GAIL FRY CROWNED MISS McLEAN

Last Saturday night the halls and auditorium of McLean High School saw the largest group of beautiful girls, spectators, lovely decorations, and the greatest talent in years. The turnout was good and everyone had a wonderful time.

The decorated stage carried out the Valentine theme with red, white, and silver, lace hearts. Behind the white queen's chair was a silver trellis trimmed with tiny white flowers, red hearts, and delicate cupids. The silver arches on either side of the stage were decorated to match the trellis and presented 32 young ladies in all their splendor.

The girls first modeled their own choice of street wear while Mike Simpson, a McLean High School Senior and Master of Ceremonies described their ensembles. Mike then presented contestants in their gowns.

The judges, all Jaycee and Jaycee-ette officers from out of town, chose the top ten.

The girls were: Gail Fry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Fry; Marsha Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hunt; Donna Glass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Glass; Judy Kingston, daughter of Mrs. Bill Kingston Jr.; Debra McClellan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McClellan; Nila Richards, daughter of Mr. Robert Richards and Mrs. Nelda Bell; Pat Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Simpson; Pat Grogan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Grogan; Jana Hess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hess; and Terrie Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Taylor. Mike then interviewed each of the ten girls.

The highlight of the evening was when Miss Gail Fry was crowned as the reigning Miss McLean 1968. Her court consisted of Nila Richards, first runner-up and Judy Kingston, second runner-up.

Casper Smith presented Judy with a trophy, Bill Kingston presented Nila with her trophy, and Carey Don Smith presented Gail her crown, roses, and trophy.

During each intermission high school students entertained the audience by singing, dancing, and playing musical instruments. They were Joe Parr, Gail Fry, Diana Tryon, Donna Glass, Jenny Everett, Guy Pharis, and Sammy Pagan.

The Jaycees who worked were: Carey Don Smith, president; Robert Martindale, vice-president; Casper Smith, Inter-Club Director; Bill Kingston, secretary; Larry Smith, and Jerrel Lee. They were aided by the Jaycee-ettes, Mrs. Carla Martindale, president; Mrs. Jean Smith, State director; Mrs. Billie Kingston, Historian; and vice-president; and Mrs. Patty Lee, secretary.

The Jaycees and Jaycee-ettes "wish to send their heart felt thanks to each girl for their cooperation and every contributing merchant for their help in making this all possible, also Mike Simpson for all his help and for being such a great Master of Ceremonies and to all the entertainers who did such a wonderful job. A special thanks goes to the faculty of McLean High School who were so patient and helpful through-out the pageant."

MISS McLEAN 1968 — Miss Gail Fry was crowned Saturday, winner of the beauty pageant. Runner-ups were Miss Nida Richards and Judy Kingston.

Car Inspection Time Draws Near

The Texas Department of Public Safety reported today that more than 4,250,000 vehicles still remain to be inspected for the 1968 sticker before the April 15 deadline.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., DPS Director, said that only 1,574,397 cars had been inspected so far this year. The total number of vehicles inspected during 1967 was 5,702,862.

Garrison urged motorists to have their cars inspected as soon as possible in order to avoid the long lines which will undoubtedly develop as the inspection period draws to a close. Garrison reminded car owners that under new provisions of the law the inspection will include front seat belts in cars where the manufacturer's original equipment, steering, and wheels and rims.

An Electric Unreliability Bill

The Administration's... of legislation com- Congress as it recon- ne known as the "e- ver reliability" bill. everybody is in favor electric power, and body can quibble with expressed aims.

gional council with powers to overrule corporate planning and to determine the size and location of generating stations as the council saw fit. Such division of responsibility can only make for delays in expansion programs and impair the reliability the bill is supposed to insure. Moreover, nothing guarantees that the FPC-council determination of what it considers to be good for a utility would be an operation the utility could afford. Official responsibility, after all, would not rest with either the FPC or regional councils, but with management.

There are other questions posed by the bill which rather sketchy hearings held so far by Senate and House committees have failed to explore in depth. So far, the most reliable thing about it seems to be that it would increase governmental supervision and control of electric power producers, without in anyway increasing electric power reliability for the consumer.

That reliability now is being advanced through voluntary cooperation among power companies, the FPC and its several committees organized to coordinate planning. Unless, and until, these voluntary efforts fail, the so-called electric power reliability bill ought to be short-circuited.

LOOKIN' BACK

by Vera Featherston Back

More from the Fiesta Edition of Pampa Daily News, June 1, 1937:

When C. S. Rice moved to McLean in 1904 as manager of the Cicero Smith Lumber Company, there were a dozen or more families in town. Among those he recalled last week were: C. C. Cook, one of our first merchants; Dr. J. A. Green, first physician and father of C. O. Green who returned several years ago as manager of the Southwestern Public Service Company; W. T. Wilson, present manager of the Cicero Smith Lumber Company; James F. Heasley, first blacksmith; J. L. Collier, S. A. Cousins, J. R. Christian, W. C. J. M., and J. R. Phillips; with R. S. Jordan and W. B. Upham families living on farms four miles west.

It was in the fall of 1904 that R. B. Edgel started the first newspaper and R. H. Collier opened the First National Bank which he later sold to the Citizens State before organizing the American State Bank in 1909 - an institution which was the forerunner of our American National Bank of today.

The first person to be buried in Hillcrest Cemetery was Mrs. Jeff Owens who died in giving birth to the first baby born in McLean.

McLean was incorporated in 1909, with C. S. Rice as first mayor and J. B. Paschall as first marshal. Four of the aldermen were: J. R. Hindman, J. L. Crabtree, William Abernathy, and J. M. Phillips.

The first school house was built in the southeast part of town where the W. C. Phillips homestead is now. Its first teacher was Miss Isabelle Gray who still lives in Clarendon. (1968 Note: Other research claims a Henry Biggers was the first teacher. Please set us straight, some of you oldtimers.)

In 1906 a six-room frame structure was erected in the west part of town. This was burned and in 1911 a three story brick building was put up in its place. The top story, long used as an auditorium, was later removed and a wing added at the rear. This now serves as the Ward school while a modern white brick in the north part of town serves the high school students, with Supt. C. A. Cryer soon to begin his fifth year.

McLean's first graduating class received their diplomas in 1911. Listed among the graduates were: Mel Davis, Ruby Rice, Billie Biggers, and Ruby Cook.

The development of McLean

SWISS SKYRIDE—Sidewalk superintendents are viewing progress on HemisFair '68 from the air with the help of the Swiss Skyrider over the World's Fair grounds. These early bird visitors are part of more than 20,000 persons who have taken the skyride since it was opened to the public on Christmas weekend. The 622-foot Tower of the Americas with its six-story tophouse in place draws the attention of many sightseers.

is due to three factors: ranching, farming, and oil. Such ranches as Rowe's, Morse's, Pylon's, Gething's and Sitter's used McLean as their trading center and shipped thousands of cattle from its stock pens.

When it was discovered that one had only to turn over the sod, drop the seed, and then sit back while the crops sprang up "over night," farming became the chief industry. McLean, at that time, was a great water-lime-shipping point, as well as a grain-marketing center.

Since the discovery of oil on the Back estate eight miles north of town in 1927 which caused all roads to lead to McLean for several weeks, McLean has benefited from the oil industry.

Vester Smith, who began ginning here in 1920 might well be called McLean's modern Coronado, for he has really found "Quivira" by going DOWN rather than ON. Mr. Smith has perhaps done more for his home town during the depression than any other man by giving our men jobs when jobs were at a premium.

Now Vester heads the Smith Bros. Refining Company which has drilled 40 producing oil and gas wells in McLean territory and which has its headquarters in McLean.

The following local men are associated with the company: Porter Smith, T. J. Coffey, H. C. Rippey, Bert Smith, and Ruel Smith. 111 men are now employed by this company in the McLean territory and a number of McLean men and their families have been moved to their other plant at Kermit and to their oil mills at Hamilton, Dawson, and Leonard.

In recognition of his service to his home town, McLean voters elected Vester Smith mayor at the last election. Aldermen are: O. G. Stokley, Boyd Meador, D. M. Davis, Dr. C. B. Batson, and John Cooper. John Sparks is marshal.

Still more to come. Don't forget the Alanreed-McLean Historical Society meets the fourth Sunday at 2:00 at the school cafeteria. See you there!

Fighting Fatness Makes Good Sense

There's no doubt about it. Many of us are too fat.

Almost everyone who is too fat would like to slim down to average size for his height and build. Many women would like to be on the skinny side.

The American Medical Association's home health book, Today's Health Guide, points out that most physicians consider obesity an important factor in personal health for three reasons:

- It is common.
- It is associated with increased sickness and death rates, notably in respect to heart, circulatory, kidney, and metabolic disorders as well as surgical and obstetrical complications.
- It can be successfully treated to help control associated medical conditions.

Medical experience strongly suggests greater risks for overweight persons in respect to most of the major disorders besetting our population. The evidence for generally adverse effects from obesity seems too massive and too consistent to be ignored.

So we need to lose weight. It should be simple: just cut down on the calories. Unfortunately, it often isn't simple. Taking fewer calories than are needed seems to be within the theoretical capability of most of us. Yet results suggest that this is difficult and often not achieved. Long-term observations indicate poor success for most dieters.

One factor involved in overweight is psychological. Emotional factors are operative in all of us. Psychological factors may help cause overweight, or help to maintain it. Seldom is psychiatric consultation required. The general practitioner, the internist, the pediatrician usually can provide suitable guidance and support as part of the weight-reduction program, the AMA book says. The physician's aim is to prod and reinforce our will to lose weight, to help us be so determined to trim off excess pounds that we will stick to the reducing regime.

The physician may prescribe drugs at first, as a crutch to help us get started. These can reduce appetite, promote a feeling of well-being, add bulk in the stomach, eliminate excess fluids. They can, at best, afford only temporary help. They postpone the day when facts must be faced, when we finally make up our minds that we must change our eating habits to keep our weight under control.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

CRUEL AND UNUSUAL PUNISHMENT

For picking flowers in a public park, a man was sentenced to six years in jail.

But when he appealed to a higher court, the sentence was thrown out. The court said that, since the punishment did not even remotely fit the crime, it was "cruel and unusual" — hence forbidden by the United States Constitution.

It is the relatively unknown Eighth Amendment that prohibits the inflicting of cruel and unusual punishment. The ban applies not only to punishment that is totally unfitted to the crime but also — and more typically — to punishment that is cruel in its very nature.

Examples are torture and mutilation. Thus, cutting off a lawbreaker's ears would be unconstitutional whether he had committed murder or only driven through a red traffic light. The form of punishment, in itself, is cruel.

What about capital punishment? Opponents of the death penalty are seeking to have it declared unconstitutional on the ground that, at least by today's moral standards, it is cruel in its very nature.

In past decisions, however, courts have upheld the death penalty on the ground that severity alone does not prove cruelty — and that execution is not so generally repugnant to the community that it is inherently cruel.

Of course, even though the death penalty is constitutional, a state may still abolish it by legislation. And some states have.

In one bizarre case some years ago, a convicted murderer was sentenced to die in the electric chair. But when the switch was thrown, something went wrong with the machinery — and the man survived.

Could the state try again to execute him? The issue was carried to the Supreme Court, which split five to four.

The minority argued that it would be cruel to try again, because that would amount to "death by installments" — far worse than the quick death he had been sentenced to.

But the majority held that, since the delay was not intentional, not imposed as part of the punishment, it did not prevent a second try. The court said the mishap was comparable to any other mishap that might befall a man in jail, such as a fire in his cell block.

The second time, the chair worked.

Apply "Love" In Raising Children

Love is a basic ingredient in parent-child relationships and parent can show love by doing for his child. But this can be easily misinterpreted by the child. Parents should show love in ways the child can understand, says Miss Jimmie Lou Wainscott, County Home Demonstration Agent.

Parents make the child eat properly, go to bed early, wear a coat and other necessary things. However, the child may not interpret this as love.

Miss Wainscott says there are many ways to assure the child of his parents love, for example, a warm, friendly smile.

Words can also portray feelings. "You're a fine boy;" "That was a helpful thing to do;" "I like you," are examples of words a child could understand as parents' love. Sometimes it helps to listen to other parents talk to their children. Do they sound as if they love their child? Parents might ask themselves if a stranger would know that they loved their child by the things they say and the words they use.

Other ways to show a child he is loved and cared for are by giving him your undivided attention at times, by reading a story, listening to him talk, or playing with him.

The quality of one's love is important, too. A parent's love which fosters growth and development should be mature, reminds Miss Wainscott. A parent should express himself as a responsible grown up being a parent, not always trying to be a pal and by letting the child make decisions he is capable of making.

News From County HD Agent

With increasing emphasis on leg fashion Jimmie Lou Waincott, Gray County Home Demonstration Agent, gives these guide lines.

With the appropriate hose, legs can be made to look more shapely, thinner longer or shorter.

Several types of stockings, such as the "wet look," shiny and rounded, tend to de-emphasize the leg size.

Vertical stripes and very small designs, generally in medium to dark colors tend to slim the leg.

Iridescent colors or lace hose change color from light to dark. The eyes sees the light area, but the sides and legs look slimmer.

Short legs look longer if the color is continuous from the waistline to the shoe.

Matching colors is difficult, says Miss Waincott, and stockings are blended with hose and hose should be the lighter color.

Thin legs look more shapely or heavier in white stockings, opaque hose, fishnets, geometrics and pastel or bright colors, but the wearer should blend these in with their costume.

Textured hose, Miss Waincott says, are best worn with a chunky heeled, rounded or squared shoe.

If you are going to wear the new styles, you must present the total look. The stockings are all good if they are worn properly, she stressed.

DID YOU KNOW THAT?

Tiny insects, smaller than a grain of rice, have been responsible for killing 59 1/2 million cubic feet of pine timber in East Texas over the eight year period 1958-1965. Timber killed would build 5000 average sized homes. The culprit is the Southern pine beetle. The Texas Forest Service, U. S. Forest Service, forest industry and timberland owners have teamed up to combat this menace to our valuable East Texas forests.

This means that 82 percent of our 107 million acres of grassland is infested to some extent with light to heavy brush stands. Fifty-four million acres of this brush is so thick it is almost totally stopping the growth of grass. It is estimated that brush uses 146 million acre feet of water per year, or 40 percent of the water used in Texas each year.

Hereford Feed Pens Expanding To 50M

The Hereford Feed Yards, Inc. of Hereford announced that the Board of Directors has concluded to increase the present cattle feeding facility at Hereford from its present capacity to 50,000 head capacity. This expansion will include the constructing of new office facilities, the enlargement of present feed milling facilities, as well as modernizing existing facilities, and the construction of new pens and water systems, all to be in accordance with the latest design, as well as new innovations formulated upon successful feedyard experience.

Mr. Paul Engler, President, states that the feasibility of these expansion plans was determined by the inability of his company to satisfy the cattle feeding customer demand, and by the rapid growth of the meat packing industry which is being evidenced in the High Plains area of Texas.

Securing New Industry --- Full Time Job

Point V - Prospecting

If you have read the first four "Points" in this series, you will understand why vigorous prospecting for new industries should begin in earnest only after these four concepts have been given full consideration and at least partially implemented.

Community Betterment programs must be underway, ideally with a long range plan and set of goals for the community.

Research and Analysis must have been carried out, resulting in the identification of "candidate" industries.

All available means of financing must have been examined and, preferably, an Industrial Foundation formed.

Sites and buildings must have been inventoried and evaluated in terms of your "candidate" industries.

These four points are ongoing processes and should be well underway before concerted prospecting will be worthwhile. However, because industrial development is a very long-term, continuous process, every community that has a program must inevitably get out and beat the bushes for prospects.

Where are your best prospects? The answer is surprising to some.

Your first best prospect are found in the industry you already have. It may be the least glamorous, but research shows that 80% of all industrial growth is due to expansion of existing industry. And, after all, the industry that you already have will be the easiest and most economical to work on. They need the help of your I.D. Committee just like outside industry does - help and encouragement in the forms of research and financing and securing a new building. The entire program that we have been outlining can apply right in your own back yard.

Your second best prospect is "the man with an idea." Inventiveness combined with enthusiasm is very valuable. The man with a sound idea for a new business, or a new way to expand an existing business may be the springboard your community needs. Encourage such a man, and work to develop and display an atmosphere that will encourage the emergence of many such men. When you are seeking industrial development, there should be no such thing as too many new ideas.

Your third best prospects will come from you allies. These are the utility company serving your community, the railroad, or a state agency such as the Texas Industrial Commission. All of these allies are as anxious for industrial and economic growth in your area as you are, and they can offer a wealth of experience, data, and actual prospects.

Your fourth best prospects are manufacturers in Texas. Our state has more multi-plant operations than any other state in the nation. And Texas industry is growing rapidly. No industrial prospector should be without a current copy of The Directory of Texas Manufacturers, a valuable reference book.

Your fifth best prospects will come from making the best of the inside information that can be gathered in your own community when all of your citizens are aware of the program and helping. Get every one looking for tips, get them interested...get them involved.

In a certain Texas town, a group of young businessmen with industrial development in mind hold a weekly breakfast for all the salesmen who happen to be in town. Imagine what information might be passed on at such a gathering.

If Mrs. Smith's brother is purchasing agent for a big plant in the mid-west, and she hears that his company is considering a Texas location...well, that's a prospect.

All this is not to say that prospecting is easy. It's not. But it is intended to show you that there are more types of prospects than you perhaps thought, and closer to home.

At some stage in prospecting, you will want to promote your community. A colorful, informative brochure is a good way to do this. A campaign of direct mail to your "candidate" industries is another good means of promotion. If your town has developed any tourist attractions, these can be used for promotion relating to industrial development.

Prospecting for new industry is never easy, but it will be easier when the first four points of industrial development have been initiated.
