trough Talk

For the past several weeks, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has been conducting turkey production and survival surveys. With an estimated 17,000 Rio Grande turkeys in Schleicher County, there's an ample number of productive adults. Our recent surveys show poult production and survival fairly good to very good, depending on the area and, to the belief of this writer, the abundance of varmints since the reduction of pelt prices. Survival capabilities of the young poults depends on several factors, one of the more important being the availability of water.

As we move into the typically hottest and driest months of the summer, some consideration might be reserved for the wild young of the year and their need for accessible watering sites. So far this spring and summer we have been blessed with occasional showers, though none in excess. With temperatures ranging into the high 90's and wind speeds exceeding 10 m.p.h., there's a good probability of losing 3-4 inches of ground moisture each day. Rain puddles that may have retained moisture until now will dry up quickly under these conditions.

Although the suggestion could lead to a sloppy situation, ranchers might consider letting their water trough(s) overflow to create a 'riparian effect' or the 'effect of a mini-oasis in the desert'. The watering scheme could be anything from a simple overflow puddle to an elaborate wildlife watering site where a tank can be dozed out and possibly fenced to keep out livestock. If the ranch is on a rotational grazing system, the simple act of letting the trough run over could be coordinated with the absence of livestock from a particular pasture. This is not to suggest that the landowner go broke on watering, but to emphasize the daily need of water by young turkeys. It's much easier for the young birds to walk up to the edge of a puddle or tank than to hop up on the edge of a water trough. Plus, the puddle or tank effect would probably be conducive to growing grasses and weeds which would attract insects and snails which would in turn attract turkeys.

Rio Grande turkeys are distinctive to this part of the country, and they hold a certain nostalgia for most folks. It would be a good endeavor to help them through the roughest part of the summer that lies ahead. For more information, please call your local Wildlife Technician, Mary H. Humphrey, in Sonora.
