Lisa Patman and I have spent the last week in fear and trembling, trying to put out a paper that would come up to Mike Haynes' standards. With just a little hair-pulling and finger-nail biting, we have learned to develop pictures and do many of the things Mike usually did.

The people of McLean have been so helpful and complimentary since Mike bought the paper in February that we certainly don't want to disappoint our readers. We truly will appreciate your help and constructive criticism in our efforts with the paper.

I've watched Mike write this column for four months, rather effortlessly it seemed. But now that it is my responsibility, I realize that he put a great deal of time and effort into it.

Linda Lowe Mayben of Childress came by the news office last week. Linda was a member of the class of '68. It's one of the greatest rewards of a teacher (or ex-teacher) to see former students who have grown up to be well-adjusted, productive people.

Did anyone happen to see a young McLean woman standing on I-40 last week watching a house boat go by?

She was entertaining her husband's business associates, and leaned on the "One-Way" sign to watch the boat pass. Suddenly the sign slipped and she wound up holding the six-foot pole and sign in her arms. Red-faced, she managed to lower the pole to the ground, and silently slip away!

Many tourists come into the news office each week to buy a paper. It seems that they collect papers from each small town they pass through.

When you go on vacation, why not try it? If you get some unusual ones, bring them by. We like to "steal" ideas from other papers.

We also get many inquiries about houses for rent, and we've not had a rent house listed for many weeks. Apparently, many people would like to move here. What can be done about the housing shortage? And why doesn't McLean have a chamber of commerce?

Queens Return From China

PLAINVIEW, TX (Special) The Wayland Baptist College Flying Queens impressed fans from coast to coast during the 1977-78 season, then made themselves some new fans and friends recently on their trip to Hong Kong and Honolulu sponsored by the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. Among the Flying Queens making the trip was Sheri Lee Haynes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Haynes. "Our girls were a spectacle everywhere they went. They opened doors for friendship as well as for missionary purposes when nothing else could have," remarked Wayland President Dr. Roy C. McClung. "They were the best emissaries we could have had," Dr. McClung said. His wife, Genelle, who also made the trip, added warmly, "The terrific cooperation of the girls and the wonderful way they handled themselves in every setting was the thing that impressed me most. I couldn't have been prouder of them if they were my own children." Aside from easily defeating opponents from college and independent ranks, in eight games, the Queens also gave their Christian testimonies in 13 different Baptist churches, at the halves and between games and also during pick-up games on school grounds. Pamphlets containing pictures and testimonies of each player were distributed at the games along with team press brochures. The players stayed in homes of Baptist missionaries who mainly live in apartment buildings. Since the missionaries did not live close to each other, the Queens became acquainted with transportation facilities like ferries and taxis to meet at a designated point each day for shopping excursions and tours. The school at which the Queens played was Pui Ching, whose administrator for many years was the late Mang Faw Lee, a Wayland graduate who was accorded an honorary doctorate in 1974. He died two years ago. The girls had many light moments in Hong Kong including having to get out and push their van when it stalled going up a steep hill, trying to eat with chopsticks, having people on the street yell out "Flying Queens" in recognition of their visit and exploits reported in the Chinese papers (the English papers had no reports) and people coming up to "measure" the tall American players. As a special treat, the Plainview entourage was invited to a wedding feast for the coach of the team that was the Queens' first opponent in Hong Kong. "I really thought our girls got over to the young people they came in contact with. I guess we'll never really know how much," JoAnn Weese, the coach's wife, said. In Hawaii, the group was hosted for dinner by the

PRESSURE CANNER CHECK-UP
Home-canning season is at hand, and consumers should be sure their pressure canner produces a product safe to eat.

A temperature of 240 degrees F. is necessary to destroy bacteria spores present in low-acid foods, which include vegetables other than tomatoes and rhubarb and most fish and poultry. If the bacteria is not destroyed, it grows in jars or cans of food in the absence of air. It produces a toxin that causes the deadly botulism poisoning.

When selecting a pressure canner, look for features that assure adequate pressure can be safely reached and maintained.

Look for these features:
--an accurate dial or weighted gauge that gives 10 pounds pressure at sea level and up to 15 pounds in areas of Texas with 2,000 feet and above sea level.
--rubber gasket of lugs that enable the canner to be airtight to help maintain pressure.
--a vent tube or petcock for exhausting air from the canner prior to sealing. Air is a poor conductor of heat.
--petcock of other safety device for allowing steam to escape automatically if pressure goes above the level for which the canner was developed.
--metal used that is strong enough to withstand adequate pressure needed.
--handles on lid and kettle that enable safe handling.

--rack to hold jars off bottom of canner to allow for steam circulation.

If you already have a pressure canner you need to give your pressure canner a yearly checkup.

This helps insure a safe and high quality product.

--Clean removable petcocks and safety valves, using vinegar to remove any corrosion.

--Clean openings in lid of canner using a toothpick, pipe cleaner or string.

--Check gasket for tight fit and be sure it's free from grease and dirt.

--Use salt-free fat to grease the closing surface of lid that seals metal to metal, if it's difficult to remove or if steam escapes.

--Tighten screws on handles.

--Use plumbers paste to close nicks that allow steam to escape.

--Remove odors and stains using one of the following mixtures and processing at five pounds pressure for five minutes: juice of one lemon in two quarts of water or two tablespoons vinegar in two quarts water.

--Check dial gauge using a maximum thermometer or master gauge tester.

A weight gauge needs only to be cleaned according to manufacturer's directions.

McLean Looks Back

MY EARLY CHILDHOOD
By Ma Hindman

My father was John Forte, and my mother was Melby Mabell. We lived near Toronto Kansas during the Civil War. The Indians would pass our house to go to the commissary to buy groceries. They would come in and trade Mama their groceries for just anything that was red. Once she had on a red jacket. They hit her on the back with rawhide. She got enough groceries for that jacket to last a long time. Indians were under government control.

Mother spun thread and wove cloth. She made everything red so she could trade it to the Indians. I was afraid to put on a red dress. I would run in the house and crawl under the bed. We had some pumpkins under the bed and I and a pumpkin came rolling out together, so the Indians ran away. Mama got the groceries they left behind.

They rode little ponies. My dad would come home from the war on furlough. Oh, how happy we would be! There were four of us in our family, Mama and Dad and me and one brother. I then was six years old.

Mama made a loom. She spun and wove all our clothes. I was small, but I learned to spin. We cooked on a fireplace—we didn't know what a stove was.

Since we lived close to the Verdigris River we had all the fish we wanted. We also had some wild turkey. The log house we lived in had one wooden window and a door. We carried our water for a quarter of a mile from a spring.

Mama was knitting. A big snake fell from the middle of the roof onto the quilt. Mama got us children and went for Dad. He killed it.

The war was over, so my dad decided to go to Arkansas and file on some free land. We had two nice horses and an old wagon. We put everything we could in the wagon, and left the rest. Mama said that she hated to leave the wheel, so Dad said that we would take it. They tied the wheel under the wagon and put the rest in the wagon.

The first night when we camped some movers came up, so we travelled together most of the way. We were eating dinner when some men come up and said that they wanted our horses. They unhitched the horses and laid the harness on the wheels. Mama told them to take the harness, too. They said that they didn't want the harness but that another brigade would come to care for us.

We didn't know what he meant. Those fellows left us all crying. Dad said, "My Lord! What will we do!" The whole bunch cried. Some prayed. Mama was a good singer, so she went to singing and the rest followed. We had a good meeting right there. Some prayed and some shouted. That is just the way with all people—when they do all they can they turn it over to God. We were there for four days and we didn't know what to do. Then came along a brigade of men with oxen. We all got a yoke of oxen for our wagons.

The next thing the Klux came upon us. They wanted something to eat. They made some threats at the men folks. Mama told the men folks that they would have to wear dresses and night caps and get in the wagons and lay down when they heard the Klux coming. My dad was "Sally" the rest of the way. He shaved every day with lye soap that Mama had made.

He put cornmeal on his face. I tell you those men stayed right with their dresses and night caps. The ladies all wore night caps. I wore one until I got married. My husband made fun of the night cap so I left it off.

My! How slow we travelled! Ten miles a day. The other people that was traveling with us had three children. Their baby got sick and died. They wrapped the babe in a blanket, and buried him. The mother took the death so hard. It seemed that we couldn't get started any more, so my dad said, "Let's pray." We did and everything seemed to go better.

I don't know how long we were on the road. We got to a river. My dad put Mama and me and my little brother on a skiff. The men paddled us over and then went back across. Dad put the wagon and oxen on a ferry boat. That was where we left those people that was travelling with us. The other man said that they could pull off their dresses now. Dad said he was glad to get rid of his dress.

Finally we got to Arkansas. We stopped 10 miles from Magazine, close to a good spring of water. Along came a man, and he said that any place we liked was all right, so we started to work. We moved as close to the spring as we could. We had to carry water about a quarter of a mile. Mama and Dad cut down some trees. They dug some holes to set the posts in. Oh, how proud we were to stop and get a rest from travelling! I dug the dirt out of the holes with my hands.

We split boards off of the trees and made our camp. We piled rock up and made a fire place, too. Our camp did not have any door. Mama hung a quilt up in the door. We had a dirt floor. We piled up boards for our beds. We pulled grass and put in our homespun ticks. Mama had some feather beds. We carried water in a gourd. Our lights were pine knots. We got our fire from a flint rock. We got punk from trees. We would hold the flint over the punk and hit it with a knife. The fire would finally start. We were always careful to keep a fire, for it wasn't easy to get one started. We tried to keep a log burning outside all the time.

Bread was scarce. We got all the meat we wanted. The turkeys would come close to us. We was just getting started and thought we were going to be all right, when the Klux Klux came and told Pop that they would give him just one hour to get away. He asked them if he could take his family. They said, "No, you devil!"

From early Roman days, June has been believed to be the best time for marriages, according to The World Book Encyclopedia. Romans named the month for Juno, the patron goddess of marriage, and it is still a popular month for weddings.

Lovett Memorial Library Notes

"Lies" by Richard Neely G. P. Putnam's Sons By LISA PATMAN

"Lies" is a new murder mystery by the author of "The Sexton Women." It is a tight, tense drama which begins with the murder of a famous author, his wife, and their secretary. Wounded in the killing spree is stepdaughter Betty Archer. Her step sister, Jessica Harper, is among the suspects, and is as different from her amoral stepister as two girls can be. Jessica, who is quiet and withdrawn, inherits the bulk of her father's estate.

Lee Brewer, another suspect, is the black sheep of another wealthy family, and becomes involved with both Betty and Jessica, complicating matters.

Between this triangle and the detective and lawyer, the action is fast-paced and exciting. The novel is filled with lies, half-truths, and secrets. Mixed with love, lust, greed, and revenge the lies fill the novel with enough clues to keep the reader guessing the true identity of the murderer.

It is not until the surprise ending that the murderer is identified, and it is a trick ending indeed.

"Lies" is available at Lovett Memorial Library.

NATURAL EROSION MAKES CHIRICAHUA NATIONAL MONUMENT FASCINATING

Erosion, when it is man caused, is often a detrimental force at work on some of America's lands.

But the slow, natural erosion that takes place over eons of time often carves out formations that are so unmatched in scenic grandeur that some have been set aside by your government to be enjoyed forever.

Probably the most famous example is the Grand Canyon, a spectacular gorge in north central Arizona carved out by the erosive force of the Colorado River.

At a less famous area in southeastern Arizona--Chiricahua National Monument--the erosion of volcanic rock has created pinnacles and pedestals that in their own way are as fascinating as the Grand Canyon.

These formations, at once described as grotesque, breathtaking and beautiful, are packed into 17 square miles of ridge and canyon on the flank of the Chiricahua Mountains. Both kids and adults love this place that on the surface seems like a rock fairyland.

The monument, surrounded on three sides by the Coronado National Forest, is located south of Interstate 10 and not too many miles east of the New Mexico state line.

From the visitor center, Massal Point Drive takes the visitor into the monument. This paved mountain road is the jumping off point to trail, long and short, that take you to the monument's principal features.

At drive's end is an exhibit building to acquaint you with the volcanic and erosive processes that created the features that surround you. From Massal Point you get an extensive view of an area that was part of the territory of Geronimo, Cochise and the Chiricahua Apaches.

While in the monument, you'll want to keep an eye open for wildlife. Because the mountains form an island in a sea of arid grassland and because of elevation differences (from 5100 to 7300 feet) there are a multitude of plant and animal species, including deer. Shady glens protect many species of birds and make the area a favorite of birdwatchers.

If you plan to spend the night, there is a campground in Bonita Canyon, a half mile from headquarters. Drinking water, fireplaces and tables are provided and restrooms are centrally located. Trailers up to 22 feet can be accommodated. There is no electricity and burning native wood is forbidden. Motels and restaurants are available at Willcox, 36 miles away.

It is suggested that you pick trails that do not overtax your stamina. Some, like Heart of Rocks Trail to Big Balanced Rock, require up to seven hours, round trip, and it is necessary to carry water. Others, such as Massal Point Trail, take a half hour or less.

Whatever your choice, wear comfortable shoes, set an easy pace and plan to complete the hike before dark.

Only 26 miles from Chiricahua is another NPS area--Fort Bowie--that tells of the early U.S. military and its dealings with Cochise and Geronimo.

If you are planning to visit a National Park Service area on your vacation, write the agency at P.O. Box 728, Room P-1, Santa Fe, N.M., 87501 for a free trip planner that lists NPS areas near you and chart facilities and services available at each.

Campbell Enjoys Success As Singing Performer

Gary Campbell, cousin of McLean resident Carol Allison, is enjoying success in his career as a songwriter, vocalist, and guitarist.

Campbell, who has been composing and recording songs since his high school days in Matador has recently released a tape "Silver Horses" which features his own songs. A record album is to be released in three weeks.

Campbell's primary influences have been Bob Wills and Peter, Paul, and Mary. He has performed in the past with Emmy Lou Harris, Ray Wylie Hubbard, B.W. Stevenson, and the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band.

He describes his style as "country pop" although some of his tunes cross over into "progressive country."

Currently Campbell is performing a six-week stint with the Lubbock Club in Lubbock.

What Will You Say At Judgment?

To every God-fearing person there is knowledge of the Judgment of the Lord. Jesus spoke of the Judgment when He walked among men (Matt. 12:36-41). Man must give account of himself on that Day (Rom. 14:10). All shall appear at the Judgment (2 Cor. 5:10) to be judged by the Word of God (John 12:48), therefore we are to prepare for it (Matt. 25:1-13).

Jesus gives us a glimpse of evil souls on that Day trying to bring about a reversal of the sentence pronounced and their failure to do so. "Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess to thee, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity" (Matt. 7:22-23).

When we think of people belonging, our thoughts generally go to people who are adulterers, murderers, liars, thieves, lovers of money and such like. And rightfully so! But these are not the only ones lost. There is no indication that these people of whom Jesus is speaking in Matt. 7:21-23 were of that type. They were: 1. Religious people who claimed to follow Christ (Matt. 7:22), 2. Claimed to be workers in His name (Matt. 7:22), 3. Claimed to work miracles in His name (Matt. 7:22). Yet they were lost. Their claims availed them nothing!

Why were they lost? Jesus gives the answer in Matt. 7:21, 24-27. They were lost because they failed to do His will! Thus we see that it is not enough to call Him Lord, Lord. It is not enough to do wonderful things and ascribe them to Him. It is not enough to "prophesy" in His name without His authority. We must do the will the Lord Jesus Christ! Those wonderful works must be at His direction and not works of our own choosing while using His name (Luke 6:46).

Pneumonia Vaccine Released

A new vaccine has recently been released to help prevent pneumococcal pneumonia, the most widespread of all the bacterial pneumonias. Pneumococcal pneumonia accounts for more than half of all pneumonias that occur in the United States. Between 13,000 and 86,000 Americans die of pneumococcal pneumonia each year, according to a pamphlet published by the Merck Sharp & Dohme Drug Company. The recently developed vaccine provides highly effective protection for about three years, is designed for persons having chronic physical conditions such as chronic kidney failure, or diabetes mellitus; persons in chronic care facilities; persons convalescing from severe disease; and persons 50 years of age or older. The vaccine should not be given to pregnant women and children under two years old.

Rains Bring Needed Moisture To Area

Heavy rains pelted much of the High Plains and West Texas as the last part of May and the first week in June bringing needed moisture to several areas. However, the duration of the rains have kept fields muddy and farmers out, thus slowing planting in several areas. Some cotton fields on the Plains will need to be replanted because they were rained or hailed out. But as the fields dry, cotton planting should pick up. State-wide cotton planting is 74 percent complete, compared with 89 percent last year and the three-year average of 78 percent, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Eck, Suggs Team Up With Pampa Reds

By LISA PATMAN
McLean News Staff
McLean has two determined young athletes in its midst. Tom Eck and Randy Suggs, unable to continue in the Babe Ruth competition in McLean because of a lack of teammates in the 16 to 18 year-old division, are driving to Pampa five days a week to participate in a Babe Ruth team there.
Randy, son of Mrs. June Suggs, serves the Pampa Reds as both pitcher and first baseman. Tom Eck, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Eck, plays second base for the same team.
The young men average two to three games a week, with practice time filling the rest of the weekdays. Tom, who is a senior, has been playing baseball since the second grade, beginning with Little League. Randy, who is well known for his encouraging words to himself on the mound as "The Bird", Mark Fydrich, has been playing since the sixth grade. He is a Junior.

The Pampa Reds finished the first half of the season with a win-loss score of 4-3. The team has seven more games to play. The team is sponsored by Ford's Body Shop of Pampa. Head coach is Warren Smith and assistant coaches are Ricky Diaz and George Eck.
