As I write this column today, (Tuesday) the hostage situation still is not resolved, and a few Arab pip-squeaks are holding American citizens and dictating to the greatest nation on earth what we can and cannot do.

I am firmly convinced it is time for the people of this country to abandon our complacent and apathetic attitudes which are making us the whipping boys for every glory-seeking creep who want to be on television, and to let the world know in no uncertain terms that the next group which tries to wipe its feet on us is likely to bring back a couple of bloody stumps!

We Americans seem to be determined to make ours the most morally bereft nation in the history of man, as we

Reagan to come forth with some of the answers he said he had for hostage situations when he was lambasting President Carter during the Iranian crisis.

It is also time for President Reagan to come forth with some of the answers he said he had for hostage situations when he was lambasting President Carter during the Iranian crisis... and it is time for a country which spends countless billions on military hardware to let the world know - we will do something to the cowardly skunk who prey on Americans all over the world... Let's rise up on our hind feet and get the show on the road to make the Stars and Stripes respected, and if necessary feared by those who would take advantage of it...

We are going to have to wake up, take interest in our churches, schools, and states, and get on the firing-lines of service as we attempt to make our country respected as it once was.

It is also time for President

Letter To The Editor

get in touch with some of my classmates (any of them). I have lost contact with everyone that I ever knew in McLean since my parents died there. I couldn't think of anyone else who might help me other than the school. Due to my present situation, I am unable to place an ad in the local newspaper.

I am in the Penitentiary and will have to remain here for the biggest part of the rest of my life. I would like to be able to write to anyone who remembers me and find out a little about a lot of my old friends.

If you can find anyone still living in McLean that went to school with me, please give them my address.

I realize you are very busy and I really appreciate your time in reading my letter and in doing whatever you can in locating some for me.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

I realize that this is a strange request but I can't think of anyone else to help me with my problem.

I attended school in McLean in the 1950's and 1960's. I was a high school drop-out, but I would have graduated with the Class of 1965, had I finished.

My problem is, I would like to

NEWS OF PETS

Is your dog your best friend? Do you cherish that canine for its friendship and devotion?

Then enter your special pooch in the third annual "Search for the Great American Dog," a nationwide contest to identify, through photos and essays, the nation's Great American dog and owner.

Theme of this year's contest is "My Best Friend."

Sponsored by Purina Dog Chow, the author of the prize winning essay will receive $25,000 in cash plus their photo along with their dog on 8 million bags of Dog Chow, a four-day trip to New York City and a one-year supply of Dog Chow. The winning dog and owner will also appear on the Purina Dog Chow float in the 1985 Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

Here's how to enter: Dog owners submit a recent photograph of themselves (or a family member) and their dog, an essay of 50 words or less explaining why they consider their dog to be their best friend, and one weight circle from any Purina Dog Chow package.

An independent judging organization will select 500 semifinalists, ten from each of the 50 states, and then narrow the entries to five regional finalists. Entries must be postmarked by July 15, 1985 and received by July 19. Semifinalists will be announced in August, and the five finalists will be selected in October. The grand prize winner will be announced in November.

From the five finalists, the grand prize winner will be determined by a vote of the general public through specially assigned and advertised "900" numbers. The public will be able to view the finalists' photos and essays that will appear in free-standing ad inserts in Sunday newspapers and through contest spots on the Cable News Network.

This year, every contestant will receive a coupon for a free five-pound bag of Purina Dog Chow.

Betty Thomas who plays Lucy Bates on NBC's "Hill Street Blues" serves as Chairperson for the 1985 Search for the Great American Dog.

Cards Of Thanks

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the McLean 66 Rodeo Association for the memorial for Carl during the past rodeo. It helps to know that so many people loved Carl and respected him. I know Carl would appreciate it but would feel that you shouldn't have done it. A special thanks to Cherine and Dale Ray for the "Healing and Healing" memorial erected at the gate in memory of Carl.

The Family of Carl Lee Henley

Again I am faced with the task of trying to put into words the appreciation I have for everyone who helped make the Ex-Student Reunion such a huge success.

To Jim and Susan Barker who helped with the job of sending out the letters. They were there to help with whatever was needed.

To James and Pat Barker for setting up the class meetings, making posters and helping with the dance Saturday night.

To Essie Howard, Gladys Smith, Fern Woods, Kinette Anderson, Susan Barker who helped with registration Friday night.

To Catherine Weaver, Lela Kennedy, Nona Mann, Jane Herndon, Carl Dwyer, Joe Ray, Riley, Kinette Anderson, and Pat Barker who helped with registration Saturday morning.

To Kathy Carter for helping with the bar-b-que tickets Saturday morning.

To the ones who moved the tables and chairs to the park for the bar-b-que.

To the people who were kind enough to open their homes to welcome the ex-students for the class meetings.

To the Seniors Citizens for letting me use their building for registration Friday night, and for the class meetings Saturday.

To the Lion's Club and the bank for their buildings for class meetings.

To the ones who sent out letters for their classes.

To my brother and son who before the weekend was over, were wishing they could change their names.

To George Terry for setting up the P.A. system and helping with the awards and the business meeting.

And to all the Ex-Students who cared enough to help make the reunion a big success.

Thank you, June Suggs

Understanding Yourself

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS

Are you the kind of person who feels a sense of personal reward when you help others? Are you the kind of person who cares about your community and would like to help it be a better and safer place to live? If so, there's a good chance that you would be an ideal volunteer for an organization that has been a friend to millions of people in need for over a century.

Working for The Salvation Army, you'll be helping people from all walks of life— young and old, the poor, alcoholics, drug addicts, unwed mothers, families in trouble—and helping them achieve direction, hope and inner strength and a chance for a better future.

Alcoholics and drug abusers find hope at Salvation Army rehabilitation centers, which provide personal counseling and spiritual guidance as well as food, shelter, clothing, work therapy, medical and psychological assistance. Each year, thousands of men and women are restored to responsible living.

The Army offers older citizens companionship and diversified activities through its senior citizen centers. Residences, nutrition programs and "camping" are among the other special programs for this age group. You may like to serve as a League of Mercy volunteer. Last year, this group visited more than four million people in hospitals and nursing homes.

If you love children, you'll be glad to know Salvation Army youth programs give youngsters the opportunity to take part in wholesome activities, ranging from music to basketball. At the same time, they build character and teach important values, such as honesty and respect for others. Army day care centers for pre-school children enable many mothers to become self-supporting.

Cookin' With...Betty Crocker!

With family and ex-student reunions being held every weekend, I thought these appetizers might be handy for meals or snacks.

I've tried two of them with excellent results, and am anxious to try out the meatballs. South-of-the-Border Turnovers (Empanaditas)

Empanaditas are tiny versions of empanadas - meat-filled baked pastries served throughout Mexico and in many South American countries. They go well with Avocado Dip.

About 24 appetizers
 1/2 cup shortening
 2 tablespoons margarine or butter, softened

2 cups all-purpose flour
 4 to 6 tablespoons cold water
 Ham Filling or Chicken Filling (recipes below)

1 egg, separated
 1 tablespoon milk
 Cut shortening and margarine into flour and salt until particles are size of small peas.

Sprinkle in water, 1 tablespoon at a time, tossing with fork until all flour is moistened and pastry almost cleans side of bowl.

Gather pastry into a ball; divide into halves. Shape one half into flattened round on lightly floured cloth-covered board.

Roll pastry into rectangle, 13x10 inches; cut into 3-inch circles. Place on ungreased cookie sheet.

Prepare filling. Beat egg white slightly; brush on edges of pastry circles. Place 1 teaspoon filling on center of each circle. Fold pastry over filling; press edges with fork to seal securely. Repeat with remaining half pastry. Heat oven to 375 degrees. Mix egg yolk and milk; brush turnover with egg yolk mixture. Bake until light brown, 18 to 20 minutes.

Ham Filling
 1 can (4 1/2 ounces) deviled ham
 1/4 cup grated Cheddar cheese

1 teaspoon prepared mustard
 1/8 teaspoon pepper
Chicken Filling
 1/2 cup finely chopped cooked chicken

2 tablespoons taco or chili sauce
 2 tablespoons chopped stuffed olives
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 Mix all ingredients

Cheese-Stuffed Mushrooms
 Select firm white or creamy-beige mushrooms with caps that are closely or slightly open around the stem for this hot hors d'oeuvre from Italy.

About 24 appetizers
 1 pound medium mushrooms (about 24)
 1/4 cup finely chopped green onions (with tops)

1 clove garlic, finely chopped
 1/4 cup margarine or butter
 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

2 tablespoons snipped parsley
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon dried basil leaves
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 Cut ends from mushroom stems. Remove stems from mushrooms; chop stems finely. Cook and stir mushroom stems, green onions and garlic in margarine over medium heat until tender, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in remaining ingredients.

Fill mushroom caps with stuffing mixture. Place mushrooms filled sides up in greased baking dish. Cook in 350 degree oven 15 minutes.

Serve hot.

Little Latin Meatballs

Served as appetizers in many Latin American countries and in Spain, these perky meatballs can be made in advance and kept warm in the chafing dish. For ease in eating, provide guests with bamboo skewers or decorative party picks.
 36 meatballs

2 jalapeno chilies
 1 pound ground beef
 1 egg
 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
 1/4 cup milk
 1/4 cup shredded Monterey Jack or Cheddar cheese
 1 small onion, finely chopped
 1 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon pepper
 Salsa (recipe below)
 Remove stems, seeds and membranes from chilies; chop chilies. Mix chilies, beef, egg, bread crumbs, milk, cheese, onion, salt and pepper. Shape mixture into 1-inch balls. Place meatballs in ungreased oblong pan, 13 x 9 x 2 inches.

Cook uncovered in 400 degree oven until brown, 15 to 20 minutes. Place meatballs in chafing dish. Pour Salsa over meatballs.
Salsa
 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
 1 medium tomato, chopped
 2 cloves garlic, finely

chopped
 2 tablespoons snipped parsley
 1 tablespoon vinegar
 1/8 teaspoon ground cumin
 1/8 teaspoon salt
 Heat all ingredients in 1-quart saucepan, stirring occasionally, until hot.

IT'S A FACT!

A look at your eyes may show you a surprise: as you get older, the lens of your eye changes. The lens in a healthy eye of a young person is clear and soft. As a person ages, the lens becomes hard and loses some of its transparency. Certain medical conditions can also cause changes in the lens. These changes often effect the way the person sees light. What's comfortable light to most people is glaringly uncomfortable to some 15 million Americans, many of whom are elderly.

For them, a lens has been developed to filter out the short wavelengths of light which causes glare. These lenses are called CPF* for Corning Photochromic Filter. For many people they improve contrast. They make reading easier and simplify getting around. Many light-sensitive people ask their eye-care professionals if they may borrow trial CPF* lenses that clip over regular eyeglasses to try them out.

New Breakthroughs in Immunology and Virology?

More vital dollars are needed to find the cause, prevention, cure and treatment of multiple sclerosis.

By Vice Admiral Thor Hanson (ret.)
President of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society

The most recent developments in the understanding of multiple sclerosis (MS) stem from dramatic advances in fundamental science. This is particularly true in the fields of immunology, virology and genetics. Once the mechanism of MS is known, science will be on the way to finding an effective means of preventing or curing it. Current research focuses on the following areas:

- Immunology: It has been found that people with MS have abnormal immune responses. Scientists are now clarifying these abnormalities and looking for ways to reverse them. They are studying the development of antibodies and the alteration of lymphocytes which are capable, in theory, of destroying the vital myelin covering of nerve fibers in the brain and spinal cord. It is this myelin which MS destroys.

- Virology: Research suggests that viruses encountered in childhood may play a role in triggering the disease process. Scientists are searching to identify one or more relevant infectious agents. If such were found, the discovery could lead to a better understanding of the pathogenic mechanism of multiple sclerosis as well as suggest possible methods of prevention.

- Epidemiology (the study of the incidence and spread of disease): Studies are underway to determine which environmental factors are associated with higher or lower levels of disease. The aspect of genetics involving the tendency of a person to be predisposed to the disease is one of the most important areas of investigation.

- Clinical Trials: As a major part of the Society's program, grants are awarded for controlled clinical trials at major medical centers to evaluate the effectiveness of different types of therapies proposed to alleviate the symptoms of multiple sclerosis.

spotlight on religion

One of America's greatest friends in the Near East is the Muslim land of Morocco. Its leader, King Hassan II, is not only the Head of State, but, as a direct descendent of the prophet Muhammad, Commander of the Faithful as well. Ninety-nine percent of the Moroccan population of 21,384,000 follow the Muslim faith.

There are nearly 900 million Muslims in the world today, about a fifth of all humanity.

Many Americans may be surprised to learn that not only is Morocco close to us politically and economically, but, according to people at the U.S. State Department, there are many parallels in religions as well.

Just as the Christians and Jews of the United States, Muslims believe in one God. Just as the Ten Commandments say: "Honor thy father and thy mother," the Koran, the Muslim bible says: "Respect women who have borne you." The Bible says: "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." The Koran warns: "God loveth not the speaking ill of anyone in public." Just as many Christians celebrate their faith by giving something up for the 40 days of Lent, the Muslim holiday of Ramadan requires certain sacrifices for a lunar month.

During Ramadan, Muslims eat no food, drink no liquids, and refrain from smoking, sex and other corporeal pleasures between sunrise and sundown. In Morocco, every Muslim from the King on down observes this holiday, with the exemption only of pregnant women, children, and travelers, although travelers are supposed to make up by fasting later. The children, for the most part, look forward to growing up to the point where they, too, can fast. Because the whole country celebrates together, Moroccans say, the fast is easier to observe. Ramadan is a time of great solidarity, both within the family and within the country and participants often find the experience deeply rewarding.

Ramadan is held in the ninth month of the Muslim lunar calendar. The twelve months of that calendar add up to 354 days, 355 on leap year. Muslim holidays are moveable feasts compared with the calendar we use. This year, Ramadan began May 21st. It won't start there again until 2011 A.D.

Hints For Homeowners

Fireplace Cleanup

Cleaning the fireplace is more than just a cosmetic job. Burning wood emits a chemical called creosote, which can coat your fireplace and flue. This coating is unsightly and has a smell, but more important, it can be ignited. Most fireplace flue fires are due to a buildup of creosote and soot. The chimney sweep, working from the roof, will brush the creosote and soot buildup from your chimney with a series of steel brushes. It is recommended that you have your chimney swept at least every two years, and more often if you use your fireplace a lot.

When he has finished, it's time for you to get to work. Begin by getting rid of any ashes, especially on the chimney step, a ledge in the upper rear of your fireplace where it meets the chimney. Reach up with a small broom and brush the ashes down, collect in a dustpan and transfer them to a large paper bag. Vacuum up any remaining ashes, using the long nozzle.

Next, it's time to clean the grate. Most of the time, it just needs to be brushed off, but if there is any baked-on dirt, take it outside and wash it with hot, soapy water. Dry it off and return it to the fireplace when the whole job is done.

What vacuuming and brushing can't remove is the sooty buildup from smoke in the interior of the fireplace. This residue, besides being unsightly, can cause an odor which permeates the entire room. A good scrubbing with hot, soapy water, in solution with Clorox liquid bleach can remove the stain from the walls of the fireplace and kill the odor, leaving your fireplace once more smelling fresh and clean. While you're at it, be sure to wash down the hearth, the apron in front of the fireplace. It also gets dirty and needs attention.

THEN-NOW!

In 1967, a prescription cold, hay fever and sinus product was introduced that quickly became the number one selling brand in its category. Doctors wrote millions of prescriptions for this medication that provided temporary, effective relief from runny nose, nasal congestion, sneezing and other such symptoms.

The product is now available for the first time in an alcohol-free, wild-cherry flavored syrup called Drinoral Syrup, from Schering Corporation. A recent taste test of 100 pharmacists found that most said they would prefer to give their own children this syrup over a comparable leading product. Drinoral is considered one of the most effective non-prescription products available for relief of nasal congestion due to colds, hay fever or sinusitis.

Out on the JOB WATCH UP FOR POWER LINES

Out on the job, power lines bring needed electricity to the site. But they can be dangerous... if you don't watch up! You need to be especially careful when you are handling re-bar, pipes, scaffolding, or tools that are long enough to contact overhead lines. Contact with power lines is also a potential danger to operators of front-end loaders, dump trucks and any other equipment of unusual height.

Keep an eye up for power lines. Watch up, for safety's sake.
