Lord Ashley Names Douglas Fairbanks Sr. In Divorce Action Speaker Rules Governor Must Submit Taxation

Bond Sale Hinges On Provision For Their Retirement

AUSTIN (AP)—Speaker of the House Coke Stevenson Tuesday ruled the governor must submit the subject of taxation before the Texas legislature may consider bills to levy taxes to pay principal and interest on state relief bonds. The ruling came on a motion of Representative Duvall, Fort Worth, to recommit to committee a bill proposing issuance of $4,500,000 relief bonds with instructions that the committee recommend tax measures sufficient to provide for their retirement. Stevenson held that the constitutional amendment authorizing bonds did not empower the legislature to enact specific tax measures to retire the bonds. He said the governor still has an opportunity to submit taxation to pay off relief bonds. Duvall expressed his fear unless a provision is made for retirement of bonds they could not be sold. He quoted Attorney General Allred as saying that unless an adequate sinking fund is provided he did not anticipate a single bid would be received February 20 for the second block of relief bonds.

Clairvoyant In Ft. Worth Held

COLEMAN (AP)—Charges of being an accomplice in the $24,000 robbery last week of the First Coleman National Bank were filed Tuesday against Carrie Roberts, clairvoyant, held in Fort Worth.

WASHINGTON By George Durno

835— The psychology of President Roosevelt's dollar devaluation was even sadder than met the eye. It was officially decided to apply an even figure to the gold price rather than the dollar percentage "for reasons of higher mathematics." Up to now the cost of gold per ounce has always been quoted in fractions. The reason for bringing it to a round number could hardly have been imperative. The catch is that if devaluation had been fixed at the even 60 percent level, everyone would have talked about the 60-cent dollar. It is much more involved (and equally unpleasant) to discuss a 59.96-cent dollar. But raising the price of gold to $35 an ounce sounds more cheerful and is easier to say. The administration hopes the country will start thinking in terms of $35. The Master of Psychology makes it simpler to look up instead of down.

St. Lawrence—

The St. Lawrence treaty fight has developed more tricky angles than an octagon. When the Senate roll is called on ratification the vote is going to be plenty close. Both sides are claiming victory. Whichever wins will know it in a grand scrap. Leaders jockeyed for days to get an agreement for the voting date. Last week treaty opponents figured they had 38 sure votes, or 5 more than the necessary one-third to kill it. They clamored for immediate action. Administration leaders counted noses and discovered this opposition estimate was correct. They refused to vote at once. But they did want to set a definite date for two reasons—to prevent a filibuster and to enable President Roosevelt to get into action.

Midland Doctor Injured As He Touches X-ray

Knocked unconscious to the floor, serious injury to Dr. W. E. Ryan, Midland surgeon and hospital owner, was narrowly averted late Saturday night when a nurse, Miss Clara Harmon, removed a plug connection from a socket shortly after the surgeon came in contact with 66,000 volts of electricity. Dr. Ryan was x-raying an injured child and leaned closer to his patient when it became operative. His forehead is believed to have touched a conductor or else the current bridged the gap between the conductor and himself. He was hurled to the floor. Burns on one hand were sustained. Electricians, however, pointed out that the low "load" of 10 milliamperes, saved the surgeon worse injury. Without amperage, the normal body can take a shock of several thousand volts for a short time, they said. The current from the x-ray machine is high tension and completely separated by a transformer from the lines of the Texas Electric Service company. Dr. Ryan was given medical attention and remained in bed at his hospital most of the day Sunday.

Large Crowds Hear Dr. Chas. T. Ball At East 4th Church

Dr. Charles T. Ball, president of Eastern University, Philadelphia, is speaking at the East Fourth Street Baptist church each day of this week, at 10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Dr. Ball is one of America's foremost Bible expositors, and his lectures are proving very interesting. Good crowds have been attending the two services of the two services of the church Monday afternoon, with Mrs. F. S. McCullough as leader, to study "Persecution and the Spread of Christianity." Mrs. Woodie W. Smith gave the Bible study, "For Righteousness Sake." Mrs. G. Miller talked on "Jesus' Persecution." Mrs. Turpin on "Faithful Unto Death" and Mrs. V. Phillips on "Story of Polycarp." Four women put on the "Pageant of a Pin." They were Mmes. Terry, Winslow, O. R. Phillips and Birmingham. The two latter gave the part, "Worthy or Unworthy." Present were: Mmes. Smith, McCullough, G. Miller, Verdie Phillips, F. L. Turpin, J. E. Terry, George Winslow, O. R. Phillips, R. E. Birmingham, S. H. Morrison.

Forsan Ousted In Semi-Finals

The Crane Cranes won the annual Big Lake invitation basketball tournament Saturday, 26 to 10, from the junior San Angelo Crimston Tide team. The Forsan Buffaloes, an entry in the meet, were defeated in the semi-finals, 18 to 14, by the San Angelo junior team. The Buffaloes ousted the San Angelo Bobcats, 25 to 23, in the second round. Two Forsan players, Liles, forward and Schuddy, guard, made the all-tournament team and were awarded gold football fobs. Liles was also selected as the best all-round player.

Son Of Local People Injured In Car Wreck Near Arlington School

Aubrey Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Davis of this city, sustained a broken jaw in an automobile wreck near Arlington one day last week, it was learned Monday in a letter from the boy to his parents. Although painful, the injuries were said not to be serious. Young Davis is a junior at the North Texas A. & M. college in Arlington. He was enroute to a nearby aviation school to repair an airplane for the school, it was said, when the radius rod on the car in which he was riding with another companion, came loose, and caused the car to overturn.

THEATER ROBBED

SAN ANGELO, (UP)—Two unmasked gunmen obtained between $600 and $700 in a theater robbery Monday. The bandits held up two negro porters at the Texas theater. One held a gun on the negroes while the other knocked the knob off the safe, where the money was found.

London Agog Over Divorce Filed Today

Both Fairbanks And Lady Ashley Refuse To Make Comment

LONDON, (UP)—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., American film favorite, was served notice Tuesday he had been named cor-respondent in a divorce action instituted by Lord Ashley against doll-like Lady Ashley. Both Fairbanks and Lady Ashley refused to comment on the suit, which has all London agog.

Ex Navy Heads Brought Into Airmail Probe

House Committee To Inquire Into Contracts Without Bids

WASHINGTON (UP)—The house naval affairs subcommittee Tuesday decided to call Charles Francis Adams, former secretary of the navy, and two of his assistants to find out what they know about airplane contracts on which it has been told profits as high as fifty percent were made. The committee determined to explore every one of many naval airplane and engine contracts awarded without competitive bidding.

High School Squads Given Food For Thought In Addition To Meal At Traditional Football Festive

Obie Bristow, who spends his autumn around here as high school football coach, rose to speak as master of ceremonies Tuesday evening in the Settles ballroom where the annual high school football banquet was being held. His audience, mostly squadmen who will be back for another season or so, leaned forward to catch laudations heaped on by the coach. Instead Obie spilled the truth. Expectant smiles turned to sheepish grins as he made public a fact they all knew—the squad had not trained nor had it made pretensions toward that end. Despite a few brilliant stands, it was in many ways, he said, one of the most disappointing teams he had coached. He didn't heap it all on the boys but he served notice that so far as the coaching end was concerned there would be a different condition next year. There will be a lengthy training camp before the season opens, he said. If merchants and residents want to have a part in it, it's all right with Bristow. Ray Wilcox In Car Wreck Near Brady Monday

Message Received Monday night, Tells Of Broken Leg; Details Lacking

Mrs. Ray Wilcox received a telegram from Brady hospital, Brady, Texas, at 7:30 Monday night, stating that her husband, Ray Wilcox, was in the hospital suffering from a broken leg as a result of an automobile accident occurring near that place late Monday. Mr. Wilcox was en route home from a business trip to Temple, and was driving a new car. He left here Sunday, and expected to return Monday night.

No details of the accident were given in the message. Upon hearing of the accident, Billy Wilcox, son of the injured man, accompanied by J. B. Farmer of Temple, who has been visiting his sister here, Mrs. Ray Wilcox, left by automobile for Brady, Mrs. Joe Ballanfont, of Midland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox, left Tuesday morning for Brady to be with her father. Mrs. Ballanfont, enroute to Brady this morning, was stopped at Sterling City, to be sold to get "tonic" medicine at San Angelo for her father. The type of medicine was unavailable in Brady, and it was hoped she could obtain it at San Angelo. Officers were notified at Sterling City to stop Mrs. Ballanfont's car, and relay the message to her. Up until press time this afternoon, The Herald had received no further information relative to the accident, and extent of Mr. Wilcox's injuries, other than the broken leg, is unknown. First reports Tuesday morning were that Mr. Wilcox would be removed to Temple for treatment, but it was decided later not to make that move, it was learned.

Senate To Get Bankhead Bill With Approval

WASHINGTON (UP)—The senate agriculture committee agreed Tuesday to report favorably an amendment to the Bankhead bill to control cotton production by eliminating the bill's gin licensing provision, placing a tax of 12c per pound on cotton ginned in 1934 in excess of nine million bales. The most dynamic speaker was Bishop Arthur J. Moore of San Francisco, whose topic was "What Does Church Need Most?" He talked in a strong, forceful manner, stressing the steps by which a member approached mission work. The beginning, he said, was the experience of conversion, then self-expression of religious convictions, after which came courage to take the message to others, and a sense of spiritual adventure. Bishop Moore also conducted the round table discussion on "Missions Needs" which occupied most of the afternoon's program. In this he was assisted by Dr. Elmer T. Clark, secretary of the board of missions from Nashville, Tenn. The hostess church prepared to serve luncheon to 300 visitors from out of town, but the number present was almost ten times that many. It was reported that Bishop Moore sold 3,000 copies of his book on missions. Among those who attended from the two Big Spring churches were the following: Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Bickley, Messrs. and Mmes. C. E. Talbot, Albert Hartman, W. F. Cook; Mmes. Sam Eason, Fox Stripling, J. B. Neel, Kate Holts, O. M. Waters, J. B. Grant, Hayes Stripling, R. F. Blumh, Hollis Webb, C. French Deputies Vote 300 To 217 In Riotous Meet

PARIS (AP)—Premier Daladier won his fight for political life Tuesday when the chamber of deputies, after a riotous demonstration, gave him a vote of confidence. Balloting was 300 to 217. For the first time in memory of deputies a premier has been interrupted during a declaration of policy as angry deputies came to blows. Daladier had pleaded for support from the radical socialist party to "prevent civil war." While the premier spoke, machine guns were held in readiness in the nearby political barracks. Thousands of police and troops were on duty as world war veterans and royalists threatened demonstrations. The vote gave Daladier assurance of the chamber support of his drastic government shake-up, following the Bayonne bank scandal.

Methodists Attend Big Church Rally

Women's Society Called Off So Workers Could Go

A large delegation of Big Spring Methodists attended the Missionary rally held in Sweetwater Monday in which three districts of the Methodist conference came together for a day's program of addresses in interest of the Kingdom extension work of the General Conference of the M. E. church. The rally was one of 33 being held by Southern Methodists all over the country. Three bishops of the church were in Sweetwater to address to crowd of workers, who could not begin to be seated by the commodious first church of that city. Bishop H. A. Boaz of Houston presided and conducted the meeting in an inspiring and educational fashion. The first speaker was Dr. W. G. Cram, general secretary of the board of missions, himself a former missionary to Korea. He told of his experiences on the mission field and the opposition he met, also how church members at home could help support missionaries in meeting this opposition. His talk was also broad non-denominational lines and focused on the gathering of Protestant forces in mission fields. Bishop J. M. Moore of Dallas gave a splendid address on "Leadership," calling on the church members not to forget their opportunities in building Christian nations, in addition to their own. The most dynamic speaker was Bishop Arthur J. Moore of San Francisco, whose topic was "What Does Church Need Most?" He talked in a strong, forceful manner, stressing the steps by which a member approached mission work. The beginning, he said, was the experience of conversion, then self-expression of religious convictions, after which came courage to take the message to others, and a sense of spiritual adventure. Big Business Given Break, Says Senator

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senator Capper of Kansas, declared Tuesday he felt the small industries and business men were "forgotten people of the new deal," and asserted some NRA codes appeared to be written "in the interest of big business and against the interest of little business." Capper said he understood plans were practically complete to extend some credit through RFC and mortgage companies to small industries of the country. He said extension of credit to the little man will do more harm than good unless he is given protection against big business monopoly.

THE MODERN CONCEPT OF GOVERNMENT.

One of the reasons why the New Deal often seems confusing is the fact that only now are we beginning to bring our idea of government into line with economic changes which took place several decades ago.

We started as an agrarian nation, in which the great mass of citizens always could be living on the land if the government only would leave them alone. Some years ago we changed to an industrial civilization, in which the prime necessity of the citizen was a job and not a piece of land, but our concept of government remained unchanged.

Now we are trying to bring ourselves up to date. If the effort makes us giddy now and then, it is no wonder.

Edward A. Filene, the Boston merchant, recently pointed out in an address before the American Academy of Political and Social Science that our delay in the accomplishment of this job led inevitably to the creation of that "invisible government" against which reformers used to argue so hotly.

Someone, he remarks, had to control the tangle in human relations which resulted when our agrarian order changed to an industrial order. We did not believe that was a job for the regular government; so an invisible government took shape to do the job, and it did it badly, because no one understood precisely what had to be done.

The visible government, meanwhile, continued to try to keep its hands off all the developments of a rising industrialism. In doing so, as Mr. Filene remarks, it found that by keeping its hands off it forever was finding its hands full.

And he adds:
 "Because it refused to deal with the causes of strikes, it was kept busy with their effects. Because it did not deal with the problem of unemployment, it had to deal with the distribution of wealth, it constantly was confronted with crises caused by inadequate distribution, which some stick-in-the-mud traditionalists still refer to as 'overproduction.'"

What is happening now is simply that we have come to realize the necessity of a new relationship between government and industry. This does not mean that the industrialist is going to get weaker, or that a bureaucracy of busy-bodies is going to run our factories and our salesrooms and our banks.

It just means that we are getting squared away so that a full reaping of the incalculably rich fruits of a great industrial era at last will be possible.

DEATH FOR RECKLESS DRIVING.

Some sort of record for severity in dealing with reckless driving seems to have been set by the Russian court in Moscow, which recently imposed the death penalty on a motorist who let his car get out of control, careened into a marching column of troops, and caused the death of four men.

This sentence is all the more astounding when one considers the fact that, except in cases of counter-revolutionary activity, Russian courts are reluctant to impose the death penalty at all, even for cold-blooded murder.

It isn't likely that very many Americans would favor the adoption of such stringent measures in this country. Nevertheless, there is something to be said for the adoption of extreme severity toward the man who handles his car so poorly that he destroys the lives of his fellow men.

We have a lot of public menaces of that variety in America, and so far we do not seem to have found any very effective way of dealing with them.

TO CHECK BLACKMAILING.

Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland plans to seek a modification of the famous Mann act in the present session of congress.

This law was passed to strike a blow at the white slave traffic. Unfortunately, it also has been a boon to blackmailers. It is perfectly possible to prosecute under it a man who never has dreamed of having the shadow of a connection with the organized vice traffic; and unscrupulous folk have used this fact as a lever to extort money from men guilty of nothing more than indiscretions.

It goes without saying, of course, that in revising the law care must be taken to leave it an effective club against commercialized vice rings.

Senator Tydings believes it is possible to amend the law so as to destroy its usefulness for blackmailers without weakening its usefulness in the field for which it was designed. It is to be hoped that he succeeds in his plan.

50 YEARS A MARTYR TO CONSTIPATION

But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought Welcome Relief

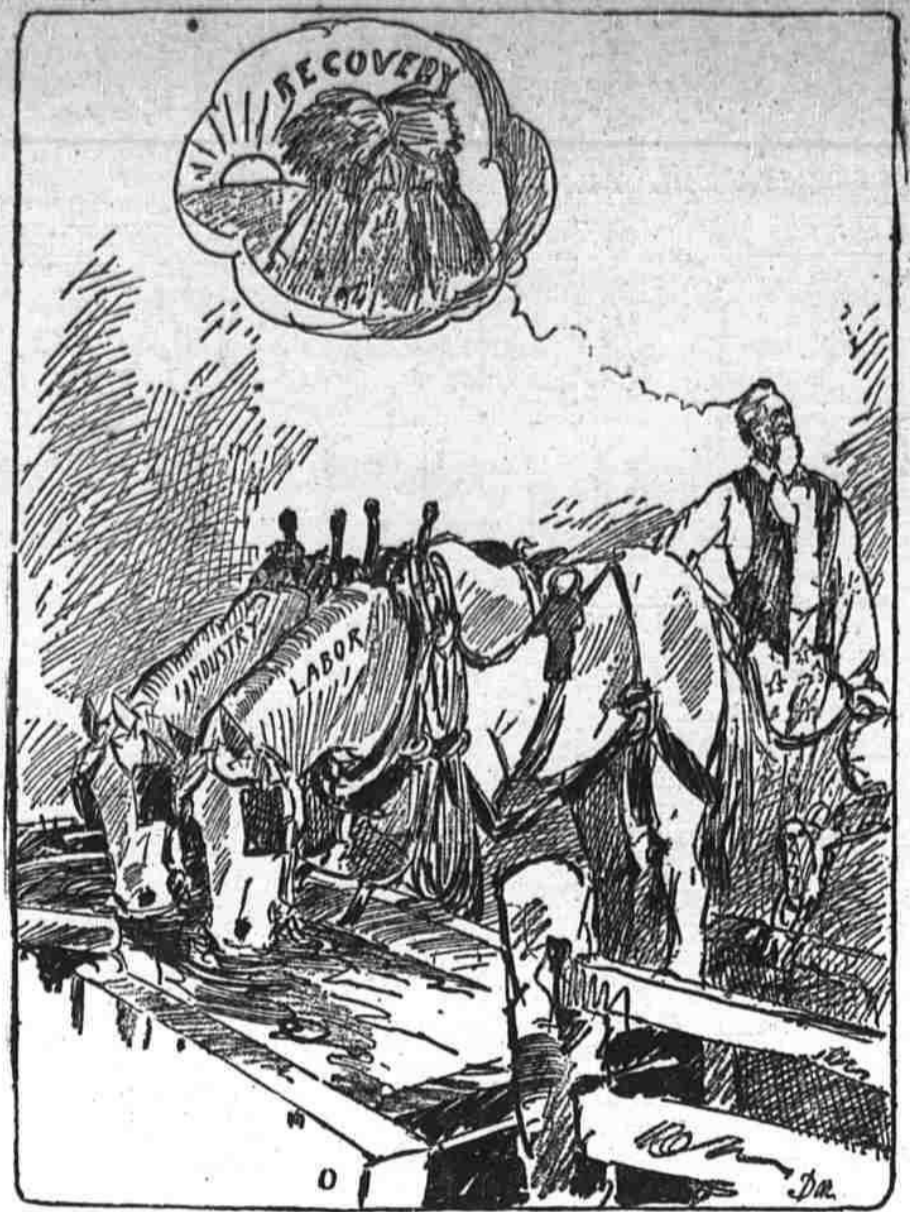

Read this splendid letter from Mrs. Haynes:
 "For 50 years I have been a martyr to constipation. Have tried every remedy under the sun.
 "One day I read an account of some one who had been relieved by ALL-BRAN, but I thought 'What was the use of me trying anything more when all else had failed?'"

"A while after, I read it again. That time I thought I would try it, it would do no harm anyway."
 "I began with a small dish of your ALL-BRAN for breakfast, and wonderful to say, I never need to take any physic at all now. How I wish other poor sufferers from constipation could be persuaded to try it."—Mrs. Sarah Haynes, 135 Cedarwood Terrace, Rochester, N. Y.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid regular habits. Also iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. It's so much safer than taking patent medicines! Two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

TODAY and TOMORROW
 By WALTER LIPPMANN
 The Devalued Dollar

The President has now taken the step necessary to make effective the policy he promulgated on October 21. It will be recalled that for the past three months the R. F. C. has been announcing daily that gold was worth so many dollars and cents an ounce. But it never was. For a few days in November gold was worth more than the R.F.C. said it was. All the rest of the time it was worth considerably less. Thus, for example, the R.F.C. would declare in the morning: "Gold is worth $34.45 an ounce." But gold could be bought in London for, say, $33.30 an ounce.

Nobody in authority ever explained this mystery. But the explanation was obvious. The R.F.C. would announce its high price, and then it would buy a little gold as cheaply as it could. The result was slightly ridiculous. For obviously the only way to make the price of gold whatever the government wanted it to be was to offer to buy all the gold that any one chose to sell at that price. But there were difficulties about this. For one thing it was very doubtful whether the R.F.C. had legal authority to buy gold at all, and so instead of buying gold freely, it bought a little, presumably on the theory that a little sin was not a bad sin. For another, it would have looked bad for the United States Government to appear as the active purchaser of great quantities of gold in London and Paris.

The measures taken Wednesday afternoon get around all these difficulties. Instead of going abroad to buy gold, the government is now letting any one in the world (except American gold hoarders) sell it gold at $35 an ounce. The difference is this: Instead of the government's taking the initiative to buy gold abroad, it lets private bankers, exchange dealers, American and foreign do the buying for it. They will now do what the R. F. C. tried in vain to do. It is more polite and it is infinitely more effective. The price of gold will be what the government says it should be, for the time being $35 an ounce, in every market in the world. For any one anywhere who has an ounce of gold can now get 35 American dollars for it.

By this measure the dollar is one of the fruits of the CWA work in Pittsburgh.

Plans are being made in that city for a municipal symphony orchestra, to be supported by CWA funds which have been allotted for employment of idle musicians.

If the plans go through, nearly 100 musicians will get full-time employment, and concerts will be given throughout Pennsylvania as well as in Pittsburgh.

Here is a cultural gain worth copying elsewhere, and it is the sort of scheme that kills two birds with one stone. It would make the best kind of music available to people who have not been able to hear such music before.

Furthermore, such an orchestra, once launched, might easily be made self-supporting, if the right kind of handling were available. In any case, the project is a praiseworthy one.

THE RIGHT VIEW.

It would be a good thing if successful candidates for public office everywhere could adopt the attitude with which Fiorello H. La Guardia assumed his duties as mayor of New York. Mr. La Guardia announced bluntly that he was not going to try to be "a good fellow."

"An elected public official under our form of government must be ungrateful," he said. "I have many friends who would hard for my election. I cannot appoint them to office, because they don't happen to be fitted to hold it. You can't be a good fellow and a good mayor."

Here is most excellent common sense. If more mayors had the same idea, our municipal government generally would be run with a great deal more of efficiency and a great deal less of expense.

A DOUBLE BOON.

Relief for unemployed musicians, coupled with a boon for music-lovers—this, apparently, will encies. The two operations together should, in the end, make the purchasing power of the dollar approximately the same here and abroad.

The decision as to how much European currencies are to be revalued is for the European countries to make, and it is not for us to interfere, provided they do not depart substantially from the old parity of exchange. It is hard to see what better guess can be made at the Anglo-American parity than the $4.85 which prevailed for a century, and that is the only European exchange rate which really concerns us greatly. As for the French, the franc was almost worthless while it is now overvalued, there would not seem to be any good reason why the French should devalue as much as the British and ourselves. But the decision is theirs and not ours.

Our problem now is to expand the American currency in order to raise and sustain the American price level. We have not yet had that expansion. Though prices have risen, the actual volume of money, which means bank deposits chiefly, is no greater than a year ago. This makes the rise of prices, which we have had and are having, somewhat precarious, gratifying as it appears to be. For the rise is not supported yet by an adequate supply of purchasing power money.

To create that supply is now the chief task of the Treasury and the Federal Reserve System. The tools and the resources to do it have been created. There is gold in a virtually unlimited amount. There are central bank reserves in a virtually unlimited amount. The problem is to concert them rapidly, but under strict control, into money that buys goods and services. There are two ways to do this. One is for the government to borrow, not from investors, but from the banks, and for it to spend what it borrows. This is being done on a big scale through the budget deficit. The other way is for business men to borrow from the banks and spend in the form of capital investments. This is not yet being done.

But it has to be done. For the government cannot borrow enough and spend enough to create all the new money needed to reflate prices and maintain them. The ten billion dollar deficit looks big on paper but it is not big compared with the money which disappeared in the deflation. That is nearer to twenty billions, and the only way to recreate that money, without

Lions Convention Of District 2-T To Be Held In Colorado April 23rd

COLORADO—Annual convention of Lions International, District 2-T of Texas, to open here Monday, April 23, for a session of two days, will attract several hundred members of the service organization. Clubs at Amarillo, Plainview, Lubbock, Pampa, Clarendon, El Paso, Hamlin and other cities in the district have already announced that representative delegations would attend.

Messages received here today from Del. W. Harrington of El Paso, district governor, expressed keen optimism in prospect for a successful convention. Harrington is to arrive in Colorado in advance of the convention opening for final conferences with committees from the host club as to plans for entertaining visitors.

An active membership of not less than 100 by time for the convention to open is goal announced by officials of the host club. Already there are 86 Colorado business and professional men listed on member roster and applications from four others pending consideration at weekly luncheon meeting Friday at noon.

Every social and civic organization in the city, including the chamber of commerce and country

Winner In Dice Game Burned To Death; Six Held

WINK (UP)—Sheriff W. A. Priest said charges would be filed Monday in connection with the fire-slaying of Ed Lovelace, 47.

Four men and two women were in jail here. They were arrested immediately following Lovelace's death Sunday.

Sheriff Priest said Lovelace was struck on the head by persons who then poured kerosene over his clothing and set fire to the fuel-soaked cloth.

The sheriff said the victim was attacked after he had won heavily in a dice game at the home of a woman resident of Wink. He said Lovelace regained consciousness after his clothing had been fired and ran from the house. He died before neighbors could save him. The body was charred almost beyond recognition.

Others who had been in the house fled. Sheriff Priest said the assailants probably anticipated that the house would burn and thus destroy evidence of the crime. Had not Lovelace regained consciousness and run from the building, it probably would have burned, the sheriff said.

Maury Hughes Candidate For Texas Governor

DALLAS (UP)—Maury Hughes, state democratic chairman, will launch his campaign for governor at a testimonial banquet here Tuesday night.

Murrell Buckner, Dallas county democratic chairman, will preside.

Hughes said he would outline his platform and discuss the issues of the campaign at the dinner. He said he expected to start his "stump" campaign early in the summer.

Reservations for more than 2,000 guests have been made, John Robert, in charge of arrangements, said.

blowing the country out of the water, is to finance business through a credit expansion which creates bank deposits which are purchasing power money.

Anything which stands in the way of that credit expansion, be it the policy of the Federal Reserve System and the Treasury in keeping long term money dear and short term money cheap, or the liability provisions of the Securities Act, or the capital gains provision in the tax laws, or a too abrupt change, called for by the Banking Act, in the method of underwriting securities, is an obstacle to the success of the Administration's program and ought now to be reconsidered with an open mind from that point of view. We have come a long way to the goal which the President set himself last spring, and with the same kind of intelligent audacity applied to the problems that remain we can now feel reasonably sure of reaching that goal.

BLOND GODDESS

A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

CHAPTER 14

"When Frank, my maid, said that he had phoned and asked if I were home, you, constituted that to mean that Ortega wanted to be sure that I was available for abduction—but I don't think so. Perhaps he just wanted to call to my good-bye; but changed his mind."

"When those two men came in, he wasn't with them. They— She expressed an involuntary shudder. "They held me as I couldn't scream. One of them gave me a hyperdermic. Another man—I never did see his face—was outside. I was conscious that he was there when they put me in the car."

"Did he have a beakish nose?" asked Frank.

Janice shook her head. "I don't remember," Greene made a little sound. He breathed:

"What a story! What a story! I've got most of it here." He held up a sheet of paper. "When I break this what a—"

"Giff them here," said Myberg, looking coldly at Greene with his obdurate eyes.

Greene passed them over. Myberg grasped them with his pudgy hands and ripped the sheet across. He dropped the torn paper into a wastepaper basket. Greene made a small, strangled sound. Winslow chuckled.

"Greene," he observed, "consider that vandalism. He is an artist."

"So was Munchausen," granted Myberg. "But the newspapers get nothing of this. The public wouldn't believe it. They would laugh at it for a lie. I don't mind if they laugh at you, Greene, but Miss Kent is no joke."

Greene looked miserable.

Frank said kindly, "Don't take it so hard, old man. You'll get other chances. You're good publicity man. Miss Kent told me so herself. She couldn't do without you, really."

At Janice's nod, Greene looked pleased and important.

"I work hard," he said. "In fact, I go to considerable time and expense to develop these stories. I—"

Janice interrupted him with a swift look. "He gets a perfectly stupendous salary for developing these stories, and I couldn't do without him, really. That is he would be most difficult to replace. Wouldn't you, Mr. Greene?" She smiled at him engagingly.

At the fleeting expressions of discontent that arrived and vanished in Greene's face, Winslow laughed loudly.

Myberg drummed his knuckles impatiently on the desk.

"There is nothing to do now except to get on production. We will not try to find out any more why and wherefore. With the police in the newspaper's files, I will get some men from an agency to watch out for Janice. That is—"

AND BAER SAID, 'NOT NOW, PRIMO'

When Primo Carnera and Max Baer met in Coral Gables, Fla., the man mountain started a right toward Baer's jaw, but Max urged him to wait until they get in the ring. Carnera is training for his February 22 bout against Tommy Loughran. (Associated Press Photo)

Mr. Ortega—"Strong words, masculine words. Something about the non-marriage clause in her contract being drilled, that the idea of her working was drilled. He had enough money for both of them."

Love. Love in a cottage. A gay adventure. He would take her to strange places he had been. Where he'd been lonely. Where they could sit under the stars before a campfire—dinner over and the dishes washed—

She was away from him. The width of the fireplace was between them. Almost hysterically she realized that she had struggled out of his arms and had struck his cheek with her open palm.

She saw the bewildered lust in his eyes and the unconscious gesture he had made of lifting his hand to touch his cheek. Her palm burned from the slap; her heart pounded with a curious and delicious excitement, his lips still tingled with the firm warmth from his kiss. And she had struck him! She wanted to cry out, "I don't mean it!" But the words would not come.

Frank said, "Oh... I'm sorry. Even in the freighthouse his face looked pale beneath the tan. It was as if a mask had been put upon him, so still were his features. The blue of his eyes had become a deep gray. Only his mouth had a strange twist to it."

She was conscious that he was leaving. She was unable to do or say anything that would prevent him from going. But he was gone before she realized how desperately she had not wanted him to go.

The need for activity descended upon her. She flew upstairs to her bedroom. She dialed a telephone number. There was no answer. She realized that Frank could not possibly have arrived back in his apartment in this short time. She thought of telephoning the apartment manager and leaving a message. But she would try again in half an hour. During the interval she walked about the upstairs floor; she descended to the drawing room and flung herself upon the Chesterfield. She phoned again. Still there was no answer.

TCU Certain To Win Basket Championship

Fort Worth Club Leads Conference With Win Over Aggies Saturday

DALLAS (UP)—The conference-leading Texas Christian University basketball team this week has an opportunity virtually to assure its spot at least a tie for the circuit scepter.

By defeating Baylor University at Waco Tuesday night and by again trouncing Texas A. & M. College in the game at College Station Saturday night, the Christians would have a record of six victories and one defeat—which would make them very, very hard to catch.

The Christians became the current heir-apparent to the conference throne last Saturday night at Fort Worth by defeating the Aggies 44 to 36, shoving the Cadets into a tie with the University of Texas for third place, half a game behind the second place Rice Institute quintet.

Baylor, however, proved last week that anything can happen when the Bears become aroused. The Baptist five played University of Arkansas to a standstill Friday night before losing 21 to 29, and came back the next night to win 31 to 29, its first victory of the season.

Southern Methodist University and Texas A. & M. open the week's game schedule here Tuesday night. The Mustangs, out of competition during the jull between semesters, will be fresh and eager to avenge an earlier beating by the Aggies. Although out of the title running, the Methodists may drop the A. & M. basketballers into a tie with Arkansas, currently in fourth place.

Texas and Arkansas will be fighting for survival in the championship race when they meet at Fayetteville Friday and Saturday nights. Baylor and S.M.U. will have only inter-school rivalry to spur them at Dallas Saturday night.

Mrs. Perrin Is Buried In Dallas

DALLAS (UP)—Amidst a profusion of flowers sent by her scores of friends in Dallas, funeral services for Mrs. Rhea Perrin, who with Dr. Claude Mattingly, Austin physician, died in an Austin hotel room last week, were held here at 3 p. m. Monday.

Deaths of the pair were attributed to overdoses of narcotics, believed taken in a suicide pact.

As Rhea Burgess before her marriage to Dr. F. A. C. Perrin, University of Texas professor of psychology, the victim was a popular member of the Dallas social set.

Her body arrived here from Austin Monday, accompanied by her professor husband.

Other survivors who came here for the funeral included Mrs. Perrin's father, L. C. Burgess of California, and two sisters, Mrs. J. A. Rudnick of New York, and Mrs. B. S. Shields, of New Orleans.

Dr. Mattingly was buried Friday at La Grange. He is survived by his wife and two children.

Advance! Not Retreat!

NON-DRINKERS FIRST! By William Dudley Browning

In helping the unemployed, we think the harassed taxpayer has a right to demand that the taxes he pays go to aid sober industrious workmen.

Now my reason for writing this article is that my home city, Los Angeles, California, has lately voted beer back into existence, and the first week it was on sale I noticed that several laborers, who were receiving help from city, county, and national taxes and living on this combined tax fund, had gotten a little extra money and were spending it for beer.

I do not think it is fair to those taxpayers who were taxed to raise this joint fund for the unemployed, if times are getting enough better so that these men can earn money to allow them to buy beer, they can, by the same exertion, earn their own daily bread and should be dropped from the lists of the unemployed.

Mind you, I was a hard drinker myself back in the old saloon days, and such a rule then would have perhaps made me go hungry. On the other hand, perhaps it would have made me quit drinking before I did.

But with the wide unemployment of today, I think it but fair to the non-drinking taxpayer that some system of rules be established to prevent the money he pays in taxes for the help of the deserving, from being spent for beer.

It would not be as hard to separate the sheen from the goats as some might think. Some of these beer drinkers that I mentioned, became so drunk that they got into jail. They were soon turned loose, however, and went on drawing their living from charity.

According to my plan, any one who was seen drinking would be arrested. I would have him lose a part of the support given him by the city, for the first offense, for the second he should lose half of his support, while the third offense should cut him off from further charity.

Now I don't want to see any one go hungry, but just as long as the taxpayers will furnish some of these beer drinkers with board and lodging, the latter will spend all they can beg, borrow or steal for drink, and there will soon be such an army of them that it will bankrupt the sober taxpayer to keep these unemployed drinkers in beer. Such a course is not fair to the saving, sober taxpayer. Help the temperate unemployed first by giving him the best jobs. Weed out the beer drinkers in the way I have suggested and they would have to spend the money they earn for food and lodging instead of beer. Drinking would be less, taxes would decrease, and charity would encourage temperance. (Contributed by Local W.C.T.U.)

DUCK SEEKS HUNTER

MODESTO, Cal. (UP)—Jack Keeler, local tire dealer, hunted duck, he went home. At 9 o'clock that evening, he was standing in front of his shop. He heard the startled quack of a duck, hurtling down through the fog was a nice mallard. It crashed into an automobile in the street and fell to the ground, unconscious. Keeler picked up the bird and took it home. It recovered and now is a pet and proof of Keeler's story.

Finds New Burial Mound

COALINGA, Cal. (UP)—A burial mound of an old tribe of Indians was discovered near here by Gordon Cain, oil company engineer. Cain found the skeletons of three adult Indians and pieces of shell ornaments, beads and coarse woven cloth, indicating that the Indians had had contact with the padres who established a chain of missions along the coast during the Spanish occupation. The mound was said to be similar to one near Bakerfield, Cal., where a Smithsonian Institute party is excavating.

know whether he thinks they should divorce their husbands. A fair section of his fan mail looks like an "Advice to the Lovelorn" column.

Notes—
There is evidence that the President is earnest when he backs the St. Lawrence treaty. . . . The four reports and maps that he had made for use in his favor cost the Government Printing Office $1,000. . . . A California hospital—badly in need of money itself—wrote to Presidential Ball, headquarters asking if it could give one and keep part of the proceeds. . . . The answer was to keep them all, and with it went H. L. Doherty's personal check for $500. . . . Military and naval aides have bought their own gold braids. . . . It's imported and they're wondering what the new price will be. . . . Jesse Jones gets a friendly Congressional reception to his proposal to extend the RFC railroad operations. . . . Perhaps $400,000,000 must be advanced in addition to $300,000,000 already used but the roads must help for refunding requirements.

France—
The pressure on France to abandon gold gets stiffer every day. Pretty soon the outflow of the metal will threaten the final reserves which the French regard as their war chest to be protected at all costs. France will slap on at least a gold embargo before the danger point is reached.

Air—
Wall Street bankers private comment that Secretary Morgenthau's description of our monetary status as a 1934 model air-flow gold bull, they stand ready to bet that if he had prefixed "hot" to "air," they insist that a gold standard without redemption is like a Nazi without his shirt.

Rush—
A new kind of gold rush is on. The whole world wants to sell to our Treasury. One local bank alone had queries from twenty-five countries in one day as to how gold shipments could be arranged. Among the inquirers were two from Nicaragua and Liberia. The bank thinks they must be planning to send over some teeth.

West Texas Bridal Couple Go To Dallas
Daughter Of Ranchman Wed To Winters Banker In San Angelo

Mr. and Mrs. Jack B. Wilkinson, who were married in San Angelo, are spending their honeymoon this week in Dallas and San Antonio. Mrs. Wilkinson was Miss Virginia McEntire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George McEntire of the U Ranch near Sterling City.

Following their marriage ceremony the young couple motored to Abilene for a wedding dinner at the Hilton Hotel. The groom's brother, I. N. Wilkinson, Mrs. Wilkinson, and their daughter June, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Mack, all of Winters, were other dinner guests.

Rev. Mr. Woods, pastor of the San Angelo First Presbyterian church, officiated for the marriage of the couple, which was held in his home at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The bride's brother, George H. McEntire and Miss Dena Meyer of Stamford were attendants.

The bride who is the former Miss Virginia McEntire is a licensed aviator, and a member of the 99 Club for Women, Pilot's association of America. She was graduated from the Hockaday School, Dallas, and the Chiniwood School of Art, Los Angeles. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. McEntire, of Sterling City, pioneer West Texas family. For her wedding she wore a modish spring ensemble in gray and brown.

Mr. Wilkinson is also a member of a pioneer family of West Texas, a son of the late J. B. Wilkinson, of Midland, well-known banker in this section of the state. He is associated with I. N. Wilkinson in the First National bank at Winters. He was born in Taylor county and received his early education in the schools of Midland, later going for three years to New Mexico Military Institute, at Roswell.

After a week's wedding trip to Dallas and San Antonio, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson will be at home in Winters.

Under The Dome At Austin

AUSTIN—State Senator T. H. McGregor makes no bones about it that the whisky bill he proposes is a straight out drinkers' bill.

As framed from the standpoint of the consumer—not the manufacturer, doctor or druggist. The doctor is limited to a charge of $1.25 for writing the annual prescription for a patient. The druggist can add only 15 per cent profit to the cost of his liquor and other expense of handling it.

When McGregor told a caucus it would end the bootlegging of whisky, Rep. B. H. Holland, Houston, asked: "How about the druggist that buys his 'prescription whisky' from the bootlegger?"

"We get him, too," answer McGregor. "He is required to file with the state comptroller a full statement of his whisky purchases."

Speaker Coke R. Stevenson contributed to have all the new members of the legislature meet Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson promptly. He appointed them a committee to visit her office and formally notify her that the House had convened and was ready to begin business.

Rep. J. H. Fisher, Newcastle, surprised fellow members by coming to Austin with his usually clean shaven face adorned by neck whiskers. He assured all that it was not desire to improve his appearance that led to the whiskers but experience that showed them helpful in staving off throat colds. The whiskers of the Forty-niners were generally worn for the same purpose by the California gold prospectors.

Rep. Fritz Engelhard, Eagle Lake, is turning a deaf ear to the suggestions that he become a candidate for State Commissioner of Agriculture. Engelhard says he does not feel it worth while to spend an estimated $5,000 and two months time in a campaign for an office that has a $3,000 salary. Accordingly, he will seek re-election to the House of Representatives.

The special session of the Texas legislature was welcomed by Mrs. Coke Stevenson, Junction, wife of Speaker Stevenson. It enables her to be in Austin where she can see her new granddaughter daily.

Assuming that the present called session of the Texas legislature lasts 30 days, the total daily pay of silver tea to be held next Tuesday evening at the church for the new organ fund, also for the Fashion Tea which the members will give March 9th at the Settles Hotel.

Present were: Mmes. Shine Phillips, H. S. Faw, E. V. Spence, B. O. Jones, Wilburn Barcus, V. Van Gleson and two visitors, Rev. W. H. Martin and Miss Elsie Wills.

SPORT SLANTS
By ALAN GOULD

Professional football, as unveiled to the Pacific Coast by the champion Chicago Bears of the National League, has given the far west a live mid-winter topic at a time when the mid-west is all steamed up over its basketball races, the east busy speculating on Yale's coaching situation and the south, among other matters, giving the golfers a running start on the new year's trail.

With the exception of a few critics, such as Stanford's one-man opposition party—Robert L. (Dink) Templeton—the coast has given an enthusiastic reception to the pro footballers. A crowd of 35,000 turned out for the game in San Francisco. Around 22,000 watched the Bears trim a collection of ex-Southern California stars at Los Angeles. There is already talk of forming a winter professional league, to pick up the sport where its eastern campaign and the college season leave off.

College football already is so well established on the Pacific Coast that it has nothing to fear from an invasion by the professionals. Nevertheless there was considerable antagonism and skepticism before the Bears moved in to give spectators a typically entertaining gridiron show. This may have been natural enough, under the circumstances, but no conflict is likely to last, for the good reason that none really exists.

PASSING IMPRESSIVE
The deceptive and effective passing attack of the Bears has impressed all who have seen it. Lateral and forward spring from the pro formations like sparks from a grindstone. Describing some of the features and giving his conclusions, Tommy Fitzpatrick, who refereed the Bears' game in San Francisco, wrote:

"The final touchdown play was especially interesting. The Bear quarterback, Brumbaugh, sent a runner in the huddle; Hewitt is going to be right in the left-hand corner of the end zone. Now you, Red (indicating the famous Grange), fake a line buck and then toss it over there. Bill will get it."

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the courtesies, consideration and sympathy extended us during the recent illness and death of our loved husband and father.

agreement was reached that certain Senators began to discover what a shrewd operator Mr. F. D. Roosevelt really is.

Gloves were taken off at the White House end of Pennsylvania Avenue. Any number of Public Works allotments have been made for which the money has not actually been handed out. It would be too bad—and quite a coincidence—if certain Senators voted "no" and allotments were subsequently withdrawn from their states.

Also word began to trickle thru the cloakrooms that a vote against the treaty was a vote for the power trust.

Warm Springs—
Credit for the nationwide series of Presidential birthday balls which clicked off a million or so dollars for the Warm Springs Foundation appears to go jointly to Henry L. Doherty—utility magnate—and Casson Callaway—a Georgian long interested in the Foundation.

Carl Boyer, Doherty's public relations man, broadcast publicity on a grand scale. Keith Morgan, member of the Foundation's Board of Trustees, directed arrangements from New York.

Doherty and Callaway first thought of making the proposition a huge national surprise for the President.

They wrote to a number of prominent men, such as former Governor Cox of Ohio, requesting their services on the committee for arrangements. Several who were approached—not quite getting the idea—called the White House by phone to ask if it would be all right to serve. These calls gave the White House its first inkling of the plan.

Subsequent discussions tossed the "surprise" idea overboard—largely because a successful charity operation must have widespread publicity.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

Credit—
The private credit machine—meaning the Federal Reserve System and its member banks—is about to go places and do things. The cut in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's lending rate—made on the Treasury's "suggestion"—will accomplish more than any similar step in years. This plus technical stabilization will induce the banks to loosen up where threats and pleas for cooperation and the piling up of excess reserves all fizzled.

It looks like a miracle but the answer is simple. The banks finally see a chance for profits with minimized risk. Three worries have held them back. One was nervousness about unlimited devaluation and paper money without gold backing. Another was fear that business recovery symptoms were a mirage. The third was alarm about possible further depreciation of their bondholdings.

The first of these disappears with official revaluation. Bankers know the peg is temporary and may be moved down to fifty cents but even so they've stopped feeling jittery about their dollars. Old Doc Psychology again. As for the second, business statistics show such persistent gains that even conservatism has been convinced recovery is more than a rumor.

Lamesa Has Rangy Quint
Steers To Seek Revenge For Defeat Suffered Earlier In Season

Coach Gregg's Golden Tornados, Lamesa's championship basketball team, will meet the Steer hardwood artists in the local gymnasium tonight at 7:45.

Lamesa's standing in the basketball world is backed up by a long string of top heavy victories for the season, including a good looking administered the Steers.

Playing on the Tornados' court has always proved a jinx to the Big Spring cagers, yet they have always managed to take the Lamesa team into camp when they play here. The possibility of doing so tonight, however, is very doubtful.

Last year Lamesa went to third place in the state meet. This season, with a rangier and more experienced team, they loom as strong contenders for the state school-boy crown. They are accurate shooters, and have a center that gets the tip-off nearly every time.

H. F. Taylor In Race For Commissioner Of Precinct No. Three

In today's issue of The Herald will be found the announcement of H. F. Taylor, who has authorized this paper to announce him as a candidate for the office of County Commissioner of Precinct No. 3, Howard county, subject to the action of the democratic primary election July 28, 1934.

Mr. Taylor is an old settler of Howard county, having been a citizen of said county for the past twenty-eight years, where he has reared a large family, all of whom were born in the county.

Mr. Taylor has so far these years been a taxpayer until the depression wiped out and greatly reduced his taxpaying substance, as in the case of many others, without ever holding a public office.

Mr. Taylor is a man who has ever been a lover of his adopted county and loyal to his friends and always interested in the welfare of the county and he says that he is not making the race on the demerits of his opponents, but thinks that, since all loyal citizens are in favor of a good county government, there are a great number of citizens capable of aiding in the administration of the county's affairs and in a free democratic government.

Mr. Taylor promises, if elected, to said office to so perform and discharge his duties in a manner in keeping with the best interests of the county without discrimination, giving every one a square deal and to that end he thanks every voter in advance who may see fit to support him.

Is Castor Oil A Bladder Laxative?
No, but Juniper Oil is. Use it to drive out impurities and excess acids that cause the irritation which results in getting up nights, bladder weakness, leg pains, back ache and burning. Juniper oil is pleasant to take in the form of Buckets, the bladder laxative, also containing buchu leaves, etc. Use a 25c box. If not satisfied your druggist will return your money. You are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. Sold by Cunningham & Phillips—adv.

DIVIDING LINE
The college football rules-makers soon will discuss the passing regulations, possibly with a view to giving the offense more leeway, but the dead ball provisions are in the code to stay, for the sake of safety.

Bill Langford, secretary of the National Collegiate A. A. committee which controls the rules, has already made that much clear. He sees a sharp dividing line between the pro and college game, so far as rules are concerned, and he is undoubtedly quite correct. But that doesn't mean the boys on either side can't argue about it.

Vandenberg—
But don't think the opposition has been idle.

Imagine how Senator Vandenberg (R) of Mich.—up for reelection this fall—must have felt when the Railroad Brotherhoods dumped a petition in his lap signed by 108,000 Michigan voters urging him to reconsider his stand in favor of the Conference—

As soon as the French government is stabilized—in whatever form—a new project for a world monetary conference will be launched.

This time the leading governments will agree in advance on a program to be put through the conference. They don't want a repetition of London conference futility.

Washington inner circles are confident that the worst is over in the matter of adjusting world currencies to a new gold valuation.

Bonds—
But the effect of the lower Federal Reserve rate on bonds is still more important. By making money cheap it makes all bond yields more attractive and—coupled with restored confidence—practically guarantees a strong and healthy bond market. That lifts an enormous load from bankers' minds and allows them to pay attention to normal operations once more.

It is also a weight from Secretary Morgenthau's shoulders. That's the chief reason the cut was made.

Loans—
At least one of the biggest New York banks is aggressively out after new business. It actually wants to make loans. Several have already been granted which would have drawn nothing more than a dirty look if applied for a few months ago. Other local institutions will not be slow to follow suit.

T. & P. Team Beats Forsan

Texas and Pacific humbled the Forsan city leaguers here Monday evening in a wild scoring melee, 50-25.

Vaughn, who led the field, scored 22 points and his running mate, Forrester, T & P. kingfish, was not far behind with 19 points.

Landers was high for his side with an even 10 points.
