Star Essays Comic Role In Queen Film

Barbara Stanwyck Featured With Robert Young In 'Red Salute'

Barbara Stanwyck, whose popularity has rested on dramatic roles, essays a light comedy part in "Red Salute," the Queen theater's attraction for three days beginning Sunday. Robert Young plays opposite her.

"Red Salute" tells the engaging story of Drue Van Allen, a pretty, head-strong co-ed whose socially prominent family is embarrassed by the publicity attendant on her madcap escapades. When she is expelled from college suspected of radical leanings, acquired from one Arner with whom she fancies herself in love, her family persuades her to leave the country.

Drue settles in a Mexican town just across the border. When Arner sends for her, she investigates Jeff, a rough and ready young buck private on leave, into driving her across. The hilarious adventures and difficulties they encounter in the course of their wild ride keep the story spinning along at a brisk pace, and by the time they get home, Drue has had her lesson and realizes her devotion to Uncle Sam and her love for Buck Private Jeff. Young plays the role of the young soldier. Hardie Albright is cast as Arner, and Ruth Donnelly and Cliff Edwards (complete with uke-

Comedy, Mystery And Romance Found In Wm. Powell-Jean Arthur Film At Ritz

IN A ROMANTIC MOMENT

William Powell and Jean Arthur in one of the love scenes of a picture that has not only romance, but its share of comedy and mystery. It is "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," which plays at the Ritz Sunday and Monday. Powell appears in his popular role of an urbane detective.

'Ex - Mrs. Bradford' East Howard Is Billed Sunday And Monday Test Is Shot

Murder, mystery, comedy and romance are mixed in the manner the suave William Powell mixes them in "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," new co-starring vehicle in which Powell and Jean Arthur are to be seen at the Ritz Sunday and Monday.

It is Powell's gift to jest carelessly while starting into a gun muzzle and to romance gayly under conditions that would fray nerves of steel. This gift brought him to first place among screen sleuths in "The Thin Man," and "Star of Midnight" and reportedly adds to the attractions of the current film. The mystery in "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford" builds on the apparently normal death of a jockey stricken while riding a favorite. Discovering that it is murder, Powell gets in some of his neatest and most thrilling detective work in setting a trap among seven suspects—one of whom has discovered a way to slay from afar, a way that leaves only a dab of gelatine on the victims' bodies to hint that they did not die of natural causes.

Keeping the entire picture in light mood is the romance between Powell and Miss Arthur. She appears as Powell's former wife and a writer of detective stories who insists upon finding mystery in any ordinary happening. Her tendency to dramatize all events and her persistent efforts to win back her ex-husband cause Powell no small amount of trouble. In a fashion similar to "The Thin Man," their ardent moments are hidden behind constant kidding and pranking.

Contributing to the comedy is Eric Blore, who plays the sort of butler role in which he scored in "Top Hat." James Gleason appears as the police inspector; Erin O'Brien-Moore, Ralph Morgan, Lucille Gleason, Lila Lee, Frankie Darro, Frank M. Thomas, Paul Fix and Dorothy Granger appear in other important roles. The picture, directed by Stephen Roberts, was adapted from a story by James Edward Grant, author of "Whipsaw."

The test is located in section 4, block 30, T-1-S. On the same section the company's No. 10 Rhodon was drilling ahead at 700 feet. Sam Goldman's No. 1 Denman in section 10, block 30, was making progress from 2,075, drilling in hard lime. It was planned to rest casing early this week.

Simclair-Prairie's No. 3 Texas Land & Mortgage in section 4 was drilling at 280 feet. The same company's No. 5 Denman in section 10 was going ahead at 1,500 feet.

Southern Oil corporation's No. 4 Denman in section 10 Saturday was rigging up. It was understood that several new locations would be started this week in the East Howard field.

M'DONALD-EDDY VOICES BLEND IN THE MUSIC OF 'ROSE MARIE'

Singing Stars Appear Together In Light Opera At Lyric For Three Days

In a production sweeping with song and touched with romance, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, the celebrated singing co-stars, come to the screen of the Lyric theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in the famed light opera, "Rose Marie."

The voices of these two are heard in "The Indian Love Call," "Rose Marie, I Love You," "Song of the Mounties," and other classics of the Strohart-Frmi score. Filmed almost entirely out-of-doors, in the mountain lake country of the Sierra Nevada, the production is a pictorial sensation. Glimmering lakes, towering peaks, all the beauty of nature, serve as the background for the romantic saga of the Northwest.

"Rose Marie" is the story of a Canadian grand opera singer who travels incognito into the backwoods regions in search of her brother, a fugitive from justice. Also searching for the brother is Sergeant Bruce of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The sergeant and the singer meet and fall in love, until she realizes the mission of the officer. The crashing climax and poignant ending to the story add to its high interest.

One of the outstanding sequences of the picture is the totem pole Indian dance, a grotesque set mounted on a sandpit leading into a broad lake. Peopled by more than a thousand dancers, with music thrillingly beautiful, the sequence sets a high mark for photographic effect.

A strong supporting cast assists Miss MacDonald and Eddy in "Rose Marie," among them being James Stewart as the original brother; Reginald Owen as the star's manager; Allan Jones, George Regas, Robert Gray, Una O'Connor and Lucien Littlefield.

Also present is Gilda Gray of "Follies" fame, whose new version of her celebrated "shimmy" dance is one of the highlights of a cafe scene.

Eastman Submits Plans For Rails To Boost Profits

WASHINGTON, June 13. (UP)—Acting three days before his office expires, Co-Ordinator Joseph B. Eastman yesterday recommended two chief means for the railroad industry to increase its profits.

1. A thorough overhauling of pullman service, with the railroad leasing the cars from the Pullman company and retaining the entire revenue.

2. Increase of Diesel light, self-propelled cars for quick cheap railroad service.

Eastman's report gave general approval to an extensive series of recommendations his department made to the railroad industry in January, 1935. He also made public the reaction of the Association of American Railroads to the new ideas. The association said they contained "nothing of value" and consisted of "theory and opinion."

Club Women Favor Law Changes To Permit Birth Control Information

HOUSTON, June 13 (UP)—The Texas Federation of Women's clubs in convention here today favored a change in federal laws to permit dissemination of scientific birth control information.

The federation which approved principles for laws for the dissemination of birth control information last year, pledged itself to actively sponsor new legislation. "We hereby pledge our active efforts toward securing an amendment to exempt licensed physicians, hospitals and clinics from the federal laws which exclude, without exception, supplies and medical literature relating to birth control from the United States mails and common carriers," the federation said in a resolution.

The pledge was the result of a year's study into the question by a committee headed by Mrs. John G. Sims, Jr., Fort Worth. Mrs. Sims' committee pointed out that while the American Medical association last month said officially "there is no evidence that existing laws, federal and state, have interfered with any medical advice which a physician has felt called upon to furnish his patients," that many branches of the medical profession had felt the law's restraint.

The fight to amend the federal law is in harmony with the federation's three major objectives: prevention of crime, child labor legislation and peace, the committee reported.

U.S. TEAM DEFEATS ENGLAND IN WIGHTMAN TENNIS SERIES

BABCOCK IS VICTOR IN FINE MATCH

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 13.—For the sixth straight year, the United States defeated England in the Wightman cup tennis series, as Helen Jacobs and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fry beat the British team of Freda Jaes, 1-6, 6-3, 7-5, in the seventh and decisive match of the series here today.

Trailing by two matches to one at the conclusion of the matches yesterday after Miss Jacobs and Mrs. Fabyan lost their singles match to Miss Kay Stammers and Miss Dorothy Round, respectively, the Americans' chances appeared dim, especially after Miss Round defeated Miss Jacobs today, 6-3, 6-3, but Miss Stammers met unexpected defeat at the hands of Mrs. Fabyan, 6-3, 6-4, to put the westerners back into the fight. It remained for Carolyn Babcock, Los Angeles ace, to keep America's chances alive, and the California miss came through in great style. She won out over Mary Hardwick, 6-4, 4-4, 6-4.

Miss Babcock, using a strong service to good advantage, swept through the first set without a great deal of trouble and led at one time by four games to three in the second, but her British opponent forced her to err in decisive moments and she fell behind.

The American, however, came back strong to take the third set and leave the match entirely up to the doubles encounter.

Miss Jacobs, beaten in her singles matches, began to regain her form after the doubles match had started, and along with Mrs. Fabyan, outlasted her more youthful opponents to gain the victory.

B. Sullivan In Bat Lead

Youngster Takes Place Vacated by Ailing Bill Terry

NEW YORK, June 13. (AP)—Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants, aging and ailing, abdicated the pace-setting position in the big league batting parade during the past week, and a couple of youngsters moved into the one-two spots.

Billy Sullivan, the Cleveland Indians' part-time catcher, took Terry's place at the head of both leagues, by hitting safely in seven of 16 trips to the plate during the week ended yesterday, boosting his average five points to .411.

Even before Terry's name was eliminated from the lists, because he no longer was taking his regular turn at bat, rookie Stu Martin, the St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder, boosted himself into the National league leadership over the Giants' pilot. He wound up the week with an average of .391.

PAYNE OR JOHN HILL TO PITCH

With Pepper Martin snapping out of his batting slump and the team as a whole playing better ball, the Big Spring Oilers will attempt to win their third game of the year today when they march out against Harvey Stans' Loraine Independents in Loraine.

Pitching honors will probably fall to Pap Payne or John Hill. Both boys have been successful thus far in the season and will be ready.

One of the three "M" men on the squad, Milton "Speedy" Moffett, is not expected to make the trip, but Jake Morgan can be shifted from his old position in the hot corner to short, and "Skeets" West can be put on third. West filled in nicely at that position last Sunday after unsuccessfully trying the outfield through the first inning.

On the other side of the infield, Horace Wallin and Charley "Raspun" Spikes will be at first and second, respectively, while Martin, Miller Harris and Jack Smith will see service in the gardens.

A former Big Spring pitcher, Lefty Potter, will probably oppose the locals on the hill. Potter's famous screwball has made him a successful chucker this year.

LORAIN BEATS COAHOMA, 8 TO 2

COAHOMA, June 13 (Sp)—Taking a good lead in the third inning, the Loraine Independents defeated the Coahoma Bulldogs here this afternoon, 8 to 2.

Wild throws by Smith, Coahoma pitcher, put two men on base. The next man up walked, filling the bases, and Ira Coffee tripled to deep center. Continuing the batting spurt, the Loraine catcher singled and the next man up got a clean double.

The Dallas court previously had ruled that such bets were in violation of penal laws. Pending a decision by the state supreme court, the majority opinion said, the court still holds that betting on dog races is illegal.

Golf Analyzed

What is the most important shot in golf? The great tournament players differ. Some say that the putt is the one that wins tournaments. Macdonald Smith and Henry Cluet are strong for the well-hit iron that leaves the ball close enough to the cup so that a one-putt green is possible. "If I'm pitching six or eight feet from the cup on most holes I'm not leaving my putter much work to do," says Mac.

Tommy Armour believes the drive most important—the drive that is accurately placed so that the ball is in perfect position for the second shot. Certainly this is highly important. Olin Dutra, for instance, won the United States open championship with perfectly placed drives.

Generally, too, it is the bad drives that get you into trouble and bring on the costly holes.

All players should study to drive not merely through the fairway, but so place their shots. Few do. That is why it is harder for them to get good direction on their second shots when they need it.

Italians To Help Americans Now In Ethiopian Interior

ADDIS ABABA, June 13 (UP)—Italian authorities acted today to aid American citizens who may be stranded in the interior of Ethiopia.

Following repeated efforts by American Minister Cornelius Van H. Engert to communicate with various Americans, he obtained a promise from Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, viceroy of Ethiopia, to send airplanes to all compounds in the interior occupied by Americans. Letters of instruction will be dropped from the plane, giving directions for ground signals indicating whether the Americans were safe and in need of any supplies. The airplane will return the next day to read the signals.

Reports were received here from Jimma in southeast Ethiopia that Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Pietsch of Oklahoma, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Shank and Miss Irma Schenck of Ohio, and Miss Mary Beam of North Carolina are safe.

Chapter 22
BROKEN WORD

"Well, and after she came upstairs," Dirk asked.

"Why, then she walked east, and at Eighth Avenue she took a taxi," Martin replied. "I hopped another one. But she was only going back to Chez Simonette. I watched her go in at the back door, and then I got the car and called for her... in front."

"What color was the taxi she took? Remember?"

"Yes, sir. It was a yellow taxi. Took the number in case I'd need it. But she got out, like I say."

"You don't think that during any of this she saw you?"

"I know she didn't. Forty-eighth Street was crowded, and I was careful. I never got close to her, till she reached the Garden, and then she could have seen me if she'd looked around, but she didn't. If I'd been a detective, I could have gone down behind her."

"I don't want detectives going down behind her... not in the daytime, at any rate. She's safe enough then, with you in the offing. I've got detectives watching the gates at night."

"Good, I'm glad of that. Is it that ear that sits across in Cotfield Road without any lights?"

"You noticed it, then?"

"Once or twice, yes, sir. I thought it was Dr. Rann's ear. It's nearer his fence than ours."

"Well, you can rest at night," said Dirk. "And the only thing that's expected of you is to watch as you've been doing, and without being seen, without alarming Mrs. Joris. And to report. I'll take care of the rest."

"But to think," said Martin, "I left her at Chez Simonette three hours last Saturday."

"Last Saturday, thought Dirk. A matinee day. She had no doubt been in the bowl watching the blond cowboy wrestle steers. The reason was over now. Was that the reason for her relief, for the gayety with which she had sung tonight?"

At any rate, he knew who Mr. Jones was. And the blond cowboy, Dirk felt sure, was no other than the clown—the foolhardy, painted clown—who had been hurt that night in Merritt's Wonder Show.

He would tell the detectives to get on the traces of Torrobin and the clown.

There were no further reports. The rodeo was gone, the horse-show had taken its place, and Hope's access of shopping fervor had ceased. She stayed in closely during the succeeding rainy week, Rupert having abandoned his practice of taking her out in the evening. Once she let Martin take her for a lonely drive when she did not leave the car.

Then abruptly he opened the door.

Hope stood before the mirror. She was only half-dressed, and had turned a startled face upon him. The room was filled with the odors of bath-salts and powder. She was trying a new bracelet on her arm, a bit of costume jewelry she had bought herself.

Rupert had not moved from the door. He stood looking at her. His eyes were angry, but he was laughing. It was the look of a man who has surprised something in a trap, who means to move warily that it may not escape.

Hope took a kimono from a chair, and folded it about her. Her movements held something of deliberate liberation, but her eyes had never left his face. He came toward her, and though she made a feint of slipping away from him, there was only the wall behind her, and presently she stood still.

He seized her in his arms, kissing her mouth, her throat, her shoulders, pushing the kimono away. He crushed her against him hard, without tenderness. He could have broken her body if she had resisted him. She stood rigid with his arms.

It was perhaps the best resistance. His arms relaxed, and he looked at her, at her averted face, and disheveled hair. In that instant she wrenched away. Gathering the kimono about her, she addressed him in brief sulphuric syllables.

Rupert had fallen against the bed, dazed and somewhat sobered. He laughed again when Hope had finished speaking.

"Didn't know you could swear, m' dear. Did... did your papa, the parson, teach you those... bad... words?"

He got to his feet.

"But you're right. You're... perfectly... right. Everything... is being broken... I broke my word. But it won't happen again. Ever again. Understand? Good-by."

Hope had turned away from him.

"Good-by," he said again, waiting. "Good-by," she finally replied, not turning.

Hope went to the door, closing it softly. Her hand hovered over the bolt, but she did not draw it.

Lodge Resolution Pays Tribute To Haller's Memory

Resolutions of respect, in memory of the late J. H. Haller, active lodge leader who succumbed recently, were adopted at a meeting of the Big Spring Rebekah lodge, No. 254. The resolution follows: "Whereas, the Almighty and Supreme Ruler has seen fit to remove from our midst one of our most beloved brothers, a man honored and loved by all who came in contact with him, one of the strong pillars of all the branches of Oddfellowship, a man who, when the rough winds of adversity buffeted the lodge and things were not as they should be, was still a true Oddfellow who stood for all things of benefit to the order—Bro. J. H. Haller.

"Be it resolved, the sympathizing members of our order bow in tribute to the memory of one who has ennobled our lodge and helped raise the standard of Oddfellowship to the high pinnacle, which has attracted the attention of the world to the fraternal accomplishments of the Rebekah sisterhood. To his children and relatives we extend our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement, and

In memory still we hold the friendship dear
Of those, who passing in a swift or flight,
And reaching first the crossing of the ways,
Have said good-bye and vanished from our sight;
Why should we weep, just send a smile instead
Across the sunlit space from life to life;
Just here we stand, just over there they wait,
Where peace has crowned all earthly toil and strife.

"And be it resolved that we present to each of his children a copy of this resolution, and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of the lodge. —Eula Robinson, Jones W. Lamar, T. H. Hughes, committee."

Reports from county agents reveal that 252,300 of the 1,272,500 acres sown to wheat in 11 counties on the South Texas plains last fall have been abandoned.
