The dedication of the McLean War Memorial was a very satisfying experience in many ways for me. In the first place, it was nice to see something go off as planned when earlier in the week it looked like the whole ceremony was ruined. When we began planning the dedication last summer, we scheduled the ceremony to fit Jack Hightower's congressional schedule. Monday we notified area newspapers, radio stations, and television stations of the ceremony, and then the blows began to fall in rapid succession. The military honor guard that we were planning on from Ft. Sill was not able to come. Foster Whaley called and said that a meeting of the appropriations committee had been set for Friday afternoon so he would not be able to come, and then Hightower's office called and said that the Speaker had called a session for Friday afternoon when "significant" legislation would be voted on. The secretary explained that if that were the case, then Jack, of course, would have to stay and vote.

All that news was really distressing since we had worked so long and hard on the ceremony. But by Thursday afternoon, things began to look better. George Terry located two McLean men who are members of the Shamrock National Guard unit to serve as our honor guard, and I liked that idea better than having strangers anyway. Then Hightower's office called and said that because so many Congressmen were out of Washington for Veteran's Day activities, Hightower would be able to come.

Not only that, but we actually managed to finish painting our building Thursday afternoon, and the weather forecast for Friday was for good weather with temperatures in the 70's, a minor miracle in November.

The ceremony was beautiful and really impressive. Hightower's speech was a good example of old-fashioned patriotic oratory, and brief enough so that our visiting school students did not get too restless.

The band students who played the national anthem, and especially Donna McAnear who played Taps, were performing under a great deal of stress with all those people present and photographers snapping their pictures, and the television camera rolling. And the kids came through like the real troopers that they are. I don't think there was a dry eye in the crowd when the monument was unveiled.

Pat Guill and the members of the VFW ladies auxiliary had done such a beautiful job sewing those many yards of bunting that the decorations were just perfect, in spite of the breeze which threatened to blow the flowers away.

Perhaps the most moving moment for me was when World War I veteran Ollie Hommel placed a red, white, and blue wreath on the monument. I watched that old veteran, and thought of the rich, full life he has lived, and somehow that made the sacrifice of those men whose

Flag-Waving Patriotism

War Memorial Dedicated Friday

About 600 McLean and area residents gathered Friday afternoon to hear U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower give a patriotic speech to formally dedicate the McLean War Memorial which honors 28 McLean men who gave their lives in World War I, World War II, Korea, and Viet Nam.

Despite a stiff panhandle breeze, the ceremony proceeded flawlessly as Jack Syfrett and Norman Layfield, both of McLean, members of the Shamrock National Guard unit, raised the flag and a drum and bugle corps from the McLean High School band, played the national anthem.

McLean Mayor Sam Haynes, acting as master of ceremonies, introduced the special guests, which included most of the city of McLean and Gray County elected officials. Among those attending were District Judge Don Cain, Gray County Commissioner Ted Simmons, Sheriff Rufe Jordan and county officials A.C. Malone, Wanda Carter, Helen Sprinkles, Jean Scott, Dorothy Patterson, and Jim McDonald.

Haynes also recognized the family members of the men listed on the memorial.

Congressman Hightower briefly reviewed the history of the wars of this century and described the feelings of the men who fought in them. He said that Americans learned that World War I was not the war to end all wars, and that the only way we could prevent another war was for the country to stay prepared. "They (unfriendly powers) are leaving us alone, not because they love us but because they respect us as a military power," he said.

Following the speech, Pat Guill, president of the McLean Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary, and Mae Ortega, president of the district VFW auxiliary, unveiled the square stone monument as Donna McAnear of the McLean band played taps. The inscription on the monument reads: "In grateful memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice in service of our country." The names listed are: World War I- Andrew Floyd; World War II-H.A. Armstrong, Delmas W. Collier, Donovan D'Spain, James Everett, Alton Glenn, Jack Bogan, Andy Corbin, Buell Ellison, R.L. Floyd, J.L. Hancock, Carroll Holmes, J.C. McMahan, Clinton Morley, William B. Valle, Jack L. Jones, Morse Ivey, S.B. Morse, Roy Nelson, Johnny Windom.; Korea-Daniel Wib Forley, Clay Hunt, Bill Hall, Ray Longino; Viet Nam-Gary Back, James McCarty, John Evans and Val Sharp.

The ceremony was closed with a prayer by State Senator Bill Sarpaluis of Hereford.

Members of the McLean band who participated in the ceremony included Donna McAnear, Karen Wilson, Bob Patman, Bryan Smitherman, and Dewayne Adamson.

World War I veteran Ollie Hommel, who served in the front-line trenches in France, placed a red, white, and blue wreath on the memorial.

McLean and area residents contributed almost $3,000 to build the square stone monument in the American National Bank Memorial Park. The project started about 18

City To Purchase Trash Truck

The city of McLean will soon have a new trash truck. City council members, who have been aware for several months that the trash truck now used by the city is on its last legs, voted Nov. 10 to accept a bid of $30,508 for a replacement vehicle. The bid came from J&R Equipment Company of Oklahoma City. No other bids were received for consideration. Delivery is expected to be within two weeks of the order date.

Members also voted to borrow funds for the trash truck from the American National Bank in McLean.

Two representatives of Southwestern Life, the company that handles city employee retirement funds, met with aldermen to request that money presently deposited with Southwestern Life be transferred to the American National Bank in McLean. Terry Harris and George Holland explained to the council that the change would not influence the retirement policy or payments the city currently has, but would be a simpler matter of transacting business for both Southwestern Life and the City of McLean. Upon their recommendation, council members voted to amend the retirement plan in order that the American National Bank be the official retirement fund holder for the city. The action will be retroactive to Oct. 1, 1981.

In other employee-related business, councilmen agreed to allow employees to accumulate as many as five days a year paid sick leave, if it had not been used up during the previous year. Maximum accumulation time would be 60 days. The new policy will begin January 1, 1982. "We've never had an employee abuse the sick leave policy," said Mayor Sam Haynes. "In fact, our employees rarely take any sick days, but we sure would hate to see any of them have to worry about a long term hospital stay."

"I hope all our employees know that we would back them up," added councilman George Terry.

Also discussed at the meeting was the city's policy on sidewalk parking. Councilman Boyd Meador noted that a few cars were parked on sidewalks, and that they were a problem to pedestrians. Aldermen directed city secretary Stella Lee to notify those who are known to be violating the policy, in order that the problem might be corrected.

Councilmen also began plans for an appreciation dinner for McLean fire department, ambulance service, and junior fire department. No date has been set for the dinner, but plans are that it will be after the first of the year.

Items tabled at the meeting included employees' Christmas bonuses and extra pay for weekend duty.

Also attending the meeting were councilmen Dale Glass, Charles Milam, and Miro Pagan, city superintendent Bob Glenn and Harlan Poole.

Lions Plan Jubilee Saturday

The McLean Lions Club is sponsoring the Derbytown Jubilee Saturday night, with curtain time set for 7:30 p. m. The Jubilee is a McLean tradition which features local and area musicians in a variety of musical acts.

The Lions also will have a concession stand during the program.

Admission to the program is $1 per person.

Donna McAnear Injured

Donna McAnear, a senior at McLean High School, was injured Monday evening when a calf she was implanting moved, causing the implant needle to slash Miss McAnear's eye. She was at McLean Cattle Co. feed lot at the time. She was taken to Amarillo where she underwent surgery Monday night.

At press time, she was listed in good condition at High Plains Hospital in Amarillo.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.C. McAnear.

City Gas Well Tests 438mcf On 'Open Flow'

The "absolute open flow" test on the City-owned gas well showed a capacity of 438,000 cubic feet per day, according to Keith Hayhurst, vice-president of Lyric Energy Inc., the company which drilled the well east of McLean. Hayhurst said the early test was not really an indication of what the well will actually produce, but the report is "encouraging."

"Now we will run a deliverability test, and we should have a definite idea of the well's capacity in a week to ten days," Hayhurst said.

"There are still so many variables that I can't predict what the well might do, but with the right gas line and with the right pressure the well could deliver as much as 50 percent (of the 438,000 cubic feet)," he said.

The company will continue testing, and will notify City officials as soon as tests are complete.

The gas well is located on section 63, block 23 1/2 miles east of McLean. The acreage is part of the original gas contract which the City purchased from Brazos River Gas Company in 1938, city secretary Stella Lee said.

Tax Appraisal Contract Awarded Pickett Company

From The Pampa News.... The 1982 tax appraisal contract was awarded to Thomas Y. Pickett Company by Gray County Commissioners Friday during regular court session.

Representatives of Thomas Y. Pickett, Joe Lee and Bill Smith presented the court with the 1982 contract in the amount of $25,000 an increase of $4,000 over the $21,000, 1981 contract.

Work increases in the appraisal work for the industrial and mineral properties and economic inflation was the main reason listed by Smith for the contract increase. The contract also includes work on the county tax rolls.

After hesitation, the court, See COMMISSIONERS Page 2

Defeat For Deceit

Ben Ezzell in The Canadian Record

Rejection of two of the proposed Constitutional Amendments submitted to Texas voters last week probably reflects citizen mistrust of both the Legislature and the Governor where state financial matters are concerned...mistrust that is solidly anchored in, and confirmed by, Texas history.

This was most apparent in the solid turn-down by voters of the amendment which would have created a Finance Management Committee to be composed of the Governor as chairman, the Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House, and Chairmen of the House and Senate Appropriations Committees, Senate State Affairs and House Ways & Means Committee.

This super-watchdog committee would have been given oversight of the spending practices of all state agencies...including some control over agencies' use of appropriated funds. With a state budget of almost $27 billion for the next two years, some fiscal control over the state bureaucracy would appear to be prudent, but Texas voters obviously do not want to increase the power of the Governor or of key members of the Legislature in this area...probably because mistrust of centralized power is deeply ingrained in the Texas civic psyche, and nothing in recent experience has served to improve that trust.

Also down the drain was the Legislative biggie for this year, the so-called Water Fund amendment, which might logically have been defeated because it was deceptively labeled and loaded with financial bombshells, but which was probably defeated for many wrong reasons by the bulk of voters downstate who thought it was aimed at bringing water to dry West Texas.

Whatever the reasons, it is probably a good thing for the whole state, including dry West Texas, that the Water Fund amendment was defeated.

Its sponsors, led by the wily Billy Clayton, probably out-smarted themselves by putting a misleading label on an amendment which would have set up a potentially giant slush fund from which the overflow of money (not necessarily water) could have been channeled in many directions in future years. It was, at best, a complicated piece of legislation concealed behind the simplistic label...and should have been defeated for that reason alone.

Our Legislators often count on confusing the voters with misleading labels, however, and their track record indicates that they are mostly successful. Take a couple of amendments on the November 3 ballot which did not pass handily, for example, because they had "tax relief" prominently in their labels. "Tax relief" was the bait for Amendment No. 1, although the "relief" from taxes will primarily benefit speculative developers of inner-city properties who will also be financed with municipal bonds. And "tax relief" was also the bait for Amendment No. 5 which exempts livestock and poultry from taxation. The big emotional pitch for this one was to relieve the small farmer-stockman of the tax burden for his cows and chickens...but the big beneficiaries will be the commercial operators who don't need to count their chickens but want to relieve the tax assessor of the task of counting their cattle.

"Tax relief" was almost promised by Proposition 6, which provides for a graduated program of homestead tax exemptions designed to relieve the impact next year of the already-mandated statewide equalization of property values of tax purposes. At least this amendment was honestly labelled...although it may be short-sighted because the relief is temporary and illusory, simply postponing the full implementation of the statewide equalization program and adding to the problems of the tax assessors.

Still "relief" is a powerful word for the tax-burdened, and covers up a multitude of legislative finagling. Who wouldn't buy it? Who didn't?

names are listed on the memorial that much more poignant.

It was a day that I will remember as long as I live, but, most of all, I hope that it is a day that the school children who were present will remember as long as they live. As I looked at those young, intent faces, I could not help remembering the faces of two boys who were in my English classes when I first began teaching in McLean. Although the memorial was planned to pay tribute to all the veterans, it was because of those two that I was so determined that something should be done so that they would not be forgotten.

I watched those boys during their carefree high school days when the most important things in their lives were the next football game or their scores on an exam. Like our boys in high school now, they thought they had the whole world and a long life in front of them, and they worked hard at achieving success in their own way.

Jim McCarty went on to Texas Tech after he had finished his high school career as valedictorian of his class in McLean. He earned a degree there and met a lovely girl who became his wife and the mother of his son. He realized a life-long ambition when he joined the Air Force and became a pilot. For many, many agonizing months for his family and friends, Jim was listed as missing in action. He was one of the victims of a war that wrenched our country apart, and just possibly he was the victim of an ineffectual bureaucracy which was never able to satisfactorily answer the question of his true fate.

Val Sharp, two years younger than Jim, was a quiet, shy boy around his teachers, but had a surprisingly sharp wit and keen sense of humor around his classmates. Val came to school in his beautiful Green Beret uniform, and spent one of the last days he was in McLean, sitting in my classroom and visiting with his old teachers and his friends. I asked him that day why he had volunteered to go to Viet Nam, and his answer, while not surprising coming from Val, was such an example of old-fashioned stirring patriotism that I have never forgotten it. "I'm young. I don't have a wife and family yet," he told me. "Someone needs to do the job, and it might as well be me." Val was shot down by enemy fire as he parachuted to the ground during one of his first missions in Viet Nam.

I mourned with the families of those boys, as did most of you. I know that each name on that monument has a similar story of heartbreak, of a life ended too soon, of a boy or man of bright promise who was snatched from his family before his time.

The monument does not assuage that grief, it does not do anything to restore those lost young men, but perhaps it will serve as a reminder to our youngsters today that peace is everyone's concern, that only by being an informed citizen can we prevent another war. Let's pray that we never have to add another war or another name to that stone.

We owe an apology to Le Milam. Her name was left off the list of junior high girls' basketball team in last week's paper.

If you have news or ads for The McLean News next week, please have them in by Monday at noon. We will go to press Tuesday, a full day early, because of the Thanksgiving holiday Thursday. Don't forget...bring your news in Monday.

led by Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy and Precinct 4 Commissioner Ted Simmons, proposed to the representatives that the contract be reduced to $23,000 for 1982, and if Thomas Y. Pickett did the appraisal in 1983, the contract could be approved for the $25,000.

Pickett representatives accepted the reduced contract and commissioners approved. In other business, Steve Vaughn, county civil defense coordinator, met with the court to discuss a civil defense bill for city and county entities.

"A federal defense team is available to come to Pampa to review our entire plan for a disaster and to review our actions in a mock drill," Vaughn said.

"We are trying to set a date to hold a simulated disaster drill to give officials a chance to see what kind of immediate decision will have to be made in case of a disaster," Vaughn said.

"We have a basic plan for the county, and I am working on a detailed plan currently. If a disaster struck all officials would assemble in the city courthouse basement and meet in joint session so that all decisions would be coordinated," Vaughn said.

"Lists are being prepared and all officials will be advised of volunteers, businesses and local contractors who will be called upon for services and equipment in time of disaster," Vaughn said.

"A disaster plan won't do us any good on paper, we should try it out and be sure it works in each area," Vaughn said.

Commissioners agreed that the simulated drill would benefit all entities and residents. Further information will come from Vaughn as to the dates of the drill.

Gray County Clerk Wanda Carter discussed with the court the canvassing of the recent Constitutional Amendment election.

"The canvass included no additions and no changes," Mrs. Carter said.

Only nine percent of Gray County voters went to the polls for the election consistent with the state totals.

The court accepted a $14,860 bid from Crossman for a tractor for Precinct 1. Two bids were received for the equipment and the Crossman bid was lowest.

Commissioners approved plans to send Margie Gray, County Tax Assessor-Collector to two training conferences in Amarillo and Austin. The amount of $250 was budgeted for her expenses.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

EXPLOSIONS MUST STOP

AUSTIN -- At a recent meeting of our agriculture subcommittee, we saw a fascinating demonstration. A professor from Texas A&M University exploded about a tablespoon of grain dust in a controlled experiment. The result was a blast greater than any firecracker you can buy on the Fourth of July.

This laboratory experiment became horrible reality a few days later in Longview. Five men working in a grain elevator were seriously burned when the elevator blew up.

Early reports said grain dust could not have caused the explosion, because the elevator was loaded with wet cotton seed. Experts at our hearing, however, said they did not know how much grain dust was needed to cause an explosion, but the amount could be lower than we have thought.

This is an intolerable situation. Lives are at stake. All of the men from Longview were in critical or serious condition. Their injuries only add to the list of 609 injured, and 165 killed, in this country since 1960.

Money is at stake. One explosion alone, in 1976, accounted for $80 million in physical damage. There have been more than 250 other explosions since 1960, although none this large.

The money to repair the elevator does not include the lost revenue because of the time the elevator will be out of service. It does not include the tremendous litigation cost nearly always associated with such a blast. It does not include the economic loss to a town that may depend on the elevator for its livelihood. It does not include the loss to farmers who lose the storage space they need at harvesttime.

The idea that this goes on and that we do not even know how much grain dust it takes to cause an explosion is an intolerable situation.

We plan to try to do what we can to remedy this situation.

Veterans Day as we observe it now is a tribute to all Americans who have served their nation in the armed forces. But originally the date was a celebration of peace, the end of World War I on the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month in 1918.

It is supremely appropriate that we combine this anniversary of peace with the time to honor our veterans, because we Americans serve -- and even fight when necessary -- to preserve and establish a just peace. Whether in time of war or time of peace, American Soldiers and sailors and airmen give a portion of their lives, or even die, for a strong United States. It is these people who make it possible for the rest of us to live in peace and prosperity and freedom.

Not so long ago, some lost sight of the value and importance of this contribution. Veterans who served their nation during the Vietnam War found too often that they came home to indifference, or even contempt. I find this attitude has changed. A new wave of patriotism has wrought a new sense of appreciation for those who serve in the military.

After a decade of seeming apathy, Americans have awakened to a new commitment to remain strong to deter aggression.

A recent ABC-New York Times poll showed that 86 percent of the American public favors doing, and spending, whatever is necessary to ensure that the United States maintains a defense capability equal to or greater than that of the Soviet Union. Only 10 percent said they would cut defense spending even if it meant resigning ourselves to an inferior position in the world.

I am gratified but not surprised to see this statistical confirmation of the commitment I find whenever I talk to my fellow Texans, as well as groups from other parts of the country. I can assure you that this same commitment to strength and service is to be found on every U.S. military installation in the world.

For these reasons, I am optimistic that we will be able to remedy the effects of a decade of neglect to our defense system; that we can live up to our historic role of providing might to defend right in the world.

When Americans celebrated Armistice Day at the end of World War I, they hoped it would be the war to end all wars. We know from bitter experience since then that this hope was premature. For blood has been shed in every corner of the world since then. We have learned that we cannot let down our guard, that we must be alert constantly to the danger of tyranny and aggression.

George Washington warned us: "If we desire peace, one of the most powerful institutions of our rising prosperity, it must be known that we are at all times ready for war." The weapons have changed in the 200 years since Washington spoke, but the concept is as true now as ever.

We all hope and pray for the day when we can set aside weapons, but only a demonstration of our resolve not to let aggressors act with impunity will make that day possible.

Then, we can hope for the day the prophet Micah envisioned -- "Nations shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. But they shall sit, every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid."

Teresa Woods Receives Top 4-H Honor

AMARILLO—Thirty-eight outstanding members of 4-H clubs in the Texas Panhandle were honored Nov. 7.

In addition to receiving the Gold Star Award, highest honor presented at the county level, the youths heard State Rep. Foster Whaley of Pampa praise 4-H and challenge them to continue their contributions to their communities, state and nation.

Honored from Gray County were Rhonda Woods, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Woods, of McLean and Teresa Woods, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Woods of McLean.

Whaley said the thing that has made 4-H such a great organization "is the idea of helping people help themselves." He said 4-H also has always emphasized patriotism and pride in country.

He said the boys and girls being honored for their achievements and contributions are the tops in the more than 13,000 4-H members in the 20 Panhandle counties.

EXTENSION OPEN HOUSE ANNUAL WHEAT MEETINGS

The Texas Wheat Producers Board and Producers Association will hold their annual meeting, Thursday, November 19, at the Hilton Inn, Amarillo.

Free registration will begin at 9 a.m. and program topics begin at 9:45. The program features several outstanding speakers discussing topics of interest to wheat farmers. A lunch will be available and the meeting adjourns around 4:00 p.m.

OUTSIDE PESTS MOVE INSIDE FOR FALL

Outside insects aren't overly fond of cool weather and often come indoors with fall weather.

Spiders, scorpions and their relatives that live outdoors in the summer search for a warm place to spend the cold days of winter.

Roaches and ants inside not only want to keep warm but also help themselves to stored products or food.

So insect pests in the home are not only annoying, but some can inflict a painful sting or bite.

Pests often enter through open doors and windows or through vents in the attic or small cracks in the foundation. They also ride firewood inside.

Once in the house, they hide in clothing, under boxes or other cover.

To keep pests out, "tighten up" the house with caulking or some other type of weather stripping. This not only keeps outdoor pests from coming inside but makes the house air-tight and energy efficient.

Homeowners also can treat around the house with an approved insecticide to create a chemical barrier that kills insects or repels them.

Indoors, use an insecticide containing diazinon, chlorpyrifos (Dursban), propoxur (Baygon) or malathion. For an effective barrier outside the house, treat the foundation and a 5-to-10 foot strip of ground around the house with any of the above materials, with Baygon and Dursban being the longer-lasting.

TEST FORAGE FOR FEEDING VALUE

It's really hard to tell without a forage test. The forage test is the only way that a definite feed value can be assigned to a particular lot of hay.

While a forage test may cost a few dollars, it can save you dollars in supplemental feed or livestock condition.

Feeding low quality hay without supplementation can result in livestock weight losses and reduces rebreeding percentages. At the same time, feeding supplement with top quality hay may not always be necessary.

Only when your hay's feeding value is known can you make a useful decision on the necessity of a protein or energy supplement. The hay's feeding value might be such that no supplement is needed or it might be such that the animal is slowly starving without a supplement.

A forage test can give a positive value on which to base a feeding program, and with the high cost of feed, that's essential for a sound management program.

Anyone interested in getting hay tested for protein, fiber, nutrient and mineral content can bring samples to the county Extension office where information forms and mailing containers are available. Forage samples will be sent to the Extension Forage Testing Laboratory, Soil and Crop Sciences Department, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843. The cost varies depending on what tests you want to run, but the typical test recommended for our area use would run $13.

Anti-Freeze Can Kill Household Pets, According To TVMA

AUSTIN-One laboratory confirmed death of a dog due to anti-freeze poisoning has already been reported by the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory in Amarillo.

Although cooler temperatures hit the Texas Panhandle early, other parts of the state are just beginning to experience the chilly winter weather. Consequently, motorists who are draining and adding anti-freeze to their car radiators should be reminded that anti-freeze is a tasty but deadly poison to animals, and can result in their deaths.

"Anti-freeze has a sweet taste and is a tempting treat for animals. Consequently, veterinarians in Texas treat numbers of dogs and cats for anti-freeze poisoning each year," said Dr. Ben Johnston, president of the Texas Veterinary Medical Association (TVMA).

"It's probably more common than anyone realizes. An owner may find his pet in a coma or dead and not know what has happened," said Johnston.

A small amount constitutes a toxic dose for an animal—two to three c.c.s per pound of weight for a dog, and even less for a cat, said the TVMA president.

Johnston recommends that old anti-freeze be flushed down the sewer drain since it is biodegradable. Any that has spilled onto the driveway or street should be washed for 10 minutes toward the street drain. No puddles should be left for pets to get into. And no residue should be left behind because the dried crystals contain the poison. The drain pan should also be washed thoroughly.

The substance in anti-freeze which animals find tasty is ethylene glycol, a sweetish colorless liquid that also is an ingredient in other compounds found around the house. The toxin also is found in brake fluid, windshield de-icers, and wallpaper remover.

Don't forget that ethylene glycol is also a coolant and Texas motorists use it year round. So caution should always be used when disposing of anti-freeze or coolant.

An animal that has ingested any amount of anti-freeze will appear drunk. He may be apprehensive, depressed, listless, uncoordinated or wobbly. If your family pet exhibits these symptoms he could be suffering from anti-freeze poisoning and should be taken immediately to your veterinarian. Treatment for anti-freeze poisoning can't wait.

Missy Billingsley, Spooky Smith Crowned Harvest Royalty

Seniors Missy Billingsley and Spooky Smith were crowned Harvest Queen and King last week in a ceremony at the McLean High School auditorium which followed a lively cake auction to determine the winners of the honor. With cakes and pies auctioned by Chuck Brass bringing from $10 to $50, the bidding picked up steam as the last item, a pecan pie, was put up for bids.

The bidders, realizing that the result of the contest might hinge on the last bid, began a frenzy of bidding which saw youngsters from the various classes pooling their money to jack the bids up to $350 before a bid from an individual for $400 stopped the bidding. The successful bidder split his money and votes four ways, giving each class 100 votes. Jan Johnson, sponsor of the Future Business Leaders of America, which was in charge of the program, said that the auction raised $1349, with 60 percent of the money going to her organization, and the remainder to be prorated to the classes.

Second place in the balloting were junior candidates Stacie Smith and Kevin Nicholson. Third place went to sophomores Darin Corley and Jana Harris, and fourth place went to freshmen Paige McDonald and Sammy Houdyshell.

4-H CORNER

EXTENSION OPEN HOUSE

The Gray County Extension Service will host an Extension Information Day and Open House November 20, beginning at 1:30 p.m. at the County Extension Office, located in the Courthouse Annex in Pampa.

The public information day will begin with a program on computers and their value to family units presented by Dr. Ray Sammons, Extension Economist.

Following the program everyone is invited to come by the County Extension Office and get acquainted with the County Extension Agents and the many programs, services and information offered by the Extension service.

4-H'ERS MAKE THE BEST BETTER

The 4-H motto—"To make the best better" is exemplified in the young people who excel in their achievement, citizenship and leadership projects.

Activities in these programs, conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, range from sharing skills with mentally retarded youth and organizing a summer program at a school for the deaf to conducting a highway cleanup campaign. National 4-H programs in Achievement, Citizenship, and Leadership stress interaction and involvement with others.

Among the most popular projects is the "Adopt a Grandparent Program." 4-H'ers not only become companions to senior citizens but also learn new perspectives from their elders. Many senior citizens share traditional skills as volunteer leaders.

Recognizing physical fitness is critical to good health. One 4-H club built a quarter-mile jogging and exercise course that included 12 exercise areas interspersed along the track. Once complete, the youth gave the facility to the community for public use.

In some areas, young people get practical citizenship experience by running local government offices for a day. For one 4-H'er, the training she received as acting mayor convinced her that politics will not be her first career choice. Another youth found the experiences of being district attorney "Unforgettable."

Commented one local judge at the end of the day's program: "It's refreshing to see good kids. I was afraid the incentive to lead had died down. I was glad to see there are still youngsters willing to lead."

Ford, Coca-Cola and Reader's Digest provide awards and incentives to outstanding 4-H'ers in all three programs. Awards are arranged by the National 4-H Council and winners are selected by the Extension Service. Four members in each county may receive medals of honor, one 4-H'er from each state can earn an expense-paid trip to National 4-H Congress in Chicago, and nine national winners in each program receive $1,000 scholarships. In addition, two 4-H'ers are named national winners in each program and receive 4-H's highest honor, the Presidential Award, which is a silver tray presented in the name of the President of the United States.

Coca-Cola also provides certificates to two members from each state. Reader's Digest encourages club participation by sponsoring the 4-H Citizenship-In-Action program involving "seed money" for clubs to carry out innovative citizenship programs. Ford Motor Company also supports international 4-H programs.

Boys and girls 9 to 19, can learn more about the exciting opportunities in 4-H by contacting their county Extension office.

HOMEMAKER NEWS

Many people in the Gray County area have grown gourds this summer and many others have found a nice supply of them in the supermarkets. The gourd is a fruit and one that is highly decorative and will last for years if properly cured.

The gourd curing process usually takes about three weeks. Wash the gourds in warm, soapy water and rinse them in clean water. The object is to remove any soil-borne bacteria clinging to the shell that might cause discoloration or rot. Then dry each gourd with a soft cloth to avoid bruising or scratching the tender skin.

The next process takes about a week and is called surface drying. Its purpose is to dry and harden the outer skin and set the color. A good way to handle the small type of gourds is to string them like beads through the stem and hang them up to dry. Take care that they do not touch.

The large gourds are too heavy to suspend on a string so must be laid on the floor or table on several thicknesses of newspaper. The room or shed should be a warm, dry place with good air circulation. Turn the gourds daily and replace any newspaper made damp by the curing gourds. Some gourds may begin to shrivel and some may develop soft spots. Discard all of these. After about a week the surface of the gourds should be well dried and the colors set.

The next process is called internal or final drying. This takes 2-3 weeks. About the only difference in this drying process and the previous one is that it should be done in darkness to prevent fading of the color. You still need a warm, dry place with good air circulation.

After about three weeks of curing, the final step is decorating. Gourds may be displayed in their natural state but often can be greatly improved by decorating.

One way to enhance the natural beauty of gourds is to wax and buff them with a soft cloth to produce a soft, shiny surface with highlights. Another way is to coat the surface with liquid plastic to give a hard, glossy finish.

Still another day to prepare the gourds for display is to paint them. This is especially true of gourds that have a poor, dull color. Use spray paint or a brush to apply. You can paint the entire gourd by suspending it by the stem or you can set it on the rim of an empty can while painting.

PLAYING IT SAFE WITH TOYS

Seeing a tot's eyes light up when he or she receives a toy is very rewarding. However, it is important to make sure that the toy that is given is safe. The Consumer Product Safety Commission has set safety regulations for manufacturers to follow when designing and manufacturing toys. However, these regulations do not prevent all toy-related injuries. It is the responsibility of the gift giver and the supervising adult to protect the child from the hazards of playing with toys.

TOY SAFETY GUIDELINES

When purchasing toys for Christmas, use these guidelines:

- Keep in mind the child's age, interests, and skills level. Avoid toys that are too advanced for young children. A toy that is safe for a seven-year-old may not be safe for a toddler.
- Buy toys that are well constructed.
- Pay attention to toy labels. They should tell age and recommendations and safety information.
- For young children, avoid toys with sharp edges, brittle plastic, or glass than can shatter or break.
- Stay away from toys producing loud noises that can damage hearing and avoid toys which shoot objects that can injure eyes.
- When buying toys with cords or strings, such as pull toys, make sure the cord is less than 12 inches long. A cord that is too long can strangle a child.
- Remove all plastic wrappings from the toy immediately, as this can cause suffocation.

Omnibus Reconciliation Act Establishes User Fee

The Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981, signed by the President August 13, 1981, established a user fee effective October 1, 1981 for cotton classing services provided for producers by USDA.

The proposed fee is 60 cents per sample. Producers will be billed on a monthly basis for each sample submitted by a licensed gin or warehouse with a completed cotton classification memorandum, CN-117 (green card). Gins may agree to assume responsibility for collecting the fee as a service to their customers. This will greatly facilitate the billings and keep cost of the classing service as low as possible.

Cotton samples classed for producers prior to Oct. 1, 1981, will be free of charge, the same as previous years. The 60 cent fee will be charged for all cotton classed for producers beginning October 1, 1981, and the first bills will be mailed at the end of October 1981.

As in the past, samples must be drawn by a licensed gin or warehouse and forwarded directly to the Marketing Services Office. The name and complete address of the producer must be entered on the green card if the producer is to be billed.

The Omnibus Reconciliation Act directs USDA to provide the classing service to producers for a fee that when combined with proceeds from the sale of samples will recover, as nearly as practical, the cost of providing the service including administrative and supervisory cost. The Secretary is also directed to take necessary action to insure that the government cotton classification system continues to provide an official quality description of the United States cotton crop.

Any additional questions concerning user fees should be directed to the local Marketing Services Office, 1104 N. Spurgeon, Altus, Oklahoma 73521.

ECONOMIC STATUS OF AGRICULTURE

Extension Economist Ron Knutson, Bill Black, Carl Anderson

Extension Economists Ron Knutson, Bill Black and Carl Anderson have written their thoughts about the current situation in regards to agriculture and the 1981 farm bill.

The implications from their rather lengthy discussion of the facts are that the situation faced by farmers is likely to get worse before it gets better. Farm income will continue to be low. The debt load will climb and cash flow will continue to be unpredictable. Risk management, in order to create a more predictable cash flow, will be a key to farm management in the future. Also, farmers will need to explore marketing alternatives more than ever before. Need exists for marketing arrangements with a higher and more assured price expectation.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

If input and interest costs continue to escalate upward, while farm price increases remain relatively low, we can expect increased producer unrest in American agriculture. This unrest is usually manifested in the formation of new movements and new associations rather than through existing associations. The unrest usually manifests itself by new demands being placed on Washington.

That much misused word "chauvinist" was derived from the name of a soldier under Napoleon, Nicolas Chauvin. His shameless sycophancy led to his name becoming a word meaning blind attachment to a group.

Tigers End Season With Loss To Follett

A shivering crowd of 500 fans watched Friday night as the McLean Tigers went down under the powerhouse efforts of the Follett Panthers, in a 28-0 gridiron battle that marked final football action of the season for both teams.

"I thought we did pretty well against what we consider to be the best football team in the district," remarked Tiger coach Jack Dorsett. "But we were sure disappointed that we didn't win for our seniors."

Seniors playing their last game were Dudley Reynolds, Theron Stubbs, Bill Skipper, Spooky Smith, Van Boucher, and Bobby Sprinkles.

McLean started out looking good, counting off three first downs before a high snap gave the ball to Follett on the McLean 20. And with the bit of luck, Follett charged in, late in the first quarter, to pick up six points on a five yard run by Todd Bourquin.

The Tigers again got up and dusted themselves off with a fumble recovery early in the second, but a clipping penalty robbed them of a first down, and the Panthers wasted little time in pushing the ball up the field to another score, this time with 4:57 left on the clock. Bourquin ran in from the McLean four, and Galen Kunka's kick was good, bringing Follett to a 13-0 lead, over the hosting McLean Tigers.

The Tigers had begun earlier in the game to get their passing plays together, eventually completing six of 10 attempted passes for 62 yards. "We finally found a good combination between Randall Wynn and Billy Corley. I found out we could throw the ball," added Dorsett.

Second half action saw the Tigers holding their own until late in the third when Follett gained momentum on a 35-yard pass from Stacy Ragan to Kunka left the ball behind the goal line, and the scoreboard read Follett 19, McLean 0. Ragan's extra-point kick was good, upping the Panthers to 20.

McLean still refused to yield, garnering three more first downs after the kickoff return, to give Tiger fans hope for the fourth quarter. But it just wasn't to be, as a fumble on the Follett 28 was recovered by the Panthers, who took it in four minutes later, again on a Ragan-Kunka pass, this one a 33-yard bomb. Kunka kicked the extra point to bring the final score of the game to Follett 28, McLean 0.

In commenting on the 3-6 record, 1-4 in district, for the Tigers, Dorsett noted "We were plagued with mistakes and injuries, but the kids kept their heads up all year and played their best under the circumstances, and I think I have matured a lot as a coach this year."

Statistics for the game were:

Cub, Cubettes Drop Season Opener To Shamrock Junior High Teams

The McLean Cubettes played an even first half with the Shamrock Lassies Monday night before the hosting Irish outscored McLean 10 to 1 in the third quarter. The game ended on top with the visiting McLean team losing 29 to 14.

Coach Jack Dorsett's Cubettes showed balanced scoring with Melanie Billingsley making 6 points, Lee Ann Tate 5, Wendy McDowell, 2 and Debra Watson, 1. Shamrock's high point girl was #36 Wilson who scored 14 points.

The Cubs came onto the court for the second game of the evening, and played even ball with the Shamrock Lads throughout the game. First quarter score found McLean ahead 6-4, but Shamrock pulled ahead 19-16 during the

Fall Brings Fresh Produce For The Conscientious Consumer

Fall is upon us again and with it comes a festive of selection of produce. The conscientious consumer will take advantage of the fresh produce that is reasonably priced and of the best quality at the height of its season.

Root vegetables offer great possibilities. Yams and sweet potatoes come from different plants, but when cooked, the flavors almost impossible to distinguish.

In carrots and beets, as well as sweet potatoes, look for roots that are firm and small to medium in size. The larger roots are an indication of poor quality. These vegetables store best if unwashed until ready for use. Beets are cooked with the peel and 1 to 2 inches of the stem intact to reduce vitamin and color loss.

Cabbage, eggplant and peppers are all at their peak availability and flavor this time of year. But, that is where the similarity ends because each has a distinctively different flavor.

The bell peppers and eggplant, which are commonly considered vegetables, are actually fruits and should have smooth, unblemished skin. Soft spots are a sign that decay has begun. Characteristically, cabbage is firm and heavy for its size.

months ago when Linda Haynes, editor and publisher of The McLean News, began searching for a list of war dead from McLean to be used in Memorial Day feature. "We found that there was no permanent list anywhere in town, although there is a war memorial in Hillcrest Cemetery devoted to the war dead," she said. "I felt that it was vitally important for our youngsters to know the names of the men who gave their lives for their country."

The response from McLean citizens was overwhelming, she said. "Jim Allison and I started the fund at the bank, and after a week or two the funds just came rolling in."

The bank was in the process of cleaning a downtown parking lot and preparing it for parking area. Bill Irwin, chairman of the board of the bank, and Allison, president of the bank, gave their permission for the memorial to be placed in the park and decided to name the area the American National Bank Memorial Park.

COLLEGE STATION— Everyone has problems. But there's a big difference between worrying about problems and thinking about them, according to Dr. Burl B. Richardson, program specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A & M University System.

"Those who worry about problems go over the same ground again and again and never get anywhere. On the other hand, thinking works in way through problems and can lead to decisions and desired results," Richardson explained.

"There are specific points to consider in thinking through a problem, whether it's of a personal or community nature," he added.

The first step is to make sure one knows exactly what

Two Ways To View Problems, Expert Says

and how big the problem is. Analyze it. Decide who is affected—a few people, many or everyone?

Next, consider all alternatives for a solution. In most cases there's more than one way to reach the desired solution. Then decide the course of action as well as the urgency of the problem. Also, think about resources available or ones you can get help.

"After these considerations, it is time to set a realistic goal for accomplishing the task. Some problems will be more complex than others and require a longer time period to resolve. Goals provide a positive sense of direction and help keep us on target. They remind us what we want to accomplish, especially when things don't go exactly as planned," Richardson said.

Finally, he suggests developing a plan of action—what will be done and when.

Decide specific steps to take and the best time to accomplish one. For some problems, timing may be critical. Go to work. Put your plan into action.

Solving problems is a part of life. Everyone has problems, but not everyone takes time to think their way through them.

Recordkeeping Bill To Be Considered

WASHINGTON-Congressman Jack Hightower announced Nov. 10 that two full days of December committee hearings had been set for consideration of his chief anti-government paperwork bill, H.R. 316. The bill, entitled the "Limitation on Government Recordkeeping and Actions Act of 1981," would limit to no more than four years the length of time federal regulatory agencies could require an individual to maintain business records for the government. It would also prevent a government agency from suing against an individual later than four years after a supposed violation of federal regulations had occurred.

At the present time, many agencies have no set time limits on recordkeeping. Although the bill would cover a wide range of government agencies, it would not alter the three-year statute of limitations required by the Internal Revenue Service for income tax purposes. It also would not apply in cases of records relating to hazardous waste storage such as chemical or nuclear materials which have long storage lives.

Hearings are set for December 8 and 9 of this year in the House Subcommittee on Government Information and Individual Rights. The subcommittee is chaired by Rep. Glenn English (D-Oklahoma).

Loose Marbles

by Lisa Patman

As we approach the time of Thanksgiving our thoughts drift homeward to times and places that made us what we are today, to memories that bring little smiles to our faces and warm feelings to our hearts.

While reminiscing the other day, I began remembering crisp fall evenings spent watching the football team romp over the field as I cheered myself hoarse, thinking of bobby socks and 25-cent hamburgers, wondering just how many thousands of miles I had logged driving up and down Main, around and around that teenagers' haven, the drive-in. Then I recalled Saturday afternoons.

On Saturdays I cleaned my room, shoving everything under my bed or into the closet ("I'm through, Mom!"), then grabbed a sandwich and broke for the door before she could yell "What about the trash?"--It was time to meet the gang at the drugstore.

There never was anything that could beat the old drugstore. It was a fascinating conglomeration of everything. By standing right in the middle and closing your eyes you could sniff ten different scents at the same time--the gamey leather of the booths, fountain Cokes, pipe tobacco, dust, peanuts, lipstick, the Jungle Gardenia perfume you loved as a puberty-stricken teenager, the disinfectant in the mop bucket, and whiskey (if you leaned a bit too close to the druggist).

The aisles were stacked to the ceiling with years of accumulated wares. There was a faded heart full of petrified candy for some long-forgotten sweetheart. Over there was a doll with hair so dusty its color was unrecognizable. Yellowed greeting cards hid behind newer, brighter, sassier ones.

The soda fountain seats were a patchwork of plastic mending tape. And the counter top was covered with the initials of decades of teenagers. Behind it were the inevitable gum-chewing soda jerks mixing the inevitable lumpy milk shakes and brewing the always unpalatable bitterness they called coffee.

I can almost hear the old gang yelling greetings to each other, shouting orders to the harried waitresses, laughing wildly at some silly joke. What a terrific time, what a wonderful memory.

It isn't the same now, of course. Drugstores are full of the efforts of conniving ad-men -- bold colors, snappy packaging, products to end all beauty problems.

I have to admit there are times when I wish ad-men would quit worrying about the state of my underarms, and get back to the good old days.

Fortunately it's at times like these that I realize if the good old days were back, I still would be at home, wrestling with garter belts and stockings, sitting for hours as my hair slowly dried, wishing someone else would wash the stupid dishes.

As I approach this Thanksgiving I'll don my trusty pantyhose, blow-dry my hair, turn on the dishwasher, trot up to the office to type on my lovely electric typewriter (which I sometimes value more highly than home and family), and break for coffee from the self-service machine.

This year I think I'll give thanks for the good new days.

Bazaar

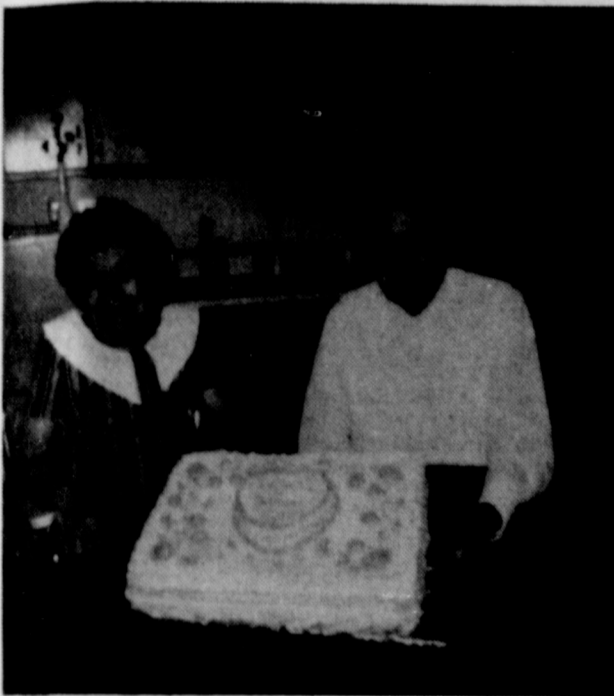

NURSING HOME AUXILIARY members Fern Boyd, Isabel Cousins, Wanda Bailey, Charlene Barker, and Betty Lopez stand the tables of baked goods and crafts at the Thomas Nursing Home Bazaar Saturday morning. (Photo by Linda Haynes)

Sunday, members of the Assembly of God Church were here to conduct church services for the residents.

Monday, we had a record attendance of 20 for Bingo. Kittie Hessey won three games. Assisting Charlene Barker were Lena Bailey and Ruby Tibbetts.

Tuesday, 14 residents worked on their crafts for our Bazaar. Our volunteers were Virginia Tolleson, Oleta Westbrook and Mary Lou Garrison. In the afternoon we were treated to a 58th Wedding Anniversary party for Oscar and Janie Pittman given by their daughters Greta Thompson and Bennie Jane Fleming. Cake and punch were served. Our entertainment was furnished by J.T. Trew and Nina Vick playing some of their favorite waltz numbers. Oscar Pittman waltzed with his lovely wife Janie. He then continued waltzing with his daughters and granddaughter. Your S.A.D. Betty Lopez once again had the pleasure of several waltzes with our residents, Oscar Pittman, Dick Henley, Mr. A.L. Welsh and

Bob Ford. Bob Ford waltzed with Mary McCrary, Sherry Mason and one of our residents, Miss Nell Adams.

Wednesday, members of the Methodist Church were here to conduct Bible Study and returned Thursday for a Sing-A-Long. The residents finished their projects and cupcakes were served to all. Volunteer helpers were Mary Lou Garrison, Virginia Tolleson, and members of our local Beta Sigma Phi, Linda Syfrett, Kathy Reynolds and Billie Kingston.

Friday Martha Parker returned with her wonderful movies.

Saturday was our Bazaar. We would like to say thank you to all of you who donated to the activity fund and brought in baked goods. Many thanks to the T.N.H. Ladies Auxiliary for all their time and effort in making this project a success. A special thank you to all residents who worked very hard in making articles for the Bazaar. A party for all residents is being planned to say Thank You. We had a raffle on a quilt at the bazaar that our ladies made and Betty Lowe was the winner.

Helpful Information From The U.S. Metric Board

Q. Will "thinking metric" be difficult?

A. Not really. Most of us will need to know the terms meter, kilogram, liter and degrees Celsius. Even then, few people will have to use these with great precision on an everyday basis. For example, "thinking metric" means associating 20 degrees Celsius with room temperature or 37° C with body temperature.
