Credit

It develops finally that the idea of establishing industrial intermediate credit banks has very long ears—in other words, it's a rabbit the Federal Reserve Board is trying to pull from a hat.

This is bad news for the little fellow who—along with the rest of us—has fallen for the idea that credit was about to be given a big dose of tonic.

Don't get your hopes up unduly. Because the Federal Reserve is back of the plan it may get to Congress. But there it probably will die of cold and exposure.

If you'll cast your memory back a couple of weeks you'll recall that the Advisory Board of the Federal Reserve proposed to President Roosevelt that such a system of banks be set up—one for each district and one for all branches—making 30-odd in all.

These new banks were to extend credit to those loyal employers who embraced the Blue Eagle and flow can't get loans from their regular bankers to hold them over the hump.

Governor Black and his fellow members of the Reserve Board are still keen for the idea.

But get your magnifying glass and take a good look at the layout.

According to those running federal fiscal affairs all bankers are suffering from a liquidity complex. It is only human nature, remembering that hectic period just a year ago.

But consider this example. The Dallas Federal Reserve Bank at present has $112,000,000 in deposits—and $30,900 outstanding in loans. In 1920, the Dallas bank had $170,000,000 loaned out and it had to borrow $40,000,000 from other banks to meet all the requests.

Loan-Some

As against this situation take a look at the R. F. C. For some time that body has been bursting blood vessels to lend money.

In the past six months it has succeeded in putting out no more than four or five million dollars.

For the most part these are five-year loans. The microscope has convinced the Corporati that the security is good. Nevertheless it must wait some time before cashing in.

Now to get back to the Federal Reserve Board.

The gentlemen running this super-banking system are acutely aware of a general public feeling that the Federal Reserve fell down in time of national crisis. They want to get back into good graces.

A second thing they're aware of is that the new federal deposit guarantee system cost them $140,000,000. They want that money back.

Amended

Eager for renewed public good will, but more eager still to catch up with that $140,000,000, these bankers-extraordinary hit on this idea of a system of industrial intermediate credit banks.

It would cost $12,000,000 to finance them. The Reserve System would run them and take what profits there were.

Meanwhile the grand gesture would have been made to the public. Officially, credit would be as loose as water. M. y. b.

Seeing through all this, certain of Mr. Roosevelt's closest financial advisers have poured a counter-proposal in his ear.

Why set up another bank system with its attending expense, they ask, when the same men who now think only of ultra-liquidity would run it?

Why not amend the Federal Reserve Act to permit its key banks to make five-year loans? (As it is they now have authority to make short-term loans and aren't doing it—but that's another question).

Hours

Government and industry are doing a terrific lot of shadow-boxing over the questions of hours and wages just at present.

Each side has screwed up its most ferocious face in the hope of scaring the everlasting daylight out of the opposition.

For all this face-making eyes are being rolled anxiously to the corners. Both boys, as the prize fight

LIMA, O. (AP)—National Guardsmen trained machine guns on the county jail Monday and a hurled challenge to John Dillinger, "Kill Crazy" jailbreaker.

Inside the jail was Harry Pierpont, Dillinger's pal, who is on the way to the electric chair.

He was found guilty Saturday of the murder of Sheriff Jesse Barber during a bandit raid last October in which Dillinger freed from the prison.

Guardsmen were read to answer any attempt Dillinger might make to free Pierpont. Police guarded roads between Toledo and Lima Monday after a report that Dillinger had been seen.

New Schedules Are In Making For Air Mail

Congress Works On New Legislation To Permit Carrying Of Mails

SKIES EMPTY OF PLANES MONDAY

Tentative Routes Are Announced; One From Chicago To Dallas

WASHINGTON (AP)—The sky was empty of airplanes flying the mail Monday, just three weeks after the army took over the job. An order grounding planes was issued Sunday by Major General Foulis, chief of air corps, and directed the fliers to suspend all carrying of the mail until the personnel and equipment were in position to initiate schedules to be furnished later.

The order was expected to be in effect in two or three days.

Both the house and senate worked Monday for legislation along the lines of the president's request that flying of mail be returned to private companies under a new contract system that would prevent recurrence of such conditions as led to wholesale cancellation of contracts last month.

Army air corps officials plotted a route from Newark, N. J., to San Francisco, as the backbone of a modified air mail system.

Another line, tentatively agreed upon, would run from Chicago to Dallas.

Pioneer Texas Cattleman Dies

VERNON—Charles Neal, 70, native Texan and pioneer cattleman, died in a hospital here Sunday of injuries suffered when he was crushed beneath the wheels of a wagon near his ranch, 15 miles north of Vernon.

Neal was en route to extricate a cow from a bog on the ranch and was driving the wagon when a coupling pole suddenly broke and he was jolted from the wagon, falling under the wheels. His chest was crushed.

Neal was born at Birdville, the first county seat of Tarrant county, where his parents were pioneer settlers. He came to this section in 1886, worked on the Bar-X ranch in Greer county, Okla., for a number of years, then entered business in Altus, Okla. He moved to Wilbarger county in 1899 and had operated a ranch east of Odell in the northern part of the county since that time.

The mechanic went to his death singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." Wiles admitted his guilt, and took full responsibility for the crime before being electrocuted.

Hubbard was killed two days before Christmas after ransom negotiations had been upset.

Watson Leaves To Represent Drought Area

C. T. Watson, chamber of commerce manager, departed Saturday night for Washington where he will represent fourteen West Texas as drought stricken counties in matters of relief.

County Judge Elliott Barron of Midland who was to have accompanied Watson was ill and unable to make the trip. He was to follow Monday if his health would permit.

Well fortified with information gained in a recent survey of drought stricken areas in this section, Watson will exert efforts to have some sort of work relief substituted CWA in this territory.

While in Washington he will also attempt to have Federal Emergency Relief Director Harry L. Hopkins set aside a special appropriation for proposed airport improvements here.

It is Watson's second trip to the national capital this year. His first made in interest of retaining the federal dry land experiment farms, was highly successful.

Measure To Get Immediate Consideration

Roll Call Vote Is 313 To 104 To Consider Bill

BOTH SIDES TO DEBATE 2 HOURS

None Of Democratic Leaders Speak In Opposition To Consideration

WASHINGTON (AP)—By more than a two-thirds vote—that is necessary to override a presidential veto—the house Monday approved an immediate consideration of the Patman cash bonus bill.

The roll call vote was 313 to 104. Immediate consideration of the $2,200,000,000 measure got underway after it was agreed two hours debate would be equally divided between proponents and opponents.

It was noticeable during debates on the motion to consider the bill that none of the democratic leaders spoke in opposition.

The president had previously said he would veto the bill.

House leaders said bonus advocates could not enlist a two-thirds majority to pass the bill over his veto.

NEW PARTIES MIGHT CLEAR OUT MISFITS

A Washington publisher recently called for the formation of a new political party in the United States, with opposition to the general trend of the "new deal" as its main platform plank.

It has been one of the axioms of American politics for a good many years that there is little difference between the two major parties.

Told Her Daughter To Take CARDUI "I took Cardui for a week, run-down condition," writes Mrs. John Behms, of New Madrid, Mo. "My back ached, also my sides. I did not feel good, so did not feel like doing my work, and there is a lot to do on a farm. I read about Cardui and decided to take it. Cardui helped me. It is the best tonic I have found. I told my daughter to take it, too, and it helped her." Ask at the drug store for Cardui. Used by women for over 50 years.

Wringing Back

To put through a general shifting of personnel and principles that would give us two big parties, each one more or less united from top to bottom, based on widely different conceptions of the function of government in the modern world, might be an exceedingly healthy development.

It is hard to escape the feeling that the actual trend of things today is in that direction. We have the "western progressives" in the Republic party, who are far closer to the administration than they are to such leaders in their own party as Mr. Hoover or Mr. Mills.

On the other hand, it is pretty obvious that me like Senator Glass and ex-Governor Smith are not exactly the same kind of Democrats as President Roosevelt. Continuance of this trend can do one of two things. It can give us two new major parties to replace the old ones, or it can split both our parties and give us a group of half a dozen or more blocs, creating a condition in which no administration ever could have a majority in congress and in which compromise and a multiplicity of "deals" would be the order of the day.

The recent experience of France is enough argument against the latter possibility. A republican government works best on a straight two-party system, with the matter of principle, on most major issues.

If we are to have that in the future, it might be a very good thing for us to promote some sort of reshuffling like the one this Washington publisher advocates.

WAR BUSINESS RISES!

Strange, how the rumors of coming war can be felt in far-off places and in the most peaceful of pursuits!

Steamship traffic through the Panama canal is heavy, these days—and the imminence of war is largely responsible.

During the first three weeks of February, for instance, 12 steamers passed through the canal bound for Europe with Chilean nitrates—nitrates, from which high explosives are made.

At the same time, many ships are going through the canal in the other direction, bound from the east coast of the United States for Japan with scrap iron, lead, and cotton—commodities which also are destined to be transformed into the munitions of war.

Rusty steamers, deeply laden, busy on the most peaceful of errands... but grimly foreshadowing the fear of war which grips the world!

THE TRAGEDY IN A LIFE OF VAIN REVOLT

There is a pathetic note in the otherwise amusing announcement of beautiful young Nila Cram Cook that she is through with the life of abnegation she had led as a disciple of the Mahatma Gandhi, and that henceforth she will seek the freedom and gaiety of the world.

The discordant note rings out from the fear that Miss Cook will become just as disappointed, just as disillusioned, in the new life as she had become in the old.

This sad commentary on life in general. It is based, rather, upon what is known of the Cook temperament and personality, and the rebelliousness that characterized the Cook tradition.

The talented novelist and playwright, George Cram Cook, died a broken-hearted and disillusioned man when he failed in his revolt against the "false" pleasures of the modern world.

Now his daughter, inheriting his emotional traits, would cast off the very mantle of despair that he had left her.

The tragic life of the "Great Soul" of India, the miseries of those millions of untouchables brought about the same feeling of revolt which previously had caused her to turn from the ways into which she had been born.

Miss Cook's experience, worthy of serious consideration by the thousands of young men and women who today seem to see nothing but despair and frustration before them, in their struggle for the finer things of life.

They may cry out against the selfishness, the greed and the materialism of the day. They even may stimulate the experience of Miss Cook and devote themselves to the regimen of self-denial and protestation against the modern world.

But they will find themselves returning to the very life they abhor, and then they will discover that the

At Austin. Former Attorney General Robert Lee Bobbitt, Laredo, and San Antonio, has one of the attributes of his illustrious namesake.

Five members of the relief commission turned Reed down for Adam Johnson, when they selected a successor to Col. Lawrence Westbrook. Reed takes the place of a commission member who supported him, so the majority of the board is composed of members who voted against one who now is a fellow member.

Reed, resident in turn of Galveston and Junction, has been connected with state relief activities since creation of the state relief commission. He knows the details from A to Z. He is outspoken and precise in his statements, and likes others to be the same.

He believes that the federal government used the word "adequate" literally when it agreed to match Texas dollars in adequate relief. At his first meeting as a board member, he asked Johnson, what he thought was meant by adequate relief.

Johnson frankly admitted he has been too busy getting relief bonds to have had time to examine the federal requirements minutely. He gave his own version of adequate relief. Its salient feature is that no child shall be permitted to go uneducated. Adults unemployed are to be given care but are not to be encouraged to accept relief rather than work.

Queer expressions creep into extemporaneous remarks. At the recent hearing before the governor on new oil bills, a banker spoke of the gallons of oil produced in East Texas. He probably is the first one who has endeavored to measure East Texas oil in such minute quantities.

Another speaker referred to the "legality of the law." During the discussion it was brought out that in the early days of East Texas oil field, federal banking officials depreciated oil loans. A representative was sent from Washington to visit East Texas.

Morton was given a tank of Coaden gasoline for traveling the long distance, something over two hundred miles.

By Tom Beasley. A representative of Brown school stopped in late Saturday night for interpretation on some of the Inter-scholastic League's tennis rules.

It seems that Brown and Courtney had been playing for the championship of Martin county. In the doubles event, one of the regular Courtney players became too ill to play and another player was substituted before the game had started.

If our understanding in the matter is correct, there is nothing wrong in using a substitute, providing the substitute starts the game. However, if a player starts a game and then becomes too ill to continue, the game must be forfeited unless the other team agrees to a postponement.

Acid Boosts Yield Of Shell 3-A Rumsey In Glascock

Two producers in Howard county were completed last week for total daily initial yield of 350 barrels while a Glascock county well, Shell No. 3-A Rumsey, Abrams & Fraser swabbed 40 barrels of oil hourly for two hours following its treatment with acid.

The larger of the Howard wells completed, Continental No. 4 Rumsey, Abrams & Fraser, pumped 10 barrels of oil hourly on a production test at a plugged back depth of 2,455 feet. Earlier it was treated with 1,000 gallons of acid. Location is in the northeast quarter of section 13, block 33, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Sinclair-Prarie No. 2 Denman in section 10, block 30, township 1 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, was completed at 2,812 feet, pumping 110 barrels of oil daily. Southern Oil Corporation's No. 1 Emphre-Denman, also in section 10, block 30, had drilled to 2,035 feet in lime.

Sinclair-Prarie No. 10 Dodge, in section 11, block 30, remained shut down at 2,350 feet in lime, where 6 5/8-inch casing was cemented. Materials were being moved in for the same company's No. 11 Dodge.

Shell 3-A Near Completion Swabbing of 40 barrels of oil hourly for two hours by Shell No. 3-A Rumsey, Abrams & Fraser in Glascock county followed the running of 1,000 gallons of acid with a 60-barrel oil load under maximum pressure of 600 pounds. The well will be completed at 2,930 feet in lime. It is in the southeast corner of section 13, block 33, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.

Sinms No. 5-A Coffee, in the southwest quarter of section 15, block 33, township 2 south, T. & P. Co. survey, was drilling just below the 3 1/4-inch casing which was cemented at 2,075 feet in lime.

Winner Of Texas U. Sweetheart Title To Get Free Plane Trip

AUSTIN—Winner of the title, "Sweetheart of the University of Texas," will receive a round-trip sky flight ticket to Los Angeles from American Airways, Burck Smith, traffic representative for the line, has announced.

Each year the election of the "Sweetheart" at the University is held in connection with the Annual Round-Up, ex-student celebration of the University, which this year will be held in Austin on April 13, 14 and 15. Miss Genevieve Weldon of Houston was winner of last year's contest.

"While in Los Angeles, the 'Sweetheart' will be a guest at the film studios in Hollywood where she will also visit Miss Mary Tom Blackwood, former student of the University and 'Sweetheart' in 1932, now playing in pictures, Mr. Smith said.

Announcing of the winning candidate for "Sweetheart" will be made at the annual Round-Up Revue and Ball on the night of April 13. Although the votes will have been cast two weeks earlier, they will be locked in a bank vault and not counted until the day of the Revue. This is a departure from the previous system, in which the winning candidate knew some time in advance of her election as campus favorite.

Food Handlers Are Required To Secure Health Certificates

AUSTIN—For the protection of the public a law was passed in 1921 making it mandatory for every person who is employed in any public eating place, bakery, meat market, dairy or candy factory to secure a health certificate from a reputable physician. This law is intended to eliminate all persons having any communicable disease from handling any foodstuff. These certificates must be renewed every six months.

Typhoid fever, diphtheria, and amoebic dysentery carriers have been found numbers of times working in dairies, cafes, and other places where food is prepared or offered for sale. It is not too much for the consuming public to demand that those who sell them food shall be free from communicable disease. If the examinations for food handlers are properly carried out much good will be accomplished in protecting the health of the buyer as well as giving the applicant for a certificate accurate information as to his physical condition.

The Texas State Department of Health has repeatedly advocated periodic physical examinations for the general public, as it is during these examinations that many incipient diseases may be discovered and treatment begun in time to stop its developing to such a degree that treatment will not be helpful. Many deaths and much suffering would be eliminated if every one would have this periodic check. In the case of food handlers, only the diseases that are communicable will withhold the issuance of a certificate. The cost is money well invested and the consuming public should demand that those they buy from have this evidence of good health.

Contract Let For Ford Exhibit At 1934 Chicago Fair

The general contract for erection of the Ford Exposition building at the Chicago World's Fair has been awarded to the W. E. O'Neil Construction company of Chicago, it was announced Monday by Mr. C. B. Ostrander, manager of the Dallas branch of the Ford Motor company.

Construction work, which has already begun, is to be completed before June 1.

Fourteen hundred tons of steel will be used in the building, which will be 900 feet long and rise to 110 feet at its highest point in a huge central rotunda.

Specifications call for 700,000 square feet of fire-resistant wall board, 1,600,000 feet of lumber, 5,000 yards of concrete and 160,000 square feet of tile flooring. The entire space reserved for industrial exhibits will be skylighted.

Large quantities of chromium metal work will be used in both the interior and exterior embellishments, in line with the conservatively modernistic motif of the architecture.

Fifteen bids were received. The three lowest were so close that two days were spent in conference between Ford officials and bidders before the award was finally made in the offices of Albert Kahn, Detroit architect.

W. E. O'Neil, president, and C. F. Trimarco, chief estimator, represented the successful company. The Ford building, which is to be one of the largest at the 1934

"I KNEW WHICH LOW-PRICED CAR TO BUY...I helped build ALL THREE!"

READ THIS CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH B. V. FRIEDMAN OF DETROIT, MICHIGAN

"Let the other fellow drive without Hydraulic Brakes and a Safety Steel Body"

WE HEARD THAT Mr. Friedman practically lives in his car... averaging 150 miles a day in his business. We went out to see him.

We asked if he "looked at All Three" before buying Plymouth.

"Looked at them? ... Mister, I've helped build All Three! But just to make sure, I drove each of the low-priced cars 100 miles."

This owner says he demands two things in a car—comfort and safety!

So Plymouth's Floating Power engine mountings and Individual Wheel Springing appealed to him. No more engine vibration... and no more bumpy rides to tire him out or injure the delicate radio apparatus he carries in his car.

And, of course, anybody who knows cars as he does is sold on Hydraulic Brakes and Safety-Steel Bodies. "I'll let the other fellow drive without them," he says, "but I'm taking no unnecessary chances."

There's not much we can add to Mr. Friedman's convincing story. But we urge you to do this—"Look at All Three before you buy." This year there's a surprising difference in low-priced cars. And you don't need to be a mechanic to see it!

Any Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer will be glad to demonstrate Plymouth without obligation.

1. "I was born in the 'Motor City,' and I've worked in the shops of 'All Three.' You bet I know the low-priced cars inside out!"

2. "But just to make sure—I drove 'All Three' 100 miles each over tough roads. Believe me, Plymouth has 'em all beat on performance!"

3. Above—De Luxe Plymouth 4-door Sedan. Plymouth 3's prices begin at $495 f. o. b. factory. Dealer, subject to change without notice. Duplicate Safety Plate Glass through-out for low extra charge (only $19 on De Luxe Sedan).

BLOND GODDESS

A New Serial by Herbert Jensen

Chapter 43 DARK HORROR

Despite himself, Frank's teeth began to chatter. He had estimated aight to ten hours immersion; would his resistance bear it?

Then suddenly the phosphorescent glow disappeared. The water seemed quiet; then apparently the current became a scarcely perceived flow.

He touched the side-wall. His senses had not deceived him. The current had indeed diminished.

A sudden fear contracted his heart. He believed that he was at least halfway to the coast—perhaps a little more. Despite the probable inaccuracy of his estimate of time elapsed, he was sure that he had been adrift at least five hours.

Supposing that from this point whirled dizzily for an instant. He bumped against a buttress of rock projecting into the channel. The stream made a twist to the left; then to the right.

Suddenly he floated into daylight! Sudden pain stabbed his eyes. He shut them tightly for an instant; then slit them against the unaccustomed light.

He was in a cenote. It was not so large as the one below the pyramid, nor so high-walled as the extensive one where he had left Langton and Janice Kent.

It seemed, however, deeper. The water flooded within it to a high level on the cliffs. At one edge the cliff had broken down; shrubby and creepers grew upon it. With an ejaculation of hope he paddled toward it. Perhaps from here he could gain the level above.

Alligator:

on, the current flowed sluggishly. A chill that was not from the water swept him.

As he splashed forward, hoping to assist with the effort his downstream progress, he began to be aware that ahead of him there glowed a light that was not the greenish yellow of phosphorus.

He could not tell himself believe that grayish dimness that suffused the blackness ahead of him was the end of the cavern. His disappointment, he knew, would be too keen. The clumsy life belt impeded his progress; yet he dared not dispense with it lest some weakness overcome him, or some mishap occur.

A vargent eddy caught him and hurried him forward. He was Instantaneously the thought came to him that he could somehow get word to Billy and Janice that they could drift down to here on the raft and once above ground, could chop through the jungle to the coast.

He splashed into the shallows. As he did so there was a sluggish movement in the tangle of water plants between him and the slope ahead. Golden, black-slitted eyes observed him; a wide tooth-fringed maw gaped.

Alligator! He stood still. The reptile did not attack. Instead it slid to one side and away from him. A boiling of muddy water marked its disappearance into the cenote.

Graham repressed a slight shudder. He knew alligators; sometimes they attacked a man, but usually not. Although his knowledge was practical and jungle-bred and did not conform to popular belief, nevertheless the sight of the reptiles always gave him that atavistic sensation of skin crawling upon his back.

With the footing firm beneath him he left the water and climbed upward to the edge of the cenote.

It was then that he realized that it was raining. Raining with the insistent steady downpour that told dead upon them it would be only a matter of days now—perhaps hours—before the caverns and cenotes would be flooded.

MISSOURI RIVER ON RAMPAGE

Ice jams in the Missouri river resulted in the flooding of hundreds of acres of lowlands and threatened other sections. Shown here is a scene near Iatan, Mo., of a partially submerged farm house. (Associated Press Photo)

He looked about him. The dim jungle pressed upon him from all sides. Only vaguely could he estimate the points of the compass. Swiftly he analyzed the alternatives confronting him.

He could attempt a return to Janice and Billy. But even with compass, supplies, matchete, and firearms it would take him days to reach them even supposing he might find their cenote valley readily—a chance as remote as finding the proverbial needle.

To attempt the coast on foot would doubtless and with more success—for himself. It might take him days to accomplish that; it would be too late, then, to rescue his companions supposing rain continued and they were unable to get out of the valley.

A sudden thought struck him at this point: Langton hinted that the high-priest knew a way to get out. Perhaps the abidin had been but biding his time until he had but a crippled man and a helpless girl to put some sinister plan of his own into operation.

Frank wiped the dripping rain from his face. He thought with a light bitterness that it was a trick of life to give a man not two alternatives, but three or more. It increased the odds against his being right in the one he chose.

He looked down at the pool of the cenote. He saw the break in the wall from whence he had floated.

On the other side he observed that the roof of the continuing cavern was a scant three feet above the water level.

Doubtless driftwood had dammed that exit causing the water in the pool rise. However it would not be long before that dam would crack through and the whole system of the underground river would be gorged with a turmoil of floating brush, logs and debris.

He descended to the pool and waded in. He gave no thought to the reptiles that might be lurking in its depths, nor to the possibility that the cavern might be choked at the father end in which case he would never see daylight again.

He had taken those chances deliberately that morning when he had left Janice; the situation had not been altered. He splashed toward the exit where the water swirled under the three foot arch.

Just before he made the plunge beneath the arch he saw the alligator again. He was lying on the bank, his malevolent little eyes fixed on Frank.

Then, there was only darkness.

President Roosevelt's keynote to the NRA code authorities was check full of veiled threats. When asked later to amplify them he merely shrugged eloquently and implied any suggestion that represented him as about to shorten hours and increase wages without the aid of Congress was premature.

Meanwhile General J. H. or was making his proposal for the same thing in a more definite way—with reservations. Industrialists saw this coming and began shouting "No" before it happened. They're still weeping.

A good even-money bet would be that both sides are ready to compromise. That would leave wages as is and shorten hours—a little.

Barred— This item may be considered as making a nomination for the hall of fame.

Forty Congressmen armed with reserve-seat tickets descended on Constitution Hall about five minutes after President Roosevelt's entry and tried to pry open a door so they could hear his NRA speech.

A big Irish cop barred their way and would listen to nothing or look a no credentials. At last one of the more wrathful legislators demanded to know who his superior officer was.

"I have no superior officer in this building," said the copper blandly and the door stayed shut.

raised at present but doesn't feel it can give ground to help the employers' side. On the other hand it's understood in high local quarters that there's no wish to crack down on the motor companies if it can be helped. Even some labor leaders feel the fight has been badly timed.

Experts agree that a tie-up in the auto industry would hurt recovery worse than trouble in almost any other field—partly because motor makers are big customers of so many other industries and partly because the valuable momentum it has gained would be lost. You hear plenty of forecasts from informed sources that the government will have its hands full trying to maintain industrial peace within six weeks.

Weir

Mr. E. T. Weir of National Steel apparently doesn't care how many fights he picks with the government. Apart from the labor issue New Yorkers hear privately that he plans to build a four-million-dollar addition to his plant in defiance of orders that no production facilities shall be added without specific NRA consent.

Consumers

Consumers have at least one break coming their way. Most every industry in the country will file statistics to prove that the 36-hour week is ruinous in their special case. Some exceptions will be granted. Others are certain not to be.

Surprise

The supreme court's decision in favor of the New York Milk Control Board took state authorities completely by surprise. They were so sure of an adverse decision they hadn't even bothered to give the Milk Board a new lease on life. Its present charter expires March 31st. After the court acted they took their cue in a hurry.

Many Attend "Fashions Of 1934" And Fashion Parade At The Ritz Sunday; Performance Tonight At 9

A double hit was scored Sunday at the Ritz theatre when J. Y. Robb presented on the screen the movie sensation "Fashions of 1934," followed by the showing of the "Fashion Parade" presented by Albert M. Fisher Co.

The crowds who came had been promised good screen and stage show, and their enthusiasm during the presentations showed that their anticipation was more than fulfilled.

Jane Tingle and Betty Bob Dittus, who acted as pages opened the show with a clever dialogue and pulling the curtains, disclosed a beautiful black and silver background with Veda La Nell Robinson standing in the center. This tiny miss, in pink taffeta, with huge bow at the back stepped down from a dais, and was followed by the models in clothes particularly suited for morning and daytime wear.

Robert Reigel, as master of ceremonies, introduced his dancing pupils who were in several special numbers, and with a great deal of unexpected knowledge of women's fashions and fashions, announced the models.

Black satin trousers, with green blouse formed lounging pajamas displayed by Miss Lola Lester. White skirt, and sweater topped with a red double breasted blazer, and matching hat in a Snyderkit suit, made a jaunty costume for Hazel Smith. A blouse with colors of Mexican origin was worn with white crepe by Miss Lola Bell Stewart, and with it was a huge white felt hat with vari-colored wool embroidery.

A striking and unusual part of the program came when Miss Virginia Cushing came on stage wearing a brown and yellow riding habit, and was followed by Miss Modesta Good wearing a white and black riding ensemble and leading "Prince," a huge St. Bernard, imported from Switzerland, and owned by Elmer Cravens.

Mr. Reigel introduced a chorus dressed in what the "up-to-date" country maiden will wear this season, and the Misses Frances Stamper, Justine Doe, Mary Ruth Wilts, Marguerite Reed, and Edith Dow Cordell, gave a clever tap dance.

A second showing of the models, this time dressed in street and afternoon dresses offered inspiration for proper smart Easter ensembles. Miss Rix wore black crepe with snowy white collar and cuffs and large black Panamala hat, with the new very shallow crown. A lovely chiffon with finger-tip length matching jacket in navy and white print used a corsage of navy and red patent flowers for ornament. With it Miss Wilke wore a large red hat, with perky quill in the back.

Miss Jeanette Pickle presented a picture as she appeared in a black suit, trimmed with printed taffeta, and wearing a small black straw hat, framing her face. She carried black purse and gloves and a ladies week-end case of canvas Ducoed, trimmed with Chromium hardware.

A crushed raspberry shade proclaimed by Vogue as very new, and could do the managing any better than they and there's been no change. One Wall Streeter ruefully comments that the public showed its sentiments by knocking the spots off Van Sweringens bonds on the rumor that the bankers would assume control.

correct, was made with shoulder tucks, and new wide belt to form a particularly effective frock on Miss Good. With it she wore a huge brown hat, with back bow of velvet.

Miss Lula Ashley showed a green crepe, with high standing period collar of silk braid in lustrous design and with matching cuffs. She wore white accessories, and a white Panamala hat with black velvet accents and bow. Very rough white crepe with big dotted bow of fallie crepe, and unusual belt treatment was worn with a navy off-the-face hat, to make an ensemble for Miss Cushing. Yellow chiffon, with bracelet length sleeves in the short coat, and lace sleeves in the dress with a blue sharkskin hat banded with grosgrain ribbons and ending in a rosette were worn by Miss Wilke.

Jane Tingle was a big hit when she appeared in a white spangled costume, and charmed the audience with her interpretation of the song "Come up and see me sometime."

Something new in line and effect was produced in the frock worn by Miss Pickle, in the group of dinner dresses and evening frocks. It was of white mousseline de soie, trimmed with blue, and was cut, and molded to fit without a belt. It was low in the back and fastened with a strap around the neck. Miss Ashley wore a blue chiffon period dress trimmed with yoke of lace. All-over tucked chiffon, fashioned the dress and matching ocar worn by Miss Margaret Bette. Cut low in the back and much fullness to give a wind-blown effect were the features of a blue chiffon modeled by Miss Lester. Miss Stewart appeared in a sensational chateausse dress of "Organel" trimmed with bands of horse hair braid.

Miss Jacqueline Faw and Warren Baxter gave a double tap number, and the show closes with an effective grand finale.

There will be one performance of the "Fashion Parade" given Monday night, beginning at 9 o'clock.

Sheriff Jess Slaughter was in Dallas Monday, where he went to gain custody of R. H. Tomlin, wanted here on a complaint charging him with statutory rape.

Tomlin is alleged to have committed a criminal offense against a 16 year old girl, grand daughter of a prominent Coahoma couple.

The girl named Tomlin as the man who spent an evening with her at a Coahoma hotel. The defendant is an oil field worker.

Still in school, the girl was to have taken part in a declamation contest Thursday evening at Coahoma, but failed to appear. She returned home the next afternoon.

Mountaineers Trim Caballeros Sunday

The West Mountaineers opened their season with a decisive 14-8 win over the Mexican Caballeros Sunday.

Aided by a beautiful day for baseball, the Hill Climbers led with a five run barrage in the first inning and kept up their attack throughout the entire game.

Two home runs by Hart and Hall were features of the game. Hart's circuit smash brought in the first two runs while Hall's came in the eighth with two aboard. The Mountaineers best inning was the second in which they scored four runs. Morgan, Redding, and Smith also contributed to the West Siders win with several well placed hits.

The two teams plan to continue their series next Sunday.

TWO HYPERION CLUBS HOLD JOINT SESSION TO PRESENT PROGRAMS FOR TEXAS DAY

The Senior Hyperion and the Junior Hyperion Clubs met together in a joint session Saturday afternoon at the Settles Hotel to give a program in observance of Texas Day.

In the absence of the president, the vice-president of the Senior Hyperion, Mrs. J. T. Brooks, presided. Members of the two clubs answered to roll call with facts concerning their state. The program was presented in three parts, depicting the early life, the frontier days, the later days of Texas. Mrs. Bruce Frazier had charge of the musical numbers. She opened the program with the presentation of a quartet of high school girls composed of Alta Mary Stalcup, Betty Lou Pysatt, Merle Smith and Frances Rogers, dressed in Indian costumes and singing Indian songs, which she explained. Following this was an original playlet, a sketch of an afternoon in the life of three frontier women who gossiped about legends of gold seekers and hunters, after the fashion of "Coronado's Children." They were Miss Jeanette Pickle, Miss Eloise Haley and Mrs. J. A. Coffey. They wore frontier costumes and carried their snuff cans. The high school quartet changed to negro costumes and sang several spirituals. The closing number was song, "Home On The Range" sung by Mrs. Virginia Peden-Deter, with Mrs. Frazier at the piano. Out of town guests present for the meeting were: Mmes. Otto Pe-another year and let me work with it. The mercy of God is wonderful and past finding out. I have often wondered why He has spared my unprofitable life, but His mercy says, 'let him alone a little longer. I will throw other influence about him. Maybe then he will bear fruit.' I believe that God has been digging about this nation of ours, and I am afraid that we have disappointed Him. Thank God for His mercy.

"That is the hopeful part of His message. Quickly He turns: 'If it bear fruit, well. If not, cut it down.' God's love is past finding out, but there comes a time when His Spirit ceases to strive with men, not because He ceases to love but because of our indifference. "Such is the teaching of Jesus. Men, I would not trifle with His Mercy and a long line of grace that has been extended. Will we continue to rob God of our lives and Christian influence? I come in love to ask you as thinking people not to turn away from Him."

Methodist Revival In Second Week

Rev. Bickley Speaks To Large Congregations At
Sunday Services

Both services at the First Methodist church revival Sunday were attended by large congregations. The revival entered upon its second week, and will continue through Sunday, March 18th. Rev. C. A. Bickley, pastor, spoke Sunday morning on "The Tree That Was Barren." The scripture lesson was taken from Luke 13:6-8. Rev. C. A. Long, presiding elder of the Sweetwater district, spoke at the morning service Monday. Tonight is Mothers and Daughters night. A special invitation is extended.

Rev. Bickley said in part: "People used to say that all suffering was the result of sin. Jesus said that all sin will cause suffering somewhere, but all suffering is not the result of sin. The man at the Pool of Sillean was there because of sin, but one may suffer because of righteousness. "Jesus spoke this parable to show that mere neglect of duty may bring suffering. Let us notice several things about this tree, for Jesus never uttered a truth without a purpose in it. First, notice the record book of this tree. Likewise, our records are being made. "What has been written has been written" and whatever our life has been that we will have to face. This book teaches that there is a record of our lives. What will this record reveal? This was a planted tree, not one that had grown by accident. Neither are we here by accident. God has some great purpose in the life of every person in Big Spring.

"This tree was planted in a vineyard with protection around it. God has given us many blessings; a Christian land and perhaps a Christian home. Along with our protection goes a responsibility. Fathers and mothers, are you sure that you are not a cumber in the home? I know that's not a pleasant message, but I think we had better face the truth before He says, for the last time, 'cut down.' "Here is the comforting thought. Of the tree He said, 'Let it alone
