Regulation Plan Framed By Committee

Question One For Administrator, Committee-men Decide

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leaders in the oil industry were understood authoritatively Saturday to have decided against recommending to the administration immediate fixing of all petroleum prices but to have approved machinery for their trade code by which all prices might be regulated.

In a reversal of an earlier tentative decision to recommend full price fixing, members of the planning and coordinating committee of the industry decided this question should be handled by the administration with committee suggesting methods by which prices could be fixed for a test period not more than ninety days if President Roosevelt wishes.

It was understood the committee in its recommendations to Secretary Ickes, oil administrator, which members will discuss with him, proposed a price of $1.11 per barrel for crude.

1,000 Expected To Appear; Speakers For Rally Named; Column Moves At 2 o'Clock

Big Spring And Garden City Bands To Participate R. V. Jones, George White And James T. Brooks Speakers Announced By Clyde E. Thomas

NRA troops of Big Spring and Howard county will observe Monday, Labor Day, dedicated to the workers of the nation—by staging a mammoth street parade to be followed by a rally designed to engender the community with full determination not only to preach but also to practice principals for which President Roosevelt is fighting.

More than 1,000 persons are expected to march in the parade beginning at 2 p. m. Monday. The column will fall in on the west side of the courthouse block. Civic, fraternal, labor, social and business organizations, representatives of various types of business, those who have gotten jobs under NRA, and hundreds of others will be in the parade.

Two bands, the Mexican Boy Scout Drum and Bugle Corps and a troupe of negro musicians will be in the parade. Sam Goldman, local bandmaster, was recruiting out-of-town musicians to join several local bandmen who agreed to play without charge.

Gene Linck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Linck, who has been attending New Mexico Military Institute, will be drum major of the Big Spring band, according to Sam Goldman, band director. Young Linck has recently returned from that institution, where he is a member of the school band.

The Garden City band, G. A. Hartman, director, will appear in the NRA parade here Monday. The band consisting of fifteen pieces will be in full uniform. Mr. Henry Currie of Garden City, one of the sponsors of the band, told the band committee that the organization would be more than glad to do its part in staging the parade here Monday. Although school is in session, Mr. Jamerson, superintendent and Mr. Taylor, principal, will dismiss members and teachers who belong to the band in order that the organization will be able to parade.

County Judge Crockett and his two children belong to the band, and will be in Big Spring with the band for the parade.

A large delegation from Garden City will accompany the band here to take part in the NRA rally, it was said.

Line of line of march will be Second, east on Second to Main, north on Main to Fourth, east on Fourth to Runnels, south on Runnels to Third and east on Third to the city auditorium.

Order of march will be: Marshal, Andrew Merrick, colors and grand NRA officers mounted, city and county officials, those given employment under NRA, Big Spring local employers, old employees of local firms, members of Brotherhood, Garden City band, Rotary club, Lions club, Kiwanis club, Boy Scout drum and bugle corps, central organizations, and several others.

Chairman Clyde Thomas of the speakers' bureau of NRA announced Saturday the following speakers and their subjects: Mr. E. W. Waggoner, "The NRA in War Time Versus Peacetime"; Hon. Roy V. Jones, "Does the Farmer and Rancher Owe Anything to the NRA?"; Hon. George White, "Fratricide in War Time Versus Peacetime"; Hon. James T. Brooks, "The colored population of Big Spring will have a section in the parade, and included in it will be the Big Spring Colored band. It is reported that several hundred will make up this section.

Horses have been provided all officers of the NRA, who will ride at the head of the parade, and half of the employees and employees will be along on that day.

The service clubs of Big Spring, The Rotary, Kiwanis, and Lions voted at their regular meeting last week to have their clubs join in the parade in separate bodies.

Club Leaders

Jim Davis was appointed to be leader of the Rotary group, Curtis Boykin leader of the Kiwanis club, and Joe Pickle leader of the Lions group.

The union organizations of the city are lending cooperation to the parade, and they are asked to have south portions.

Capitol Roof Leaks After Fifty Years Trying To Stop It

WASHINGTON (UP)—On rifling the notebook leaves it is recalled that:
The capitol roof leaks and 50 years of caulking has not served to make it water tight. Leaks around skylights.

Victor Moore, the Vice-President Thrubottom in "Of These I Sing," sat once in a senate gallery beside Senator Copeland, Dem., N. Y., and while so sitting received from a wag and-by Senate page a tightly folded note which said: "Now you are sitting beside a real comedian."

In conversation with Senator Glass, Dem., Va., a friend referred in profane and derogatory language to Senator Long, Dem., La. fixing the user of profanity with a stern glance, Glass abruptly interposed:

"Young man, it has been the habit of a lifetime to refrain from profanity. No such words ever passed my lips. But I have made it a rule never to protest such language when appropriately used." And with that vicarious cursing of his colleague the little senator seemed greatly content.

FORT WORTH (UP)—Charges of unlawful assembly were filed against T. E. Barlow, 40, self-admitted communist agitator, and two companions, H. N. Macomb, 40, and E. E. Hardy, 26.

Contact With Charged Wire Basis Of $10,000 Damage Suit Filed Here

Twelve-year-old Earl Dewain Coleman is asking $10,000 damages for injuries suffered when he allegedly came in contact with a Texas Electric Service company line in May.

Suit filed Saturday in the 70th district court alleges that negligence on the part of the company was responsible for injuries and pain to the extent of damages asked.

The plaintiff's petition stated Earl suffered severe burns which confined him to bed for a period of four weeks, weakened his heart, injured his kidneys and impaired his sight.

He was knocked from the top of an all-metal building when he grasped a wire entering the Dairyland Creamery building. Earl and friends had been playing atop an adjacent building.

Petition for the plaintiff alleged negligence by the service company in leaving the wire exposed, placing it near a water cooling apparatus so that insulation deteriorated, leaving it accessible from the roof of the adjacent building, and in failing to erect warning signs.

The child's mother is instigating suit as next friend. Wilburn Barcus represents the plaintiff.

One main purpose through thick and thin

Ford Motor Company
Dearborn, Mich.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

In the last 30 years, 800 makes of cars have come and gone. Of all the automobile companies that were making cars in 1903, less than a dozen remain. And of these only a few are the original companies. One of these is the Ford.

We mention this because, if you know the other original names, you will recognize that each stands for something definite in the motor car world—not just a car, but a very distinct kind and quality of car.

That is to say, the car that was designed to fill a definite place, to do a certain thing, and that pursued its objective through all the ups and downs of change—that car lived!

If you just make something to sell, you would be better employed doing something else. But if you make something that will do a specific thing and do it well, then you are helping people.

We have had just one main purpose during these years, and that is to give the people transportation of the most dependable quality at the lowest possible cost.

We have followed that purpose through thick and thin. Our car was called "the universal car" 30 years ago, because it fulfilled so many needs; it is "the universal car" today for the same reason.

We have never been greatly excited about yearly models. Whenever we developed and tested an improvement, we added it to the car without delay. The Ford car is in a continuous state of growth. For 15 years we did not introduce a single new model, but the changes and improvements that were constantly made on the model that was current through that period, were equivalent to many new models.

But the changes were made to improve the car, not to persuade people that they ought to buy a new car every year. The car we make does not need to be cast aside every year. At any period a customer buys, he gets the best we have.

Our objective is just—transportation for the people; the best quality at the lowest cost. Nothing but that. Not even the highest sales record—that has always come without seeking. Not even the highest financial return—that, too, has always come, and, we are glad to say, flowed immediately out again for wages, materials and taxes.

But these are not our main quest. Our main purpose—our constant intention—our major ambition is to make a car that will become more and more useful, and more and more easy to obtain, to more and more people.

theory was extant in Bible times, and was summed up by the crumbs-from-the-rich-man's-table parable. It did not work because it was unworkable. When the table ceased to groan under a freight-load of rich vintners, the crumbs ceased to fall. People who are scared out of their wits by a phrase as "equal distribution of wealth" may be soothed by a different phrase which means exactly the same thing—equal distribution of buying power.

NRA seeks to distribute buying power throughout the whole population. When 20 to 40 million people are so reduced in circumstances that they are no longer actual or even potential buyers, you have a depression. Getting these people back on their feet so that they will again become buyers of goods is the big task before NRA.

DEADLY DRUNKEN DRIVING.

Lieut. Lee Miller, of the Texas State Highway patrol, has announced that he and his men will rigidly enforce the law forbidding drunken driving. This is an excellent step. There is a combination of mechanical speed and bodily slowness about drunken driving that makes it a particularly deadly menace to the motoring public.

Motorists are all aware that a statute exists which provides a penalty of 40 years imprisonment for this offense. There is no excuse for ignorance or disobedience of it. Lieutenant Miller feels that publication of his statement, as to enforcement of the law, is sufficient warning. Violators will be summarily dealt with.

The frequently heard statement: "I'm a better driver when I'm drunk than when I'm sober," is the utterance of a liar or a fool. Any man intelligent enough to observe his own reactions to alcohol knows that it destroys perfect co-ordination between senses, mind and muscles. Even a one drink delay to some extent reflexes and impulses. Intoxication destroys coordination almost entirely. There may be a second or more delay between the visual perception of danger and the mental impulse to muscular action—ample time for a fatal accident. An intoxicated person is obviously unfit to drive a car since safety depends upon the ability to act promptly and correctly.

In the interests of sober drivers, then, let us eliminate the drunken ones.

President Roosevelt, addressing a gathering of Boy Scouts this week, put into few words the gospel under which NRA hopes to work out the economic rehabilitation of 130,000,000 people.

The NRA, the president told the Scouts, is based on the same principle as your organization—trying to do something for others and not trying to do something for oneself.

The presidential slang is pardonable, since it enabled him to get his message across in a very few words.

This idea is poles apart from the old economic theory under which this country sank into its worst depression, which theory not only failed to bring us out of the depression but actually plunged us deeper into the mire. This theory was that if you poured enough wealth into the coffers of the rich, the poor would benefit in just proportion to their deserts. This same

High Comedian Spends Much Of Time Gardening At His Home On Long Island—Appears Here Today In 'Mama Loves Papa'

"I'm a hick, not a hic," That's Charles Ruggles' own manner of explaining that, in spite of the bibulous characters he's enacted on the screen, he's really a quiet sort of fellow, more interested in gardening on his Setauket, L. I. farm than in enjoying the pleasures of night life in nearby New York.

Reporters found Ruggles hoeing his tomato patch shortly after his return to Long Island from Hollywood, where he had just finished work with Mary Boland in "Mama Loves Papa," the comedy which plays at the Ritz Theatre Sunday and Monday. The film, the story of the adventures and misadventures of a middle-aged commuting couple, is the first in which the pair have been co-starred.

"It may sound like a lot of siccotah," said Charlie, "but it's the McCoy. I mean I go for this sort of thing, gardens, in a big way. This is the life, and no fooling. I've lived out here for twelve years. The West Coast is O. K., but you can have it. And I was born in California.

Flowers and vegetables flourish under Charlie's skilled hand. Most of his zinnias, marigolds, petunias and some of his prize roses come from California. "I mean the seeds,"

Miriam Hopkins Comes Out Of Misfortune With Fresh Luck, Screen Career Shows

Co-Star With Lionel Barrymore In 'The Stranger's Return' Appears At Ritz Theater Tuesday And Wednesday

They say it's an ill wind . . . And Miriam Hopkins is willing to stand by that old adage. For out of a multitude of misfortunes she has always emerged with a new streak of luck.

"If it hadn't been for a broken ankle," she says by way of illustration, "I probably wouldn't be a motion picture star today!"

Miss Hopkins, who is co-starred with Lionel Barrymore in "The Stranger's Return," which plays Tuesday and Wednesday at the Ritz Theatre, recalls that she began her professional career as a dancer on the Broadway stage. Ballet was her ambition.

FRANCHOT TONE and MIRIAM HOPKINS, above, as they appear in "The Stranger's Return" at the Ritz Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Parliamentary Law Class To Become Permanent Club

So much interest was manifested in the recent Parliamentary Law class conducted by the Auxiliary of the local American Legion Post that the members have decided to make it a permanent club. They are doing this for the women who did not care to study in hot weather and gave one reason and another for not attending in the summer.

The report of the Auxiliary of its parliamentary law class at the state legion meeting in Wichita Falls this summer created much favorable comment and started auxiliaries in other cities off on the same work.

The permanent organization will meet ordinarily on the second and fourth Fridays of the month. This week, however, the meeting will be on Thursday evening at the Crawford ball room. New officers will be elected. Mrs. W. J. McAdams will continue as teacher. Emma Lard Longan's textbook will be used.

The organization will go into a study of legislative matters and current events when it has exhausted its parliamentary drills. Since the town has no organization of this kind and needs one, the club expects, says its leaders, to fill a long-desired need in several matters.

Martha Louise Robertson To Open Classes In Dancing September 9

Miss Martha Louise Robertson Saturday announced opening of classes in dancing beginning Monday, September 4.

Miss Robertson will offer instruction in toe, ballet, acrobatic, tap, and ballroom dancing. Those who wish to confer with her may do so by calling her home, 207 Washington Boulevard.

Through numerous appearances at some of the most widely attended stage performances held here during the past two years Miss Robertson had become exceedingly popular as a dancer. She had the advantage of much training under some of the best instructors of Texas and of Cleveland, Ohio. She studied with Olive Pinto, Waco, acting as a studio assistant for several months. Much of her work has been with the Hoffmanns in Cleveland. She has added to her dancing study proper a course in teacher training in dancing.

Episcopal Auxiliary Meeting Is Postponed

There will be no meeting of Saint Mary's Women's Auxiliary Monday, Sept. 4.

The local congregation and the organization of the Episcopal church are in earliest accord with the plans of the United States President and will observe Labor Day and the NRA drive for reemployment. They recommend to all who participate in Monday's activities their thoughtful consideration of the "Unemployed Christ."

Wonders of Nature
Isn't the Half of It, Joe Testifies

Joe Peaberry, who was forced to accompany his wife and mother-in-law on a vacation to the Yellowstone Park for a good rest, reports two more wonders in bed will put him on his feet again. "It wasn't only the heat," means Joe, "it was the humidity."

It seems a guide was taking them through the park and the mother-in-law practically throttled him with questions.

"What are all these rocks here for?"

"Those?" said the tired guide, "those were brought down here by the glaciers."

"Glaciers?" said she, getting around.

"Well, where are the glaciers?"

"Lady," said the guide wearily, "they went back after more rocks."

Among the Sick

A thoughtless remark of Doc Gillinggby lost him what promised to be a good customer Friday evening when he was called in to treat the Fitchey, the lying on the bed counting dizzy specks before his eyes, raised his head feebly as the Doc entered and murmured: "Well, Doc, I suppose you'll make me feel like another fellow?"

"Eh," muttered the local physician, fumbling in his bag, "say, if I can find this saw, I'll make you feel like two other fellows."

Doc, when last seen, was heading north.

YOUR HEALTH AND MINE
 by Doc Gillinggby

Dear Aimless Wanderer: Your letter to hand, where you ask for a brief discussion of baldness. Baldness is the common or everyday phrase for a hairless head—the technical medical phrase is "bald as a billiard ball." Treatment of baldness, usually self-administered, is of two kinds: where the hair has not fallen out and hence the treatment is unnecessary, and where the hair has already fallen out and hence the treatment is too late. Baldness is supposed to detract from the looks, but you can reflect you probably had a face like a poached egg anyway.

CHAPTER 58

Mary and Martin had finished with their dinner and were sitting on the divan before the open grate in the private dining room. Martin was shaking with a cold and fear of herself—no more she was afraid of Martin. She only feared she had accomplished her purpose.

"I don't want to make you buy me, Martin. I had rather settle this in a straight business basis, and we could consider more personal affairs afterward."

"Of course, my dear. We need not put it that way at all. We shall arrange our little business contract as you wish; but apart from that—entirely—make me the happiest man in the world tonight, darling. Don't you like me much more than you did a year ago, Mary?"

"Oh, yes," she could say truthfully. "So much more than I did a few months ago. You seem like a different man, Martin."

"There you are," he exulted. "I know that loving you the way I do would bring a response in time. Mary—sweetheart—I shall make you so happy. Don't let yourself doubt me any more, will you? Mary, you are so sweet!" He held her in his arms, close. She let him kiss her, feeling a vague and heavy bewilderment. There was no ecstatic response as when Dick had kissed her—only last evening?

Mary drew away from him gently but wanting to cry out and run from the room.

"Don't be afraid of me, darling. I have a little surprise for you, too." From his pocket, he took a handsome jeweler's case, and touched the spring. The huge diamond that caught and flashed the light like flames of fire, made Mary gasp. How could it be that on two successive evenings, two different men should present her with engagement rings? Such a farce as life was!

"Oh, Martin, how perfectly gorgeous! But—dear—won't you please keep it until—until we know—how the business deal ends? Won't you wait until then—for my final answer?"

His face reflected his keen disappointment. "Well, of course, if that would make you happier, my love."

"It would, Martin—oh, very much happier. You see—I am so worried. Everything is so hopelessly mixed up, that I can't think. If—I can pay you back the money—it will be hour of the day and evening. Mary knew that he would be awaiting the news of her success or failure, as one awaits the passing of the crisis in an illness of a loved one; so she telephoned to him as soon as she had reached home and disposed of Martin Frazier.

Martin's check was tucked in her purse. It almost seemed to Mary that the astonishing row of ciphers on it burned through the leather bag and was visible to everyone.

Her conversation with her employer was very brief. "I closed the deal, with everything satisfactory," she informed him.

Even over the wire, his guarded voice tingled with new life and courage at her words. "Splendid! I appreciate that more than I can tell you. I'll be at the office early in the morning."

He was. But he was quite a different man from the one whom Mary had found there on the previous morning. He was once more master of himself, and of his world.

"You are quite sure that this will save everything for you and the firm?" Mary asked, dubiously. It seemed to her that nothing was sure any more.

"As sure as anything in the world can be. I assure you that if this money of Frazier's doesn't do what I told you it would—the same money would not be his a few months hence, anyway. If the firm can't be saved by this, nothing is safe. I shall exercise the utmost care and judgment in its use. And I shall not forget this as long as I live. You will not regret what you have done."

"I hope not," was her fervent prayer.

Schuck Transferred To Schulenberg By Leader Of State Highway Patrol

C. L. Schuck, for more than two years stationed here as a state highway patrolman, has been transferred at his own request to Schulenberg, Texas. He departed for his new station Thursday evening.

His wife and a son, Francis, will make their home in Schulenberg. Leroy Pond is temporarily stationed here with W. W. Legg until a permanent successor for Schuck can be chosen.

Citizens Conservation Corps To Continue For Winter Under New Plan

The Commanding General, 8th Corps Area has just received from the War Department a general plan references the continuation of the Citizens Conservation Corps for second enrollment period, extracts of which are quoted:

In order to carry out the executive decision to continue the Citizens Conservation Corps at full strength through the winter the following general plan will guide:

The present number of Citizens Conservation Corps units will be maintained without increase. All Citizens Conservation Corps enrollees will be discharged on October 1, or as soon thereafter as practicable, but not later than October 15. All will have the privilege of reenrolling for a second period of six months terminating April 15. Local experienced men will be authorized to accompany units moved to other localities within the same Corps Area.

State quotas of 250,000 young men and 25,000 veterans as originally announced will govern the selection of replacements.

The strength of the Citizens Conservation Corps for the second period will be brought up to 300,000 men as rapidly as possible and well before Christmas. Thereafter no further enrollments will be authorized during the winter period.

The Labor Department and the Veterans Administration will initiate at once the selection of 25 per cent of the original state quotas. Selection of additional men to fully replace losses due to discharge will be based upon War Department reports. All men will be enrolled for a period terminating at the discretion of the United States between the dates of April 1—April 15, 1934.

The plan contemplates the discharge of men not desiring to reenroll before the necessity arises either to move them or to issue them winter clothing, the processing or replacements before severe weather handicaps the effort and the construction of habitable and comfortable shelter well before winter sets in.

Wendell Parks, who has been ill, is much better.

Usually its consumption at the place of sale is forbidden to prevent return of the saloon.

In numerous other states control systems are being drafted in preparation for action at special sessions of legislatures to be called soon.

A summary of liquor control legislation already enacted by various states to become effective instantly upon repeal of the 18th amendment, now expected before the end of the year, follows:

Arizona: State tax commission authorized to pass on moral character of license applicants. California: Saloons specifically barred. Liquor may be sold only by stores in original packages but not consumed on store premises. Wine and beer may be sold in restaurants, cafes, boarding houses and other places where meals are served.

Colorado: Licensing system would bar drinking of whisky on premises where sold but would allow restaurants, hotels, clubs, transport airplanes and passenger trains to sell beer, wines and other intoxicants containing less than 15 per cent alcohol. No whisky drinking would be permitted in public.

Connecticut: Whisky could be sold in packages by stores only. Beer taverns could sell beer and light wine only. Restaurants and hotels are expected to seek amendment of the law so that they can handle whisky.

Delaware: One man liquor commission, possessing wide latitude would control manufacture, sale and taxing of hard liquor with enforcement suit up to local police.

Florida: Legislature has submitted amendment to state constitution to be voted on in November. It would change the state bond dry act to county option allowing each county to determine whether to permit liquor or remain dry.

Maryland: Pending further expected legislation within a few months, Baltimore would operate under a license board with each county elsewhere in the state exercising its own option.

Montana: Control bill patterned after system used in Alberta, Canada. Provides $35,000 to establish state liquor stores in each of 56 counties. Liquor purchases would be sold by permit. Licensed dealers could fill doctor's prescriptions, counties would have the option to adopt plan or reject it.

New Mexico: Liquor control law permits each county or municipality of 10,000 or more to hold local option elections. Where vote is wet, mercantile establishments which have operated for three years or more could sell intoxicants. Hotels, restaurants, and cafes which have operated for three years under the same management could serve liquor with meals. The whole plan, however, is contingent upon repeal of the state dry law to be voted on September 18 when the state votes on ratification of the 21st amendment.

New York: Under a temporary law passed at the recent session of the legislature, the state control board would be given control of liquor pending enactment of permanent legislation next winter. A license scale is fixed including the following levies: Liquor $1 a gallon, sparkling wine 40 cents a gallon; still wines 10 cent a gallon; distillers $15,000 a year; wine manufacturers, $300; wholesale liquor dealers, $4,500; wholesale wine dealers, $500; retailers in cities of more than 100,000 population, $1,500 for consumption on premises and $1,200 for consumption off the premises; in cities of less than 100,000 population, fees would be $1,200 for consumption on premises and $1,000 where consumption on premises was not permitted.

New Jersey: Old inn and tavern act would become effective restoring licenses system prevailing before prohibition. Rhode Island: State enforcement act repealed. Connecticut: Commission will promulgate regulations for sale of whisky.

Washington (UP)—President Roosevelt Friday was automatically empowered to impose upon lagging industries the fair competition codes authorized by the National Recovery Act. Deadline for voluntary submission of codes expired at midnight August 31. Coincidentally the president's re-employment agreement prohibiting child labor became effective at 12:01 a. m. today.

Shakeup of NRA executive personnel began as the code deadline was reached. The first change was resignation of Dudley Cates, assistant administrator for industry. Cates parted from administrator Hugh S. Johnson under circumstances of disagreement over coded status of organized labor.

The general is planning other changes in his organization to cope with the shifting nature of its problems. Cates complained against round about recognition of the American Federation of Labor as the only representative of organized labor. In a sharp memorandum, Cates submitted the argument that since the recovery act makes collective bargaining mandatory in coded industries, there are but two existing agencies to that end—company unions and, with a few exceptions, trades unions comprising the federation.

Company unions have been prohibited by the NRA. Cates contended the administration thereby had indirectly nominated the federation to represent labor.

Cates proposed, instead, that the NRA sanction so-called "vertical unions" in which workers in each industry would be unionized to make each industry become a separate field of collective bargaining.

No summons were issued to bring tardy industries before NRA code hearings. It was indicated, however, that this phase of the recovery campaign shortly would receive attention.

Donald Richberg, NRA general counsel, is tired, too, and sought today to recuperate from endless post-midnight conferences. In general the hard pressed staff eased their pace.

This apparent let down in activity signifies the transition from collections of codes and drives for Blue Eagle support to problems of administration and planning for the long pull to better business conditions.

President Now Empowered To Impose Codes On Industries

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Roosevelt Friday was automatically empowered to impose upon lagging industries the fair competition codes authorized by the National Recovery Act. Deadline for voluntary submission of codes expired at midnight August 31. Coincidentally the president's re-employment agreement prohibiting child labor became effective at 12:01 a. m. today.

Shakeup of NRA executive personnel began as the code deadline was reached. The first change was resignation of Dudley Cates, assistant administrator for industry. Cates parted from administrator Hugh S. Johnson under circumstances of disagreement over coded status of organized labor.

Mexican Congress Opens Important Session On Friday

MEXICO CITY (UP)—Economic questions of national and continental scope are expected to receive preferential attention at the annual session of congress which began Friday. Observers anticipate the message President Rodriguez is to read to the legislators late today will sound the keynote for a session devoted largely to business problems. The impending presidential and congressional election, scheduled for next July 1, already casts a deep shadow over political circles, but President Rodriguez is expected to exert strong pressure if necessary to keep the attention of congress focused on matters related to economic rehabilitation.

Nationalization of the country's most important natural resources—primarily petroleum and mineral deposits—encouragement of cooperative societies for production, marketing and even purchasing purposes, creation and extension of credit to potential producers now unable to find banking accommodation, and construction of a firm treaty foundation for Mexico's foreign trade are the problems uppermost in the minds of the country's highest officials. Considerable progress already has been made towards realization of several of the aims indicated, but recent official utterances forecast important steps still to be taken.

According to custom, the general policy the administration proposes to follow will be described in the presidential message.

Ratification of a treaty signed last February 1, providing ratification of the Rio Grande channel, was the only matter directly affecting the United States ready for congressional action when the session opened. Ratification by the senate only is required to make the treaty effective. It is likely, however, that congress will be asked during the session to approve a final settlement of the long-standing question of Mexican-United States claims.

Although President Rodriguez has expressed the opinion that tariff schedules should be manipulated by executive decree, providing a high degree of flexibility to meet every changing condition, the question of high protection versus freer international trade is expected to receive much attention at this year's session of congress.

Both bodies of congress met in joint session, President Rodriguez wearing the green, white and red sash of his office, was to be escorted to the chamber by a military guard. The diplomatic corps will attend as a group.

Reading of the presidential message was expected to require approximately two hours.

Mmes. W. E. Anderson, F. F. Hair, R. F. Bigham, R. H. Miller and Miss Elizabeth Owen, who attended the state convention of Auxiliary of the American Legion to represent the local post, have returned and report a very successful meeting.
