Eldorado School Has Large Crowd At Opening

Monday morning was official opening day for the 1932-33 School Term for the Eldorado School. Many were present to witness the opening. A short opening ceremony was held in the Main Auditorium for about an hour, when different people talked, including S. L. Stanford, president of the School Board, W. O. Alexander, Cashier of the First National Bank, Job Campbell, former County Judge and the Rev. Hornburg, of Brownwood, who spoke for 15 minutes and made a wonderful impression on the crowded house. The Eldorado School is one of the best High Schools in Texas and the young folks that go away from our school make good in what ever rollege they attend.

Mother Of General Robert E. Lee Is Said To Have Risen From Grave After Being Buried For 7 Days

Recent instances of suspended animation are not new to medical science, the mother of Robert E. Lee, Confederate general, providing an outstanding example. In fact Mrs. Lee was buried and in the tomb for seven days, surrounded by the remains of other generations of Lees, before she was rescued from a living death by the sexton.

The New York Mirror calls attention to this seemingly incredible fact, citing for accuracy a volume entitled "Premature Burial" by Tebb and Voluum, in the library of the surgeon general, Army Medical Museum in Washington. Col. Warfield Lee, General Lee's nephew, who heard the story from the general himself and from the general's brother, Warfield Lee's father, thus relates the astounding details of the death and return to life of the wife of Lighthorse Harry Lee, dashing cavalry officer of the Revolution.

"Mrs. Lee was in poor health for some time before 1805. She seems to have been subject to some sort of fainting spells. Physicians did not understand the cause nor were they able to find a cure. She grew weaker and weaker until the family doctor summoned three eminent colleagues.

"There were four physicians at her bedside when she died in October, 1805, and all of them agreed, of course, that she was dead. She lay in that state for four days in the Lee mansion in a coffin with a lid of glass. Then the coffin was removed to the Lee mausoleum. In the center was a circular stairway leading down from the ground level, and around this stairway in three tiers were the coffins holding the bodies of seven generations of Lees.

"There was a constant stream of mourners in and out of the mausoleum and all gazed at the face of the dead woman, but none detected a sign of life. On the seventh day the sexton came to sweep up. As he swept the old man imagined he heard a far-off voice crying 'Help, help.' It was so weak that the sexton felt sure he imagined it. Then again he heard a faint cry but so clearly that his courage deserted him and he fled.

"Out side in the sunlight he laughed at his own fears and returned to his sweeping. That finished, he took up some belated flowers that had arrived and began to strew them on the coffin in which lay the body of Mrs. Lee.

"Help, help, help! Again he heard the faint voice but now it was almost at his feet. Frozen with fear the sexton looked down, and staring at the face of the dead woman saw her lips quiver and her eyelids struggle to open.

Official Count Raises Ferguson Majority To 3,758

When the official counts were tabulated Saturday by the county Executive Committees of the various counties, Mrs. Ferguson was given a lead of 3,758, over former Gov. Sterling. The Sterling forces have not conceded defeat yet and are making plans for a contest according to press reports. The State Democratic Executive Committee will meet next Saturday at Lubbock to declare one of the candidates as the official duty elected candidate.

TYPHOID SERUM

The Schick test will also be given to any entitled to it at this time provided they are not taking the above named serum as they cannot be given together.

R. A. Evans reports the sale of 240 head of broken mouth ewes to J. T. Williams for J. T. Evans at 50 cents per head.

"Frightened though he was, the old man retained enough sense to remove the lid of the coffin before he went for help. Mrs. Lee was taken to the manor house and in a surprisingly short time restored to a state of health that was at least as good as it was before she died."

"Robert E. Lee was born 15 months later on January 19, 1807. When Mrs. Lee died in 1826 the son who was born after her first burial had entered West Point for his military education." — San Angelo Evening Standard.

Shooting Affray At Christoval Friday Afternoon

Friday afternoon the little city of Christoval was thrown into excitement, when Slim Peoples, Constable, went to arrest Jesse Wilkerson, Will Wilkerson and Will DeLong. Will Wilkerson resisted and was shot by Constable Peoples.

The young men were drunk and seemed to be shooting very freely from reports reaching Eldorado. They are all in jail except Will Wilkerson, who was rushed to the hospital where all efforts are being made to save his life. The Wilkersons, DeLongs and Peoples are all related to each other and the incident will be regretted by the friends of the families, all old timers of Christoval.

FERGUSONS SUE TO CANVASS VOTE

AUSTIN, Sept. 7.—Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, apparent Democratic nominee for governor of Texas, today sought help of the Supreme Court in an effort to have the vote of the August primary canvassed and the result declared according to state election laws.

She filed an application for mandamus to compel W. O. Huggins, chairman, and the members of the state Democratic executive committee to tabulate the returns according to reports made to them and recommend the candidate receiving the greatest number of votes to the state party convention as the nominee.

The court ordered the petition for application set down for hearing next Friday.

Committee Meets Monday — The executive committee meets at Lubbock next Monday and the convention will assemble on Tuesday.

James E. Ferguson, husband of the gubernatorial candidate who, semi-official returns showed, had obtained a majority of the votes cast as between her and Governor R. S. Sterling for the nomination, said the proceeding was to insure functions of the party executive committee according to law.

"This action was taken in view of the public statement of the governor that he would be nominated at Lubbock and that he would be elected governor," Ferguson said.

Governor Sterling's friends were preparing to contest the nomination of Mrs. Ferguson should the executive committee and the convention declare her the nominee on face of the returns. — San Angelo Evening Standard.

Former Eldoradoan Dies In Arizona

Word was received in Eldorado the latter part of last week that E. B. Cozzens, former attorney of Eldorado, and who is well acquainted in our midst, especially by the older settlers of the county, died at his home in Casa Grande, Arizona, age 59. He was a son-in-law of Mr. A. K. Bailey of our city and at one time served this county as County Attorney. He moved from here to Fort Worth where he resided until about four years ago.

Mr. Cozzens is survived by his wife, five children, four sons and one daughter. He was buried at Casa Grande, Arizona.

MEAT FOR HEALTH FEATURED AT FAIR

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 8.—The Texas Breeder-Feeder Association, sponsors of the annual feeder show and auction sale at the State Fair of Texas, whose three year campaign to feed Texas livestock, in Texas on Texas Feeds has resulted in 600,000 head of sheep and cattle being on feed in this state, will wage a campaign during Beef Cattle Week at the fair of "Meat for Health," it has been announced here by Frank P. Holland jr., president of the Breeder-Feeder body, and State Fair director.

Packers, jobbers, retail meat dealers, and independent provisions have been enlisted in the campaign and will carry the message to the people in an effort to educate them to eat more and better meats, that the consumption of meat in Texas might be increased thereby creating a better market for the finished livestock which have been fed on Texas Feeds.

The campaign will be waged in the schools, among housewives, to the business men and women through luncheon clubs, among restaurateurs, hotel chefs, and to practically all consumers of meats. Many public demonstrations of butchering which will educate the people as to meat and meat cuts will be held.

The "Meat for Health" week will culminate at the annual banquet tendered the Feeder-Breeder Association by the State Fair of Texas each year, and which will be held this year at the Adolphus Hotel. Reports on the campaign will be made, and talks by several nationally known speakers will be made on the subject.

VOTERS MUST RAILROADS AND THE UNEMPLOYED

The public is always the loser when competition is unfair.

This modern industrial axiom is especially applicable in the case of the railroads. Eighty-five per cent of the nation's freight is carried by them—and no other agency could carry it as cheaply and as efficiently. Yet inequitably regulated land and water competition has forced railroad retrenchment, resulting in the passing of dividends by many lines, and contributing further to unemployment.

In the single state of New Jersey there are 16,000 fewer residents in railroad employ than there were four years ago, and railroad payrolls to residents of the state have been reduced $27,000,000 annually. It must be remembered that the earnings of railroads cannot be compared to those of other businesses, inasmuch as during years of prosperity stringent regulation prevents them from making even as much as six per cent on their investment.

We are all interested in the railroads, whether we know it or not. They occupy a position of the first importance in the industrial scheme and their prosperity is directly related to the prosperity, or lack of it, of banks, insurance companies and a multitude of manufacturing and producing industries. What happens to the railroads will, directly or indirectly, affect us all.

PRACTICAL ROAD BUILDING

The most expensive roads are those which do not serve their communities well. By the same token, the most economical roads are those which best suit local conditions, whether they cost three thousand dollars a miles or thirty thousand.

At this time many states, cities and counties doubtless consider dropping much of their road worn as an economy measure. This is a mistake—almost any other government function should feel the axe of retrenchment first. Road construction and maintenance has been one of the most vital factors in fighting distress and unemployment the past three years. And—remember this—every road dollar which we spend, so long as it is spent wisely after due study of conditions, will return continuous dividends in the future. It will do this by improving business conditions, encouraging tourist travel and broadening the markets and opportunities for agricultural sections.

Good secondary roads, which are weatherproof, skidproof and long-wearing, can be built with oil or asphalt surfaces, for less than five thousand dollars a mile. These make perfect feeder arteries for connecting towns and farming areas with the cross-country superhighways.

They have been termed the "food" roads of the nation—a title they eminently deserve. The good roads movement has been one of the most progressive phases of the twentieth century. The necessity of facilities for fast, economical and year-round transport can hardly be exaggerate. And roads will play an even greater part in the future of America than they have in the past.

And now comes Gib Ballew and bets his last chew of tobacco that the moon has something to do with this rain. He says he saw it Tuesday night through the clouds and it was still awet moon. We hope the moon will turn over the next change.

MARKET FOR TEXAS GOODS

(Editorial in Ft. Worth Star-Telegram)

Texas retail grocers have before them some highly meaningful figures for digestion, as a result of a presentation to the annual convention in Ft. Worth Tuesday by W. C. Edwards of Dallas, managing director of Progressive Texans, Inc. Mr. Edwards suggested that the retail dealers, forming the ultimate contact between the producer and the consumer, may contribute greatly to the prosperity and progress of the state by promoting Texas consumption of Texas goods.

There is more need for preaching this sort of gospel in Texas than in most states. Ranking near the top in production potentialities in practically all lines, this state remains a consuming state rather than a producing state. The reason for this, of course, is not to be found in a single statement of fact. Mr. Edwards pointed out that our cities are being fed largely by foods produced in other states. Without straying from the demonstrated facts, he might have said the same with respect to hundreds of other classifications of consumer articles. Millions of Texas money goes to other states for articles which might be produced in Texas. We are patently neglecting an opportunity to build up our own industries, including agriculture, with great benefit to ourselves and without cost to us.

One of the main reasons why Texas has lagged behind in the business of providing the articles in daily use by its own people is the failure of adequate salesmanship. Texans have been appealed to time and again to "buy Texas-made goods," but that sort of appeal rarely produces more than nominal results. What is needed is the same sort of salesmanship that has put articles made elsewhere into wide use in Texas. Patriotic sentiment seldom extends to the daily shopping tour, unless it is fortified and reinforced by commercial considerations.

Texas-made articles can capture the Texas market if and when they demonstrate superior quality and are properly brought to the attention of Texas people. That means that the best of modern salesmanship means advertising of the sort that has made goods manufactured in other states popular in Texas.

The part of the retailers in the enterprise of building up Texas commerce is obviously an important one. They may consistently urge the buying of Texas-made articles when these articles are as good or better than others of the same sort made elsewhere. But the Texas manufacturer may not sit idly waiting for the retailers to build up his business for him. He needs to make the retailer's job easier by acquainting the public with the merits of his product.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

T. H. Alexander was in from the ranch Saturday looking after business and trading.

MAKE IT A QUARTET!

In a recent address, Dr. S. S. Huebner, Dean of the American College of Life Underwriters, and a member of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania, observed that when we want counsel regarding financial and business matters we go to members of three professions—the lawyer, the banker and the accountant. He then said that this trio should be changed into a quartet, by adding life underwriters.

That is certainly a sound idea. The work of the life underwriter is similar to that of the lawyer and the banker, in that each deals with our future, and can help in the solution of problems we bring to him. Nothing is more vital to society than life insurance—nothing is so intimately related to our own financial safety and that of our dependents. The good life insurance salesman, as Dr. Huebner pointed out, is not a drummer of a standardized commodity—he is a teacher of ideas.

Most of us would be a good deal better off today had we, back in 1926-29, looked on the insurance underwriter in that light, instead of trying to avoid him. No other investment is as safe as life insurance—few others have managed to survive the crash without depreciation

A. T. Wright Jr., and his friend and roommate, Joe Bourland, of Clarendon, Texas, arrived Sunday afternoon to visit with The Editor and tribe until the 17th, when they will return to the Naval Academy, where they enter upon their last year in that institution. They came from Maryland over land and have encountered some bad roads, but spent a week or ten days at Clarendon.

Mrs. W. E. Bruton was shopping and visiting in the city Saturday and reported that they were mud bound over night on the road from their farm west of town and the other farm on the Williams section. They will make their home on their own place from now on says Mrs. Bruton.

C. O. Bruton was in from his farm Saturday and reports plenty of rain, but as far as he knew there was no damage done to crops especially cotton.

In value. To hundreds of thousands of men, life insurance policies are the only thing of definite value left from once-sizeable estates.

The lawyer, the banker, the accountant and the life underwriter—there is no better quartet than that to care for our economic well-being.

TEXAS INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITIES

An Austin concern writes Progressive Texans, Inc., offering to help finance large Texas industrial projects of merit. "We would like to be put in touch with some such situations with the idea of grouping the companies into a holding company," the manager writes.

For the first time in two years the Williamson-Dickie plant at Ft. Worth has put on a night shift, giving employment to 150 additional employes now and with prospect of doubling that addition by the peak of the fall season. Three hundred are employed on the day shift, making clothing.

The Longhorn Products Co., Fort Worth, is a new manufacturing establishment to make "brewers' wort," used in big bakeries. Approximately $50,000 is invested in the new venture.

Success of the cotton highways in South Carolina is promising of another considerable outlet for cotton. The roads, using cotton cloth as a waterproof blanket as well as binder, have stood up under six years of general traffic, with small maintenance costs. A stretch of road, similarly built in Texas, has withstood the grueling traffic over it for more than two years and is reported still in good condition.

The Sherman Oil Mill Co., employing sixty men, will resume operations when the new crop of cotton seed comes in, according to announcement by Kay Kimbell, who recently acquired the property. A new corn sheller, giving employment to fifteen or twenty workers, and a head-grain elevator will be built on the property as additional enterprises for Sherman.

There are nearly 100 concerns in Texas manufacturing some

More than 4,000 cotton gins in Texas are running or preparing to run for the 1932 season, giving employment to thousands of workers. While largely seasonal, no industry in Texas gives employment to as many persons as the cotton in-
