Labor Calls For Card And NRA Insignia

A. F. L. Votes To Patronize Those Who Display Both Memberships

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Federation of Labor agreed Monday that its three million members should patronize only retail stores displaying the union card in addition to the Blue Eagle.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS: The National

Whirligig

Written by a group of the best informed newspapermen of Washington and New York. Opinions expressed are those of the writers and should not be interpreted as reflecting the editorial policy of this newspaper.

WASHINGTON By George Durso

MRS. MRS.— Analysis of the American Federation of Labor convention here shows that organized labor is very nearly in a position comparable to that it maintained during Woodrow Wilson's administration.

Enjoying major gains and concessions such as have not been their lot in years, the union men are amazed almost solidly behind President Roosevelt.

Thirty Hours

In demanding revision of the NRA codes to bring about a 30-hour week and higher pay schedules organized labor is NOT parting company with the administration.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins earnestly supported the Black Bill to do just that at last spring's special session. The president let it be known he would accept it if passed.

Brain Trust economists repeatedly have reported that only a 30-hour week will take up the slack and afford employment to all those who have lost out because of mechanical improvements and the depression.

Politics

In some quarters it is being suggested that democratic headquarters politicians are edging in and working toward control of various labor unions.

Close study of the convention leaders, delegates and proceedings indicates little basis for this charge.

Rather, because NRA and the New Deal have given labor a truly big break, those labor leaders normally belonging to the democratic party merely are emerging as the big shots of the movement.

Hurt

The only place where politics definitely has raised its head is in the racket unions. And here the racketeer who organizes an industry for its "protection" almost inevitably ties up with the local political machine for his own protection.

The machine's complexion doesn't interest him. Responsible union leaders are doing everything in their power to stamp out the racket organizations, they realize how much labor's cause is hurt by their continued operation.

Especially as they tie up generally with the radical elements.

Czar

Those best informed in Washington are saying the distillers had better get themselves a czar such as rules baseball in movies or all sorts of merry hades will be popping immediately after December 5.

That is the day prohibition is to be lowered into the grave according to all advance estimates.

Responsible repeaters are doing a little private shaking in their boots over what may follow in view of the way our whiskey makers have been acting up of late.

They can foresee return of the saloon in some states and numerous abuses of the restored license in others unless some authoritative policeman steps in very shortly and starts talking out for the industry.

For example: Distillers' representative, "Crosley," the radio for which he can't spend too much Cunningham-Phillips—adv.

Many Miners Back To Pits

United Mine Workers Estimate Half Strikers Returning

SULLIVAN, Ind. (AP)—Troops moved into Sullivan county Monday to preserve order after bombing of several miners' homes and shantytowns at the Starburn mine between miners and union sympathizers. No casualties were reported.

British Submarine Disaster Probed

CAMPBELLTOWN HARBOR, Scotland (AP)—Investigation proceeded Monday into an explosion and fire Sunday aboard the submarine L-26, which caused two deaths and serious injuries to fourteen.

The blast was due, officers believed, to water reaching batteries being recharged through a hole in the hull.

It was the worst British naval disaster since the submarine M-2 sank off Portland in January last year, with seven officers and 53 men.

Disarmament Conference To Resume October 16

GENEVA (AP)—The steering committee of the World Disarmament Conference Monday voted to resume the full parley October 16 as previously planned.

Dr. Rudolph Nadeloy, German delegate, said Germany wished to continue discussion of the British disarmament draft, adding that Germany was anxious to reach an accord.

(Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of articles presenting the report of F. G. Rodgers and Company, certified public accountants, covering the various departments of the County of Howard for the period beginning July 1, 1932 and ending August 31, 1933. This article presents the report on the office of the county treasurer, E. G. Towler.)

Duties of the county treasurer's office have been performed in a most honest and conscientious manner, declared F. G. Rodgers and Company, certified public accountants, in the final report of the audit of Howard County, recently filed with the County Commissioners Court.

The auditors also reported that all sinking funds of the county were in very good condition and indicate that ample provision has been made for maturing obligations from year to year.

The auditors made the following review of examination of the treasurer's office:

"In schedules No. 11 to 24 inclusive (included in the bound file of the auditors' complete report) we present a summary of the transactions of the Treasurer's office during the 14-month period ended August 31, 1933.

"All receipts issued by the Treasurer were checked into the Treasurer's account book and were found properly entered and promptly deposited in the county depository.

"All warrants presented to the Treasurer for payment were found to have been properly authorized and executed, and appeared proper in every respect for payment.

"Schedule No. 11 is a statement of fund balances at July 1, 1932 together with receipts, transfers and disbursements. Supporting Schedule No. 11, is Schedule No. 12 which is a statement of cash receipts during the fourteen month period ended August 31, 1933. As will be observed, cash receipts have been segregated as to the year ended June 30, 1933 and the two-month period ended Aug. 31, 1933. Schedules Nos. 13 to 22 inclusive, which support Schedules No. 11, set forth expenditures during the period under review segregated into periods in the same manner as cash receipts.

"In Schedule No. 24 we present the total amount of commissions paid the treasurer during the year ended June 30, 1933 and during the two-month period ended August 31, 1933. As will be observed by reference to such Schedules, during the year ended June 30, 1933 the Treasurer received the maximum compensation to which he is entitled.

"All bonds redeemed during the period under review were sighted by us and found to have been properly cancelled. All interest coupons paid and cancelled were not presented to us for inspection as the Treasurer was unable to locate them in his files, such items, no doubt having been misplaced. It is our suggestion that a bit more care be exercised in the filing of redeemed bonds and interest coupons.

"In Schedule No. 23 we present a statement of bonds and time warrants outstanding as August 31, 1933 together with the respective interest and sinking fund balances at that date. All securities owned by the sinking fund were verified either by actual inspection of the bonds or through correspondence on file which indicated ownership thereof.

"The sinking funds of the County

Six Chosen On Jury For Trial Here

Bruce And Sanders Charged With Robbery With Firearms

After a morning of preliminaries and questioning of witnesses half the jury to try Oliver Bruce and Herman Sanders on a charge of robbery with firearms had been chosen at noon recess Monday in 70th district court.

The charge grew out of alleged robbery of an employe of the Corden Oil Corporation's bulk station here, who reported to officers men called him from bed at his home in Settles Heights, held him up and took approximately $300 from him.

The trial was expected to continue two or three days.

Charles Sullivan of the law firm of Sullivan and Sullivan questioned veniremen for the defense and District Attorney R. W. Hamilton interrogated them for the state.

A special venire of 108 men had been summoned for duty in the case.

Higher Apartment Rents May Result From Proposed Code

DALLAS (UP)—The NRA, which has caused food and clothing prices to mount, is likely to result in increased apartment rents in Dallas, according to the Apartment House Owners' Association.

At a recent meeting E. Buchwald, secretary of the organization, pointed out that under the code applicable to apartment house owners a six per cent return on a fair valuation is permitted.

The code has been submitted to Washington authorities and lacks only the president's signature. Raising of rents will be permitted 50 days after the code becomes effective. The association will administer the code and determine fair valuations which will be the rent-fixing basis.

The rental hikes are expected within the next two months, by the first of the year at the latest.

Penny Store Burglarized

Hole Bored In Ceiling, $135 In Merchandise Taken By Thieves

Burglars effected a haul of merchandise valued at $135 from J. C. Penney company during the week end.

Several men's suits, leather jackets and odds and ends were missed following a check Monday morning by company officials.

Entrance was gained by boring of holes side by side until a three foot square had been lifted from the floor of a rest room directly above the rear part of the Penney store.

'Speed' Moffett Of Stanton Winner Of Grid Dope Contest

Out of the scores of football fans entering the Football Dope Contest, sponsored last week by local merchants, none of the entrants received a perfect score.

First prize of $2 in cash went to "Speed" Moffett of Stanton; second prize of $1.50 to Thornton Hart of Big Spring; and third prize of $1 to Richard Gibson, Big Spring.

The object of the contest was to pick the winners of the ten contesting games of the week-end together with the difference of scores. Inasmuch as the picking of the winners was the most important it was given twice as much percentage in the win column, as the total difference of scores.

Every entrant in the contest missed the Colorado-Winters game which resulted in a tie. Most entrants picked Colorado to be the winner. Apparently the game that really upset the dope-bucket was the Abilene-San Angelo game as every contestant, with the exception of Horace Penn of Big Spring, picked San Angelo to win the game and missed it.

The local merchants sponsoring the Football Dope Contest were: Webb Motor Co., Ditz Baking Co., Smith Bros. Drug, Firestone Service Stores, Mellinger's, Dairyland Creamery, J. C. Penney Co., Cunningham & Phillips, Montgomery Ward & Co., and the La Mode.

NEW YORK (UP)—Morris Hillquit, 64, who received last year the largest vote ever given a Socialist in a New York City election, died Saturday night.

C. H. Quereau In Fall From Hotel Window

Death Of Local Tourist Court Owner Shocks Many Friends Here

First Lieut. Charles B. Quereau of the army reserve corps, owner with his father, E. C. Quereau of San Antonio of Meyer Court, local tourist camp, and other property here, was killed when he fell from the fourteenth floor of a hotel in Amarillo about 6 a. m. Sunday.

Justice of the Peace B. B. Clark, after an investigation returned a verdict of accidental death.

Clark said there was "no evidence of violence or any reason why he should have taken his own life." He found that Quereau, an officer on duty with the Civilian Conservation Corps, accidentally fell from the window while "looking to see if his traveling companions had arrived in time for the hotel."

The body was sent to San Antonio Monday for burial. Funeral arrangements had not been completed.

Charles Quereau resided in Big Spring about two years, operating Meyer Court and looking after other property he and his father, a real estate owner and dealer, owned in this city and vicinity. He was a popular figure among young business and professional men of the city, an active member of the Rotary club and a leader of that city's Boy Scout troop, No. 1.

News of his death was a great shock to scores of Big Spring people. He was a graduate of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college, a member of a well-known and highly respected San Antonio family. Among survivors in addition to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Quereau, are a sister and a younger brother and a foster brother, Bill Quereau, who also resided here some time before returning to San Antonio a year ago.

Mr. McAdams and his daughter, Miss Lola McAdams, who are managing Meyer Court here for the Quereaus were visibly grief-stricken by a Herald reporter.

"Next to my own family the death of no one could mean such a loss to me," said Mr. McAdams. "I thought he was about the finest boy in the world."

Mr. Quereau's body was identified by C. C. C. enlisted men, who were accompanying him from Fort Logan, Colorado, to Big Spring, where they were transferred.

It was found badly managed by hotel employes who investigated upon hearing a dull thud just outside the hotel entrance.

Quereau and his four companions arrived in Amarillo Saturday afternoon. The officer registered at the hotel while the men went to the home of one of their companions whose parents reside in Amarillo. Investigation of the room occupied by Lieut. Quereau revealed no sign of violence. He apparently had occupied the room throughout the night alone. A Golden Bibles was found open on a pillow at the head of the bed.

Mr. Quereau's last visit here was in May of this year. He spent several days attending to business and made a point of going about the city to greet his old friends. He was 30 years old.

WE RENT ALL THREE... BUT MOST PEOPLE WANT Plymouth

AN INTERVIEW WITH ALBERT M. ZUCH, MGR., U-DRIVE-IT CO., AKRON, OHIO

Radio's newest laugh hit ELMER EVERETT YESS—Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday evenings, Columbia Broadcasting System.

When twice as many patrons ask for PLYMOUTH as for any other car... there must be a reason!

ALBERT ZUCH's branch of the Ohio U-Drive-It Company today is operating nine Plymouths to four each of the other two low-priced leaders.

Then, too, no other car we have can beat Plymouth on low maintenance. We hardly ever have to touch the engine.

And that's something, when you remember our cars have different drivers nearly every day!

PLYMOUTH SIX FLYING POWER SAFETY-STEEL BODY HYDRAULIC BRAKES

ROMANCE

YOU often hear people refer regretfully to the "dear old days of romance"—to the time when the knight-errant roamed the earth to do honor to his lady's eyes.

These folks complain that we are living in an age of realism! An age of realism? Why, this is the most romantic of all ages!

An age where the human voice is hurled across the world without wires; where the temperature of Mars is taken more than thirty millions of miles away; where tons of steel carrying precious human lives ride easily and safely through the air or under the sea!

The advertising columns of this paper are full of this modern romance—stories of things produced by men who have devoted their lives to bringing new comforts, conveniences and pleasures to mankind.

Advertisements tell of these achievements not with the exaggeration of a jongleur, but with calm, simple words of sincerity. Here is a firm that has spent a million dollars to develop a product that makes your baby more comfortable. Here is a company that has labored fifty years to cut a single hour of toil from your day's work. Here is a man who has searched the Seven Seas to produce a new flavor for your dinner.

Romance? This age is full of it! Read the advertisements. They tell you what the magicians of industry are doing for you.

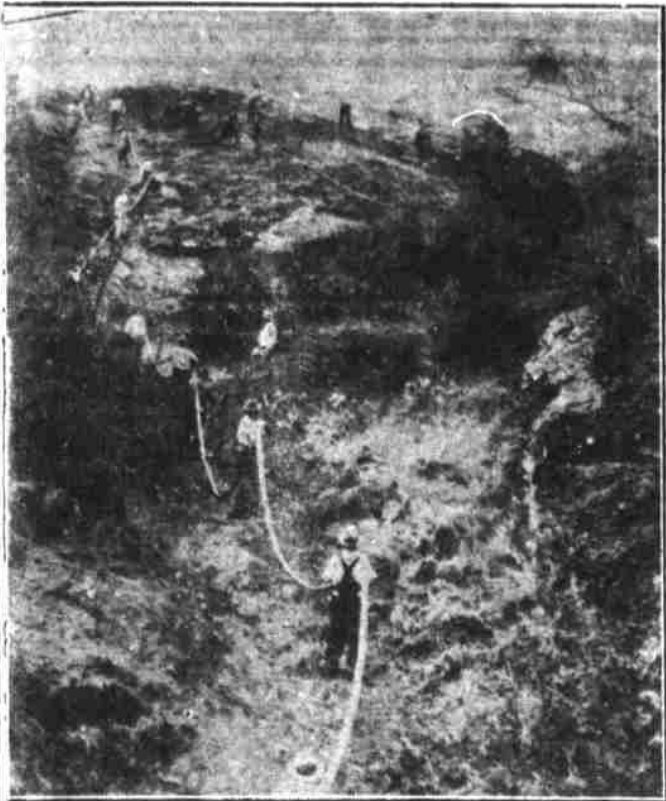

Constipation Relieved I suffered from constipation that made me feel worn and tired. I was so much relieved that I sent for a package. Now it has helped me so much that I do not suffer as I did. I would not be without Black-Draught for anything.

For The Love of Eve by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER XXIX
After that first evening when Miss McElhinney joined Eve and Dick on the porch she reappeared every time they sat out of doors. "My name is Dorothy," she confided one evening, "but I wish you'd call me Dottie."
"Never!" Eve told herself savagely. "I suppose the next thing she'll want to call my husband by his given name. I like her nerve!" And, sure enough, before long Miss McElhinney did assume that privilege.
But Eve found Miss Leeds, who shared the third floor apartment with Miss McElhinney, most agreeable company. Miss Leeds seemed to have little time and devoted most of her evenings to work she had brought home from school or else to study.
"She's exactly the sort of person who should be instructing children," Eve told Dick. "She takes herself and her work seriously but at the same time she has a sense of humor. I like her."
For several years Dick had subscribed to a magazine devoted to pictures and stories of foreign lands. He offered to lend Miss Leeds his file of back copies and she was delighted.
"Always the bitter with the sweet, the thorn with the rose!" said Eve one night when she and Dick had folded their steamer chairs and gone upstairs to their rooms. "How happy we could be at the office if it were not for Mona Allen. And how happy our evenings at home would be if it were not for Dorothy McElhinney!"
She was to remember that little speck a long, long time and to look back on those evenings that had been comparatively free from worry. Atlas Coupler, the stock Eve had bought, was being discussed generally now by those interested in the market and was highly recommended as an investment.
"I'm walking on air these days!" said Ariene. Eve felt similarly elated.

FIGHTING TRAGIC BRUSH FIRE

Workers are shown laying the hose to quench flames on a burning ridge in Griffith park, Los Angeles playground, after a treacherously veering brush fire had taken a toll of at least 27 known dead and more than 125 injured. The victims were unsmiling relief workers on park roads who were called to fight a small blaze near a golf course. (Associated Press Photo)

And then Atlas Coupler began to recede. The first day's slump of two points did not disturb Eve. Why, she thought, Pure Soap, Inc. had done that often in the short time she had had her holding. Even four days of decline did not frighten her because she had enormous faith in the issue. Charles, the office boy, had instructions from Eve to wait at the corner each day until the stock edition newspapers made their appearance and then to bring her a copy without delay. Ariene, tense and nervous, could scarcely wait until he handed the paper to her. Because of Mona Allen, the two girls had to assume a nonchalance they by no means felt. Now Atlas Coupler was down 15 points and Eve wondered what would happen next. Each time it dropped a point, she figured her loss in terms of what she would have purchased had she not invested her money.

"There goes that Agnes hat I coveted!" she said first. Then, "there goes that new three-quarter length lapin coat I counted on. Later, 'My word, I've lost my trip to Georgian Bay today.' And finally, 'Gracious, I've lost a year's supply of shoes!' I'll have to come to the store dressed like a native of Borneo."

Eve was glad Ariene took her losses so philosophically. She felt responsible. Atlas Coupler would surely recover within a few days, she felt, and then her fears would prove themselves groundless.

But Atlas Coupler did not recover. Eve was in conference with Marie Barnes at 10 o'clock one morning the following week. The advertising manager's telephone rang, and with a frown of annoyance, he lifted the receiver and clipped a brief "yes."

"It's for you," he said, handing the instrument to Eve.

"Sloan and Sanford Company speaking," boomed a stern masculine voice. "Atlas Coupler has reached a new low and to all appearances is going lower. We must be in position to know that you will cover your interest or we shall be obliged to make other disposition of the stock."

Eve's face blanched to the lips. Barnes must have heard, because the voice over the wire carried so clearly.

"Why-why!" she stammered. "What do you advise me to do?"

"If we can rely on you to send your check for $200 within the next 24 hours we can keep you out of our books. Otherwise we will have to sell your holdings, which will mean a total loss to you."

Eve thought rapidly. Barnes must not get an inkling of this situation. "I'll be in this room to cover my interest," she promised.

Barnes looked at her quizzically. No doubt he was curious about what had happened, Eve thought, but so long as she did her work satisfactorily she did not feel that she owed him any information concerning her personal affairs.

Immediately she tried to concentrate on Barnes' plan for a June campaign featuring sports goods. He was talking about improving a log cabin on the third floor and having Mrs. Penney paint the scenery. "Heavens," thought Eve, "where will I get that $200 dollars?"

When the conference was over Eve departed, hoping she had misled no details of Barnes' plan. He sounded the buzzer for Ariene who passed Eve as she was leaving the office. The two girls exchanged stricken glances and Ariene raised her eyes upward.

Eve hurried to her desk telephone and called Dick's number. She had no reserve fund; her money was all invested in Atlas Coupler. She had even borrowed from her mother. There was no time to wire to Kate Bayless for more and, besides, telegrams frightened the family and were always followed by solicitous inquiries from kind-but curious neighbors.

"Dick," Eve begged, "can you come down town and meet me at the City Bank at noon? It's very important."

"I'll be waiting for you in the lobby," he answered briefly. Dick must be busy, Eve thought. Perhaps there was some one with him or he would have said more. But she knew he would not fail her. Dear Dick! How had she managed to get along without him?

Ariene finally reappeared with her notebook and pencil. "I'll never be able to read these hieroglyphics," she said as she sat down at her typewriter to transcribe the notes. "Barnes is in a nervous as cat! I'll see you later."

Eve gathered up several sheets of copy paper and a pencil and then went to the sports goods department to lay plans for the June campaign. When she returned Barnes was standing at Ariene's desk, taking up the letters as rapidly as she transcribed them. Poor Ariene! That act in itself was enough to make a stoutest person nervous. It was just 12 o'clock Eve hurried out of the building to keep her appointment with Dick. She would have to wait until later to talk to Ariene.

The front windows of Bixby's store were decorated with apple blossoms and there was a display of house and garden frocks, porch furniture and picnic equipment. But Eve felt none of the urge of the spring time. She hurried across the square, oblivious of all passers-by. In another minute she must face Dick and ask him to give her $200. Yet her plans were not formulated and she scarcely knew how to plunge into all the explanations that would be necessary.

She entered the revolving door of the bank. And then she saw him! Dick's face lighted with a glad smile but Eve's froze in horror. It was not because he was smoking his old briar pipe in a nonchalant manner. Here, in the midst of hurrying, well-groomed men and women, Dick had the temerity to be wearing his old slouch hat, baggy trousers and blue flannel shirt. And his coat had a streak of paint on one sleeve. What was more, he seemed entirely unconscious of his shocking appearance and was coming toward her.

"Dick!" Eve reproached him. "I didn't dream you'd come down in those old clothes!"

"Well," he said easily, "there was concrete to pour today so I didn't

Freiburg Presentation Of Passion Play Given Special Attention When New Refinement Put In Ceremonial

(Editor's Note—This is the third of a series of six articles by Dr. Alfred Wolff, author of the English version of The Passion Play, in which he reviews its early history and development. The original Freiburg Players will present The Passion Play in Municipal Auditorium here Friday.)

In the preceding articles it was shown how the scripts for the plays were prepared. As early as 1264 the Passion Play received the approval of the Pope, when the head of that church selected the Freiburg presentation for special attention in undertaking the introduction of consistency and refinement into the Passion Play ceremonial.

In the hands of the city authorities, by 1600 the Passion Play began to take on new grandeur. It became a matter of civic pride to outdo in intricacy of plot and splendor of presentation all rival communities. The guilds fought for the right to present the most important episode in the Life of the Saviour. Each member in the strict ranks of these haughty labor organizations had a character to portray. It is recorded, that many a grim burgler put his finances in a desperate plight to insure the magnificence of the Early Passion Play.

The drama was unfolded during the height of its popularity in the 14th and 15th Centuries, not on the stage, but on wagons. Each guild owned a platform with wheels that was drawn through the city streets, and upon which was enacted the particular episode granted by tradition to this group. The Guild of the Painters portrayed the Devil, Adam and Eve, Cain and Abel; The Guild of the Beggars, The Angels, The Three Shepherds; The Guild of the Shoe Makers, Joseph, Mary, King Herod, Two Physicians, Four Knights, and many innocent children; The Guild of Masons and Carpenters, A Mountain, The Corporation, Jesus, Judas, John and Peter; The Guild of the Barrel Makers, Pilate, Four Hebrew Priests, Caiaphas and Annas; The Guild of the Butchers, the Crucifixion; The Guild of the Goldsmith, Trial Before Pilate; The Guild of the Merchants, The Virgin with the Dragon; The Guild of the Blacksmith, Mary and the children under the Cloak. The Brotherhoods each year spent much time preparing for their appearance in the procession, that wound around the town through narrow streets, jammed with excited spectators.

Through five centuries the Passion Play of Freiburg swung back and forth between the professional presentation on the Wagon-Platform, and the stage version, as played in the square in front of the Cathedral. By 1700 the religious urge, as a community event, had lost its original spontaneity. The Passion Play had become a Puppet Show. Tiny figures were used, and the words of the sacred text spoken by the Puppet Master from behind the curtains. By the beginning of the 17th Century, the nobles had entirely withdrawn.

On the Lapsite Smelting and Refining Company

The racketeers, officers said, were making a tidy daily income by selling the smelting company its own brass, lead and other metals. The racket was worked with assistance of two negroes employed by the company. When junk dealers went to the plant with scrap metal to sell, the negroes weighed the lot along with other metal sold the previous day. Thus the company paid twice. The scheme netted $10 to $15 a day, detectives said, the racketeers and the negroes sharing. The company reported it had lost approximately $6,000 to the racketeers since the first of the year.

State, according to library authorities

Because of its influence upon the development of the English language and literature it has come to be called "The greatest book in the world." "The greatest book in the world" is the King James Bible. In 1604 King James of England sought out the best scholars of his time and entrusted to them the task of revising "the bishop's Bible," the edition then in most common use. The result, after seven years of labor, was the most admirable translation of the Bible ever made in any language, the model by which the English tongue has developed.

Crime Fighting Exhibit Will Be Unique Display At Texas State Fair

DALLAS (UP)—The Dallas police department's version of the Eden Musee, minus the wax, will provide a unique exhibit at the State Fair of Texas.

Crime and crime-fighting will be the subject of the display. A pictorial history of the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping case, from the arrest of Harvey Bailey and the Shannons on the farm in Wise county to the trial and conviction of the principals at Oklahoma City.

Scenes, weapons and principals in many local murder, robbery and hijacking cases also will be presented.

In the weapon display will be everything from the gun used in the first Dallas bank robbery to latest types of police equipment. A uniformed officer will be on duty to explain use of various crime detection instruments in the display.

These instruments will include complete finger-printing equipment, microscopic paraphernalia used in the science of ballistics and the like. Bullets from Bailey's machine gun will be shown under powerful lenses that bring into view peculiarities which led officers to connect the outlaw with numerous crimes committed in the Middle West.

Equipment of confidence men, gamblers and swindlers—from money-manufacturing machines and dice tables to slot machines and lottery tickets—will be exhibited. One display will be devoted to illustration of the peace officer's most difficult problem, the curbing of the drug traffic. Actual drugs will be shown together with explanations of methods used by their purveyors in eluding the law.

An educational traffic exhibit will complete the police display, which, if it proves popular, will become an annual feature of the fair.

DALLAS (UP)—The days are getting shorter, but the distance you can travel in them is getting longer.

During the last week end of October, at least, that will be true. For then but four days will separate Dallas and Germany.

The traveler will be able to leave Dallas Oct. 27 on the United States Air Lines, board the Graf Zeppelin at Akron on the following morning, wave "buenos dias" to groundlings at Seville, Spain, on October 30, and complete the journey on Oct. 31 at Friedrichshafen, Germany.

The Graf Zeppelin crossed the Atlantic to South America recently and will sail up the coast to Miami, fly to the Century of Progress exhibition at Chicago and go from there to Akron.

Pare for the four-day trip to Germany, arranged through cooperation of the air line, will be $722.97, of which $600 is for passage on the zeppelin.

The traveler from Dallas would leave Love Field at 8:30 a. m. and board the ship the next morning after a night in Cleveland.

"OH, PLEASE don't sit on that CHAIR!"

HARDLY a home without one . . . the chair with the shaky leg that Uncle Henry broke when he sat on it, back in 1929. (He was heavier, then.) The whole family knows about it, but for four years it has kept its place in the living room . . . a dubious decoration, a constant menace to the unsuspecting guest.

And so throughout America . . . here, in the dining room . . . there, in the bedroom or kitchen . . . an infirm company of tottery tables, spavined sideboards, and shabby chiffoniers. For the plain truth is that most of us, under pressure of circumstance, have just let our furniture go. And in those four years it has gone a long way.

Sooner or later something will have to be done about these worn-out household goods. And now is the great opportunity. For furniture prices today are lower than they are ever likely to be again! Consider the facts. Since 1929 the furniture manufacturers have had so little demand for their products that furniture has almost ceased to have any basis value at all. Yet furniture should, like everything else, have a true basic value—a value sufficient to yield to its maker and his fellow workmen a fair amount to live upon.

It is one of the chief aims of the NRA to restore value to the common things of life . . . a man's labor . . . a manufacturer's product . . . a citizen's property. The Government is trying to make everything worth something again. Furniture is one of those things. Under the NRA furniture code, all labor values, all raw material values, are going up. Pay rolls have advanced 57%. Lumber 41%. Upholstery fabrics have advanced 48½%. Therefore furniture must go up, too. Furniture is on the way to regaining its rightful value as a commodity.

This process is not yet complete. Retail prices on present stocks of furniture are still extremely low. Now is the time to buy. UPTURN ITEM NO. 1 Statistics of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers show that production rose from 67% of normal capacity for the week ended August 5 to 114% during the week ended September 2. August retail sales were uniformly more successful than for several late summer seasons.

Seismograph Used By Geologist Forewarns Of Oil Discovery And Enables Employer To Get Acreage

HOUSTON (UP)—Thin black lines skittering across ruled white paper—as if the hands that held the pens were struck sudden, sharp blows—months ago predicted what the drill bit has proved, a new Texas oil field near Palestine. The pens that traced the lines indeed received sudden, sharp blows—hundreds of them from dynamite explosions underground. The pens were in the seismograph records of K. A. Schmidt, geologist. As a result of Schmidt's seismograph explorations, his employer, the Tidewater Oil company, and its associate, the Texas Seaboard Oil company, were able to seize virtual control of the acreage in the vicinity of Long Lake Plantation, site of the Tidewater-Seaboard test. For months Schmidt and other Tidewater geologists waded through the low, swampy country of the East Texas basin, fording the Trinity river many times, skirting small lakes, battling mosquitoes. Schmidt's men set up their recorders on lines that criss-crossed the area east-west, north-south, and diagonally. Blast after blast of dynamite was set off, and the needles danced across the graphs, writing the story of what the earth looked like aeons ago. Not everyone could have read the story correctly. Geologists of rival companies—one in particular which made a survey of its own—failed to see what Schmidt had seen and attempted to dissuade him. Schmidt and his men went right ahead, studying the seismograph records, gradually filling in details, drawing a picture of the tumbled layers of sand and shale and chalk thousands of feet under the ground. The seismograph had proved these strata to be there. The picture looked good to Schmidt. It strengthened his belief that development of the area would prove profitable. About nine miles southwest of Palestine, in the crook of a big bend of the Trinity, the sub-surface map showed a 700-foot high structure, which, of course, was thousands of feet underground. Where the "dome" had been pushed up by the tremendous natural forces of a forgotten day, the other sub-surface formations were uplifted with it. One of these formations is known as the Woodbine sand. That is the sand from which the East Texas field produces. Schmidt told his superiors of the existence of the formation and recommended the entire wildcat area be exploited. His word was good enough for the officials. They went ahead with the leasing. This work was entrusted to R. S. McFarland of Dallas, Seaboard's Texas manager. An almost solid block of 25,000 acres was leased by Tidewater and Seaboard before other major companies awoke to the fact a march had been stolen on them. The test well, Tidewater-Texas Seaboard's No. 1 Long Lake Plantation, was begun. As the bit went lower, it became increasingly apparent that Schmidt's sub-surface picture was a marvel of accuracy.

Preparations For Farley And Garner Tour Are Started

DALLAS—Texas will be host to the largest party of Federal officials ever to make a grand tour of the Lone Star state when Vice President John N. Garner and Postmaster General James A. Farley with numerous other distinguished personages visit the Democratic State of the Nation beginning Oct. 18. The tour has been announced as a goodwill tour of Democratic party officials to the State that gave Jack Garner to the Nation and will afford an opportunity for general Jim Farley, the National Chairman and the top political man of the Roosevelt Administration, to pay his respects to the Vice President's native state. Coming here by air in an armada of transport planes, the party will first visit Fort Worth, then Arlington Downs to open the racing season and will then come into Dallas on the afternoon of Oct. 19 for what is planned as the greatest political rally ever staged in Texas, where great political rallies are the rule. In Dallas the officials will be guests at a tremendous banquet in the Adolphus Hotel at which Maury Hughes, the State Chairman will be toastmaster. There will be no speech making at this banquet in order to permit the party to adjourn promptly to the huge new Stadium at the State Fair of Texas for the gigantic night rally. Young Joseph Weldon Bailey Jr., Congressman-at-Large, will make his only formal address for the entire tour. The Vice President, Senator Tom Connally and Congressman Hatton W. Summers will also be heard on this occasion. Tell me something. what makes a cigarette taste better

WHAT makes anything taste better? It's what is in it that makes a thing taste better. CHESTERFIELDS taste better because we buy ripe tobaccos. These ripe tobaccos are aged two and a half years—thirty months. During this time the tobaccos improve—just like wine improves by ageing. CHESTERFIELDS taste better because they have the right kind of home-grown tobaccos and Turkish Tobaccos "welded together." We hope this answers your question.
