Eldorado, Texas... "Down-Home Living at the Top of the Divide!"

March 4, 1993

SCMC Welcomes Dr. Sobredo

Schleicher County Medical Center is pleased to welcome Sergio A. Sobredo, Jr., M.D. to the Eldorado area and announces the opening of his office at our medical center on March 8, 1993.

Originally from the Ft. Lauderdale, Florida area, Dr. Sobredo received his M.D. from the University of Seville in Cadiz, Spain in 1982. He completed a 3 year Family Practice residency at New York Medical College

Hospitals in 1985 and received diplomatic status by the American Board of Family Practice the same year.

With the specialty of Family Practice being considered the model for rural medicine, Dr. Sobredo plans to develop a long term relationship with the Schleicher County community in bringing quality family-oriented health care to our area.

"McCulloch County Ag Day"

The McCulloch County Extension Program Council is sponsoring the Second Annual "McCulloch County Ag Day," Saturday, March 20 at Brady High School. Registration and Commercial Booth Viewing will begin at 9 a.m.

Again this year there will be concurrent programs that will relate not only to producers and their families, but to all rural citizens.

A noon luncheon will be served with a featured keynote speaker. Another noon highlight will be a style show.

Lawn and Gardening programs will be presented for local lawn and garden enthusiasts. anyone interested in participating or attending the Second Annual McCulloch County Ag Day may contact the McCulloch County Extension Service at: (915) 597-0733 ext. 122.

All Girl Rodeo

The West Texas Barrel Racing Association will be having an All Girl Rodeo on Saturday, March 6th at Bly Indoor Arena. There will be two performances. The first performance will begin at 1:00 p.m. and the second will begin at 7:00 p.m. The Judging of the Queen and Princess candidates will be held prior to the 1:00 performance.

Whitney Jones Edmiston from Eldorado is a candidate for Princess this year. If you would like more information about the rodeo, entry blanks or advanced tickets, please contact her at 853-3733.

2 Youth Groups Added To Adopt-A-Highway Program

by Jo Ann Sproul

Recently two new youth groups volunteered to help keep Eldorado and Texas beautiful. The Agape Assembly of God Youth Group has adopted two miles of highway and the Girl Scouts have adopted our downtown area. This is inspiring and exciting. We are very proud of them as well as of our new adult organizations who have volunteered. They are: Beta Sigma Phi, Eastern Star, Isaacs Family Descendants, Conoco Eldorado and Conoco Bailey Gas Plant, Southwest Texas Electric Co-op, Chamber of Commerce and Chamber Pride Committee. Continuing previous adoptions are the Lions Club and the Eldorado Air Force Station.

This is so encouraging! Let's make this our best year and all get involved! There are many things women and children can't do. Gentlemen, we need you! You are our strongest and most powerful group. You can literally move mountains! Many of you have already taken part, but we need all of you. Please help us. We have a big day coming up soon and the more the merrier! So don't miss it!

Women and children, no hand is too small to help. Be proud of Eldorado, you are important! Change your habits and help change others. Don't litter and watch for more about a fun day you won't want to miss!

Let's go for the gold. Put Eldorado in the limelight! We can be number one! This year let's win first in the Keep Texas Beautiful Community Achievement Contest!

Thank you for all you have done. We wouldn't live anywhere else!

Fort Concho Annual Training Program

The Fort Concho Museum will hold its annual training program for volunteer guides on the three Saturdays of March 6, 13, and 27. The location of the classes will be Officers' Quarters #8 on East Avenue D. Each program will begin with a coffee/social at 8:30 a.m.; training begins at 9:00 a.m. and each day's sessions will conclude shortly after 1:00 p.m. There is no charge for the program.

Volunteer guides assist Fort Concho staff with special tours in the evenings and on weekends. They also staff several of the exhibit buildings during peak periods on weekends over the spring, summer, and fall months. The guides also assist with the site's various special events and festivals such as Membership Day in February, Frontier Day in June, and Christmas at Old Fort Concho in December. Fort Concho's volunteer guides donate hundreds of hours each year and their efforts help all visitors to enjoy the historic buildings and exhibits of the best preserved frontier fort west of the Mississippi.

The annual training program features presentations by the professional staff, visits to exhibit buildings, and reviews of communication skills and museum procedures. The program and the volunteer work provide an excellent means for newcomers as well as long-time residents to meet people, serve the community, and learn about the heritage of the Concho Valley.

Future volunteers are asked to contact the education office at Fort Concho on weekdays, 8-12 and 1-5 at 657-4441. The three training sessions are open to the public at no charge for non-volunteers.

Local Students Honored

Shannon Chrisman

The West Texas Scholars Awards Banquet

Saturday, February 20, 1993 at Angelo State University. 45 area students were honored, with 7 receiving $1,000 scholarships. Among the students attending were Shannon Chrisman and Matt Williams of Eldorado.

Shannon was honored with a $1,000 scholarship and a certificate of accomplishment. Shannon is the daughter of Gerald and Sheila Chrisman and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ello Wilde and Paul Chrisman of Eldorado.

Matt Williams also received a West Texas Scholar Award. Matt is the son of Wayne and Lynn Williams.

Woman's Club To Sponsor Art Exhibit

by Ethel Etheredge

The Eldorado Woman's Club will sponsor an Art Exhibit featuring works of Schleicher County artists at the regular monthly meeting on March 9th in the Memorial Building.

The showing of art treasures will be open to the public at 2:30 p.m. Local artists will be on hand to welcome guests and to talk about the various forms of art displays.

Members of the Woman's Club are extending a special invitation to the public to come browse through the treasures of the local artists.

Don't forget March 9th at 2:30 p.m. at the Memorial Building.

Speak Out Eldorado

In response to last week's Speak Out article regarding the Eldorado Golf Club, it has become quite apparent that minority members of the Eldorado Golf Club are expected to adhere to a different code of golf etiquette than the universal code of etiquette used on any other course that I've ever played. I have been a member of this golf club for 15 months now, I can remember numerous occasions when I have been asked to conform to this so-called "good ole-boy golf etiquette." Not wanting to cause problems, I have swallowed my pride and better judgment and given in to these "requests."

But no more! I am sick and tired of the blatant discrimination that occurs out on the golf course. As a college-educated and level-headed Hispanic, I am not naive enough to believe that discrimination does not exist here in Eldorado. Nor do I believe that minorities deserve any special treatment simply because of their race.

TOP OF THE DIVIDE by Thomas Giovannitti

Well, we did not get to go anywhere this spring break, mainly because Maxine's college does not have spring break this week. That is not exactly correct. Maxine and I need to go to a little town in central Texas and so I called the Howard Johnson there to reserve a room. They had no rooms available for the night we needed one and I checked at a few of the more modern motels in the area but they were all booked solid. Now, I did not find out why all these places had no vacancies I just called the La Vista Motel and they still had rooms available. Now, I often wonder about a motel that has rooms available when no other hotel or motel in town has any. This motel does not have any affiliation with any national chain so people might have been able to make reservations through an eight-hundred number. When I got the manager on the line, other than figuring out his accent, I had little trouble getting a room. I am not one of those folks who will only stay in a motel owned by Americans, whatever that means. In fact, I am a little insulted that someone would think that I choose my lodging by the color of the skin of the people running or owning the place. Anyone willing to run a clean, neat, quiet place has my attention. If national origin were some criteria of a persons ability to serve others, especially in such a menial setting as cleaning bathrooms and making beds, I wouldn't necessarily choose Americans. Judging from my children's rooms, neatness is not a national trait. I just wonder, though, why Indians (and maybe a few Pakistanis) found they had a calling to be motel managers. My experience with people from India has mostly been through college. Many of these folks came from wealthy families and did not seem to know anything about service work. Of course, those who have chosen to go into the motel business may be from a long line of household servants who just have figured out that this is a business not necessarily requiring any other greater skill than a willingness to be ordered around by strangers and the folding and washing of towels. They also supply an outlet for all of the those motel towels that are worn too thin for the chain operations to continue to use. I guess if I grew up in India any towel, whether with or without nap, is a blessing. Well, I have seen this little motel and, if Maxine and I can get one of the rooms with new carpet and paint it won't be too bad, and we are going to bring our own towels.

Friend Mabel Freitag sent this to me. I thought it was worth passing on. I hope you enjoy it.

You Tell On Yourself

You tell on yourself by the friends you seek,
By the very manner in which you speak;
By the way you use your leisure time,
By the way you spend each dolor and dime.
You tell what you are by the things you wear,
By the sort of things about which you care;
By the kind of things that make you laugh,
By the records you play on your phonograph.
You tell what you are by the way you walk,
By the things of which you like to talk;
By the manner in which you take defeat,
And especially by the way you eat.
By the books you choose from the well-filled shelf,
In thousands of ways you tell on yourself.
So there really isn't a bit of sense
In keeping up a false pretense.

'Till The Next Time...
MAY GOD BLESS!

County Agents Report

Hopefully, you have prepared your seedbed for planting grain sorghum and corn by now. This allows the bed time to firm and to build soil moisture reserves. The use of furrow dikers can be useful at this time period to hold rain in place and allow for infiltration of water into the soil. Also, by holding the water in place soil loss is reduced.

Planting depth in these firm beds should be approximately two inches deep in each row. Having a uniform seeding depth in each row, allows plants to emerge uniformly and will make crop management easier. Seed should be planted late enough so that the sorghum or corn can grow rapidly. Planting too early delays emergence and subjects the seed to longer attack by soil microorganisms. Planting should be timed so that germination and early growth occur during warm temperatures and so that flowering will occur before the hottest period of summer. Time required for plants to reach each stage of development is impacted by the hybrid planted and growing conditions that occur after planting. The same hybrid will develop differently if: planting dates were changed, soil fertility was different, insect and disease damage or moisture stress occurred. plant population is higher or lower and weed competition differed between field locations.

The planting of grain sorghum should occur when soil temperature, at the two inch depth is a minimum of 55° F for a seven day average and on a warming trend. For corn the temperature can average two to five degrees cooler at the time of planting, however, an increasing soil temperature is critical when planting in cool soil. The time period for planting corn is usually nine to twelve days before the last average freeze date for the area. Corn planting should stop approximately two weeks after the average freeze date, especially in areas where corn plants will be stressed by heat or lack of moisture in a period approximately two weeks prior to the silking state through pollination. If corn planting is delayed too long producers would be better off to plant another crop such as grain sorghum. Sorghum plants under moisture and have stress can undergo a semi-dormancy and wait for a rain and more desirable conditions to continue grain development.

The ideal plant population for grain sorghum is 50,000 to 55,000 uniformly spaced plants per acre and for corn 18,000 to 20,000 plants per acre with very few skips. To obtain this desired plant population a producer should take into consideration the number of seed per pound, the percent germination, soil temperature and soil moisture conditions.

To whom it may concern,
I am in the nursing home now and unable to stand or walk. Therefore I can't go out and check on my property at home.

To the person or persons who borrowed the alternator off of my dodge pickup, I wish you would bring it back because I still have hopes of walking someday and using my pickup.

In case you forgot how to put it back on you, can ask God and he'll show you how to do it. He saw you take it off and he'll show you how to put it back on.

Insights by Dr. Lee Brewer

Democracy is dangerous. Plato, in The Republic, warned us of this fact 2,400 years ago. Democracy has in its foundations a flaw which will topple its inherent pillars of strength if we are not ever on guard. In its design to give each man his say and freedom it opens the doors to rooms which are better left locked. "My beliefs," and "my opinions" become the tests by which good and morality are measured. It does not matter if I am intelligent, moral or informed, I have the right to decide for myself, and to some extent for everyone else. Eventually, as is evident America today, this leads to the place where personal proclivities become the alters at which the orals of the ages are sacrificed.

It is no longer proper to speak of art, language or lifestyles as good or bad. Instead, we must respect them for being "alternate." If I disapprove of someone's activities on a religious or ethical basis, it is I who am "narrow," "bigoted" and a danger the rights and happiness of others. I need to "respect" the rights of others to choose their own way regardless of how disrespectful their choices are to my beliefs and the future of my nation and children.

Plato states that when appetites usurp the place of reason rudeness becomes honesty; extravagant and irresponsible gestures become generosity; and a lack of shame becomes courage. Our society has become so centered on individual concerns that it is forced to proclaim vices as acceptable virtues to keep from shaming those who have chosen to reject traditional understandings of right and wrong. It is protection of vice which has become the virtue, for this, they say, is the "guardian of our freedom."

Democracy must not be allowed to stand for anarchy, where every man is unrestrained. There must be a return to foundational values which are held because they are "right even if some claim they are not because they interfere with their desires. We have mistaken the freedom which our constitution guarantees with license.

But I do believe, however, that all members of the Eldorado Golf Club, regardless of their race, should be expected to follow the same code of etiquette and be dealt with in a comparable manner when they do not abide by this code.

It is important to point out that the great majority of the golf club's members are extremely courteous and well-mannered. But there are a handful of members that apparently believe that the color of their skin and perhaps their economic and social position permits them to harass and deprive the minority members of their rights and privileges as a club member. I, for one, will no longer tolerate this type of injustice. It is my hope that the Board of Directors of the Eldorado Golf Club will re-evaluate their policy as it pertains to this differential and discriminatory treatment of its minority membership and implement steps to prevent it from happening in the future.

Felix Ramos

I feel everyone is entitled to their own opinion. And as seen, they may or may not sign their name. But I do feel that when it is anonymous, it usually serves only a negative purpose.

The author might look at why he or she was so disgusted with the coaching staff and school board (possibly the author's offspring had been reprimanded or his feelings hurt). I don't know what happened prior to his or her's comments, but would guess it was a negative situation, which causes a "dumping your bucket" domino effect. Once you have been "dumped on," you usually dump.

I feel every person would be responsible for his actions and accountable for what comes out of his mouth. I think our school, teachers, and coaches (as a whole) do a wonderful job with the guidelines that each has to follow. That old saying about "don't condemn someone until you have walked in their shoes" applies.

I am proud of our school system and am very glad to be living in Eldorado.

I want my child to have the opportunity to participate in all that is available if she so chooses. I also want her to always to do her best and if not, to recognize that she isn't doing her best. That is where everyone around her comes into play - to guide her in a very Christian and positive manner. This is why I live in Eldorado and want Corie to grow up here.

Dr. Stanley Spoke To SCISD Students

by Ilse Williams

Mrs. Diane Stanley, a nationally known author of children's books, spoke to Eldorado elementary and middle school students on Monday, February 8th in the High School Auditorium. She had been invited (and paid) by the EMS Partnership Initiative. She presented programs to three different groups: elementary, 5th and 6th grade, and 7th and 8th grade. Eighth graders had prepared a set of questions for her.

Mrs. Stanley was born in Abilene, Texas, lived in New York, California, and then, again in Texas, where she now is a resident of Houston. How did she come to write? What does it take to write and illustrate a book? How does an author or illustrator find a publisher? What is an author's workday like? How long does it take to write one of her books? Does an author get much advice from others? Is writing fiction more fun than writing non-fiction? These were some of the questions she addressed in her presentation.

Although she had been encouraged to write at an early age (her mother, Faye Stanley, wrote mystery stories), and she enjoyed English and drama in high school, she had no plans to be a professional writer. She went to college, where she earned a degree in history and political science. It was there, in her senior year, that she took her first art class, and this experience changed her life. For the first time she was told that she had a real talent for art; doing art became an inspiration, almost an obsession with her. As today's kids become hooked on video games, she became hooked on art.

She took more art classes; preferring precise art, she decided to become an illustrator for medical books. She spent one more year at the University of Texas, then another year in Scotland, learning more about her profession.

She married, had children, and thus began to look at children's books, thinking that was something she would like to try, too. She had illustrated about ten books before she attempted to write her first book. It was turned down twice, but finally was successfully published.

National recognition and praise were given to her biographies of famous people. She has re-created the life stories of Shakespeare, Queen Elizabeth I, the Zulu King Shaka, Peter the Great, and is now working on biography of Cleopatra.

Commenting on her shift from writing fiction to writing non-fiction, Mrs. Stanley told the eighth graders that writing fiction was more fun, but that she derives a deeper satisfaction from writing research-based, factually accurate non-fiction.

Satisfying as it might be, writing a biography as the one about William Shakespeare is a long, tedious process. Mrs. Stanley's husband, Peter Vennema, does big part of the research. He reads almost everything he can find on the subject, then recommends five to seven biographies to her to read. During her reading she takes a bundle of notes. Then she shares her writing with her husband, her eleven-year-old son, and other close friends, several of them also writers of children's books. Finally she presents the manuscript to an expert in the subject matter to make sure the text is faithful to the currently known facts.

The words, however, are only half the story. While she composes the text, she designs the illustrations that will accompany the narration. In a historical biography, these illustrations must be as accurate as the text. The picture showing young William Shakespeare in grammar school must show the customs of the time: only boys attended school; students stood up to answer the teacher's questions; students sat two to a bench, and the teacher (a man, of course) kept his switch by his side, ready to discipline any student who could not remember his lesson.

When Stanley wrote her book about Shaka, the Zulu King, she encountered an additional challenge. No written records existed about the king; his life story had to be reconstructed from oral histories. The Zulu culture of today incorporates many things not known during Shaka's time; while cotton is presently the traditional fabric, grass clothing was worn during Shaka's reign. "Illustrations, too, are a real commitment," affirmed Mrs. Stanley.

Once the sketches and text, the "dummies," are finished, a publisher must be convinced to take on the story. In the luckiest of cases, a contract is written, an editor gets to suggest changes, and the book is almost on its way to stardom.

Mrs. Stanley works approximately 3-5 full days to complete and refine each illustration in her books but enjoys this part of the process more than any other. Asked whether she ever considered becoming an art teacher, Mrs. Stanley admitted that was never her desire.

While Mrs. Stanley's books are undoubtedly outstanding -- perhaps even more interesting to adults than to children? -- it was unfortunate for Eldorado's students that Mrs. Stanley presented a wealth of information in a rather bland, non-committal manner. Had she perhaps forgotten to pack her sense of humor? Only persons with a pre-existing interest in writing were able to get very much out of her presentation. The students were well behaved, but clearly not inspired.

But perhaps that is one of life's lessons too for our youngsters: even people of national fame may not always be able to "reach out and touch someone" in person. A gifted writer and artist may not necessarily be a gifted speaker.

Tune Up For Spring Safety!

No musical talent required -- just use your common sense and follow a few guidelines to enjoy the coming spring season safely. For example:

- When you use electrical appliances and tools outdoors, make sure they're properly grounded and that your work area is dry.
- Remind your children never to climb utility poles or play near substations, ground-level transformers, or any fence, building or equipment marked "Danger: High Voltage."
- Don't post or attach signs or announcements to utility poles. They create a safety hazard for personnel who need to climb poles for routine maintenance and repair.

And there's more you can do to tune in to a safe spring season. Simply contact us with your questions. We'll be happy to advise you.

Allan Sallee suffers from a disease called acute leukemia, cancer of the white blood cells. Allan has been in Baylor Hospital in Dallas for the past month or so. He has completed the first stage of treatment of anti-cancer drugs to eliminate the leukemia cells from the blood and bone marrow. As soon as his condition is improved and his poly count is up, the next stage will be a bone marrow transplant. A suitable bone marrow donor will be taken from the donor bank. The transplant includes risks, complications and the duration of several months. The expense of this process is great, but with a bone marrow transplant the chances of cure are good.

Soon, Allan

Hubert and Verda will celebrate their 75th wedding anniversary in August. Their marriage began with a three month cotton-picking honeymoon in a covered wagon.

Russell and Novella were blessed with four children, James, born in 1942, Roy, born in 1944, Judy, born in 1948, and Allan, born in 1950. The children were born at Calf creek near Brady and lived there until 1951, with the exception of Russell, who served in the Navy during World War II.

In 1951 the Sallee family moved to Eldorado - Allan was 8 months old. The family lived on East Street near the Yates and Sweatts. It's been said that the Yates and Sallee children kept East Street poppin'!

Allan attended Eldorado Public schools, graduating in 1969. He attended Hardin Simmons for 1 year before going to work in the oil field. He is presently employed by Apache Corporation as Production Foreman.

In the summer of 1971 Allan met a cute little girl in Ozona, Texas. They fell in love during their 2 week courtship and were married on July 26, 1971. During their 22 year marriage Vidette and Allan have been blessed with 3 fine boys: Travis-19, Adam-16 and Beau-13.

Russell and Novella stated their family has been a blessing to their lives.

"Friendships are forever" is definitely true because several incidents occurred while we were growing up that truly tested the validity of that statement. Two events, cigarettes and ice cream, stand out and are funny now, but were not so funny then.

Allan and I were neighbors before we ever started to school in the first grade. There was a vacant lot that separated our houses, but a very worn trail in the middle of the lot joined them. One hot, summer day, Allan and I had been playing outside at my house. We decided it was time to go inside and cool off in one of our favorite ways. Eating ice cream out of the container was a quick way to cool off, and besides, it didn't leave a mess. We could just rinse the spoon off and no one would know we had been there. I had my fill of ice cream and left Allan in the kitchen with the spoon in hand and ice cream in mouth. About that same time, mom walked in and caught Allan in the act. Needless to say, Allan did get a dose of the Yates (Sweatt actually) temper.

I guess my favorite memory I like to hold over Allan is the time he decided to smoke a cigarette. Allan had hidden some cigarettes and matches in a shed behind his house. He was going to smoke and I was supposed to be the "look out." Everything was going along fine until, "Look out - here comes Russell!!!" It was too late. He had already been caught. Russell didn't get very made at all. We couldn't figure it out. He just said calmly, "Randy, come over to our hose in the morning. I have something I want you to watch." I couldn't imagine what he was talking about. When I got there, Allan and Russell were on the front porch. Russell had bought the biggest, longest, fattest cigar I have ever seen in my life. He made Allan smoke the whole thing. I've never heard so much coughing and gagging in my life. It made a believer out of me and Allan, too.

Our friendship has stood the test of time remarkably well. We have played together, cried together, rode donkeys together, gotten rabies shots together, shot BB guns together, and most importantly, laughed together.

I love you, Allan,
Randy Yates Mitchell

Allan and I attended school and graduated together. In high school Allan was always a prankster. I can remember one very warm evening after we finished with play practice, Allan ended up with one of the props which was baby powder. The next thing I knew I was being doused from head to toe with Johnson's baby powder. I could barely see to drive home.

Then there was band. Allan played the tuba. It was not unusual for Allan to come up behind you and blow out a loud to-o-o-ot. Besides being deafening, it almost scared you to death.

I know you are a fighter - we all want you well soon,
Allan!
Vickie Jones Williams

One night several of the guys (Hyman Sauer, Allan Corbell, Ross Whitten, Jimmy McGinnes, Allan Sallee, and myself) decided to go rabbit hunting. We all loaded up in my dad's 47 Dodge pickup - each loaded with a 22 rifle ready to kill all the "VC" (rabbits) in Schleicher County. (The Viet Nam War was going on then.) Well, as memory fails me on the exact details of the evening, Allan could have worn tennis shoes as he ended up getting left out in the country and had to walk back to town from the Huldale area.

Buddy Calk

Allan,
We understand that you enjoy reading all the mail and newspapers. I wonder if you will be just as excited to read about some of your "juvenile activities." Personally, I would not repeat such incriminating gossip, but, your partner in crime, Ross, can give an eyewitness account. Thus, I assume it to be factual!

I know you are glad that this didn't get out twenty-five years ago. If it had, you would probably still be in freshman English. By the way, how many flats did she have that year??? Your hunting episodes are still topics of conversation after all these years. The deer and rabbits have almost been restored to their original numbers. What did those rabbits do to you before you declared war on them?! (Do you hunt from car hoods anymore???)

All of this reminiscing sure is fun! I bet you feel like the guest of honor at a public roast. I hope all this lighthearted humor makes you feel a little better. I enjoyed hearing about these and several other unmentionable tales just as much as I did during our high school days. I only wish you and Ross would have let me go along!!

Hyman

Allan,
The years may pass and people may go their own way, but friends and classmates are bound forever. God bless you and your family and know that your are in our prayers.

Your friend and classmate
Mike Olson

Allan,
I have been trying to write this letter for two days now. (I know - "dumb blonde") It's hard for me to put into words what you mean to me. I want to tell you first that I love you and miss you. I miss our 42 games and yes, I even miss your stupid male chauvinistic jokes.

We've been good friends for awhile now and I'm glad you got to know me. We've had lots and lots of laughs (mostly at Vidette's or my expense) and lots of fun. We've also shared a few tears together and I must say your a pretty good tear sharer.

I want you to know that when I thought my world was crumbling and that nothing would be worse in my life, you were there. During that time I thought that those loses could never be replaced and that nothing could empty my heart so much as that fire. But, I was wrong Allan, two months later when we found out that you had leukemia that broke my heart in two because I realized what I lost in that fire was nothing compared to what I would lose in you.

You're my very special friend and you made a difference in my life. You've taught me a lot these last few months about what being a friend is and I'm a better person because of you.

Allan, I know you're tired, you're tired of the pain, and I know you're tired of fighting, but Allan, you are a fighter and you will not give up, even when you thin you can't stand anymore you'll dig a little deeper inside yourself and you'll fight. I've seen you fight Allan, and you will win, because you hate to lose.

I'm keeping the coffee hot and the dominoes warm and I will see you and Vidette home soon.

You know I love you,
Janet Warnock
P.S. I'll get you back!

If you would like to send Allan a card, mail it to: Charles Allan Sallee, Baylor Hospital, Jonsson Building, Room J606, Junus St., Dallas, Tx. 75346.
