Eight athletes were given special recognition Monday night at the annual All-Sports Banquet at the McLean Country Club. The McLean News Most Valuable Girl Athlete award was presented to senior Eva Anderson.

The McLean News Most Valuable Football Player Award was given to senior Dale Glenn Gipson. The athletes vote on these two awards.

The coaches' awards went to Stefanie Houdyshell for the Tigerette Fighting Heart Award, and to Frank Todd for the Tiger Fighting Heart Award. Both athletes are seniors.

Lions Club awards were presented to Maria Eck as Fighting Tigerette, and to Andy Eck and Scott Stubbs for Fighting Tiger Award.

Basketball coach Frank Purcell recognized senior Kevin Nicholson as the outstanding basketball player.

The speaker at the banquet was all-time great football player Dick Todd who played at Texas A&M and also played professionally for the Washington Redskins.

He told the young athletes that competition was one of the most important aspects of life, and pointed out that each person competes in some area every day. He said that the key to success in any endeavor was commitment to doing ones best.

Master of ceremonies for the banquet was Lion Boss Ted Simmons. During the banquet, the high school coaches recognized the members of the tennis, golf, track and field, basketball, and football teams, and recited some of the accomplishments of the athletes.

The class will graduate May 13 at 8 p.m. in the McLean High School auditorium.

The banquet was sponsored jointly by the McLean Lions Club and McDowell.

The high school band will play "Honor Roll March," "Fantasy on a Fanfare," "First Fugue," "Do-Re-Mi," Lean Independent School District. Lion Dorman Thomas was in charge of tickets. Lion Casper Smith was in charge of supplies and technical arrangements, and Lion Johnny Haynes was the chairman of the decorating committee.

Three Girls Head Eighth Grade Class

Three girls are the top students in the McLean eighth grade graduating class this year, according to an announcement this week by Dorman Thomas, junior high principal.

Kim Wiginton, with an average of 98.375, is the valedictorian of the class, and Shawn Crockett and Colleen Orrick, each with a grade point of 93.583, are tied for salutatorian honors.

Miss Wiginton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Wiginton. Miss Crockett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Crockett, and Miss Orrick is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Orrick.

Eighth grade graduation has been set for May 12 at 8 p.m.

VFW Auxiliary To Host Supper For Members

A salad supper will be held by the VFW Ladies Auxiliary Post 8565 for auxiliary and post members and their families on Tuesday, May 3 at 6:30 p.m. in the post home. Following the supper, new auxiliary officers will be installed and regular meetings will be held. All members are urged to attend.

McDowell, Patman Named Among Top Merit Scorers

McLean High School received notification this week that two juniors, Kevin McDowell and Allen Patman, were among the top 50,000 (out of one million) who took the National Merit Scholarship tests.

The tests are administered to the top 40 to 50 percent of the students in the United States, according to principal Ron Cummings.

The designation of the two boys as top scorers will allow colleges to identify, honor and focus attention on academically able students.

McDowell is the son of Mollie McDowell and Bob McDowell. Patman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Patman.

Free Cheese And Butter Available To Residents

Free cheese and butter are still available to those who qualify at the McLean Senior Citizens, according to Bill Graham. Graham said that there had been some confusion about the information required to receive the free commodities.

According to information furnished by the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation, each recipient is asked to fill out a form the first time cheese or butter is received. The form calls for the persons name, address, telephone, and social security number, and the total number in the household.

Anyone who qualifies under any one of the ten different programs is eligible. Those programs are Aid to Families with Dependent Children, food stamps, the free school lunch program, age 60 and above, Medicaid, rental subsidy, social security, supplemental security, unemployed or workmen's compensation.

Those who are under any of those programs are not required to divulge any further information, including income of the household.

Once the form is filled out, the applicant will only sign his name and give his social security number each time he received the commodities. He fills out the first form only one time.

Area Ag Men Begin Drive To Raise Funds For Repair

Local farmers and ranchers are beginning a drive to repair and have certified the community stock scales at the Felton Webb Arena north of McLean.

Public weighing at the McLean Cattle Co. Inc. has been discontinued, and area stockmen will again be using the scales at the rodeo arena. Plans are now being completed to weigh trucks at the old feed yards west of McLean on I-40.

Contributions are needed in the area of $750 to $1,000 total and can be made to a special fund at the American National Bank.

In a few weeks, the atmosphere at the News office will change drastically.

Beginning May 16, Lisa Patman, who has worked at the paper as long as I have, is striking out on her own.

She will be working full-time selling her column "Loose Marbles" to newspapers and magazines around the state.

At this time, she already has contracts from several publications who, like the rest of us, have become big fans of Marbles in the last five years.

I learned a long time ago that there is no permanence in life, but this is one change that I anticipate with a mixture of both fear and joy.

The joy comes because Lisa is not just a co-worker... she is my best and dearest friend, and I am delighted that she is going on to bigger and better things. I fully anticipate that Marbles will be as big a success throughout the state as it has been locally. And it is time for Marbles to grow and reach bigger markets.

The five years at The McLean News have given Lisa the confidence (and the audience) that she needed to become more and more creative with her work.

But I dread the change because I know that things will never be quite the same again.

The working relationship between Lisa and I has had many of the aspects of a good marriage. We have exulted together in many triumphs and shared many sorrows. We have worked to the point of physical exhaustion, and cheered each other enough to keep on going.

We have spent long hours discussing the important and unimportant things in life: children, money, hairstyles, diets, ethics, story treatments, sportscars, husbands, friends, and enemies.

But best of all, I think we have counter-balanced each other for a near-perfect working situation. Lisa is slow and methodical. I am energetic and quick. I have laughed many times and said that if Lisa were the sole worker at the News, the paper would never be finished, but I have had to admit that if I were the sole worker, the paper might be shoddy and haphazard.

So I will sorely miss that balance.

I will also miss her complete zainness, for Loose Marbles is not the only time that she is crazy and funny. She has a peculiar, cross-eyed view of life that lets her see things just a little off center from the rest of the world. For someone like me, who has a tendency to be just a little stodgy, working with Lisa has been refreshing and stimulating.

So for both of us, May 16 will be a time of endings and beginnings.

I know that Lisa is beginning a climb that may lead to the very top of her profession, and that we at the News office are beginning a time of adjustment and reappraisal.

Thomas Fuller said "If you have one true friend, you have more than your share." For the last five years, I have had "more than my share", and although our working relationship is changing, I know that the friendship will remain forever.

Who's Really Stirring The Pot?

by Sandy Woods
The Lipscomb County Limelight

One of the topics that caught my attention at last week-end's newspaper contest was a comment made by Harold Hudson of The Perryton Herald regarding the declining role of the community newspaper. Harold, a good friend and old salt in the publishing business, full of experience and wisdom, made an observation concerning the lack of many community newspapers to face controversy, report on it, and take a stand.

"Most small community newspapers have become no more than a glorified shopper these days, failing to face anything in their community that even touches on the controversial," stated Hudson.

His words could not have been more welcome. Anytime controversy arises or a two-sided issue crops up, a newspaper has basically two routes to follow. We can ignore, overlook, and shy away (a pretty safe road to follow for staying out of trouble) or we can try to the best of our ability to get the facts out front. There is risk involved in alternative number two...on any controversial topic you can be sure that no matter what you write, one out of two people will be angry.

In regard to the recent school consolidation petition we had again to choose to follow one of the two alternatives. It's not particularly pleasant to attempt to interview people when controversy is involved, but it is our job. We believe that the public's right to know is our prime reason for being here. We receive approximately $12 a year from 1500 people to take the time to search for the facts...to bring the news into print.

The most frequent comment that gets under my skin three inches deep is "There they go again stirring up trouble." Why is it when everybody is talking about it, everybody knows it, all is clear on the western front. But let a fella put it in print...and all of a sudden the newspaper is stirring up trouble. It is kind of like a caterer at a wedding serving poisoned punch. Who really stirred up the punch...the caterer, or the fella serving it to the guests?

We firmly believe we have a responsibility to our readers to search out and report on all issues...those that are controversial and those that are not. It is an unpleasant task at times, but we can't please everyone and we will not dodge the issues to dodge the accompanying criticism.

Not long ago a public official informed me when I was requesting information for an interview that the information wasn't for publication...if somebody wanted to know in the country they could come and ask for themselves. I backed off to avoid a conflict, and I should not have. That's what we are paid for. That is what a reader expects of a good publication. We are here to get information to our readers that they neither have the time or expertise to search out for themselves.

You can be sure we are not out looking for controversy, but you can also be sure that when it arises we will do our best to face it squarely, and get the facts to our readers. Much more damage is done over the telephone wire and over the coffee cups than through a factual news article in the paper. Isn't the former where the real pot-stirring is being done?

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS

Congress has passed legislation designed to make the Social Security system financially sound into the 21st century. As much as I disliked having to accept some of the changes included in the legislation, I reluctantly concluded that there was no other way to maintain a viable retirement income system.

As recently as 1950, there were 16 workers for every person receiving Social Security. Today, there are only three workers for each retired person receiving Social Security. By the end of the century, that ratio will be only two-to-one. In the meantime, Social Security benefits have risen faster than wages. During the last three years, for example, wages went up an average of 30 percent. Social Security checks increased by 40 percent during that same period.

Additionally, the Social Security system has been expanded dramatically from its inception as a provider of supplemental retirement income. This same system now provides disability benefits, medical insurance and other kinds of payments. While some of these additional functions have merit, they proved impossible to fund from the same resources which we have been using for ever-increasing levels of retirement payments.

As a result, the Social Security trust funds were literally on the verge of bankruptcy, and several long- and short-term solutions were required.

The financing problems through 1990 were addressed through a combination of tax increases and a reduction of scheduled benefits. Only one-quarter of the relief package is derived from reducing benefits, and this comes primarily from delaying the scheduled cost-of-living increase by six months.

I deeply regretted having to go along with this delay, but reluctantly concluded that we must take this action to bring the rate of Social Security increases more in line with that of wages, which, in turn, determine the amount of money available to be paid.

Additionally, this legislation brings virtually every working citizen in our country, including members of Congress, under mandatory Social Security coverage. This will mean that all Americans are to be covered by the same retirement system. In that way, the system will affect everyone equally, and, if changes are necessary, all citizens will have the same interest in keeping the system viable.

The bill addresses the long-term financing problems of Social Security by raising the retirement age from 65 to 67 in two six-year steps, the first beginning in 1999 and the second in 2016. The retirement age has not been raised since the creation of the program in the 1930s. Yet, during the past 50 years, the life expectancy and the number of productive working years most Americans can expect to enjoy have risen significantly.

The legislation we have passed this year makes the same promise, one that I hope will come to pass. We have a sacred obligation to the American people to preserve Social Security as a source of promised retirement income. In order to preserve it for this purpose, we must continue to exercise fiscal responsibility in administering Social Security. This year's bill provides the foundation for a sound future for the system, but we must be careful not to overburden its resources again.

AUSTIN — Current agricultural trucking regulations have forced Texas consumers to pay higher prices for Texas products. For example, if you wanted to send a livestock shipment from Stratford, Texas to Amarillo it would cost you about $250. If you sent a livestock shipment from Stratford to Liberal, Kansas, the price you would pay would be approximately $150. The distance between Stratford and Amarillo and Stratford and Liberal is the same, so why is the price different? The reason is that intrastate (within Texas) rates are regulated and interstate (across state lines) are not. The problem exists not only in Texas but in several other states. Currently, about 20 states, including Texas, are working on legislation which would support trucking deregulation for agricultural commodities.

In Texas, the regulation of the trucking industry is in the hands of the Texas Railroad Commission. The Commission regulates the trucking industry by setting rates for hauling freight, deciding who can carry that freight and by setting insurance requirements. For instance, under the current law, if you decide to haul freight between Amarillo and Houston, you must first apply to the Railroad Commission for a certificate of public convenience and necessity.

We are sponsoring legislation in the Texas Senate which supports deregulation for agricultural commodities. Specifically, the legislation stipulates that a person transporting eligible agricultural commodities is not required to obtain a certificate of convenience and necessity if he or she holds an agriculture permit issued by the Commission. A person holding an agriculture permit would, under this legislation, be permitted to transport eligible agricultural commodities from any point of origin to any destination, within the state, at a competitive rate.

Free competition in agricultural trucking will lower the costs of delivering agricultural products and provide a profit to the producer with a lower total cost to the consumer. Lower cost to the agricultural producer means he can sell his delivered product at a lower price and still stay in business. Texas consumers will likely see more economical prices when free competition is allowed in agricultural trucking.

We feel this legislation will also open up agricultural trucking to a larger number of carriers and help drive down the cost of transporting agricultural products. There will be more intrastate business when the large grocers realize they no longer need to send their trucks out of state to buy produce and instead they can buy at home.

The legislation we have proposed will have a positive impact on the consumer, producer, shipper and trucker. We feel deregulation for agricultural commodities will help bring state regulation in line with federal regulation.

If you have any questions about this legislation or if we can be of any assistance to you, please let us know by writing, Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Watching
Washington

Groundhogs, rheumatism and woolly caterpillars were, not so long ago, among the farmer's most reliable means of predicting weather.

And if he wasn't reading his almanac, a farmer usually was scanning the horizon for signs of storms.

Nowadays, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) has land and weather satellite systems feeding information to the National Weather Service to help predict the weather more accurately.

Satellite weather information is of great importance to all Americans, not only in planning for their personal activities and safety, but because it helps farmers feed the American consumer for a smaller percentage of take-home pay than any other country in the world.

Accurate weather reports can reduce the use of chemical herbicides and pesticides by up to 20 percent, cutting costs substantially. And recent experiments in Africa show that fertilizing and planting by modern weather forecasts can increase crop yields some 30 percent.

In Texas, agricultural weather forecasts provided by centers in College Station and Lubbock make possible more efficient and productive farming practices and contribute greatly to the $10.4 billion in annual cash receipts by Texas farmers.

The administration in Washington recently proposed selling the government's land and weather satellites to a private company. The government would then subsidize the company to ensure that the satellites stay in operation.

No one has offered a satisfactory explanation as to why this proposal has been advanced. From all available evidence it would not reduce the deficit, but would cost taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars. On top of this, farmers and others who now receive specialized weather forecasts at no charge would have to pay for them.

I have written to Office of Management and Budget Director David Stockman urging him to give more thought and study to this proposal.

Last year a similar move to terminate agricultural weather forecasting offices was soundly rejected by Congress because this service meets an important national need.

Further, I do not believe it is wise to begin charging farmers for such vital weather forecasts as frost warnings. Real net farm income is at the lowest levels since the 1930s and is not expected to improve much this year. Farmers don't need this added burden.

The head of the NOAA, in announcing the proposal, said this sale might wind up costing taxpayers $100 million or more each year for perhaps ten years. A Commerce Department study ups that estimate to $190 million a year.

Congress has given the Executive Branch a clear mandate to serve the public interest in helping to predict the weather, explore and map the globe, and assist in the management and wise use of our natural resources through our land and weather satellite program.

With the large federal deficits plaguing our economy, I urge the Administration to seek far better information than it now has on the effects of this sale before proceeding any further.

LIBRARY NOTES

Starving for Attention
Cherry Boone O'Neill
This new book which has attracted nation-wide attention, is the true story of a desperate struggle for survival in the heart of Hollywood... as Pat Boone's daughter triumphs over anorexia nervosa, the frightening disease now sweeping America.

Cherry Boone was an excellent student and a strong athlete, but for ten years she dieted herself away to but 80 pounds of skin and bones. This is her story of her painful ordeal with anorexia nervosa, which now afflicts up to one million young women and kills 15 percent of them.

In this dramatic book, Cherry reveals the horrifying cycle that became her own flirtation with death. For the first time, she talks about her compulsion, first felt as a child, to be "perfect" in every way. She tells of the strict diet begun at age 13 that soon escalated to fasts and vigorous exercises. She tells of the diet pills that not only curbed her appetite but helped her stay awake, to keep up with school work while on concert tours. She tells of gorging, forced vomiting and laxative abuse that almost became a daily routine, and how when she deteriorated to a mere 80 pounds, still "felt fat."

"Starving for Attention" is the story of how Cherry triumphed over this dread disease with the help of a psychiatrist, her husband and family and her faith in God.

This book is "must" reading, not only for victims of anorexia but for everyone seduced by our culture to "be thin." You will not want to miss it, and it is now available at Lovett Memorial Library.

Loose Marbles

by Lisa Patman

Eric Weber has written a new book, 101 Best Opening Lines, which may be a sequel to his popular How To Pick Up Girls. I don't know whether old Eric writes from experience, but I do know that his opening lines are a vast improvement on the ones I got when I was young and single.

For instance, Eric suggests that a young buck go up to the lady of his choice at the health club and say, "You're in such great shape, this place ought to use you in their ads." The only thing I ever got at a health club, aside from several sore globs of cellulite, was an offer for three more months at half price, if only I wouldn't tell my friends where I was working out. Needless to say, I did not ride off into the sunset and marry the manager of the spa.

At the butcher shop, Eric suggests that the nervous swain try looking vulnerable, and asking the nearest beautiful woman, "Excuse me, but how long do you fry a roast beef?" Now, I don't know about this line for an opener, because the length of time it takes to fry a roast beef is somewhat debatable. The one time I advised a guy on frying a roast beef I never saw him again, which was just as well I suppose, since he was the butcher and I had always suspected that he weighed the meat a little heavy. Of course, he may have been trying to get my attention. Maybe that's the way a butcher flirts.

And Eric goes on to suggest that the perfect opener in the bakery is, "How does a pastry lover like you stay so thin?" He may have something there. I know that I would certainly fall into the arms of the first guy who used that line on me. I'd probably kill him with the force of the blow, having wolfed down all those doughnuts while waiting for him to notice me, but at least he'd die a happy man, having the girl of his dreams succumb to his one-liner.

Of course, not all the lines I heard back in the golden days of my youth were unsuccessful. Old Dad won me over quite easily with his opening line. The silver-tongued devil was waltzing me around the dance floor, the music was sweet and low, and the air was thick with romance, when he leaned close to my ear and softly whispered, "You sweat less than any fat girl I know."

Old Eric sure missed out on a sure bet when he left out that one.

Julian Retires From Lefors

Superintendent Jerrel Julian is retiring after 10 years as chief administrator of the Lefors Schools. Julian is ending 35 years of service in the field of education.

His wife Marie is also retiring after 26 years of teaching. She taught in McLean and Pampa before coming to Lefors four years ago.

The Julians have one son, Harvey, who works at Texas Instruments at Lubbock.

The couple plans to move to Forney where they have bought property.

Julian, who was born in Hunt County, and graduated from Josephine High School, obtained his Bachelor of Science degree from North Texas State University in 1945. In 1949 he was granted a Master of Education degree from North Texas State University.

Julian was in the Texas 36th division of the National Guard when it was mobilized in 1941 for the duration of the war. He served as a combat engineer, and was among a group of Americans who landed in both Salerno, Italy, and southern France before the main invasion forces.

In July, 1945, he married Marie Thomas. The Julians taught at Weibert, Texline, and Panhandle before coming to Lefors in 1964.

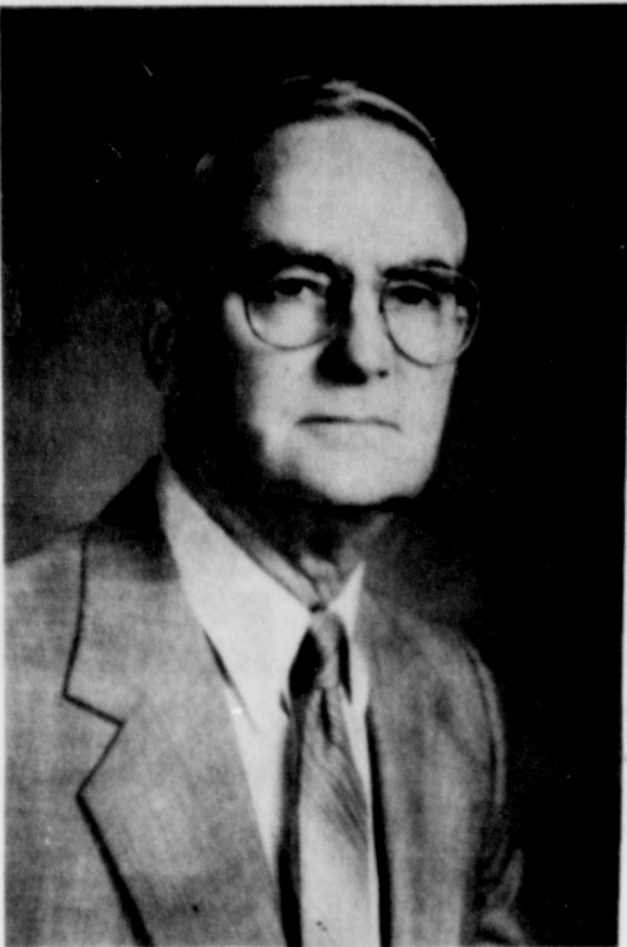

Julian is a member of the Masonic Lodge, the Texas Association of School Administrators, the Texas Association of Community Schools, the Lefors Lions Club, and the First Baptist Church.

Julian said of his years in Lefors "I am happy to have been a small part of this little community of Lefors and will always remember the many nice people that have been a part of my life. My joys and my sorrows have been shared with these people, and I will always cherish them."

Also retiring at Lefors are Chester Hill, who has been a custodian for 26 years, and Claude Lamb, who has been high school custodian for 10 years.

INFLATION-FIGHTING FOOD IDEAS

ECONOMY DISH FOR SUMMER PARTIES

Late spring is the traditional time to open the season for outdoor parties and gatherings featuring festive foods.

Many smart homemakers are aware of rice as an economical basis for budget-stretching meals. Some may not be aware that this nutritious food makes a marvelous base for cold salads as well as hot dishes.

This recipe for Golden Rice Salad teams cooked rice (simmer it in chicken broth for extra flavor!) with crunchy celery and chopped pickles, ripe olives and colorful pimientos. Hard-cooked eggs add extra protein and texture interest.

GOLDEN RICE SALAD
4-1/2 cups hot cooked rice (cooked in chicken broth)

1/4 cup vegetable oil
2 tablespoons vinegar
1-1/2 teaspoons salt

1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
1/2 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons prepared mustard

1-1/2 cups sliced celery
1 cup sliced, pitted ripe olives
1/4 cup chopped dill pickles

1/4 cup chopped pimientos
1 small onion, minced
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced

Spoon rice into a large mixing bowl. Blend oil, vinegar, salt and pepper; pour over hot rice. Mix well; set aside to cool. Combine mayonnaise and mustard. Stir into rice mixture. Add celery, olives, pickles, pimientos, and onion. Mix well. Gently stir in eggs. Chill or serve at room temperature. Makes 8 servings.

Another dish that's big with crowds is Classic Rice Salad. It is made with rice, onions, sweet pickles, pimientos and hard cooked eggs in a mayonnaise and mustard sauce. Both Golden Rice Salad and Classic Rice Salad can be made to serve 25 people very economically. The recipes for these—and for a nicely ricey assortment of six other cool and clever salads from around the world—can be found in a free booklet, ideal to tuck away in your "party" file.

For a copy, send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to: Rice Council, Dept. RS, Post Office Box 740121, Houston, Texas 77274. Ask for Rice Salads.

In The Kitchen

We have several Pampa readers who seem to enjoy these recipes almost as much as anything in the paper. One of them gave me a recipe that is currently making the rounds in our neighboring city, and I want to share it with you.

Maw's Peanut Butter Cookies

1 c. Karo
1 c. sugar

Mix and boil until the sugar is melted. Add 1/2 c. crunchy peanut butter and mix. Add 1 tsp. vanilla. Then add 4 or 5 cups Special K cereal and mix well.

Butter a cookie sheet, and using your buttered hands, pinch off dough and shape into flat cookies. DO NOT BAKE. Let set for a few minutes and then eat. Delicious.

LAWN LORE

Crabgrass Control

Crabgrass. Who needs it? Not you.

Control this weedy grass now—before it controls your lawn. Crabgrass seeds have been dormant over the winter—just waiting to "pop" when temperatures climb to the 80's. Apply a crabgrass preventer in early spring—before weed seeds germinate—and crabgrass won't stand a chance, say the lawn experts at O.M. Scott & Sons.

Scott's offers two tips to insure excellent results when using a crabgrass preventer. First, use an accurate drop-type spreader and be sure to overlap wheel tracks slightly to avoid streaks of crabgrass in missed areas. Second, once the product is applied, do not rake the treated area. Disturbing the herbicide "barrier" will give crabgrass the break it needs to grow.

When used on an established lawn, crabgrass preventer will do no harm to the existing grass. If you are planting a new lawn or re-seeding a thin lawn, Scott's suggests using a product specially designed for recently seeded areas.

Whether the lawn you are treating is old or new, be sure to make the most of your time and money by choosing a crabgrass preventer that also gives the grass a complete fertilization. Your lawn will notice—and so will the neighbors.

McLean High School will send three boys to regional competition in Levelland May 6, following the district track meet at Groom last week. Tigers Andy Eck, Billy Corley, and Randall Wynn will represent the district in the long jump and the 400-meter run. McLean boys swept the top three places in the long jump, with Eck first, Wynn, second, and Scott Stubbs, third. Only the top two places go on to regional competition.

Corley came in first in the 400-meter run to win his berth at regional.

In other events, the 400-meter relay team of Wynn, Stubbs, Eck, and Corley, placed third. Mitch Reynolds was third in the 3200-meter run. Andy Eck was third in the 110 high hurdles. Scott Stubbs was fifth in the 400-meter run. Andy Eck was fifth in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles. DeWayne Adamson was sixth in the 1600-meter run.

In the 1600-meter relay, McLean was third with Wynn, Corley, Stubbs, and Elson Rice running. Andy Eck was third in the high jump. DeWayne Adamson was fourth in the discus.

In junior high competition, Clint Herndon led the Cubs with a first-place win in the 100-meter dash. Matt Sanderson was fifth in the event, and Billy Beck was sixth. Herndon was also second in the long jump. The McLean boys team was second in the 400-meter relay with Billy Beck, Keith Christopher, Sanderson, and Herndon running. Sanderson was also sixth in the 200-meter run. McLean's team was fifth in the 1600-meter relay, with Christopher, Darren Johnson, Andrew Harris, and Herndon running. Christopher was fifth in the shot, and Bill Watkins was sixth in the event. Watkins was fifth in the discus.

Tigerettes End Season At Levelland Meet

The regional meet at Levelland Friday marked the end of track for McLean's girls, but prospects look good for next year, according to coach Frank Purcell.

Freshman Kristi Thompson ran a 62.1 in the preliminaries for the third fastest time. Although she was fifth in the finals, Purcell said she "has an excellent chance of improving her time, and doing better next year."

The spring-relay team, with Lee Ann Tate, Melanie Billingsley, Maria Eck, and Kristie Thompson running, had a time of 53.1. Purcell said "The hand offs were good. I think the girls have great potential for next year, since they will all be back. They did a great job."

Melanie Billingsley also ran the 800-meter because the first place winner from our district dropped out. Miss Billingsley ran a 2.54 in the preliminaries.

Girls Doubles Team Competes At Regional

McLean's girls tennis teams represented the district at the regional tennis meet in Levelland Thursday. Stefanie Houdyshell and Eva Anderson lost to a doubles team from Anton, 6-1, 6-0 in the first round of competition.

The boys team of Darin Corley and Chris Fontaine will go to regional competition May 5.

Former McLean Superintendent Dies

Logan Oliver Cummings, 77, of Austin, died Thursday.

He was a graduate of Texas A&M and received his Master's degree from Texas Tech University. Cummings was a school administrator in the Texas Panhandle for 25 years, having served as superintendent of schools in Wellington, McLean, and Ralls. He was county school superintendent of Collingsworth County, assistant county superintendent of Travis County and was the first principal of Del Valle High School.

Cummings was a business manager of Ernes

School and was a past employee of Travis County Tax Assessor's office. He was a 32 degree Mason and was a member of Highland Park Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Inez Cummings, Austin; daughter, Mrs. Carol Hooper, Dennison; two grandchildren, Windy Hooper and Andy Hooper, both of Dennison; brother, Bill Cummings, Austin; sister, Mrs. Jewel Powell, Amarillo; numerous nieces and nephews.

The family asks that memorial contributions be made to the American Cancer Society.

Heald United Methodist Church Celebrating 80 Years

Red-breasted robins and warbling mockingbirds flit from bush to bush, singing in the bright spring sunshine. The silence of the countryside is undisturbed by the traffic on Interstate 40 only three miles away. An occasional car comes down the dirt road in front of the little white stucco church, which sits at a cross road in the heart of what was once a thriving community.

In fact, the modern automobile on the dusty road is the only clue that this is 1983, and not the spring of 1903 when the congregation of Heald Methodist Church was formed. The peaceful church has an air of timelessness about it. Sunday afternoon, the past and the present will come together when the congregation celebrates its 80th anniversary with a dinner on the grounds and a concert by the group Sharing from Amarillo. Officials of the church said that they expect a large number of former members and the descendants of former members to return for the reunion.

The first congregation, started by the Rev. George Fort of Clarendon, met in the Heald school which was located one mile south of the present church and then at the second school, across the road from the present church.

It was not until 1929 that the building which houses the congregation was built by volunteers.

Although the building itself is 54 years old, the interior has been totally refurbished, again by the loving hands of volunteers.

The present church is paneled in rich ash wood and the floors are covered with a thick gold and brown carpet paid for by a fund started by Lush Rogers. An oil painting of the face of Christ, done by local artist Peggy King and presented to the church in 1981, is the centerpiece of the altar area. A new registry was given by the O.O. Tates.

Two colorful stained glass windows are the focal point at the entrance to the church. Both windows were installed when the church was built. One was given in memory of T.H. and Martha "Grandma" Rogers by their sons, and one was given by the children of Mary E. Rippey.

The refurbished church has three ceiling fans (two donated by the Wink Gideons, Jack Baileys, R. Sayes, M. Chilton, Henry Bailey, and Oliver Elliott, and one by the A. W. Lankfords) and new velvet pew cushions, made by Mrs. D. L. Holder of Amarillo, and paid for with donations in memory of Emily Rippey.

Mrs. Buster Cofer bought song books for the church and donated the carpet in the basement. New storm windows were also installed by the volunteers. Those who worked on the current remodeling were Mr. and Mrs. Ott Davis, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lankford, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Jackson, Virginia Tate, and Dora Mae Bailey.

The beautiful sanctuary is a culmination of 80 years of dedicated service by a small group of people.

The Heald church was organized and met for the first time on April 5, 1903, with 10 members present. They were Elliott Whitley, Mrs. Martha W. Robinson, Mrs. Lou- rain Morris, John A. Haynes, Mrs. Louisa C. Haynes, Willie L. Haynes, Anna Mabel Haynes, Mattie E. Taylor, Mill- edge Taylor, and James A. Taylor.

During that first year, 11 others joined the church, including Estelle Rippey Roach, who joined Aug. 9, 1903. Mrs. Roach now lives in Pampa. When she joined 80 years ago, she began a family tradition. Some member of the Rippey family has been active in the church continuously since that time.

One of the most beloved members was Mrs. Nida Rippey Green, who has a rich part in the history of both the church and of that community. Miss Nida, as she was called, was the Sunday School superintendent from 1915 to 1942. Her grand niece, Mickey Jackson, holds that job now.

Miss Nida, whose husband died about three years after their double wedding in 1911, also kept meticulous records of the church's expenditures. A small brown diary has entries dating from 1927 to 1966, listing every penny which was spent on the upkeep of the church.

When the church was organized J.A. Haynes was the first Sunday School superintendent. During the summer of that first year, members of the church built a brush arbor at one end of the school house where they were meeting, and Rev. Fort conducted a protracted meeting.

Another well-known member of that early church was Martha "Grandma" Rogers, who was known as the "Grandmother of Methodism in West Texas." Grandma was in her sixties by the time she came to Heald, but she had been a member of the Methodist Church since she was seven years old. Her grandson, Lush Rogers, said that when she went to conference, the bishop's name was called first, and then her name was called.

After her fiftieth year, she kept records and said that she had heard 7,000 sermons.

One of the highlights of the church year has always been the Christmas Eve service. The service was especially for the children, with an appearance by Santa and gifts for each child. Mrs. Ramah Lou Lankford said she could remember when the Christmas tree was covered with dolls for the little girls of the community.

Mrs. Lankford said that she remembered one year when Santa didn't come. "We lost the suit!" she laughed. "It was up in the top of Miss Nida's closet, and I didn't find it until too late."

One memorable Christmas Eve was Dec. 24, 1911, when Miss Estelle Rippey became the bride of Hubert Roach. According to old timers, the howling winds blew the doors open and snow flew in during the ceremony but the wedding continued.

In addition to Mrs. Roach, who had joined the church in 1903, two other early-day members are still living: Mrs. Callie Haynes of Amarillo joined Aug. 30, 1914, and Mattie Haynes Bailey of

THE HEALD UNITED Methodist Church as it appears today. [Photo by Linda Haynes]

Amarillo joined Aug. 20, 1910. The church's history during the last 80 years reflects the history of the whole country.

Church members decided in 1927 to buy a new piano, which they did for $125. Then in 1928, during the flush years of a booming economy, the members of the tiny congregation pledged over $2000 to construct a church building. Construction began March 6, 1929 on the 30 by 50 foot building with a large basement.

The building was not completely paid for, though, and members dreamed up unique ways of raising money. Three church clubs were started. A chart was kept for each group. The "Chicken" club chart listed the number of eggs sold, eggs hatched, and the amount of money brought in. Some of the members of the club were Gail Ladd (descendants of the Louie Ladd family have had continuous membership at the church since 1913), Grace Stauffer, Christine Hanner, Grace Reneau, Emma Reneau, Ruth Stauffer, Mrs. J. T. Litchfield, Melvin Bailey, Ida Mae Jackson, and Wanda Nell Ladd.

"God's Little Acre" club showed that five men had planted an acre of cotton or maize and given the proceeds to the church. They were J. W. Rotenberry, J. A. Haynes, F. J. Bailey, and Jack Bailey.

The "Pig" club chart listed the name of the donor, the name of the pig, and the amount each animal brought. Mrs. Winnie Elliott sold her pig Hoover (remember... this was 1929) for $8. Paul Ladd's Corkey brought $6. Laverne Bailey's Aunt Het brought $6.24. Margaret Kramer's Charline brought $6.02, and Gwendolyn Bailey's Black Bailey brought $8.

According to Miss Nida's diary, John A. Haynes (who was a partner in Guthrie-Haynes Construction Co. in McLean) was put in charge of building the new building. Construction began when Kester Rippey took four horses and Clifford Rutledge took two horses to the site. They were joined by T.F. Phillips, G.B. Gossett, Paul and Arch Ferrin. On later days, other volunteers worked on the building, according to the diary. Included were Frank Bailey, George Saye, Miss Nida's dad, A.P. Rippey, Josh Chilton, Jack Bailey, W.N. Holmes, Rev. A.J. Jones, Raymond Gossett, George Reneau and his hired hand, Charlie Roach, Ur- is Mann, Mr. Eastman, Charles Terhison, Clarence Tedder, Frank Mann, O. Bratcher, J.W. Stauffer, Bill Henry, and Walter Bailey.

The first service in the church was May 12, 1929 with the Rev. A.J. Jones officiating.

Perhaps the Great Depression was felt by the early part of the next year, however, because the records show that near the end of 1929 the trustees borrowed $29.33 and paid $1.16 interest in January of 1930, and also borrowed another $29.33 which was not due until Nov. 3, 1930, and they paid $2.61 interest on this note.

The church struggled through the Depression years, though. Records show that the Christmas Eve offering in 1933 was only $3.35. Another story about those days concerned a church dinner during the height of the Depression. The only crop that thrived that year was sweet potatoes, and each woman brought sweet potatoes, prepared a dozen different ways, to the dinner.

In the spring of 1935, the church had a box supper and raised $17.10 to buy song books. The balance due on the $27 charge for the 100 books was paid by 50 cent donations from members. The next disruption in the church came with World War II when the Epworth League, started in 1915, was disbanded when "all the young men were taken."

Vacation Bible School was started in 1934 and operated each year until 1944. The school was started again in 1949, and continued until the early Sixties.

On May 5, 1959, a storm severely damaged the church, knocking out windows and tearing off the front porch. Miraculously, the stained glass memorial windows were not damaged. Church members worked to clear several inches of water in the basement and to replace a kitchen ceiling and shingles on the roof.

During the 80 year life of the church, more than 300 people have been members. The largest membership at any one time was about 125 on the roll.

These former members and their descendants have continued to support the church with gifts through the years.

The current members are Mr. and Mrs. Ott Davis, Walt and Cathy Bailey, Dora Mae Bailey, Mrs. A.E. Carpenter, Mrs. Buster Cofer, Jana Davis, Mrs. D.L. Holder, Mrs. Bob Bidwell, Lena Bailey, Dawson Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. A.W. Lankford, Myrtle Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Sheets, Virginia Tate, and Leo Trotter. Mae Chilton is listed on the inactive membership roll.

Commissioner Jim Hightower Named Chair Of Democratic Council

JIM HIGHTOWER

(AUSTIN)—Jim Hightower has been named chairman of the Democratic National Party's Agriculture Council, one of the party's seven national councils. (The other six are the Finance Council, Business Council, Labor Council, Small Business Council, Women's Council and the Democratic Governors' Council.)

Hightower met last Wednesday morning in Washington with Democratic National Chairman Chuck Manatt and the chairs of the other councils to discuss party fundraising efforts and ways to increase grassroots input into the party's 1984 platform.

Hightower was in the Nation's Capital for a Monday night speech to the Newspaper Farm Editors of America, a Tuesday address to the 1983 National Food Policy Conference, Tuesday evening remarks to the U. S. House of Representatives Populist Caucus, and a series of meetings with the Texas congressional delegation and leading agricultural members of the House and Senate. He also met Wednesday with Sir Roy Denman, the European Economic Community's trade representative in Washington.

Under Hightower's chairmanship, the Agriculture Council will play a major role in drafting the agriculture plank of the Democratic Party's 1984 platform, and it could be a major forum for drafting the 1985 farm bill.

Hightower said he anticipates setting up a series of agricultural forums around the country to gather ideas and comments from family farmers and ranchers. In addition, he said he wants to initiate a series of forums at which all the Democratic presidential contenders would appear to outline their positions on farm issues. Some of the campaigns have already expressed a willingness to participate in such a forum, Hightower said.

"The time has come," Hightower said, "to start a national debate on the fundamental question involved in agricultural policy. And that is: Are we or are we not going to have a family farm system in this country? We've had 30 years of Republican agricultural policies that I call Benson-But-Block-and-Bankruptcy. Instead of continuing with the stale and failed farm policies of the last 30 years, it's time to develop a new policy aimed at preserving the family farm system that has made American agriculture the most efficient and productive in the world."

from the Texas Energy Extension Service

I'm planning to call my air conditioning service person to have the annual maintenance check on my system before I begin using it. Could you provide a checklist of things to be examined? S. E., Huntsville.

The following is a list of items provided by Houston Lighting and Power that require checking during the air conditioner maintenance visit:

- Inspect and clean condenser coil.
- Inspect the evaporator coil.
- Check compressor against rated amperage.
- Check for loose electrical connection.
- Check refrigerant charges.
- Inspect for proper operation.
- Inspect and, if needed, change filters.
- Check all operating pressures.
- Check evaporator temperatures.
- Check condensate pan and drain lines.

I want to purchase a ceiling fan but don't know what to look for in terms of quality and special features. Could you please advise me? G. M., Temple.

Before shopping for a ceiling fan, consider how long the fan will be in use. If only for two or three years, then one of the less expensive kinds with plastic motor housing will be adequate. If you want the fan to last for several years, you are better off purchasing the more expensive type with metal motor housing. Better fans have at least a five-year warranty.

Fans with plastic motor housing do not require maintenance, but most with metal motor housing must be oiled every 6 to 8 months. Those with metal motor housing are also quieter.

Select a fan with multiple speeds for greater comfort control. You may wish to consider the reversible feature which can be used in winter for circulating warm air that rises to the ceiling.

Blade size or diameter is important, but blade material is not. Blades generally range from 36 inches to 58 inches. The 36-inch fans are typically used in bedrooms or smaller rooms, while the 42-inch to 58-inch variety are suitable for larger rooms such as dens or living rooms.

When shopping around, be sure to check on installation costs which can be quite high.

Senate Committee Backs Ag Development Bonds

AUSTIN—One of Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower's top legislative priorities—Sen. Ted Lyon's (D-Rockwall) agriculture development bond bill—received unanimous approval from the Senate Natural Resources Committee last week and is now waiting debate by the full Senate.

Ben Lee Ivey with Paso Pak Chili Company in El Paso and Poppy Hulsey with Swisher Electric Co-operative in Tulia gave testimony in favor of the bill during the committee meeting. They were just two of the 10 who attended Wednesday's meeting to support Lyon's bill.

Ivey, president of a Texas company that processes chili peppers, told the group this bill would have helped his company when it was first struggling to get off the ground. "Before we went into business, all of our chili peppers were going to California and being processed in California but now those same peppers are processed in Texas and marketed all over the United States," he said.

Hulsey described the problem that the Swisher Electric Cooperative has had with financing for its fuel alcohol project. "We tried to get a federal grant and we played a numbers game for a couple of years," she said.

MOON ROOFING & SHEET METAL CO.

Richard Moon - Owner

A good roof is an all-important factor in the protection of your building investment and a firm well known for the installation and maintenance of all types of roofs is the MOON ROOFING & SHEET METAL CO. in Amarillo at 112 S. Fannin, phone 373-0081.

It is said that your roof represents only about 3% of your building involvement, its value is out of all proportion to its cost; for a roof acts as a guardian of your building and all its contents.

Just as you take inventory of any possessions periodically so you should check up on your roof. Let these roof specialists examine your roof for they may find that it is in good condition, ready for many years of service or they may find defects that can easily be remedied, but which if neglected might soon dangerously weaken your roof. Or again they may discover that your roof is so badly worn that it needs a new covering to protect it and to prevent a costly leak.

This 1983 Spring Business Review edition and its compilers are pleased to recommend the MOON ROOFING & SHEET METAL CO. to our readers as one firm who does the job right at an honest price!!!!

NURSING CENTER NEWS

Janie Pitman is in the hospital in Pampa and Dick Henley is in the hospital in Shamrock. We wish them both a speedy recovery.

Sunday Brother Billy Wilson of the Methodist Church was here to conduct services. Kay Magee brought her "Clowns for Christ" to help lead the singing. The Clowns also performed some acts for us, and we thoroughly enjoyed them.

Monday, residents playing Bingo were Alma Fandal, Ruby Cook, Inez Fields, Lona Jones, Earl Tolleson, Leon Burch, Annie Eudey, Ruth Kemp, Bill Shaffer, Lula Sheegog, A. L. Welch, Buck Henley and Ruby Bidwell. Our helpers were Bertha Smith, Onie Gibson and Juanita Smith. We would like to thank Mr. L. R. Day for his money donation to purchase bananas for the residents. Following Bingo, a birthday party honoring Oscar Pitman was given by his daughter, Greta Thompson and grandson Boyd Lee Thompson. Cake and punch were served to all.

Tuesday morning the residents worked in crafts and in the afternoon the ladies quilted. Our helper was LaVerne Hutchison.

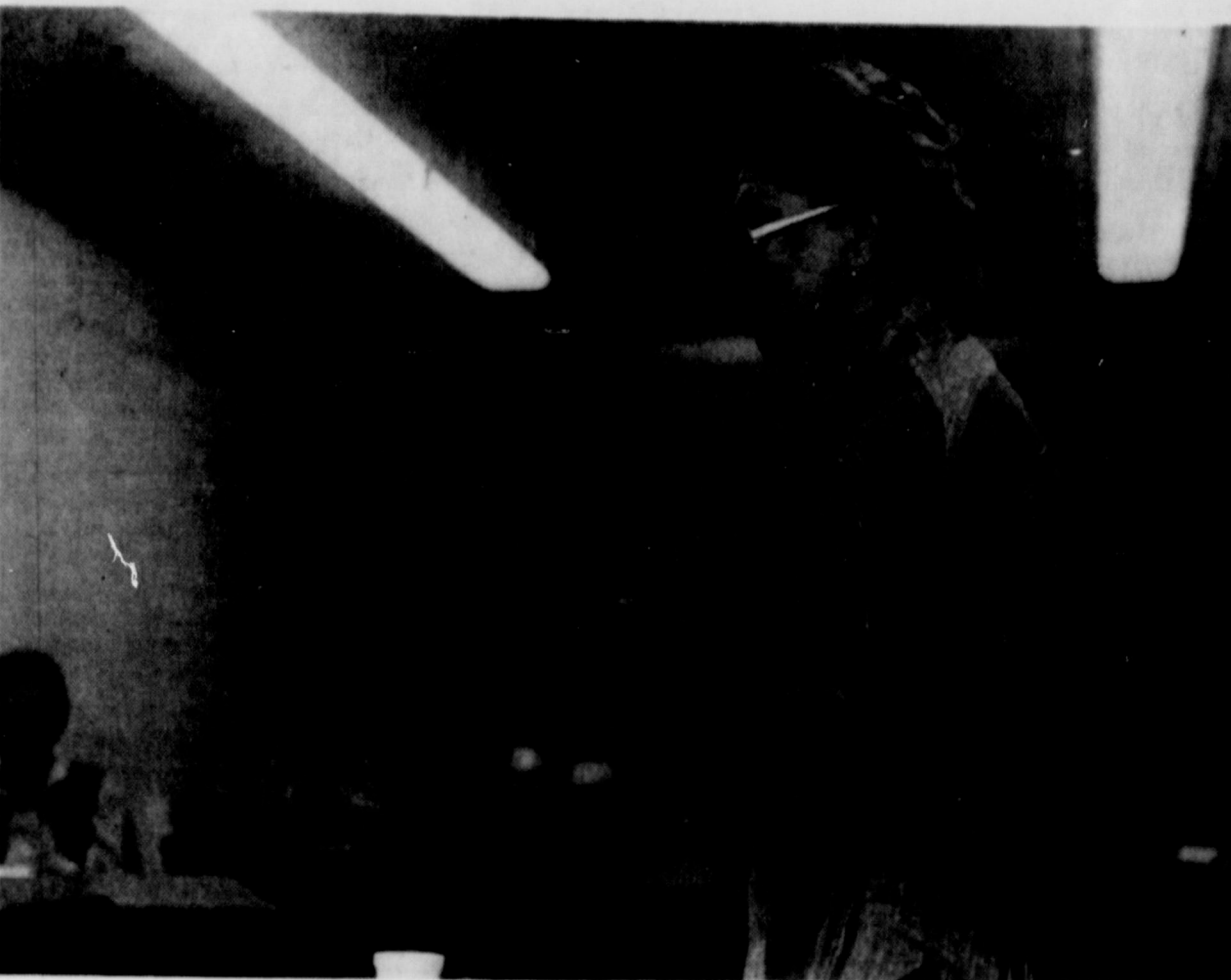

Wednesday, members of the Methodist Church were here for a Bible Study and returned Thursday for a sing-along. The Methodist ladies served cookies and punch to all residents.

Friday, our lovely lady Martha Parker was here with her movies.

Drucie Dwyer's son, Joe Dwyer from Crosbyton, Tx. was here to visit her, also Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dwyer and children from Samnorwood.

Grandma Franke's daughter, Mable Morilla was here visiting from Garland, Kansas. Also, "Grandma" had five daughters, two sons, one daughter-in-law and one son-in-law, plus six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren visiting.

Springtime -- A Time To Get Organized

If you're about to begin the task of spring cleaning, take a minute to plan your attack! No doubt some areas of your home need attention more than others. Today's busy lifestyles demand organization and convenience.

Organized storage space allows you to find a place for everything so you can easily find everything when you need it.

Since Springtime is a time to start fresh and new, let's tackle often the three most disorganized areas in the house -- the kid's room, the garage and the hall closet.

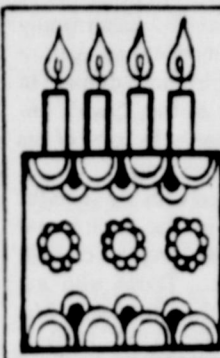

Mothers of America, there's hope for your child's room! Closet Maid storage products will help you tailor your child's closet to fit his need and his size. It will also allow him to be responsible for hanging clothes and putting away toys. Leftover space then can be devoted to shelves or baskets. A Closet Maid Add-A-Basket will easily hang from Closet Maid's Organizer Shelving, helping ease the squeeze on storage.

The best way out of a difficulty is through it.

A Summer Clean Up For Winter Dry Skin

by Andrea Woodland, Beauty Consultant

I was always told that soap and water is the best facial cleanser, but regular soap seems to make my skin feel dry. What should I use?

like soap and water better, be sure to use a soap designed for facial cleansing.

I have blackheads; how do I deep clean my pores without damaging the sensitive facial skin?

The best way to deep clean the skin is to use a soft bristle brush, designed for that purpose. If you have long nails, you should be especially careful to always use a cleansing brush.

If I clean my face at night, do I need to clean it again in the morning?

Yes! The skin releases most of its toxic wastes between 1:00 and 3:00 A.M. It is important to use a good cleanser to remove the oils secreted overnight.

What are the latest types of facial cleansers available?

There are a variety of cleansers in attractive containers available today. For example, there are liquid facial soaps in the new pump dispensers. Shiseido Cosmetics, the beauty company from the Orient, offers a foam cleanser in a squeeze tube, convenient for travel. The company also offers cleansing creams in jars and bottles and also, a perfectly balanced translucent honey-cake soap. These cleansers work to help the skin stay moist and supple.

When is the best time to moisturize my skin?

The mind grows by what it feeds on.

CANCER ANSWER LINE American Cancer Society
M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute

Question: Are there different types of skin cancer?

ANSWERline: There are three main types of skin cancer, classified according to the cells involved. These are basal cell, squamous cell, and melanoma. More than 90 percent of all skin cancers fall into the first two classifications. Basal cell cancer occurs more frequently, but grows more slowly. It rarely spreads, but if left untreated can extend to underlying bone. Squamous cell cancer occurs less often, but is a greater danger because of rapid spread. These two types of cancer can appear on almost any area of the skin, but most commonly they develop on exposed parts of the body--face, neck, forearms, and the back of the hands. Squamous cell cancer and melanoma skin cancer appear very much alike, showing up either as a pale, waxlike pearly nodule that may eventually ulcerate and crust or as a scaly, red sharply outlined patch. Malignant melanoma is a virulent form of skin cancer, which spreads rapidly. Melanomas are usually dark brown or black in pigmentation. They begin as mole-like growths that increase in size, change color, become ulcerated and bleed easily from a slight injury.

Question: Is chemotherapy replacing surgery and radiation in the treatment of cancer?

ANSWERline: At present surgery and radiation are the methods most often used in treating cancer. Chemotherapy ranks third. In some cancers all three of these are used. A fourth method under intense investigation is immunotherapy. In this method, attempts are being made to stimulate the body's complex self-defense system, so that it will recognize and reject a foreign substance, such as cancer. Immunotherapy is producing good results in some cases of melanoma, and is being tested on a variety of other cancers including leukemia and breast cancer. Much more work is needed for immunotherapy to become a major cancer treatment.

A. G. Richardson, Ed.
A party of relatives and friends spent Sunday with the C. J. Cash family and at noon enjoyed a fine birthday dinner in honor of Mr. Cash's anniversary. In spite of his advanced age, C. J. mingled with the younger folks in the frolics and enjoyed several croquet games. Those who enjoyed the affair were: Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bodine,

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cash and family, Miss Willie Pearl Phillips and Thomas Bodine and Toad Cash.

DID YOU KNOW ?

Last year, about 45,000 men, women and children died in automobile accidents. During that same period more than one million people were injured. About half of the vehicle occupants killed might be alive today if they had been wearing seat belts.

Non-belted occupants of cars have been killed in crashes at speeds as low as 12 mph. At just 10 mph, the force of impact is equivalent to the force involved in catching a 200-pound bag of cement tossed from a first-story window. In the event of a head-on crash with another car also going 30 mph, the total forces involved are equivalent to an impact at about 60 mph into a parked car.

Glaucoma: Don't Let It Sneak Up On You

Glaucoma, the nation's leading cause of irreversible blindness, can be detected through a quick and painless test. When the disease is caught in time, treatment can prevent loss of vision. In glaucoma, the fluid circulating through the front portion of the eye does not drain properly. It backs up, causing pressure that eventually damages the retina, destroying sight. The National Society to Prevent Blindness, which was founded 75 years ago, reports that about two million Americans have glaucoma, and half of them tion at least once every two years. People with a family history of glaucoma, those with diabetes and cardiovascular diseases, and senior citizens are at greatest risk and should be checked annually. Don't let glaucoma rob you blind. A free brochure about glaucoma and how to help combat it is available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to your State Society to Prevent Blindness, or the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

News From Your Gray County Extension Agent

by Joe VanZandt
Cattle Practices That Day
Certain management practices can put money in the bank for cattlemen—up to $90 per cow each year.

Practices that virtually guarantee a net return are pregnancy testing, selecting bulls on performance, implanting steers, vaccinations, fly and grub control.

These practices can mean extra dollars because they help increase the calf crop and weaning weights. This means more pounds of beef going to market, and that's the name of the game.

Pregnancy testing is the easiest way to increase herd fertility and reproductive efficiency. This allows you to cull open cows and to get rid of free-loaders — those cows that aren't producing a calf every year.

Proper nutrition goes hand-in-hand with pregnancy testing in that heifers and cows in good body condition breed faster and have higher calf crops. Properly fed cows often have calf crops exceeding 95 percent and they also produce more milk, resulting in heavier calves at weaning. Cows in poor body condition often have calf crops below 80 percent.

Selecting bulls on their performance can go a long way in improving your calf crop. All bulls should be fertility tested before being placed with cows. Bulls with good performance records can improve calf weaning weights for a number of generations.

Cattlemen should consider a controlled breeding season of 80 days or less. This can result in increased reproductive performance by eliminating late-calving cows.

Once calves are born, weaning weights can be increased by using implants or growth stimulants. A number of implants are on the market today and they all work. They cost about a cent a day and gains amount to about 2 pound a day provided average forage or feed is available. At today's prices the implants pay for themselves within 15 days, and from there on it's money in the bank.

Cattle grub control is another proven money making management practice. Heel fly attacks and grub infestations cause indirect losses such as reduced rate of gains on both calves and yearlings.

Heel flies and resulting grubs may reduce cow beef production by enough to produce 40 pounds of additional calf weight at weaning time. Grubby animals may require up to 15% more feed for the same amount of gain than grub-free animals.

Systemic insecticides for cattle grub control may be administered as dips, sprays, or pour-ons. Administer treatments between June 1 and September 1, preferably soon after June 1 for best results. Treatments after September 1 are more likely to result in adverse side effects. Do not treat animals for grub control and drench on the same day. Follow all precautions and restrictions listed on the product label.

Good results have also been observed with using fly tags in the ears of cattle. Generally one tag per animal applied in the spring or early summer has given season long control of flies. There are several on the market and research has proven all of them to be effective in the control of horn flies.

Blackleg can cause deaths to calves and yearlings when we thought they were protected through vaccination. When young calves, less than 3 months of age are vaccinated, their immunity will probably not last. Therefore, calves need to be re-vaccinated when 4 to 6 months of age. A lot of people use a 3-way vaccine (CCSN) to protect their calves and yearlings grazing grass pastures. Some believe that the 7-way shots give some added benefit when grazing wheat, alfalfa and other improved pastures. You may want to visit with your veterinarian on your vaccination program to fit your situation. Vaccines are cheap insurance and preventing one death will pay for a lot of vaccine with today's cattle prices.

The smart will spend a few dollars on these management practices and in return, more pounds of beef will pass across the scales on pay-day.

Alfalfa Weevils

Alfalfa growers need to keep a check on the progress and development of alfalfa weevils. The larvae of the alfalfa weevil cause the most damage to alfalfa. The larvae start feeding on new leaves. Their feeding skeletonize the leaves. Damaged leaves dry fast and the field takes on a grayish or whitish cast.

The young larvae are yellow with a shiny black head. Full-grown larvae are about 3/8 inches long. Their heads are black, bodies are green and they have a white stripe running down the middle of their backs. The adult weevils spread their egg laying over several weeks and the larvae feed for 3 to 4 weeks so damage occurs generally during the first and second cuttings.

Chemical control is recommended when 25-30 percent of the terminals are damaged or when 25 or more larvae per square foot are found.

When larvae become abundant a week to 10 days before the crop would normally be cut, it may be advantageous to cut early instead of spraying.

Always cut plants clean and close. Remove all hay from fields as soon as possible. Alfalfa left standing and hay left on the ground offer the weevils food and shelter. Sunlight kills many of the larvae and new adults will leave clean-cut fields. If larvae are still abundant in new regrowth after cutting, then chemical control should be initiated. See MP-1014, Texas Guide for Controlling Insects on Legumes and Grasses for insecticides and rates of application. Insecticides which are recommended are Guthion, Syperricide, Sevin, Furadan, Diazinon, Malathion, Methoxychlor, Methyl Parathion and Parathion.

HOMEMAKER NEWS

Many American consumers get no closer to agriculture than the supermarket, yet they still have a real stake in keeping the U. S. a leader in agriculture.

Farm and urban people depend on each other for products and services that are essential to modern business and living.

One group can't live without the other. Together they make the best food and fiber team in the world.

A basic ingredient for the economic, political and social success of a country is a highly productive agricultural base, which gives a nation the capacity to feed its own people and to export for economic gain as well as humanitarian purposes.

Food in this country is still an incredible bargain, with Americans spending about 17 percent of after-tax income for food and beverages.

Agriculture is this nation's leading employer, exporter, and the No. 1 industry in the U.S.

Today, one U.S. worker now produces enough food for about 55 people at home and another 25 overseas. At the turn of the century, one American farm worker could feed only seven people.

In Texas, one out of every 35 persons is a farmer or rancher, yet about 25 percent of the state's retail trade business is directly associated with agricultural production and selling of food and fiber products.

Agriculture makes a large contribution to the

Besides the medical services available at 172 Veterans Administration hospitals and 225 outpatient clinics, various levels of health care are provided at state veterans homes in 33 states.

The 45 facilities offer services ranging from hospitalization to nursing home care and domiciliary living arrangements for those able to do for themselves. Six facilities — in Yountville, Calif.; Quincy, Ill.; Marshalltown, Iowa; Chelsea and Holyoke, Mass., and Sulphur, Okla. — offer all three levels of care. One at Rocky Hill, Conn., provides hospitalization and domiciliary care only. Twenty-three state homes provide both nursing-home and domiciliary care, while 15 others are domiciliaries only.

The federal government partially reimburses the states for such veterans health care, which might otherwise burden the VA system. It will contribute some $48 million this year, based on the daily patient load and services provided at each facility.

Eligibility requirements vary by state. Some only admit veterans who are destitute, homeless or totally disabled. Others take care of honorably discharged vets who served at least 90 days of active duty and their dependents, spouses and widows as well. A few limit care to veterans who lived in the state before their military service.

wealth and well-being of our state. Because quality food is available at affordable prices, a larger part of our income is available to buy other things.

Ripe Olives In The Potpourri

No ordinary soup this! Here's a super concoction with lots of canned ripe olives from California to give it extra flavor and character.

Sautee cooked chicken in a big pot, then add apple, fresh vegetables, canned tomatoes and bouillon. Curry and olives are fragrant and unusual seasonings. Simmer the whole works about half an hour, adding ripe olives the last few minutes.

Hot and hearty, this easy-to-fix dish is enough to fill up a crowd.

Ripe Olive Chicken Soup

- | | |
|------------------------------|--|
| 2 cups cubed cooked chicken | 1 teaspoon curry powder |
| 1/4 cup butter | 1/4 teaspoon cloves |
| 1 apple | 1/4 cup chopped parsley |
| 1 cup thinly sliced carrots | 2 chicken bouillon cubes |
| 1 cup chopped celery | 1-1/2 teaspoons salt |
| 1/2 cup chopped green pepper | 1 (1 lb. 12 oz.) can tomatoes |
| 1/4 cup instant minced onion | 4 cups water |
| | 1-1/2 cups pitted California ripe olives |

Sautee chicken lightly in butter in large kettle. Pare and dice apple, add to chicken along with all remaining ingredients except olives. Simmer about 20 minutes, until vegetables are tender crisp. Drain and slice ripe olives. Add to soup and simmer 5 minutes longer. Serve hot. Makes about 2 quarts.
