Every hobby is an educational experience. I have found. In the past few weeks, I have been trying to teach myself how to paint with watercolors. Painting a picture has been an ambition of mine for many years, but art was the only class beside home ec that I ever made a bad grade in, so I have never had the courage to try any kind of brush work.

I bought some books and some watercolors, and have been having a wonderful time painting pictures of old barns and various types of landscapes.

The most amazing discovery for me about watercolor is that I am learning to see all over again. All my life I have looked at the world around me without ever really paying attention to shades of color and especially shadows. It is impossible to paint a decent picture without being aware of light and dark, shadows and highlights, and delicate changes in colors of objects.

I have nearly wrecked my car on the last few weekly trips to Pampa because I have really seen the beautiful country we live in for the first time. The pasture land around here contains almost every shade of green imaginable, and those shades change with the time of day. The soil that is visible on the sides of the hills ranges from a pale flesh pink to some sort of dark brownish red. I have caught myself looking at those things and mentally mixing paint colors to achieve those shades.

As a photographer, I had learned to look for proper composition to take a picture, I had learned to be careful about shadows falling across a face, but seeing the colors of shadows is an entirely new experience.

I am beginning to understand more and more why painting is such an enjoyable hobby for so many people. I can sit down for 15 minutes to paint, and look up three hours later totally unaware of the passing of time.

Whether I ever paint anything worth framing, or good enough for anyone else to see, is totally immaterial. This is a relaxing, absorbing hobby.... and it's a lot cheaper than tranquilizers!

If you do not have a hobby, or some activity that you can pursue to take your mind off your job or your problems, I strongly recommend that you find one. Americans have literally swallowed the nonsense that tranquilizers and other drugs can provide easy, quick relaxation for us, and we have ignored the horrible side effects both on our bodies and on our culture!

If you are nervous, depressed, tense, or having a hard time sleeping, instead of grabbing that little bottle of pills, resolve to pursue a new hobby. You don't have to be good at it...you just have to enjoy what you're doing. You'll be surprised at what terrific therapy it is.

Driver Escapes Serious Injury In Wreck

A collision between two semi-tractor trucks after midnight Monday morning left a Springdale, Ark. man with only slight injuries. Paul Elsworth Chalker, driving a 1977 International truck, traveling east on Interstate 40 3.2 miles west of McLean, approached a truck also traveling east, driven by Sean Alan Riley of Tulsa, Okla. Chalker swerved to miss the truck and in doing so sheared off the right side of the cab of his truck.

Riley and his passenger, Linda Curtis, were not injured in the wreck. Chalker was transported by McLean Ambulance to Shamrock General Hospital where he was admitted.

Gabel Wins First At Nестea Rodeo

McLean's Greg Gabel took first place in steer wrestling at the Nестea Top Hand Challenge Rodeo in Big Springs last weekend, winning the competition with a time of 4 seconds. The rodeo win entitles Gabel to compete in an elimination rodeo in Mesquite in September. Finalists in that rodeo will be entitled to compete in the National Finals

Rodeo in Oklahoma City in December.

Gabel and the other high school boys were competing against each other, but the professional rodeo cowboys were also competing in another category of the rodeo. The best time for the PRC steer wrestler was 4.7.

Gabel will receive a buckle and a scholarship valued between $200 and $500 for his win at Big Springs. A 1981 graduate of McLean High School, he is planning to attend Western Oklahoma State College at Altus, Okla. This fall on a rodeo scholarship.

State Library Honored

A half century of library service to the blind in Texas is being honored in July, 1981. In July 1931, the Texas State Library became one of the original 19 libraries participating in a Library of Congress program to provide embossed books to blind persons. Today See LIBRARY, Page 2

Official Memorandum

By WILLIAM P. CLEMENTS, JR.

Governor of Texas AUSTIN, TEXAS

GREETINGS

In July, 1981, the Library of Congress is observing the 50th anniversary of its national library service for the blind and the Texas State Library its 50th anniversary as the regional library that serves this state in the program.

The Texas State Library became one of the original 19 regional libraries because the agency had purchased a small group of embossed books that it circulated to blind Texans. State Librarian Elizabeth West began the service in the early 1920's because she felt that blind Texans had the same right to library service that other Texans had.

Much has changed about the program in the last fifty years. Books recorded on disks were made available in 1933. More recently books and magazines have also been recorded on cassette tape. In 1966 persons who cannot read ordinary printed material because of physical handicaps other than blindness became eligible for the program.

In honor of 50 years of service to Texans, I salute the Library of Congress and the Texas State Library. Men, women, and children from throughout this state are living fuller lives because they can read the books and magazines available to them as a result of this program. From young people who are becoming productive citizens to older Texans with physical handicaps brought on by age, more than 35,000 readers find information and recreation in these books and magazines.

As the first half century of service ends, we can look forward to advances in technology that will increase the amount of reading material available. Working together the library of congress and the Texas State Library will make the material available.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 23rd day of June, 1981

W.P. Clements
Governor of Texas

OPINIONS

VIEWS ARE WRITTEN BY LINDA HAYNES, UNLESS OTHERWISE NOTED-IF YOU HAVE AN OPINION ON ANY CURRENT SUBJECT WE WELCOME YOUR SIGNED LETTERS.

Hang In There, Jack!

U.S. Representative Jack Hightower must be doing something right! A few months ago he was targeted for special attention in the next election by a group of Republicans who want his seat in 1982. And now this week Darlyn Davis of Fort Worth, chairman of the Texas Coalition of Black Democrats, lists Hightower as one of the eight Texas congressmen who will be singled out by their group for defeat next year.

In Ms. Davis' opinion, Hightower's sin this time was in joining with several other conservative Democrats to back President Reagan's tax cut package. Hightower made the Republicans angry earlier in the year when he refused to endorse the President's programs across the board.

The reason that Hightower has attracted such diverse enemies is that he is, I believe, that rare creation...an honest politician. He confounds the party hardliners who want absolute obedience to party dogma at all times in all cases. He confuses the members of the opposite party who sniff that he might be rebelling against his own party's dictates and expect him to go all the way and change parties.

His actions are so confusing to his critics because he is one of the rare representatives who tries to vote his conscience on every measure. His vote is usually governed by what the majority of the people in his district want, and by what his own integrity tells him is the right thing to do in each case.

When his district voted in a landslide for President Reagan, Hightower, along with other conservative Democrats, got the message. The majority of the people liked the economic policy Reagan was espousing, and that is the reason for Hightower's vote.

Hightower should feel honored to be blacklisted with such Congressional standouts as Phil Gramm of College Station and Kent Hance of Lubbock. All three men are recognized by most Congress-watchers as outstanding, honest representatives.

When the election of 1982 comes around, I hope the people of this district are not swayed by big money campaigns waged by either the Democrats or the Republicans against Hightower. Because of his integrity, Hightower should be returned to office as long as he chooses to run.

Letters To The Editor

I purchased a paper this week with great excitement; only to turn my excitement to a great disappointment. I opened it up to find 10 pictures of the rodeo, several pictures of the race and Bar-B-Que and only one picture of the parade. The parade was just as important to some people as the rodeo was to others. It took a lot of hard work and a lot of planning. In fact there are several groups that are already planning for next year's parade. But why! If only they are going to get a small recognition of three paragraphs in the paper; why should they go to all that trouble.

One of the groups in town that participated in this parade, may never get another chance. As soon as the paper came out, they looked for just a small picture in the paper to make their day. Needless to say, they were greatly disappointed. Considering the age of these participants, this was one of the few exciting moments they have had in a long time. They were talking about doing it again next year. I am speaking of the Thomas Nursing Home Residents that rode the float in the hot sun. It only takes a little to bring joy to the hearts of these people. What was more important, a picture of a child swinging, which will probably be swinging for several years, or a picture of the residents of Thomas Nursing Home which may have been a once in a lifetime chance, for them to ride on this float.

There were other groups disappointed in the publicity of the parade, but maybe next year they will have forgotten the forgotten publicity and try again to bring a little joy to the people of McLean with their artistic talents, hard work and march their hearts out in the scorching sun. Maybe.....

Respectfully Submitted

The first books were em-

Each machine on which to play them weighed about 50 pounds and was about the size of a suitcase. Later the speed was decreased to 16 revolutions per minute and still later to the 8 revolutions per minute currently used. Books recorded on cassette tape are now also available.

McLEAN BRIEFS

MRS. JEFFREY KYLE KIMBALL

Jefferson, Kimball Wed June 20

Elinor Rita Jefferson became the bride of Jeffrey Kyle Kimball, June 20 in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church in Taylor.

Rev. Marcus Childress officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The sanctuary was enhanced by crystal hurricane lanterns and white satin bows marking the pews. The altar was adorned with ivy and baby's breath surrounding a Unity Candle. The brass altar vases held arrangements of blue carnations. Candelabras with white tapers entwined with ivy and baby's breath complemented the setting.

Mrs. Darlene Hello, organist, presented pre-nuptial music and wedding marches. She accompanied Miss Susan Creighton as she sang "There Is Love", "Whither Thou Goest", and "Wedding Prayer".

The chiming of the hour began the wedding ceremony as the parents of the bride and groom lit their respective candles. The bride entered on the arm of her father to the accompaniment of Lohengrin's "Wedding March."

The gown of white organza featured a high neck and sheer yoke. Chantilly lace accented by seed pearls covered the bodice and neck. The sheer puff sleeves were gathered at the wrists by bands of chantilly lace accented by buttons. The A-line skirt flowed from the fitted waist to form a semi-cathedral train. A ruffle of accordion pleating encircled the skirt coming up on the sides to join the V-pointed waist in the back. The back view of the gown was accented by many small covered buttons which connected the neck to the bodice of chantilly lace. Appliques of lace accented the skirt and train.

The look was completed by a two-tiered veil of silk illusion. The tiers were trimmed in narrow bands of chantilly lace with the veil being held in place by a bandeau headpiece covered in the same lace accented by seed pearls.

The bride chose her accessories to be a gold and pearl necklace, a gift from her father, and diamond earrings a gift from the groom.

The bride's attendants wore sea-blue floor-length dresses of floxed organza. Their headpieces were bandeaux of fresh flowers to match the dresses. They carried colonial bouquets of blue carnations. Mrs. Jeanette Stuart Wheeler served as matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Loy Szydoski, cousin of the bride, of Amarillo; Lana Volek of Hutto, Kelly Steckler of Tuscon, Arizona, Kim Jurk of Hutto and Dana Volek of Hutto.

Bonnie Bidwell called the other day to tell us she had bought a dozen eggs at a local grocery store, and that each one had a double yolk! She said she had never heard of anyone getting a dozen double yolked eggs at the same time, and she was raised on a farm. We had never heard of such a phenomenon, either. Have any of you readers?

town. Minnie Erwin tells me she has been the victim of pranksters who have sneaked up to her house and thrown the breaker switches on her electricity. She said if she had not been home, she would have lost food in the freezer and the refrigerator.

Besides the possibility of causing damage that way, having the electricity turned off can be frightening to someone who lives alone.

If this is your way of playing a trick on someone, think of something else.

Whoever said that travel is broadening, probably ate at the Hyatt Regency in Fort Worth! The four of us who journeyed to Cowtown last week for the Texas Press Association convention are a great deal "broader" than we were when we left. With the exception of a rather strange tasting spinach quiche, the food at the hotel was absolutely fabulous. We feasted, steadily, for three days, on a variety of tasty dishes.

The food and the beautiful decor of the hotel are about the only things I can comment on favorably. The elevators were slow, the reservations service was very confused, and the arrangement of the hotel into two towers was very inconvenient.

The Hyatt Regency is the old Texas Hotel, and is one of the many buildings in the downtown area which has undergone massive remodeling in an attempt to revitalize the downtown area around the newly constructed Civic Center.

Because the city is still in the midst of the revamping, a tourist in town can encounter some strange juxtapositions... like seeing the beautiful, expensive Americana Hotel sitting right next to a crumbling, run-down block of buildings.

But when all the construction is completed Fort Worth will really be a beautiful place to visit. With its fabulous

Bodenhamer Retires After 27 Years At California School

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was sent to The McLean News by Enid Jones, who thought the people of McLean would be interested in this story about a former McLean teacher. The following are excerpts from an article published in The San Diego Union, June 19, 1981)

By Nolan Davis
Staff writer, The San Diego Union

On the surface, it seemed like another day.

But among the metric tables, wall maps and alphabet charts was a black bordered sign. It said: "Happy Retirement, Mr. B."

The gifted children in Haydn Bodenhamer's fifth-grade class at LaJolla Elementary School had made the chart and posted it on the wall yesterday. Then they conspired to sneak in the cookies and punch. Now 5-foot-tall Mr. B. was standing chest deep in kids, hands on hips, trying to restore order.

"Boys and girls!" he belted in an accent simmered half a century ago in the Texas Panhandle. "We've had a party and we've had a good time. Would you take your seats? All of you?"

For the last day of school and his last day of teaching, Bodenhamer had loosened his striped tie, his only concession to the occasion.

His pressed gray slacks and short-sleeved pink shirt complemented his golf-course tan and shock of brownish-gray hair—all as formal as his tie. As dressy as his classroom, which featured a crisp American flag in a holder by the door.

"I'll miss it," Mr. B. said of his teaching career. "I'll miss it a great deal. But I would say I've never really had to work at because teaching is something I enjoy doing. I've seen teachers teach until they're past their effectiveness. I don't want to be like that."

For 27 years, the gentle Methodist, now 60, has worked with kids at LaJolla Elementary. He was so good with them his supervisors gave him the most difficult ones—the emotionally disturbed, those with learning disabilities, the geniuses. And Mr. B. brought every one of them around.

Sixth-grade teacher Syd Franklin, Bodenhamer's golf partner who has taught alongside of him 26 years, said: "He's been known to throw a golf club or two," Franklin said. "He's a good golfer. Professionally, I have one word for him: superteacher. He was loved by the whole LaJolla community. The children he taught loved him so much, they sent their children to him. He's had a couple of generations come back."

For his part, Mr. B. said he was just trying to be a "successful" teacher. "That would be one that brings out the best of each individual," he said. "Taking every child as an individual—you can't do it any other way."

Ironically, Mr. B. never dreamed he'd be a teacher.

"My parents wanted it, but I would not even listen," he said. "I had no such idea. That was one thing I knew I would not do."

He wanted to be a pilot. And he became one—in World War II. Flying B-24 heavy bombers, he participated in raids over factories and oil fields in Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia. He liked the flying, but he didn't like the war. "Hey, that was something we just don't like to think would happen again for the sake of these kids," he said.

Mustering out, he went back to his home state, married Opal Frances Thacker of McLean, Texas, and began studying economics and business at Texas Tech in Lubbock. "I was dreaming of making a million dollars," he said. But then something magic happened.

"I was working with the Lubbock City Recreation Department to support my family and they gave me a job running a center in the underprivileged part of town in East Lubbock. These kids didn't have anything, you know, I just started working with them, playing tag football after school, holding Saturday night dances to give them something to do besides standing around breaking windows and they responded.

Graduating from Texas Tech in 1948, he taught school in McLean before moving to California in 1952 following a vacation. The Bodenhamers and their two daughters settled in Cardiff, where they lived for the next 21 years. Both the Bodenhamer girls, Rebecca and Susanne, are schoolteachers now. In 1972, Mr. B. and his wife moved to Rancho Santa Fe, where they have a condominium on a golf course.

"I never made that million dollars, but I feel like I'm living like a millionaire. My wife and I are primarily golfers," Mr. B. said. "Some years ago, we bought the condominium while we could still afford it and I plan to do more golfing now. And I'll do a little fishing. In the summers, I've been doing some estimating and selling in the construction business and I may make up my mind to go into that in September. I don't know. I have plenty of time to look at that."

The school had a tea for him last week, the kids had the party yesterday and today, his fellow teachers were planning to host a faculty reception for him. Then Mr. B. will go home. But not to loneliness.

"I'll play with my five grandchildren," he said. "Well, I tell you, they're great. "Oh, I love kids."

Nursing Center News

Last Sunday was Father's Day, and we had quite a gathering of residents, families, and friends here at the Nursing Center, as we honored all our wonderful fathers. One of our residents, Miss Ruby Cook, delighted everyone with her recitation of a charming Father's Day poem. Afterwards, everyone enjoyed the music of the Methodist Men's Quartet. Delicious cakes were furnished by Isabel Cousins, Charlene Barker, and Louise Turner. We want to say a special thanks to Wanda Lamb who sent carnation boutonnieres to all the fathers. We appreciate everyone who helped make the party such a success.

Monday afternoon, thirteen of our residents enjoyed Bingo. Charlene Barker, Betty Lopez, and Laura Barker were here to play with the residents, and the big winners were Lizzie Henry and Ruby Bidwell, with three games each.

Wednesday, members of the Methodist Church conducted a Bible study and returned Thursday for a Sing-A-Long. Friday afternoon was so beautiful that several of the residents took walks or set outside enjoying the sun and visiting. Later, Martha Parker was here with her good movies.

Coming up next month will be our annual Bar-be-que for the residents and their families. We will begin plans on that very soon. We'll also be having some new talent here to entertain our residents, so next month promises to be very busy.

Thomas Nursing Center welcomes Mr. Frank Reeves, who joined us last week.

GARDEN INSECTS-ACTION TIME!

The time for watching and waiting has arrived. Many of the things you are now seeing are quite disturbing.

Insects have obviously proliferated! Not only is there an abundance, but the devils are trying to devour your innocent young plants! The most noticeable onslaught occurs when green worms called loopers aerate (eat numerous holes in) broccoli, brussels sprouts, cauliflower, and cabbage leaves. The worm pickers who want to naturally control these pests can truly become a green thumb gardener before all the squeezing is over.

Novice gardeners armed with Sevin (carbonyl) will vigorously attack this enemy spreading pesticide everywhere. The more they use, the larger the worms grow. Finally, after the garden looks like the day after an explosion in a flour factory, these gardeners realize that Sevin doesn't kill loopers. The safest pesticide is the most effective. Products containing Bacillus thuringiensis such as Dipel, Thuricide, Biospray, or Biotrol mean certain death to worm-type insects yet are super safe. Be sure to use two teaspoons of a liquid detergent per gallon of spray mixed to insure adequate wetting of the plant's waxy leaves.

Another pest soon to be on the rampage is the vine borer. These critters kill squash and pumpkin vines by eating the insides of the main stem—what a way to go! Not only is this a dreadful end for an up-and-coming squash vine but is rather tragic for the gardener who would have enjoyed some fresh squash.

The standard recommendation for prevention of squash vine borer damage is to dust or spray the lower portion of the squash vine with Sevin every 7 to 10 days from the time of bloom. However, if your squash is already infested with borers, be positive—the squash would probably have overproduced anyway and caused a freezer overflow. You may have had an allergic reaction to squash! At least now you don't have to worry about squash bugs! The answer would have been to start a preventive spray program earlier but who could have known—hindsight is always clearer than foresight.

Another problem or phenomenon which concerns gardeners is leaky okra. The stems of the okra "leak" a clear substance. This leakage of plant juices comes from holes made by sucking insects. The main culprit is a fast moving insect called the sharpshooter. The long, fat bodied bugs hug the stem of okra and when disturbed, move around on the opposite side faster than a gnat's blink. Unless in large numbers, sharpshooters do little damage to the plant's growth. Their sucking and subsequent wounding can cause misshapened fruit.

Many gardeners ask why can't tomato vines be saved for fall. The answer—spider mites. Hot weather causes an explosion in their populations. The population of a bunch of lovely spider mites can double every four days. Kelthane or sulfur every four days—to kill the hatching eggs before the young reach puberty—for four consecutive days is the only answer. Be sure to use two teaspoons of liquid detergent per gallon of kelthane mixed to insure adequate penetration of webs. Try to direct spray applications to the underside of foliage since that's where the mites live and do their thing.

Encyclopedia of Western Gun-Fighters
Bill O'Neal

As the years have added romance and sometimes undeserved praise to some of the bad men of the old west and their varied exploits, this volume dissects the fact from the fiction and presents these men as they actually were.

Well-known bad men such as the James brothers, Billy the Kid, Wild Bill Hickok, Wyatt Earp, John Wesley Hardin and Butch Cassidy are of course covered in this book, but lesser known bad men who in reality were much more murderous in their travel around the west, such as Cullen Baker, Harvey Logan, Longhaired Jim Courtright and Mysterious Dave Mather, receive just and accurate recognition in this volume.

Each entry in the book lists first the gunman, then a list of nicknames or aliases, followed by dates and places of birth and death, the occupation the man pursued (if any), a brief biography, and in chronological order, accounts of the verified gunfights in which he participated.

Two hundred-fifty-five gun-fighters are listed in this encyclopedia, and it is probably the most complete and accurate listing to be found anywhere. An interesting fact brought out is that 105 of the gunmen served as lawmen during their lives, and a more sober fact is that the average lifespan of these men was forty-seven years.

People who enjoy the truly wild part of the west will certainly enjoy the "Encyclopedia of Western Gun-fighters," and you will be able to dispel some of the dreamed-up myths of these famous men as well as become acquainted with others you have not previously known. The book is now available at Lovett Memorial Library.

44 May Die On Texas Highways

AUSTIN--The Department of Public Safety today estimated that as many as 44 persons may die in Texas traffic accidents during the upcoming July 4th weekend unless drivers exercise extreme caution.

Colonel Jim Adams, DPS Director, urged motorists to maintain safe driving habits during the holiday to help minimize the loss of life.

"Texas is well on its way to yet another record year for traffic fatalities," Adams said. "We can put a stop to this dangerous trend if more motorists will slow down, refrain from drinking and use the most readily-available safety precautions--seat belts."

The DPS will be conducting "Operation Motorcade" during the holiday period to call attention to the dangers of holiday driving. The Department will tabulate traffic fatalities and release totals three times daily at 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. The first report will be made at 10 a.m. Friday, July 3.

The 78-hour counting period will begin Thursday, July 2, at 6 p.m. and continue until midnight, July 5.

Fifty-two persons died from traffic injuries received during the July 4th period last year. Texas traffic deaths in 1980 totaled 4,424 a record high for the fourth consecutive year.

In The Kitchen

by Linda Haynes

The entries in The McLean News summer recipe contest are coming in to the office fast and furious. I've gained at least five pounds just reading recipes. As soon as the deadline has passed (July 31) we will begin featuring some of the recipes in this column.

Until that time, however, I still have a few recipes that I want to share with you. Below are two dishes that are quick to prepare, always a blessing in hot weather. The dessert should be made ahead of time and allowed to sit for a few hours before it is served. The main dish reheats very nicely so you can prepare it early and then reheat to serve.

APRICOT LAYERED DESSERT
 1 cup (1/2 pt.) heavy cream, whipped
 1/2 cup chopped pecans
 1/2 cup sugar
 2 tablespoons cornstarch
 1/4 tsp. salt
 3 egg yolks
 2 cups milk
 1 tsp. vanilla
 10 chocolate wafers, crushed
 1 can (1lb.) apricot halves, drained

Reserve 1/4 of the whipped cream and some nuts for topping. Mix sugar, cornstarch, and salt in top of a double-boiler; stir in egg yolks, milk, and vanilla. Heat, stirring, over boiling water, until mixture thickens and coats a spoon, about 25 minutes; cool slightly. To assemble, spoon about 2 teaspoons wafer crumbs into each glass. Then dividing the ingredients among the glasses, make 1 or 2 layers of custard, apricot halves, nuts, whipping cream, and more crumbs. Top with whipped cream and nuts. Chill until set. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

HEARTY STEAK & ONIONS
 2 lbs. round steak, cut in bite sized pieces
 2 tablespoons shortening or salad oil
 3 large onions, sliced
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon thyme
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 3 1/2 cups hot water

Brown steak in shortening or salad oil in a large frying pan. Add onions and cook until tender. Season with salt, thyme, and pepper. Add hot water, cover and simmer about 1 hour or until meat is tender. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Students Learn Interaction In Summer Course

WTSU--In many short summer seminars, students do not take the time to learn each other's names to get to know them, but in one West Texas State University two-week course, students become familiar with each other and learn to interact.

Dr. Jack Nance, WTSU associate professor of education, has taught Human Relations Education Seminar since 1971.

The course, offered through the College of Education Department of Curriculum and Instruction for three semester hours of graduate credit, is designed to emphasize learning and using human relations skills necessary to be more effective as a person, leader and teacher.

The 27 students in the class met from 9:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. each weekday for 2 1/2 weeks in June. They participated in the class from Amarillo, Pampa, Muleshoe, Smyer, Hereford, Tulia, Claude, Borger, McLean, Dimmitt, and Boys Ranch.

According to the students, who are public school teachers, coaches, nurses, Amarillo College instructors and a WTSU admissions advisor, class members determine how the course will be taught.

Through group discussions, reports on reading and games, students learn how to become more aware of the group dynamics, leadership, helping shy persons to participate and personal interaction through body language, eye contact and other behavior.

Students who are nurses and nursing instructors said the course helped them learn new approaches to interacting with patients, physicians, family members and other students.

"An attribute of the leader was that he forced us to get to know each other so we weren't talking to a strange group, but to friends," said one student. Name games "broke the ice."

Nance, said another student, developed a pet phrase, "I hear you" which he "used early and often." The phrase also adorned a cake shared by the classmates at the close of the seminar.

Students explained the phrase to acknowledge that persons hear each other without committing themselves to an opinion and to avoid possible confrontation.

"It's great for teenagers and graduate students," laughed one class participant.

Jan Johnson of McLean was among the 27 students.

Futch Appointed Director Of FmHA

WASHINGTON, D.C., June 23--Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block today announced the appointment of J. Lynn Futch, Washington, D.C., as State Director of the Farmers Home Administration for Texas effective July 6, 1981.

CURB FOOD WASTE. SAVE GROCERY MONEY!

How much food in your home goes to waste? How many grocery dollars does it stand for? Most consumers throw away more food than they realize in many cases--left over vegetables, meats, milk that turns sour and bread that goes stale.

Throwing these nutritious foods out is the same thing as throwing away pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters, and even dollars at meal time. Try some of these tips to conserve food you spend money for--real savings depend on your storage and preparation habits, as well as on buying:

Buy foods in amounts your family will eat for one meal--or amounts you can eat aside in the freezer or refrigerator for later without wasting. Don't get carried away buying fresh foods on special if you can't store them properly to prevent spoilage. Fresh peaches at 4 cents a pound are no bargain if you buy four pounds, eat three pounds and throw one pound away.

Wrap leftovers properly in freezer or refrigerator. In the refrigerator, always cover foods with wax paper, foil or plastic wrap--or store them in a plastic bag or a container with a tight-fitting lid. Foods stored uncovered lose moisture and can pick up flavors from other foods.

Foods for the freezer should be packaged in moisture, vapor-resistant packaging such as plastic containers, foil or freezer paper. Label packages before putting them in the freezer.

Bread needs special storage, too. Store breads in their original container or in an air-tight container. It's true that breads keep longer in the refrigerator, but they also can become stale there. For toasting later, this is no problem. But for other uses, freeze bread. Freezing is the best for long-term storage.

Keep fresh vegetables in the refrigerator crisper or a plastic bag--all except potatoes and dry onions. Potatoes and dry onions need cool, dry storage. Keep milk fresh by placing it in the refrigerator immediately after shopping. Don't leave milk sitting on the counter--even during mealtimes!

Store flours and grains in containers with tight-fitting lids. Whole-wheat flour becomes rancid rather quickly, so keep it in the refrigerator for long-term storage.

If your family doesn't like leftovers, prepare only the amount of food they will eat at one meal. Involve family members in meal planning. Ask them what and how much they will eat. A cooperative effort is a definite key to saving money on the food bill. Here are two food-saving-success steps to use in preparation itself: For "no-like bread crust" families, trim off the crust and save it to toast for croutons or bread crumbs stop casseroles--if the family will accept crust any of those ways. In buying frozen vegetables, buy the bags, take out only the needed amount and save the rest for later. Create your own food-saving success steps, and before long, you'll have a long list of ideas that really make an impact on the food budget.

With rising food costs, economy is more important than ever before--in buying, storing and preparation. To ensure your family the greatest economy possible, keep a list of foods you throw away for one week. Study the list and decide what changes you can make. Those changes can mean a big savings on the family food dollar.

How To Buy Economically

Brown eggs are better than white, right?

Pork is full of calories, right?

A turkey roll is a game kids play at birthday parties, right?

In fact, the only difference between brown eggs and white is in the hen that laid them. There is no nutritional difference between the two.

And pork, believe it or not, has been bred in recent years to be leaner. Now, a 3-ounce serving of pork loin contains only 225 calories--about the same as 3 ounces of braised round steak. As for the turkey roll, it's a low cost, high-protein alternative to buying the whole turkey.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has just published a new booklet called "How to Buy Economically: A Food Buyers' Guide." It's full of information, like the above.

designed to help the food shopper through the shopping maze.

For instance, many supermarkets are now carrying large cuts of meat wrapped in vacuum packaging. If you know what to do with them, they're a great way to economize on meat purchases because they appear in the supermarket just the way they came from the packinghouse, with minimal handling in between.

The book tells how to shop for the large cuts and prepare them for cooking when you read the booklet. Most people know that whole chickens are cheaper than already cut-up chickens, but do you know how to cut up chicken yourself?

"How to Buy Economically" gives step-by-step, easy-to-follow instructions. And for special meals, when you want boneless chicken breasts, consult the section on how to bone them yourself.

The poultry section also has a chart detailing relative prices of whole chickens and chicken parts. If, for example, whole chickens are selling for 55 cents per pound, and bone-in chicken breasts are selling for 69 cents per pound, you'll get more cooked meat by buying the breasts.

There are more tips for eggs than just answers to the brown vs. white question. For instance, eggs are graded according to the appearance of the yolk, the condition of the white, and the condition and appearance of the shell. If you're going to poach eggs, buy the highest grade you can get--Grade AA or A--they'll look better. But if the eggs are to be used for baking, grade is less important. Grade B eggs are as wholesome as higher grade eggs.

Egg sizes are indicated on cartons of graded eggs, and indicate weight, no dimension. Larger eggs will cost more, but in some cases will be more economical. The chart in "how to Buy Economically" will tell you which size eggs are your best buy at different prices.

"How to Buy Economically" also gives hints on buying nonfat dry milk, and fresh and processed fruits and vegetables. There is an extensive chart that indicates when many fresh fruits and vegetables are in plentiful supply and therefore cheaper.
