cities and towns," 16,500,000 young Americans, 21 through 36 years old, got their orders from President Roosevelt today to register October 16 for possible service in a great new citizen army.

Berlin Says

Then, laying the history-making law aside, he put his name to a proclaimation which said this marshalling of military strength was "to fend off war from our shores," to avoid "the terrible fate of nations whose weakness invited attack."

This new call to arms came as 60,000 national guardsmen were donning uniforms for a year's active duty and the war department announced 35,000 more would join the colors on Oct. 15, the day before conscription registration.

The draftees, also to be called up for a year, will receive their ining with some 240,000 guardsmen, who will be mustered into federal service by Jan. 1, and with the regular army, now recruiting toward a strength of 375,000.

Only the issuance of a presidential executive order, expected with in the next few days, was left before the draft machinery—officially—

Actually, those who will aid in administering the peacetime conscription act already were working at high speed against registration day and an undesignated date in November when—Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, announced last night—the first thousands of draftees would be summoned. This first group is expected to number 75,000.

Marshall's announcement was predicted on the belief congress would approve the recent presidential request for an additional $2,000,000,000 defense appropriation, largely to defray the cost of the draft. The law limits the number of trainees to "no greater number" than provided in appropriations congress may vote for that purpose.

It also places an absolute limit of 900,000 on the number of dreftees in training at any one time, and that means that the vast majority of those who sign registration cards will never learn the manual of arms or see the inside of a tank.

The president, in a statement issued when the proclamation was signed, said that many of these others "may serve their country best by holding their posts on the production line."

Still others, he said, would stay at home because of "individuals agency, said a "rolling" German air dependent upon them for support." Churchill Asserts Fuehrer Looking For Opportunity LONDON, Sept. 17 (AP) Winston Churchill disclosed to the house of commons today that the Germans are continuing "steadily" to deploy barges and ships in preparation for an invasion of the British Isles and warned: "We must expect that he (Hitler) will make the attempt at what he judges to be the best opportunity."

Churchill spoke before an assemblage of commons which began at 2:45 p. m. but the fact that it was in session was kept secret for more than two hours because of repeated air raids over London. The great stained glass windows of the house had been removed and plain glass substituted. The house adjourned shortly afer it had assembled when the sirens sounded the third alarm since dawn at 2:53 p. m. (7:53 a. m. EST), but reassembled before the Disclosing that 2,000 persons had been killed and about 8,000 wounded in the first half of September in air raids on Britain, Churchill asserted this bombardment was carried out with the "silly" idea that it would force the British government to make peace. He added:

Isles Warned Ships Forced To Run For Shelter, London Claims

LONDON, Sept. 17 (P)—Channel gales and a storm of British bombs have scattered Adolf Hitler's "invasion fleet" of hundreds of barges and ships, staying any immediate threat of an armed landing, Britons learned with relief today from their air ministry.

But an accompanying fog, first of the autumn, which blanketed military objectives failed to stop the whiplash of straying German planes which Prime Minister Winston Churchill sald today had caused 10,000 casualties on this island in the first half of September.

Four air raid alarms sounded in the London area during the day. A westerly gale which whipped the channel and nightly bombings from the British air force were declared by the sir ministry to have forced the German fleet concentrated in coves and harbors of the French, Belgian and Netherlands coasts to scurry to new cover.

The new positions were quickly located by reconnalssance planes which scoured the channel area, the ministry said.

Britain's casualties for the first half of September were listed by Churchill in a house of commons speech at 2,000 killed and 8,000 wounded, all but about 250 of them civilians. Four-fifths of the casualties were in the London area.

Perhaps it is too early yet to fairly appraise the city's investment in its two lakes, but on the basis of initial operations, it would seem that they constitute one of the best moves made in recent municipal history.

The recent August financial statement of the pity showed water billed to consumers during month aggregated nearly $14,000 in value. Of this, well over $10,000 of it was pumped from the Powell Creek lake.

Naturally, during winter months this peak eduction will not hold, for we are told that the August consumption was the largest on record. But if the lakes are replenished with timely rains, it is possible that the value of water delivered in town from them over a year's time might not be far short of $100,000. Even at half of that figure they would not be many years in returning in revenue to the city the amount of money expended in -ity funds for their construction and other appurtment waterworks improve-

It is possible that such a strain would have aused damage to the city's underground reserve, Instead, the city's best wells have been resting, piling up reserves which will keep from year to year regardless of what our immediate rainfall maye be. In short, this arrangement constitutes a sort of "ace in the hole" for the city.

The people have yet to test another benefit of the lakes, that of recreation. When hard rains come, and they will some day, the Moss Creek lake will be filled near to overflowing and the body of water, handy to the town by a good, county road, will prove of great value to those who love some place to go and relax, to fish, to boat, to enjoy cooling breezes.

It was he who gave Alabama its first Rose Bowl teamthe one that had John Mack Brown on it.

That black-headed young man scribbling left-handed note on the back of a menu is Frank Wilson. Probably you don't know who he is. But For listen to what he has to say all the time. He writes the Kay Kyser show each week. He is also the author of "The Bishop and the Gargoyle," a radio feature. Frank is a Cincinnati boy, born, he tells you, "in the white-stone-stooped section made famous by Edna Ferber's Back Street'." For a while, after coming to New York, he lived above a speakeasy in genteel elegance, dining on peanuts and chocolate bars. Then he final got going.

If you pass the old Amsterdam theatre on 12nd street you are almost certain to bump into Nat Dorfman, theatrical press agent whose clients include Irving Berlin, Buddy Desylva, and others. But ask him what's new and he won't mention "Louisiana Purchase" or any of his other shows. With that light in his eyes that proud parents are always afflicted with he says, "My kid, he won another tournament. He's sixteen. I think ie's going to get somewhere." Nat's "kid" is strapping young buck who is already regarded as one of the finest amateur tennis players in Here comes Doris Dudley, a gal in blue slacks, shapely sweater, and dark glasses, She's on her way to keep an interview with one of the drama critics. She got quite a play in the papers a little while back when John Barrymore and his wife staged that rumpus at the opening of 'My Dear Children." That was when Doris was ousted from the show in favor of Barrymore's wife, Elaine, and it was then that Doris got off her classic remark to the reporters: "I am in the peculiar position of trying to fight sex with talent." Between Broadway plays, Doris is being featured in a radio drama. Her papa is Bide Dudley, the drama critic.

Well, that's Broadway, that's 42nd street, that's any street. You try to get somewhere and you find yourself talking shop with people you haven't seen, or thought of, in weeks. Most of them aren't known outside of New York, but they are important. They are the people behind the scenes. The engineers who really make the wheels

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD-If you haven't met Singapore

Singapore Joe Fisher is a showman extraordinary, a world traveler, a cultured and genial raconteur, an ex-officio salesman of the charms of Singapore and ah Malaya.

He popped into town the other day, on one of his periodic visits, looking natty and neat fn one of those white tropical suits which somehow funlike most in these parts) kept its neatness and its whiteness

It was the fabulous Sultan of Johore, Malayn ruler, who dubbed him "Singapore Joe." His Highness, once a visitor in Hollywood, did the dubbing characteristically. To a friend who for years had been known simply as Mr. Joe Fisher, Highness presented (wrapped in old newspapers) a package which he said contained a ply of biscults. Mr. Joe Fisher suspected a tossed the package into a car, opened it newhat later as an afterthought, and found a heavy gold cigaret case, mounted with platinum and precious stones, and inscribed to "Singapore Jee" Everyone in Hollywood knows Singapore

Singapore Joe runs the showplace of the Straits Settlements-the Capitol Theatre. It's a magnificent building, with shops and bars, besides movie facilities, and to hear Joe tell about it is to resolve to see a movie there some day. It has 1,600 seats, with two arm rests for each seat, and plenty of leg room. The audience, predonderantly native, craves action first, scorns superimposed titles and "dubbed" dialogue, follows English dialogue easily through watching the film's action.

"And how they can smell a good ploture!" beams Singapore Joe. "And how the word spreads!"

Just how this word-of-mouth carries weight he illustrates by the story of a hotel employe who had trouble at his job-and six hours later, over a territory of 700 miles, "sympathy strikes" were brewing. All this, minus telephone or telegraph communication, for these were checked and no messages recorded! (Note to Exhibitors: Singapore Joe's Capitol operates sans double features, sans giveaways, sans lotteries-and cleans up. And it's not the only house around.)

Young eyes are quick to notice how much easier it is to see under the right kind of light—the kind of light that enables them to read longer without getting sleepy and tired. And parents will notice the difference too, for tests have proved that proper light will help students concentrate more closely on their studies when doing home work.

Good light is cheap. A 150-watt student lamp uses less than one penny's worth of electricity an hour, a small price to pay for good light to eliminate unnecessary eye fatigue which may cause eye troubles.
