TELEVISION

Ten years ago the election of President Harding was one of the first attempts at radio broadcasting. Nobody could buy a radio receiving set in 1920, because there were none on the market. Only amateur electricians who made their own sets could get anything "on the air."

Television is in the same stage today as broadcasting was in 1920. The Chicago Daily News broadcasts pictures of election charts on the night of November 4. Only those could pick them out of the air who had built television receiving apparatus. There are no television receivers for sale. But there are thousands of eager amateurs experimenting in television in 1930, just as there were thousands experimenting in ordinary radio reception in 1920. And in another ten years everybody may be able to stay at home and see pictures of events as they happen, by means of some sort of receiving device not yet invented.

WORK

A charitably-inclined association of apple growers sent several carloads of apples to New York City, to be given to the unemployed. Some 1,600 men began peddling apples at a little a piece, and in the first week took in about $12,000, or about $8 each. This did not do them any good nor relieve the unemployment situation. It was charity and beggary, only slightly disguised.

On the other hand, the agreement by a group of citizens to finance a general cleaning-up of parks, vacant lots and unsightly rubbish-heaps, actually provided work for some thousands of unemployed. Any relief measure which does not require the recipient to work for what he gets is foolishly sentimental and dangerous. Once the average person finds he can get something for nothing, he loses his taste for giving the equivalent in work for every dollar he receives.

PROHIBITION

The election on November 4 was decidedly a "wet" victory in many parts of the United States, including the principal cities.

There is no question that millions of people who have heretofore always voted "dry" and who are in favor of prohibition in principle, have become disgusted with the prohibition law and a change.

Work Begun On Joe Tisdale Well

The preparation work for the spudding of the Joe Tisdale well early in December, was begun this week. This well is being drilled by the Eastland Oil Company, of Fort Worth, and others. It is located in the center of section 29, block M, G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co., about 8 miles northeast of Eldorado and is contracted to go to a depth of 4,500 feet if production is not found sooner.

MRS. E. C. HILL UNDERGOES OPERATION AT HOUSTON

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hill are at Houston and Mrs. Hill was operated on Tuesday, the operation was not thought to be a serious one, and her many friends will be glad to learn of her speedy recovery.

REVIVAL MEETING

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. J. B. Rowan of Abilene will begin a revival meeting at First Baptist Church next Sunday morning. He is one of our state Evangelists, a good preacher, a man with a message. You will enjoy hearing him. All are urged to come. You are needed and it will do you good.

I personally know many ladies who have been ardent "dry" workers who voted for "wet" candidates for Congress on no other ground.

I have no solution to offer for the liquor problem. The control of traffic in "hard liquor" is a problem with which every civilized government in the world is wrestling.

TREES

The Forest Service is out with its annual warning against depleting the forests by cutting too many young spruce, fir, and pines for Christmas trees. Where they grow thickly it is good forestry practice to thin them out, but too many farmers will clear off an entire hillside top for the sake of sending their trees to a cash market. This is not likely to be a good year in the Christmas-tree market, and farmers are warned not to begin cutting until they have made all arrangements for the sale of Christmas trees to responsible buyers.

I like the custom which prevails in the south, of decorating living trees at Christmas time. I have seldom seen anything more beautiful than Riverside Avenue in Jacksonville with the trees blazing with colored lights. It is much more sensible than the habit of denuding our forest areas for a sentimental practice.

Its enforcement as it stands, and want

Organization of Texas "Eat More Lamb" Club Underway

A very significant article appeared in a recent issue of the "Business Week" entitled "Lamb's Glut Chicago Market."

Among other things it was remarked that: "All wholesale meat prices are about one-fifth to one-third lower than a year ago—with lamb the lowest, the decline being 30 per cent."

"Sheep and lambs in the country have increased from thirty eight million in 1925 to forty nine million this year."

This gives a graphic illustration of the deplorable condition the sheep industry finds itself at the present time and is responsible for the pitifully low prices which sheep raisers are offered for their lambs.

Leaders in the sheep industry have seen this situation coming, and, in truth, the Department of Agriculture warned of the tendency towards over production more than three years ago.

There is only one way to effectively remedy this situation, both for the immediate future and for the good of the industry over the years to come, and that is to increase the consumer demand for lamb meat so that the sheep raiser will not be confronted with this condition of over supply and under consumption.

Accordingly, the "Eat More Lamb" movement has been started in earnest and the organization of the Texas "Eat More Lamb" Club is now well under way. The purpose of this organization is to band together sheep raisers, bankers, businessmen, and all who are interested in the future of the sheep industry, into an organization for the purpose of setting about to scientifically and definitely increase the demand for lamb meat in the United States.

No movement was ever started in the western country which bears more vitally upon the prosperity of the entire section and interest is already running high.

There is only one method of becoming a member of the Texas "Eat More Lamb" Club, and each member in good standing will be given an attractive little button which will designate him as one who is seriously interested in the future of the industry. In order to completely explain the reasons behind the movement and to give those who wish an opportunity to join the club, a schedule of meetings has been arranged at key points in the Texas sheep producing counties. At these meetings the manager, Mr. E. S. Mayer, of the Texas "Eat More Lamb" Club, and a speaker with illustrated charts, will completely explain the plans. It is of utmost importance that those directly, or indirectly, interested in the prosperity of the sheep raisers should be at one of these meetings. The following is the detailed schedule:

- Monday Dec. 1, Brady, 9 a. m.
- Tuesday Dec. 2, Eden, 2 p. m., Menard, 9 a. m., Eldorado 2:30 p. m.
- Wednesday Dec. 3, Sterling 9 a. m., San Angelo, 2 p. m.
- Thursday Dec. 4, Ft. Stockton, 2 p. m.
- Friday Dec. 5, Sanderson, 9 a. m.
- Saturday Dec. 6, Ozona 9 a. m., Sonora, 2 p. m.
- Tuesday, Dec. 16, Kerrville 9 a. m., Junction 2 p. m.
- Wednesday Dec. 17, Rocksprings 9 a. m.
- Thursday Dec. 18, Del Rio, 9 a. m., Uvalde 3 p. m.

All readers are urged to study this schedule over carefully and decide upon one of these meetings and make every effort to attend, for it is promised that the meeting will be of intense interest and it is believed will be the starting point of permanent prosperity for the sheep-raising sections.

Brazos River Conservation

Sixty counties along the Brazos river are actively planning to secure aid from the State and Federal governments in advancing conservation and reclamation work in the entire district. An organization has been formed to promote this enterprise and to acquaint the public, and especially the people of the district, with the necessity for and advantages of this development.

City Service Station To Rebuild

A. D. Wright of Brady, of the firm of Wright & Jordan Contractors, arrived in Eldorado Monday, and began the erection of the City Service Station that burned about two months ago. Hampton and Maxwell of Brady own same, but it will be leased to the City Service Oil people when completed. The Service Station burned about 10 o'clock one night just after it had been closed for the night.

OFF ON HUNTING TRIP TO DELAWARE MOUNTAINS

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Isaacs, Miss Isabella Isaacs and Willie Isaacs, left Sunday morning for a deer hunt in the Delaware Mountains, and expect to bag the limit.

MRS. LEWIS BALLEW ENTERTAINS WITH BRIDGE

Mrs. Lewis Ballew entertained the Eldorado Bridge Club at 2:30 o'clock Thursday November 20 at the apartment of Mrs. Jim Hoover in Eldorado. After the arrival of twelve guests five games of bridge was played and refreshments were served. Prizes were awarded Mrs. H. T. Finley high club and Mrs. A. P. Bailey, high guest. Those present were: Mesdames H. T. Finley, Terry Crane, Tom Henderson, Jim Hoover, L. T. Barber, Joe Williams, J. W. Lawton, J. C. Crosby, A. P. Bailey, Sam Roberts, Muller and Luke Thompson.

Eldorado Eagles Defeat Menard Yellow Jackets 6-0

The Menard football boys came over to Eldorado Saturday afternoon with unbounded courage and fully expected to wipe up on the Eldorado Eagles. They played a good clean hard fought game but of the little end of the score. The Eagles are just getting hard to beat. The Success congratulates them on the splendid showing they have made during this season.

Conditions In Forty-Nine West Texas Counties Improving

ABILENE, TEXAS, Nov. 24— A higher than estimated crop yield, unusually good grazing conditions for cattle and sheep raisers, and splendid prospects for 1931 are indicated in the monthly Business Conditions Survey conducted by the West Texas Utilities Company, according to a report from the general offices of the company here.

The report, information for which is obtained from the District Superintendents of the nine individual operating districts, covers some forty-nine West Texas counties, and includes approximately 45,000 square miles of territory.

As a general thing, cotton and feed crops will average approximately 60 percent of normal production. Trade and rollertions vary in the different localities, but a general average would indicate considerably improved business and trade conditions.

Late October rains have made it possible to plant considerable acreage of wheat and other small grains throughout the territory, with excellent prospects for a good crop. Even if the Spring season should fail, farmers are assured of an abundance of exceptionally good grazing land. More than double the amount of wheat acreage has been planted than ever before.

Stockmen are in an especially optimistic mood, saying that conditions look better for them than in many years.

Outstanding in the month's survey were the reports of the territories surrounding Dalhart and McCamey. The Dalhart District indicates a larger production per acre, and a considerable increase in acreage under cultivation. The territory around McCamey seems to be undergoing a transition from a purely oil locality. Several thousand acres of land have been fenced, and over 10,000 head of sheep and 2,000 head of cattle have been shipped in to stock the ranches. Grass is in good shape, and the new stockmen feel confident that their project will prove successful.

The survey indicates that everyone is looking forward to a prosperous 1931, and a general feeling of optimism pervades throughout the territory served by the company.

Proposals must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check in the sum of Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars, and bidders must be prepared to furnish surety bond from a company acceptable to the City. Bidders must fulfill conditions specified in "Instructions to Bidders."

Eldorado Wins Thanksgiving Game From Sonora

The Eldorado Eagles went so victorious over the Sonora Bronchos on Thanksgiving afternoon, to the tune of 7 to 0. A large crowd was present at the Eldorado Fair Park to witness the best game of the season and were thrilled over the outcome of the game. The game was a thrill from the first both sides playing good clean ball with Eldorado taking the long end of the score.

Quite a few were up from Sonora to witness the game and lend a loud cheer to the Bronchos when they deserved it and tried to boost them to the lead but the Eagles were too much and held them scoreless.

Eldoradoans Enjoy Thanksgiving Service

Eldorado enjoyed Thanksgiving by attending Religious Services at the First Methodist Church in the morning. Dr. Gray, pastor of the Presbyterian Church preached the sermon, assisted by Rev. Ratliff of the First Baptist Church. After the service the ladies of the Methodist Church served a real dinner which was participated in by many of the town and County people.

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK

The Red Cross is making its annual appeal for funds. In a few days the Christmas Seals of the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis will be offered everywhere.

These are two noble causes, to which everybody ought to contribute. The work of the Red Cross is continuous. Wherever there is life to be saved, homeless to be sheltered, victims of catastrophe to be re clothed, fed, and started out anew in life, the Red Cross is the first agency in the field and he one which does the most good. By virtue of his office, the President of the United States, whoever he may be, is also president of the Red Cross. It is, in effect, an unofficial arm of the Federal government.

The recent drought gave the Red Cross an opportunity for service. So did the Mississippi flood of a couple of years ago, the hurricane disaster in Florida, Porto Rico and Santo Domingo. And hundreds of minor disasters, constantly occurring, keep this organization busy. It has no money except when the public gives.

The work of the Tuberculosis organization is of almost equal importance. Tuberculosis is diminishing, but only because of the constant watchfulness and educational work of the devoted men and women who are giving their lives to that work. Buying Christmas seals for a cent apiece is an easy and practical way for everybody to help.

Use University Lawyers

Representative Bob Long, who is on a committee that has been investigating University affairs, says the University needs an attorney to devote all his time to its law business. Even then it would be a big job for one man. The University has a law faculty, composed of men who teach others how to become lawyers—all able men, no doubt. Why not give this group the extracurricular duty of serving as a law cabinet for the University? They are hardly too busy to take on this extra work, and it should make them better law teachers to closely contact big modern law problems.

Remember that you only have about three more weeks to advertise your Christmas Goods.

The Success believes in patronizing home industries as far as possible, when you spend your money with home people it keeps circulating around the old home town and you have a chance to get your fingers on it again.

We feel like we want to apologize for the appearance of The Success last week but our press is out of commission and new parts have to come from Michigan, and they have been ordered, but it is very doubtful that they arrive in time to be put on for this week paper, but we hope after this week we will be able to give you a much neater looking paper. At any rate we will soon be back in the harness and will give you a better paper.

There is a movement on foot at this time throughout this section to eat more lamb, which is a good suggestion, but we should not overlook the fact that we should raise more hogs, there is nothing more assuring for good Christmas eats than to have plenty of spare ribs, cracklins, hams, bacon and etc.

Quite a few of our ranchmen are being annoyed by hunters, we note that some hunters killed a doe, trying to shoot a buck, the hunters claimed the doe ran in between them and a big buck, while they were shooting at the buck. The court fined them for the accident. Those boys were from Brady probably told the judge the truth, but it was hard for the judge to believe the story. J. E. Henderson Jr. paid their fines, the doe was killed on his ranch.

We popped off too soon last week about those chicken killing dogs, it was most likely a pet fox, one was visiting around our barn yard the next evening. It may be we did the dog tribe an injustice, but we will not say any hard things about our pet fox lovers, except, if they can train their fox to bring in the chickens after they have caught them they should have had a splendid Thanksgiving dinner.

One reason that the Eldorado Eagles are doing better is because the Eldorado "Pep Squad" has really turned out to be a Pep Squad and with their over flowing energy, they just put a little more flop in the Eagles and the boys bring home the bacon. Keep the Eagles flying.

The Eldorado water works are burying their water mains deeper, and we will probably not be bothered with freezing mains this winter, Eldorado has at last gotten on the road to a real water system. The next thing needed is a large Main to the business district and fire plugs, to lower fire insurance.

Harold Isaacs, Morris and Jack Whitten are at home from the Schreiner Institute, for the week end holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Moore and little son Glenna, of Brady are in Eldorado for awhile assisting in the building of the City Service Station.

Jack McGonnigal, of Brady, came in Monday and is connected with the Sales department of the Chevrolet Motor Company.

Our friend L. T. Wilson returned from Mason County Monday, where he had been on a deer hunt, he was accompanied by Marvia Logan, but did not have much luck.

Rev. Kendrick of San Angelo filled his regular appointment, here Sunday, holding his service at the Presbyterian church. Rev. Kendrick is an able minister and preaches once a month for the Christian Church here.

ANGELO HOTEL OWNER MAKES A STATEMENT

"Yes, I Suffered 25 Years With Stomach and Digestive Troubles. But Argotane Has Restored My Health and I Feel Fine," He Says

It is not what the manufacturer claims for it but the testimony of the multiplied thousands who have been benefited by it, that has made Argotane the most famous medicine in the world today. Albert J. Jones, owner of the Jones Hotel, San Angelo, who has been a resident here for forty years, in relating his experience with Argotane said:

"For twenty-five years I have had an awful lot of trouble with my stomach. Everything disagreed with me; after meals I would get that puffed up, bloated feeling and belch up my food sour and undigested. I got to the point where I was almost afraid to eat anything because of the suffering I knew it would cause me. I was constipated, had terrible headaches and my sleep was very poor. My system seemed to be all run down. I was losing weight and felt tired and worn out all the time and felt that unless I could get the right medicine my troubles would soon become serious, because when a fellow has indigestion and severe cramping spells it just seems as if everything is wrong with him. I had kidney trouble which bothered me quite a bit.

"Argotane was advertised so highly and since almost everyone here had been taking it I got myself a bottle and right from the very first doses I began improving. Argotane has relieved me of my troubles and has built me up amazingly. I have now taken three bottles and my stomach is now in good shape. My appetite is fine and I can eat what I want without feeling a sign of indigestion. My constipation and headaches and all that tired feeling are gone and I have gained in strength besides. The gas and bloating spells have all disappeared and I sleep fine every night. Argotane has been a great thing for me and I don't think anybody suffering like I did can make a mistake by giving it a trial." Genuine Argotane may be bought in Eldorado at the L. M. Hoover Drug Store.

BEAUTIFYING RURAL VILLAGES

Many Communities Have Set a Splendid Example for Others to Follow
By Caleb Johnson

A 30-square mile rural township should have within its borders 1,000 families if it is going to have the larger community life which rural conditions at their best provide.

Common sense and a little foresight applied to community planning in rural areas can make them many times as profitable and attractive to live in as they are now.

These are the twin gospels of sociologists who have devoted years to a study of the circumstances of rural life. And they can cite you example after example of what community action can do when it is in earnest about making an attractive town.

The merit of community betterment, however, is not the 36-mile square township of the average state. Rather it is the village which can function effectively for social purposes.

General propositions with regard to this work are easily stated. Villages ought to be easily reached and their approaches direct, durable and enjoyable. Housing conditions should be sanitary, convenient and economical. Public buildings should be built with a view to their relationships to each other and the needs of the community, both from a viewpoint of doing business and of attractiveness. Points of historic interest should be preserved and restored. Dump heaps and congested places should give way to open spaces, and recreation spots in abundance should be easily accessible.

Above all, a community plan should be adopted, a plan which the majority wants and will help to make effective, and one sufficiently flexible to allow for growth and change.

One instance of community improvement is Wamego, Kans., a "farmers town" where big summer picnics and Chautauque courses attract hundreds of people from a large territory. Although Wamego has a splendid modern hospital financed by local contributors, its pride is the city park. Since 1901 this little city of 1,700 persons has spent $2,500 for a 41-2-acre lake, 41-2-foot deep; $225 for a children's wading pool; $1,900 for an electric fountain with three basins of stone gathered from nearby hills; $1,400 for a women's rest house and about the same for one for men; $950 for a circular band stand; $400 for playground equipment; $125 for three drinking fountains; $150 for three stone dining tables; $100 for two stone ranges; $125 for mounting a granite glacial stone hauled in from nearby; and varying amounts for a dancing platform, athletic fields, camping grounds, benches and walks. The average annual maintenance cost is only $1,500 a year.

Over a period of 25 or 30 years such expenditures impose no great strain on such a community and in many instances financial benefit which will perhaps equal the expenditures.

Even more striking in some ways is Fairy Dell Highway Park in Sauk county, Wis., where only $200 of capital money was spent in opening the park and a negligible maintenance sum is contributed every year by the county. A persistent highway patrolman who organized working bees and aroused the interest of the neighborhood resulted in creation of a beautiful natural park there. The work involved clearing of underbrush, construction of a dam, bridge pavilion, tepees, paths, and piping of a spring. It has drawn visitors from all over the United States and from foreign countries.

The Armada, Mich., community fair furnishes another instance. The plant at Armada is valued at $16,000 and draws about 10,000 persons when the fair is on, although Armada contains only 700 souls. The Armada Agricultural Society bought the grounds in 1878 and has conducted more than 50 annual fairs. Membership fees in the society are but $1.50 a year.

Few states have profited more by village planning as distinct from strict ly county or rural planning, than Massachusetts. Among the Bay State towns which in recent years have rearranged civic centers, town halls, libraries, parks and other community adjuncts into new patterns are Weston Hadley, Cobasset and Stockbridge.

Stockbridge has probably had a greater influence for good on the beauty and cleanliness of other towns than any village in the country. This town of about 1,800 population is approached through an attractive stone railroad gateway, station and park. The visitor finds a broad, leafy main avenue more than a mile long. A 13-acre fenced field contains baseball fields and tennis courts. A 10-acre wooded knoll near the center of the town has been converted into a park and playground with a natural amphitheatre where festivals are held annually. There are triangular parks at street corners and intersections.

All of these features and hundreds of others are due to the Laurel Hill Association of the town, organized in 1853 and said to have been the first town improvement society in this country. Before this committee was organized, Stockbridge was a commonplace, rather dirty and unattractive small town.

Its example can be followed by almost any rural community that wants the same things and sets out energetically to get them.

feeling but the merest pity—a pity that was not, and never could be, akin to love.

With Julie sobbing in his arms it had seemed impossible ever to let her go—he loved her so much—no woman had ever before stirred his heart and his imagination—no woman ever would. If they never met again it would be the same always; she was his, they were made for each other. He thought of his wife as she had been when he left her an hour ago, frantic with fear, crying and sobbing; it made him shudder to remember the way she had clung to him, begging him not to leave her. "After all, you're my husband, and I've got nobody else in the world. I know I haven't been as nice to you as I might have been, but don't leave me now I'm blind, don't leave me, Giles. Oh, my God, what will become of me?"

The pathos of her was heart-breaking, Sadie, who had always been so independent, so free, to be clinging to him like this, imploring him not to leave her. She was his wife, he was pledged to her by honor. And yet now that Julie had told him to go—he broke out passionately.

"How can you think of marrying Schofield? What happiness would it be for you if you don't love him—?" "I don't expect to be happy," Julie laughed shakily. "Anyway, it can't matter to you any longer. Please a way and leave me."

"Julie!" he said pleadingly. She said nothing. She hardly seemed to be listening, and he let his arms fall from about her.

"I shall see you to-morrow," he went out into the little hall and opened the front door.

He was so sure she would call to him, perhaps run after him. He was so sure that in a moment she would be in his arms, his lips crushed against hers—he counted the seconds feverishly by his heart beats.

But Julie did not move, and she gave no sign.

Chittenden look back.

"Julie!" He waited a moment, but the silence remained unbroken, and he went out of the flat, shutting the door behind him.

It seemed to Julie that she stood for hours, leaning against the wall, her body so tired that it was too much effort even to move over to the fire and a comfortable chair. Her head ached miserably. With a supreme effort she dragged herself across the room to the fire. It had burnt down, and she replenished it with shaking hands. She felt as if already a lifetime had passed since Chittenden came to the flat, and yet only a moment ago he had been there with her, so close that she had but to put out her hand to touch him, and now he had gone back to Sadie, back to his wife!

"I will never willingly see him again," Julie told herself passionately. "He has deceived me twice. I will never forgive him as long as I live." She got up almost violently, though driven by the sudden reaction of thought.

She would send at once to Schofield. She would not lose a moment.

She went to the phone and called his number, but it was only after a long time that the hotel people could give her any news of him.

He was out at the moment, they said, but he was certainly returning that night.

There was a little pause—then: "Mr. Schofield is leaving London early to-morrow morning."

"Leaving—"

Julie felt as if her last anchor had been torn from her—the waves of misery and utter loneliness seemed to beat up afresh all round her. The voice at the other end of 'phone asked politely if a message could be taken.

THIRTEENTH INSTALLMENT WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Giles Crittendon sets out to make Julie Farrow love him, intending to throw her over in revenge for the suicide of his brother Rodney, whom Julie had cast off. He succeeds, but finds that he has fallen desperately in love with her himself. Then he discovers that it was not this Julie Farrow, but her cousin of the same name, who had driven his brother to death. But Giles is married to an American girl named Sadie Barrow, with whom he has not lived for a long time. Sadie unexpectedly turns up in London, at a party at Giles's mother's house, but both keep silent about their marriage.

Julie, disillusioned, enters into the wild night life of London to try to drown her anguish. Lawrence Schofield wants to marry her. Lombard, who had first introduced her to Chittendon, demands money from Giles with the threat that if he is not paid he will tell Schofield that Chittendon and Julie spent the night together on the St. Bernard. Pass. Later Julie confesses to Chittendon that she loves him.

At a spiritualist seance at Giles's mother's house Sadie Barrow, his wife, suddenly goes blind. She calls to him and he responds, revealing the fact that she is his wife, Julie, who has sent Schofield away because of her love for Chittendon, goes home in despair.

NOW GO WITH THE STORY

It seemed an eternity until the door opened behind him and Julie came in. Chittendon turned. He made a swift movement towards her as if to take her in his arms, then stopped.

This was not the woman who had clung to him only last night and whispered how much she loved him—this was not even the wild, broken Julie who had hurt him with her utter recklessness during the past unhappy week—this was a woman whom he had never seen before, with cold eyes that accused him harshly even before she spoke.

"Sadie is no better. The doctor has just come. Would you like to go to her now?"

Giles flushed scarlet. It was such an unexpected challenge.

"Why should I go to her? What do you mean?" he asked roughly. They were the last words he meant to say and yet for the life of him he could not have controlled their utterance.

Julie shrugged her shoulders. "I only thought—in the circumstances—"

He covered the ground between them in a stride and caught her by the shoulders.

"Julie—have you forgotten last night? How can you speak to me in such a way?"

He felt her slim body stiffen beneath his grasp, and her eyes met his unflinchingly.

"How long have you known Sadie? Why did she call out to you and run to you like that? What is she to you?" There was an agonised question in her voice though she tried desperately to keep it unconcerned.

She moved back a step when he would have touched her and both their faces were white.

"There's no need to pretend any longer," she said with a harsh breath. "Julie—Chittendon broke out again desperately this morning as the door opened beneath his mother's agitated hand."

"Giles—they want you at once—the doctor sent me for you—oh, Giles!" she caught his arm with ineffectual hands. "I don't understand! I feel as if I am going mad, or as if every one else is—what do they all mean? And if it's the truth why didn't you tell me? Sadie is saying awful things, too—she must be light-headed! She says she's your wife? How can she be your wife when you are not married?"

Giles turned on his heel and strode out of the room. Mrs. Ardron turned to Julie, both white, useless hands outstretched.

"Is it true?" she appealed helplessly. "I forgot her dislike for Julie. In her present distress she would have turned to her worst enemy for consolation. You heard what I said—Sadie declares she is my son's wife. How can she be when he is not married? He never liked women—he has had so scores of times."

"I think it's quite true," Julie answered with stiff lips. She took Mrs. Ardron's hands and held them, hardly realising what she was doing. "I'm quite sure it's true that Sadie is his wife," she said again gently.

She was unutterably grateful when it perhaps it would have happened as she felt she could bear no more the doctor came into the room. Mrs. Ardron at once turned her attention to him and Julie slipped away. She took her coat from a maid on the landing and went out into the street.

"She is my wife—"

They seemed to be the only words that would take form and find utterance in her brain—

For Chittendon she had sent Lawrence Schofield away. For Chittendon she had deliberately dashed Schofield's happiness to the ground.

"I have changed my mind. I can't marry you. I don't care for you enough. She had told Lawrence that only this morning. And now once more the brief dream was ended—or—wasn't it? After all, nothing was really altered. He had deceived her about Sadie, it was true, but apart from that things were in no wise changed. Chittendon still loved her and she loved him—and if he still wanted his freedom and Sadie was willing to give it to him—"

"Giles—Giles—"

The memory of Sadie's agonised cry came back to her, ending afresh the peace which she was trying so hard to regain. It had been the cry of a woman to a man she loved, or so Julie told herself in bitterest jealousy, and she remembered how often Sadie had spoken of Giles—and in what a queer, rather shy way—as if—even then it had seemed to Julie, almost as if there might have been something between them. And now she knew. Sadie was his wife. The one woman of all the many in the world who had a right to him and to his love and his protection—the protection she had claimed only that afternoon in her hysterical fear.

The maid came tapping at the door. "Aren't you very wet, Miss? Can I dry your clothes for you?"

"No, no, I'm not wet, and I don't want anything, you need not wait."

She heard the girl move reluctantly away and then a moment later the shutting of the front door. But it was a long time before Julie moved or stirred. The room was quite dark save for the yellow light from the street lamp outside, and the fitful rain had settled into a steady down-pour and was beating against the window.

Julie moved with difficulty. She was cold and aching in every limb. She slipped off her wet clothes and put on a warm dressing-gown, her hands were shaking with cold.

She was pouring the water from the kettle when a knock came on the front door—a heavy knock that sounded both urgent and insistent. Bim, perhaps! Julie put the kettle down and flew across the little hall. Bim, dear Bim, Julie felt as if already half her troubles were lifted from her as she drew back the latch—then she gave a little choking cry.

"You—!"

"Yes—you must let me come in, Julie," Chittendon said, and without a word Julie stood aside. She was conscious instantly of something different—strange about him—something that killed both the mingled hope and anger that struggled for supremacy in her heart. She felt that if she went to his arms she would be repulsed—that if she showed him bitter scorn it would leave him unmoved—that nothing could touch him.

"I had to come—I'm sorry if you are angry with me—but I had to come—just to say good-bye—"

He turned and half raised his head, looking at Julie. Then suddenly his face changed—it was as if the strange ness were wiped out of it in a single flash, giving place to such a look of unutterable pain that Julie caught her breath in an involuntary cry.

"To say good-bye—?"

"Yes"—he took a quick step towards her and then stopped—"Sadie is blind," he said.

Julie stared at him, her eyes black, her lips parted; then after a long moment: "What do you mean?" she whispered.

Chittendon made a little impatient gesture.

"Just that—what I have said, she is blind—apparently she has felt it coming and been dreading it for months. That is why she came from America without telling me—she wanted to see some German specialist—I don't know yet what he told her, she was too ill and frightened to be very coherent. And then this fellow Chrysler on top of it all—you heard what he said about some one in the room never seeing the sunshine again. Didn't he speak of blindness—darkness—God knows what! The fellow should be looked up. Sadie took it to herself, of course, and the sudden shock finished you see, there are some things it's impossible for a man to do when a woman's ill—and frightened—I couldn't leave her, how could I? You see—you wouldn't wish it, would you? It would be like—like trampling a woman down to reach our happiness, a blind woman, too, so defenceless—I—"

He broke down hopelessly. What could he say. What excuse or explanation could he offer that would sound plausible or justified?

He tried to take her hand, but she drew it sharply away. She felt that she could bear anything, be brave over everything, if only he would not touch her. He was right in what he said. Of course he was right. Sadie was his wife, and his place was to stand by her: No man could do less, she herself would despise him if he did less, and yet—behind everything—a panic-stricken cry was trying to make itself heard in her heart:

"What had he meant by that? Good-bye! How could they ever say good-bye after last night? He had said then that they would never part again! Chittendon went on:

"I was sure you would understand what a difference it makes, I was sure you would try to help me, Julie—dear! You see, she hasn't any eyes but me, he cannot tell, he says she may temporarily recover her sight—if she doesn't—"

He stopped abruptly, and Julie, said in a shaking voice:

"How awful! How perfectly awful!"

So it was. She felt shocked, stunned and yet it was quite impartially, every other emotion was clouded over, stifled by those first words which Chittendon had spoken to her.

"I had to come, just to say good-bye."

What had he meant by that? Good-bye! How could they ever say good-bye after last night? He had said then that they would never part again! Chittendon went on:

"I was sure you would understand what a difference it makes, I was sure you would try to help me, Julie—dear! You see, she hasn't any eyes but me, up desperately, meeting his eyes fixed upon her with such a look of love and longing in them that it was more than she could bear. She put out her hands appealingly.

"Go away, please go away," she whispered.

"Julie!" He caught her hands in his. "Forgive me, Julie. Say you could forgive me, that you don't hate me, that you understand."

"What do I want you to do? Why, nothing. There is nothing we can do, we must go on. I always knew it would be like this, even last night. There's nothing we can do. I shall marry Lawrence Schofield, I suppose, if he will take me back again—"

"Julie—don't be cruel—"

"I am not so cruel as you are. I never wanted you to come into my life. It was you who followed me."

With a smothered sob she turned to rush past him to the door. But Chittendon was too quick for her, he reached the door before she did, barring her way.

"Let me go—let me go."

She beat at him with impotent hands the tears raining down her face. "Oh, let me go, let me go—"

"Not like this Julie, we can't part like this—oh, my dear dear child—"

She was in his arms, her face hidden on his shoulder, his lips against her hair, while he whispered over and over again how much he loved her, how only she filled his heart. But what could he do? If only she would tell him what he could do? But Julie had no answer, and presently her bitter sobbing ceased, and she lay quietly in his arms. It was she who spoke first, after a long silence.

"I'm sorry I cried. It was silly! And so useless. After all, it's no more than I expected—I always knew if I let myself care for any one it would be like this—"

She drew away from him, "I think you had better go before I make another scene for you to remember by."

She wiped her eyes and tried to smile.

"It's all right—please go now—"

She averted her eyes. "Please go now and please never come back again."

It was what Chittendon had wanted her to say, with all a man's dislike of scenes and suffering, he had hoped that she would refuse to listen to him and send him away, but now that she had done so, he knew it was not what he had wanted, after all. He ad wanted her to keep him against the belief that she would try to keep him from Sadie, for whom he had no

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX HAS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The introduction of the new Chevrolet Six marks the most impressive forward step in Chevrolet's twenty-year record of constant progress and improvement. For this Bigger and Better Six offers new beauty, new luxury, new completeness and new quality—yet it sells at lower prices!

In every curve and sweep of Chevrolet's modern lines—in every detail of its new Fisher bodies, you will see the fine hand of the master designer and the skillful craftsman. And the more closely you inspect it, the more deeply impressed you will be.

The improvements in the new Chevrolet Six begin at the smart new chrome-plated headlamps and extend throughout the entire car. The radiator is deeper. The lines are longer and lower, giving an air of exceptional fleetness and grace. And the interiors of the new Fisher bodies provide a new degree of comfort and luxury: greater roominess; fine quality mohair or broadcloth upholstery; more pleasing interior fittings; and a new, completely equipped instrument panel.

The chassis of the new Chevrolet Six has also been refined and advanced in a number of different ways. The frame is heavier, deeper and stronger than before. There is a smoother operating, long lived clutch; a sturdier front axle; an entirely new steering mechanism; an easier shifting transmission. In fact, every vital feature of the new car has been made better to provide more thorough satisfaction for the owner.

And along with these improvements, Chevrolet offers the smooth performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder motor—four long semi-elliptic springs—four hydraulic shock absorbers—a safety gasoline tank at the rear of the car—and an economy of operation not surpassed by any automobile.

AT NEW LOW PRICES

Fine as it is, the new Chevrolet Six now sells at lower prices—making the economy and satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership even more outstanding. We urge you to come in and see the Bigger and Better Chevrolet. Its modern design reflects the spirit of the times—and it represents a value which will command the interest of every buyer in the low-price field.

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAYS

So numerous are American holidays that there is some danger we of the younger generation may lose sight of the significance of these memorable anniversaries. Of course Thanksgiving day is to commemorate the landing of our Pilgrim forefathers in America but why is the Friday following also a holiday? The answer is that one day alone in school is not worth as much as a day in a group of consecutive days and after a big feast, a football game and much visiting, on Thanksgiving day the pupils and teachers need "a holiday" to recuperate—a holiday to get over a holiday. Holidays are meant for rest and recreation—a change from ones usual routine or vocation. They are intended to help a person by preparing him for work which is to follow. May our Thanksgiving holidays better fit us to work until the Christmas holidays and invite us for better work in school.

EAGLES OUT FLY MENARD

YELLOW JACKETS 6-0

Although fighting against a heavier team and getting an endless string of bad breaks, the Eagles came out successful in the game with Menard Nov. 22. When the game started at 3:00 P. M. both teams were on their toes and according to Mr. Hyde Lyner, the Eagles didn't have a chance against the thirty-five large Yellow Jackets. Eldorado kicked to Menard's 30 yard line and the teams went together made 9 yards on first down and Lefty with a yell and a bang, Menard being Smith get through and took them for down on her 33 yard line. Three 10 yard loss on the second down, down made them 5 yards so they pointed to our 20 yard line and Williamson returned the ball ten yards. McGinty made 3 yards through line down. A pass to James made a first down. In three downs, James made 8 other first down was made when yards but we punted on the fourth. Williamson made 20 yards on a pass down and covered ball on their 10 Albert made 5 yards through line and yard line. Two downs made 9 yards James ran 15 yards around right end Albert making 3 of these, and on the being downed on Menard's 6 yard line. third down, Albert carried the ball a fumble lost 24 yards and three over the goal line for a touchdown. downs brought the ball back to their A place kick for the extra point by 10 yard line but they held us for the James fell just a little below of the downs. Menard punted to our 36 yard goal. Eldorado kicked and downed line where two downs gained nothing Menard on their 40 yard line. Four downs made them 18 yards on passes. James broke up a dangerous pass and a second incomplete pass caused a 5 yard penalty, and a fourth pass made 18 yards but the ball went over. James punted to their 35 yard line and with just a few seconds to play, he went through their line and over the goal line but the play didn't count because he stepped out of bound one foot from the goal line, so the game ended with the score 6 to 0 in Eldorado's favor.

Eldorado made about 12 first downs and Menard about three.

MYSTERIES OF THE OZONA FOOT BALL GAME

There are many mysteries connected with the Football game played at Ozona that the student body cannot solve. It seems that just those that went over there know anything about these mysteries. Here are a few of them: How did Vance Morgan, Jack Ratliff, and Brownie Bullion happen to be the last ones there and the first ones back? Why did the Pep Squad girls get so angry upon arriving at Ozona? Why was Albert's nickname changed to "Barber", Albert Martin's to "Contractor" and Lefty Smith's to "Quail House". These are baffling questions that are worrying everyone and nobody seems to be able to explain. Maybe time will tell. Let's see.

HOW I EARNED MY DOLLAR FOR CAMP FIRE

Now, if you will take my word for it, earning a dollar is a pretty hard job, especially for a person who doesn't know where to start. But to become a Camp Fire Girl I had to earn my dollar for fees. I once thought that I would just get my father to give me a dollar for the house work I do but I have to do that all the time anyway, so that was off the list instantly. Then I decided to clean the car, or at any rate, try to but that plan didn't suit my parents. They didn't think I would clean it good enough to suit them.

Suddenly cooking popped into my mind and as I had never cooked before I doubted my ability to do it now. But you can be very sure that my parents didn't know of my fear. They decided to let me cook breakfast for a week. The first morning when I went into the kitchen I was all enthusiasm. That morning I did very well except that I didn't put quite enough baking powder in my bread, but at that, it was better than putting too much soda. The second morning everything was going pretty good until I went to pour the coffee and, can you imagine it, only clear water poured out of the pot. I had forgotten to put fresh coffee in that morning and therefore, I made no coffee. But I soon put the required amount in and had it boiling away.

I have five more days to cook breakfast and I hope that I shall have as much good luck as on the two previous mornings. Now, when I say "good luck" some of you will probably laugh, but just wait until I have been a Camp Fire Girl a little longer and—you'll see!

HISTORY III

The History three class has just completed their study on the American Revolution. This was a very interesting subject although it was rather hard. Mr. Holt, History III instructor has issued subjects for the students to write up for their History Projects. These subjects are: "History of the W. L. Black Ranch," "History of Fort McKavett," "Droughts in area between Pecos and Colorado Rivers," "Ex-Texas Rangers in this County," "Ex-Confederate Soldiers in the County," and "The Settlement of Schleicher County as told in the Letters of a Land Agent." Each of these themes are to be about 2,500 words in length and are due by April.

ENGLISH IV STUDENTS ATTEND SHAKESPEARIAN PLAY

Wednesday evening, November 19, the Senior English class went to San Angelo to attend the Shakespearian play, "Hamlet" being put on by the Ben Greet players at the Municipal Auditorium. Accompanied by Miss Allen, the English instructor, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Williams, all of the English class except one attended the play. The English class had planned to study "Ham let" this year so they decided, in order for it to be much more interesting to them, to see this play.

The students arrived home after midnight and all reported that they liked the play very well and are wishing that they will get another chance to see some more of Shakespeare's plays soon.

ELDORADO EXES

Every week during the nine months of school an article will appear in the "Hi-Divide" on an ex student of the Eldorado High School.

The purpose of this is to boost the Eldorado School and to let you know who these students are and what they are doing now.

BUCK BAILEY

By Jack Kerr
Everyone knows Buck Bailey and have heard something of his football career. Buck came to Eldorado when he was in the second grade, just a big boy from the country. Baseball was the chief game then outside of "Wolf over the river." Buck made a star in baseball, but had some trouble in the smaller boys would tag him when he came through. He played basketball and other games until about two years before he graduated. Then some body brought a football to school and Buck ran away with it right on the start. (That is with the game.) This is how football got started in the Eldorado High School. All the rules that they knew then were that the field was one hundred yards long and the ball carrier was to be stopped at all costs. After graduation Buck went to the Abilene Christian College and played football.

After Buck finished school he played in the line for the Olympic Club and according to California papers he opened up holes that a truck could be driven through.

Buck is the line coach for the Washington State Football team and as everyone knows has taken the Pacific Coast football championship. He is a very good coach and has progressed rather rapidly when you realize he never had a football in his hands until he was over eighteen years of age. Buck is the only graduate of the Eldorado High School who has carried on with football and become the coach of a college team, therefore we think it very appropriate to publish his article on him, now, that the football season is about to close.

Oh boy, did I eat yesterday. I bet I ate half of that ole gobler. I told them yesterday not to kill a turkey cause I was going hunting and would bring them a wild one. ### IN THE RACK

By "Maggie" Zine

Not only magazines are found in the rack but newspapers from near by schools and colleges. The school papers found regularly on the rack are the Sul Ross, "Skyline" and Texas University, "The Daily Texas." Other High schools and college papers are sent at times to our school.

These papers give the editors of our two high school papers new ideas for managing a school newspaper. The college papers help the seniors to choose a college to attend after graduation. These newspapers let us know what, why, and how things are happening in our state schools and colleges. (Continued on last page)

AGENTS WANTED—RAMSEY'S AUSTIN NURSERY, Austin, Texas.

Plenty of Money
An Arlington bank must have plenty money, for it is refusing to accept deposits and is asking depositors to withdraw their accounts. The reason given is that the clerical expense is too great and that the bank has plenty of money or its own to lend, so why bother of its lending the money of depositors? Who said "Hard Times" around Arlington?

Head and Back Quit Hurting

"A few years ago, I found that I was very weak and nothing I ate seemed to give me any strength," writes Mrs. R. B. Douglas, 704 South Congress St., Jackson, Miss.

"I suffered intense pain in my head and back. At times I would have to hold to something to steady myself, so as to do my little work. I was worried about my condition.

"My mother told me that I should take Cardui. After taking two bottles, I felt stronger, but I kept on taking it until my head and back quit hurting. I took about six bottles in all, and have never quit praising Cardui."

DEPARTMENT STORE

"The Store For All The Family"

Entirely Too Big

The Mission Enterprise simply does things on too big a scale. Its pages are too large to be held in one's outstretched hands, and there isn't always some one around to help hold it. In an annual edition recently issued there were 42 of these pages, and as yet this writer has had so much to do he hasn't had time to read them.

Chickens and Paint

On a recent trip almost half across Texas this writer noticed that at every well-painted house there was a flock of fine chickens and that at but few of the dilapidated, unpainted houses was there any poultry at all. This was so noticeable that the conclusion was drawn that the poultry earned the money for the paint.

By Will H. Mayes

"All Texans for all Texas"

Electrifying Texas Farms

There are now 8,250 Texas farms using electricity in some phases of farm work. This does not include suburban farms electrically lighted, but only such as use electricity as power in farm operations, or also for lighting barns, chicken houses, dairies etc. That those using electricity are pleased with it is shown in the fact that those who give it a fair trial continue its use. Farmers are usually slow to adopt new methods until they are reasonably certain that they will prove of advantage. The rapid increase of electric power plants will doubtless soon result in a like increase in farm use of electric power.

Moving The Turkeys

The Thanksgiving turkey harvest has brought thousands of dollars to those communities that have had the enterprise to grow the turkeys. Despite the fact that early efforts were made to "fix" prices at very low levels, the growers have been receiving from 15 to 16 cents a pound, which is only a few cents lower than the prices of last season. The increased production this year is resulting in larger gross returns, and the growers seem to be happy.

At all turkey storage and shipping points the Thanksgiving turkey trade has given employment to several hundred pickers and has been a big factor in relieving the unemployment situation.

Destroying Cactus

Complaints are made that truckers in large numbers are infesting the Big Bend section of Texas and ruthlessly denuding the territory of cactus, being especially eager to get the rare species. Most of this is shipped out of the State, and if it is continued the beautiful flowering plants will soon become as extinct as the buffalo.

Recently truckers were selling the cactus in large lots in Austin, said to have come from Gonzales county. Doubtless the same destruction is being done in other sections where the plants thrive.

THE HI-DIVIDE

ELDORADO'S FIRST SCHOOL HOUSE

We are sure that there are not many people in Eldorado now that remember the first school house here, and also few who have gone to the trouble to ask someone about the first school.

In 1897, a small one room building, called a school house, was erected just back of the lot on which the John Davis Service Station is now located. Mr. E. E. Stricklen was the first teacher and at the beginning of the term there were only seven students attending this school, but by the end of the term there were about forty.

This building was built of very good timber and was used until 1901 when it became too small to accommodate the school children of the fast growing community and a larger building had to be constructed where the Eldorado High School now stands. The old building was moved and is now known as the Silliman & Layne building and is used for a residence. After it was moved it was used for the County Court House until the new one was constructed.

FOOTBALL STUFF

Boy, the high school team is sure picking up fast. Seems like they've got a streak of pure thoroughbred fight in 'em.

Out of a total of nine games, that bunch has won five and lost four and the standing of the score is 56 to 44 in their favor. Sounds pretty good to me.

In Saturday's game, Menard just couldn't get the job done. They lacked the fight that is symbolized by their name "Yellow Jackets."

Those Eagles trimmed their filmy wings pretty short.

It seems that the Eagles not only won the game by the touchdown but by other important pointers that go to make a game interesting.

I haven't seen the Thanksgiving game yet but I know it will be a keen one and I hope you all enjoyed it.

MR. KNOWITALL VISITS SCHOOL WEDNESDAY NOV. 26

Mr. John Lueddecke, chairman of Mr. Redford's classes invited Mr. Knowitall to be with us on this special chapel program.

Mr. Knowitall traveled a long distance to be with us as well as leaving much expense.

Mr. Knowitall had a special machine which he has invented which collects scenes of the olden times as well as make them realistic in their talking.

Some special scenes of interest that he showed us was "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," "A scene from Tom Sawyer" and "Several scenes of the Pilgrims first Experiences."

Each student appreciated Mr. Knowitall very much and was rejoiced when he announced that he would soon visit us again.

Mr. Holt regreted very much that Mr. Knowitall was not able to visit his history classes but hopes that he will have more time when he visits us again.

FALCON FEATHERS

In the History I class, they had been talking about the Chinese language. W. B. Gibson, in making a talk was pronouncing the word "again" without the second "A". When Miss Meyers asked W. B. how do you pronounce the word a-g-a-i-n, he said he didn't know, that was Chinese.

Fish: "What keeps the moon from falling?"
Second Slime: "It must be the beams."

Miss Bradshaw: "If I take a potato and divide it into two parts, then into four parts, and each of the four parts into two parts, what would I have?"

Elnora Andrews: "Potato salad!"

Teacher: "If your father owed a man one hundred dollars and promised to pay him five hundred dollars a week, how many weeks would it take to pay the man?"

Answer: One hundred weeks.

Teacher: You don't know your lesson.

Answer: You don't know my dad, either.
