At a family reunion this weekend, I heard a story I must share with you. The teller swore that it was true, but whether it is or not, it's just too good to pass up.

Seems two older women from the Friona area were on one of those bus tours of the East. Returning to their fancy New York hotel late one night after seeing a Broadway show, the two small-town women got in an elevator to go to their rooms. Just before the doors closed, a very large well-dressed black man boarded the elevator with a very big, powerful-looking dog on a leash. As the doors were shutting, the man barked "Sit!"

And the ladies promptly did!

The kicker to the story is the best part. When the women went to check out of their room a couple of days later, they found that their hotel bill had been paid. The desk clerk handed them a note, which went something like this:

"Dear ladies,
I'm sorry I frightened you in the elevator. I have had such a good laugh out of your reaction to my command to my dog, that I thought you deserved some compensation, so I paid your hotel bill.

Signed
Reggie Jackson"

Most of you are probably familiar with the funny quotations labeled "Murphy's Laws"....like "Everything always takes longer than you calculate," and "By making something perfectly clear, someone will be totally confused." Well, Ida Hess added a perfect corollary to the Murphy Law which says "If anything can go wrong, it will."

Ida says "If anything can possibly go wrong in McLean, it will go wrong at the News office on Tuesdays."

She worked here for a few months, and she knows whereof she speaks.

For the past three weeks, the keyboard on our phototypesetter has been malfunctioning. We have had no "Q's", which is not too big of a problem, since the letter is used so seldom. We compensated for that by typing "G's", and marking out part of the tail.

However, when the space bar (which puts the space between each word) went out, we knew

McLean School Board Looks At $100,000 Increase

McLean school board members approved a preliminary budget for the 1982-83 school year at their regular monthly meeting Monday night which includes a $100,000 raise from last year. The preliminary figures show a total for expenditures of $985,825.

Superintendent Jim Rutherford said the increase in the budget was primarily due to state-mandated salary increases, more money for utilities, and more money for special students. Rutherford emphasized that the figures were still very indefinite.

"If we approve of the new building, there will be some changes because of carpet for the building, science equipment, etc.," Rutherford said.

Last year's budget was about $884,000, Rutherford said.

Projected budget expenditures include $469,428 for instruction, $11,240 for resources and media, $58,261 for administration, $88,100 for transportation, $33,712 for extra-curricular activities, $45,500 for food services, $149,934 for general administration, and $125,000 for maintenance and operation.

Board members set Aug. 30 at 7 p.m. for the public budget hearing, and the meeting to approve the amended budget and the new budget.

The board will open bids on construction of the new building Aug. 24 at 6 p.m. Rutherford said that about nine or ten contractors had shown interest in the project.

Rutherford gave board members a copy of a letter from Gabe Gilley, director of school transportation of the Texas Education Agency, which approved a mid-day kindergarten route for the school. The letter also requested that extensions of routes 37 and 38 be discontinued.

The board discussed the cafeteria, and Rutherford told the group that last year's budgeted amount of $16,000 had been adequate, and he recommended that prices for lunches and breakfasts remain at last year's level. The board approved the suggestion.

The group approved bids from various suppliers during the session. Kelly Milk will furnish the milk, and Wonder Bread will furnish bread for the school. Nash Oil Company submitted the lowest bid for gasoline, and B.J.'s Pest submitted the lowest bid for pest control at the school.

Following an executive session, the board hired Marie Baker, for art, and Nona Mann for the libraries. They also hired bus drivers Earl Riley, Marcia Reynolds, Tom Adamson, Cecil Reynolds, Frank Sparlin, and Margaret Milan.

Attending the session were board members Lloyd Hunt, who presided in the absence of president Jim Allison; James Hefley; Joe Magee; J.C. McAnear; and Tony Smitherman; also Jim Rutherford; and principals Ron Cummings and Dorman Thomas.

OPINIONS

A New Year's Resolution

As the teachers and kids go into a new school year Wednesday, resolved to do better than last year, to bury old quarrels, to renew old friendships, to start fresh, we should all share in that commitment.

If your support of your school system's programs and activities has been luke-warm in the past, make up your mind to do better this year. The best place to start will be with the Tiger football team.

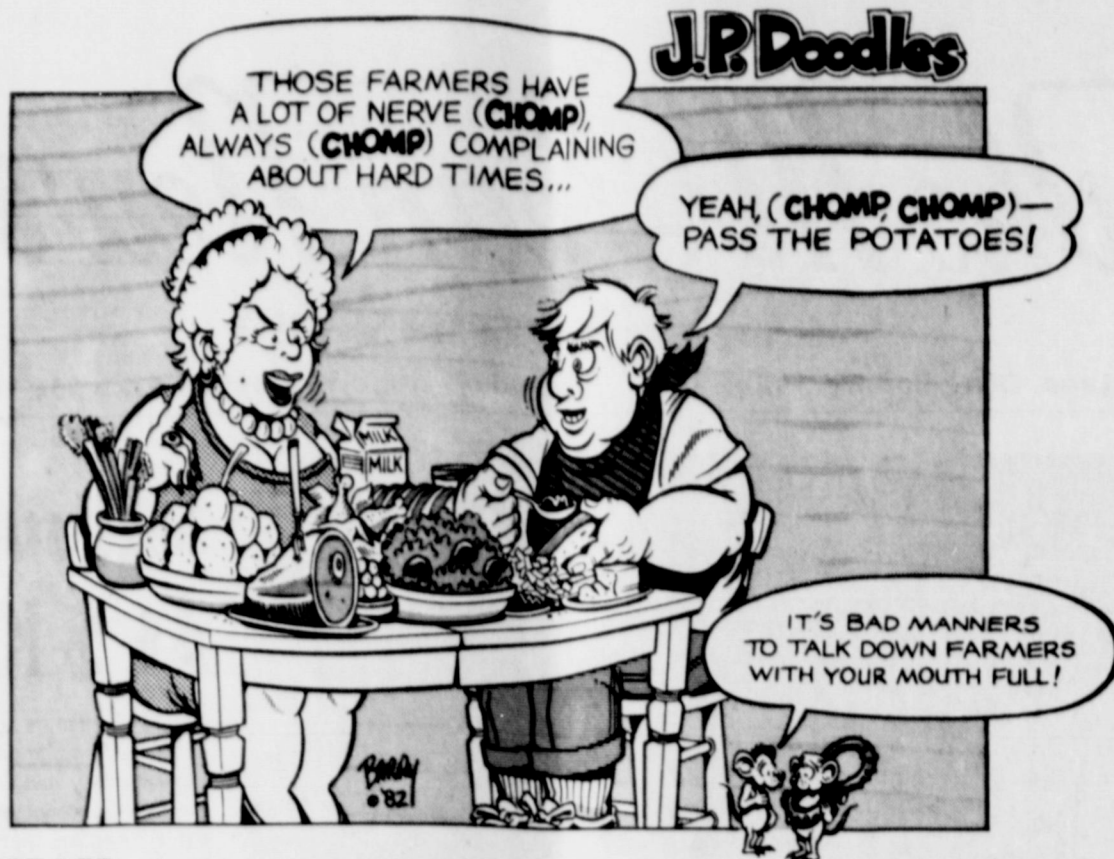

At McLean High School football games, almost the entire high school is involved either as a player, a member of the band, a member of the pep squad, a worker in the concession stand, a manager of the team, or a statistics keeper. And, believe me, those youngsters notice the adults who come to support them.

In a community as small as McLean, we must all do our share to lend both our moral and our financial support to all the activities involving our youngsters. And these teenagers belong to all of us, whether we are the parents of teenagers or not.

As a Christian town, we share the responsibility to set a good example for these youngsters. And a good way is to show them we appreciate their efforts when those efforts are constructive and worthwhile.

So make a New (School) Year Resolution to support the McLean youngsters by attending their football games, basketball games, track meets, tennis matches, band concerts, stock shows, plays, and other activities.

That way, we'll all be winners!

We were in trouble. Our typesetter Kathy has been doing slave-labor by punching an "insert space" button every time she needed a space. Of course, this slowed the production of the paper down by several hours each week.

As soon as the keyboard went crazy, we called Dallas, and spent several hours, it seems on the phone, on hold, and being switched from one department to another.

We finally got the right person, and ordered a new keyboard which was to be shipped by priority mail from Dallas. (The last time we got a keyboard, we asked for air freight, and it took 12 hours to get to Amarillo from Wisconsin and seven days to get to McLean from Amarillo!)

Seven days later we still had no keyboard; it was Monday again, and time for another nasty typing job without equipment. We called the Dallas branch, and spent another hour going from person to person, and were finally told they would call us back. We waited two days, and they never called, and the keyboard never came. So we called, and lo and behold, the order was never placed.

("So sorry, Mrs. Haynes, I just don't know how it could have happened, I'll get you one out today on priority mail")

Seven days later (this is fast mail from Dallas?) the keyboard finally came. Again it was Monday, and we were ready to begin work on the paper. We installed the keyboard...and you guessed it, nothing on this one worked, except the shift key.

Another call (none of these are toll-free, by the way), another hour spent talking to everyone, and finally the manager gets on the phone.

This time we got the priority mail package from the same place in two days! We plugged the new part in, and it worked!

We were all excited until I got the bill Monday. When I replaced that part six months ago (they should last four or five years, but are only guaranteed for 30 days) it cost $90. Now, six months later, the exact same part is $178!!! While we were fighting with the typesetter, another six-month old machine was breaking every Tuesday morning, making it necessary for me to bathe in chemicals up to my elbows, and ruin my clothes every time!

Also our refrigerated air conditioner at the office was blowing the breakers every time it was turned off. However, this week the keyboard is working, the processor is working, and the air conditioner is working.

Keep your fingers crossed for us. We might actually get through one week without the machines revolting. But I don't count on it.

Ollie Hommel was in the office last week, and brought us some of his delicious apples from his orchard near Alanreed. It's a treat we look forward to every August. Thanks, Ollie.

TV and Your Child

The Texas State Teachers Association urges parents to examine their children's television viewing habits. Here is Part III of a four-part series.

Preschoolers and TV

Congratulations on being a parent. It is one of life's most rewarding experiences.

Part of being a parent is selecting the best for your new child. You want your youngster to grow up happy and healthy. Plan your youngster's time well. Your child needs fresh air, exercise, hugging, sleep, food, play time, thinking time, family time, reading time and a little TV time.

If your preschooler is watching too much television, then it's "prime time" for parental involvement!

Make certain your children watch TV for information and entertainment. Television should not be a babysitter.

Tips From TSTA

Watch TV with your child—after you have carefully selected a good program.

Discuss what you watch on TV with your child. Point out colors, animals and common objects around the house. Ask questions! This teaches youngsters to look more closely at what they see. Ask your child, "Did you like the program we watched?" This helps your youngster to evaluate feelings and to think clearly.

Stretch your child's imagination. Ask how else a character could have acted, (e.g. "Could the baby duck have done something different in the cartoon?") Keep toys and empty boxes around so your youngster learns to play creatively. Also, be sure there are some small, baby-size books available—cloth books are good. This will free your child from depending on TV for entertainment.

Be sure your child learns what is real and what is not real. This is a very difficult thing for a young child to do. Youngsters believe everything they see or hear on TV is real because they don't know anything else. There is a lot of make-believe on TV. Young people need to know the difference. Help your child to learn to listen. Point out different sounds on TV—sounds such as: laughter, crying, musical tones, animal noises and traffic, etc. This helps your child learn to listen carefully.

Read to your child as soon as possible. Reading soothes children and helps prepare them for school days ahead. Reading every day is not too much, and most children love stories at bedtime.

Caution young children not to sit or play too close to the TV set. Be sure a light is on in the same room where the TV set is on. Improper lighting can be harmful to eyesight.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

SENATOR BILL SARPALIUS REPORTS MORE ON ELEVATOR EXPLOSIONS

AUSTIN - The Senate Agriculture Subcommittee is making progress in its study of grain elevator explosions. Recently, our committee, of which I am Chairman, went to Fort Worth to see the oil process for grain dust in action. This process applies mineral oil in minute quantities to grain to stop dust.

Bunge Corporation in Fort Worth is using the oil on some of the grain in its elevators. Applied at the rate of 200 parts per million, the oil cuts swirling dust to almost nothing. Bunge applies the oil as the wheat comes out of the pit, before it starts up the leg. There was little or no dust even in the immediate area of the leg, and no smell of dust in the air. Working conditions in the elevator were much more pleasant than normal, and we hope safety was improved. Common sense would tell us safety has increased a great deal, but there is not any scientific evidence of this yet.

The oil was invisible and odorless after it went on the grain. The purpose of our trip was to see the oil in action in a major elevator, and to make sure others saw it, too. We wanted to bring together the people who needed to know about this process, so we invited representatives from the Environmental Protection Agency, the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council, the Texas Air Control Board, grain explosion scientists from Texas A & M University, a federal grain grader from the U.S.D.A., and Ray Nolen, Executive Vice President of the Texas Feed and Grain Association.

Our purpose in this study of grain elevator explosions is to make elevators safer. These explosions cost millions each year, and that is a terrific waste. But we hope stopping the explosions will have other benefits, also. For example, about half the energy grain elevators use is to run dust-control equipment. Weight losses from grain dust cost all of us. Some elevators return the dust to the grain, but this is an expensive and dangerous process. Constant sweeping and cleaning also are expensive. Less dust means less cleaning and sweeping, and a better place to work.

One of the biggest problems in using the oil has been grading. When the oil is applied at the low rate of 200 parts per million, grading has been good. If the oil is applied too thickly and stored a long time, the grain sometimes is graded commercially objectionable foreign odor (COFO). Grain graded COFO means big problems, but this low grading has been rare.

We know all of you are concerned about problems in agriculture. Please write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711, and tell us about what we can do to help the agriculture industry in Texas.

Accent On Health

Texas Department of Health Robert Bernstein, M.D., Commissioner

Sun worshipers who think a suntan makes them look young and vibrant are actually aging their skin and increasing their chances of getting cancer, according to Dr. Clift Price.

Dr. Price is Associate Commissioner for Personal Health Services with the Texas Department of Health (TDH). According to the TDH Bureau of Vital Statistics, 427 deaths were attributed to skin cancer in the state during 1981. The TDH Cancer Registry Program shows 2,096 cases of skin cancer were recorded in Texas in 1980, the last year figures are available. It is estimated, however, that this is only about 50 percent of the actual number of new cases for that year. Almost all of the 400,000 cases of skin cancer developed by Americans annually are considered to be sun-related. Fortunately, if treated early, most skin cancer is curable.

The visible, early warnings are: 1. A sore that does not heal. 2. The change in size or color of a wart or mole. 3. The development of any unusual pigmented area.

The best protection against summer sun is to stay indoors, or to wear protective clothing such as long sleeved shirts, full length trousers, and wide brimmed hats. "If you must exercise outside, do so before 10 a.m. and after 3 p.m., when the ultraviolet rays are weakest," Dr. Price said.

Next in importance for prevention is the use of a sun screen containing PABA (para-amino-benzoic acid). Preparations containing PABA absorb ultraviolet rays and allow gradual tanning. Be sure to check the SPF (Sun Protection Factor). The SPF usually ranges from two for minimal protection to 15 for maximum.

tact Dr. Clift Price, Associate Commissioner for Personal Health Services, Texas Department of Health, 1100 West 49th Street, Austin, Texas 78756. Telephone 512/458-7321.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE McLEAN NEWS AND ITS READERS:

From the heart of deepest Africa

Dear City Dwellers:

It has been brought to my attention that you recently criticized a movie which documented my life and that of my main man, Tarzan. I would like to bring to your attention that life in the jungle is not all that it's cracked up to be and your criticism certainly doesn't help matters much.

You could have a little sympathy. Have you any idea how hard it is to fix TV dinners in a tree? Do you know what it's like to have chimps fiddling with your stereo the minute your back is turned. And what do you think this tropical humidity does to a perm, huh? Life is not all bananas and coconuts, you know.

Just last week Tarzan and I were lugging Cheeta along a jungle trail when I stepped right in a puddle of elephant you-know-what, ruining my newest pair of wedgies.

And laundry, there's a subject I could expound on forever. Let's just say that I'd like you to try to get the spots out of Tarzan's leopard skins. All you have to contend with is ring around the collar.

In fact, I'd like to offer a challenge to all you tacky people who criticized the performance of that lovely lady who played me, Bo Derek (who looks a lot like me, only plainer). I'd like you all to come spend a week bathing in ice-cold waterfalls, trying to sleep through panther screams, and putting up with a rather smelly man who does nothing but scratch and grin and swing through the trees. I'll bet you'd come home singing a different tune.

Respectfully,

Jane

P.S. I do hope your criticism doesn't have a depressing effect on the movie residuals; I was so hoping to buy a new curling iron with my share.

daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Simpson of McLean, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Barber of Lazbuddie.

The double ring ceremony was performed at the altar of the church under an archway which was decorated with greenery. Spiral candelabra and a unity candle completed the altar adornments.

Given in marriage by the father, with the "Her Mother and I" avowal, the bride wore a Venetian lace dress which featured a capelet lace collar, and sheer sleeves with gathered lace cuffs which extended over the hand. The 10-tiered lace skirt ended in a chapel train. Her veil of illusion was edged in lace and was attached to a ruffled lace cap.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

In The Kitchen

by Linda Haynes

As inflation eats into more and more pocket-books, we cooks are having a more difficult time feeding our families on the same amount of money. I picked up a new cookbook the other day, called "The Inflation Cookbook". It is published by Southern Living magazine and has some excellent hints and suggestions and recipes for cooking on a budget. Here is a sample:

TOP OF STOVE SHORT RIBS

3 pounds short ribs of beef
 1/4 cup flour
 2 Tbls. shortening
 1 (10 1/2 oz.) can condensed beef broth
 1 cup dried apricots
 2 Tbls. brown sugar
 2 Tbls. vinegar
 1/4 tsp. ground cinnamon
 1/4 tsp. ground cloves
 1/4 tsp. ground allspice
 Dust ribs with flour, brown in shortening in large heavy pan. Pour off excess fat. Combine remaining ingredients, pour over ribs. Cover. Cook over low heat about 2 1/2 hours or until ribs are tender; turn and baste with sauce occasionally. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.
 (I included this one, because I know that many of you, like us, have your own beef. The packages of short ribs were always the last ones in my freezer, before I found this recipe. The secret is to cook those ribs SLOWLY.)

CHICKEN, ITALIAN STYLE

3 Tbls. chicken fat
 1/4 cup chopped onion
 1/2 clove garlic (optional)
 3 Tbls. flour
 1 1/2 cups chicken broth
 salt and pepper
 1 1/2 cups chopped cooked chicken
 1/4 cup canned tomatoes
 1/4 cups shredded Cheddar cheese
 1 1/2 cups dry spaghetti, broken in 2-inch pieces and cooked
 1/2 cup crumbs
 Heat fat; add chopped onion and garlic and fry slowly until slightly browned; add flour; blend slowly with chicken broth until thickened. Season. Add chopped, cooked chicken, tomatoes, and 1/2 cup cheese.

Arrange chicken mixture and spaghetti in alternate layers in a greased casserole dish. Top with crumbs mixed with a little chicken fat and 1/4 cup of the cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for about 25 minutes.

It is our painful duty this week to chronicle the death of one of our most honored and respected citizens, E.D. Frazier, who passed to his final reward on last Thursday night, after a lingering illness of many weeks. He had suffered from a complication of diseases for a number of years but only lately had they assumed a serious aspect. Everything that loving friends and relatives could do and every skill that physicians could bring to bear were tendered, but his advanced age made it impossible to recover and he passed peacefully into the great unknown.

A plum that measures in the neighborhood of six inches in circumference and looks much like a medium sized pear was

Several of the boys went out to the Hedrick place Tuesday to assist Will with the dehorning of his calves.

Gray County Gardening

Control Grubs in Lawns
White grubs in excessive numbers can heavily damage lawns. Check for white grubs by cutting a square foot section of sod with a shovel and examining the roots and soil to a depth of 4 inches. Examine at least one square foot of sod for 1,000 square feet of lawn area. Chemical treatment is needed if there are more than four grubs per square foot of sod.

Diazinon or Dursban provide adequate control and should be used at recommended rates given on the chemical container label. The granular form is easier to apply and to wash into the soil than liquid or spray formulations. After using granules, drag the grass with a tow sack or water hose to knock them down to the soil. Then apply enough water to soak the granules into the soil.

Apply diazinon sprays at the rate of 25 gallons of water, including the insecticide, per 1,000 square feet to wash the insecticide into the soil. Wetting the lawn before spraying also helps. Always keep children and pets off the treated lawn until the grass is dry.

The key to white grub control in home lawns is proper timing of chemical applications and getting the insecticide through the grass to the root zone where grubs are feeding. Further information is provided in the publication, "White Grubs in Texas. Turfgrass," available at the County Extension Office.

Garden Turning Yellow?
A culprit called "summer heat" has no doubt worked its evil magic on your spring garden by now, and a quick inspection of the site will reveal rows of yellowing and dying plants.

Tomatoes will not set fruit during cloudy, cool conditions, nor will they hold their blooms when daily temperatures exceed 93 degrees. Many other vegetables, such as cucumbers and corn, do not pollinate properly during hot weather which results in a malformed product. Hot weather also causes slowed growth resulting in poor quality produce such as bitter cucumbers.

Texans May Be Eligible For Help With Bills

Some low-income Texans may be eligible for help with their summer cooling bills, if they haven't already received a Home Energy Assistance payment, a state official said.

"We need to hear from those low-income households which haven't filled out the Home Energy Assistance program questionnaire we mailed to them," said commissioner Marlin W. Johnston of the Texas Department of Human Resources.

Those eligible for the cooling payments include households which received June benefits for Aid to Families with Dependent Children, food stamps, or Supplemental Security Income.

Certain Veterans Administration beneficiaries also may be eligible if they are "needs tested" and if their gross incomes don't exceed 75 percent of the poverty level as defined by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Potentially eligible veterans are those who receive VA payments under 415, 521, 541, or 542 of Title 38 of the U.S. Code or under Section 306 of the Veterans and Survivors Pension Improvement Act of 1978.

Most of these persons are widows and children of veterans who died from military service-related causes.

Some surviving veterans also receive benefits under these veterans programs.

To qualify for energy assistance a household's gross income limit cannot exceed $305.49 per month for one person; $499.49 a month for two persons; $684.49 monthly for a three-member household; $845.49 for a four-member household; $988.49 for five people, and $1,166.49 monthly for six people.

Eligible households must be subject to home energy cost increases—because of higher bills or rent due to rising utility costs. Households are eligible if they live in privately owned or rented housing even if the cost of utilities is included in the rent payment, or if the household pays only a portion of its home energy costs. DHR already is processing cooling bill payments that average $39 each for 266,000 households under the $12 million program to relieve the impact of summer cooling bills on needy Texans.

Interested persons should contact the local DHR office for more information.

SHE'S EITHER SAFE or out at home, but no one seems to know. This action took place during the mother-son T-ball game last week. The game was the final one of the season for the 6 to 9 year old boys. The boys beat their moms, 9-7. Members of the team, their parents, and others went to the Sam Haynes yard for a weiner roast, ice cream and cake following the game Thursday afternoon. Five Lessons - The Modern Fundamental of Golf

by Ben Hogan with Herbert Warren Wind and drawings by Anthony Ravielli

Summer time bringing the certain migration of people to the thousands of golf courses all over the world, and the probability that many of the more experienced golfers as well as all the newly-made linksters will be seeking ways to improve their games, this book by one of the greatest golfers of our time, should come right in time to help you remedy whatever malfunctions you have discovered as you attempt to hit the little white (sometimes yellow or orange) ball.

Ben Hogan maintains that any golfer with average coordination can learn to break 80 if he applies himself intelligently, and in this book, he teams up with Sports Illustrated's Golf Editor, Herbert Warren Wind, and artist Anthony Ravielli to give you step-by-step instructions on just how to do it.

The volume is richly illustrated with "visual instructions" that not only improve your game and lower your score, but also can help you get even more fun out of what many people already think is the most enjoyable game in the world.

Each chapter, and each tested fundamental is explained and demonstrated with amazing detail and clarity. It's as though the "Master"

Hogan, or "The Wee Wee Mon", as the Scotch called him, were right at your elbow, giving you a personal lesson with the same dedication and perseverance that characterized his own illustrious career.

Religious dedication to the lessons in this book will no doubt improve your golf game tremendously and will cast the sometime frustrating game of golf in a new and thoroughly enjoyable light for you. "Five Lessons - The Modern Fundamentals of Golf" is now available at Lovett Memorial Library.

FREE SPEECH AND THE A.C.L.U.

On May 20, 1982, U.S. District Judge John Singleton ruled that the children in Aldine schools, outside Houston, could no longer include a phrase praising God in their school song.

That made the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) very happy. They had been party to the suit, claiming that the song violated constitutional provisions of separation of church and state.

On July 3rd, the Supreme Court ruled that states can indeed ban the distribution of child pornography. That made ACLU very unhappy. One of their spokesmen was quoted in the press as complaining this violated the constitutional provisions of free speech.

If this all seems strange to you, perhaps it is because it is strange. The ACLU is constantly worried about the "free speech" rights of pornographers, but seemingly is on the other side of the fence when the question turns on the free speech rights of school children. One cannot escape the conclusion that the ACLU would defend the "right" of school children to distribute smut, but they would deny them the right to sing the praises of God.

And if you ever wonder where the ACLU gets the money to pursue its goals, consider this: a lot of rich people in high places give them a lot of money. Our current Lieutenant Governor Hobby, for example, held a fund raiser for them in his Houston home that raised some $60,000. He is very proud of his efforts in this regard, defending it repeatedly while out on the campaign trail seeking reelection. That is one of the many areas where he and I are in disagreement. I think there are far worthier organizations for Texans to champion. I would appreciate hearing your thoughts. Just write me at 1213 W. 34th, Austin, Texas 78705.

News From Your Gray County Extension Agent

Save Money - Reduce Tillage

Growers can make money switching to reduced and no-tillage labor and fuel are saved and yields are increased. Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and USDA researchers at the Research Center at Bushland have developed reduced tillage methods for several cropping systems. Using no-tillage in a wheat-to-sorghum sequence increases yield up to 1000 pounds per acre and saves 10 dollars per acre in tillage cost. Less and smaller equipment is required resulting in depreciation savings of another 10 to 15 dollars per acre.

Researchers Paul Unger, Allen Wiese and Jack Musick developed this cropping practice for the Southern High Plains. In this system, atrazine and 1, 4-D at 3 and 1 pound per acre active ingredient are sprayed on standing stubble after wheat harvest to kill weeds and volunteer until sorghum planting next spring. If grass weeds are present after wheat harvest, sweep plowing, applying 1 quart of paraquat or 1.5 pints of Roundup will control the pests. In cotton country, either Roundup or paraquat must be used instead of 2,4-D. Care must be taken to avoid damage from drift anywhere. 1-gran or propazine can be used preemergence or atrazine postemergence to control weeds in the sorghum.

Dry Wyatt Harman, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Research Economist, says growers stand to gain up to 60 dollars per acre by using the no-tillage system compared to conventional disk tillage. He points to seven years of study by Dr. Unger, USDA Soil Scientist who found that sweep tillage in the fallow period from wheat harvest to sorghum planting increased dryland sorghum yield 450 pounds per acre over disking. In the same study, no-tillage increased yields another 600 pounds per acre over sweep tillage. The researchers say similar yield increases could be expected with corn.

Jack Musick, USDA Irrigation Engineer, found the same 1000 pound per acre yield advantage for sorghum that was given two summer irrigations. Musick says "Keeping stubble from an irrigated wheat crop on the soil surface is like a pre-irrigation". "Both add about 2.5 inches of water to the soil profile", he continued. With dryland wheat, less stubble is produced and with a smaller amount of surface mulch, soil water storage is not as good.

Double cropping sorghum after wheat harvest is another no-tillage system that works. Sorghum is seeded directly into standing stubble immediately after wheat harvest. Ron Allen, USDA Agriculture Engineer says a straw chopper on the combine is a must because it eliminates piles of straw from wheat that yields more than 50 bushels per acre, planting is easier with disks in front of unit planters. Seed should be about 1 inch deep for fast emergence.

After planting, irrigation will germinate sorghum, wheat spraying 2 pounds per acre of atrazine in an oil-water emulsion spray carrier when the sorghum is 6 inches tall. In five years of research, Allen found sorghum double cropped using no-tillage yielded 500 pounds per acre more than sorghum planted after conventional tillage of disking and rebedding.

Glean, a new herbicide released in 1982, can help growers reduce tillage in continuous wheat or what continuous wheat or wheat that is going to be followed. Applying the herbicide at 0.66 ounce per acre with paraquat or Roundup will control weeds in the stubble and prevent broadleaf weeds from emerging in the summer. Volunteer wheat is not killed by Glean. Wheat that emerges and has not tilled can be controlled with one pint of paraquat or 0.66 pint of Roundup according to Dr. A.F. Wiese, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Weed Scientist.

These systems will work under dryland, furrow irrigation or sprinkler irrigation. According to Wiese beds have to be rebuilt about every two crops with furrow irrigation. He says this can be done quickly by shredding stalks or stubble and rebuilding beds with a disk bedder or sweep rod weeder. Tight soils can be broken up at this time by chiseling anhydrous ammonia into the middles.

The scientists all agree that no- or limited-tillage can play a big part in reducing production costs and increasing yields. Conventional disk or sweep tillage dries the soil to six inches. No-tillage will help save soil moisture from recent rains that fell during June. Reggie Jones a USDA Soil Scientist who studies conservation of soil and water at Bushland says saving an extra inch of soil water is worth 300 to 400 pounds sorghum grain or two to three bushels of wheat on the next crop.

Fertilizing Lovegrass
Ample rainfall in late spring has caused rapid growth of lovegrass and utilized most of the available nitrogen. On sandy soils the heavy rainfall probably leached out any nitrogen not used by the plant. To take advantage of August rains it is advisable to apply an additional 30 pounds of N on dryland weeping lovegrass. If a soil test indicates a low level of phosphorous or if phosphorous has not been applied in recent years it is possible to get a good response from an application of 20 to 30 pounds of P2O5. The phosphorous will not only increase the yield of forage but will make it much more palatable and nutritious for livestock.

Soil Samples for Wheat
With the 1982 wheat crop now history, it is a

Gamblers Must Give To IRS, Too

Glenn Cagle, Internal Revenue Service Director for the northern half of Texas, issued notice that all persons in the business of accepting wagers, including those persons who accept wagers for or on the behalf of another, are required to purchase a $500 wagering tax stamp and to file the wagering occupational tax return, Form 11-c, as imposed by Internal Revenue Code Sections 4411 and 4412.

In addition, Internal Revenue Code Section 4401 requires those persons in the business of accepting wagers pay a 2 percent excise tax on the gross amount of wagers received. Such tax must be reported on a monthly basis on excise tax return Form 730.

Failure to comply with these statutes can result in prosecution leading to 5 years in jail and fines of up to $10,000 for each offense. The purchase of the special stamp and payment of the Federal excise tax does not preclude prosecution for violations of certain other Federal, State, and local statutes concerning gambling enterprises.
